Now, while I was seeing this, my beloved Jesus told me: “My daughter, how beautiful is the rising of the sun. How it changes all of nature; and by transforming it into its very light, it gives to each thing the effects needed to make them produce the good they contain. But in order to do this, the light must invest them, touch them, mold them, penetrate so deep into them as to give them sips of light, in order to infuse the life of the good which they must produce. So, if the plants, the flowers, the sea, did not let themselves be invested by the light, the light would be as though dead for them, and they would remain in the nightmare of darkness, which would serve as the tomb to bury them. The virtue of darkness is to give death; the virtue of light is to give life. So, if it wasn’t for the light of the sun, on which all created things are dependent, and from which all of them receive life, nothing good would be on earth – on the contrary, it would be frightening and horrible to the sight. Therefore, the life of the earth is bound to the light.

Now, my daughter, the sun is the symbol of my Will, and you have seen how beautiful and enchanting is its rising over the earth; how many effects it produces, how many different colors, how many beauties, how many transformations its light can produce, and how this sun has been placed there by its Creator in order to give life, growth and beauty to all nature. So, if this is what the sun does in order to fulfill its office given to it by God, much more does the Sun of my Will, which was given to man to infuse in him the Life of his Creator. Oh! how much more enchanting and beautiful is the rising of the Sun of my Will over the creature. By pounding on her, Its light transforms her, and gives her the different colors of the beauty of her Creator. By investing her and molding her, It penetrates into her and gives her sips of Divine Life, that she may grow and produce the effects of the goods which the Life of her Creator contains. Now, what would happen to the earth without the sun? Much more ugly and frightening would the soul be without my Will. How she decays from her origin! How the nightmare of passions and vices, more than darkness, makes her die, and prepares the tomb in which to bury her. But you have seen that the light of the sun can do good insofar as the plants, the flowers and the other things let themselves be touched and invested by the light, remaining with their mouths open in order to receive the sips of life which the sun gives to them. So it is with my Will. It can do so much good, it can infuse so much beauty and Divine Life, for as much as the soul lets herself be touched, invested, molded by the hands of light of my Will. If the soul gives herself prey to this light, abandoning herself completely in it, my Supreme Will will perform the greatest prodigy of Creation – the Divine Life in the creature.

Oh! if the sun could form with the reflection of its light as many other suns on each plant, in the seas, on the mountains, in the valleys – what more beautiful enchantment, what beauty more radiant, how many more prodigies would there not be in the order of nature? Yet, what the sun does not do, my Will does in the soul who lives in It, and who remains with her mouth open, like a little flower, in order to receive the sips of light which my Will gives her, to form the life of the Divine Sun within her. Therefore, be attentive, take, in every instant, these sips of light of my Will, that It may accomplish in you the greatest of prodigies – that my Will may have Its Divine Life in the creature.”

After this, I was saying to my highest and only Good: ‘My Love, I unite my intelligence to yours, so that my thoughts may have life in yours; and diffusing in your Will, they may flow over each thought of creature. And rising together before our Celestial Father, we will bring Him the homages, the subjection, the love of each thought of creature, and we will impetrate that all created intelligences may be reordered and harmonized with their Creator.’ And the same with the gazes of Jesus, with His words, with His works, with His steps, and even with His heartbeat. I felt all transformed in Jesus, in such a way that I found myself, as though in act, in everything that my Jesus had done, and was doing to restore the glory of the Father, and in the good He had impetrated for creatures. His work was one with mine – one the love, one the Will. And my sweet Jesus added: “My daughter, how beautiful is the prayer, the love, the work of the creature in my Will! Her acts are filled with the whole of the divine fullness. Their fullness is such that they embrace everything and everyone – even God Himself. See, for all eternity your thoughts will be seen in mine, your eyes, your words in mine, your works and steps in mine, your heartbeat palpitating in mine, because one is the Will that gives us life, one the love that moves us, that pushes us, and that binds us in an inseparable way.

This is why the Sun of my Will surpasses in an infinite and more surprising way the sun present in the atmosphere. See the great difference: the sun created by God, while pounding on the earth, invests it, it produces admirable and innumerable effects, but it does not depart from its source. It descends down below, it rises up high, it touches the stars, but the fullness of light remains always within its sphere; otherwise it would not be able to invest everything with its light, always equally. But in spite of all this, the solar light does not penetrate into the heavens to invest the throne of God, to penetrate into God Himself and make its light one with the inaccessible Light of the Supreme Being; nor can it invest the Angels, the Saints, or the Celestial Mama. On the other hand, when the Sun of my Will reigns in the soul with all Its fullness, Its light penetrates everywhere – into the hearts and into the minds of the creatures who live down on earth. But what surprises is that It rises up high, It invests the whole Creation, and brings the kiss of the light of the Supreme Will to the sun, to the stars, to the heavens. The Divine Will which reigns in the Creation and the Sun of the Divine Will which reigns in the soul meet, they kiss each other, love each other and make each other happy. And while remaining in the Creation – because the Sun of my Will leaves nothing behind, but brings everything with Itself – It penetrates into the Heavens, It invests everyone, the Angels, the Saints, the Sovereign Queen; It gives Its kiss to all, It gives new joys, new contentments, new love. But this is not all. It pours Itself mightily into the womb of the Eternal One. The Divine Will bilocated in the creature, kisses, loves, adores the Will reigning in God Himself; It brings everyone and everything to Him, and as they dive into each other, It rises again to follow Its course. In fact, since the fullness of the Sun of the Eternal Will is in the soul, this Sun is at her disposal, and as she emits her acts, loving, praying, repairing, etc., this Sun continues Its course, to give to all the surprise of Its light, of Its love, of Its life. So, while this Sun of the Eternal Will rises and follows Its course to perform Its setting in the womb of the Divinity, another one rises to follow Its way, enveloping everything, even the Celestial Fatherland, to then have Its golden sunset in the womb of the Supreme Majesty. So, the bilocations of my Will are innumerable; this Sun rises at each act of the creature done within the Sun of the Supreme Volition – which does not happen with the sun present in the atmosphere, which is always one, and does not multiply. Oh! if the sun had the virtue of making as many suns rise for as many times as it does its course over the earth - how many suns could one not see up there? What enchantment, how many more goods would the earth not receive? Therefore, how many goods does the soul who lives completely in my Will not do, by giving her God the occasion to bilocate His Will, to let Him repeat the prodigies which only a God can do?” Having said this, He disappeared, and I found myself inside myself.

In the fulfillment of one's duty there is sanctity. Image of one who operates for human purposes and of one who operates to do the Divine Will. How Our Lord is the heartbeat of all Creation.

I was doing my usual adoration to my crucified Jesus, and while praying, I felt my sweet Jesus near me. Throwing His arm around my neck, He clasped me tightly to Himself, and at the same time He made me see my last late confessor[1]. I seemed to see him pensive, all recollected, but without saying anything to me. My Jesus looked at him and told me: “My daughter, your confessor has found great things before Me, because when he would undertake an office, a commitment, he would neglect nothing so as to fulfill that office exactly. He was most attentive, he would make great sacrifices, and if necessary, he would even dispose himself to lay down his own life so that his office might be fulfilled exactly. He had a fear that, if he did not operate as befitted his office in the works entrusted to him, he himself might be an obstacle to the very work entrusted to him. This means that he appreciated and gave the right value to my works, and his attentiveness attracted the grace which was needed for the fulfillment of his office. This may not appear to be such a great thing – but rather, it is everything. In fact, when one is called to an office and fulfills the duties pertaining to that office, it means that he does it for God; and in the fulfillment of one's duty there is sanctity. So, he came before Me with the fulfillment of his own duties, which had been entrusted to him – how could I not reward him as he deserved?”

Now, while Jesus was saying this, the confessor seemed to become more engrossed in more profound recollection, and the light of Jesus was reflected on his face; but he did not say even one word to me. Then Jesus resumed His speaking: “My daughter, when an individual occupies an office and makes a mistake, or is not attentive to the duties which his office demands, he may cause great troubles. Imagine one who has the office of judge, of king, of minister, or of mayor. If he makes a mistake, or is not attentive to his own duties, he may cause the ruin of families, of towns, and even of entire kingdoms. If that mistake, if that lack of attention, came from a private individual who does not occupy that given office, it would not cause so much trouble. Therefore, faults in offices weigh more heavily and cause graver consequences. So, when I call a confessor to give him an office, and in this office I entrust to Him a work of mine, if I do not see attention and the fulfillment of his duties pertaining to that office, I give him neither the necessary grace, nor enough light to make him comprehend all the importance of my work; nor can I trust him, because I see that he does not appreciate the work entrusted to him by Me. My daughter, if one carries out his office exactly, it means that he does it to fulfill my Will; but if one does otherwise, it means that he does it for human purposes - and if you knew the difference between the two....”

In the meantime, I saw two people before me. One of them went on picking up rocks, old rags, rusty iron, pieces of clay - all things which are heavy and of very little value. Poor one, he struggled and sweated under the weight of that rubbish; more so, since it did not give him the value necessary to satisfy his hunger. The other one went on picking up grains of diamond, little gems and precious stones – all things which are very light but of incalculable value. My sweet Jesus added: “The one who keeps picking up rubbish is the image of one who operates for human purposes. That which is human always carries the weight of matter. The other is the image of one who operates in order to do the Divine Will. What a difference between the two! The grains of diamond are my truths – the knowledges regarding my Will which, picked up by the soul, form as many diamonds for her. Now, if one loses some of that rubbish or does not pick it up, he will cause almost no harm; but if one loses or does not pick up one of these tiny grains of diamond, he will cause great harm, because they are of incalculable value and they weigh as much as a God can weigh. And if it is lost because of someone who has the office of picking them up, what account will he not have to give, having caused the loss of a grain of infinite value, which could have done who knows how much good to the other creatures?”

After this, my sweet Jesus placed His Heart within me, and made me feel His heartbeat, saying to me: “My daughter, I am the heartbeat of all Creation. If my heartbeat were missing, life would be missing to all created things. Now, I love so much one who lives in my Will, that I do not know how to be without her, and I want her together with Me to do whatever I do. So, you will palpitate together with Me, and among the many prerogatives I will give you, I will give you the prerogative of the heartbeat of all Creation. In the heartbeat there is life, motion, heat; so, you will be with Me, giving life, motion and heat to everything.” As He was saying this, I felt myself moving and palpitating in all created things, and Jesus added: “One who lives in my Will is inseparable from Me, and I do not know how to be without her company. I do not want to be isolated, because company renders the works one undertakes more pleasant, more delightful, more beautiful. Therefore, your company is necessary to Me, in order to break my isolation, in which the other creatures leave Me.”

Diversity of sanctity and beauty in the souls who live in the Divine Will. How the whole order and variety of Creation will be veiled in the human nature.

I was thinking: ‘If the creature had not withdrawn from the Supreme Will, one would be the sanctity, one the beauty, one the science, one the light, and there would be the same knowledge of our Creator for all.’ Now, while I was thinking of this, my beloved Jesus – and it seems to me that He Himself makes these thoughts, some doubts and difficulties, arise within my mind, in order to have the opportunity to speak to me and act as my Teacher – told me: “My daughter, you are wrong. My wisdom would not adapt itself to forming only one sanctity, only one beauty, or to communicating only one science and the same knowledge of Me to everyone. More so since, through highest accord between my Will and those of creatures, the Kingdom of my Will would have had free field of action. Therefore, all would have been saints, but one distinct from the other – all beautiful, but varied, one more beautiful than the other. And according to the sanctity of each one, I was to communicate a distinct science; and with this science, some would know one attribute of their Creator more, some another. You must know that as much as We can give to the creature, she only takes the little drops of her Creator, so great is the distance between Creator and creatures; and We have always new and different things to give.

And besides, since Creation was created by Us so that We might delight in It, where would Our delight be, had We formed in the creature only one sanctity, or given only one beauty and only one knowledge of Our incomprehensible, immense and infinite Being? Our wisdom would have grown bored with doing only one thing. What would be said of Our wisdom, love and power, if in creating this terrestrial globe, We had made it all sky, or all earth, or all sea? What would Our glory have been? Instead, the multiplicity of so many things created by Us, while singing the praises of wisdom, love and power, speaks also of the variety of sanctity and beauty in which creatures were to arise, for love of whom they were created. See, the sky studded with stars is beautiful, but the sun also is beautiful, though they are distinct from each other, and the sky does one office, the sun, another. The sea is beautiful, but the flowery earth, the height of the mountains, the expanse of the plains also are beautiful, though the beauties and the offices are distinct among them. A garden is beautiful, but how many varieties of plants and beauties are in it? There is the tiny little flower, beautiful in its littleness; there is the violet, the rose, the lily – all beautiful, but distinct in color, in fragrance, in size. There is the little plant and the highest tree... What enchantment is a garden guided by an experienced gardener!

Now, my daughter, in the order of human nature also there will be some who will surpass the sky in sanctity and in beauty; some the sun, some the sea, some the flowery earth, some the height of the mountains, some the tiny little flower, some the little plant, and some the highest tree. And even if man should withdraw from my Will, I will multiply the centuries so as to have, in the human nature, all the order and the multiplicity of created things and of their beauty - and to have it even surpassed in a more admirable and enchanting way.”

Just as the Virgin had to embrace everything and do the acts of all, in order to obtain the longed for Redeemer and conceive Him, in the same way, the one who must obtain the Supreme Fiat has to embrace all and answer for all. Luisa feels the weight of her responsibility; Jesus reassures her.

I was fusing myself in the Holy Divine Will, and after going around all created things in order to impress my ‘I love You’, so that my ‘I love You’ might resound everywhere and over all to requite my Jesus for His great love, I arrived at that point at which I would be requiting my God for all the love He had in the act of being conceived in the womb of the Celestial Mama. At that moment my beloved Jesus came out from within my interior and told me: “My daughter, in order to conceive Me, Eternal Word, my inseparable Mama was enriched with seas of grace, of light and of sanctity by the Supreme Majesty. And She did such and so many acts of virtue, of love, of prayer, of desire and of ardent sighs, as to surpass all the love, virtues and acts of all generations, which were needed in order to obtain the longed for Redeemer. So, when I saw in the Sovereign Queen the complete love of all creatures and all the acts needed to deserve that the Word be conceived, I found in Her the requital of the love of all, Our glory restored, all the acts of the redeemed ones, and even of those for whom my Redemption was to serve as condemnation because of their ingratitude. Then did my love make Its final display, and I was conceived. Therefore, the right to the name of Mother is natural for Her – it is sacred, because by embracing all the acts of the generations, and substituting for all, it was as if She delivered them all to new life from her maternal womb.

Now, you must know that when We do Our works, We have to give so much love, light and grace to the creature who is chosen and to whom the work is entrusted, that she may be able to give Us all the requital and the glory of the work entrusted to her. Our power and wisdom would not deposit themselves in the bank of the creature from the very beginning of a work of Ours, as though in the act of going bankrupt. Our work must be safe in the creature who is called as primary act, and We must collect all the interest and the glory equivalent to Our work entrusted to her. And even if Our work were later communicated to the other creatures, and because of their ingratitude it ran the risk of failing, this would be more tolerable for Us, because the one to whom it was entrusted at the beginning allowed Us to collect all the interest in place of the failures of the other creatures. This is why We gave Her everything and received everything from Her: so that all the capital of Redemption might remain intact, and through Her, Our glory might be completed and Our love requited. Who is the wise man who, from the very beginning, would put his capital in a bank that is about to go bankrupt? First he makes sure, and then he entrusts his capital. However, it may happen that later on it fails, but this cannot cause him grave damage, because he has already made up for his capital through the much interest received. If man does so, much more so does God, whose wisdom is incomprehensible. And this was not about just any work, or a small capital, but it was about the great work of Redemption, and all the cost of the infinite and incalculable value of the Eternal Word. It was a unique work, nor could a new descent of the Eternal Word on earth be repeated. Therefore We had to place it in safety in the Celestial Sovereign Lady. And since We entrusted everything to Her – even the very Life of a God - She, as Our trustworthy one, had to answer for all, becoming the guarantor and the one responsible for this Divine Life entrusted to Her – as indeed She did.

Now, my daughter, what I did and wanted from my Celestial Mama in the great work of Redemption, I want to do with you in the great work of the Supreme Fiat. The work of the Divine Fiat is a work that must embrace everything - Creation, Redemption and Sanctification. It is the basis of everything, it is the life that flows in everything and encloses everything within itself. Because it has no beginning, it is the beginning of all things, and the end and fulfillment of Our works. See, then: the capital We want to entrust to you is exuberant - you have not calculated it. But do you know what it is that We entrust to you in the Supreme Fiat? We entrust to you the whole Creation, all the capital of Redemption, and that of Sanctification. My Will is universal, and in all things It has been the operator. So, it is right that what belongs to It be entrusted to you. Would you perhaps want my Will without Its works? We do not know how to give Our Life without Our works and Our goods - when We give, We give everything. And just as by giving the Word to the Celestial Queen, We centralized all His works and His goods in Her, in the same way, by giving you Our Supreme Will, reigning and dominating in you, We give you all the works that belong to It. This is why We are giving you so many graces, knowledges and capacities – so that from the very beginning the Supreme Fiat might suffer no failure. And you, placing It in safety, must give It the requital of love and glory of all Creation, Redemption and Sanctification. Your task is great – it is universal, and must embrace everyone and everything, in such a way that if Our Will, communicated to the other creatures, should suffer some failure, in you We must find the compensation for the void of others. And as you place It in safety within yourself, and you give Us the love, the glory and all the acts that the other creatures should do for Us, Our glory will always be complete and Our love will collect Its just interest. So, you too will be Our trustworthy one, the one responsible for the Divine Will entrusted to you, and Its guarantor.”

Now, while Jesus was saying this, I was taken by such fright. I comprehended all the weight of my responsibility, and fearing strongly that I might put in danger nothing less than all the weight and works of a Divine Will, I said: ‘My Love, thank You for so much goodness of yours toward me, but I feel that what You want to give me is too much. I feel an infinite weight that crushes me, and my littleness and incapacity have neither strength nor ability. As I fear that I might displease You, and I might be unable to embrace everything – go to some other creature, more capable, so that all this capital of your Supreme Will may be safer, and You may receive all the interest equivalent to such a great capital. I had never thought of such a great responsibility, but now that You are making me understand it, I feel my strengths fail me and I fear my weakness.’ And Jesus, clasping me to Himself to relieve me from the fear that crushed me, added: “My daughter, courage, do not fear. It is your Jesus that wants to give you too much. Am I perhaps not free to give whatever I want? Do you perhaps want to put a limit to my complete work, which I want to entrust to you? What would you say if my Celestial Mama had wanted to accept Me, the Eternal Word, but without His goods and without the acts that were needed to be able to conceive Me? Would this be true love and true acceptance? Certainly not. So, would you want my Will without Its works and without the acts that befit It?

Now, so that you may remove this fright, you must know that everything I have told you – that is, this capital so great - is already in you. After I had you acquire the practice of giving Me the requital of the glory and the love of all Creation, Redemption and Sanctification, making you embrace everything and everyone, and having seen that the equivalent interest was coming to Me easily – only then did I want to make known to you, with more clarity, the great capital of my Will entrusted to you, so that you may know the great good you possess, and as you come to know it, I may sign the deed of the capital entrusted to you, and also make for you the receipt of the interest you give Me. If you did not know it, neither the deed of the capital, nor the receipt of the interest could be made. Here is, therefore, the necessity to make it known to you. Besides, why do you fear to the point of wanting to send Me to another creature? Do you not have a love within you that says, ‘I love You for everyone and for everything’, and a motion that repays Me for the motion of all, and that in everything you do, embraces everyone, to give Me the acts, the prayers, the glory and the reparations of all, as though in one single embrace? If you already do this, why do you fear?”

At that moment, I saw other souls around me. Jesus went to them, and checking them all, He seemed to touch them to see whether, at His touch, the motion of His Divine Life would come out – but nothing came out. Then He came back to me, and taking my hand, He squeezed it tightly. At His touch a light came out of me, and Jesus, all content, told me: “This light is the motion of the Divine Life in you. I went to the other creatures, as you saw, but I did not find my motion. How, then, can I entrust the great capital of my Will? This is why I have chosen you, and that’s enough. Be attentive and do not fear.”

The Divine Will is seed of life, and wherever It enters, It produces life and sanctity. Just as the Virgin had Her time, the one who must impetrate the Supreme FIAT also has her time.

I was accompanying my sweet Jesus in His sorrowful agony in the Garden, especially when all the weight of our sins unloaded itself upon His Most Holy Humanity, to the point of making Him shed living blood. Oh! how I would have wanted to relieve Him from pains so excruciating. And while I compassionated His whole Being, He told me: “My daughter, my Will has the power to give death and to give life; and since my Humanity knew no other life but the Life of my Divine Will, as the sins crowded over Me, my Will made Me feel a distinct death for each sin. My Humanity moaned under the pain of the real death which my Supreme Will gave Me; but over that very death which this Divine Will gave Me, It made the new life of grace rise again for creatures. So, as evil and bad as a creature might be, if she has the fortune of letting one act of my Will enter into herself, even at the point of death, since my Will is life, It sows the seed of life in the soul. And as she possesses this seed of life, there is great hope that the soul may be saved, because the power of my Will will be careful so that this act of life of Its own, which has entered the soul, may not perish and turn into death. In fact, my Will has the power to give death, but my Will Itself and all of Its acts are untouchable and not subject to any death. Now, if one act alone of my Will contains the seed of life, what will not be the fortune of one who embraces within her soul, not one act alone, but continuous acts of my Will? This creature receives, not just the seed, but the fullness of life, and places her sanctity in safety.”

Then, afterwards, my poor mind was wandering in the Holy Divine Will, doing my usual acts in It. It seemed to me that everything was mine, and as I went around through all created things to impress everywhere my ‘I love You’, my adoration, my ‘Glory to my Creator’, I acquired new knowledge of what God has done for the creature, and of how much He has loved us. The Supreme Will seemed to delight in making known the new surprises of Its love, so that I might follow Its acts in order for It to give me the right to possess what has come out of Its creative Will. My littleness wandered amid Its immense goods. In the meantime, my sweet Jesus came out from within my interior, and told me: “My daughter, when my Queen Mama came out to the light of the day, everyone was turned toward Her, and as though having one single gaze, all pupils looked at She who was to dry their tears by bringing to them the Life of the longed for Redeemer. All Creation was centered in Her, feeling honored to obey Her wishes. The Divinity Itself was all for Her and all intent on Her, in order to prepare Her and to form in Her, with surprising graces, the space into which the Eternal Word was to descend to take on human flesh. If the virtue were not present within Us that, while We operate, deal with or speak with one creature, We do not neglect the others, all would have said to Us: ‘Leave all of us aside, think of this Virgin; give – centralize everything in Her, that She may let the One come in whom our hopes, our life, all of our good, are placed.’ Therefore, the time in which the Sovereign Queen came out to the light of the day can be called the time of my Mama.

This, my daughter, can be called your time. All are turned toward you; I hear the voice of all, as if it were one alone, praying Me, pressing Me, that my Will may reacquire Its absolute divine rights over you, so that, acquiring Its total dominion, It may pour into you all the fullness of goods It had established to give if the creature had not withdrawn from my Will. So, the whole of Heaven, the Celestial Mama, the Angels and Saints – all are turned toward you for the triumph of my Will, because their glory in Heaven will not be complete if my Will does not have Its complete triumph on earth. Everything was created for the total fulfillment of the Supreme Will, and until Heaven and earth return into this circle of the Eternal Volition, they feel their works, their glory and beatitude as though halved, because, not having found Its complete fulfillment in the Creation, the Divine Will cannot give what It had established to give – that is, the fullness of Its goods, of Its effects, joys and happinesses which It contains. This is why they are all longing; my Will Itself is all for you and intent on you; It holds nothing back of graces, of light and whatever it takes to form in you the greatest of prodigies, which is Its fulfillment and Its total triumph. Which one do you think is a greater prodigy: that a little light remains enclosed in the sun, or that the sun remains enclosed in the little light?”

And I: ‘It would certainly be more prodigious if the little light enclosed the sun; and indeed, it seems impossible to me that this may happen.’ And Jesus: “What is impossible for the creature is possible for God. The little light is the soul, and my Will is the sun. Now, my Will must give so much to the little light as to be able to make of it a circle and be enclosed in It. And since the nature of light is to spread its rays everywhere, while remaining in triumph within this circle, It will spread Its divine rays to give the Life of my Will to all. This is the prodigy of prodigies, which the whole of Heaven longs for. Therefore, give broad field to my Will – be opposed in nothing, so that what was established by God in the work of Creation may have its fulfillment.”

The Divine Will envelops everything and everyone in the unity of Its Light. How the whole Creation possesses unity, and one who must live in the Divine Will also possesses this unity.

I was doing my usual acts in the Supreme Volition, and an inaccessible light enveloped my little being; it made as though present to me all the works of my Creator, and I had an ‘I love You’ for each created thing, a motion for each motion, an adoration and a ‘thank You’ of gratitude for all Creation. However, I comprehended that it was the light itself that administered to me that ‘I love You’ for each thing, that motion, that adoration; I was just prey to that light, while it enlarged me, it made me smaller and did whatever it wanted with my littleness. Now, while in this state, I was sorrowful because I could not see my sweet Jesus, and I thought to myself: ‘Jesus has left me, and in this blessed light I do not know where to turn my steps in order to find Him, because one can see neither where it begins nor where it ends. Oh! holy light, let me find the One who is my whole life - my highest Good.’ But while I poured myself out because of the pain of the privation of Jesus, all goodness, He came out from within my interior, and, all tenderness, He told me: “My daughter, why do you fear? I do not leave you; rather, it is my Supreme Will that eclipses Me within you. The light of my Will is endless, infinite – Its boundaries cannot be found, neither where It begins nor where It ends. On the other hand, my Humanity does have Its boundaries, Its limits, and therefore, since my Humanity is smaller than my Eternal Will, I remain enwrapped and as though eclipsed within It; and while I am with you, I give the field of action to my Will, I enjoy Its divine operating in the littleness of your soul, and I prepare a new lesson to give you, to make known to you, more and more, the wonders of my Supreme Will. Therefore, when you swim in It, be certain that I am with you; even more, I do what you do together with you, and in order to give It complete field of action I remain as though hidden in you, to enjoy Its fruits.

Now, my daughter, you must know that true light is not separable. Look: the sun which is in the atmosphere also has this prerogative and possesses the unity of light; the light is so compacted together within its sphere as to lose not one atom; and even though it descends down below, filling the whole earth with light, the light never separates. It is so compact within itself, united, not separable, that it never loses anything of its solar light; so much so that, all together, it spreads its rays, dispelling everywhere the darkness from the earth, and, all together, it withdraws its light, leaving not even the traces of its atoms. If the light of the sun were divisible, for how long would the sun have been poor in light, having no more strength to illuminate all the earth. One could say: 'Divided light – desolate earth.' So, the sun can sing victory and it possesses all its strength and its effects thanks to the unity of its light; and if the earth receives so many admirable and innumerable effects, to the point that the sun can be called the life of the earth, everything comes from the unity of the light it possesses, which, after so many centuries, has lost not even one atom of light which was entrusted to it by God, and therefore it is always triumphant, majestic and fixed, and always stable in its light, in singing the praises of the triumph and the glory of the eternal light of its Creator.

Now, my daughter, the sun is the symbol of my Eternal Will; and if this symbol possesses the unity of light, much more so does my Will, which is not a symbol, but the reality of light, while the sun can be called the budding of the inaccessible light of my Will. And you have seen Its immensity, and how one does not see a globe of light like the sun, but vastness, such that the human eye cannot arrive at seeing where It ends or where It begins. Yet, all this endlessness of light is one single act of the Eternal Will. All this uncreated light is so compacted together as to become inseparable, indivisible; and so, more than sun, it possesses the eternal unity, in which the triumph of God and of all Our works is founded. Now, this triumph of the unity of the Supreme Will, the center of its dwelling place, of its throne, is the center of the Sacrosanct Trinity. From this divine center start its most refulgent rays, which invest the whole Celestial Fatherland; all Saints and Angels are invested by the unity of my Will, they all receive Its innumerable effects, and abducting them all to Itself, It makes of them one single unity with the supreme unity of my Will. These rays invest the whole Creation and form its unity with the soul who lives in my Will. Look: the unity of this light of my Will which resides in the center of the Three Divine Persons is already fixed in you; so, one is the light and the act, one is the Will. Now, while you do your acts in this unity, they are already incorporated in that single act of the center, and the Divinity is already with you, doing what you do. The Celestial Mama, the Saints and Angels, and the whole Creation – all in chorus repeat your act, and feel the effects of the Supreme Will. Watch - listen to the prodigy never before seen of that single act which fills Heaven and earth, with the very Trinity unifying Itself with the creature and placing Itself as the primary act of the act of the creature.”

At that moment I could see the eternal light fixed in me, and I could hear the chorus of the whole of Heaven and of all Creation in its mute language. But who can say everything and what I comprehended of the unity of the light of the Supreme Will? Jesus added: “My daughter, in order for each act to be good and holy, its origin must come from God, and - behold, for the soul who lives in my Will, in the unity of this light, her adoration, her love, her motion and everything she may do, begin from the Divine Trinity. So, she receives the origin of her acts from God Himself, and here is how her adoration, her love, her motion, are the same adoration which the Three Divine Persons have among themselves, the same reciprocal love which reigns among the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit, and her motion is that eternal motion which never ceases and gives motion to all. The unity of this light places everything in common; whatever God does, the soul does, and whatever the soul does, God does – God by His own virtue, the soul by virtue of the unity of the light that envelops her. Therefore, the prodigy of living in my Will is the prodigy of God Himself - it is primary prodigy, while all other prodigies, all other works, even good and holy ones, remain eclipsed - they disappear before the acts done in the unity of this light. Imagine the sun, spreading its rays in the unity of its light, invading all the earth; and then the creatures, placing before the blazing light of the sun all the lights that exist in the low world – electric light, private lights. As many as they would want to put there, their light would always be meager before the sun, almost as if they did not exist, and no one would use all those lights to give light to their steps in order to walk, to their hands in order to work, to their eyes in order to see, but all would use the sun; and all those lights would remain idle, without doing good to anyone.

Such are all the other works which are not done in the unity of the light of my Will. They are the little lights before the great sun, which one almost does not notice. However, those very lights which are useless, which make no impression and do no good when the sun is present, once the sun disappears, acquire their little value, do their little good, are light in the darkness of the night, serve the work of man. However, they are never sun, nor can they do the great good which the sun can do. Yet, the purpose of Creation was that, all things having come out from within the unity of this light of the Supreme Fiat, all should have remained in the unity of It. Only the creature did not want to recognize this purpose; he went out of the unity of the light of the sun of my Will, and reduced himself to begging for the effects of this light, almost as the earth begs its vegetation and the development of the seeds it hides in its womb, from the sun. What sorrow, my daughter – to reduce oneself from king to beggar, and to beg from those which were to be at his service.”

All afflicted and sorrowful, Jesus kept silent, and I comprehended all the sorrow that pierced Him. I could feel His sorrow within me, penetrating deep into the inmost fibers of my soul. But I wanted to cheer Jesus at any cost, so I returned to my usual acts in the unity of His Will, knowing that He easily passes from sorrow to joy when my littleness dives into the inaccessible light of His Will. And Jesus loved together with me, and love healed His sorrow. Then He resumed His speaking: “My daughter, since I am raising you in my Will, O please! do not want ever to give Me this sorrow, so piercing, of going out of the unity of the light of the Supreme Fiat. Promise Me - swear that you will always be the newborn of my Will.” And I: ‘My Love, be consoled, I promise - I swear; and You must promise me to keep me always in your arms and sunken in your Will. You must never leave me if You want me to be always, always, the little daughter of your Will, for I tremble and I fear myself; more so, since the more You speak about this Supreme Volition, the more I feel that I am no good, and the nothingness of my nothing makes itself felt more.’

And Jesus, sighing, added: “My daughter, feeling your nothingness more does not oppose the living in my Will; on the contrary, it is a duty of yours. All of my works are formed over nothing, and this is why the All can do what He wants. If the sun had reason, and someone asked it: ‘What good do you do? What are your effects? How much light and heat do you contain?’; it would answer: ‘I do nothing, I just know that the light given to me by God is invested with the Supreme Will, and I do whatever It wants. I extend wherever It wants, and I produce the effects It wants; and while I do so much, I remain always nothing and the Divine Will does everything in me.’ The same for all my other works - all their glory is to remain in their nothingness in order to give the whole field to my Will, to let It operate. Only man wanted to do without the Will of his Creator, he wanted to make his nothingness operate, believing himself to be good at something; and the All, feeling Himself placed after the nothing, went out of man, who reduced himself from superior to all, to inferior to all.

Therefore, let your nothingness be always at the mercy of my Will, if you want the unity of Its light to operate in you and call the purpose of Creation back to new life.”

Difference between one who lives in the Divine Will and one who is resigned and submitted to It. The first one is sun, the second is earth, which lives of the effects of the light.

The light of the Divine Will continues to envelop me; and my little intelligence, while swimming in the immense sea of this light, can just barely take a few drops of light and a few little flames of the so many truths, knowledges and happinesses that this endless sea of the Eternal Will contains. And many times I cannot find the right words in order to put on paper that little bit of light; I say little compared to the much I leave out, because my little and poor intelligence takes as much as is enough to fill me – the rest I have to leave out. It happens as to a person who dives into the sea: he becomes all wet, water flows everywhere on him, and maybe even in his bowels; but as he goes out of the sea, how much of all the water of the sea does he carry with himself? Very little – indeed almost nothing compared to the water that remains in the sea. And by having been in the sea, can he perhaps say how much water, how many species of fish and quantities of them there are in the sea? Certainly not; but he will be able to speak of the little he has seen of the sea. Such is my poor soul.

Then, while I was in this light, my sweet Jesus came out from within my interior and told me: “My daughter, this is the unity of the light of my Will, and so that you may love It more and more and be confirmed more in It, I want to make known to you the great difference which exists between one who lives in my Will, in the unity of this light, and one who resigns and submits himself to my Will. In order to make you comprehend this well, I will give you a simile from the sun which is there on the horizon. The sun, being in the vault of the heavens, spreads its rays over the surface of the earth. Look: between the earth and the sun there is a sort of agreement – the sun touches the earth, and the earth receives the light and the touch of the sun. Now, by receiving the touch of the light, submitting to the sun, the earth receives the effects which the light contains, and these effects transmute the face of the earth; they make it turn green again, they make it flower - plants develop, fruits mature, and many other wonders which can be seen on the face of the earth, always produced by the effects contained in the solar light. But by giving its effects, the sun does not give its light; on the contrary, it jealously preserves its unity, and its effects are not lasting, and therefore one sees the poor earth, now all flowery, now all stripped – it changes almost at each season, and undergoes continuous mutations. If the sun gave to the earth effects and light, the earth would change into sun and would have no more need to beg for the effects, because, containing the light within itself, it would become the owner of the source of the effects which the sun contains.

Now, such is the soul who resigns and submits to my Will: she lives of the effects contained in It. Not possessing the light, she does not possess the source of the effects contained in the Sun of the Eternal Volition, and therefore she looks almost like the earth – now rich in virtues, now poor; she changes at every circumstance. Even more, if she is not always resigned and submitted to my Will, she would be like an earth that does not want to let itself be touched by the light of the sun. In fact, if the earth receives its effects it is because it lets itself be touched by its light, otherwise it would remain squalid, unable to produce a single blade of grass. So remained Adam after sin; he lost the unity of the light, and therefore the source of the goods and effects which the Sun of my Will contains. He could no longer feel the fullness of the Divine Sun within himself; he could no longer see within himself that unity of light which his Creator had fixed in the depth of his soul, and which, communicating His likeness to him, made of him His faithful copy. Before sinning, since he possessed the source of the unity of light with his Creator, each little act of his was a ray of light which, invading the whole Creation, went to fix itself in the center of his Creator, bringing Him the love and the return for all that had been made for him in the whole Creation. He was the one who harmonized everything and formed the note of accord between Heaven and earth. But as soon as he withdrew from my Will, his acts no longer invaded Heaven and earth like rays, but they shrank, almost like plants and flowers, within the little circle of his field. So, losing the harmony with all Creation, he became the clashing note of all Creation. Oh! how low he descended, and cried bitterly over the lost unity of light, which, raising him above all created things, made of Adam the little god of the earth.

Now, my daughter, from what I have told you, you can comprehend that the living in my Will is to possess the source of the unity of the light of my Will, with all the fullness of the effects contained in It. So, light, love, adoration... arise in each act of the creature, which, constituting itself act for each act, love for each love, like solar light invades everything, harmonizes everything, centralizes everything within itself; and like a shining ray it brings to her Creator the return for all that He has made for all creatures and the true note of accord between Heaven and earth. What a difference between one who possesses the source of the goods which the Sun of my Will contains, and one who lives of the effects of It! It is the difference that exists between the sun and the earth. The sun always possesses the fullness of its light and effects, it is always blazing and majestic in the vault of the heavens, nor does it need the earth. While it touches everything, it is untouchable, it does not let itself be touched by anyone; and if anyone dared even to fix on it, it would eclipse him, blind him and knock him down with its light. On the other hand, the earth is in need of everything, it lets itself be touched and stripped; and if it wasn't for the light of the sun and its effects, it would be a gloomy prison, full of squalid misery. Therefore, there is no comparison that holds between one who lives in my Will and one who submits to It.

So, before sinning, Adam did possess the unity of light, but he could no longer recover it during his life; it happened to him as to the earth that turns around the sun: not being fixed, in turning around, it opposes the sun and forms the night. Now, in order to render him firm again so that he might sustain the unity of this light, a repairer was needed, and this repairer was supposed to be superior to him; a divine strength was needed in order to straighten him up. Here is the necessity of Redemption.

My Celestial Mama also possessed the unity of this light, and this is why, more than sun, She can give light to all. It was never nighttime, nor was there ever a shadow between Her and the Supreme Majesty, but always full daylight. Therefore, in each instant, this unity of the light of my Will made the whole of the Divine Life flow within Her, which brought Her seas of light, of joys, of happinesses, of divine knowledges, seas of beauty, of glory, of love. And She, as though in triumph, brought all these seas to Her Creator as Her own, to attest to Him Her love, Her adoration, and to charm Him with Her beauty; and the Divinity made flow yet more and new beautiful seas. She possessed so much love that, as though naturally, She could love all, adore and make up for all. Her littlest acts done in the unity of this light were superior to the greatest acts and to all the acts of all creatures together. Therefore, the sacrifices, the works, the love of all other creatures can be called little flames before the sun, little drops of water before the sea, compared to the acts of the Sovereign Queen; and this is why, by virtue of the unity of this light of the Supreme Volition, She triumphed over everything and conquered Her very Creator, making Him a Prisoner in Her maternal womb. Ah! only the unity of this light of my Will, which She who ruled over everything possessed, was able to form this prodigy which had never before occurred, administering to Her acts worthy of this Divine Prisoner.

By losing this unity of light, Adam turned himself upside down and formed night, weaknesses, passions, for himself and for the generations. By never doing Her own will, this excelling Virgin remained always straight, and facing the Eternal Sun; therefore it was always daylight for Her, and She made the day of the Sun of Justice arise for all generations. If this Virgin Queen had done nothing else but preserve the unity of the light of the Eternal Volition in the depth of Her immaculate soul, this would have been enough to give Us back the glory of all, the acts of all, and the requital of love of all Creation. Through Her, by virtue of my Will, the Divinity felt come back to Itself, the joys and the happiness which It had established to receive through Creation. Therefore She can be called the Queen, the Mother, the Foundress, the Base and the Mirror of my Will, in which all can reflect themselves to receive Its Life from Her.”

After this, I felt as though soaked with this light, and I comprehended the great prodigy of living in the unity of this light of the Supreme Volition; and my sweet Jesus, coming back, added: “My daughter, Adam in the state of innocence and my Celestial Mama possessed the unity of light of my Will - not by their own virtue, but by virtue communicated by God. On the other hand, my Humanity possessed it by Its own virtue, because in It there was not only the unity of the light of the Supreme Volition, but there was the Eternal Word; and since I am inseparable from the Father and the Holy Spirit, the true and perfect bilocation occurred – that while I remained in Heaven, I descended into the womb of my Mama; and since the Father and the Holy Spirit are inseparable from Me, They too descended into it, and at the same time They remained in the heights of the Heavens.”

Now, while Jesus was saying this, the doubt came to me about whether the Three Divine Persons had suffered, all Three of Them, or the Word alone; and Jesus resumed His speaking, saying: “My daughter, because They are inseparable from Me, the Father and the Holy Spirit descended with Me and I remained with Them in the Heavens; but the task of satisfying, of suffering, and of redeeming man was taken by Me. I, Son of the Father, took on the role of reconciling God with man. Our Divinity was untouchable by the suffering of the slightest pain; it was my Humanity that, united with the Three Divine Persons in an inseparable way, placing Itself at the mercy of the Divinity, suffered unheard-of pains and satisfied in a divine manner. And since my Humanity possessed not only the fullness of my Will as Its own virtue, but the Word Himself, as well as the Father and the Holy Spirit as a consequence of Our inseparability, It surpassed in a more perfect way both innocent Adam and my very Mama. In fact, in them it was grace, in Me it was nature; they had to draw light, grace, power, beauty from God; in Me there was the springing fount of light, beauty, grace.... So, the difference between Me, as nature, and my very Mama, as grace, was so great, that She remained eclipsed before my Humanity. Therefore, my daughter, be attentive, your Jesus possesses the springing fount, and has always something to give you, and you have always something to take. As much as I may tell you about my Will, I have always something to tell you, and neither the short life of the exile nor the whole eternity will be enough to make known to you the long story of my Supreme Will, and to enumerate for you the great prodigies contained in It.”

Jesus wants our link with everything He has done. Just as God established the epoch and the time of Redemption, so it is for the Kingdom of His Will. The Redemption is means to help man, the Divine Will is origin and end of man.

I was doing my acts in the Supreme Will according to my usual way, and I tried to trace everything that my Jesus, my Celestial Mama, the Creation and all creatures did. Now, while I was doing this, my sweet Jesus helped me by making present to me all of His acts which I omitted to trace, not having the capacity to do it. And Jesus, all goodness, would make his act present to me, telling me: “My daughter, in my Will all of my acts are all present, as though lined up together. Look – here are all the acts of my childhood; there are all my tears, my wailings; there is also when, as a little child, I picked flowers while walking through the fields. Come to place your ‘I love You’ on the flowers I pick, and on my hands that stretch out to pick them. It was you that I looked at in those flowers; it was you that I picked, as tiny little flower of my Will. Don’t you want, then, to keep Me company with your love in all my acts as a child, amusing yourself with Me in these innocent acts? Keep looking: there is when, a little child, tired from crying for souls, I would have some very short sleep; but before closing my eyes I wanted you, so that you might favor my sleep. First I wanted to see you kiss my tears by impressing your ‘I love You’ in each tear, and to have Me close my eyes to sleep with the lullaby of your ‘I love You’. But, do not leave Me alone while I sleep – wait until I wake up, so that, just as you closed my sleep, you may open my vigil in your ‘I love you’.

My daughter, one for whom it was established that she would live in my Will was inseparable from Me, and even though at that time you were not there, my Will made you present and gave Me your company, your acts, your ‘I love You’. And do you know what an ‘I love You’ in my Will means? That ‘I love You’ encloses an eternal happiness, a divine love, and for my tender age that was enough to make Me happy and to form a sea of joy around Me - enough to make Me put aside all the bitternesses that the other creatures gave Me. If you do not follow Me in all my acts, there will be a void of your acts in my Will, and I will remain isolated, without your company. But I want your link with everything I have done, because, since one is the Will that unites us, as a consequence, one must be the act. But, keep following Me - look at Me here, when at my tender age of two or three years I would withdraw from my Mama and, kneeling, with my little arms stretched in the shape of the cross, I prayed to my Celestial Father that He would have pity on mankind, and in my open little arms I embraced all generations. My position was excruciating – so little, on my knees with my arms stretched out, crying, praying.... My Mama could not have endured seeing Me; Her maternal love that loved Me so much would have made Her succumb. Therefore, come, you who do not have the love of my Mama – come to sustain my little arms, to dry my tears; place an ‘I love You’ of your own upon that ground against which my little knees were leaning, so that it may not be so hard for me. And then, throw yourself into my little arms, that I may offer you to my Celestial Father as daughter of my Will. Even from that time I called you, and when I saw Myself alone, abandoned by all, I would say to Myself: 'If everyone leaves Me, the newborn of my Will will never leave Me alone.' Isolation is too hard for Me, therefore my acts await yours and your company."

But who can say all that my sweet Jesus made present to me of all the acts of His life? If I wanted to tell them all I would be too long - I should fill entire volumes, therefore I stop here.

Then, after this, I was saying to my lovable Jesus: 'My Love, if You so much love that your Most Holy Will be known and reign with Its full dominion in the midst of creatures, why did You not form, together with Redemption, the fulfillment of your Most Holy Will when You came upon earth, united with your Celestial Mama who, just as She obtained the longed for Redeemer, could also obtain the longed for Fiat? Your visible presence would have helped and facilitated the Kingdom of the Supreme Will upon earth in an admirable way. But, doing it through this poor, wretched and incapable creature... it seems to me as if it would not have all the glory and the total triumph.' And my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: "My daughter, everything was established – the epoch and the time, both that of Redemption and that for making my Will known upon earth, so that It might reign. It was established that my Redemption was to serve as means of help; Redemption had not been the origin of man, but It arose as means, after man moved away from his origin. On the other hand, my Will was the origin of man and the end in which he must enclose himself. All things have their origin from my Will and everything must return into It; and if not everyone will do it in time, no one will be able to escape It in eternity. Therefore, also for this reason, the primacy is always of my Will.

Now, in order to form Redemption I needed a Virgin Mother, conceived without the shadow of original sin, because, having to take on human flesh, it was decorous for Me, Eternal Word, not to take an infected blood to form my Most Holy Humanity. Now, in order to make my Will known, so that It might reign, I do not need to have a second mother according to the natural order, but rather, I need a second mother according to the order of grace. In fact, in order for my Will to reign, I have no need of another Humanity, but to give such knowledge of It that, drawn by Its prodigies, by Its beauty and sanctity, and by the immense good that comes to them, creatures may submit with all love to Its dominion. Therefore, in choosing you for the mission of my Will, I took you from the common stock according to the natural order, but for the decorum of my Will I had to raise you so high according to the order of grace, that not one infected shadow might remain in your soul, because of which my Will might feel reluctant to reign in you. Just as the pure blood of the Immaculate Virgin was needed to form my Humanity, to be able to redeem man, so was the purity, the candidness, the sanctity, the beauty of your soul needed to form in you the Life of my Will. And just as by forming my Humanity in the womb of my Mama, this Humanity gave Itself to all – it is understood, to those who want It – as means of salvation, of light, of sanctity; in the same way, this Life of my Will which has been formed in you, will give Itself to all, to make Itself known and to acquire Its dominion.

Had I wanted to free you of original sin as I did with my Celestial Mama, so that my Will might take life in you, no one would have given a thought to letting my Will reign within himself. They would have said: 'One needs to be a second Mother of Jesus and to have Her privileges so that the Life of the Supreme Will might reign in us.' On the other hand, by knowing that you are from their stock, conceived just like them, if they want it, helped by their own good will they too will be able to know the Supreme Will – what they must do to let It reign within them, the good that comes to them, the terrestrial and celestial happiness prepared in a distinct way for those who will let my Will reign. My Redemption was to serve to plant the tree of my Will which, watered with my Blood, cultivated and hoed with my sweats and unheard-of pains, fertilized with the Sacraments, first would make the tree develop, then would make the flowers bloom, and finally would make the celestial fruits of my Will mature. And in order to make these precious fruits mature, the course of my thirty-three years was not enough, nor were the creatures prepared and disposed to receive a food so delicate, all of Heaven, which I was giving. Therefore I contented Myself with planting the tree, leaving all possible means to make it grow, beautiful and gigantic; and at the appropriate time, as the fruits are about to mature and so that they may be picked, I chose you in a way all special, to make known to you the good it contains, and how I want to raise the creature back to her origin. Banishing her will, the cause for which she descended from her happy state, she will eat of these precious fruits, which will give her such taste as to remove from her all the infection of passions and of her own will, and give back the dominion to my Will. Embracing everything as though in one single embrace, my Will will unite everything together: Creation, Redemption, and the fulfillment of the purpose for which all things were created - that is, that my Will be known, loved and done on earth as It is in Heaven.”

And I: ‘Jesus, my Love, the more You tell me, the more I feel the weight of my littleness, and I fear that I might be an obstacle to the Kingdom of your Will on earth. Oh! if You and my Mama had done this directly while being on earth, your Will would have had Its full effect.’ And Jesus, interrupting my speaking, added: “My daughter, Our task was perfectly accomplished – now you be attentive on accomplishing your own. This is your task; more so, since the Sovereign Queen and I are untouchable by pains, We are in the state of impassivity and of complete glory, and therefore pains can no longer have anything to do with Us. You, on the contrary, have the pains as help to impetrate the Supreme Fiat, new knowledges, new graces; and even though I am in Heaven, I will be hidden in you to form the Kingdom for my Will. My power is always the same; while being in Heaven I can do what I would have done while being visible on earth. When I want it, and the creature lends herself, giving all of herself prey to my Will, I invest her and make her do what I Myself should do. Therefore be attentive, and mind your own task.”

June 15, 1926

How the ‘nothing’ is frightened and trembles under the ‘All’. How the Virgin loves Her celestial children and performs in Heaven Her office of Mother. Just as knowledge gave life to the fruits of Redemption, so it will give life to the fruits of the Divine Will.

I was feeling all full of defects, especially because of the great repugnance I feel when it comes to writing of the intimate things between myself and Our Lord. The weight I feel is so great, that I don’t know what I would do in order not to do it; and since the obedience of the one who is above me imposes itself, though I would like to oppose myself and tell my reasons for not doing it, I always end up surrendering.

So, having gone through a similar contrast, I felt full of defects and totally bad; therefore, as blessed Jesus came, I told Him: ‘Jesus, my life, have pity on me – look at how full of defects I am, and how much badness there is in me.’ And He, all goodness and tenderness, told me: “My daughter, do not fear, I am here, watching over you and keeping your soul in custody, so that not even the slightest sin may enter into your soul. And where you or others see defects and badnesses, I find none; rather, I see that your 'nothing' feels the weight of the 'All'. In fact, the more I elevate you intimately to Me and I make known to you what the 'All' wants to do with your 'nothing', the more you feel your nothingness and, almost frightened and crushed under the All, you would want escape from manifesting and, even more, from writing on paper that which the 'All' wants to make of this 'nothing' of yours. More so since, as much reluctance as you feel, I always win and make you do what I want.

This happened also to my Celestial Mama, when She was told: 'I hail You, Mary, full of grace; You will conceive the Son of God.' On hearing this, She was frightened, She trembled, and said: 'How can this happen?' But She ended up saying: 'Fiat Mihi secundum verbum tuum.' She felt all the weight of the All over Her nothing and, naturally, She was frightened. So, when I manifest to you what I want to do with you, and your nothing is frightened, I see the fright of the Sovereign Queen being repeated; and compassionating you, I lift your nothing, I strengthen it, that it may endure sustaining the All. Therefore, do not be concerned about this, but rather, think of letting the All operate in you."

Then, after this, I was doing my usual acts in the Supreme Volition, embracing everything and everyone to be able to bring to my Creator the acts of all as one single act. Now, while I was doing this, my sweet Jesus came out from within my interior, and embracing everything together with me, He united Himself with me, doing what I was doing. Then, all love, He told me: "My daughter, I love so much the acts done in my Will, that I Myself take on the commitment to keep them in custody in the unity of my supreme light, in such a way as to render them inseparable from Me and from my own acts. If you knew how jealous I am of these acts, how they glorify Me in a wholly divine way.... It can be said that each of these acts is a new feast that starts in the whole Creation and in the whole Celestial Fatherland. Flowing in my Will like ray of light, these acts bring new joys, feasts and happinesses wherever my Will is. These acts are the joys, the feast and the happiness that the creature forms in the Will of her Creator. And do you think it is trivial that the creature can form and bring feast, joy and happiness to her Creator and wherever Our Will reigns?"

The same happened with my Queen Mama. As She always operated in the unity of the light of the Supreme Will, all of Her acts, Her office of Mother, Her rights of Queen remained inseparable from Her Creator; so much so, that when the Divinity unleashes the acts of beatitude to make the whole Celestial Fatherland happy, It unleashes with them all the acts of the Celestial Mama. So, all the Saints feel invested, not only with Our joys and beatitudes, but also with the maternal love of their Mother, with the glory of their Queen, and with all of Her acts converted into joys for the whole Celestial Jerusalem. Every fiber of Her maternal Heart loves all the children of the Celestial Fatherland with love of Mother, and She shares Her joys of Mother and Her glory of Queen with everyone. So, on earth She was Mother of love and of sorrow for Her children, who cost Her so much, as much as the Life of Her Son God, and by virtue of the unity of the light of the Supreme Will which She possessed, Her acts remained inseparable from Ours; while in Heaven She is Mother of love, of joys and of glory for all of Her celestial children; so, all the Saints have greater love, more glory and more joys, by virtue of their Mother and Sovereign Queen. Therefore, I love so much one who lives in my Will, that I lower Myself to her, to do what she does together with her, to raise her up to the bosom of the Eternal One, to render her act one with her Creator.”

After this, I remained thinking about the blessed Will of God, and many things wandered through my mind, which it is not necessary to put on paper; and my sweet Jesus, coming back, added: “My daughter, the triumph of my Will is connected with Creation and with Redemption – it can be called one single triumph. Since a woman was the cause of the ruin of man, it was a Virgin Woman that, after four thousand years, letting my Humanity, united to the Eternal Word, be born of Her, provided the remedy for the ruin of fallen man. Now that the remedy for man is formed, is my Will alone to be left without Its full completion, while It has Its prime act both in Creation and in Redemption? This is why, after two thousand years more, We have chosen another virgin as the triumph and fulfillment of Our Will. Forming Its Kingdom in your soul and making Itself known, with Its knowledge, my Will has given you Its hand to raise you to living in the unity of Its light, so that you may form your life in It and the Divine Will may form Its Life in you. And having formed Its dominion in you, It forms the connection through which to communicate Its dominion to the other creatures; and just as, in descending into the womb of the Immaculate Virgin, the Word did not remain in it for Her alone, but I formed the connection of communication for creatures, and I gave Myself to all and as a remedy for all - the same will happen with you: by having formed Its Kingdom in you, my Supreme Volition forms the communications to make Itself known to creatures. Everything I have told you about It, the knowledges I have given you, the ‘way’ and the ‘how’ of the living in my Will, my making known to you how It wants – how It yearns for man to return into Its arms and enter once again into his origin of the Eternal Will from which he came - are all ways of communication, bonds of love, transmission of light, a breeze to make them breathe the air of my Will and therefore disinfect the air of the human will, and a mighty wind to conquer and uproot the most rebellious wills.

Each knowledge I have given you about my Will contains a creative power; and everything is in letting these knowledges out, because the power they contain will know how to breach its way into the hearts, to submit them to its dominion. Did the same perhaps not happen in Redemption? As long as I remained with my Mama in the hidden life of Nazareth, everything was silent around Me, although this hiddenness of mine, together with the Celestial Queen, served in an admirable way to form the substance of Redemption and so that I might announce Myself as being already present in their midst. But when did Its fruits communicate themselves in the midst of the peoples? When I went out in public, made Myself known, and spoke to them with the power of my creative word. And as all that I did and said spread and keeps spreading still now in the midst of the peoples, then did the fruits of Redemption have their effects, and still do. Indeed, my daughter, if no one had known that I had come upon earth, Redemption would have been something dead and without effects for creatures. So, knowledge gave life to Its fruits.

The same will be for my Will: knowledge will give life to the fruits of my Will. This is why I wanted to renew what I did in Redemption, choosing another virgin, remaining hidden with her for forty years and more, segregating her from everyone as if in a new Nazareth, to be free with her to tell the whole story, the prodigies and the goods contained in It, so as to be able to form the life of my Will in you. And just as I chose Saint Joseph to be together with Me and my Mama, as our cooperator, tutor and vigilant sentry for Me and for the Sovereign Queen, in the same way, I have placed near you the vigilant assistance of my ministers, as cooperators, tutors and depositories of the knowledges, goods and prodigies contained in my Will. And since my Will wants to establish Its Kingdom in the midst of peoples, through you I want to deposit this celestial doctrine in my ministers as my new apostles, so that first I may form with them the link of connection with my Will, and then they may transmit it into the midst of peoples. If it were not so, or were not to be so, I would not have insisted so much on having you write, nor would I have permitted the daily coming of the priest, but I would have left all my work between Me and you. Therefore, be attentive and leave Me free to do what I want in you.”

Now, who can say how confused I remained at this speaking of Jesus? I remained mute, and from the depth of my heart I repeated: ‘Fiat, Fiat, Fiat...’

“Ecce Homo”. Jesus felt as many deaths for as many as were those who cried out: “Crucify Him!” One who lives in the Divine Will takes the fruit of the pains of Jesus. The ideal of Jesus in Creation was the Kingdom of His Will in souls.

After going through most bitter days because of the privation of my sweet Jesus, I felt I could take no more; I moaned under a press that crushed my soul and body, and I longed for my Celestial Fatherland, in which not even for one instant would I be without the One who is all my life and my highest and only Good. Then, when I reduced myself to the extremes without Jesus, I felt myself being filled completely with Him, in such a way that I remained like a veil that covered Him. And since I was thinking about the pains of His Passion and accompanying Him, especially in the act in which Pilate showed Him to the people, saying, ‘Ecce Homo’, my sweet Jesus told me: “My daughter, as Pilate said ‘Ecce Homo’, all cried out: ‘Crucify Him, crucify Him – we want Him dead!’ And so did my very Celestial Father and my inseparable and pierced Mama, and not only those who were present, but all the absent and all generations, past and future. And if someone did not say it with words, he said it with facts, because there was not a single one who said he wanted Me alive, and to keep silent is confirmation of what others want.

This cry of death from all was so very painful for Me; I felt as many deaths for as many as were the people who cried out: ‘Crucify Him!’ I felt as though drowned with pains and with death; more so, since I could see that each death of mine would not bring life to each one, and those who received life because of my death would not receive all the complete fruit of my Passion and Death. My sorrow was so great, that my moaning Humanity was about to succumb and breathe Its last; but while I was dying, with Its all-seeingness my Supreme Will made present to my dying Humanity all those who would let the Eternal Volition reign in them with absolute dominion, who would take the complete fruit of my Passion and Death. Among them there was my dear Mother, as their head. She took all the deposit of all my goods and of the fruits contained in my Life, Passion and Death – not even one breath of mine did She allow to be lost, nor did She fail to keep its precious fruit in Her custody. And from Her they were to be transmitted to the little newborn of my Will and to all those in whom the Supreme Volition would have Its Life and Its Kingdom.

When my extinguishing Humanity saw the complete fruit of my Life, Passion and Death placed in safety and secured, It was able to resume and continue the course of Its sorrowful Passion. So, it is my Will alone that brings all the fullness of my goods and the complete fruit contained in Creation, Redemption and Sanctification. Wherever It reigns, Our works are all full of life – nothing is halved or incomplete; while where It does not reign, even if some virtues were present, everything is misery, everything incomplete, and if they produce any fruit at all, it is unripe and without maturity. And if they take the fruits of my Redemption, they take them with measure and without abundance, therefore they grow as weak, sick and feverish; and if they do a little bit of good, they do it strained and they feel crushed under the weight of that bit of good that they do. On the other hand, my Will empties the human will and in that void It places the divine strength and the life of good. Therefore, one who lets It reign within herself does good without strain, and the life she contains leads her to operate good with an irresistible strength. So, my Humanity found life in my Passion and Death, and in those in whom my Will would reign; therefore Creation and Redemption will always be incomplete until my Will has Its Kingdom in souls.”

After this, I was doing my usual acts in the Supreme Volition, and my sweet Jesus, coming out from within my interior, followed everything I did with His gaze. And since He saw that all my acts identified with His, and by virtue of the Supreme Will, they followed the same course as His acts, and repeated the same good and the same glory for our Celestial Father, taken by emphasis of love He clasped me to His Heart and told me: “My daughter, even though you are little and newly born in my Will, and you live in the Kingdom of my Will, your littleness is my triumph; and when I see you operate in It I find Myself in the Kingdom of my Will like a king who has fought a long war. Since his ideal was victory, in seeing himself victorious he feels cheered of the bloody battle, from the hardships suffered and from the wounds still impressed on his person, and his triumph is formed as he sees himself surrounded by the conquests he has made. The king wants to look at everything, his gaze wants to delight in the kingdom conquered, and, triumphant, he smiles and makes feast.

So I am. My ideal in Creation was the Kingdom of my Will in the soul of the creature; my primary purpose was to make of man the image of the Divine Trinity by virtue of the fulfillment of my Will upon him. But as man withdrew from It, I lost my Kingdom in him, and for as long as six thousand years I had to sustain a long battle. But, long as it has been, I have not dismissed my ideal and my primary purpose, nor will I dismiss it; and if I came in Redemption, I came to realize my ideal and my primary purpose – that is, the Kingdom of my Will in souls. This is so true, that in order to come, I formed my first Kingdom of the Supreme Volition in the Heart of my Immaculate Mama - outside of my Kingdom I would never have come upon earth. Then I suffered hardships and pains, I was wounded and killed at last, but the Kingdom of my Will was not realized; I laid the foundations, I made some preparations, but the bloody battle between the human will and the Divine has yet continued.

Now, my little daughter, when I see you operate in the Kingdom of my Will and, as you operate, Its Kingdom is established more and more in you, I feel victorious in my long battle and everything around Me takes the attitude of triumph and feast. My pains, the hardships, the wounds, smile at Me, and my very death gives Me back the life of my Will in you. So I feel victorious in Creation and in Redemption; even more, they serve to form the long rounds for the newborn of my Will – her rapid flights, her endless strolls in the Kingdom of my Will. And so I boast in triumph, and delighting, I follow with my gaze all the steps and acts of my little daughter.

See, all have their ideal, and when they realize it, only then are they content. The little baby also has his ideal – to attach himself to the breast of his mama – and while he cries and sobs, as soon as his mama opens her lap to him, the baby stops crying, takes on a smile, and flinging himself, he attaches himself to the breast of his mama and, victorious, he suckles and suckles until he is full; and while he suckles, triumphant, he takes his sweet sleep. So I am. After long crying, when I see the lap of a soul who opens the doors to Me, to give place to the Kingdom of my Will, my tears stop, and flinging Myself onto her lap, I attach Myself to her, and suckling her love and the fruits of the Kingdom of my Will, I take my sweet sleep and I rest victorious. Even the tiny little bird - its ideal is the seed, and when it sees it, it beats its wings, it runs, hurls itself over the seed; victorious, it grabs it with its beak and, triumphant, it continues its flight. So I am. I fly and fly, I go round and round to form the Kingdom of my Will in the soul, that she may form for Me the seed to nourish Me, because I use no other food but that which is formed in my Kingdom; and when I see this celestial seed, more than little bird, I fly to make of it my food.

So, for each, everything is in realizing the ideal one has set for himself. This is why, when I see you operate in the Kingdom of my Will, I see my ideal realized, and I feel repaid for the work of Creation and Redemption, and the triumph of my Will established in you. Therefore be attentive, and let the victory of your Jesus be permanent in you.”

Then after this, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior, and, all tenderness, told me: “My daughter, tell Me, what about your ideal, your purpose – what is it?” And I: ‘My love, Jesus, my ideal is to fulfill your Will, and all my purpose is to reach the point at which no thought, word, heartbeat and work of mine may ever go out of the Kingdom of your Supreme Will; even more, in It may they be conceived, nourished, raised and form their life, and if needed, also their death, though I know that in your Will no act dies, but once it is born it lives eternally. So, it is the Kingdom of your Will in my poor soul that I long for, and this is all my ideal and my primary and ultimate purpose.’ And Jesus, all love and making feast, added: “My daughter, so, my ideal and yours are one, and therefore one is our purpose. Brava, brava, the little daughter of my Will! And since your ideal and mine are one, you too have sustained the battle of long years to conquer the Kingdom of my Will. You had to endure pains, privations, and have been even a prisoner in your little room, bound to your little bed, to conquer that Kingdom so much wanted and longed for by Me and by you. It cost much to both of us, and now we are both triumphant and conquerors. So, you too are the little queen in the Kingdom of my Will, and even though little, you are always queen because you are the daughter of the great King - of our Celestial Father. Therefore, as conqueror of a Kingdom so great, take possession of all Creation, of all Redemption and of all Heaven – everything is yours, because your rights of possession extend wherever my Will reigns as whole and permanent. All are waiting for you to give you the honors that befit your victory.

You too are the little baby who has so much cried and longed for her Jesus. But as soon as you have seen Me your tears have stopped, and flinging yourself onto my lap, you have attached yourself to my breast and, victorious, you have suckled my Will and my love. As though in triumph, you have taken rest in my very arms, and I rocked you so that your sleep might be longer, and I might enjoy my newborn in my own arms; and, triumphant, I extended the Kingdom of my Will in you. Also, you are the tiny little dove that has gone around and around Me, and while I spoke to you about my Will, manifesting to you the knowledges about It, Its goods, Its prodigies and even Its sorrow, you beat your wings, and hurling yourself over the many seeds I placed before you, you grabbed them with your beak and, triumphant, you continued your flight around Me, waiting for more seeds of my Will which I would place before you. And, again, grabbing them with your beak, you nourished yourself and, victorious, continued your flight, manifesting the Kingdom of my Will. So, my prerogatives are yours, my Kingdom and yours are one; we have suffered together – it is right that together we enjoy our conquests.”

I remained surprised on hearing this, and I thought to myself: ‘But, is it really true that in my poor soul there is this Kingdom of the Supreme Will?’ I felt all confused, and if I wrote this, I did it to obey. But, as I am writing, Jesus has surprised me, and coming out from within my interior He has thrown His arms around my neck, squeezing me so very tightly, to the point that I could not write any more because my poor head was no longer in me. But immediately Jesus disappeared, and I continue writing....

So, while I was afraid, Jesus told me: “My daughter, my Celestial Mama was able to give Me to others because She conceived Me within Herself, She raised Me and nourished Me. No one can give something he does not have, and if She gave Me to the other creatures it was because She possessed Me. Now, I would never have told you so much about my Will had I not wanted to form Its Kingdom in you; nor would you have loved It so much had It not been yours. The things that are not one’s own are kept reluctantly, and cause bother and weight. Had you not had the springing fount of the Kingdom of my Will within you, you would not have been able to repeat what I have told you, nor put it on paper; lacking the possession, you would lack the light and the love to manifest it. So, if the Sun shines in you, and with Its rays It feeds you the words, the knowledges, and how It wants to reign, it is a sign that you possess It, and therefore your task is to make It known, just as the task of the Sovereign Queen was to make Me known and to give Me for the salvation of all.”

Saint Aloysius was a flower that bloomed from the Humanity of Our Lord, made bright by the rays of the Divine Will. The souls who will possess the Kingdom of the Divine Will will have their roots within Its Sun.

This morning, having received Holy Communion, I received It as usual in the Most Holy Will of God, offering It to my dear Saint Aloysius – not only the Communion, but all the goods contained in the Most Holy Will of God, for his accidental glory. Now, while doing this, I saw that all the goods contained in the Supreme Volition, like many rays of light, rays of beauty and of multiple colors, inundated the dear Saint, giving him an infinite glory. And my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, Aloysius is a flower and a Saint bloomed from the earth of my Humanity and made bright by the reflections of the rays of the Sun of my Will. In fact, though, holy, pure, noble and united hypostatically to the Word, my Humanity was earth; and Aloysius, more than flower, bloomed from my Humanity - pure, holy, noble, possessing the root of pure love, in such a way that in each leaf of his flower one can see written, ‘love’. But what renders him more beautiful and brilliant are the rays of my Will, to which he was always submitted - rays which gave such development to this flower as to render it unique on earth and in Heaven. Now, my daughter, if Aloysius is so beautiful because he bloomed from my Humanity, what will be of you and of all those who will possess the Kingdom of my Will? These flowers will not bloom from my Humanity, but will have their roots within the Sun of my Will. In It is formed the flower of their life; they grow and bloom in the very Sun of my Volition which, jealous of these flowers, will keep them eclipsed within Its own light. In each petal of these flowers one will see, written, all the specialties of the divine qualities; they will be the enchantment of all Heaven, and all will recognize in them the complete work of their Creator.”

And while He was saying this, my sweet Jesus opened His breast and showed, inside it, an immense Sun, in which He was to plant all these flowers; and His love and jealousy toward them was so great, that He would not let them bloom outside His Humanity, but inside Himself.

One who possesses the Kingdom of the Divine Will operates in a universal way and will possess universal glory. Universal requital to the Sovereign Queen.

I was doing my usual acts in the Supreme Volition according to my usual way, that is, embracing everything - Creation, Redemption and everyone - to be able to give back to my Creator the return of love and of glory that everyone owes Him. And my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, the little daughter of my Will must not only think about and occupy herself with defending the universal rights of her Creator, giving Him the return of love and of glory that everyone owes Him as if all were one, in such a way that He may find everything in her - because Our Will involves everything and everyone, and one who lives in It possesses universal ways, therefore she can give Us everything and We can recover everything - but, as Our daughter, she must also defend the rights of the Sovereign Queen. She operated in a universal way, and therefore She had a love, a glory, a prayer, a reparation, a sorrow, for Her Creator, for all and for each creature. She let not one act escape Her which creatures owed their Creator; and enclosing all in Her maternal Heart, She loved all and each one in a universal way. So, in Her We found all Our glory - She denied nothing to Us; She gave Us not only that which She was supposed to give Us directly, but also that which the other creatures denied to Us. And to act as a magnanimous and most loving Mother, who pours Her own self out for Her children, She generated everyone in Her sorrowful Heart. Each fiber of It was a piercing sorrow in which She gave life to each of Her children, up to the fatal blow of the death of Her Son God. The sorrow of this death placed the seal of the regeneration of life upon the new children of this sorrowful Mother.

Now, a Virgin Queen who loved Us so much, who defended all of Our rights, a Mother so tender who had love and sorrows for all, deserves that Our little newborn of Our Supreme Will love Her for all, requite Her for all, and embracing all of Her acts in Our Will, place her act united to Hers; because She is inseparable from Us - Her glory is Ours, and Ours is Hers; more so, since Our Will places everything in common.”

On hearing this, I remained a little confused, and as though unable to do what Jesus was saying; and I prayed Him to give me the ability to do it. And Jesus, resuming His speaking, told me: “My daughter, my Will contains everything, and as though jealous, It preserves all of Its acts as if they were one alone; so It preserves all the acts of the Sovereign Queen as if they were all Its own, because She did everything in It. Therefore, my Will Itself will make them present to you.

Now, you must know that one who has done good to all, who has loved all, and has operated in a universal way for God and for all, has rights over everything and over everyone - and with justice. Operating in a universal way is the divine way, and my Celestial Mama was able to operate with the ways of Her Creator because She possessed the Kingdom of Our Will. Now, having operated in Our Supreme Will, She has the rights of the possessions which She formed in Our Kingdom; and who else can requite Her if not one who lives in the same Kingdom? In fact, only in this Kingdom is there universal operation – the love that loves everyone, that embraces everything, and from which nothing escapes. But you must know that one who possesses the Kingdom of my Will on earth, has the right to universal glory in Heaven; and this, in a natural and simple way. My Will embraces everything and involves everyone; so, from one who possesses It come all goods along with the glory that these goods contain; and while universal glory comes from her, she also receives it. And do you think it is trivial to possess universal glory in the Celestial Fatherland? Therefore, be attentive, the Kingdom of the Supreme Will is immensely rich; there are coins that spring forth; so, everyone expects something from you, and also my Mama wants the return for the universal love She had for all generations. And you, in return, are due universal glory in the Celestial Fatherland – the exclusive inheritance of one who has possessed the Kingdom of my Will on earth.”

Each created thing contains an image of the divine qualities, and the Divine Will glorifies these qualities in each created thing.

After I had gone through most bitter days of privations, when my beloved Jesus came, to cheer me, He spent several hours with me. He made Himself seen of a very young age, of a rare enrapturing beauty; He sat on my bed, near me, and told me: “My daughter, I know, I know that you cannot be without Me, because I am more than your very life for you; so, if I did not come you would lack the substance of life. Besides, we have so many things to do together in the Kingdom of the Supreme Will. Therefore, when you see that I do not come quickly do not oppress yourself so much – be sure that I will come, because my coming is necessary for you and for Me, because I must see the things of my Kingdom, and while directing It, I must enjoy It. How can you have the slightest doubt that in a Kingdom so longed for by Me, the King of triumph might be missing? Therefore, come into my arms, that your Jesus may strengthen you.” And while saying this, He took me in His arms, He clasped me tightly to His breast, and rocking me He told me: “Sleep, sleep on my breast, my little newborn of my Will.”

In the arms of Jesus I was so very little, and did not feel like sleeping; I wanted to enjoy Jesus, I wanted to tell Him so many things, now that I had the good of His prolonged presence with me. But Jesus continued to rock me, and I, without wanting to, fell into a sweet, sweet sleep; but while sleeping I could hear the beating of the Heart of Jesus speaking. It was saying: “My Will”; and then another heartbeat, as though answering: “Love do I want to infuse in the little daughter of my Will.” In the heartbeat “My Will” a large circle of light was formed, and in the heartbeat “Love” another circle, smaller, in such a way that the large one would enclose the small one. While I was sleeping, Jesus would take these circles formed by His heartbeat and would seal them in my whole person. I felt I was being all fortified and strengthened in the arms of Jesus – how happy I felt! But, clasping me more tightly to His breast, Jesus woke me up and told me: “My little daughter, let us go around throughout the whole Creation in which the Supreme Will contains Its Life, does Its distinct act in each created thing and, triumphant of Itself, magnifies and glorifies all of Its supreme qualities in a perfect way. If you look at the sky, your eye cannot see its boundaries - wherever it looks there is sky, nor can you tell where it ends or where it begins. This is the image of Our Supreme Being, which has no beginning and no end; and in the azure sky Our Will praises and glorifies Our Eternal Being which has no beginning and no end. This sky, studded with stars, is the image of Our Being: just as the sky is one, so is the Divinity one single act. But in the multiplicity of the stars, Our works ad extra which descend from this single act, and the effects and the works of this single act, are innumerable; and in the stars Our Will magnifies and glorifies the effects and the multiplicity of Our works, which include the Angels, man and all created things.

See how beautiful it is to live in my Will, in the unity of this supreme light, and to be aware of the meaning of all created things, and to praise, magnify, glorify the Supreme Creator with His very Will in all of Our images which each created thing contains. But, move on to look at the sun. Under the vault of the heavens one can see a limited circumference of light which contains light and heat, and descending down below, invests all the earth. This is the image of the light and love of the Supreme Maker, who loves everyone and does good to all. From the height of His Majesty He descends down below, deep into the hearts, even into hell, but He does it quietly, without clamor, wherever He is. Oh! how Our Will glorifies and magnifies Our eternal light, Our inextinguishable love and Our all-seeingness. Our Will murmurs in the sea; and in the immensity of the waters which hide innumerable fishes of every species and color, It glorifies Our immensity that envelopes everything and holds all things as though in the palm of Its hand. Our Will glorifies the image of Our immutability in the firmness of the mountains; the image of Our justice in the roaring of the thunder and in the bolt of lightning; the image of Our joy in the little bird that sings, trills and warbles; the image of Our moaning love in the turtledove that moans; the image of the continuous call that We make to man in the lamb that bleats, saying in each bleating: 'Me, Me, come to Me, come to Me...'; and Our Will glorifies Us in the continuous call We make to the creature. All created things have a symbol of Ours, an image of Ours; and Our Will has the commitment to magnify Us and glorify Us in all Our works, because, since the work of Creation is work of the Supreme Fiat, it was befitting for It to preserve Our glory, whole and permanent, in all created things.

Now, Our Supreme Will wants to give this commitment as inheritance to one who must live in the unity of Its light, because It would not be befitting to live in Its light and not identify with the acts of the Supreme Fiat. Therefore, my little daughter, all created things as well as my Will await you in each created thing, to repeat Its very acts, to glorify and magnify your Creator with the very Divine Will." Now, who can say all the images of our Creator that all Creation encloses? If I wanted to say everything I would never end; so, in order not to be too long I had to say just a few things, and I did it to obey, and for fear of displeasing Jesus....

There is no sanctity without the Will of God. The coming of Jesus upon earth served to form the ways and the stairs to reach the Kingdom of His Will.

I was doing my usual acts in the Supreme Volition, and I thought to myself: 'How is it possible that among the many Saints of the Old Testament who have so distinguished themselves with the power of miracles, like a Moses, an Elijah and the many prophets; and among so many Saints after the coming of Our Lord, who have rendered themselves so marvelous because of their virtues and miracles – none of these has possessed the Kingdom of the Divine Will and has lived in the unity of Its light? It seems incredible.’ Now, while I was thinking of this, my sweet Jesus came out from within my interior, and clasping me to Himself, told me: “My daughter, yet it is really true that until now no one has possessed the Kingdom of my Will or enjoyed all the fullness of the unity of the light It contains. Had it been so, since it is the thing that interests Me the most, that glorifies Me the most and that, no less, will place all the divine rights in safety and will complete the work of Creation and Redemption - and not only this, but will bring to the creature the greatest good that can exist in Heaven and on earth - I would have acted in such a way as to make it known. Just as I have made known the many virtues and wonders of my Saints, I would have made known the one who had possessed the Kingdom of my Will, which I hold so dear, so as to transmit It to others, by imitating the one who had possessed It.

Now, the Saints of the Old Testament found themselves in the same condition as Adam: a Divine Repairer was missing who, while rejoining the human will and the Divine, was to pay the debt of guilty man in a divine way. However, both the ancient Saints and the modern ones have taken of my Will as much as they have known. The very miracles they performed were particles of the power of my Will communicated to them. So, all my Saints have lived, some in the shadow of my Will, some in the reflections of Its light, some submitted to Its power, some to the order of Its commands, because there is no sanctity without my Will. But they have possessed of It the little they have known - no more, because only when a good is known, does one then long for it and arrives at possessing it. No one can possess a good, a property, without knowing it; and suppose one did possess it without knowing it – that good is as though dead for him, because the life of knowledge is missing.

Now, since my Will is the greatest thing, which encompasses everything, and all things from the greatest to the smallest remain dissolved before It, so many things should be known about my Will as to surpass what is known about Creation, about Redemption, about all virtues and all sciences. My Will was to be a book for each step, for each act, a book for each created thing; the whole earth was to be filled with volumes of knowledges regarding the Kingdom of my Will, such as to surpass the number of created things. Now, where are these books? There is no book – only a few sayings are known about It, while It should be at the origin of each knowledge - of anything. Being the life of each thing, It should be on everything, like the image of the king impressed on the currency that circulates in a kingdom; like the light of the sun that shines over each plant to give it life; like water that quenches the thirst of burning lips; like food that satiates the hungry man after a long fast. Everything should be filled with the knowledges regarding my Will; and if it is not so, it is a sign that the Kingdom of my Will is not known, and therefore not possessed.

Would you perhaps be able to tell me which Saint said that he possessed this Kingdom and the unity of the light of the Supreme Volition? Certainly not. I Myself spoke little about it. Had I wanted to speak extensively about the Kingdom of my Will and about wanting to form It in man just as innocent Adam possessed It, since this is the highest point, the most proximal to God and the closest to the divine likeness, and since the fall of Adam was still fresh, they would all have become discouraged, and turning their backs to Me, would have said: ‘If innocent Adam could not manage, nor had the constancy to live in the sanctity of this Kingdom, so much so as to cause his own fall and that of all generations into miseries, into passions and irreparable evils, how can we, guilty ones, live in a Kingdom so holy? Beautiful, yes, but we can say that It is not for us.' Not only this, but since my Will is the highest point, the ways, the means of transportation, the stairs, the decent clothes, the appropriate foods were needed in order to be able to dwell in this Kingdom. So, my coming upon earth served to form all this; each one of my sayings, works, pains, prayers, examples, instituted Sacraments, were ways that I formed, means of transportation to let them arrive more quickly, stairs to let them ascend. It can be said that I gave them the clothes of my Humanity reddened with my Blood to let them be clothed decently in this Kingdom of my Will, so holy, which, in Creation, the Uncreated Wisdom established to give to man as inheritance. So, even though I spoke little about this – because when I speak, I speak at time and circumstance, as the necessity and the utility of the good which my word contains must be enclosed in it – instead of speaking I did the deeds, intending to speak to you about the Kingdom of my Will.

Now, how could they possess It if they did not have full knowledge of It? On the other hand, you must know that all the manifestations I have made to you about It – Its prodigies, Its goods, what the soul must do to be able to settle in this Kingdom, my very expressed Will for man to return into my Kingdom, and how I have done everything – Creation, Redemption - so that he might come to possess my Kingdom which he had lost – are bonds of transmission, are doors to let him enter, are donations that I make, are laws, instructions on how to live in It, intelligence to make them comprehend and appreciate the good they possess. If all this was missing, how could they possess this Kingdom of my Will? It would be as if someone wanted to go to live in another kingdom without a passport, without knowing either its laws or its customs or its dialect. Poor one, his entrance would be impossible; and if he did enter as an intruder, he would be so ill-at-ease, that he himself would rather go out of a kingdom he knows nothing about.

Now, my daughter, does it not seem easier to you, more encouraging, more within the reach of the human nature, that after they have known the Kingdom of Redemption in which the blind, the lame and the sick can be healed - because the blind cannot enter the Kingdom of my Will, for in It all are straight and glowing with health - finding all possible means in the Kingdom of Redemption and the very passport of my Passion and death in order to pass into the Kingdom of my Will, animated at the sight of such a great good, they will decide to take possession of It? Therefore, be attentive, and do not want to constrain or reduce the goods which are in the Kingdom of my Will – and you do this when you do not manifest everything of what I make known to you – because knowledge is the bearer of the gift; and if now I abound in the knowledges about It, it is gifts that I make, and in these gifts I establish the more or the less to be placed in the Kingdom of my Will for the good of those who are to possess It.”

The great difference between the sanctity of virtues and that of living in the unity of the light of the Divine Will.

As I was in my usual state, my sweet Jesus showed Divine Justice in the act of unloading Himself over the earth, commanding the elements to rage against creatures. I trembled in seeing that somewhere there were waters inundating towns almost to bury them; somewhere the wind transported and eradicated plants, trees and houses with a mighty power, to the point of making a heap of them, leaving various regions in the most squalid misery; somewhere else there were earthquakes crawling with considerable damage. But who can say all the evils that are about to swoop down on earth? In addition to this, my always lovable Jesus made Himself seen in my interior as suffering in a harrowing way because of the many offenses that creatures were giving Him, especially because of the many hypocrisies. It seemed that under the apparent good, they had poison, swords, spears and nails hidden, to wound Him in every way. Then, as if Jesus wanted me together with Him, to suffer, He told me: “My daughter, the scale of my Justice is full and is overflowing upon creatures. As daughter of my Will, do you want me to place you in the reflections of my Justice, that you may share in Its blows? Indeed, It is about to make a heap of the earth, and while satisfying Justice, with your suffering you will spare your brothers. One who lives in the high Kingdom of the Supreme Will must defend and help those who are down below.”

Now, while He was saying this, I felt as if Divine Justice was pouring Its reflections over me, and as Jesus identified me with Himself, I suffered His blows, His wounds and His pains together with Him. They were so many that I myself did not know whether I would be left alive or dead. But to my highest sorrow, withdrawing, my Jesus mitigated my pains, and I remained, once again, crossing my hard and long exile. But, always Fiat! Fiat!... I would rather have passed over all this, but obedience imposed itself, and to my greatest reluctance I had to make a little mention of it. Who can say how I was left? And my sweet Jesus, to cheer me, resumed His speaking about His Most Holy Will: “My daughter, come with Me in the midst of Creation. Heaven and earth await you – they want the one who, animated by that same Will that animates them and gives them life, would make the whole Creation resound with that most sweet echo of the eternal love of their Maker. They want your voice which, flowing in each created thing, would animate their mute language with that perennial glory and adoration to their Creator. And since all things are bound to one another, and one is the strength of the other because one is the Supreme Will that vivifies them and preserves them, one who possesses It is bound to them with the same strength and with the same union. So, if you are not present in the midst of Creation, because of your absence they would feel the universal strength and the bond of inseparability lacking to them. Therefore, come into Our dominions, for everyone longs for you, and at the same time I will make you comprehend more things about the great distance that exists between the sanctity of one who possesses the unity of the light of the Kingdom of my Will and the sanctity of submission, of resignation and of virtues.”

Now, while He was saying this, I found myself outside of myself, and I tried to make my ‘I love You’, my adoration, resound over all created things. And Jesus, all goodness, added: “My daughter, look at the heavens, the stars, the sun, the moon, the plants, the flowers, the sea... look at everything. Each created thing has its distinct nature, its own color, its littleness and its height; each of them has its distinct office, and one cannot do what the other does, nor produce the same effects. So, each created thing is a symbol of the sanctity of virtues, of submission and resignation to my Will. According to the virtues they have practiced, souls have drawn a distinct color within themselves; therefore it can be said that one is red flower, another, purple, another, white; one is plant, one is tree, another is star; and according to how they have submitted to the reflections of the Supreme Will, so have they developed in fecundity, in height, in beauty. But one is their shade, because my Will, like solar ray, gave them the color of the seed which they themselves had placed in their souls. On the other hand, the sanctity of one who lives in the unity of the light of my Will is a birth from that single act of her Creator, which is one in the creative hands, and yet, the rays of His Will, coming out of God, invade everything and produce works and effects so innumerable that man cannot arrive at counting them all. So, since this sanctity is a birth from that single act, it will be the Supreme Will's care and jealousy for it to enclose all colors, all the different beauties and all possible imaginable goods within itself. And so, more than blazing sun, it will enclose and eclipse within itself all of Creation with its different beauties; one will see all the goods of Redemption enclosed in it, as well as all sanctities; and I, showing off my love more than ever, will place the seal of my very sanctity within one who has possessed the Kingdom of my Will.

Do you know how it will be for your Creator with regard to this sanctity of living in my Will? It will happen as to a king who has no offspring. This king never enjoys the affection of a child of his own, nor does he feel like lavishing all his paternal caresses and his affectionate kisses, because in no one does he see his own progeny, his own features, someone to whom to entrust the destiny of his kingdom. Poor one, he lives always with a nail in his heart; he lives always surrounded by servants, by people who do not resemble him, and if they remain around him, it is not out of pure love, but out of self-interest, to gain riches and glory, and maybe even to betray him. Now, suppose that a son comes to the light for him after a long time – what is not the feast of this king? How he kisses him, caresses him - he cannot remove his gaze from his son, in whom he recognizes his own image. Just newly born, he gives him his kingdom and all of his goods as inheritance; and his complete joy and feast is that his kingdom will no longer belong to some strangers, to his servants, but to his dear son. So it can be said that what belongs to the father belongs to the son, and what belongs to the son belongs to the father.

Now, one who will possess the Kingdom of my Will will be for Us like a child born after about six thousand years. What joy, what feast will not be Ours in seeing Our image in him, intact, beautiful, just as We delivered it from Our paternal womb. All the caresses, the kisses, the gifts, will be for this child; more so since, having given in Creation the Kingdom of Our Will to man as his special inheritance, and since this Kingdom of Ours has been in the hands of strangers, of servants, of traitors for so long a time, in seeing this son who will possess It as a son and will give Us the glory of the Kingdom of Our Will, Our inheritance will be placed in safety on the part of this son. Is it not right that We give him everything, even Our very Selves, and that he enclose everything and everyone?"

While Jesus was saying this, I became concerned and I said to Him: 'How can all this be possible, my love?' And Jesus added: "My daughter, do not be surprised. By possessing the Kingdom of the Supreme Will, the soul will possess a divine, infinite, eternal Will, which encloses all goods; and one who possesses everything can give Us everything. What will be Our contentment, Our happiness and his, in seeing the littleness of the creature in this Kingdom of Ours, taking from Us continuously as the owner - as Our true child! And since what he takes from Us is divine, he takes the divine, and the divine he gives to Us; he takes the infinite, and the infinite he gives to Us; he takes immense things from Us, and immense things he gives to Us; he takes light from Us, and light he brings to Us. He will do nothing but take and give to Us. We will place all Our things at his disposal, so that, in the Kingdom of Our Will, given to him by Us, nothing extraneous to Us may enter any more, but only Our own things, and We may receive the fruits, the glory, the love, the honor of the Kingdom of Our Will. Therefore, be attentive, and let your flight in Our Volition be continuous."

Jesus makes Himself seen while writing what He says about His Will in the depth of the soul; and then He gives a short account of it in words.

I was feeling invested by and prey to the supreme light of the Eternal Volition, and my always lovable Jesus made Himself seen standing in the depth of my soul, with a pen of light in His hand, in the act of writing on thick light, which seemed to be a canvas, but was light extended within my soul. And Jesus was writing and writing in the depth of this light. How beautiful it was to see Him write with indescribable mastery and speed. Then, after He had written, as though opening the doors of my interior, He called the confessor with His hand, saying to him: "Come to see what I Myself write in the depth of this soul. I never write on paper or canvas, because they are subject to perishing; but I delight in writing in the depth of the light enclosed in this soul by virtue of my Will. My characters of light are indelible and of infinite value. So, when I have to manifest to her the truths about my Will, first I do the work of writing them in the depth of her being, and then I speak to her, giving a short account of what is written in her. This is why when she says what I have told her, she says it with few words, while when she writes, she does it at length: it is my writing that, overflowing outside of her soul, does not give a short account, but my extended truth, just as I Myself wrote it in her inmost interior."

I remained surprised and with an unspeakable joy in seeing my sweet Jesus writing inside of me; and I could touch with my own hand that while in speaking I am able to say little of what He tells me – even more, it seems to me that He has only given me the topic – then, in writing, it is His interest to help me develop it as He pleases. And Jesus, all goodness, told me: "My daughter, now your marvel ceases that while you write you feel the truths arise within you as though from within a fount. It is the work of your Jesus done in you that, overflowing from every part of your soul, pours order on paper, and the truths written in you, marked with characters of light. Therefore, let your fears cease, and do not want to limit yourself to the short account of my words, nor resist Me when I want to go into more details and have you write on paper what I wrote in your soul with so much love. How many times you force Me to use my power and to overwhelm you, so that you may not resist Me in writing what I want. Therefore, let Me do - it will be your Jesus' care that the truth may shine in everything."

Threats of new chastisements. How one who must do a universal good must do and suffer more than anyone.

I was fusing all of myself in the Holy Divine Will, and my sweet Jesus made Himself seen in my interior with His arms raised, in the act of preventing Divine Justice from pouring over the creatures, putting me also in His same position, to have me do what He Himself was doing. But creatures seemed to incite Divine Justice to strike them; and Jesus, as though tired, lowering His arms, told me: "My daughter, what human perfidy! But it is right - it is necessary that after so much tolerance I free Myself of so many old things that occupy Creation, which, being infected, bring the infection to the new things, to the new little plants. I am tired of the fact that Creation, my dwelling given to man – but still mine, because preserved and vivified by Me continuously – is occupied by servants, by ungrateful ones, by enemies, and even by those who don't even recognize Me. Therefore I want to move on by destroying entire regions and what serves as their nourishment. The ministers of Justice will be the elements which, investing them, will make them feel the divine power over them. I want to purify the earth in order to prepare the dwelling place for my children. You will be always with Me; my Will will always be your starting point even in your littlest acts, because even in the littlest things my Will wants to have Its Divine Life, Its beginning and Its end, nor does It tolerate that the human will may make its little appearances into Its Kingdom. Otherwise, you would often go out into the kingdom of your will, which would disenoble you – and this does not at all befit one who must live in the Kingdom of my Will.

Now, my daughter, just as the pains of the Celestial Queen and mine, as well as my death, like sun made the fruits present in the Kingdom of Redemption mature, fecundate and become sweet, in such a way that everyone can take them, and they are fruits which bring health to the sick and sanctity to the healthy – in the same way, your pains, grafted with Ours and matured with the heat of the Sun of my Will, will make the fruits present in the Kingdom of my Will mature. They will be so many and so sweet and delicious, that whoever wants to take them and enjoy them will no longer adapt himself to the unripe, tasteless and noxious fruits of the miserable and squalid kingdom of the human will. You must know that one who must be the first to form a kingdom, to bring a good, to form a work, must suffer more than anyone, and do more than anyone; he must direct, facilitate things and means, and prepare what is needed so that, finding the raw materials of that work and seeing it done, others may imitate it. This is why much have I given you, and do give you, so that you may form the raw materials for those who must live in the Kingdom of my Will. Therefore, be attentive and disposed to what I give you, and to do what I want from you.”

Just as it was necessary to make known who They were who suffered more than anyone to form the Kingdom of Redemption, so it is necessary to make known she who has suffered for the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat.

For quite a few days my sweet Jesus had not told me anything about His Most Holy Will; rather, He would make Himself seen sad, in the act of striking the creatures. Today, as though wanting to go out of His sadness – because when He speaks about His Will it seems He puts Himself in feast, coming out from within my interior, He told me: “My daughter, I want to cheer Myself up – let Me speak of the Kingdom of my Supreme Will.” And I: ‘My Love and my Life, Jesus, if You do not tell me all the secrets that are in It, not knowing everything, I will not enjoy the fullness of the goods that this Kingdom possesses, nor will I be able to give You the return of love for the goods that You hide; and I would feel unhappy in the midst of so much happiness, because my “I Love You” would not be flowing in everything that You possess in It. It may be small, but it is the “I love You” of your little daughter, whom You love so much.’

And Jesus, taking my own words, told me: “My little daughter, you yourself are saying how necessary knowledge is. If it is necessary for you, much more so for others. Now, you must know that in order to form the Kingdom of Redemption, those who distinguished themselves the most in suffering were my Mama and I. And even though apparently She suffered none of the pains that the other creatures knew, except for my death which was known by all, and which was the fatal and harrowing blow for Her maternal Heart, more than any most sorrowful death, however, since She possessed the unity of the light of my Will, this light brought to Her pierced Heart, not only the seven swords told by the Church, but all swords, spears and pricks of all sins and pains of creatures, which martyred Her maternal Heart in a harrowing way. But this is nothing. This light brought Her all my pains, my humiliations, my torments, my thorns, my nails, the most intimate pains of my Heart. The Heart of my Mama was the true Sun: though one can see nothing but light, this light contains all the goods and effects that the earth receives and possesses; so, one can say that the earth is enclosed in the Sun. The same for the Sovereign Queen: one could only see Her person, but the light of my Supreme Will enclosed in Her all possible imaginable pains; and the more intimate and unknown these pains were, the more valuable and powerful they were over the Divine Heart, to impetrate the longed for Redeemer; and more than solar light, they descended into the hearts of creatures, to conquer them and bind them in the Kingdom of Redemption.

So, the Church knows so very little of the pains of the Celestial Sovereign Queen, that one can say that She knows only the visible pains, and this is why She gives the number of the seven swords. But if She knew that Her maternal Heart was the refuge, the deposit of all pains, and that the light of my Will brought everything to Her, sparing Her nothing, the Church would not speak of seven swords, but of millions of swords. More so, since they were intimate pains, and therefore God alone knows the intensity of the sorrow. This is why, by right, She was constituted Queen of martyrs and of all sorrows. Creatures can give a weight, a value to exterior pains, but they do not know enough of the interior ones to be able to attribute to them the right price. Now, in order to form in my Mama, first the Kingdom of my Will, and then that of Redemption, so many pains were not necessary because, since She had no sin, the inheritance of pains was not for Her – Her inheritance was the Kingdom of my Will. But in order to give the Kingdom of Redemption to creatures, She had to submit Herself to so many pains. So, the fruits of Redemption were matured in the Kingdom of my Will possessed by Me and by my Mama. There is nothing beautiful, good or useful, which does not come from my Will.

Now, united to the Sovereign Queen came my Humanity. She remained hidden in Me, in my sorrows, in my pains, therefore little was known about Her; but as for my Humanity, it was necessary that what I did, how much I suffered and how much I loved be known. If nothing were known, I could not form the Kingdom of Redemption. The knowledge of my pains and of my love is magnet and spur, incitement and light to draw souls to taking the remedies, the goods contained in It. Knowing how much their sins and their salvation cost Me is chain that binds them to Me and prevents new sins. If, on the other hand, they had known nothing of my pains and of my death, not knowing how much their salvation cost Me, no one would have given a thought to loving Me and saving his soul. See then, how necessary it is to make known how much he or she who has formed within him or herself a universal good to give it to others, has done and suffered.

Now, my daughter, just as it was necessary to make known to creatures who He and She were, and how much it cost Them to form the Kingdom of Redemption, so it is necessary to make known she whom my paternal goodness has chosen, first, to form the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat within her, and then, to give rise to Its transmission to others. Just as it was for Redemption, which was formed between Me and my Celestial Mama first, and then became known to creatures, so it will be for the Supreme Fiat. Therefore, it is necessary to make known how much this Kingdom of my Will costs Me; that - so that man might enter once again into the Kingdom he had lost - I had to sacrifice the littlest of all creatures, keeping her nailed to a bed for forty years and more, without air, without the fullness of the light of the sun that everyone enjoys; how her little heart has been the refuge of my pains and of those of creatures; how she has loved all, prayed for all, defended all; how many times she has exposed herself to the blows of Divine Justice to defend all of her brothers; and then, her intimate pains, and the very privations of Me that martyred her little heart, giving her continuous death. In fact, since she has known no other life but mine, no other Will but mine, all of these pains laid the foundations of the Kingdom of my Will, and, like solar rays, matured the fruits of the Supreme Fiat. So, it is necessary to make known how much this Kingdom cost you and Me, so that, from Its cost, they may know how much I yearn for them to acquire It; and from Its cost they may appreciate It, love It and aspire to enter, to live in the Kingdom of my Supreme Will.”

I wrote this to obey, but the effort has been so great, that I could just barely mention my poor existence, since, because of the great reluctance, I feel my blood freeze in my veins. However, I can but repeat always: ‘Fiat! Fiat! Fiat!...’

July 14, 1926

How Jesus kept the Kingdom of His Will prepared in His Humanity to give It back to creatures. All divine and human interests are in danger if one does not live in the Divine Will.

I continue my usual fusions in the Holy Will. Many times my sweet Jesus accompanies me in the repetition of these acts; other times He stays there, to see whether anything escapes me of all that He has done, both in Creation and in Redemption; and, all goodness, He makes it present to me, that I may place even just one little ‘I love You’, one ‘thank You’, one adoration, telling me that it is necessary to recognize to what point His Will has extended the boundaries of the Kingdom of His Volition for love of the creature, that she may go around in this Kingdom to enjoy It, and through her love, her possession of It may become more stable; and seeing her always in It, everyone – Heaven and earth – may recognize that the Kingdom of His Will has now delivered Its heiress, who loves It and is happy to possess It.

Now, while I was feeling sunken in this Eternal Volition, my always lovable Jesus made Himself seen with His Heart open, and at each heartbeat of His a ray of light came out, at the tip of which one could see a ‘Fiat’ impressed. And since the beating of the Heart is continuous, as one ray would come out another would follow, and then another one – they never stopped coming out. These rays invaded Heaven and earth, but all of them carried the ‘Fiat’ impressed on them. And not only His Heart, but as He looked, rays would come out of His eyes; as He spoke, as He moved His hands and feet, rays would come out, all of them carrying the Supreme Fiat as glory and triumph. It was an enchantment to see Jesus – beautiful, all transfused in these rays of light that came out of His adorable Person. But what gave Him sumptuousness, majesty, magnificence, glory, beauty, was the ‘Fiat’. Its light eclipsed me, and I would have stayed there for centuries before Jesus, without saying anything to Him, if He Himself had not broken the silence, telling me: “My daughter, the perfect glory and the complete honor were given to my Will by my Humanity. It was precisely in my interior, in the center of this Heart, that I formed the Kingdom of the Supreme Will. And since man had lost It and there was no hope that he might be able to acquire It, my Humanity reacquired It through intimate and unheard-of pains, giving It all the honors due to It and the glory that the creature took away from It, so as to give It back to the creature. So, the Kingdom of my Will was formed inside my Humanity, therefore everything that was formed in my Humanity and came out of It carried the mark of the Fiat. Each one of my thoughts, gazes, breaths, heartbeats, each drop of my Blood, everything – everything carried the seal of the Fiat of my Supreme Kingdom. This gave Me so much glory and embellished Me so much, that Heaven and earth remained below and as though obscured before Me, because my Divine Will is superior to everything, and puts everything under Itself as Its footstool.

Now, in the round of the centuries I looked for one to whom to entrust this Kingdom, and I have been like a pregnant mother, who agonizes, who suffers because she wants to deliver her baby but cannot do it. Poor mother, how much she suffers, for she cannot enjoy the fruit of her womb! More so, since the existence of this birth, which is mature and does not come out, is always in danger. More than pregnant mother have I been for so many centuries – how much I have suffered! How I have agonized in seeing the interests of my glory in danger – both of Creation and of Redemption. More so, since I kept this Kingdom as though in secret and hidden in my Heart, without even the outlet of manifesting It; and this made Me agonize even more, because not seeing in the creatures the true dispositions, that I might give this birth from Myself, and since they had not taken all the goods contained in the Kingdom of Redemption, I could not venture to give them the Kingdom of my Will, which contains greater goods. More so, since the goods of Redemption will serve as provision, as antidote, so that on entering the Kingdom of my Will, they might not repeat a second fall, like that of Adam. So, if not all of these goods had been taken – on the contrary, they have been tampered with and trampled upon - how could this birth, my Kingdom, come out from within my Humanity?

Therefore I contented Myself with agonizing, suffering, waiting - more than a mother, so as not to expose this dear birth from Myself, my Kingdom, to any danger. And so, while agonizing, for I wanted to deliver of It to give It to the creature as gift, and to secure the interest of Creation and Redemption which were all in danger – in fact, until man returns into the Kingdom of the Supreme Will, Our interests and his will always be in danger, because outside of Our Will man is always a disorder in Our creative work, he is a clashing note that takes the perfect harmony away from the sanctity of Our works – I looked at the round of centuries, waiting for my little newborn in the Kingdom of my Will, placing around her all the goods of Redemption for the safety of the Kingdom of my Will. And more than a suffering mother, who has agonized for so long, I entrust to you this birth from Myself and the destiny of this, my Kingdom. And it is not only my Humanity that wants to deliver of this birth that cost Me so much, but the whole Creation is pregnant with my Will, and agonizes because It wants to deliver of It for the creatures, to establish once again the Kingdom of their God in the midst of creatures. Therefore Creation is like a veil that hides my Will, which is like a birth within It; but creatures take the veil and reject the birth present inside of It. The Kingdom of my Will is the sun, but while they take the effects of the sun which, like veil, conceals my Will and the goods It produces, they reject my Will, they do not recognize It, nor do they let themselves be dominated by It. So, they take the natural goods present in the sun, but reject the goods of the soul – the Kingdom of my Will that reigns in the sun and wants to give Itself to them. Oh, how my Will agonizes in the sun, wanting to give birth from the height of its sphere in order to reign in the midst of creatures! The Kingdom of my Will is the sky, looking at the creatures with its eyes of light, which are the stars, to see if they want to receive It so that It may reign in their midst. The Kingdom of my Will is the sea; It makes Itself heard with its roaring waves, and its waters hide It like a veil. But man makes use of the sea, he takes its fish, but does not bother about my Will, and causes It to agonize, like a birth constrained in the womb of the waters. So, all the elements are pregnant with my Will: the wind, the fire, the flower, the whole earth – they are all veils that conceal It.

Now, who will give this outlet and relief to my Humanity? Who will break these veils of so many created things that conceal It? One who will recognize in all things the bearers of my Will, and paying the honors due to It, will let It reign in her soul, giving It dominion and her subjection. Therefore, my daughter, be attentive, give this contentment to your Jesus, who has agonized so much until now to release this birth of my Supreme Kingdom; and together with Me, the whole Creation, as a single act, will break the veils and will deposit in you the birth of my Will that all things conceal.”

Why Our Lord did not manifest the Kingdom of His Will when He came upon earth.

My poor mind was thinking about what is written above, and my sweet Jesus continued on the same topic, telling me: “My daughter, see then, the necessity for Me not to give the Kingdom of my Will and not to make It known when I came upon earth. I wanted to test the creature once again; I wanted to give her things inferior to those which I gave her in Creation – remedies and goods to heal her. In fact, when I created man he was not ill, but healthy and holy, therefore he could very well live in the Kingdom of my Will. But as he withdrew from the Supreme Volition, he fell ill, and I came upon earth as the Celestial Doctor to see whether he would accept the remedies, the medicines for his illness; and after this test, then would I give him the surprise of manifesting the Kingdom of my Will, which I kept in my Humanity, prepared for him. Those who think that Our highest goodness and infinite wisdom would have left man with only the goods of Redemption, without raising him again to the original state in which he was created by Us, deceive themselves. In that case Our Creation would have remained without Its purpose, and therefore without Its full effect, which cannot be in the works of a God. At the most, We might let centuries pass and turn, giving now one surprise, now another; entrusting now one little good to the creature, now a greater one. We will act like a father who wants to give his property to his children, but these children have wasted much of the goods of their father. In spite of this, he is determined to give his property to his children, so he thinks of another device: he no longer gives large amounts to his children, but a little bit at a time, lira by lira; and as he sees that his children preserve that little, he keeps increasing the small amounts. Through this, they come to recognize the love of the father and to appreciate the goods he entrusts to them, which they would not do before, when they had large amounts. This serves to strengthen them and to teach them how to preserve the goods received. So, once he has trained them, the father confirms his decision and gives his property to his children.

Now, this is how the paternal goodness is acting. In Creation I placed man in the opulence of goods, with no restriction at all; but only because I wanted to test him in something that did not cost him much, with an act of his will contrary to mine he wasted all these goods. But my love did not stop; more than a father, I began to give him a little at a time - and before that, to heal him. Many times one uses more attention with the little than when he possesses great things. In fact, if one possesses great properties and they are wasted, there is always something from which to take; but if the little is wasted, he remains on an empty stomach. However, the decision of giving the Kingdom of my Will to man I have not changed; man changes, God does not change. Now things are easier, because the goods of Redemption have made their way, they have made known many surprises of my love for man – how I have loved him, not by the Fiat alone, but by giving him my very Life, though my Fiat costs Me more than my very Humanity, because the Fiat is divine, immense, eternal, while my Humanity is human, limited and has its beginning in time. However, not knowing in depth what the Fiat means - Its value, Its power and what It can do - the human minds let themselves be conquered more by all that I did and suffered in coming to redeem them, not knowing that under my pains and my death there was my Fiat, hidden, which gave life to my pains.

Now, had I wanted to manifest the Kingdom of my Will, either when I came upon earth or before the goods of Redemption would be recognized and, for the most part, possessed by creatures, my greatest Saints would have been frightened; all would have thought and said: ‘Adam, innocent and holy, was unable to live nor to persevere in this Kingdom of endless light and of divine sanctity – how can we do it?’ And you yourself – how many times have you not become frightened? And trembling before the immense goods and the sanctity, fully divine, of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat, you wanted to draw back, saying to Me: ‘Jesus, think of some other creature – I am incapable of this.’ You were not so much frightened by the suffering; rather, many times you prayed Me - you incited Me to let you suffer. Therefore my more than paternal goodness acted with you as with a second Mother of mine: from Her I hid my conception in Her womb; first I prepared Her, I formed Her, so as not to frighten Her; and when the appropriate time came, in the very act in which I was to be conceived, then I made it known to Her through the Angel; and even though at first She trembled and was troubled, immediately She became serene again, because She was used to living with Her God, in the midst of His light and before His sanctity. So I have done with you: for many years and years I hid from you that I wanted to form this Supreme Kingdom in you; I prepared you, I formed you, I enclosed Myself in you, in the depth of your soul in order to form It; and when everything was done, I manifested the secret to you, I spoke to you about your special mission, I asked you in a formal way whether you wanted to accept living in my Will; and even though you trembled and feared, I reassured you, saying to you: ‘Why do you trouble yourself? Have you perhaps not lived with Me until now in the Kingdom of my Will?’ And you, serene again, would make more of a practice of the living in It, and I would delight in expanding ever more the boundaries of my Kingdom; because it is established up to what point the creature must take possession of this Kingdom, since Its boundaries are endless, and the creature is incapable of embracing them all, because she is limited.”

And I: ‘My love, yet, my fears have not completely ceased, and many times I am so frightened that I fear I might act like a second Adam.’ And Jesus: “My daughter, do not fear, you have more help than Adam did - you have the help of a Humanate God, and all His works and pains as your defense, as your support, as your cortege, which he did not have. Why, then, do you want to fear? Rather, be attentive to the sanctity that befits the living in this Celestial Kingdom, and on your happiness and fortune, because by living in It, one gaze of mine is enough for you – it is enough for you to hear one of my words alone to comprehend Its goods; while for those who are outside, one can say that they understand only that the Kingdom of my Will exists, but as for what is inside of It, what it takes to comprehend It, they can just barely understand the alphabet of my Will.”

The word of Jesus is work, His silence is rest. The rest of Jesus in the midst of His works.

As I continued to feel all abandoned in the Supreme Volition, my always lovable Jesus made Himself seen all silent, in the act of looking at the whole Creation - at all of his works. While looking at them, He was as though enraptured profoundly before the magnificence, sanctity, multiplicity and greatness of His works; and I, together with Jesus, felt a profound silence within me in contemplating His works. Many things could be comprehended, but everything would remain in the depth of my intelligence, with no words whatsoever. How beautiful it was to be together with Jesus in profound silence. Then, afterwards, my dear Good, my sweet Life, told me: "My dearest daughter, you must know that my word is work, while my silence is rest; and my word is work not only for Me, but also for you. It is my usual way that, after I have worked, I want to rest in the midst of my very works - they are my softest bed in my rest; and since you have listened to my word and have worked together with Me, with Me you must take rest. Look, my daughter - how beautiful the whole Creation is! It was the word of your Jesus that worked It with one Fiat. But do you know what is the enchantment that enraptures Me? Your little 'I love You' on each created thing. With this little 'I love You' of yours impressed on each of them, they all speak to Me of your love, they speak to Me of my newborn of my Will; I hear the harmonious echo of the whole Creation that speaks to Me about you. Oh! how it enraptures Me, how happy I am to see that my Fiat in Creation and the one taught to you hold hands, intertwine together, and fulfilling my Will, they give Me rest.

But I am not content with resting alone, I want the one who gives Me rest together with Me, that she may take rest, and we may enjoy together the fruits of our work. Look - do all Creation and all the works of my Redemption not seem to you more beautiful with your 'I love You', with your adoration and with your will transfused in mine, carrying out its life in the midst of the celestial spheres? There is no more solitude, nor that sepulchral silence that was there before in the celestial spheres and in all my works; but there is the little daughter of my Will keeping them company, making her voice heard, loving, adoring, praying. Holding on to her rights, given to her by my Will, she possesses everything, and when there is someone who possesses, there is no more solitude, nor the silence of a grave. This is why, after having spoken to you at length, I keep silent - it is the rest necessary for Me and for you, so that I may be able to resume my word again, and therefore continue my work and yours. But while I rest I contemplate all my works; my love rises within Me, and as it is reflected in Me, I delight, and I conceive within Myself more images similar to Me; and my Will places them outside of Me as triumph of my love, and as the beloved generation of my Supreme Fiat. So, in my rest I generate children for my Will, all similar to Me, and in my word I deliver them and give them development, beauty, height; and my word keeps forming them as worthy children of the Supreme Fiat. Therefore, my daughter, each word of mine is a gift that I give you; and if I call you to rest it is so that you may contemplate my gift, and delighting in it and loving it, you may let more gifts arise within you, similar to those I have given you; and as you release them, they may form, together, the generation of the children of the Supreme Fiat. How happy we will be!"

Fears of being left by Jesus. One who lives in the Divine Will loses every way out: neither can

Jesus leave her, nor can she leave Jesus. The Creation is mirror, the Divine Will is Life.

After much waiting and longing for the coming of my sweet Jesus, I was thinking to myself: 'How shall I go on, if the One who forms my life leaves me alone and abandoned! How can I possibly live? And if I do live... because now I understand how it is not the pains that make one die; if it were so, after so many of His privations I would be dead; at the most, they make one feel death, but they are unable to give it; they make one live as though under a press - squeezed, crushed, but the Supreme Will alone has the power of death....' But while I was thinking of this, my adorable Jesus moved in my interior and made Himself seen with a little gold chain in His hands, delighting in making it pass between me and Himself, in such a way that we remained bound together. And with love and goodness, all paternal, He told me: "My daughter, why do you fear that I may leave you? Listen: I cannot tolerate this fear in you. You must know that the condition in which I have placed you, the sea of my Will that flows inside and outside of you, to which - voluntarily, not by force - you gave yourself, has expanded its boundaries so much that neither I nor you will find the way out. So, if you want to leave Me, you will not find the way, and as much as you may go around, you will always go around within the endless boundaries of my Will; more so, since your acts done in It have closed every way out for you. And if I wanted to leave you, I could not, because I would not know where to go to place Myself outside of the boundaries of my Will. My Will is everywhere, and wherever I might go, I would always find Myself together with you. At the most, I act like someone who possesses a large house, and since he loves someone else who is inferior to him, in mutual agreement, one takes the house and the other goes. Now, since the house is large, he ranges about and moves around within his house. The other person loses sight of him and laments - but wrongly: if the house belongs to him, how can he leave her? One does not leave his own things; so, either he will come home soon, or maybe he is already there, in some apartment of his own house.

Therefore, since I have given you my Will as your house, how can I leave you and separate from It? As powerful as I am, in this I am impotent, because I am inseparable from my Will. At the most I range within my boundaries and you lose sight of Me, but it is not that I leave you; and if you went around within our boundaries, immediately you would find Me. So, instead of fearing, wait for Me, and when you least expect it, you will find Me all clasped to you."

After this, I was doing my usual acts in the Supreme Volition, and the whole order that one must have in the Divine Will, what one must do and where one can reach - in sum, everything that Jesus Himself has taught me, became present before my mind. So I thought to myself: 'How will creatures be able to do all this? If it seems to me that I, who draw from the source, don't do everything, leave many things behind and do not reach that height that Jesus tells me, what must it be for those who will draw from my tiny little fount?' And Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: "My daughter, of the many things that I created in Creation, you do not use nor enjoy all of them, and many others you do not know. But if they don't serve you, they serve others; if you are not the one who enjoys them and knows them, others do enjoy them and know them. And if creatures don't take everything, all things still serve my great glory, and to make known my power, my majesty, my great love; and the multiplicity of many created things makes known the wisdom, the value of the Divine Maker, who is so skillful that there is nothing He cannot do. Now, if in the Creation of the world He released so many things which were to serve man's nature, and which were to be like a mirror in which, by reflecting himself in it, man was to recognize his Creator, and all created things were to be paths through which he could return to the paternal womb from which he came – much more necessary is it to make known more things about the Kingdom of my Will, which is to serve as life of the soul, and as the center in which God must have His throne. Now, the multiplicity of the things I have made known to you serves to show what this Divine Will is, how there is nothing more important, more holy, more immense, more powerful, more beneficial and which has the virtue of giving more life than It does. All other things, as good and holy as they may be, are always in the secondary order; It alone has always the first place, and wherever It is not present, there cannot be life.

So, the many knowledges about my Will will serve my Will Itself as glory and triumph, and will serve the creatures as path to find life and to receive it. The height and immensity of my Will will serve creatures so as to never let them stop, but always move forward in order to reach It as much as they can; and the multiplicity of these knowledges will serve the freedom of each one to take what they want. In fact, each knowledge contains Life; if the veil of each knowledge is broken, they will find in it, as queen, the Life of my Will. The more they take and do, the more the Life of my Will will grow in them. Therefore, be attentive in manifesting the qualities, the infinite riches It possesses, so that the Heaven of my Will may be more beautiful, more charming, more majestic - as indeed It is - than the heaven of Creation; so that, enraptured by Its beauty, by the goods It contains, all may yearn to come to live in the Kingdom of my Will.”

The four degrees of the living in the Supreme Will.

I continue in my usual abandonment in the Supreme Volition, and my always lovable Jesus, on coming, told me: “My daughter, the light of the sun is not enjoyed equally by all - not because of the sun, since my works, containing the universal good, do good to all with no restriction of any kind; but because of creatures. Imagine a person who remains in his room: he does not enjoy all the vividness of the light; and if he enjoys a mild light, he does not enjoy its heat. There is someone else, then, who is outside of the built-up area: he enjoys more light, he feels the heat of the sun; the heat purifies and disinfects the putrid air, and in enjoying the purified air he becomes stronger and feels healthier. So, the second person enjoys more of the goods that the sun brings to the earth. But, move forward. There is a third person who goes and puts himself at that point in which the solar rays hit the surface of the earth. This one feels invested by its rays, he feels burned by the heat of the sun; the vividness of its light is such that, his eyes being filled with it, he can hardly look at the earth. He sees himself as though transfused, one could say, into the very light; he feels little of the earth, of himself, and only because he has his feet on the ground, but he lives only for the sun. See what a great difference exists between the first, the second and the third. But, move even further. A fourth person takes flight into the solar rays, and rises up to the center of its sphere. This one remains burned by the intensity of the heat that the sun contains in its center; the intensity of the light eclipses him completely, in such a way that he remains dissolved, consumed, within the sun itself. This fourth person can no longer look at the earth nor think of himself; and if he does look, he will look at light, he will feel fire. So, for him all things have ended; light and heat have taken the place of his life. What a difference between the third and the fourth! However, all this difference does not depend on the sun, but on creatures, and on how they expose themselves to the light of the sun.

Now, the sun is the image of my Will which, more than sun, shoots its rays to convert those who want to live in Its Kingdom completely into light and love. These people are the image of the four degrees of the living in my Will. One can say that the first one does not live in Its Kingdom, but only in the light which, from my Kingdom, the Sun of my Will diffuses to all. One can say that he is outside of Its boundaries, and if he enjoys a limited light, it is because of the nature of light, which diffuses everywhere. His nature, his weaknesses and passions form as though a house around him; they form infected and putrid air; and in breathing it, he lives as sickly and without liveliness of strength in doing good. But in spite of all this, he is resigned; he bears to his best the encounters of life, because the light of my Will, mild as it may be, always brings its good. The second is the image of one who has entered the first steps of the boundaries of the Kingdom of the Supreme Will. This one enjoys not only more light, but also the heat, therefore the air he breathes is pure; and in breathing it, he feels passions die within him, he is constant in good, he bears the crosses not only with resignation, but with love. However, since he is at the first steps of the boundaries, he looks at the earth and feels the weight of the human nature. On the other hand, the third is the image of one who has advanced into the boundaries of this Kingdom; and Its light is such and so great as to make him forget everything. He no longer feels anything of himself; good, virtues, crosses, change into his own nature; the light eclipses him, transforms him, and just barely allows him to look from afar at what no longer belongs to him. The fourth is the happiest, because he is the image of one who not only lives in my Kingdom, but has acquired It. This one undergoes the total consummation in the Supreme Sun of my Will; the eclipse caused by Its light is so intense, that he himself becomes light and heat, nor can he look at anything else but light and fire; and all things convert for him into light and love.

Therefore, there will be a difference of degrees in the Kingdom of my Will according to how much creatures will want to take from Its goods. But the first degrees will be spurs and paths in order to reach the last one. For you, then, who must make It known, there is all the necessity to live in the last degree."

Everything that Our Lord did invested the whole Creation by virtue of the Divine Will. Who will put all Creation in feast once again?

I was doing my usual rounds in the Kingdom of the Supreme Volition, and as I arrived at the point of what the Divine Will had done in the Humanity of Our Lord, I looked at His tears, His sighs, His moans and everything He did, invested with the light of His Will. Its rays were beaded with the tears of Jesus, filled with His sighs, invested with His sorrowful and loving moans; and since the Creation is filled and invested with the Divine Will, as Its rays of light invested everything, they beaded all created things with His tears. All things were invested with His sighs, with His love, and all moaned together with Jesus. Now, sweet Jesus came out from within my interior, and leaning His head on my forehead, told me: "My daughter, by sinning, the first man lost a Divine Will, and therefore my Humanity was needed, united with the Eternal Word, which was to sacrifice the human will of my Humanity entirely and completely in order to reacquire this Divine Will, so as to give It back to the creature. So, my Humanity gave not even a breath of life to Its human will, but kept it only to sacrifice it, and to pay for the freedom that man had taken, of rejecting this Supreme Will with so much ingratitude; and as he lost It, all of Its goods, Its happiness, Its dominion, Its sanctity, failed him – everything failed him. If man had lost something human given to him by God, a Saint could have rendered it back to him, but since he lost a Divine Will, another Man and God was needed, who would be able to give It back to him.

Now, had I come upon earth to redeem him, one drop of my Blood, one little pain of mine would have been enough to put him in safety; but since I came not only to save him, but to give him back my Will, which he had lost, this Divine Will wanted to descend into all my pains, into my tears, into my sighs and moans – into everything I did and suffered, in order to reacquire the dominion in all and over all human acts, and therefore be able to form, once again, Its Kingdom in the midst of creatures. So, as a little child, when I cried, wailed, moaned, my Divine Will, more than solar ray, invested all Creation with my tears, with my moans and sighs. The stars, the sun, the starry sky, the sea, the little flower – all cried, moaned, wailed and sighed, because the Divine Will present in Me was the same as That which reigned in all Creation, and therefore, as though naturally, the stars cried, the sky moaned, the sun wailed, the sea sighed. The light of my Will brought my echo into all created things, and repeating my acts, they kept company with their Creator.

Oh, if you knew the assault that the Divine Majesty received in hearing my crying, my moans and sighs in all Creation! All created things, animated by my Will, prostrate at the foot of the divine throne, deafened It with their moans, drew It with their tears, moved It to pity with their sighs and prayers; and my pains, reverberating in them, bound It to surrender the keys of Heaven, and implored that the Kingdom of the Divine Will come upon earth once again. My Celestial Father, moved to compassion and tenderness by His own Will that cried, moaned, prayed and suffered in all His works, surrendered the keys and gave His Kingdom once again. But in order to be sure, He placed It in my Humanity, so that at the appropriate time He might give It back again to the human family. Here is the necessity for Me to do the human actions and to descend into the order of the human actions – because my Divine Will was to take Its dominion and substitute the order of Its Divine Will in all the acts of creatures. See, then, how much this Kingdom cost Me, with how many pains I ransomed It. This is why I love It so much, and I want to establish It in the midst of creatures at any cost.”

And I: ‘But, tell me, my love, if everything You did was invested with the unity of the light of the Supreme Volition, since this Will is one and cannot be detached nor separated from Its acts, the Creation is no longer alone, but has the company of your acts, of your love, of your moans. Therefore, there isn’t that sepulchral silence You told me about the other time.’ And Jesus, all goodness, added: “My daughter, you must know that as long as my Humanity remained on earth, and as long as the Sovereign Queen also was there, there was no solitude nor sepulchral silence in the Creation, because by virtue of the light of the Divine Will, wherever this Will was It spread as light, and diffusing in everything, It multiplied in all created things, and everywhere my act was repeated – because one was the Will. This is so true, that the Creation gave sensible signs both at my birth, and even more so at my death, to the point that the sun became dark, the stones split, the earth trembled, as if all were crying for their Creator, for their King. They cried for the One who had kept them in feast, who had broken their solitude and sepulchral silence; and, all feeling the bitterness of such a hard privation, they gave signs of sorrow and crying, and returned once again to the mourning of their solitude and silence. In fact, as I departed from the earth, the One who, in the light of my Will, emitted the voice which, forming the echo, rendered the Creation speaking and operating, was no longer there. It happened as to those metal instruments which, with artfulness, enclose the voice of one who speaks or sings: the instrument speaks, sings, cries, laughs, but this happens by virtue of the echo of the voice that has spoken; however, if the intelligence that produces that singing is taken away, the instrument remains mute. More so, since I did not come upon earth for the Creation, but I came for man, and therefore everything I did – pains, prayers, moans, sighs... – I left for the good of souls as more than a new Creation. In fact, since everything I did was done by virtue of my creative power, everything is in the act of saving man.

In addition to this, Creation was made for man – in It he was to be the king of all created things. But by withdrawing from my Divine Will, man lost the regime, the dominion, nor could he form laws in the Kingdom of Creation as is usual with a king when he possesses a kingdom. In fact, having lost the unity of the light of my Will, he was no longer able to rule, he had no more strength of dominion, his laws had no value; Creation was for him like a people that rebels against the king and makes of him its laughing-stock. And this is why my Humanity was immediately recognized by the whole Creation as Its King – because It felt in Me the strength of the union of one single Will. But as I departed, It remained without King again, enclosed in Its silence, waiting again for someone who, in the Kingdom of my Will, would emit his voice to let It resound in it. But do you know who she is who will put all Creation in feast once again – the one who will form Its echo and will render It speaking again? It is you, my daughter, who will take back the dominion, the regime, in the Kingdom of my Will. Therefore, be attentive, and let your flight in my Volition be continuous....”

The secret of Jesus. The power and goodness of His secret.

I was longing for my sweet Good, the Life of my life, and since He was not coming I thought to myself: ‘How hard is His privation. Ah! Jesus does not love me any more; and not only have the caresses, the kisses, His great shows of love which He so abundantly gave me before ended, but His lovable and enrapturing presence also keeps me waiting longer and longer. Oh, God, what pain! What a continuous martyrdom...! What a life without life, without air, without breath...! My Jesus, have pity on me, on your little exiled one.’ But while I was thinking of this and other things, my always lovable Jesus came out from within my interior, and leaning His arms on my breast, told me: “My daughter, you deceive yourself in saying that I no longer love you as before. On the contrary, you must know that my kisses, my caresses, the shows of love I gave you, were the outpouring of my love. Unable to contain it in my interior, I showed it to you with many loving signs; and since between you and Me there wasn’t a great work to do, I amused Myself with you with many signs and stratagems of love. But this served to prepare you for the great work that was to be carried out between you and Me; and when one works there is no time to amuse oneself. However, in spite of this, love does not cease, but is increased a hundred times, strengthened and sealed.

Now, my daughter, having shown to you the outpouring of my constrained love, I wanted to move on to give you what I contained within Me; I wanted to communicate to you the great secret of the Kingdom of my Will, giving you the goods It contains. And when important secrets are communicated – and this is the most important secret of the whole history of Creation – amusements, kisses and caresses are put aside; more so, since the work of the Kingdom of the Supreme Volition is exuberant, and the greatest that can exist in the whole history of the world. Therefore, manifesting my secret to you surpasses all loves together, because in the secret there is the sharing of one's life, of one's goods; in the secret there is trust, there is reliance. And do you think it is trivial that your Jesus has trust in you, and that you are the object of my hope? But not just any trust and hope; rather, the trust of entrusting to you the Kingdom of my Will, and the hope that you will place Its rights in safety and that you will make It known for Me. Now, having entrusted to you the secret of my Will, my Will being the essential part of the Divine Life, I would not know what to give you that is greater than this. How can you say, then, that I love you less than before? Rather, you must say that this is the great work required of you and of Me in the Kingdom of my Will. You must know that I am always occupied and all intent on working in you: now I expand your capacity, now I instruct you, many times I move on to work together with you, other times I make up for you; in sum, I am always occupied, and this says that I love you more and more - but with stronger and more substantial love."

August 4, 1926

One who is in the Divine Will is safe, wherever she might be, because in It there are four floors.

My days, my hours, are always in the nightmare of the so very hard privations of my sweet Jesus. Oh! how painful it is to pass from light to darkness; and while one thinks she is going to enjoy the light, He escapes like a flash, and one remains in the dark, more than before. Now, while I was under the press of the privation of the light of my sweet Jesus, and feeling that I could take no more, my dear Life, my highest Good, moved in my interior, and as I felt Him I said to Him: 'Jesus, how can You leave me! Without You I don't know where I am.' And He, all goodness, told me: "My daughter, what? You don't know where you are? Are you not in my Will? The house of my Will is large, and if you are not on one floor you must be on another. In fact, my Will contains four floors: the first one is the low level of the earth - that is, the sea, the earth, the plants, the flowers, the mountains, and everything else that exists in the lower part of the universe. My Will dominates and rules everywhere; Its place is always of Queen, and It holds everything in the palm of Its hand. The second floor is the sun, the stars, the spheres. The third is the azure sky. The fourth is the Fatherland, mine and of the Saints. In all of these floors my Will is Queen, It occupies the first place of honor; therefore, whichever of these floors you might be on, be certain that you are always in my Will. If you go around in the lower part of the universe, you will find It awaiting you in the sea, that you may unite with It to do what It does. As It carries out Its love, Its glory, Its power, It awaits you on the mountains, down below in the valleys, in the flowery fields - It awaits you in all things, that you may keep It company, so that you may omit nothing. Even more, you will be the repeater of Its acts, and once you have gone through the first floor, move on to the second, and you will find It awaiting you with majesty in the sun, so that its light and its heat may transform you and make you lose your being, and you may know how to love and glorify as a Divine Will knows how to love and glorify.

Therefore, go around within Our house, in the works of your Creator, because He awaits you everywhere, that you may learn His ways and repeat what my Will does in all created things. In this way you will be sure of being always in the Supreme Volition. Not only this, but you will be always with Me; and even though you do not always see Me, you must know that I am inseparable from my Will and from my works, and therefore, since you are in It, I will be with you and you will be with Me.”

Having said this, He disappeared like a flash, and I remained in the dark, more than before, continuing my acts in the Supreme Volition. But while I was doing this, I prayed Him to come back to His little daughter, saying to Him: ‘My Jesus, I pray You by virtue of your own Will; and since your Will is spread throughout the whole Creation, filling It completely, it is your very Will that prays You in the sun to come back to your little newborn; It prays You in each star, It prays You in the azure sky to hasten to come to the one who cannot live without You; It supplicates You in the sea, in its roaring waves, in its sweet murmuring, to come quickly to your little exiled one. Don’t You hear, my Love, my voice in your Will resounding in all created things, and all Creation praying, supplicating, sighing, crying for You to return to the little one of your Will? How can so many voices not move You to pity? How can so many sighs not push You, and not make You fly? Don’t You know, O Jesus, that it is your Will that prays You, and if You do not listen to It, it is your Will that pays the price? And I believe You cannot do without listening to It.’ But while I was saying this and yet more, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior, transforming me completely in Him and sharing His bitternesses with me, which were already too many. Oh, God, how many sad things He showed! – and His Heart was pierced.

Then, afterwards, as though wanting to cheer Himself, making Himself seen with His usual pen of light in His hand, He told me: “My daughter, let us put everything aside – let us speak of the Kingdom of the Supreme Will, which interests Me so much. Don’t you see how I am always in the act of writing Its qualities, Its celestial laws, Its power, Its divine prodigies, Its enchanting beauty, Its infinite joys, the order and the perfect harmony that reigns in this Kingdom of the Divine Fiat - in the depth of your soul? First I make the preparations, I form in you all the properties of It, and then I speak to you, so that, by feeling Its properties within yourself, you may be the spokesperson of my Will, the crier of It, Its telegraph and the little trumpet which, with a shrill sound, may call the attention of those passing by to listen to you. The teachings I give you about the Kingdom of my Will will be like many electric wires, which are such that, when the appropriate communications are established and the necessary preparations are made, a single wire is enough to give light to entire cities and provinces. The power of the electricity, with rapidity greater than that of the wind, gives light to public and private places. The teachings about my Will will be the wires; the power of the electricity will be the Fiat Itself which, with enchanting rapidity, will form the light that will cast away the night of the human will, the darkness of passions. Oh, how beautiful the light of my Will will be! In seeing it, creatures will dispose the devices in their souls in order to connect the wires of the teachings, so as to enjoy and receive the power of the light that the electricity of my Supreme Will contains. Do you want to see what will happen? Look: I take one wire of my teachings linked to your soul, and you emit your voice within the wire. Say: ‘I love You, I adore You, I bless You...’ – whatever you want to say, and be attentive on looking.”

I said ‘I love You’, and that ‘I love You’ changed into characters of light and the electric power of the Supreme Volition multiplied it, in such a way that that ‘I love You’ of light would go through the whole vault of the heavens, fix itself in the sun and in each star, penetrate into Heaven, fix itself in each Blessed, form its crown of light at the foot of the divine throne, and enter even into the bosom of the Supreme Majesty – in sum, wherever the Divine Will was, there it would form its electric light. And Jesus continued: “My daughter, have you seen what power the electricity of the Supreme Fiat has, and how it reaches everywhere? The electricity of the earth diffuses down below at the most – it does not have the power to reach even the stars; but the power of my electricity diffuses down below, up high, in the hearts – everywhere; and when the wires are disposed, with enchanting rapidity it will make its way into the midst of creatures.”

The more the soul is identified with God, the more He can give her and she can take. Example of the sea and the little stream.

As I was in my usual state, I felt all abandoned in the arms of Jesus; and He, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, the more the soul is identified with Me, the more I can give her and she can take from Me. It happens as between the sea and a little stream which is separated from the sea only by a wall; so much so, that if the wall were removed, the sea and the little stream would become one single sea. Now, if the sea overflows, being near it, the little stream receives the water of the sea. If its roaring waves rise, in lowering again they unload themselves into the nearby little stream. The water of the sea pours into it through the cracks of the wall. So, the tiny little stream constantly receives the waters of the sea, and because it is little, it keeps swelling up and it gives back to the sea the water it has received, to then receive it again. However, this happens because the little stream is near the sea; but if it were far away, neither could the sea give, nor could it receive – its distance would put it in the condition of not even knowing the sea.”

While saying this, He showed to my mind, in practice, the act of the sea and of the little stream; and then He continued: “My daughter, the sea is God, the tiny little stream is the soul, the wall that separates them is the human nature, which makes one distinguish God and the creature; the overflowings, the waves which rise continuously to unload themselves into the little stream, are my Divine Will that wants to give so much to the creature, that the little stream, being filled and swelling up, may overflow, may form its waves, swollen by the wind of the Supreme Will, and may pour back into the divine sea, to be filled again, in such a way as to be able to say: ‘I live the life of the sea, and even though I am little, I too do what it does; I overflow, I form my waves, I rise and I try to give to the sea what it gives to me.’ So, the soul who is identified with Me and lets herself be dominated by my Will is the repeater of the divine acts. Her love, her adorations, her prayers and everything she does, is the outpouring of God which she receives, so as to be able to say: ‘It is your love that loves You, your adorations that adore You, your prayers that pray You; it is your Will that, investing me, makes me do what You do, to give it back to You as your own things’.”

Jesus kept silent; but then, as though taken by an irresistible emphasis of love, He added: “Oh, power of my Will, how great You are! You alone unite the greatest and highest Being with the littlest and lowest being, making them one. You alone have the virtue of emptying the creature of all that does not belong to You, to be able to form in her, with your reflections, that Eternal Sun which, filling Heaven and earth with Its rays, goes to blend with the Sun of the Supreme Majesty. You alone have this virtue of communicating the supreme strength, in such a way that, with your strength, the creature can rise to that single act of God the Creator. Ah, my daughter, when the creature does not live in the unity of my Will, she loses the one strength and remains as though disunited from that strength that fills Heaven and earth and sustains the whole universe as if it were the littlest feather.

Now, when the soul does not let herself be dominated by my Will, she loses the one strength in all of her actions, therefore all her acts, not coming out of the same single strength, remain divided among themselves – love is divided, the action separated, the prayer disjointed. Being divided, all the acts of the creature are poor, meager, without light; and so patience is poor, charity is weak, obedience is crippled, humility is blind, prayer is mute, sacrifice is without life, without vigor, because since my Will is missing, the one strength is missing which, uniting everything, gives the same strength to each act of the creature. Therefore, they are left not only divided among themselves, but adulterated by the human will, and so each one is left with its own defect.

This happened to Adam. By withdrawing from the Supreme Will, he lost the one single strength of His Creator, and since he was left with his limited human strength, he felt hardship in his operating; more so, since the strength that he employed in performing one action would debilitate him, and in having to do another, he would not feel the same strength. So, he touched the poverty of his actions with his own hand: not having the same strength, they were not only divided, but each one had its own defect. It happened as to a rich lord who possesses most extensive properties: as long as they belong to one owner only, he shows off, he makes big purchases; who knows how many servants he maintains under himself, and with the large proceeds he receives, he keeps making new purchases. But, suppose that this property were to be divided among other heirs: that's it - his great power is already lost; he can no longer show off as before, nor make new purchases; he must limit himself in his expenditures, and his servants are few. So, his greatness, his lordship, has vanished; what is left are just barely the traces of it. So it happened to Adam; by withdrawing from my Will, he lost the one single strength of his Creator, and with it he lost his lordship, his dominion, nor did he feel the strength to show off in good any more. The same happens for one who is not completely abandoned in the arms of my Will, because with It the strength of good converts into one's nature, and poverty does not exist."

The Divine Will cannot reign if the three powers of the soul are not ordered with God.

The privations of my sweet Jesus are getting longer. Oh! how He makes me yearn for His return! How hours and days seem like centuries without Him! – but centuries of night, not of days!

So, while I was anxiously waiting for His return, like a rising flash He came out from within my interior, and clasping me to Himself, told me: "My daughter, man was created by God with three powers: memory, intellect and will; and this, so that he might have the links of communications with the Divine Persons of the Sacrosanct Trinity. These were like paths along which to ascend to God, like doors through which to enter, like rooms in which to form the continuous dwelling – the creature for God, God for the creature. These are the royal paths of both of them, the gold doors which God placed in the depth of the soul through which the Supreme Sovereignty of the Divine Majesty might enter; the safe and unshakeable room in which God was to have His celestial dwelling. Now, in order to be able to form Its Kingdom in the inmost place of the soul, my Will wants to find these three powers, given to the creature to raise her to the likeness of the Creator, in order with the Father, with the Son and with the Holy Spirit. My Will would not go out of Its dominions if these three powers of the soul were in order with God, and Its reigning would be happy and as though natural, because, her three powers being in order with God, the creature would have order within herself and outside of herself, and the Kingdom of the Will of God and that of the creature would not be a divided Kingdom, but a single one, and therefore Its dominion and regime would be one. More so, since my Will does not know how to reign where there is no order and harmony - inseparable qualities and indispensable properties of the Divine Persons; and the soul can never be ordered and harmonize with her Creator if she does not have her three powers open to receive from God His qualities ordered and His properties harmonized, in such a way that, finding the divine harmonies and the supreme order of the Divine Kingdom and of the human kingdom, my Will may make them one and reign in It with Its full dominion.

Ah! my daughter, how much disorder reigns in the three powers of the human soul. One can say that they have shut the door on Our face, they have barricaded the paths to prevent Our passing and to break the communications with Us, while it was the greatest gift We gave man in creating him. These three powers were to serve him to comprehend the One who had created him, to grow in His likeness, and, his will being transfused in that of his Creator, to give Him the right to let It reign. This is why the Supreme Volition cannot reign in the soul if these three powers – intellect, memory and will – do not hold hands in order to return to the purpose for which God created man. Therefore, pray that these three powers may return to the order and the harmony of their Creator, so that my Supreme Will may reign with Its full triumph.”

Bitternesses of the soul because of the news of the upcoming printing of the writings on the Will of God. Words of Jesus in this regard.

My poor heart swims in the sea of the bitternesses of the privations of my sweet Jesus. If He comes at all, He is like a flash that escapes, and in that light of the flash I see the poor world, its grave evils, the bonds among nations which are binding themselves to one another in order to start wars and revolutions, and by doing this, they draw the chastisements of Heaven – but so grave as to destroy entire cities and peoples. Oh, God, how great is the human blindness! But as the flash of His lovable presence ends, I remain in the dark, more than before, with the thought of my poor brothers, scattered in the hard exile of life!

But this was not enough to fill my poor heart with intense bitternesses; something else added to suffocate my poor existence with those roaring waves that overwhelm my poor soul – that is, the news of the upcoming printing of the writings on the Most Holy Will of God, since our Monsignor Archbishop had given His approval, placing the imprimatur Himself. But this was nothing; the most fatal blow to my poor soul has been the news that they were going to put not only what regarded the Divine Will – because after so much insistence from Our Lord and the superiors, I had convinced myself that the glory of God required this, and, miserable and little as I am, it is not for me to oppose what blessed Jesus wants - but they were going to put out for printing also the order that Jesus has kept with me and everything He has told me, also about the other virtues and circumstances. This was too painful for me, and I spoke out my reasons over and over again, so that it would not be done.

Then, while I was so oppressed, my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, as though feeling the weight of my oppression, clasped me in His arms, and shaking me up, told me: “My daughter, what’s the matter, what’s the matter? Be cheered - I do not want you to be so oppressed. Instead of thanking Me, you oppress yourself? You must know that, so that my Supreme Will might be known, I had to prepare things, dispose means, overwhelm the Archbishop with those acts of absolute dominion of my Will, which man cannot resist; I had to make one of my great prodigies. Do you think it is easy to obtain the approval of a Bishop? How hard it is – how many quibbles, how many difficulties. And if they approve at all, it is with many restrictions, almost removing the most beautiful shades, the most striking colors from all that my goodness has revealed with so much love. Don’t you see, then, the triumph of my Will in the approval of the Archbishop, and therefore my great glory and the great necessity that the knowledges about the Supreme Will become known and, like beneficial dew, dampen the ardor of passions? Like rising sun, my Will dispels the darkness of the human will, and removes the torpor which almost all creatures have, also in doing good, because the life of my Will is missing. My manifestations about It will be like the balm which will heal the wounds produced by the human will. Those who will have the good of knowing them will feel a new life of light, of grace, of strength flow within them, to fulfill my Will in everything. Not only this, but in comprehending the great evil of their own will, they will abhor it and will shake themselves from the yoke, so very hard, of the human will, to place themselves under the gentle dominion of mine. Ah! You do not know nor see what I know and see; therefore, let Me do it, and do not oppress yourself. Rather, you yourself should have urged and pushed the one whom I have disposed with so much love to take on this commitment; even more, you should have told him to hurry, and not to lose time.

My daughter, the Kingdom of my Will is unshakeable, and in these knowledges about It I have placed so much light, grace and attraction as to render It victorious, in such a way that, as they become known, they will wage a sweet battle against the human will, and creatures will be conquered. These knowledges will be an immensely high and strong wall, more than the terrestrial Eden, which will prevent the enemy from entering in order to molest those who, conquered by It, will pass to live in the Kingdom of my Will. Therefore, do not become disturbed and let Me do – and I will dispose everything so that the Supreme Fiat may be known.”

Jesus encourages the one who must undertake the printing of the writings on the Most Holy Will of God. Power of the acts done in the Divine Will.

While I was praying, I found myself outside of myself, and at the same time I saw the reverend father who must occupy himself with the printing of the writings on the Most Holy Will of God. Our Lord was near him, taking all the knowledges, the effects and the values He has manifested about the Supreme Will, which had changed into threads of light, and impressing them in his intelligence, in such a way as to form a crown of light around his head. And while doing this, He said to him: “My son, the task I have given you is great, and therefore it is necessary that I give you much light in order to make you comprehend with clarity what I have revealed. In fact, they will produce their effects according to the clarity with which they will be exposed, even though they are most clear in themselves. Indeed, that which regards my Will is light that descends from Heaven, which does not confuse and dazzle the sight of the intelligence, but has the virtue of strengthening and enlightening the human intellect so as to be comprehended and loved, and of casting into the depth of the soul the source of her origin, the true purpose for which man was created, the order between Creator and creature. And each one of my sayings, manifestations, knowledges about my Supreme Will are as many strokes of the brush to make the soul return to the likeness of her Creator. Everything I have said about my Will is nothing other than preparing the way, forming the army, gathering the chosen people, preparing the royal palace, disposing the ground on which the Kingdom of my Will must be formed, and so rule and dominate. Therefore, the task I am entrusting to you is great. I will guide you, I will be near you, so that everything may be done according to my Will.”

Then, after this, He blessed him and came to my little soul, resuming His speaking: “My daughter, how much I care about my Will, how I love, how I yearn that It become known. My interest is so great that I am disposed to give any grace to whomever wants to occupy himself with making It known. Oh, how I wish that they would hurry, because I see that all my rights will be given back to Me, the order between God and the creature will be re-established. I will no longer give my gifts to the human generations as halved, but as whole, nor will I ever again receive from them things that are incomplete, but whole. Ah! my daughter, being able to give and wanting to give, but finding no one to whom to give is always a pain and a weight with no hope of relief. If you knew with how much jealousy of love I stay around the soul when I see her disposed to do her acts in my Will! Before she begins her act I make the light and the virtue of my Will flow in it, so that her act may take its origin on the virtue that my Will contains. As she keeps forming it, the divine light and virtue invest it and carry it out. As she completes it, the light is sealed over it and gives it the form of a divine act, and – oh! how my Supreme Goodness delights in seeing that the creature possesses this divine act. To these acts my eternal love never says enough; it gives, and gives always, because with these divine acts formed by the creature in my Will, my love cannot limit itself – since they are divine, it must repay them with infinite love and without limits.

Don’t you yourself see and feel with how much love I guide you, I accompany you, and many times I reach the point of doing what you do together with you? And this, in order to give to your acts the value of a divine value. How happy I am in seeing that by virtue of my Will, your acts are divine, similar to mine. There is no more distance between your little love and mine, between your adoration and mine, between your prayers and mine. Invested by the light of the Eternal Volition, they lose their finiteness, their human appearances, and acquire the infinite and the divine substance; and transforming, all together, the working of God and of the soul, my Will makes them one. Therefore, be attentive, and let your flight in my Will be continuous.”

After this, my always lovable Jesus came back and made Himself seen all worried, suffering and as though restless because of the great offenses of creatures. I wanted to calm Him, give Him rest, but I could not manage to. Then the thought came to me of doing my usual acts in the Supreme Fiat, and as I was doing this, Jesus would calm down and take rest. Then He told me: “My daughter, the acts in my Will are more than solar rays which are such that, if one wants to look at them, one’s sight is eclipsed by the light, in such a way that one can neither look nor distinguish anything any more. If the light of the sun has so much power, much more do the acts done in my Will. The light of my Will has the power to eclipse and take evil away from creatures, that they may not do worse things; and with the power of its light it prevents the offenses from reaching Me. And just as the light of the sun, because it contains the simile of the Eternal Sun of the Supreme Fiat, contains all colors and from them derive innumerable effects which unleash countless goods for the human generations, while one seems to see nothing but radiant and white light - the same for the Eternal Sun of my Will: while It is the light of my Will alone, inside of It there are as though many colors, all the divine similes, enclosed, which contain infinite effects and unleash fountains of love, of goodness, of mercy, of power, of science - in sum, all the divine qualities. Therefore the working of my Will contains such power and harmony as to favor the rest of your beloved Jesus.”

The acts done in the Divine Will assume the image of the divine qualities. What privation of God means, and how the Sovereign Queen suffered this privation. What it means to be the head of a mission.

I feel as though immersed in the Eternal Will of my adorable Jesus, and as much as I can, I do my round throughout the whole Creation, to keep company with all the acts that the Divine Will operates in It. But while I was doing this, my highest and only Good made Himself seen in my interior, looking at all of me, counting all my acts, one by one, and placing them around Himself to enjoy them. Then He told me: “My daughter, I am making the count of all your acts to see whether they reach the number established by Me. And since my Will encloses all the divine qualities, each of your acts done in It assumes the image of a supreme quality. Look at them – how beautiful they are! Some possess the image of my Wisdom, some the image of Goodness, some of Love, some of Strength, some of Beauty, some of Mercy, some of Immutability, some of Order – in sum, all of my supreme qualities. Each act of yours assumes a distinct image, but they resemble one another, they harmonize, they hold hands and form one single act. How beautiful is the working of the creature in my Will! She does nothing but produce divine images, and I delight in surrounding Myself with these images of mine to enjoy, in the creature, the fruits of my qualities; and I give her the virtue of reproducing more of my divine images, so as to be able to see the Supreme Being copied and impressed in them. This is why I have so much interest that the creature do my Will and live in It - to repeat my works.”

After this, I was thinking to myself: ‘How hard is the privation of my sweet Jesus... One feels the true death of the soul, and it happens as when the soul departs from the body: while it possesses the same members, they are emptied of life, they are inert, without motion, and have no more value. So does my little soul appear to me without Jesus: it possesses the same faculties, but emptied of life; once Jesus has departed, life, motion, warmth, are ended. This is why this pain is harrowing and indescribable, and cannot be compared to any other pain. Ah! the Celestial Mama did not suffer this pain, because Her sanctity rendered Her inseparable from Jesus, and therefore She never remained without Him.’ But while I was thinking of this, my beloved Jesus moved in my interior, telling me: “My daughter, you are wrong - the privation of Me is not separation, but pain. You are right in saying that it is more than mortal, but this pain has the virtue, not of separating, but of joining with stronger and more stable bonds the inseparable union with Me. Not only this, but each time the soul remains as though without Me, with no guilt on her part, I rise again for her to new life of knowledges, allowing Myself to be comprehended more with more love, loving her more, and with new grace, to enrich her and embellish her more. And she rises again to new Divine Life, to new love and to new beauty; because it is justice that, since the soul suffers mortal pains, she be substituted with new Divine Life. If it were not so, I would let Myself be surpassed by the love of the creature, which cannot be.

And besides, it is not true that the Sovereign Queen was never without Me; separated – never; but without Me - yes. But this did not prejudice the height of Her sanctity; on the contrary, it increased it. How many times I left Her in the state of pure faith, because, having to be the Queen of sorrows and the Mother of all the living, She could not lack the most beautiful adornment, the most refulgent gem, which gave Her the characteristic of Queen of martyrs and Sovereign Mother of all sorrows. This pain of being left in pure faith prepared Her to receive the deposit of my doctrines, the treasure of the Sacraments and all the goods of my Redemption. In fact, since the privation of Me is the greatest pain, it places the soul in the condition of deserving to be the depository of the greatest gifts of her Creator, of His highest knowledges, and of His secrets. How many times have I not done this for you? After a privation of Me, I would manifest to you the highest knowledges about my Will; and with this, I would make you the depository, not only of Its knowledges, but of my Will Itself. Moreover, the Sovereign Queen, as Mother, had to possess all of the interior states, therefore also the state of pure faith, to be able to give to Her children that unshakeable faith that makes one lay down one's blood and life to defend and prove one's faith. Had She not possessed this gift of faith, how could She give it to Her children?"

Having said this, He disappeared. But my mind wanted to think about many strange things, and maybe even senseless; and I would try hard to do my acts in the adorable Will of God. But while doing this, I thought to myself: 'If living in the supreme Kingdom of the Divine Will requires so much attention, so many sacrifices, very few will be those who will want to live in a Kingdom so holy.' And my sweet Jesus, coming back, told me: "My daughter, one who is called to be the head of a mission must not only embrace all the members, but rule them, dominate them and constitute himself life of each of them; while the members do not give life to the head, nor do all that it does, but rather, each one does its own office. So, one who is called to be the head of a mission, embracing all that is needed in order to be able to carry out the task entrusted to him, suffering more than anyone and loving everyone, prepares the food, the life, the lessons, the offices, according to the capacity of those who want to follow his mission. That which is necessary for you, who must form the tree with all the fullness of its branches and the multiplicity of its fruits, will not be necessary for one who must only be branch or fruit. Their task will be to remain incorporated in the tree, in order to receive the vital humors it contains – that is, to let themselves be dominated by my Will, never giving life to their volition in anything, either internal or external, to know my Will, and to receive It as their own life, so as to let It carry out Its Divine Life; in sum, to let It reign and dominate as Queen.

So, my daughter, one who must be the head needs to suffer, to work, and to do, himself alone, everything that all others together will do. This is what I did; because I was the head of Redemption, I can say that I did everything for love of all, to give them life and to place them all in safety. The Immaculate Virgin also; because She was Mother and Queen of all – how much did She not suffer? How much did She not love and work for all creatures? No one can claim having reached Us, either in suffering or in loving. At the most, they may resemble Us in part; but reaching Us – no one. However, by having been at the head of all, both the Sovereign Queen and I enclosed all graces and all goods; strength was in Our power, dominion was Ours, Heaven and earth obeyed Our every wish and trembled before Our power and sanctity. The redeemed ones have taken Our crumbs and have eaten Our fruits; they have been healed with Our remedies, they have been strengthened with Our examples, they have learned Our lessons, they have risen again at the cost of Our lives; and if they have been glorified, it has been by virtue of Our glory. But the power is always Ours, the living fount of all goods springs always from Us; so much so, that if the redeemed ones move away from Us, they lose all goods and return to be ill and poor, more than before. This is what it means to be head; it is true that one suffers greatly, works much, and must prepare the good for all, but all that one possesses surpasses everything and everyone. There is such distance between one who is head of a mission and one who must be a member, that the head can be compared to the sun and the member to a little light. This is why I have told you many times that your mission is great – because this is not about mere personal sanctity, but about embracing everything and everyone, and preparing the Kingdom of my Will for the human generations.”

After this, I was following the acts in the Supreme Volition, which converted all into light and formed a horizon of radiant light that formed clouds of quicksilver; and wherever this light penetrated, everything converted into light. It had the power, the strength to empty everything, filling everything with its most refulgent light. And Jesus added: “My daughter, there is nothing more penetrating than light. It diffuses everywhere with enchanting rapidity, bringing its beneficial effects to all those who let themselves be invested by it. The light refuses to do its good to no one, be they people, earth, water, plant or other things; its nature is to illuminate and to do good, and therefore it leaves no one behind – to all it brings its kiss of light and gives the good it contains. My Will is more than light; It diffuses everywhere and brings the good It contains; and the acts done in It form the atmosphere of gold and silver which has the virtue of emptying all the darkness of the night of the human will, and with its beneficial light, it brings the kiss of the Eternal Volition, to dispose the creatures to wanting to come into the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat. Each act of yours done in It is a new horizon that you make arise for the eye of the human intellect, to make it long for the light of the good that my Will possesses. My daughter, in order to prepare this Kingdom it takes work, it takes celestial laws, which are laws all of love. The laws of fears, of penalties, of condemnation do not enter into It, because the laws of love of my Will will be friendly, filial, of reciprocal love between Creator and creature. Therefore fears and condemnations will have neither force nor life; and if there will be some suffering, it will be full of triumph and of glory. Therefore, be attentive, because this is about making known a Celestial Kingdom – about manifesting Its secrets, Its prerogatives, Its goods, to draw souls to love It, long for It, and to take possession of It.”

The Divine Will makes of the whole Life of Our Lord one single act in His interior.

I was remembering all the acts of Our Lord so as to unite myself with Him; and not only this, but to find His Most Holy Will operating in all of His acts, to be able to identify with It and make one single act with mine. So, I would have wanted to be conceived with Jesus, be born with Jesus, moan, cry, suffer, pray, shed my blood together with His, and die together with Jesus. Now, while I was thinking of this, He moved in my interior, making His presence felt in my heart, and raising His arm in the act of clasping me to Himself, told me: “My daughter, my whole Life was one single act coming from that single act of the Eternal One, which has no succession of acts; and if in my Humanity, externally, one could see the gradual succession of my acts – that is, being conceived, being born, growing, operating, walking, suffering, dying – in the interior of my Humanity, my Divinity, the Eternal Word united to my soul, formed one single act of my whole Life. Therefore the succession of the external acts that could be seen in It was the outpouring of the single act which, overflowing outside, formed the succession of my external Life. But in my interior, as I was conceived, at the same time I was also born, I cried, I moaned, I walked, I operated, I spoke, I preached the Gospel, I instituted the Sacraments, I suffered and was crucified.

Therefore, all that could be seen on the outside of my Humanity little by little, step by step, inside of It was one single act, long and continuous, and which still continues. So, as I was conceived, coming from the single act of the Eternal One, I remained always as being conceived, always as being born, always moaning and crying; in sum, everything I did remained in act - and as continuous act, because everything that comes from God and remains in God undergoes no mutations, nor increase, nor diminution. Once the act is done, it remains with the fullness of life that never ends and can give life to all, as much as they want of it. So, my Will maintained and does maintain everything in act - my whole Life, just as It maintains the life of the sun in act, without allowing it to decrease or increase in its light, in its heat and in its effects; just as It preserves the expanse of the heavens with all the stars, without ever shrinking, or dispersing even one star; and so with many other things created by Me. In the same way, my Supreme Will maintains the life of all the acts of my Humanity, without dispersing even one breath. Now, wherever It reigns, this Will of mine does not know how to do separated acts; Its nature is one single act, multiple in its effects, but always one in its act. Therefore It calls the soul who lets herself be dominated by It to union with Its single act, that she may find all the goods, all the effects that only the single act of a God can possess.

Therefore, may your attention be to remain united to that single act of the Eternal One, if you want to find the whole Creation and the whole Redemption in act; and in that single act you will find the length of my pains, of my steps, my continuous crucifixion - you will find everything. My Will disperses nothing, and in It you will be identified with my acts and will take the fruit of my whole Life. If it were not so, there would not be a great difference between my operating and that of my Saints; on the other hand, since my operating is one single act, between mine and theirs there is the difference that passes between the sun and a tiny little flame, between the great sea and a drop of water, between the vastness of the heavens and a little hole. Only the power of my one act has the power to give itself to all and to embrace everything; and while it gives itself, it never loses anything.”

Jesus gives the title to the Book about His Will.

As I was in my usual state, my always lovable Jesus made me see the reverend father who must occupy himself with the printing of the writings on the adorable Will of God. And Jesus, placing Himself near him, said to him: “My son, the title you will give to the book you will print about my Will is this: ‘The Kingdom of my Divine Will in the midst of creatures. Book of Heaven. The call of the creature to the order, the place and the purpose for which he was created by God’. See, I want the title also to correspond to the great work of my Will. I want the creature to comprehend that his place, assigned to him by God, is in my Will, and until he enters into It, he will be without place, without order, without purpose; he will be an intruder in the Creation, with no right at all, and therefore he will go wandering without peace, without inheritance. And I, moved to compassion for him, will cry out to him continuously: ‘Enter into your place, come into the order, come to take your inheritance - to live in your house. Why do you want to live in a foreign house? Why do you want to occupy a land that is not yours? And because it is not yours, you live unhappy, and you are the servant and the laughing-stock of all created things. All things created by Me, because they remain in their place, are in order and in perfect harmony, with all the fullness of their goods, assigned to them by God. You alone want to be unhappy – but of a voluntary unhappiness. Therefore come to your place – it is there that I call you and await you’. Therefore, he or she who will offer to make my Will known, will be my spokesperson, and I will entrust to them the secrets of Its Kingdom.”

Then, after this, He showed the whole Creation – how all created things remain in their place, wanted by God, and therefore in perfect order and in perfect harmony among themselves. And because they remain in their place, the Supreme Will maintains their existence whole, beautiful, fresh and ever new; and order brings communal happiness and universal strength to all. What enchantment to see the order, the harmony of all Creation! And Jesus, resuming His speaking, added: “My daughter, how beautiful are Our works – they are Our honor and Our perennial glory. All of them remain at their place, and each created thing fulfills its office perfectly. Man alone is Our dishonor in Our creative work, because by withdrawing from Our Will, he walks upside down, with his head down on the earth and his feet up in the air. What disorder! What disorder! It is disgusting to see him. By walking with his head upside down, he crawls on the earth, he becomes all upset, he transforms himself. His sight lacks the necessary span to be able to look; he cannot move around in space in order to know things, nor defend himself if his enemy is behind his shoulders; and he cannot go too far, because – poor one – he has to drag himself with his head instead of walking, because the office of walking belongs to the feet, while that of the head is to dominate. So, doing his own will is the true and perfect tumble of man, and the disorder of the human family. This is why I care so much that my Will be known – so that he may return to his place, no longer dragging himself with his head upside down, but walking on his feet; no longer forming my dishonor and his, but my honor and his. Look, yourself: do creatures not look ugly, in seeing them walk with their heads on the ground? Don’t you too feel sorry in seeing them so disordered?”

I looked, and I saw the heads down and the feet up in the air. Jesus disappeared, and I remained looking at this ugly scene of the human generations; and from the heart I prayed that His Will may be known.

Only the Supreme Will possesses the nature of true good. Blessing of Jesus of the title to be given to the Writings about His Most Holy Will.

My poor mind is always returning to the supreme center of the Eternal Will; and if sometimes I think about something else, Jesus Himself, with a speaking of His, calls my attention to crossing the unending sea of His Most Holy Will. So, since I was thinking about something else, my sweet Jesus, jealous, clasped me to Himself and told me: “My daughter, always in my Will do I want you, because in It is the nature of good. Only when a good never ends and has no beginning and no end, then can it be called true good. When it has its beginning and its end, a good is full of bitternesses, of fear, of anxiety, and also of disillusion. All this renders good itself unhappy, and many times one passes easily from the good of riches to miseries, from fortune to misfortune, from health to sickness, because all the goods that have a beginning are unstable, fleeting, short-lived, and end up in nothing.

It is my Supreme Will that possesses the nature of true good, because It has no beginning and no end, and therefore Its good is always the same, always full, always stable, not subject to any change. This is why all that the soul makes enter into the Supreme Will - all of her acts formed in It - acquire the nature of true good: because they are done in a stable, immovable Will, which contains eternal and immeasurable goods. So, your love, your prayer, your thanksgivings and everything you can do, take their place in an eternal beginning that never ends, and therefore acquire the fullness of the nature of good. So, your prayer acquires full value and complete fruit, in such a way that you yourself will not be able to comprehend where the fruits and the goods of your prayer will extend. It will go around throughout eternity, it will give itself to all, and at the same time it will remain always full in its effects. Your love acquires the nature of true love – of that unshakeable love that never fails, that never ends, that loves all, gives itself to all, and remains always with the fullness of good of the nature of true love; and so with all the rest.

To everything that enters into my Will, the creative power of my Will communicates Its own nature and converts it into Its own acts, because It does not tolerate having within Itself acts dissimilar from Its own. Therefore it can be said that the acts of the creature done in my Will enter the inscrutable ways of God, nor can anyone know all of their innumerable effects. That which has no beginning and no end renders itself incomprehensible to created minds, which have a beginning, because since the power of an act that has no beginning is missing in them, all the divine things and everything that enters my Will render themselves impenetrable and inscrutable. See then, the great good of operating in my Will – to what high place it raises the creature, how she is given back the nature of good, just as she was delivered from the womb of her Creator. On the other hand, anything that can be done outside of my Will, be it even good, cannot be called true good – first of all, because the divine nourishment and its light are missing, and these acts are dissimilar from my acts, taking away from the soul the likeness of the divine image. In fact, it is my Will alone that makes her grow in my likeness; once my Will is removed, the best is removed – the greatest value of the human works. Therefore those are works emptied of substance, of life and of value – they are like plants without fruit, food without substance, statues without life, works without retribution, which tire the limbs of the strongest. Oh! how great is the difference between operating in my Will and operating without It. Therefore, be attentive, and do not give Me this sorrow of making Me see even one act in you which does not give of my likeness.”

After this, He disappeared, but He came back a little later, as though restless because of offenses received. Taking refuge in me, He wanted to take rest, and I said to Him: ‘My Love, I have many things to tell You – many things to establish between You and me; I must ask of You that your Will be known and that Its Kingdom have Its full triumph. If You rest, I cannot tell You anything – I must be silent to let You rest.’ And Jesus, interrupting my speaking, with unspeakable tenderness pressed me so very tightly to Himself, and kissing me told me: “My daughter, how beautiful on your lips is the prayer for the triumph of the Kingdom of the Supreme Will. It is the echo of my own prayer, of my sighs and of all my works. Now I want to see what you wrote about the title to be given to the writings about my Will.” And as He was saying this, He took this book in His hands, and He seemed to be reading what is written on August 27. As He was reading, He remained pensive, as though placing Himself in profound contemplation, in such a way that I did not dare to tell Him anything; I could only hear that His Heart was beating very, very strongly, almost wanting to explode. Then He pressed the book to His breast, saying: “I bless this title – I bless it from my Heart, and I bless all the words that regard my Will.” And raising His right hand, with enchanting majesty, He pronounced the words of the blessing. Having done this, He disappeared.

Just as Our Lord issued the Creation, so did He issue all the goods contained in the Kingdom of His Will for the good of creatures. The human will paralyzes the life of the Divine Will in the soul.

I was doing my acts, my little rounds in the Holy Divine Will according to my usual way. I myself see how I can do nothing but go around in It, in my dear inheritance, given to me by my sweet Jesus, in which there is so much to do and to learn, that neither my short life in the exile nor the whole of eternity will be enough for me to fulfill all my offices in this most extensive inheritance, whose boundaries cannot be seen – neither where It begins nor where It ends. And the more one goes around in It, the more new things one learns; however, many things can be seen but cannot be comprehended, and one wants sweet Jesus, that He may give His explanations; otherwise one admires them, but cannot describe them.

So, surprising me while I was doing my acts in His adorable Will, my always lovable Jesus told me: “My daughter, look at how many things We issued in Creation with Our Fiat for the good of man’s nature: everything that Our Will had established to issue – nothing was missing for Its fulfillment. Now, just as everything that We were to release in Creation was established, and nothing was absent from Our roll call, so was everything that We were to issue for the good of souls also established; and in fact, We did issue it, and it was so great as to surpass by thousands and thousands of times all the goods that can be seen in the Creation. But both those which were to serve the good of man’s nature and those which were to serve the good of his soul – everything remained deposited in Our Will, because We do not entrust Our things to anyone, knowing that Our Will alone would preserve them for Us, whole and beautiful, just as We delivered them from Our divine womb. More so, since It alone has the preserving and multiplying power which, while it gives, loses nothing and keeps all things in the place wanted by Us.

Now, how many things there are in my Will which I must give to creatures - but they have to come into Its Kingdom in order to receive them. Just as the human nature could never partake in the goods of Creation if it did not want to live under the heavens and have a place on earth, where the things created by Me surround it like a crown; in the same way, if the soul does not come to live under the heaven of my Will, in the midst of the goods which Our paternal goodness issued in order to make her happy, to embellish her, to enrich her, she will never be able to partake in these goods – they will be as though foreign and unknown for her. More so, since each soul would be a distinct heaven, which Our Supreme Will would delight in adorning with a sun more radiant and with stars brighter than those which can be seen in Creation - one more beautiful than the other. See the great difference: for the human nature there is one sun for everyone, while for souls there is a sun for each of them, there is an individual heaven, there is an ever springing fount, there is a fire that is never extinguished, there is a divine air to be breathed, there is a celestial food that makes the soul grow in an admirable way in the likeness of the One who created her. Oh! how many things my Will keeps prepared and has established to give to one who wants to live in Its Kingdom, under Its liberal and sweet regime. It does not want to entrust Its goods outside of Its Kingdom, because It knows that if they get out of Its boundaries they will neither be appreciated nor understood. More so, since It alone knows how to preserve and keep Its goods alive, and only one who lives in It is capable of comprehending Its celestial language, of receiving Its gifts, of looking at Its beauties, and of forming one single life with my Will. On the other hand, one who does not want to live in Its Kingdom is incapable of comprehending Its goods; her tongue will not be able to speak nor adapt itself to the language of my Kingdom; nor will she be able to look at Its beauties – on the contrary, she will remain blind because of the intense light that reigns in It.

See then, for how long have all the goods that We must give to the children of Our Supreme Fiat been issued from Our paternal womb – everything has been prepared since the time of Creation; nor will We withdraw because of the delay – We will keep waiting. No sooner than the creature places her will as the footstool of Ours to let It dominate, will We open the doors for her, to let her enter, because it was the human will that closed the doors to Ours and opened the doors to miseries, to weaknesses, to passions. It was not her memory or her intelligence that placed themselves against their Creator, even though they concurred, but it was the human will that had its first act and broke all the bonds, all the relations with a Will so holy. More so, since all good and all evil is enclosed in it - the regime, the dominion is its own; and so once the will has failed in good, everything fails, loses order, decays from its origin, becomes ugly. And since it was the human will that placed itself against Mine, causing all goods to fail man, this is why I want his will, and in exchange I want to give him Mine, to give back to him all the goods that had failed him. Therefore, my daughter, be attentive, never give life to your will if you want Mine to reign in you.”

After this He kept silent, remaining all afflicted because of the great evil produced in creatures by the human will, to the point of disfiguring His beautiful image, infused in them in creating them. And, sighing, He added: “My daughter, the human will paralyzes the life of my Will in the soul, because without my Will the Divine Life does not circulate in the soul, which, more than pure blood, preserves her motion, her vigor, the perfect use of all mental faculties, in such a way as to make her grow healthy and holy, so that We may recognize Our likeness in her. How many souls paralyzed without my Will! What a pitiful scene, to see the human generations almost all paralyzed in the soul, and therefore irrational, blind for seeing good, deaf for listening to the truth, mute for teaching it, inert for holy works, immobile in walking on the path of Heaven, because the human will, preventing the circulation of my Will, forms the general paralysis in the souls of creatures. It happens as to the body: the majority of illnesses, especially then, those of paralysis, are caused by lack of blood circulation. If the blood circulates well, man is robust and strong, he feels no disquiet; but if some irregularity begins in the blood circulation, indispositions, weaknesses and consumption begin; and if the circulation becomes quite irregular, he remains paralyzed, because that blood which does not circulate and does not flow rapidly in his veins forms the grave evils of the human nature. What would creatures not do if they knew that there is a remedy for the regularity of blood circulation! They would go who knows where to have it, so as to incur no malady. And yet, there is the great remedy of my Will to avoid any evil of the soul, so as not to become paralyzed in good, but to grow strong and robust in sanctity – and who takes it? And still, it is a remedy given out for free, nor do they have to wander round in order to get It; rather, It is always ready to give Itself and constitute Itself as the regular life of the creature. What sorrow, my daughter! What sorrow!” Having said this, He disappeared.

The desire purges the soul and whets her appetite for the goods of Jesus. How the Divine Will is penetrating and converts Its effects into one's nature.

I was feeling all identified with my sweet Jesus, and I was praying Him from the heart to watch over my poor soul, so that nothing might enter into me which was not His Will. Now, while I was doing this, my dear Good, my sweet Life, moved in my interior and told me: "My daughter, the desire for a good, for knowing it, purges the soul and disposes her intelligence to comprehend it, her memory to remember it; her will feels its appetite for it being whet, to make of it its food and life; and it moves God to give her that good and to make it known. So, the desire for a good, for knowing it, is like the appetite for food. When there is appetite, one feels the taste, eats with pleasure, remains satisfied and content with having taken that food, and is left with the desire to enjoy it again. On the other hand, if there is no appetite, that same food which is enjoyed so eagerly by someone, causes nausea and disgust to someone else who has no appetite, and he may reach the point of suffering because of it. Such is the desire for the soul - it is like appetite; and in seeing that the desire for my things is her delight, to the point of making of them her food and life, I abound - I abound so much in giving, that I never tire of giving. On the other hand, one who does not desire them, because the appetite is missing, will feel nausea for my things, and that Gospel saying will be repeated: 'It will be given to one who has, while one who does not desire my goods, my truths, celestial things, will be deprived of the little he has'. Just penalty for one who does not desire, has no appetite for, and wants to know nothing about the things that belong to Me. And if he has any little thing at all, it is right that it be taken away from him and be given to those who possess much."

Then, after this, I was thinking about and identifying with the Holy Divine Will, and finding myself in Its immense light, I felt Its divine rays penetrating so deep into me as to transform me into Its very light. And Jesus, coming out of my interior, told me: "My daughter, how beautiful, penetrating, communicative, transforming is the light of my Will! It is more than sun which, pounding on the earth, gives with liberality the effects that its light contains; nor does it wait to be asked, but, spontaneously, as its light fills the surface of the earth, it gives what it has to everything it encounters. It gives sweetness and taste to the fruit, color and fragrance to the flower, development to the plants; to all things it gives the effects and goods it contains, it makes no exception with anyone - it is enough that its light touches them, penetrates into them and warms them for it to accomplish its work. My Will is more than sun; as long as the soul exposes herself to Its vivifying rays and banishes the darkness and the night of her human will, Its light rises and invests the soul, penetrating into her inmost fibers to dispel from her the shadows and the atoms of the human will. As Its light pounds on the soul and she receives It, It communicates all the effects It contains, because, coming out of the Supreme Being, my Will contains all the qualities of the Divine Nature. So, in investing her, It communicates the goodness, the love, the power, the firmness, the mercy and all the divine qualities - not in a superficial way, but in a real way, such as to transmute all of Its qualities into the human nature; so much so, that the soul will feel within herself, as her own, the nature of true goodness, of power, of sweetness, of mercy; and so with all the rest of the supreme qualities. My Will alone has this power to convert Its virtues into one's nature - but only for one who abandons herself prey to Its light and to Its heat, and keeps the tenebrous night of her own will away from her, the true and perfect night of the poor creature."

One who lives in the Divine Will possesses a vast paternity and a long daughtership; she is a daughter to all.

I was feeling oppressed, or rather, as though lifeless because of the privation of my sweet Jesus. This pain is always new and ever more piercing, in such a way as to form new wounds that make my poor soul bleed with pain. Now, while I was in the nightmare of the pain of His privation, my beloved Jesus moved in my interior, clasping me to His Most Holy Heart, telling me: "My daughter, Our daughter, the daughter of the Celestial Mama, the daughter of the Angels and of the Saints, the daughter of the heavens, the daughter of the sun, the daughter of the stars, the daughter of the sea; in sum, you are the daughter of all - all are fathers to you, and you are a daughter to all. See how vast is the paternity! How long is your daughtership! Instead of oppressing yourself you should delight, thinking that all are fathers to you and you are a daughter to all. Only one who lives in my Will can have the right to such vast paternity and to such a long daughtership - to be loved by all with paternal love, because all recognize in her their daughter. In fact, since created things are all invested with my Will, wherever It reigns as triumphant and dominating, they see in you the same Will that reigns in them, therefore all hold you as the daughter of their wombs. There are so many bonds between you and them as to surpass in an infinite way the natural bonds that exist between father and son. Do you know who is not your father? Only those who do not let my Will reign in them; these have no right over you, nor do you have any duty toward them - they are like something that does not belong to you.

But do you know what it means to possess such a vast paternity and such a long daughtership? It means to be bound with bonds of justice to all the riches, the glory, the honor, the privileges that such vast paternity possesses. So, as my daughter, your Jesus gives you all the goods of Redemption as gifts; as Our daughter, you are endowed with all the goods of the Sacrosanct Trinity; as daughter of the Sovereign Queen, She gives to you Her sorrows, Her works, Her love and all of Her maternal merits as gifts; as daughter of the Angels and of the Saints, they compete among themselves to give you all of their goods; as daughter of the heavens, of the stars, of the sun, of the sea and of all created things, they feel honored to finally have their daughter, to be able to give their inheritance; and my very Will reigning in them, with Its endless light forms for you the deed of all Creation, and all feel the happiness, the joy of being able to give their inheritance, because by being able to give, they no longer feel sterile, but fecund, and fecundity brings joy, company, harmony, glory, the repetition of one's very life. How many fathers and mothers are unhappy, even though they are rich, because they have no offspring! In fact, sterility in itself brings isolation, bitterness, lack of any support and of happiness; and if it may appear that they enjoy, in their hearts they have the thorn of sterility that embitters all their enjoyments. So, your vast paternity which you possess, and your long daughtership is a cause of joy for all - and much more for my Will which, bilocating, reigns in you and constitutes you the daughter of all the things created by It, in such a way that all feel your support and the contentment of being able to give the goods they possess. Therefore, your oppression is not justified in the midst of so many goods, of so much happiness, and of so many who protect you, defend you and love you as their true daughter."

After this, I abandoned myself in the arms of Jesus and in the current of the Divine Will to do my usual acts; and Jesus, coming back, told me: “My daughter, my Will preserves the soul in her origin and does not allow her to go out of her beginning, which is God. It maintains intact the divine image in the depth of her being, which is enclosed in her intellect, memory and will; and as long as the soul lets my Will reign in her, everything is linked, everything is in relationship between Creator and creature. Even more, she lives in the reflections of the Supreme Majesty, and Our likeness in her grows continuously, and this makes her be distinguished as Our daughter. On the other hand, the human will causes her to deny her origin, it makes her decay from her beginning; her intellect, memory and will remain without light, and the divine image remains deformed and unrecognizable. The human will breaks all the divine bonds and relationships, and therefore it makes the soul live in the reflections of all passions, in such a way that she becomes ugly and the daughter of the infernal enemy, who tries to engrave his ugly image in her. How many evils does one’s own will not cause! It devastates every good and produces all evils.”

After this, blessed Jesus brought me outside of myself and showed me how deformed His image had become in creatures. It was horrifying to see it so unrecognizable and ugly. The sanctity of the gaze of Jesus was reluctant to look at them, but the compassion of His Most Holy Heart pushed Him to have pity on the works of His hands, deformed into being so ugly because of their fault. But while Jesus was grieved to the summit in seeing His image so transformed, we arrived at some place in which the offenses they were giving Him were so many, that unable to take any more, He changed His appearance of goodness, assuming the aspect of justice. He threatened chastisements, and earthquakes, water and fire were put against the peoples, to destroy men and cities. I prayed Him to spare the peoples, and Jesus, taking me back into my bed, shared His pains with me.

How God has His Throne, His Royal Palace, His stable and fixed dwelling. The Divine Will is Sun, the human will is a spark formed by the tip of the rays of the Supreme Volition.

I was about to resume my flight in the Supreme Volition, to make my usual visit in the Kingdom of the Divine Will and to extend myself within Its boundaries in order to let my ‘I love You’, my adoration, my ‘thank You’ echo for each created thing. Now, as I was about to do this, I thought to myself: ‘If God is everywhere, why take flight in the Divine Volition to go up to the height of the Heavens, before the Supreme Majesty, as though carrying all human wills of the generations on my little lap, to do my act of subjection, of love and of abandonment for each rebellious will, in order to conquer the Divine Will to come and reign upon earth, dominating and triumphant in the midst of creatures? Since It is everywhere, I can also do it from here.’ While I was thinking of this, my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, look at the sun: its light descends and fills the whole earth, but the sun remains always up there, under the vault of the heavens, with all majesty in its sphere, lording and dominating over everyone and everything with its light. But even though it does not descend down below, it gives the same effects, it communicates the same goods by means of its rays, as if it itself would descend from the height of its sphere. More so because, if the sun descended from its height, since the earth is much smaller and creatures are incapable of sustaining a light so great, in descending it would ignite and eclipse everything with its light and with its heat; but since all things created by Me contain the similarity with the bosom of mercy of their Creator, the sun remains up there, emitting its rays full of goodness, of love and of goods for the little earth.

Now, if the sun does this, image of the true light of the Divine Sun, much more so does God, true Sun of light, of justice and of love. My Majesty does not move from the height of Its throne, but is always firm and stable in Its place, in Its celestial royal palace; more than sun, It emits Its endless rays, which carry Its effects, Its goods, and communicate Its very Life, as if It Itself would descend to those who want to receive It. So, what It does not do by descending in person, It does through the emanation of Its endless rays, bilocating in them, to give Its very Life and Its goods to the human generations. Now, my daughter, because of your condition as creature, and because of your office of the mission of the Supreme Fiat, it is your duty to go up on those very rays that the Supreme Majesty emits, to bring yourself before It and fulfill your office in the bosom of the Eternal Sun, plunging into the origin from which you came in order to take the fullness of my Will as much as is possible for creature, to know It and to manifest It to others.

Now, you must know what bonds of identification exist between the Divine Will and the human will, and therefore why I so much love and want, by right of creation, of paternity, of love and of justice, that the human will would surrender its place to Mine, and throwing itself into Its arms like a little child, would let itself be held, nourished and dominated by It. In creating man, the Supreme Being placed my Will out into the field, although all of Our attributes concurred with It as a consequence, and naturally. But the Supreme Volition was the primary act, by which It took to heart the life of all Creation, including man, therefore making Itself the life of all, dominating everything, making everything Its own: since everything had come out of It, by justice everything was to be Its own. More than sun, my Will emitted Its rays, and with the tips of these rays, animating the human nature, It formed the will in the creature. Do you see, then, what the will is in the human generations? Many different tips of rays, which were like sparks in creatures, to form the will in them - but without detaching these sparks from the ray unleashed by the center of the Sun of the Supreme Volition. So, all human generations turn around this Sun, because each creature contains the tip of one ray of this eternal Sun of my Will.

Now, what is not the affront for this Sun, to see the circumference of these rays, whose tips formed the will of each creature, converted – transmuted into darkness, into human nature, denying the light, the dominion and the life of that Sun which gave Its Will with so much love, so that Its Will and those of creatures might be one, and so It might be able to form Divine Life in them? Can there be a stronger, more stable and inseparable bond than the one between the center of the sun and its rays? Light is indivisible, and if it could be separated, the detached part would go wandering and would end up turning into darkness. So, there is such union of identification between the Divine Will and the human, as to be comparable to the union that exists between the sun and the solar ray, between heat and light. Would it not be a right of the sun to dominate its rays and to receive their subjection so as to form its kingdom of light over its very solar circumference? So it is for my Will. When the creature withdraws from It, It remains as though without Kingdom, without dominion, without subjects – It feels Itself being robbed of that which is Its own. Each act which does not depend upon Its Volition is a tearing, a theft made against Its light; and in seeing Itself being robbed of Its light, converted into darkness, It agonizes more than a mother who sees the fruit of her womb being snatched away from her – not to give him life, but to kill him! So, the losses that my Will suffers when the creature is not united to Its center and does not live of the Volition of Its light, are divine losses, and of infinite value. The evils for creatures, the ugliness they acquire, are incalculable and indescribable: my Will remains without Kingdom in the creatures, and they remain stripped, without inheritance, with no right to any good whatsoever. Therefore, there is nothing more important, nothing greater, which will establish the balance, the order, the harmony, the likeness between Creator and creature, than my Will. This is why I want to make known what the Divine Will and the human will are – so that we may reconcile, and my Will may acquire Its Kingdom, and creatures may be given back all the goods they lost.”

September 9, 1926

When Jesus speaks, He gives the good which His word encloses. In the Divine Will there will be neither slaves, nor rebels, nor laws, nor commands.

I was thinking: ‘How much power, how many goods are enclosed in the Holy Divine Will. How everything is peace in It, everything is happiness, nor does one need commands in order to operate, but one’s own nature feels so much strength of good within itself that it cannot help doing it. What happiness, to feel one’s own nature converted into good, into sanctity, into strength. So, in the Kingdom of the Supreme Will there will be no laws, but everything will be love, and one’s nature will be converted into divine law, in such a way that, of its own, it will want to do what the Supreme Fiat wants it to do.’

Now, while I was thinking of this, my always lovable Jesus, with His usual light which He sent forth from His intelligence, told me: “My daughter, everything I have told you about my Will has been gifts that I have given you. Knowledge is not enough if one does not possess the good which that very knowledge contains. If it were not so, the knowledge would render you unhappy, because knowing a good and not possessing it is always a sorrow. More so, since I do not know how to leave things half-done, but only fully complete; therefore, first I dispose the soul, I expand her capacity, and then I give the knowledge together with the good it contains. And since the knowledges about my Will are divine, this is why her nature remains endowed with the likeness of the Divine Nature and, more than a daughter, she does not wait for a command but, without being told, feels honored to do what her father wants.

Laws and commands are for servants, for slaves, for rebels. In the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat there will be no servants, no slaves, no rebels, but one will be the Will – that of God and that of the creature – and therefore one will be the life. This is also the reason why I am saying so much and so many things about my Will - to abound in gifts, not only for you, but for any soul who wants to come to live in my Kingdom, so that she may lack nothing, need nothing, but possess the source of goods within herself. I would not act as the God that I am - great, powerful, rich, magnanimous - if in having to constitute the Kingdom of my Will I did not endow those who must live in It with the prerogatives and qualities that my very Will possesses. Even more, you must know that just as all things have come out of that single act of God, so must everything return to that single act which has no succession of acts. But only one who leaves everything to live only of my Will can return to that single act, because as the soul lives in It, everything she does converts into light, and her acts are naturally incorporated and identified with the eternal light of the Sun of my Will, and, as a consequence, they become one single act with the single act of It. On the other hand, in one who operates outside of It one can see, not light, but each of the materials that her work contains, which cannot be incorporated with the light of the single act of God, and therefore it will show immediately that it is not Our thing - that it does not belong to Us. So, anything which is not done by virtue of the Divine Fiat will not be recognized by God.

Suppose you wanted to unite light and darkness, copper and gold, rocks and earth: would one not distinguish with clarity the light from the darkness, the copper from the gold, the rocks from the earth? And this, because these are materials, one different from the other. But if you united, all together, light with light, darkness with darkness, gold with gold, you would not be able to distinguish nor separate the first light from the second, the first darkness from the second, the first mass of gold from the second. So it is with my Will: what It Itself does in the creature is light, and it is no wonder that it becomes incorporated in the single act of Its Eternal Light. Therefore, in these times so stormy and with a vertiginous race in evil, I could not give greater grace than making known that I want to give the great gift of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat. And as a confirmation of this, I am preparing It within you with so many knowledges and gifts, so that nothing may be lacking to the triumph of my Will. Therefore, be attentive on the deposit of this Kingdom which I am making in you."

After this, I felt concerned because holy obedience had imposed on me not to neglect even one word of that which my sweet Jesus might say to me, while I easily leave them out because I am convinced that it is not necessary to write and to entrust to the paper certain intimate things, certain outpourings that Jesus makes to my poor soul, but that they should remain in the depths of the heart. So I was praying that He would give me the grace not to fail the obedience. And Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: "My daughter, if the one who guides you and directs you gives you this obedience, it means that he has understood that it is I who speaks to you, as well as the value that even a single word of mine contains. My word is light, and is full of life, and one who possesses life can give it; more so, since my word contains the creative power, and therefore a single word of mine can create innumerable lives of grace, lives of love, lives of light, lives of my Will within souls. You yourself will not be able to comprehend the long way that a single word of mine can cover. Those who have ears will listen; those who have heart will be wounded. So, the one who guides you is right in giving you this obedience. Ah! you do not know how I assist him and remain around him while he reads my writings and yours about my Will, so as to make him comprehend all the strength of the truths and of the great good contained in them. And he turns around my Will, and by virtue of the light that he feels, he is sending you this obedience. Therefore, be attentive, and I will help you and facilitate that which seems difficult to you.

You must know that my Heart is swollen, It agonizes and sighs because I want to make known the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat, the great goods which are in It, and the great good which those who will possess It will receive. It is precisely in my Heart that I keep It, and I feel my Heart explode for I want to let It out. Don't you want, then, to give Me this relief, so that, by letting It out, my Heart may deflate, and so It will not have to agonize and sigh with sorrowful sighs any more? And you will do this by making known what I manifest to you about my Will, because when you do this, you give Me the field in order to open the ways and prepare the place in which I must lay the Kingdom of my Will. And if you do not manifest what I say to you, you close these ways and my Heart swells even more. Therefore, let Me do, and you - follow Me and do not be concerned."

The bond of the soul with the Divine Will is an eternal bond. The Humanity of Our Lord possesses the Kingdom of the Divine Will, so much so, that His whole Life was dependent upon It. To form the Kingdom of the Divine Will in the soul is to transmit to her what the Humanity of Jesus possesses.

While it seems that my always lovable Jesus comes back and I believe I will lose Him no more, all of a sudden He escapes me like a flash, and I remain without Him – without the One who forms the life of my poor existence, with the harsh nail of my delirium for the return of the One who makes the sun rise in my poor soul. But while I was raving for His return and I feared He might have left me, all of a sudden He came back and told me: “My daughter, don’t you want to convince yourself that I cannot leave you? If your union with me were bound, formed, sealed on a basis other than my Will, you could fear; but since it is bound, written, signed on the eternal basis of my Will, what is eternal is not subject to mutations. On the contrary, your whole being, your desires, your affections and even your inmost fibers are bound with eternal bonds, and my Will flows in them to constitute Itself their life and form them with the divine and eternal substance It possesses. Can eternity ever be split? Can a God ever change? Can the Supreme Being ever separate from His Will? All this is inseparable, indivisible. In the same way, everything that my Will unites enters into the divine order and becomes inseparable from Me. So, how can I leave you? If it were not so, everything that my Will has done in you, Its crafting, Its foundation, Its very manifestations, would be a game, something superficial, a way of speaking – not a reality.

Therefore, remove these thoughts that I might leave you, because it is not something that my Will produces or that belongs to It. My Will is firmness and indissoluble bond. It seems unseemly for one who possesses my Will as life to occupy herself with anything else; rather, you should remain firm on how to expand the boundaries of Its Kingdom, so that It may triumph, It may be formed in you, and you may transmit It to the poor generations which are now wriggling about and forming the current of the chasms into which they will be swept. But the chastisements also are necessary; this will serve to prepare the ground so that the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat may form in the midst of the human family. So, many lives, which will be an obstacle to the triumph of my Kingdom, will disappear from the face of the earth, and therefore many chastisements of destruction will take place; others will be formed by creatures themselves to destroy one another. However, this must not worry you; rather, pray that everything may take place for the triumph of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat.” Having said this, He disappeared.

So I became occupied with doing my usual round in the Supreme Will. Its light made everything present to me – both what It has done in Creation and what It has done in Redemption. The Divine Will, bilocated in each act It does in Them, awaited a little visit of mine to each of Its acts - be it even a passing visit there where It reigned and dominated as Queen - to have Its little daughter as Its company. Oh! how It enjoyed my little visit in each of Its acts – my little “I love You”, my meager adoration, my gratitude, my “thank You”, my subjection; and since Its acts are innumerable, I never finished reaching them all. Then, as we reached the acts of Redemption, my sweet Jesus made Himself seen as a little child, but so little that He could be enclosed within my breast. How beautiful, pretty, charming He was – to see Him so little, strolling, sitting, placing Himself on His throne of majesty in my little soul, administering to me His Life, His breath, His acts, so that I might take everything from Him. But while I could see Him within me as a little child, at the same time He also came crucified. The tension of His members was such that one could count all His bones and nerves, one by one. Now, while the little child was enclosed in my breast, the crucified Jesus laid Himself within all of my members, leaving not a particle of me which was not possessed by His adorable person; I could feel His Life more than my own.

Then, after I remained in this position for some time with Jesus, He told me: “My daughter, my Humanity possesses the Kingdom of my Will, so much so, that my whole Life was dependent upon It; and by being dependent on It, I had the intelligence of the Supreme Volition, Its gaze, Its breath, Its operating, Its steps, Its motion and eternal heartbeat. In this way I formed the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat, Its Life and Its goods, in my Humanity. Do you see, then, what it means to form Its Kingdom in you? I must transmit to you what my Humanity possesses, which will administer to you Its thought, Its gaze, Its breath and everything I possess for the formation of It. See how much I love this Kingdom – I place my whole Life, my pains, my death at Its disposal, as Its foundation, guard, defense, support. I will leave out nothing of Myself which will not serve to maintain the triumph and the absolute dominion of my Will in full vigor. Therefore do not be surprised if you see the different stages of my age and of my works being as though repeated in you, and you see Me now as a child, now young, now crucified. This is the Kingdom of my Will present in you, and my whole Life lines up inside and outside of you as guard and defense of my Kingdom. Therefore, be attentive, and when some fear assails you, think that you are not alone, but that you have my whole Life as help to form this Kingdom of mine within you; and continue your flight, constantly, in the unity of the supreme light of the Divine Will. It is there that I await you, to give you my surprises in return - to give you my lessons.”

The Divine Being is balanced. The gift of the Divine Fiat places everything in common. In giving, Justice wants to find the prop of the acts of creatures.

After doing my usual round in the Supreme Volition, I was praying to good Jesus in the name of His Creation and Redemption, in the name of all, from the first to the last man, in the name of the Sovereign Queen and of everything She did and suffered, that the Supreme Fiat may be known, so that Its Kingdom may be established with Its full triumph and dominion. But while doing this, I thought to myself: ‘If Jesus Himself wants and loves so much that His Kingdom be established in the midst of creatures, why does He want one to pray for It with such insistence? If He wants It, He can give It without so many continuous acts.’ And my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, my Supreme Being possesses the perfect balance, and also in giving my graces and my gifts to creatures; much more so, then, for this Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat, which is the greatest gift, that I had already given at the beginning of Creation, and which man rejected with so much ingratitude. Does it seem trivial to you to place a Divine Will at his disposal, with all the goods It contains? And not for one hour, or one day, but for his whole life? The Creator placing His adorable Will in the creature to be able to put His likeness, His beauty, His infinite seas of riches, of joys, of endless happiness, in common? Only by possessing Our Will could the creature acquire the rights of communion, of likeness and of all the goods of his Creator. Without It there can be no communion with Us; and if he takes anything at all, it is just Our flowerings and the crumbs of Our endless goods.

Now, with a gift so great, a happiness so immense, a right of divine likeness with the acquisition of the nobility of Our offspring which had been rejected, do you think it is something easy that the Divine Sovereignty, without being prayed, with no one giving a thought to receiving this Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat, would give It to creatures? It would be like repeating the story that took place in the terrestrial Eden, and maybe even worse. And besides, Our Justice would be justly opposed to this. Therefore, everything I have you do, the continuous rounds in the Supreme Volition, your incessant prayers for my Will to come to reign, your sacrificed life of so many years, knowing neither heaven nor earth, directed to the sole purpose of the coming of my Kingdom – are many props that I place before my Justice, that It may surrender Its rights, and balancing Itself with all Our attributes, It may find it just for the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat to be given back to the human generations. The same happened in Redemption; if Our Justice had not found the prayers, the sighs, the tears, the penances of the patriarchs, of the prophets and of all the good of the Old Testament, and then a Virgin Queen who possessed Our Will as whole, and who took everything to heart with so many insistent prayers, taking upon Herself the whole task of the satisfaction for all mankind, Our Justice would never have conceded the descent of the longed for Redeemer into the midst of creatures. It would have been inexorable and would have uttered a curt ‘no’ to my coming upon earth. And when it is about preserving the balance of Our Supreme Being, nothing can be done.

Now, who until now has ever prayed with interest, with insistence, laying down the sacrifice of his own life so that the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat may come upon earth, and may triumph and dominate? No one. It is true that the Church has been reciting the ‘Our Father’ from the time I came upon earth, in which one asks, ‘Thy Kingdom come’, so that my Will be done on earth as It is in Heaven, but who thinks about the request they make? It can be said that the whole importance of such a request remained in my Will and that creatures recite it just to recite it, without understanding and without any interest in obtaining what they ask for. Therefore, my daughter, everything is hidden in secret while one lives on earth, and therefore everything seems a mystery; and if anything is known it is so limited, that man has always something to say about all that I operate in my works through the veils of creatures. They reach the point of saying: ‘And why have this good and these knowledges not been given before, while there have been so many great Saints?’ But in eternity there will be no secrets, I will reveal everything, and will show all things and my works with Justice, and how Justice could never have given, had there not been sufficient acts in the creature to be able to give what the Supreme Majesty wants to give. It is true that everything that the creature does is my grace, but my grace itself wants to find the prop of the dispositions and good will of the creature. Therefore, in order to restore the Kingdom of my Will upon earth it takes sufficient acts of the creature, so that my Kingdom may not remain in the air, but may descend, to be formed upon the very acts of the creature formed by her to obtain a good so great.

This is why I push you so much to go around in all Our works – Creation and Redemption – so that you may place the share of your acts, your ‘I love You’, your adoration, your gratitude, your ‘thank You’ upon all Our works. Many times I have done this together with you; and then, as the fulfillment, after your round in Our Will comes your refrain, so pleasing to Us: ‘Supreme Majesty, your little daughter comes before You, on your paternal knees, to ask You for your Fiat, your Kingdom, that It be known by all. I ask You for the triumph of your Will, that It may dominate and reign over all. I am not the only one who asks this of You, but with me are your works and your very Will. Therefore, in the name of all, I ask – I plead for your Fiat.’ If you knew what a breach in Our Supreme Being is this refrain of yours! We feel We are being prayed by all Our works, beseeched by Our very Will; Heaven and earth pray on their knees to ask Us for the Kingdom of the Eternal Will. Therefore, if you want It, continue your acts, so that, by reaching the established number, you may obtain what you long for with so much insistence.”

Custody and vigilance of Jesus while she writes. How the Kingdom of the Fiat costs very much. The acts done in the Fiat are more than sun.

After writing for four hours and more, I was feeling completely exhausted in my strengths, and as I began to pray in His Most Holy Will according to my usual way, my sweet Jesus came out from within my interior, and clasping me to Himself, all tenderness, told me: “My daughter, you are tired – rest in my arms. How much the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat costs Me and you. While at night all other creatures... some sleep, some enjoy themselves and some reach the point of offending Me, for Me and for you there are no rests even at night: you, occupied with writing, and I, with watching over you, imparting to you the words and the teachings that regard the Kingdom of the Supreme Will. And while I see you write, so as to have you do it at length and not become tired, I sustain you in my arms, that you may write what I want, to be able to give all the teachings and prerogatives, the privileges, the sanctity and the infinite riches that this Kingdom of mine possesses. If you knew how much I love you, and how I delight in seeing you sacrifice even your sleep and all of yourself for love of my Fiat which so much loves to make Itself known to the human generations.... It costs us very much, it is true my daughter; and to repay you, almost always, after you have written I let you rest on my Heart, which is overcome with sorrow and with love: with the sorrow that my Kingdom is not known, and with the love with which I want to make It known, so that in feeling my sorrow and the fire that burns Me, you may sacrifice all of yourself and spare yourself nothing for the triumph of my Will.”

Then, while I was in the arms of Jesus, the immense light of the Divine Will that filled Heaven and earth called me to go around in It, to have me do my usual acts, to have my ‘I love You’, my adoration echo in the whole Creation, that It might have the company of Its little daughter in each created thing in which It reigns and dominates. Then, after I did this, my sweet Jesus told me: “My daughter, what light, what power, what glory the act of the creature acquires done in my Will! These acts are more than sun. While the sun remains up high, its light eclipses the stars and fills the whole earth, bringing its kiss to all things, its heat, its beneficial effects; and the light’s nature is to diffuse, nor does it do any more work by giving the goods it naturally possesses to those who want them. The acts done in my Will are symbolized by the sun: as the act is formed, my Will administers to it the light to form the sun, which rises up high, because the sun’s nature is to be up high, not down below, otherwise it would not be able to do the good it does. In fact, the things that are down below are always circumscribed, individual, limited in time and space; they are not, nor can they produce universal goods. So, this sun formed by my Will and by the act of the creature, in rising up high even to the throne of its God, forms the true eclipse: it eclipses Heaven, the Saints, the Angels; it is as if the length of its rays would take control of the earth; its beneficial light brings glory, joy, happiness to Heaven, and the light of the truths to the earth; it dispels the darkness, the pain caused by sin, the dis-illusion of passing things. The sun is one, but its light contains all colors and all effects to give life to the earth. In the same way, the act is one – one is the Sun of my Will formed in it, but Its goods and effects are innumerable. Therefore the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat will be a Kingdom of light, a Kingdom of glory and of triumph. The night of sin will not enter into It, but it will be always full day; Its refulgent rays will be so penetrating as to triumph from the abyss in which poor humanity has fallen.

This is why I have told you many times: ‘Your task is great, because I have entrusted to you my Divine Will, so that by making It known, you may place Its rights in safety - so very unknown to the human generations. The goods that will come will be immense, and you and I will be twice happy for having worked for the formation of this Kingdom’.”

Then, after this, I was thinking to myself: ‘My beloved Jesus says so many admirable things about this Kingdom of the Supreme Will, so holy, but nothing of these admirable things seem to show on the outside. If Its prodigies, Its great goods and happiness could be seen, the face of the earth would change and a pure, holy, noble blood would flow in the human veins, such as to convert one’s nature into sanctity, into joy and into perennial peace.’ At that moment He came out from within my interior and told me: “My daughter, this Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat must first be well established, formed and matured between you and Me, and then It must be transmitted to creatures. The same happened between the Virgin and Me: first I was formed within Her, I grew within Her womb, I was nourished at Her breast, we lived together to form the Kingdom of Redemption between the two of us, one on one, as if no one else existed; and then my very Life and the fruits of Redemption which my Life Itself contained were transmitted to the other creatures. So it will be for the Supreme Fiat: first we will do it between the two of us only, one on one; and once It is formed I will take care of transmitting It to creatures. It is easier to have a work come out well when it is formed in private, in the hiddenness of the silence of two persons who really love that work; and once it is formed it is easier to manifest it, and to give it to others as gift. Therefore, let Me do, and do not be concerned.” Deo Gratias

Fiat always and eternally

How each thing created by God has its place, and one who goes out of the Divine Will loses his place. Importance of the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat.

My Jesus, I invoke your Holy Will, that It Itself may come to write on paper the most penetrating and eloquent words, the most fitting terms to make Itself comprehended, in such a way as to portray the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat with the most beautiful colors, with the most refulgent light, with the most attractive characteristic, so as to infuse a magnetic force and a powerful magnet in the words which You will make me write, such that no one will be able to resist letting himself be dominated by your Most Holy Will. And You, my Mama, true Sovereign Queen of the Supreme Fiat, do not leave me alone; come to guide my hand, give me the flame of your maternal Heart. And while I write, keep me under your azure mantle, that I may fulfill all that my beloved Jesus wants of me.

I felt all invested by the Supreme Volition, which, drawing me into Its immense light, made me see the order of Creation - how each thing remained at the place assigned by its Creator. My mind wandered and was enraptured at seeing the order, the harmony, the magnificence, the beauty of the whole Creation; and my sweet Jesus, who was with me, told me: "My daughter, everything that came out of Our creative hands, each created thing, was assigned its place and its distinct office, and all of them remain at their place, magnifying with incessant praises that Eternal Fiat which dominates them, preserves them, and gives them new life. So, their preserving themselves ever beautiful, whole and new, is the motion of the Supreme Fiat dominating in them. Man also was assigned his place, his office of sovereign over all created things; with the difference that, while all other things created by Us remained just as God had created them - without ever changing, neither increasing nor decreasing - my Will, giving man supremacy over all the works of Our hands, and wanting to show off even more with him in love, gave him the office to grow continuously in beauty, in sanctity, in wisdom, in richness, to the point of raising him to the likeness of his Creator - always provided, however, that he would let himself be dominated and guided, to give the Supreme Fiat free field in order to form Its Divine Life in him, so as to be able to form this continuous growth of goods and of beauty, with happiness without end. In fact, without my Will dominating, there can be neither growth nor beauty, nor happiness, nor order, nor harmony. Since my Will is origin, master and beginning of the whole work of Creation, wherever It reigns, It has the virtue of preserving Its work beautiful, just as It issued it; but where It does not exist, the communication of Its vital humors in order to preserve the work that came out of Our hands, is missing. Do you see, then, what great evil it was for man to withdraw from my Will?

So, all things, even the smallest ones, have their place. It can be said that they are in their home, secure, and no one can touch them. They possess abundance of goods, because that Will which flows in them possesses the source of all goods; they are all in the order, the harmony, and the peace of all. On the other hand, by withdrawing from Our Will, man lost his place; he remained without Our home, exposed to dangers. All can touch him to harm him; the very elements are superior to him because they possess a Supreme Will, while he possesses a degraded human will, which can give him nothing but miseries, weaknesses and passions. And because he lost his origin, his place, he remained without order, disharmonized from all, and he enjoys no peace, not even within himself. So, it can be said that he is the only being wandering in the whole Creation, to whom nothing is due by right, because We give everything to one who lives in Our Will, for he is in Our home – he is one from Our family. The relations, the bonds of sonship which he possesses by living in It, give him the right to all Our goods. On the other hand, one who does not live of the Life of my Will, has broken, as though all at once, all the bonds, all the relations, therefore he is held by Us as something that does not belong to Us. Oh! if all knew what it means to break up with Our Will, and into what abyss they fall - all would tremble with fright, and would compete in order to return into the Kingdom of the Eternal Fiat, to take their place again, assigned to them by God.

Now, my daughter, since my eternal goodness wants to give my Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat once again, after man had so ungratefully rejected It, don't you think that this is the greatest gift I can give to the human generations? But in order to give It, I must form It, constitute It, and make known that which, up to now, is not known about my Will – and such knowledges about It, as to win those who will know them to love, appreciate and desire to come and live in It. The knowledges will be the chains - but not imposed; rather, they themselves, willingly, will let themselves be bound. The knowledges will be the weapons, the conquering arrows which will conquer the new children of the Supreme Fiat. But do you know what these knowledges possess? The changing of one's nature into virtue, into good, into my Will, in such a way that they will possess them as their own property."

On hearing this, I said: 'My Love, Jesus, if these knowledges on your adorable Will contain so much virtue, why did You not manifest them to Adam, so that, by making them known to posterity, they would have loved and appreciated more a good so great, and this would have disposed the hearts for the time when You, Divine Repairer, would decree to give us this great gift of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat?' And Jesus, resuming His speaking, added: "My daughter, as long as he remained in the terrestrial Eden, living in the Kingdom of the Supreme Will, Adam knew all the knowledges, as much as it is possible for a creature, of that which belonged to the Kingdom he possessed. But as soon as he went out of It, his intellect was obscured; he lost the light of his Kingdom, and could not find the fitting words in order to manifest the knowledges he had acquired on the Supreme Will, because that very Divine Volition which would hand to him the necessary terms to manifest to others what he had known, was missing in him. This, on his part; more so, since every time he remembered his withdrawal from my Will, and the highest good which he had lost, he felt such a grip of sorrow as to become taciturn, engrossed in the sorrow of the loss of a Kingdom so great, and of the irreparable evils which, as much as Adam might do, it was not given to him to repair. Indeed, that very God whom he had offended was needed in order to remedy them. On the part of his Creator, he received no order, and therefore he was not given enough capacity to manifest it. Why manifest a knowledge if it would not give him the good it contained? I only make a good known when I want to give it. However, even though Adam did not speak extensively about the Kingdom of my Will, he taught many important things on what regarded It; so much so, that during the first times of the history of the world, up to Noah, the generations had no need of laws, nor were there idolatries (no diversity of languages), but all recognized their one God (one single language), because they cared more about my Will. But as they kept moving away from It, idolatries arose and degenerated into worse evils. And this is why God saw the necessity of giving His laws as a preserver for the human generations.

So, one who does my Will has no need of laws, because my Will is life, is law – is everything for man. The importance of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat is immense, and I love It so much, that I am doing more than in a new Creation and Redemption. In fact, in Creation, my omnipotent Fiat was pronounced only six times, in order to dispose It and issue It all ordered. In Redemption I spoke, but since I did not speak about the Kingdom of my Will, which contains infinite knowledges and immense goods, I did not have a very extensive subject with many words to say, because everything I taught was of limited nature, and a few words were enough to make it known. But in order to make my Will known, it takes much, my daughter - Its history is extremely long, it encloses an eternity, with no beginning and no end; therefore, as much as I speak, I have always something to say. This is why I am saying – oh! how much more. Being more important than anything, It contains more knowledges, more light, more greatness, more prodigies, therefore more words are needed. More so, since the more I make known, the more I expand the boundaries of my Kingdom to be given to the children who will possess It. Therefore, everything I manifest about my Will is a new creation that I make in my Kingdom, to be enjoyed and possessed by those who will have the good of knowing It. And so, great attention is required on your part in manifesting them.”

One who does not do the Will of God is like a celestial constellation which goes out of its place; she is like a dislocated member. For one who does the Will of God, it is daylight; for one who does not, it is nighttime.

Having finished writing one book, and having to start another one, I felt the weight of writing, and, almost embittered, I sighed. And my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, made Himself seen shaking His head; and, sighing, He told me: “My daughter, what is it, what is it? You don’t want to write?” And I, almost trembling in seeing Him sigh because of me, said: ‘My Love, I want what You want. It is true that I feel the sacrifice of writing, but for love of You, I will do everything.’ And Jesus added: “My daughter, you have not comprehended well what it means to live in my Will. While you were sighing, the Creation and everyone, and even Myself, have sighed together with you, because for those who live in It, one is the life, one the act, one the motion, one the echo. They cannot help doing the same thing together, because God is the prime motion, and since all created things have come out of a motion full of life, there is nothing which does not possess His motion, and all turn around the prime motion of their Creator. So, the whole Creation is in my Will, its round is incessant, rapid, orderly; and one who lives in It has her place of order in their midst, turning rapidly, together with everyone, without ever stopping. My daughter, that sigh of unwillingness of yours has formed its echo in everyone. And do you know what they felt? As if a constellation wanted to go out of its place - out of the order, out of its rapid round around their Creator. And on seeing this celestial constellation as though going out of their midst, all were shaken and as though hampered in their round, but were immediately restored by your prompt adhesion, continuing their rapid round with order, magnifying their Creator who keeps them clasped to Himself, to make them turn around Himself.

What would you say if you saw a star going out from among the others and descending down below?

Would you not say: 'It has gone out of its place, it no longer lives a communal life with the others, it is a lost star'? Such is one who, living in my Will, wanted to do her own. She moves away from her place; she goes down from the height of the Heavens; she loses the communion of the Celestial Family. She gets lost, away from my Will; she gets lost, away from light, from strength, from sanctity, from the divine likeness; she gets lost, away from order, from harmony, and she loses the rapidity of the round around her Creator. Therefore, be attentive, because in the Kingdom of my Will there are no unwillingnesses or bitternesses, but everything is joy. There are no strains, but all is spontaneity, as if the creature wanted to do what God wants - as if she herself wanted to do it."

I was frightened in hearing this from my sweet Jesus, and I comprehended the great evil of doing one's own will; and I prayed Him from the heart to give me so much grace as not to let me fall into an evil so grave. But while I was doing this, my beloved Good came back, but He made Himself seen with almost all of His members dislocated, which gave Him unspeakable pain. And throwing Himself into my arms, He told me: "My daughter, these dislocated members which give Me so much pain are all the souls who do not do my Will. By coming upon earth, I constituted Myself head of the human family, and they are my members. But these members were formed, joined, bound, by means of the vital humors of my Will. As It flows in them, they are placed in communication with my body, and they are strengthened, each one at its place. My Will, like compassionate doctor, not only makes Its vital and divine humors flow in order to form the necessary circulation between head and members, but It forms Its perfect bandaging in order to keep the members bound and firm under their head. Now, since my Will is missing in them, that which gives the heat, the blood, the strength and the command from the head in order to render the members operative, is missing; that which does the bandaging if they are dislocated, is missing - everything is missing. It can be said that all communications between the members and the head are broken, and they remain in my body to give Me pain. It is my Will alone that places the Creator and the creature, the Redeemer and the redeemed ones, the Sanctifier and the sanctified ones, in accord and in communication. Without It, it is as if Creation and Redemption were nothing for them, because that which makes flow the life and the goods that they contain, is missing. The very Sacraments will serve them as condemnation, because since my Will is missing in them, that which breaks the veil of the Sacraments so as to give them the fruit and the life they contain, is missing. Therefore, my Will is everything; without It, Our most beautiful works, Our greatest prodigies, remain extraneous to the poor creatures, because It alone is the depository of all Our works, and therefore only through It can these be given birth for creatures. Oh! if all knew what it means to do or not to do my Will, they would all place themselves in accord with It in order to receive all possible imaginable goods, and the transmission of the very Divine Life."

Then, after this, I was doing my usual acts in the Supreme Will, and since the day was almost dawning, I was saying: 'My Jesus, my Love, the day is now beginning, and in your Will I want to go around through all creatures, so that, in rising from their sleep, they may all rise in your Will, to give You the adoration of all intelligences, the love of all hearts, the rising of all their works and of all their beings into the light which this day will make shine over all generations.' While I was saying this and other things, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior, and told me: "My daughter, in my Will there are neither days nor nights, nor dawns nor sunsets, but one is Its day - always in the fullness of Its light. And one who lives in It can say: 'There are no nights for me, but it is always daylight; therefore, one is my day.' And as she operates in order to do my Will and to carry out her life in It, she forms as many more lights, most refulgent, within the day of her life, which render more glorious and more beautiful the day of my Will in which they live. Do you know for whom day and night, dawn and sunset, are formed? For one who now does my Will, now her own. If she does Mine, she forms the day; if she does her own, she forms the night. One who lives fully in It forms the fullness of the day. One who does not live fully in It, but does my Will only with strain, forms the dawn. One who laments about what It disposes and wants to withdraw, forms the sunset. And for one who does not do my Will at all, it is always perennial nighttime – the beginning of that eternal night of hell which will never end.”

I was fusing all of myself in the Holy Divine Volition, with the piercing in my soul of not having seen my sweet Jesus. While trying to do my acts in His Will, since I did not feel Him together with me, oh! how I felt a piece of myself being torn away. So, I felt my little and poor existence being torn to shreds without Jesus, and I prayed that He would have pity on me and come back quickly to my poor soul. Then, after much struggling, He came back, but so very afflicted because of the human perfidy. It seemed that nations upon nations were brawling among themselves, to the point of preparing deposits of weapons in order to fight against one another, preparing unexpected things to make battles arise. What madness, what human blindness. It seems that they no longer have sight to see good, order, harmony, but they have sight only to see evil; and this blindness makes them go off their heads, and so they do crazy things.

So, in seeing Him so afflicted because of this, I said to Him: ‘My Love, leave this sadness; You will give them light, and they will not do it. And if my pains are needed, I am ready, as long as they all remain in peace.’ And Jesus, with dignity and severity, told me: “My daughter, I keep you for Myself, to form in you my Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat – not for them. I have made you suffer even too much to spare the world, but because of their perfidy, they do not deserve that I keep making you suffer for their sake.” And while He was saying this, it seemed that He was holding an iron stick in His hands, in the act of casting it over the creatures. I was frightened, and I wanted to relieve Jesus from His affliction, so I said to Him: ‘Jesus, my Life, for now let us occupy ourselves with the Kingdom of your Will, so that You may be relieved. I know that giving You field to let You speak about It is your joy, your feast. Therefore, your acts flow with me, within mine, so that, with the light of your Will, more than sun, they may invest all creatures, and I may constitute myself act for each act, thought for each thought. I will enclose everything, I will take all of their acts as though in my power, in order to do everything that they do not do for You; and in this way, You will find everything in me and your affliction will depart from your Heart.’ And Jesus, condescending to my yearnings, went around together with me, and then told me: “My daughter, what power my Will contains. It penetrates everywhere as light, It expands, It gives Itself to each act, It multiplies Itself to infinity. But while It does so many things and multiplies in each thing, It remains always One, as It is, keeping all of Its acts, without dispersing even one of them.

See, my daughter, the first plane done in my Will in the name of, and for all creatures, was done by the Sovereign Queen; and She obtained for all creatures the highest good of making the longed-for Redeemer descend upon earth. One who acts for all, in the name of all, and makes up for all earns universal goods that can serve all.

The second plane done in my Supreme Will was done by my Humanity. I embraced everyone and everything, as if all were one; I satisfied for all, I left not even one act of creature without constituting my act in it, so that the glory, the love, the adoration to my Celestial Father might be complete for each act of creature. And this impetrated the fruit of my coming upon earth, it earned salvation and sanctity for all; and if many do not take it, it is their fault - not the fault of the giver. Therefore, my Life impetrated universal goods for all; I opened the gates of Heaven for all.

The third plane in my Will will be done by you; and this is why, in everything you do, I make you act for all, embrace all, make up in the name of each of their acts. Your plane must be equal to mine, it must be unified to that of the Celestial Empress; and this will serve to impetrate the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat. Nothing must escape one who must do a universal good, so as to bind to all creatures the good she wants to give. In order to make up for all, the acts done in my Will form double chains – but chains of light, which are the strongest, the longest, not subject to breaking. No one can have the ability to break a chain of light. It is more than solar ray, which no one can shatter, and even less bar its way to whatever place the length and width of the ray want to reach; and these chains of light bind God to give universal goods, and the creature to receive them.”

The mere word ‘Will of God’ contains an eternal prodigy. How everything converts into love and prayer.

I was feeling all immersed in the Supreme Volition, and my poor mind was thinking about the many admirable effects It produces. And my always lovable Jesus told me: “My daughter, the mere word ‘Will of God’ contains an eternal portent, which no one can equal. It is a word that embraces everything – Heaven and earth. This Fiat contains the creative fount, and there is nothing good which cannot come from It. So, one who possesses my Will, by virtue of It, acquires by right all the goods that this Fiat possesses. Therefore, she acquires the right to the likeness of her Creator, she acquires the right to divine sanctity, to His goodness, to His love. By right, Heaven and earth are hers, because all came into existence from this Fiat. With reason, her rights extend over everything. So, the greatest gift, the greatest grace I can give to the creature is to give her my Will, because all possible imaginable goods are bound to It – and by right, because everything belongs to It.”

Then, afterwards, my sweet Jesus made Himself seen coming out from within my interior, and He was looking at me; but He fixed His gazes on me so much, as if He wanted to portray Himself - engrave Himself within my poor soul. On seeing this, I said to Him: ‘My Love, Jesus, have pity on me; don’t You see how ugly I am? Your privation during these days has rendered me even uglier. I feel I am good at nothing; even the rounds in your Will I do with difficulty. Oh! how bad I feel. Your privation is like a consuming fire for me, which, burning everything in me, takes away from me the life of doing good. It leaves me only your adorable Will which, binding me all to Itself, makes me want nothing but your Fiat, and see and touch nothing but your Most Holy Will.’

And Jesus, resuming His speaking, added: “My daughter, wherever my Will is present, everything is sanctity, everything is love, everything is prayer. So, since Its fount is in you, your thoughts, your gazes, your words, your heartbeat and also your movements – everything is love and prayers. It is not the form of the words that forms prayer – no; it is my operating Will which, dominating all of your being, makes of your thoughts, words, gazes, heartbeats and movements as many little fountains, which spring from the Supreme Will; and rising up to Heaven, in their mute language, some pray, some love, some adore, some bless. In sum, my Will makes the soul do what is holy - what belongs to the Divine Being. Therefore, the soul who possesses the Supreme Will as life is the true heaven which, be it even mute, narrates the glory of God and announces itself as the work of His creative hands. How beautiful it is to see the soul in whom my Will reigns! As she thinks, looks, speaks, palpitates, breathes, moves, she forms the stars to adorn her heaven, to narrate more the glory of the One who created her. My Will embraces everything as though in one breath, and lets nothing of all that is good and holy escape the soul.”

Luisa's great affliction because of the printing of the writings. Jesus wants that they be entrusted to His care. Jesus pushes the father who must occupy himself with the printing.

I was feeling oppressed and as though crushed under the weight of a profound humiliation, because I had been told that not only what regards the Will of God must be printed, but also what regards all the other things that my lovable Jesus has told me. My pain was such as to take away from me even the words, to be able to say something so that they would not do it; nor was I able to pray my beloved Jesus that He would not allow it. Everything was silence, inside and outside of me. Then, my lovable Jesus, moving in my interior, clasped me to Himself to infuse in me courage and strength; and He told me: “My daughter, I do not want you to look at what you have written as your own, but to look at it as mine, and as something that does not belong to you. You must not enter into it at all; I will take care of everything. Therefore, I want you to entrust it to my care; and as you write, I want you to give it to Me as gift, that I may be free to do whatever I want, and you may be left only with what you need in order to live in my Will. I have given you as many precious gifts for as many knowledges as I have manifested to you; and you – you want to give Me no gift?”

And I: ‘My Jesus, forgive me; I myself would not want to feel what I feel. Thinking that what has passed between me and You must be known to others makes me restless, and gives me such pain that I myself cannot explain. Therefore, give me strength - in You I abandon myself, and I give everything to You.’ And Jesus added: “Good, my daughter. It is my glory, the triumph of my Will, that requires all this; but It wants - It demands that Its first triumph be over you. Aren't you happy to become the victory, the triumph of this Supreme Will? Do you not want, then, to make any sacrifice so that this Supreme Kingdom may be known and possessed by creatures? I too know that you suffer very much in seeing that after long years of secrecy between Me and you, in which I have kept you hidden with so much jealousy, our secrets are now coming out - you feel your strong impressions. But when it is I who want it, you too must want it; therefore, let us be in agreement and do not worry.”

Then, after this, He made me see reverend father; and Jesus, being near him, placed His holy right hand on his head to infuse in him firmness, help and will, saying to him: “My son, hurry, do not lose time. I will help you, I will be near you, so that everything may go well and according to my Will. Just as I care that my Will be known, and just as I have dictated the writings about the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat with paternal goodness, so will I help with the printing. I will be in the midst of those who will occupy themselves with it, so that everything may be regulated by Me. Therefore, hurry, hurry.”

How the generations are linked to one another, and therefore there are some which pray, some which receive and some which possess. How Jesus gives according to our dispositions. His word is a new creation. How, in Heaven, there are no secrets.

I was feeling embittered to the summit because of the privation of my sweet Jesus. Oh! how bad I felt. I could not take any more; but when I reached as though the extremes of pain, He moved in my interior and, all afflicted, told me: “My daughter, I am looking at how much I have to expand the boundaries of the Kingdom of my Will to give possession of It to creatures. I know that they are unable to grasp the endlessness which the Kingdom of my Will contains, because it is not given to them, as creatures, to cross and embrace a Will that corresponds to a Kingdom which has no boundaries. In fact, since they are created beings, they are always restricted and limited; but even though they are limited, I dispose more or less goods, and the extension of the expanses which they must possess, according to their dispositions. And so I am looking at posterity – at the dispositions which they will have; and I am looking at those in the present, to see the dispositions which they have, because those in the present must pray, impetrate and prepare the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat for posterity, and according to the dispositions of posterity, and to the interest of those present, so do I keep expanding the boundaries of my Kingdom, because the generations are so linked to one another that it always happens this way: one prays, another prepares, another impetrates, another possesses.

The same happened with my coming upon earth in order to form the Redemption. It was not those who were present that prayed, sighed and cried to obtain Its goods - they are the ones who enjoy them and possess them - but those who lived before my coming. And according to the dispositions of those in the present, and the prayers and dispositions of those in the past, so did I expand the boundaries of the goods of Redemption. In fact, only when a good can be useful for creatures, then do I give it; but if it brings them no utility, why give it? And this utility is taken by them if they have more dispositions. But do you know when I expand its boundaries? When I manifest to you a new knowledge that regards the Kingdom of my Will. This is why, before manifesting it to you, I cast a glance over all, to see their dispositions – whether it will be useful for them, or it will be for them as if it had not been spoken. And in seeing that I want to expand my boundaries more in order to give them more goods, more joys, more happiness to possess, but they are not disposed, I feel afflicted and I wait for your prayers, for your rounds in my Will, for your pains, in order to dispose those present, as well as posterity. And then I return to the new surprises of my manifestations about my Will. This is why I am afflicted when I do not speak to you; my word is the greatest gift - it is a new creation, and being unable to issue it from Myself because creatures are not disposed to receive it, I feel within Me the weight of the gift I want to give, and, unable to give it, I remain afflicted and taciturn. And my affliction grows even more in seeing you afflicted because of Me. If you knew how I feel your sadness - how it all pours into my Heart! My Will brings it deep into my inmost Heart, because I do not have two Wills, but one; and since It reigns in you, as a consequence, It brings your afflictions deep inside of Me. Therefore, pray and let your flight be continuous in the Supreme Fiat, that you may impetrate that creatures would dispose themselves, and I may return to speak once again.”

Having said this, He kept silent, and I remained more afflicted than before. I felt all the weight that Jesus felt because of the lack of dispositions of creatures. I felt as if Jesus would no longer speak to me for now; but Jesus, wanting to cheer me from my affliction, and also cheer Himself, told me: “My daughter, courage, do you think that everything that passed between Me and you will be known? No, my daughter; I will make known that which is necessary – that which regards the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat. Or rather, I will be even more generous compared to what creatures will take of this Kingdom of Mine, to give them free field in order to advance more and more, so as to let them expand their possession in the Supreme Fiat, that they may never say: ‘Enough - we have no place else to reach’. No, no, I will use such abundance that man will always have something to take, and to extend his journey. But in spite of such abundance, not everyone will know our secrets, just as not everyone knows what passed between Me and my Mama in order to form the Kingdom of Redemption – the surprising graces, the innumerable favors. They will know them in Heaven, where there are no secrets, while on earth they have known only that which I gave in superabundance for their good.

So I will do with you. If I looked, it was for those who want to come to live in the Kingdom of my Will; but for you – for the little daughter of my Will, for the one who has formed this Kingdom together with Me with so much sacrifice – will my love ever be able to say ‘enough’? Or deny my word to you? Or not pour in you the continuous flow of my graces? No, I cannot, my little daughter; this is not in the nature of my Heart, nor of my Will, which contains a continuous act, never interrupted, of giving – and giving always new surprises to one who knows no other life but the life of my Will. If you see Me taciturn, it is not because of you, because between Me and you there is no need of words in order to understand each other – to see each other is to understand each other. I pour all of Myself in you, and you in Me; and in pouring Myself, I pour new graces in you, and you take them, because what is necessary for you, who must be the primary cause in order to form the Kingdom of the Eternal Fiat, will not be necessary for those who only have to live in It. With you, it is not only about living in It, but about forming It, therefore your Jesus must abound very much with you, to give you the raw materials for the formation of a Kingdom so holy. This happens also in the low world: one who must form a kingdom has need of many means, of many raw materials, while one who must form only one city needs much less; and one who only moves to live in it, with very few means can live in this city. The sacrifices that one who has to form a kingdom must make are not necessary for those who come to the decision of wanting to live in that kingdom. Therefore, I just want you to work in the formation of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat, and your Jesus will take care of all the rest.”

New martyrdom. One who does not do the Divine Will cuts off the Divine Life within oneself.

Luisa is deprived of the writings. Jesus consoles her, showing her how everything is written in the depth of her soul.

I was all immersed in the intense pain of the privation of my sweet Jesus, and I said to myself: 'My Jesus, how can You not have compassion on this little daughter of yours who, feeling without You, feels life being snatched away from her. It is not just a pain that I feel, which would be more bearable, but it is life itself that I feel missing in me. I am little, I am weak; and if for nothing else, at least because of my excessive littleness You should have had compassion on this poor little one, who is almost in continuous act of feeling life missing in her, and of taking it back only to feel herself dying again. My Jesus, my Love, what kind of new martyrdom is this, never before felt? To die times upon times, and yet, never dying; to feel life missing in me, without the sweet hope of taking flight toward my Celestial Fatherland.'

Now, while I was thinking of this, my always lovable Jesus moved in my interior, and with a tender tone, told me: "Little daughter of my Will, courage; you are right that it is life that you feel missing in you, because, being deprived of Me, you feel the life of your Jesus missing – ending within you. And with reason, tiny little one as you are, you feel the hard martyrdom of life ending in you. But you must know that my Will is life, and every time creatures do not do It, and reject It, it is a Divine Life that they reject and destroy within themselves. And do you think that the pain, the continuous martyrdom of my Will is something trivial - in feeling so many acts of life which It wants to make arise in creatures with so much goodness, being cut off from Itself as though by a deadly sword? And in place of this Divine Life which was cut off within them, they make arise the life of passions, of sin, of darkness, of weaknesses. Not doing my Will is Divine Life that creatures lose. And this is why, since It reigns in you, by depriving you of Me, It makes you feel the pain of the many Divine Lives that creatures cut off from It, to be repaired and compensated in you for the many acts of life which they make It lose. Don't you know that in order to form the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat, It must find in you as many of Its acts for as many as It has lost? And this is the reason for the alternation of my presence and my absence – to give you the occasion to form many acts of submission to my Will; to make these acts of Divine Life which others have rejected, enter into you.

And then, don't you remember that when I manifested to you your mission regarding the Eternal Fiat, I asked of you the sacrifice of suffering as many deaths for as many creatures as were coming out to daylight – for as many as had rejected the Life of my Will? Ah! my daughter, not doing my Will is Divine Life that creatures reject. It is not like not practicing the virtues, where they reject gems, precious stones, ornaments, garments, which, if one does not want them, one can do without. Rejecting my Will, instead, is to reject the means in order to live, it is to destroy the fount of life; it is the greatest evil that can exist. Therefore, one who does so great an evil does not deserve to live; on the contrary, he deserves to die to all goods. Do you not want, then, to compensate my Will for all these lives which creatures have cut off from It? And in order to do this, you must suffer, not a pain, but a lack of Divine Life – which is my privation. In order to form Its Kingdom in you, my Will wants to find in you all the satisfactions which creatures have not given to It – all of Its lives which It was to make arise in them; otherwise, It would be a Kingdom without foundation, without giving It the rights of justice, and without the due reparations. Know, however, that your Jesus will not leave you for too long, because I too know that you cannot live under the press of such a hard martyrdom."

In addition to this, I felt afflicted because, when the reverend father came, who must occupy himself with the printing of the writings on the Most Holy Will of God, he wanted to have all the writings delivered to him, leaving me not even those whose copies he already had. So, the thought that the most intimate things between me and Jesus were out, and being unable even to go over again what Jesus had told me about His Holy Will, tormented me. And Jesus, coming back, told me: “My daughter, why do you afflict yourself so much? You must know that what I made you write on paper, I Myself first wrote in the depth of your soul; and then I made you put it on paper. Even more, there are more things written in you than on the paper. Therefore, when you feel the need to go over again what regards the truths on the Supreme Fiat, just take a look into your interior and immediately you will see again what you want. And so that you may be sure of what I am telling you, look right now into your soul, and you will see, all in order, what I have manifested to you.” Now, as He was saying this, I looked into my interior, and in just one glance I could see everything. I could also see that which Jesus had told me and I had neglected to write. So I thanked my beloved Good and I resigned myself, offering, all to Him, my hard sacrifice, and asking, in return, to give me the grace that His Will be known, loved and glorified.

The Kingdom of the Will of God is like a new creation. Delight of Jesus in hearing one speak about His Will.

I was doing my round in the Supreme Volition according to my usual way, and my sweet Jesus showed a globe of light within my interior; and as I repeated my acts in the Divine Fiat, it became larger, and the rays which came out of it became longer. And my always beloved Jesus told me: “My daughter, the more often you go around in my Will in order to repeat your acts, the larger the sphere of this globe of light becomes; and the more power of light it possesses, the more its rays can extend, which must illuminate the Kingdom of the Eternal Fiat. Your acts, fused – dissolved in my Will, will form the special sun which must illuminate a Kingdom so holy. This sun will possess the creative power, and as it extends its rays, it will leave the mark of its sanctity, of goodness, of light, of beauty and of divine likeness. Those who will let themselves be illuminated by its light will feel the power of a new continuous creation of joy, of contentments and of goods without end. Therefore, as my Will dominates all the acts of those who live in It, the Kingdom of my Will will be a continuous creation. So, the creature will remain under a new continuous act of this Supreme Volition, which will keep her so absorbed as to leave no field of action to her own self. This is why I love so much that the Kingdom of my Will be known – for the great good that creatures will receive, and for the free field of action It will have. In fact, the Supreme Will is now hindered by their own ‘self’; but when It becomes known, Its rays, vivifying, penetrating and full of vivid light, will eclipse the human will, which will be dazzled by Its refulgent light, and in seeing the great good that comes to it, it will give freedom of action to my Will, giving It total dominion. So, in this Kingdom, a new era, a new continuous creation, will begin for my Will. It will put out everything which It had established to give to creatures, had they always done Its Will, and which It had to keep within Itself for many centuries, as though in deposit, to then release them for the good of the children of Its Kingdom.”

After this, I continued to pray. But while I was praying, I saw that my highest Good, Jesus, was coming out in a great hurry from the depth of my interior, pushing a bundle of light which was above Him, and kept Him as though eclipsed under it, inside of me, preventing me from seeing Him. So, pushing it hurriedly, He came out, and I said to Him: 'My Jesus, what is it that You are in such a hurry? Is it perhaps something that interests You very much?' And Jesus: "Certainly, my daughter - it is indeed the thing that interests Me the most. You know, even from within you I heard the father who took our writings with him speak about my Will to those who surrounded him, with so much love that I felt wounded deep into my Heart. So I wanted to come out of you in order to listen to him. Those are my own words which I have spoken about my Will that resound to my hearing. I hear my own echo, and therefore I want to take all the delight in listening to him, and I want to let you take it as well, as a reward for the sacrifices you have made." At that moment, I saw a ray of light coming out of Jesus, which extended so much as to reach the place where the reverend father was; and, investing him, it made him speak, and Jesus was all consoled in hearing him speak about His adorable Will.

What it means to be firstborn daughter of the Divine Will. How Jesus feels drawn by His Will to visit the soul, disposing her to be with Him.

I felt immersed in the sea of pain of the privation of my Highest Good, Jesus, and as much as I asked for Him, going around Heaven and earth, it was not given to me to find the One whom I so much longed for. So, the waters of pain, swelling more and more, drowned me with sorrows and with pain – but that pain which only Jesus can give, and knows how to give, to a poor and little heart that loves. And because it is little, it cannot sustain all the immensity of the bitter waters of the pain of His privation, therefore it remains drowned and oppressed, waiting for the One whom I so much yearn and long for.

Then, while I was all oppressed, my always lovable Jesus made Himself seen in my interior, in the midst of a cloud of light, and told me: "Firstborn daughter of my Will, why are you so oppressed? If you think of your great fortune, your oppression will depart from you. Do you know what firstborn daughter of my Will means? It means first daughter in the love of our Celestial Father, and first among all to be loved. It means first daughter of grace, of light, first daughter of glory, first daughter possessor of the riches of her Divine Father, first daughter of Creation. As firstborn daughter of the Supreme Will, she contains all the bonds, all the relations, all the rights which befit a firstborn daughter – bonds of daughtership, relations of communication to all the dispositions of her Celestial Father, rights of possession of all His goods.

But all this is not all. Do you know what first daughter delivered by my Will means? It means not only to be first in the love and in all the things of her Creator, but to enclose within herself all the love and all the goods of the other children. So, if the others will possess each one his own part, she, as the firstborn, will possess, all together, the goods of the others. And this, by right and with justice, because, as firstborn, to her did my Will entrust everything - gave everything, therefore in her is the origin of all things, the cause for which Creation was created, the purpose for which the divine action and love entered the field. She who was to be the firstborn daughter of Our Will was the primary cause of all the works of a God; therefore, as a consequence, from her derive all goods - from her do they come, to her do they return. See, then, how fortunate you are; you cannot fully comprehend what it means to have primacy in love and in all the things of your Creator.”

On hearing this, I said to Him: ‘My Love, what are You saying? And besides, what good comes to me from such great fortune You are talking about, when You deprive me of Yourself? All goods convert for me into bitternesses without You. And then, I have told You many times that You alone do I want, because You are enough for me in everything; and if I had everything, without You, everything changes for me into martyrdom and indescribable pain. Love, grace, light, the whole Creation, speak to me about You - they make me know Who You are, and, not finding You, I become delirious, I go into mortal agonies. Therefore, the primacy, the rights of firstborn – give them to whomever you want; I don’t care about them. If you want to make me happy, remain with me, You alone – this is enough for me.’

And Jesus added: “My daughter, I alone must not be enough for you, nor do I want you to say that you do not care about everything else. No, no, if it is not enough for Me to give you Myself alone without giving you all of my things, if I care that you have the primacy and be the firstborn daughter, you too must care about it. Don’t you know that my frequent coming is bound to your being my firstborn daughter? Don’t you know that, as long as Adam remained the firstborn son of my Will, having therefore primacy over everything, I visited him often? My Will reigning in him administered to him all the manners necessary in order to be with Me, as the son who forms the consolation of his Father. So, I spoke to him as to a son, and he to Me as to his Father. As he withdrew from my Will, he lost his primacy, the rights of firstborn, and along with them he lost all of my goods; and he no longer felt the strength to sustain my presence, nor did I feel drawn by a Divine force and Will to go to him. So, all his bonds with Me were broken; nothing was due to him by right any more, nor did he see Me unveiled any longer, but amidst lightnings and eclipsed within my light – that light of my Will which he had rejected. Now, don’t you know that the primacy which Adam lost as firstborn son of my Will has passed on to you, and that in you I must enclose all the goods which I was to enclose in him, had he not withdrawn from my Will? Therefore, I look at you as the first creature come out of Our hands, because one who lives in my Will is always the first before her Creator; and even if she is born later in time, this says nothing: in Our Will, one who has never gone out of It is always first. See, then - you must care about everything; my coming itself is the irresistible force of my Will which draws you to Me and disposes you. Therefore, I want highest gratitude at your fortune of being the firstborn daughter of my Will.”

I did not know what to answer. I remained confused, and in my inmost soul, I said: ‘Fiat, Fiat’.

How the Divine Will will form the eclipse for the human will.

I was fusing all of myself in the Holy Divine Volition, and while I was going around in It, doing my acts, my beloved Jesus moved in my interior and told me: “My daughter, each act, prayer and pain which the soul makes enter into the light of my Will, becomes light and forms one more ray in the Sun of the Eternal Volition. These rays form the most beautiful glory that the creature can give to the Divine Fiat, in such a way that, seeing Itself so glorified by Its own light, It invests these rays with new knowledges which, converting into voices, manifest to the soul more surprises about my Will.

But do you know what these knowledges of mine form for the creature? They form the eclipse for the human will. The stronger the light is, the more the rays are, and the more strongly the human will remains dazzled and eclipsed by the light of my knowledges; in such a way, that it almost feels impotent to act, and it gives field to the action of the light of my Will. The human will remains occupied within the action of my Will, and it lacks the time, the place, to make its own will act.

It is like the human eye when it stares at the sun: the strength of the light invests the pupil, and lording over it, it renders it impotent to look at other things; but in spite of this, the eye has not lost its vision. It is the strength of the light that has this power: it takes away any other object from one who looks at it, and allows him to look at nothing but light. I will never take free willing away from the human will – a great gift, given to man in creating him, which makes creatures distinguishable as to whether they want to be my true children, or not. But, rather, with the light of the knowledges about my Will, I will form more than solar rays, and whoever wants to know them and look at them, will be invested by this light; in such a way that, eclipsed, the human will will take delight and love in looking at this light, and will feel fortunate that the action of the light takes the place of its own. And it will lose love and delight for other things. This is why I am saying so much about my Will – to form the strong light, because the stronger it is, the greater is the eclipse it forms in order to occupy the human will.

Look at the sky - it is an image of this. If you look at it at night, you see it studded with stars; but if you look at it during the day, the stars no longer exist for the human eye. However, they are still at their place in the sky, just as at nighttime. Who had this strength to make the stars disappear, though they are present in the full daylight? The sun. With the strength of its light, it eclipsed them, but did not destroy them; and this is so true that, when the sun begins to set, so do they return to make themselves seen in the vault of the heavens. It seems that they are afraid of the light, and they hide to give field to the action of the light of the sun, because, in their mute language, they know that the sun contains more effects of goods for the earth, and it is right they give field to the great action of the sun; and so, as homage to it, they let themselves be eclipsed by its light. But as the eclipse ends, so do they make themselves be seen – present at their place. So it will be between the Sun of the knowledges about the Supreme Fiat and the human wills which will let themselves be illuminated by these rays of light of my knowledges: these will bring the eclipse to the human wills which, in seeing the great good of the action of its light, will feel ashamed and afraid to act with the human will, and will give free field to the action of the light of the Divine Will. Therefore, the more you pray and suffer in It, the more knowledges you draw to be manifested to you, and the stronger the light becomes, so as to be able to form the sweet eclipse for the human will. In this way, I will be able to establish the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat.”

How the soul will possess as much glory, beatitude and happiness in Heaven, for as much Divine Will as she has enclosed on earth.

Continuing my usual round in the Supreme Will, I was saying to myself: ‘My Jesus, your Will embraces and encloses everything, and I, in the name of the first creature who came out of your creative hands, up to the last one who will be created, intend to repair for all the oppositions of the human wills made against Yours, and to take within me all the acts of your adorable Will which creatures have rejected, in order to requite them all in love and adoration; in such a way that there may be no act of Yours without the correspondence of one act of mine, so that, in finding my little act as though bilocated in each one of your acts, You may be satisfied, and may come to reign triumphantly upon earth. Is it perhaps not upon the human acts that your Eternal Fiat wants to find the support on which to dominate? Therefore, in each one of your acts, I offer You mine as the field on which You can lay your Kingdom.”

Now, while I was thinking and saying this, my always lovable Jesus moved in my interior and told me: “Little daughter of my Will, it is just, it is necessary, it is a right of both sides – both yours and of my Will – that one who is Its child follow the multiplicity of the acts of my Will, and that my Will receive them into Its acts. A father would be unhappy if he did not feel his child at his side, so as to be followed by his child in his acts; nor would the child feel loved by the father if, putting him aside, the father would not let himself be followed by his child. Therefore, ‘daughter of my Will and newborn in It’ means precisely this: to follow all of Its acts as Its faithful daughter. In fact, you must know that, in Creation, my Will entered the field of action in the human acts of the creature; but in order to act, It wants the act of the creature within Its own, so as to carry out Its operating and be able to say: ‘My Kingdom is in the midst of my children, and right within their inmost acts’. In fact, as much as the creature takes of my Will, so much do I extend my Kingdom in her, and she extends her Kingdom in my Will; but according to how much she lets Me dominate in her acts, so does she expand her boundaries in my Kingdom, and I give, and she takes more joy, more happiness, more goods, and more glory.

In fact, it is established that in the Celestial Fatherland they will receive as much glory, beatitude and happiness, for as much of my Will as they have enclosed in their souls on earth. Their glory will be measured by that very Will of Mine which their souls will possess; nor will they be able to receive more, because their capacity and wideness is formed by that very Divine Will which they have done and possessed while living on earth. And even if my liberality wanted to give them more, they would lack the space to contain it, and it would overflow outside.

Now, my daughter, of all that my Will has established to give to creatures, of all of Its acts, they have taken little - they have known little until now, because Its Kingdom has not only not been known, but not even possessed. Therefore, in Heaven It cannot give all Its complete glory, or all the joys and happiness It possesses, because It finds Itself in the midst of children who are incapable and of small stature. This is why It awaits the time of Its Kingdom with so much love and yearning – to have Its total dominion, and to give from Its Fiat everything It had established to give to creatures, therefore forming children who are capable of receiving all of Its goods. And only these children will make the glory for all the Blessed - for the children of the Kingdom of my Will, be completed in the Celestial Fatherland, because they have enclosed what my Will wanted, giving It free field of action and of dominion. Therefore, they will have the ‘essential glory’, as they will have the capacity and the space to contain it, and, through them, the others will have the ‘accidental glory’; and, all together, they will enjoy the complete glory and the full happiness of my Will. So, the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat will be the full triumph of Heaven and of the earth.”

Then, I was thinking to myself: ‘In the ‘Our Father’, Our Lord teaches us to say - to pray: “Your

Will be done”. Now, why does He say that He wants us to live in It?’ And Jesus, always benign, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, ‘your Will be done’ which I taught in the ‘Our Father’ meant that all were to pray that they might at least do the Will of God. And this is for all Christians and for all times; nor can anyone call himself a Christian if he does not dispose himself to do the Will of his Celestial Father. But you have not thought of the other addition which comes immediately after: ‘On earth as It is in Heaven’. ‘On earth as It is in Heaven’ means to live in the Divine Will; it means to pray that the Kingdom of my Will may come on earth in order to live in It. In Heaven, they not only do my Will, but they live in It – they possess It as their own thing, and as their own Kingdom. And if they did It, but did not possess It, their happiness would not be full, because true happiness begins in the depth of the soul. To do the Will of God does not mean to possess It, but to submit oneself to Its commands, while to live in It is possession. Therefore, in the ‘Our Father’, in the words ‘your Will be done’ is the prayer that all may do the Supreme Will, and in ‘on earth as It is in Heaven’, that man may return into that Will from which he came, in order to reacquire his happiness, the lost goods, and the possession of his Divine Kingdom.”

October 17, 1926

How the soul goes around in all Creation and Redemption, keeping the Divine Will company in all of Its acts, and asking for Its Kingdom in each one of them. How the Fiat is the foundation of the Kingdom of the Divine Will.

It seems I cannot do without continuing my round in the Supreme Will. I feel It is my true home, and only when I go around within It - then am I content, because I find everything that belongs to my sweet Jesus, and by virtue of His Will, all that belongs to Him, is also mine. Therefore, I have much to give to my beloved Good; even more, there is so much to give Him, that I never finish giving Him everything. So I remain always with the desire to go back and continue my round, to be able to give Him everything that belongs to His adorable Will. So, while going around, thinking of the great good that the Supreme Volition brings to the soul, I prayed to Jesus that He would soon make It known to all, so that they might take part in such a great good. And in order to obtain this, as I reached each created thing, I said to Him: ‘I come into the sun to keep company with your Will reigning and dominating in it, with all the splendor of Its majesty. But while I keep You company in the sun, I pray You that your Eternal Fiat be known, and just as It reigns triumphantly in the sun, It may come to reign triumphantly in the midst of creatures. See, the sun also is praying You – all of its light turns into prayer, and as it extends over the earth and invests plants and flowers, mountains and plains, seas and rivers with its light, it prays that your Fiat may be one upon earth, harmonizing with all creatures. So, I am not the only one who is praying, but it is the power of your very Will reigning in the sun that is praying. The light is praying; its innumerable effects, the goods, the colors it contains, are praying – all are praying that your Fiat may reign over all. Can You resist such a great mass of light, which prays with the power of your own Will? And I, little as I am, while keeping You company in this sun, bless, adore, glorify your adorable Will, with that magnificence and glory with which your own Will glorifies Itself in Its works. So, only in the creatures is your Will not to find the perfect glory of Its works? Therefore, come – may your Fiat come.’ But while I am doing this, I feel all the light of the sun praying that the Eternal Fiat may come; or rather, it is His very adorable Will which, investing the light, prays. And I, leaving It there praying, move on into the other created things to make my tiny little visit, to keep a little company with the adorable Will in each one of Its acts, which It exercises in each created thing. Therefore, I go through the heavens, the stars, the sea, so that the heavens may pray, the stars may pray, the sea may pray with its murmuring that the Supreme Fiat be known and reign triumphantly over all creatures, just as It reigns in them. Then, after going around over all created things to keep company with the Divine Fiat, and to ask, within each thing, that It may come to reign upon earth – how beautiful it is to see and to hear the whole Creation praying that Its Kingdom may come into the midst of creatures.

Then I descend into everything that my Jesus did in Redemption – in His tears, in His baby moans, in His works, steps and words, in His pains, in His wounds, in His blood, and even in His death, so that His tears may pray that His Fiat come, His moans and everything He did, all in chorus, may supplicate that His Fiat be known, and that His very death may make the Life of His Divine Will rise again in the creatures.

Then, while I was doing this and other things – I would be too long if I wanted to say everything – my sweet Jesus, clasping me to Himself, told me: “Little daughter of my Will, you must know that my Will left Itself reigning in all Creation, to give the field to creatures to make as many visits to It for as many things as It created. It wanted the company of the creature in the mute language of the whole universe. How hard is the isolation of this Will so holy, which wants to sanctify, and finds no one with whom to share Its sanctity; It is so rich and yearning to give, and finds no one to whom to give; so beautiful, and It finds no one to embellish; so happy, and It finds no one to make happy. Being able to give - wanting to give, and having no one to whom to give is always a sorrow and an unspeakable pain; and then, to one’s yet greater sorrow, being left alone. Therefore, in seeing a creature enter the field of Creation to keep It company, It feels delighted, and It feels that the purpose for which It left Itself reigning in each created thing is being fulfilled. But that which renders It more happy, more glorified, is that, as you reach each created thing, you ask that Its Fiat be known and reign over everything, and you move my very Will in the sun, in the heavens, in the sea – in everything, to pray that the Kingdom of my Will may come. In fact, since my Fiat is in you, it can be said that it is my Will Itself that prays and moves all of my works, and even my tears and sighs, so that the Kingdom of my Will may come.

You cannot understand what contentment You give Me, what a breach it is into my Heart and into my very Will, to hear all Our works praying because they want Our Fiat. You see, then, my contentment, as I see that you seek nothing for yourself - neither glory, nor love, nor graces. And in seeing that your littleness cannot obtain a Kingdom so great, you go around in all my works, wherever an act of my Will is present, doing its office, and you make my own Fiat say: ‘Your Kingdom come. O please! let It be known, loved and possessed by the human generations.’ A Divine Will that prays together with Our works, and together with Its little daughter, is the greatest portent. It is a power equal to Our own that prays, and it is impossible for Us not to grant what it asks. How holy, how pure, noble and fully divine, without a shadow of the human, is the Kingdom of Our Will. Our own Fiat will be Its basis, Its foundation and Its depth, which, extending below, in the midst, and above these children of the Celestial Family, will render their step firm, and the Kingdom of my Will unshakeable for them.”

The Divine Fiat possesses the source of novelty, and the soul who lets herself be dominated by It is under the influence of a new continuous act, never interrupted, and receives the effects and the life of everything that the Divine Will has done.

As I was in my usual state, my adorable Jesus made Himself seen in my interior, with a sun which descended from heaven and was centered in His breast; and as I prayed, breathed, moved and did my acts in His Will, I acquired light, and Jesus expanded more within my soul, occupying more space. I remained surprised in seeing that everything I did acquired light from the breast of Jesus, and that Jesus became larger and extended more within me, and I was filled more with Him. After this, He said to me: “My daughter, my Divinity is a new continuous act, and since my Will is the regime of It, the carrying out of Our works, the bearer of this new act, It possesses the fullness of this new act, and therefore It is ever new in Its works, new in Its happiness, in the joy, and ever new in the manifestations of Its knowledges.

This is why It tells you always new things about my Fiat – because It possesses the source of novelty. And if it seems that many things look alike, and hold hands, this is the effect of the endless light It contains, which is indivisible, and therefore they seem to be lights which are all linked together. And just as in the light there is the substance of colors, which are like many new and distinct acts that the light possesses - one cannot say that there is only one color, but all colors, with the variety of all shades: pale, strong and dark; however, that which embellishes these colors and renders them more brilliant is the fact that they are invested by the power of light, otherwise they would be like colors without attractiveness and without beauty - in the same way, the many knowledges given to you about my Will, because they start from Its endless light, are invested with light, and therefore it seems that they hold hands, that they look alike. However, in their substance, they are more than colors – ever new in the truths, new in the way, new in the good they bring, new in the sanctification they communicate, new in the similes, new in the beauties. And perhaps even just one new and additional word contained in the different manifestations about my Will, is always a divine color, and it is a new eternal act, which brings to the creature an act that never ends, in the grace, in the goods, and in the glory. And do you know what it means to possess these knowledges on my Will? It is as if one possessed a coin which has the virtue of making arise as many coins as one wants; and if one possesses a springing good, poverty is over. In the same way, these knowledges of mine possess light, sanctity, strength, beauty and riches, which arise continuously. So, those who will possess them will have the source of light, of sanctity; therefore, darkness, weaknesses, the ugliness of sin, poverty in divine goods, will end for them. All evils will end, and they will possess the source of Sanctity.

See, this light which you see as centered in my breast is my Supreme Will. As you emit your acts, light arises and communicates itself to you, bringing you new knowledges about my Fiat, which, emptying you, enlarge the place for Me in which I can extend more within you. And as I keep extending Myself, so do your natural life, your will - all of yourself, come to an end, because you give place to Mine, and I occupy Myself with forming and extending more and more the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat in you, and you will have a larger field in order to go around in It, and to help Me in the work of the new formation of my Kingdom in the midst of creatures.”

Then, I continued my acts in the unending heaven of the Divine Volition, and I could touch with my own hand how in everything that came out of the Eternal Fiat, both in Creation and in Redemption and in Sanctification, there are many beings and innumerable things – all new and distinct among themselves. At the most, they look alike, they hold hands, but not one being or thing can say: “I am the same as the other”. Even the smallest insect, the littlest flower, carries the mark of novelty. So I thought to myself: ‘It is really true that the Fiat of the Divine Majesty contains the virtue - the source of a new continuous act. What happiness it is to let oneself be dominated by this omnipotent Fiat – to be under the influence of a new act, never interrupted.’ Now, while I was thinking of this, my sweet Jesus came back, and looking at me with unspeakable love, called everything around Himself. At His wish, all Creation and the goods of Redemption found themselves around Jesus, and He bound my poor soul to all Creation and Redemption, to let me receive all the effects of everything that His adorable Will has done. And He added: “My daughter, one who lets herself be dominated by my Will is under the influence of all Its acts, and receives the effects and the life of what I did in Creation and Redemption. Everything is in relationship with her, and bound to her.”

The great good which the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat will bring. How It will be the preserver from all evils. Just as the Virgin, while She made no miracle, made the great miracle of giving a God to creatures, so it will be for the one who must make the Kingdom known: she will make the great miracle of giving a Divine Will.

I was thinking to myself about the Holy Divine Volition, and I said to myself: ‘But, what will be the great good of this Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat?’ And Jesus, interrupting my thought, moved in my interior as though hurriedly, telling me: “My daughter, what will be the great good?! What will be the great good?! The Kingdom of my Fiat will enclose all goods, all miracles, the most sensational prodigies; even more, It will surpass them all together. And if miracle means to give sight to a blind one, to straighten up a cripple, to heal one who is sick, to raise a dead man, etc., the Kingdom of my Will will have the preserving nourishment, and for whomever enters into It, there will be no danger that he might become blind, crippled or sick. Death will no longer have power in the soul; and if it will have it over the body, it will not be death, but transit. Without the nourishment of sin and a degraded human will which produced corruption in the bodies, and with the preserving nourishment of my Will, the bodies also will not be subject to decomposing and becoming so horribly corrupted as to strike fear even into the strongest ones, as it happens now; but they will remain composed in their sepulchers, waiting for the day of the resurrection of all.

Do you think it is a greater miracle to give sight of a poor blind one, to straighten up a cripple, to heal one who is sick, or to have a preserving means, so that the eye may never lose its sight, so that one may always walk straight, so that one may always be healthy? I believe that the preserving miracle is greater than the miracle after a misfortune has occurred. This is the great difference between the Kingdom of Redemption and the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat: in the first, the miracle was for the poor unfortunate, as it is today, who lie, some in one misfortune, some in another; and this is why I gave the example, also externally, of giving many different healings, which were the symbol of the healings which I gave to the souls, and which easily return to their infirmity. The second will be a preserving miracle, because my Will possesses the miraculous power that whoever lets himself be dominated by It, will be subject to no evil. Therefore, It will have no need to make miracles, because It will preserve them always healthy, holy and beautiful – worthy of that beauty which came out of

Our creative hands in creating the creature. The Kingdom of the Divine Fiat will make the great miracle of banishing all evils, all miseries, all fears, because It will not perform a miracle at time and circumstance, but will keep the children of Its Kingdom with Itself with an act of continuous miracle, to preserve them from any evil, and let them be distinguished as the children of Its Kingdom. This, in the souls; but also in the body there will be many modifications, because it is always sin that is the nourishment of all evils. Once sin is removed, there will be no nourishment for evil; more so, since my Will and sin cannot exist together, therefore the human nature also will have its beneficial effects.

Now, my daughter, having to prepare the great miracle of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat, I am doing with you, firstborn daughter of my Will, just as I did with the Sovereign Queen, my Mama, when I had to prepare the Kingdom of Redemption. I drew Her so close to Myself, I kept Her so occupied in Her interior, as to be able to form together with Her the miracle of Redemption, for which there was such great need. There were so many things which, together, we were to do, to redo, to complete, that I had to hide from Her outward appearance anything which might be called miracle, except for Her perfect virtue. By this, I rendered Her more free, so as to let Her cross the endless sea of the Eternal Fiat, that She might have access to the Divine Majesty in order to obtain the Kingdom of Redemption. What would be greater: that the Celestial Queen had given sight to the blind and speech to the mute, and so forth, or the miracle of making the Eternal Word descend upon earth? The first would have been accidental, passing and individual miracles; the second, instead, is a permanent miracle – and it is for everyone, as long as they want it. Therefore, the first would have been as though nothing compared to the second. She was the true sun, who, eclipsing everything, eclipsed the very Word of the Father within Herself, letting all the goods, all the effects and miracles which Redemption produced, germinate from Her light. But, as sun, She produced goods and miracles without letting Herself be seen or pointed at as the primary cause of everything. In fact, all the good I did upon earth, I did because the Empress of Heaven reached the point of holding Her empire in the Divinity; and by Her empire She drew Me from Heaven, to give Me to creatures.

Now, I am doing the same with you in order to prepare the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat. I keep you with Me, I make you cross Its endless sea to give you access to the Celestial Father, that you may pray Him, conquer Him, have empire over Him, to obtain the Fiat of my Kingdom. And in order to fulfill and consummate in you all the miraculous power which is needed to form a Kingdom so holy, I keep you continuously occupied in your interior with the work of my Kingdom; I make you go around continuously in order to redo - to complete everything that is needed, and that all should do, in order to form the great miracle of my Kingdom. Externally, I let nothing miraculous appear in you, except for the light of my Will.

Some might say: 'How can this be? Blessed Jesus manifests so many portents to this creature about this Kingdom of the Divine Fiat, and the goods It will bring will surpass Creation and Redemption - even more, It will be the crown of both one and the other; but in spite of so much good, nothing miraculous can be seen in her, externally, as confirmation of the great good of this Kingdom of the Eternal Fiat; while the other saints, without the portent of this great good, have made miracles at each step.' But if they turn back to consider my dear Mama, the holiest of all creatures, and the great good which She enclosed within Herself and which She brought to creatures, there is no one who can compare to Her, as She made the great miracle of conceiving the Divine Word within Herself, and the portent of giving a God to each creature. And in the face of this great prodigy, never before seen or heard, of being able to give the Eternal Word to creatures, all other miracles together are like tiny little flames before the sun. Now, one who must do the greatest has no need to do the lesser. In the same way, in the face of the miracle of the Kingdom of my Will restored in the midst of creatures, all other miracles will be tiny little flames before the great Sun of my Will. Each saying, truth and manifestation about It, is a miracle which has come out of my Will as preserver from all evils; it is like binding the creatures to an infinite good, to a greater glory, and to a new beauty – fully divine.

Each truth about my Eternal Fiat contains more power and prodigious virtue than if a dead man were resurrected, a leper were healed, a blind one could see, or a mute could speak. In fact, my words on the sanctity and power of my Fiat will resurrect the souls to their origin; they will heal them from the leprosy produced by the human will. They will give them the sight to be able to see the goods of the Kingdom of my Will, because until now they have been like blind. They will give speech to many mute who, while they were able to say many other things, only for my Will were like many mute without speech; and then, the great miracle of being able to give to each creature a Divine Will which contains all goods. What will It not give them when It will be in possession of the children of Its Kingdom? This is why I keep you all occupied with the work of this Kingdom of Mine - and there is much to do in order to prepare the great miracle that the Kingdom of the Fiat be known and possessed. Therefore, be attentive in crossing the endless sea of my Will, so that the order between Creator and creature may be established; in this way, through you, I will be able to make the great miracle that man return to Me – into the origin from which he came.”

Then, I was thinking of what is written above, especially that each word and manifestation on the Supreme Will is a miracle come out of It. And Jesus, to confirm in me what He had told me, added: “My daughter, what do you think a greater miracle was when I came upon earth: my word, the Gospel I announced, or the fact that I gave life to the dead, sight to the blind, hearing to the deaf, etc.? Ah! my daughter, my word, my Gospel, was a greater miracle; more so, since the very miracles came out of my word. The foundation, the substance of all miracles came out of my creative word. The Sacraments, Creation Itself, a permanent miracle, had life from my word; and my very Church has my word, my Gospel, as regime and foundation. So, my word, my Gospel, was a miracle greater than the miracles themselves, which, if they had life, it was because of my miraculous word. Therefore, be sure that the word of your Jesus is the greatest miracle. My word is like mighty wind that runs, pounds on the hearing, enters into the hearts, warms, purifies, illuminates, goes round and round from nation to nation; it covers the whole world, it wanders throughout all centuries. Who could ever give death and bury one word of mine? No one. And if sometimes it seems that my word is silent and is as though hidden, it never loses its life. When least expected, it comes out and goes around everywhere. Centuries will pass in which everything - men and things - will be overwhelmed and disappear, but my word will never pass away, because it contains Life – the miraculous power of the One who issued it. Therefore, I confirm that each word and manifestation I make to you about my Eternal Fiat is the greatest miracle, which will serve the Kingdom of my Will. And this is why I push you so much, and I care so much that not a word of mine be not manifested and written by you – because I see a miracle of mine coming back to Me, which will bring so much good to the children of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat.”

How there is nothing more holy and bearer of every happiness than the Divine Will. How all the acts of Creation and Redemption have the purpose of establishing the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat.

I was doing my usual round in the Divine Volition, and in each thing I placed my 'I love You', and I asked that the Kingdom of the Fiat come and be known upon earth. And reaching all the acts that my sweet Jesus did in Redemption, asking, in each act, 'your Kingdom come', I thought to myself: 'Before, in going around so much, both in all Creation and in Redemption, I used to place only my 'I love You', my adoration, my 'thank You'. And now, why can I not do without asking for the Kingdom of the Fiat? I feel I would want to overwhelm everything – the smallest and the greatest thing, Heaven and earth, the very acts of Jesus and Jesus Himself - and force them, so that everything and everyone may say together with me: "We want the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat. We want It reigning and dominating in our midst." More so, since all want It; the very acts of Jesus, His life, His tears, His Blood, His wounds, say from within: "May our Kingdom come upon earth". And so I enter into the act of Jesus, and I repeat along with it: "May the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat come soon".'

Now, while I was thinking of this, my beloved Jesus came out from within my interior, and with unspeakable tenderness told me: "My daughter, one who is born in my Will feels Its life flowing within her, and as though naturally, she wants for everyone that which she possesses. And since my Will is immense and encloses everything and everyone, one who possesses It goes around through all the things It encloses, to pray It and win It to descend upon earth to form Its Kingdom. However, you must know that in order to have dominion and make them say what you want, in all the things which came out of my Will and enclose It, first you had to know them and then love them, so that love might give you the right to possess them and to make them do and say whatever you want. Here is the reason why, before, in going around through all of my works, you would impress your 'I love You', 'I adore You', 'I thank You' – it was the knowledges of my works that you were acquiring, and the possession of them that you were taking. Now, after the possession, what greater, holier and more beautiful thing, more bearer of all happinesses to the human generations, can you ask in the midst of my works and together with them, than the coming of the Kingdom of my Will? More so since, in Creation just as in the Kingdom of Redemption, it was the Kingdom of the Fiat that I wanted to establish in the midst of creatures. All of my acts, my very Life, their origin, their substance - deep within them, it was the Fiat that they asked for, and for the Fiat were they made. If you could see inside each one of my tears, each drop of my Blood, each pain, and all of my works, you would find, within them, the Fiat that they were asking for, and how they were directed toward the Kingdom of my Will. And even though, apparently, they seemed to be directed to redeeming and saving man, that was the way which they were making in order to reach to the Kingdom of my Will.

This happens also to creatures, when they decide that they want to take possession of a kingdom, of a house, of a land: they do not just find themselves in it and in possession of it immediately, in one instant, but they have to make their way. Who knows how much suffering, fighting and climbing of stairs, in order for them to be in it, and then take possession of it. My daughter, if all the acts and pains which my Humanity suffered did not have the restoration of the Kingdom of my Fiat upon earth as their origin, substance and life, I would have moved away from and lost the purpose of Creation – which cannot be, because once God has set Himself a purpose, He must and can obtain the intent. And if in everything you do, suffer and say, you do not ask for my Fiat, and do not have my Will as origin and substance, you move away from and do not fulfill your mission. And it is necessary that you go around time and time again in my Will, in the midst of my works, to ask, all in chorus, for the coming of the Supreme Fiat - so that, together with all Creation and with all my works which I did in Redemption, you may be filled to the brim with all the acts which are needed before the Celestial Father to make known and to impetrate the Kingdom of my Will upon earth.

Now, you must know that all Creation and all my works done in Redemption are as though tired of waiting, and find themselves in the condition of a noble and rich family, whose children are all of proper stature, good looking, of uncommon intelligence, always well dressed, and with marvelous neatness. They are the ones who make always the best impression among all others. Now, after such great fortune, this family has had a misfortune: one of these children, degrading himself, descends from his nobility and goes around always dirty; he does unworthy and vile acts which dishonor the nobility of the family, and as much as they do so that he may appear together with the other brothers, they do not succeed; on the contrary, he keeps getting worse and worse, to the point of becoming the mockery and the laughingstock of all. The whole family has a constant sorrow; and as much as they feel the dishonor of this son, they cannot destroy him and say that he does not belong to them, and that he did not come from that same father to whom they belong. Such is the condition in which all Creation and all the works of my Redemption find themselves. They are all a celestial family, their origin is divine nobility; all of them have the Will of their Celestial Father as their insignia, dominion and life, and therefore they all maintain themselves in their nobility – beautiful, decorous, pure, of enchanting beauty, and worthy of that Will which possesses them. After so much glory and honor for this celestial family, they have had the misfortune that one alone – man – who came from their same Father, has degraded himself; and in the midst of such great glory and beauty of theirs, he is always dirty, he does foolish actions - unworthy and vile. They cannot deny that he belongs to them, but they do not want him in their midst so dirty and foolish. Therefore, as though tired, they all pray that the Kingdom of my Will may come into the midst of creatures, so that one may be the nobility, the honor and the glory of this family. And in seeing that the little daughter of my Will comes into their midst, and, animating them, asks and makes everyone ask for the coming of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat into the midst of creatures, they all feel delighted, because their sorrow is close to ending.”

How in all the acts that Jesus did, His purpose was the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat. Adam feels the honor he had lost being returned to him.

As I continued to unite myself with the acts that Jesus did in Redemption, my always lovable Jesus told me: “My daughter, see how all the acts I did in redeeming man, and even the miracles I performed during my public life, had no other purpose but to call back the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat into the midst of creatures; and in the act of doing them, I asked my Celestial Father to make It known and to restore It in the midst of the human generations. If I gave sight to the blind, my first act was to put to flight the darkness of the human will - the primary cause of the blindness of the soul and of the body, so that the light of my Will might illuminate the souls of many blind, and they might obtain the sight to look at my Will in order to love It, and their bodies also might be exempt from losing the sight. If I gave hearing to the deaf, first I asked my Father that they might acquire the hearing to hear the voices, the knowledges, the prodigies of my Divine Will, so that It might enter into their hearts as the way in order to dominate them, and there might be no more deaf in the world – either in the soul or in the body. Also in the dead I resurrected, I asked that souls might rise again in my Eternal Will – even those which were putrefied, and made more than cadavers by the human will. And when I took the ropes to drive the profaners out of the temple, it was the human will that I was driving out, so that Mine might enter, reigning and dominating, and they might be truly rich in their souls and no longer subject to natural poverty. And even when, triumphant, I entered into Jerusalem, in the midst of the triumph of the crowds, surrounded with honor and glory, it was the triumph of my Will that I established in the midst of the peoples.

There was no act I did while being on earth in which I did not place my Will as prime act to be established once again in the midst of creatures, because that was the thing I most cared for. If it were not so, or if I did not do so – if in everything I worked and suffered I did not have the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat as prime act to be restored in the midst of creatures – my coming upon earth would have brought a half good to the generations – not a complete one, and the glory of my Celestial Father would not have been completely reintegrated by Me. In fact, since my Will is the origin of every good and the only purpose of Creation and Redemption, It is therefore the ultimate fulfillment of all Our works. Without It, Our most beautiful works remain within a frame and without completion, because It alone is the crown of Our works and the seal that Our work is complete. Therefore, for the honor and glory of the very work of Redemption, It was to have, as prime act, the purpose of the Kingdom of my Will.”

After this, I was beginning my round in the Divine Will, and going into the terrestrial Eden, in which Adam had done the first act of withdrawal of his will from the Divine, I said to my sweet Jesus: ‘My Love, I want to annihilate my will in Yours, that it may never have life, so that your Will may have life in everything and forever, in order to repair for the first act which Adam did, and return to your Supreme Volition all the glory as if Adam had never withdrawn from It. Oh! how I wish to give back to him the honor he lost because he did his own will and rejected Yours. And I intend to do this act for as many times as all creatures have done their own will - the cause of all evils, and have rejected Yours - the origin and fount of all goods. Therefore I pray You that the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat may come soon, so that everyone, from Adam up to all the creatures who have done their own will, may receive the honor and the glory which they lost, and your Will may receive triumph, glory and Its fulfillment.’

Now, while I was saying this, my highest Good, Jesus, was moved and touched, and making my first father Adam present to me, let him himself tell me, with emphasis of love, all special: “Blessed daughter, finally my Lord God, after so many centuries, has delivered to the light of the day the one who was to think about giving me back the honor and the glory which I lost, alas, by doing my will. How I feel my happiness redoubled. Until now, no one has ever thought of giving me back that honor which I lost. Therefore I thank God profoundly for having delivered you to the light, and I thank you, the daughter dearest to me, for taking on the commitment of giving back to God the glory as if His Will had never been offended by me, and to me the great honor that the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat be established once again in the midst of the human generations. It is right that I give you the place which had been destined to me, as the first creature that came out of the hands of our Creator.”

After this, my lovable Jesus, clasping me to Himself, told me: “My daughter, not only Adam, but the whole of Heaven awaits your acts in my Will, in order to receive the honor which their human will has taken away from them. You must know that I have placed more grace in you than I placed in Adam, so that my Will might possess you and dominate you with triumph, and yours might feel honored never to have life, and to give the place to my Will. In him I did not place my Humanity as his help and strength, and as cortege of my Will, because I did not have It then. But I have placed It in you, to provide you with all the necessary helps so that your will might remain at its place, and Mine might reign and, together with you, might follow your rounds in my Eternal Volition in order to establish Its Kingdom.”

On hearing this, surprised, I said: ‘My Jesus, what are You saying? It seems to me that You want to tempt me and make fun of me. How is it possible that You have placed more grace in me than in Adam?’ And Jesus: “Certainly, certainly, my daughter. I had to make it so that your will might be sustained by another Divine Humanity, so that it would not stagger, but remain firm in my Will. Therefore, I am not making fun of you, but I am telling you this, so that you correspond to Me and be attentive.”

How in all created things God centralized His love toward man. Outpouring of love in creating him, and how the Fiat made him live in the reflections of his Creator.

I was continuing my round in all Creation, in order to follow each act of the Supreme Will in each created thing; and my always lovable Jesus came out from within my interior to accompany me through the whole space of the vault of the heavens. And as we reached each created thing, Jesus gave starts of joy and of love. Then, pausing, He told me: “My daughter, I created the heavens and I centralized my love for man in the heavens; and in order to give him greater delight, I studded them with stars. I did not love the heavens, but man in the heavens, and for him I created them. How strong and great was my love in extending this azure vault above the head of man, adorned with most refulgent stars, like a pavilion for him, such that neither kings nor emperors can have one like it. But I did not content Myself with centralizing my love for man in the heavens, which were to serve him as pure delight. Wanting to delight in love with him, I wanted to create the sun, centralizing so much love for man in the sun. I loved man in the sun - not the sun, and therefore I placed in it love of necessity, because the sun was necessary for the earth, having to serve the plants and the well being of man; love of light, which was to illuminate him; love of fire, which was to warm him; and all the effects which this sphere produces, which are innumerable – a continuous miracle placed in the vault of the heavens, which descends with its light for the good of all. I centralized so many specialties of love toward man in the sun, for as many goods and effects as it produces.

Oh! if the creature at least paid attention to my love, which the sun brings to her, how happy I would feel, and repaid of the great love I placed in this divine relater of Mine, and bearer of my love and of my light. While my Supreme Will operated, constituting Itself life of each created thing in order to give Itself as life to the human generations also through them, my love, making its way in my Eternal Fiat, centralized Itself, to love man. So, in each created thing – in the wind, in the sea, in the little flower, in the little bird that sings – in everything, I centralized my love, so that all things might bring him love. But in order to hear, comprehend and receive this my language of love, man was supposed to love Me; otherwise all Creation would remain as though mute and lifeless for him.

Now, after I created everything, I formed the nature of man with my own creative hands; and as I formed the bones, extended the nerves, formed the heart, so did I centralize my love. And after I clothed him with flesh, forming as though the most beautiful statue which no other artisan could ever make, I looked at him, and I loved him so much that, unable to contain my love, it overflowed; and breathing on him, I infused life in him. But We were not content. In an excess of love, the Sacrosanct Trinity wanted to endow him, giving him intellect, memory and will; and according to his capacity of creature, We enriched him with all the particles of Our Divine Being. The whole of the Divinity was intent on loving man and on pouring Itself into him. From the very first instant of his life, he felt all the strength of Our love, and from the depth of his heart, he expressed, with his own voice, love for his Creator. Oh! how happy We felt in hearing Our work, the statue made by Us, speaking, loving Us – and with perfect love. It was the reflection of Our love that came out of him. This love had not been contaminated by his will, and therefore his love was perfect, because he possessed the fullness of Our love. Until then, of all the things created by Us, not one thing had said to Us that it loved Us. Now, in hearing that man loved Us, Our joy, Our contentment, was so great, that as the fulfillment of Our feast, We constituted him king of all the universe, and the most beautiful jewel of Our creative hands. How beautiful man was in the first times of his creation. He was Our reflection, and these reflections gave him so much beauty as to enrapture Our love, and render him perfect in all of his acts: perfect was the glory he gave to his Creator; perfect his adoration, his love, his works. His voice was so harmonious as to resound in the whole Creation, because he possessed the divine harmony, and the harmony of that Fiat which had given him life. Everything was order in him, because Our Will brought him the order of his Creator; It rendered him happy, and made him grow in Our likeness, and according to Our words: ‘Let Us make man in Our image and likeness.’ Each one of his acts, done in the unity of the light of the Supreme Fiat, was a tint of divine beauty that he acquired. Each word of his was one more harmonious note that resounded. Everything was love in him; in everything, he sang the praises of Our glory, of Our power and infinite wisdom; and everything – heavens, sun and earth – brought him the joys, the happiness and the love of the One who had created him.

If you could form a statue the way you liked the best, and then you poured all of yourself into it, giving it all the vital humors, and with the empire of your love you gave life to it – how much would you not love it? And how much would you not want it to love you? What would your jealousy of love be, so that the whole of it would remain at your disposal, and such that you would not tolerate even one heartbeat which would not be done for you? Ah! in your statue you would look at yourself, and therefore, at every little thing not done for you, you would feel a tearing made to your very self.

So I am. Everything that the creature does not do for Me are tearings that I feel; more so, since the earth that sustains her is mine; the sun that illuminates her and warms her is mine; the water that she drinks, the food that she takes are mine. Everything is mine – she lives at my expense; and while I give her everything, she - the beautiful statue - is not for Me. What must my sorrow be then, and the affront and the offense that this statue gives Me? Think about it yourself, my daughter. Now, you must know that my Will alone can give Me back my statue – beautiful, just as I made it, because my Will is the preserver of all Our works, and the bearer of all Our reflections, in such a way that the soul lives of Our reflections, which, if she loves, administer to her the perfection of Our love; if she works, the perfection of Our works. In sum, everything she does is perfect in her, and this perfection gives her so many tints of different beauties, as to enamor the Maker who formed her. This is why I love so much that the Supreme Fiat be known and form Its Kingdom in the midst of the human generations – to establish the order between Creator and creature, and to return to place Our goods in common with her. And Our Will alone has this power; without It, there cannot be much good, nor can Our statue return to Us, as beautiful as it came out of Our creative hands.”

What the Supreme Fiat does in each created thing, and the lessons It gives to creatures in order to come and reign in their midst.

I was doing my usual round in the whole Creation, to be able to love and glorify as the Divine Fiat Itself loves and glorifies in all created things. But while I was doing this, I thought to myself: ‘My sweet Jesus makes me go around through the whole Creation, as though to reach His Will in all of Its acts, so as to keep It company, to give to Him an ‘I love You’ of mine, a ‘thank You’, an ‘I adore You’ of mine, and to ask that His Kingdom may come soon. But I do not know all that this Divine Volition does in each created thing; I would like to know It, so that my act may be one with Its own.’

Now, while I was thinking of this, my always lovable Jesus, all goodness, came out from within my interior and told me: “It is right that the little daughter of my Will know what the One from whom her origin came, does. You must know that my Eternal Fiat not only fills the whole Creation and is life of each created thing, but keeps all of Our qualities spread out in the whole Creation. In fact, the Creation was to serve as terrestrial paradise for the human family, and therefore It was to be the echo of the beatitudes and happinesses of Heaven. If It did not contain the joys and the contentments of the Celestial Fatherland, how could It form the happiness of the terrestrial fatherland? More so, since one was the Will – both that which beatified Heaven and that which was to make the earth happy. Now, if you want to know what my Will does in the heavens - in that azure which appears always firm and stretched out above the heads of all, there is not one point in which heavens cannot be seen; both at night and at daytime they remain always at their place. So, Our Will keeps Our eternity, Our firmness that never changes, spread out; It remains always in Its perfect balance, nor does It ever change because of any circumstance. And while It loves and glorifies Our eternity, Our unshakable Being, It makes the earth happy and says to man: ‘Look – take the heavens as model, which are always stretched out above your head. Be always firm in good, just as I am, always stretched out from here in order to protect you, so that you too, like a second heaven populated with stars - which to your eyes seem so bound to the heavens that it can be said that the stars are daughters of the heavens - so that you too will be firm in good, and the heaven of your soul will be populated with stars, like many births from you and daughters of yours.’

So, in doing your round in the Creation, when you arrive at the heavens, you too, united with Our Will, love and glorify Our eternity, Our unshakeable Being that never changes, and pray that It may render creatures firm in good, that they may be the reflection of the heavens, and may enjoy the happiness brought by a good which is continuous and never interrupted.

Then, continuing your round in the space of Creation, you will arrive at the sun, a sphere which is closer to the earth than the heavens, in order to bring to creatures the source of terrestrial happiness, and the similes of the beatitudes and the flavors of the happiness of the Celestial Fatherland. Do you want to know, then, what my Will does in the sun? It glorifies Our endless light, Our innumerable flavors; It loves and glorifies the infinity of Our sweetnesses, the indescribable tints of Our beauties; and with its heat, It echoes Our immense love. Oh! how the sun sings Our praises, and loves and glorifies Our Divine Being. Just as Our Divinity, unveiled, beatifies the whole Celestial Fatherland with acts ever new, in the same way, the sun, faithful echo of its Creator, celestial bearer of the Supreme Majesty, veiled by its light in which my Will dominates and reigns, brings terrestrial happiness to the earth. It brings its light and its heat; it brings sweetness and flavors, almost innumerable, to plants, to herbs, to fruits; it brings color and fragrance to the flowers, and so many different tints of beauty, as to delight and embellish all nature. Oh! how the sun – or rather, my Will in the sun – through plants, fruits and flowers, offers true terrestrial happiness to the human generations. And if they do not enjoy it fully, it is because they have moved away from that Will which reigns in the sun; and the human will, placing itself against the Divine, breaks its happiness. And my Will, veiled in the light of the sun, while loving and singing the praises of Our divine qualities, from the height of its sphere says to man: ‘In everything you do, be always light, just as I am, so that the light may convert you completely into heat, and you may become as one single flame of love for your Creator. Look at me: by being always light and heat, I possess sweetness; so much so, that I communicate it to the plants, and from the plants to you. You too, if you are always light and heat, will possess the divine sweetness; you will have no more bile and angers in your heart; you will possess the flavors and the different tints of the beauties of the Supreme Being. You will be sun like me; more so, since God made me for you, and you were made for Him, therefore it is right that you be more sun than I.’

See, my daughter, how many things you have to do united with my Will in that sphere of the sun. You have to sing the praises, love and glorify Our light, Our love, Our infinite sweetnesses, Our innumerable flavors and Our incomprehensible beauty. And you have to impetrate for creatures all the divine qualities which the sun contains, so that, in finding the divine qualities in their midst, my Will may come to reign unveiled, with Its full triumph, into the midst of the human generations.

And now, my daughter, let us descend into the lower part of the earth; let us go into the sea, in which immense masses of crystal clear waters are piled up – symbol of divine purity. These waters are always moving – they never stop. They are without voice, and they murmur; they are without life, yet so strong as to form waves so high, that they overwhelm and shatter ships, peoples and things, to then descend into their shore after having knocked down the things which they invested – peaceful, as if they had done nothing, continuing their usual murmuring. Oh! how my Will in the sea sings the praises, loves and glorifies Our power, Our strength, Our eternal motion that never stops. And if Our justice forms its just roaring waves, such as to knock down cities and peoples, like peaceful sea after the storm, Our peace is never disturbed, and my Will, veiled by the waters of the sea, says to man: ‘Be pure like these crystal clear waters. But if you want to be pure, move always toward Heaven, otherwise you would putrefy, just as these waters, so pure, would putrefy if they did not always move. Let the murmuring of your prayer be continuous, if you want to be strong and powerful like Me - if you want to knock down the strongest enemies and your rebellious will, which prevents Me from unveiling Myself and going out of this sea to come to reign in you and extend in you the peaceful sea of my grace. Is it possible that you want to remain below this sea that glorifies Me so much?’

You too, sing the praises, love and glorify Our purity, Our power, strength and justice, united to my Will that awaits you in the sea as Its own daughter; as well as Our eternal motion toward creatures in order to do good to them, and the continuous murmuring of Our love through the created things, which, while it murmurs love, wants the continuous requital of the murmuring of the continuous love of the creatures. And pray my Will to give them the divine qualities It exercises in the sea, so that It may come and reign in the midst of those who now keep It rejected in the whole Creation.

So, if you want to know what my Will does in all Creation, go around in It, and my Fiat, finding Its daughter in all created things, will unveil Itself and will tell you what It does toward the Divine Majesty, and the call and the lessons It wants to give to creatures.”

Hiding one's acts in the acts of the Celestial Mama, and how they stand in for Her. How Redemption will serve no longer as food for the sick, but as food for the healthy.

I continued my living in the Divine Fiat, and while doing my acts in It, I absorbed light; and as it formed its reflections, as many threads of light come out, which formed a net of light that extended over the earth in order to catch the creatures. And Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, every time you go around in my Will, you take more light in order to form the net with which to catch the creatures. And do you know what this net is? It is my knowledges. The more knowledges I manifest to you about the Eternal Fiat, the more I dispose and expand the net in order to catch the souls who must live in my Kingdom; and this disposes the Lord to give them to you. When you go around in Our Will, by virtue of It, your acts become light, and extend so much as to touch the Divinity and draw more light of truth into the midst of creatures.”

Then, while I continued my round in everything that has been done in the Supreme Will, I arrived at everything that my Celestial Mama had done in It, and I said to Her: ‘Sovereign Queen, I come to hide my little love in the great sea of your love, my adoration toward God in the immense ocean of yours. I hide my thanksgivings in the sea of yours; I hide my supplications, my sighs, my tears and pains in the sea of yours, so that my sea of love and yours may be one, my adoration and yours may be one, my thanksgivings may acquire the vastness of your own expanses; my supplications, tears and pains may become one single sea with yours, so that I too may have my seas of love, of adoration, etc. And just as your Sovereign Height impetrated with this the longed for Redeemer, so I too may present myself before the Divine Majesty with all these seas, in order to ask, to beseech – to implore the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat. My Queen Mama, I must use your very life, your very seas of love and of graces, to conquer It to make It concede Its Kingdom upon earth, just as You conquered It to let the Eternal Word descend. Don't You want to help your little daughter by giving me your seas, so that I may obtain that the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat come soon upon earth?’

Now, while I was doing and saying this, I thought to myself: 'My Celestial Mama did not occupy Herself, nor did She have great interest in the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat, that It might come soon to reign upon earth. She had interest in the longed for Redeemer, and She obtained Him. As for the Divine Fiat, which was more necessary, and which was to put perfect order between Creator and creature, She did not occupy Herself with It; while it was up to Her, as Queen and Mother, to reconcile the human will and the Divine, so that the Divine might reign with Its full triumph.' At that moment, my always lovable Jesus came out from within my interior and, all goodness, told me: "My daughter, the mission of my inseparable Mama was for the longed for Redeemer, and She fulfilled it perfectly. However, you must know that everything that both She and I did - its substance, its source and primary cause - was the Kingdom of my Will. But since Redemption was necessary in order for this to come, though the Kingdom of the Fiat was inside our acts, on the outside we were all intent and occupied with the Kingdom of Redemption. On the other hand, your mission is exclusively for the Kingdom of the Supreme Will, and everything that the Sovereign Queen and I did, is at your disposal, to help you, to stand in for you, to give you access to the Divine Majesty in order to impetrate and ask, incessantly, for the coming of the Kingdom of the Eternal Fiat. In order for you to receive the good of the longed for Redeemer, you should have done your part; but since at that time you were not there, my Mama stood in for you. Now you must stand in for Her, in Her part, for the Kingdom of my Will. So, the Mama stood in for the daughter, and the daughter stands in for the Mama. More so, since the Queen of Heaven was the first daughter of my Will, and because She always lived within Our expanse, She formed Her own seas of love, of graces, of adoration, of light. Now, since you are the second daughter of my Will, what is hers is yours, because your Mama keeps you as a birth from Herself, and She enjoys that Her daughter be inside Her own seas in order to impetrate the so longed for Kingdom of the Divine Fiat upon earth. Therefore, see how abundantly your Mama makes up for you, giving you all that is hers; even more, She feels honored that Her immense seas serve you, in order to impetrate a Kingdom so holy."

Then, after this, I was following, in the Divine Will, what Jesus has done in Redemption; and my sweet Jesus, coming back, added: "My daughter, my Redemption came as remedy for man, and therefore It serves as remedy, as medicine, as food, for the sick, for the blind, for the mute, and for all kinds of maladies. And because they are sick, they do not enjoy nor receive all the strength which all the remedies that I came to bring them for their good contain. The Eucharistic Sacrament which I left as food in order to give them perfect health - many eat It over and over again, but they appear always sick. Poor food of my very Life, hidden under the veils of the accidents of the bread - how many corrupted palates, how many undigesting stomachs, which prevent creatures from enjoying the taste of my food, and from digesting all the strength of my Sacramental Life. And so they remain infirm; and because they are members feverish in evil, they take it with no appetite. This is why I long so much for the coming of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat - because, then, everything I did in coming upon earth will serve as food for those who enjoy perfect health. What is not the difference between a sick person who takes the same food, and someone else who enjoys perfect health? The infirm one takes it without appetite, without taste, and it serves him in order to sustain himself and not die. The healthy one takes it with appetite, and because he enjoys it, he takes more, and preserves himself strong and healthy. So, what will not be my contentment in seeing that, in the Kingdom of my Will, everything I did will serve no longer as food for the sick, but as food for the children of my Kingdom, who will be all full of vigor and in perfect health? Even more, by possessing my Will, they will possess my permanent Life within them, just as the Blessed in Heaven possess It. So, my Will will be the veil that will hide my Life in them. And just as the Blessed possess Me within themselves as their own life, because true happiness has its origin inside the soul, and so the happiness which they receive continuously from the Divinity holds hands and exchanges the kiss with the happiness which they possess inside, and this is why they are fully happy; in the same way, the soul who possesses my Will will have my perennial Life within her, which will serve her as continuous food – not once a day, like the food of my Sacramental Life. In fact, my Will will make greater display, nor will It be content with giving Itself once a day, but It will give Itself continuously, because It knows that these have pure palates and strong stomachs to be able to enjoy and digest, in every moment, the strength, the light, the Divine Life. And the Sacraments, my Sacramental Life, will serve as food, as delight, as new happiness for the Life of the Supreme Fiat which they will possess.

The Kingdom of my Will will be the true echo of the Celestial Fatherland, in which, while the Blessed possess their God as their own life, they receive Him into themselves also from the outside. So, inside and outside of themselves, Divine Life they possess, and Divine Life they receive. What will not be my happiness in giving Myself sacramentally to the children of the Eternal Fiat, and in finding my own Life in them? Then will my Sacramental Life have Its complete fruit; and as the species are consumed, I will no longer have the sorrow of leaving my children without the food of my continuous Life, because my Will, more than sacramental accidents, will maintain Its Divine Life always with Its full possession. In the Kingdom of my Will there will be neither foods nor communions that are interrupted – but perennial; and everything I did in Redemption will serve no longer as remedy, but as delight, as joy, as happiness, and as beauty ever growing. So, the triumph of the Supreme Fiat will give complete fruit to the Kingdom of Redemption.”

The more the soul has done the Divine Will on earth, the more paths she has formed for herself in order to receive suffrages in Purgatory. The more the soul possesses of the Divine Will, the more value her prayers, works and pains contain.

I continue to live all abandoned in the adorable Will; and while I was praying, I thought to myself: ‘How I would like to descend into the prisons of the purging souls to release them all, and in the light of the Eternal Will, bring them all to the Celestial Fatherland.’ At that moment, my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, the more the souls who have passed to the next life have been submitted to my Will, and the more acts they have done in It, the more paths they have formed for themselves in order to receive suffrages from the earth. So, the more they have done my Will, forming for themselves the ways of communication of the goods which are present in the Church and which belong to Me, there is no path formed by them which does not bring, to some a relief, to some a prayer, to some a diminution of pains. The suffrages walk within these royal paths of my Will, to bring to each one the merit, the fruit and the capital which one has formed for oneself in my Will. Therefore, without It, there are no paths and no means in order to receive suffrages. Even though the suffrages and everything that the Church does always descend into Purgatory, they go, however, to those who have formed paths for themselves. For the others, who have not done my Will, the paths are closed or do not exist at all; and if these were saved, it is because at least at the point of death they have recognized the supreme dominion of my Will, they have adored It, and have submitted themselves to It – and this last act has rescued them; otherwise, they could not even be saved. For one who has always done my Will, there are no paths to Purgatory - his path goes straight to Heaven. And one who has recognized my Will and has submitted to It, not in everything and always, but in great part, has formed for himself so many paths and receives so much, that Purgatory sends him quickly to Heaven.

Now, just as the purging souls had to form their paths to be able to receive suffrages, in the same way, the living, in order to send suffrages, must do my Will in order to form their paths, so as to make their suffrages ascend into Purgatory. If they make suffrages, but they are far away from my Will, since the communication with my Will is missing, which alone unites and binds everyone, their suffrages will not find the way in order to ascend, the feet to be able to walk, the strength in order to give relief. They will be suffrages without life, because the true life of my Will is missing, which alone has the virtue of giving life to all goods. The more the soul possesses of my Will, the more value her prayers, her works, her pains, contain; and so she can bring more relief to those blessed souls. I measure and give value to everything that the soul can do, according to how much of my Will she possesses. If my Will runs in all of her acts, the measure I take is immense; even more, I never stop measuring, and I put so much value into it, that its weight cannot be calculated. On the other hand, if one does not care much about my Will, the measure is scarce and the value of little importance. And if one does not care at all, as much as the soul may do, I have nothing to measure, nor any value to give. Therefore, if they have no value, how can they bring relief to those souls who, in Purgatory, recognize nothing, nor can they receive anything, but what my Eternal Fiat produces.

But do you know who can bring all reliefs, the light that purifies, the love that transforms? One who possesses the life of my Will in everything and in whom It dominates triumphantly. This soul has not even need of paths, because by possessing my Will, she has the right to all paths. She can go to all points, because she possesses within herself the royal path of my Will in order to go into that deep prison, to bring them all reliefs and liberations. More so since, in creating man, We gave him Our Will as his special inheritance, and We recognize everything he has done within the boundaries of Our inheritance, with which We endowed him. Anything else is not recognized by Us – it is not Our thing, nor can We allow anything to enter Heaven which has not been done by creatures either in Our Will, or at least in order to do It. Since Creation came out of the Eternal Fiat, Our Will, jealous, allows no act to enter the Celestial Fatherland which has not passed through Its Fiat Itself. Oh! If all knew what Will of God means, and how all works, even those which appear to be good, but are empty of It, are works empty of light, empty of value, empty of life; and works without light, without value and without life do not enter into Heaven. Oh! how attentive they would be to do my Will in everything and forever.”

How the Most Holy Virgin was the faithful copy of Her Creator and of all Creation. How the Divine Will has the virtue of changing drops of water into sea. The Divine Will veiled within created things.

I was in my continuous state in the Supreme Will, praying my Queen Mama to help me to impetrate this Kingdom of the Eternal Fiat; and my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, the most perfect copy of the children of the Kingdom of my Will was my Celestial Mama; and because

It had Its first daughter in It, Redemption could come; otherwise, had We not had the first daughter of Our Will, I, the Eternal Word, would never have descended from Heaven. In order to descend upon earth, I would never have made use of, nor trusted, children who were extraneous to Our Will. So, you see, a daughter of Our Will was needed for the coming of the Kingdom of Redemption; and because She was daughter of the Kingdom of the Eternal Fiat, She was the faithful copy of Her Creator and the perfect copy of all Creation. She was to enclose all the acts that the Supreme Will exercises in all created things; and because She had supremacy and sovereignty over all Creation, She was to enclose within Herself the heavens, the stars, the sun and everything, so that the copy of the heavens, of the sun, of the sea and also of the earth, all flowery, might be found in Her Sovereignty. So, in looking at my Mama, one could see in Her portents never before seen. One could see heavens; one could see most refulgent sun; one could see crystal clear sea, in which We reflected Ourselves in order to see Our daughter. One could see earth at springtime, always flowery, which attracted the Celestial Maker to take His strolls on it. Oh! how beautiful was the Celestial Sovereign, as We saw in Her not only Our copy, but all of Our works enclosed in Her. And this, because She enclosed Our Will within Herself.

Now, for the coming of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat, another daughter of Our Will was needed, because if she were not Its daughter, Our Will could entrust to her neither Its secrets, nor Its sorrows, nor Its knowledges, Its prodigies, Its sanctity, Its dominions. Just as a father and a mother enjoy making their goods known to their children and making their children possess them – even more, they would like to possess more in order to make them more rich and happy – so does my Will enjoy making Its goods known to Its children, to make them rich and happy, of a happiness without end. Now, in the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat, We will have the copies of the Sovereign Queen. So, She too longs for and awaits this Divine Kingdom on earth, in order to have Her copies. What a beautiful Kingdom It will be – a Kingdom of light, of infinite riches, a Kingdom of perfect sanctity and of dominion. Our children of this Kingdom will all be kings and queens; they will all be members of the divine and royal family. They will enclose all Creation within themselves; they will have the resemblance, the physiognomy of Our Celestial Father, and therefore will be the fulfillment of Our glory and the crown of Our head.”

Then, I remained thinking about what Jesus had told me, and I thought to myself: ‘Before She knew that She was to be the Mother of the Word, my Mama had no pain or sorrow; more so, since by living within the expanses of the Supreme Will, She was happy. Therefore, among the many seas She possessed, She lacked the sea of pains. Yet, without this sea of sorrow, She impetrated the longed for Redeemer.’ And Jesus, resuming His speaking, added: “My daughter, even before knowing that She was to be my Mother, my dear Mama had Her sea of sorrow, and this sea was the pain because of the offenses given to Her Creator. Oh! how She grieved. And then, this pain of Hers was animated by a Divine Will, which She possessed, and which contains the virtue of a fount: It has the virtue of changing everything that is done in It – the littlest things, the drops of water - into unending sea. My Will does not know how to do small things, but all great. And this is so true, that it was enough for Us to open Our mouth to say ‘Fiat’ in order to extend a heaven whose boundaries cannot be seen; one ‘Fiat’ to form a sun that fills the whole earth with light; and many other things. This says in clear notes that if my Will operates or invests an atom, a little act, that atom, that little act, becomes sea; and if It bends down to do small things, It makes up for them with Its regenerative virtue, making of them such a great number that man cannot arrive at counting them all. Who can arrive at counting how many fish and how many species are in the sea? How many birds, how many plants fill the earth? Therefore, the little 'I love You' in my Will becomes sea of love; the little prayer turns into sea of prayer, the 'I adore You' into sea of adoration, the little pains into sea of pains. And if the soul repeats her 'I love You', her adoration, her prayers in my Volition, and suffers in It, my Will rises, forming gigantic waves of love, of prayers and of pains, which go to unload themselves into the unending sea of the Eternal One, in such a way as to place the love of God and that of the creature in common, because one is the Will of both One and the other. Therefore, one who lets herself be dominated by my Will possesses as many seas for as many acts as she does in It; and while she does little, she has much. She has a Divine Volition which delights in making of the little act of the creature a sea; and only with these seas can she impetrate the longed for Kingdom of the Divine Fiat. This is why Our newborn, the little daughter of my Will, was needed, so that, turning her little pains, her 'I love You' and everything she does into seas that communicate with the sea of the Eternal One, she can have ascendancy to impetrate the Kingdom of my Will."

After this, I was thinking to myself: 'When my sweet Jesus speaks about His Will, He always touches upon Creation, for the most part. How is it?' And Jesus, moving again, told me: "My daughter, one who must live in the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat, must have, as her beginning, her origin and everything that my Will has done and is doing for love of her. In fact, my Will is not loved because It is not known. Now, Creation is the speaking life of my Will. In all created things my Will is hidden like a noble Queen who, in order to go out, wants to be known. Knowledge will tear the veil that hides It, so as to go out and reign in the midst of Its children. And who can make known what my Will does for love of creatures better than Creation, which is looked at and touched by everyone, with an act ever present?

My daughter, look at the passionate love of this noble Queen. She reaches the point of veiling Herself with earth in order to render it firm, so that man may walk safely upon it. And as he walks over the veil of earth which hides Her, She takes the soles of his feet in Her noble and royal little hands, so that man may not stagger, in order to give him firm step. And while holding, through mother earth, the soles of man tightly to Her noble breast, She would want to go out, unveiling Herself of the veil of earth that covers Her, but man walks over Her without even paying attention to see who is sustaining his step - who maintains that great mass of earth so firmly for him, so that he may not stagger. And the noble Queen continues to remain veiled with earth, and with unspeakable patience, which only a Divine Will can possess, It waits to be recognized in order to be loved and to narrate Her long story - what She has done for love of man, veiled by this earth. And Her love is so great, that many times She feels the necessity to tear that veil of earth which covers Her; and making use of Her dominion, She shakes the earth and, with Her empire, hides cities and peoples into Her bosom, so that man may know that inside that earth, under his feet, there is a Will ruling and dominating, which loves and is not loved, and which, sorrowful, shakes Itself to make Itself known. In the Gospel, one can read with wonder of when, prostrated at the feet of my Apostles, I washed their feet; and I did not skip even the perfidious Judas. This act, which the Church remembers, was certainly very humble and of unspeakable tenderness, but I did this act only once. But my Will descends even lower; It places Itself under their feet with a continuous act, in order to sustain them, to render the earth firm, so that they may not fall into the abyss. Yet, no attention. This noble Queen is waiting with invincible patience, veiled for so many centuries in all created things, for Her Will to be known. And when It becomes known, She will tear the many veils that hide Her, and will make known what She has done for so many centuries, for love of man. She will say unheard-of things, excesses of love, which no one has ever thought of. This is why, in speaking to you about my Will, I often speak about Creation – because my Will is life of all created things, and through them It gives life to all; and this life wants to be known so that the Kingdom of the Eternal Fiat may come.

Everywhere is my Will veiled. It is veiled in the wind, and from within those veils, It brings man Its refrigerating freshness, as though caressing him, and Its regenerative breath in order to regenerate him continuously to new life ever growing in grace. But the noble Queen, veiled in the wind, feels Her caresses being rejected into offenses, Her freshness into ardors of human passions, and Her regenerative breath being requited with a deadly breath against Her grace. And She shakes Her veils, and the wind turns into fury; and with its might, it sweeps away peoples, cities and regions as if they were feathers, making known the power of the noble Queen hidden in the wind. There is not one created thing in which my Will is not veiled, and therefore all of them are waiting for It to become known, and for the coming of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat and of Its full triumph.”

Jesus promises to bring Luisa to Heaven when He has completed His manifestation. The new apostles of the Fiat. How one who lives in It centralizes the heavens, the sun and everything within herself.

I was feeling all oppressed under the weight of the privation of my sweet Jesus. Oh! how I longed for the Celestial Fatherland, in which I will no longer lose sight of Him – I will no longer be subjected to the hard martyrdom of feeling myself dying, without dying!

Now, while I was tired and exhausted of waiting, my sweet Life, my dear Good, my sweet Jesus, moved in my interior, but all afflicted, as it seemed He was sending chastisements over the earth, and in order not to give me more pain, He did not want me to see them. But from the way I saw Him, I understood the chastisements He was sending. And, sighing, He told me: “My daughter, courage, let Me finish manifesting to you what is necessary, regarding the Kingdom of my Will, so that nothing may be lacking in order to form It in the midst of the human family. Then, after I have completed everything, I will quickly bring you into our Fatherland. Do you think that you will see the full triumph of the Kingdom of the Eternal Fiat before coming to Heaven? It is from Heaven that you will see Its full triumph. It will happen to you as it happened to Me with the Kingdom of Redemption. I did everything that was needed; I formed the foundation, I gave the laws and the counsels which were needed; I instituted the Sacraments, I left the Gospel as the norm of their life, I suffered unheard-of pains unto death; but while being on earth, I saw little or almost nothing of the fruits and of the carrying out of Redemption. After I had done everything, and had nothing left to do, I entrusted everything to the Apostles, that they might be the criers of the Kingdom of Redemption, so that the fruits of the works I did for the Kingdom of Redemption might come out.

The same will happen for the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat. We will do It together, my daughter. Your pains, your long sacrifices, your incessant prayers that my Kingdom may come soon, and my manifestations about It – I will unite everything together with Me and will form the foundations. And once I have completed everything, I will entrust my Kingdom to my ministers, so that, like second apostles of the Kingdom of my Will, they may be the criers of It. Do you think that the coming of Father Di Francia, who shows so much interest and who has taken to heart the publication of what regards my Will, came by chance? No, no – I Myself disposed it. It is a providential act of the Supreme Will that wants him as first apostle of the Divine Fiat and proclaimer of It. And since he happens to be the founder of an order, it is easier for him to approach bishops, priests and people, also within his own institute, in order to proclaim the Kingdom of my Will. This is why I assist him so much and I give him special light, because in order to understand my Will it takes great graces – not little lights, but sun, to comprehend a Divine, Holy and Eternal Will, as well as great disposition on the part of the one to whom this office is entrusted. And then, the daily coming of the priest, I Myself also disposed, that I might find quickly the first apostles of the Fiat of my Kingdom, so that they might proclaim what regards my Eternal Will. Therefore, let Me finish first, so that, after I have completed it, I may entrust it to the new apostles of my Will; and you will be able to come to Heaven, to see from up there the fruits of the longed for Kingdom of the Eternal Fiat.”

Then, I continued to do my usual acts in the Supreme Volition, and I thought to myself: ‘My poor mind goes around through the sea, through the sun, through the heavens – everywhere, in order to follow the acts that the adorable Will does in the Creation. But once I finish going around, I always find myself down below, in my hard exile. Oh! how I would like to remain at least in the blue heavens, to do the office of a star for my Creator. But I would disappear in the midst of the stars, because I am neither beautiful nor shining like the stars; and so they would all put me out, hurling me down to the bottom - my long exile. But while I was thinking of this, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior and told me: “My daughter, one who lives in my Will, lives in the unity of her Creator, who keeps with Himself, in His unity, the whole Creation. And just as He keeps the Creation, so does He keep, in His unity, the soul who lives in the Eternal Fiat. And this unity brings her all the reflections of her Creator, as well as His unity with all Creation, in such a way that the living image of the One who created her can be seen in the soul. And by maintaining His unity with all, He keeps her in the reflections of all the things created by Him; and these reflections form the sea, the sun, the heavens, the stars and all the enchanting varieties of nature in the depth of the soul. So, the soul who lives in my Will, placed in the azure heavens, would be the most beautiful ornament for this azure vault, such as to astonish Heaven and earth. She would have, all within herself, her Creator, a heaven, a sun, a sea – everything as her own; nor would she lack even the earth, all flowery, and the sweet singing of the birds, bearer of the joy and of the harmonious music of their Creator, because each created thing contains a divine note. Therefore, instead of hurling you down, they would aspire to keep you in their midst, because among the many prodigies which my Will contains, It has the power to portray all of Our works in the soul, and to centralize all of Its acts in her. It is not content if It does not see Its own beauty in the soul - if It does not find Its echo, Its joy and all of Itself.”

How one who lives in the Divine Will encloses all Creation within herself, and is the reflector of her Creator. Two effects of sin.

My days always alternate between the privations and the short visits of my sweet Jesus; and many times He is like a flash that escapes; and as He escapes, I remain with the piercing nail: when will He come back? And, sighing, I call Him: ‘My Jesus, come – come back to your little exiled one; come back once and for all. Come back to bring me to Heaven; do not leave me in my long exile any longer, for I can bear no more.' But as much as I called Him, my calls were in vain. So, abandoning myself in His Holy Divine Volition, I did my usual acts as much as I could, going around through the whole Creation. And my sweet Jesus, moved to compassion for my poor soul, which could bear no more, put out an arm from within my interior and, all pity, told me: "My daughter, courage, do not stop - let your flight in my Eternal Will be continuous. You must know that my Will does Its continuous office in all created things, and Its act is distinct in each thing – It does not do in the heavens what It does in the sun, nor in sun what It does in the sea. My Will has Its special act in each thing; and even though my Will is one, Its acts are innumerable. Now, the soul who lives in It comes to enclose within herself all the acts that my Will does in all Creation. So, she must do what It does in the heavens, in the sun, in the sea, etc. She must enclose everything within herself, so that the soul may follow all the acts of my Will – and not only this, but so that my Will may receive the requiting act of the creature. Therefore, if your act is not continuous, my Will does not wait for you – It follows Its course, but It leaves in you the void of Its acts, and a certain distance and dissimilarity remains between you and my Will.

Now, you must know the great good which you enclose by enclosing within yourself all that my Will does in the Creation. While you follow Its acts, you receive the reflection of the heavens, and the heavens are formed and extended in you; you receive the reflection of the sun, and the sun is formed in you; you receive the reflection of the sea, and the sea is formed in you. You receive the reflection of the wind, of the flower, of all nature – in sum, of everything; and, oh! how the heavens that protect, the sun that illuminates, warms and fecundates, the sea that inundates and forms its waves of love, of mercy, of grace and of strength for the good of all, the wind that purifies and brings rain over the souls burned by passions, the flower of the perpetual adoration to your Creator, arise from the depth of your soul. This is why it is the prodigy of prodigies; the living in my Will is the true triumph of the Supreme Fiat – because the soul becomes the reflector of her Creator and of all Our works. In fact, only when It places in the soul what It can and knows how to do – then does Our Will triumph completely. It wants to see in her not only the One who created her, but all of His works; It is not content if she lacks even the slightest thing that belongs to It. The souls of the Supreme Fiat will be Our works – not incomplete, but complete; they will be the new prodigies never before seen or known, either by the earth or by Heaven. What will not be the enchantment, the surprise of the very Blessed, when they see the first daughter of the Divine Fiat enter their Celestial Fatherland? What will their contentment, their glory not be, in seeing her carrying her Creator with her, with all of His works – the heavens, the sun, the sea, all the flowery earth with its varied beauties? They will recognize in her the complete work of the Eternal Will, because It alone can make these prodigies and these complete works."

Then, I continued my abandonment in the Eternal Fiat in order to receive Its reflections, and my sweet Jesus added: "My daughter, my Celestial Mama was the first who occupied the first place in Heaven as Daughter of the Supreme Volition; and because She was the first, She has around Herself the place for all the children of the Supreme Fiat. So, around the Queen of Heaven many empty places can be seen, which can be occupied by no one else but Her copies. And since She was the first from the generation of my Will, the Kingdom of the Fiat will also be called 'Kingdom of the Virgin'. Oh! how the Sovereignty over all Creation will be recognized in these children of Ours. In fact, by virtue of my Will, these will enjoy indissoluble bonds with all created things; they will be in continuous relations of communication with them. They will be the true children, in whom the Eternal Creator will feel honored, glorified to have them as children, because He will recognize in them His own Divine Will operating, which has reproduced His true images.”

After this, I was thinking to myself: ‘Before sinning, my first father Adam possessed all these bonds and relations of communication with all Creation, because by possessing the Supreme Will as whole, it was as though natural for him to feel within himself all the communications, wherever It operated. Now, in withdrawing from this Will so holy, did he not feel the tearing he made from all Creation? - the snapping of all communications and of all bonds, broken from It as though in one single breath? If by just thinking of whether I must do an act or not, and by just hesitating, I feel that the heavens tremble, the sun withdraws, and all Creation is shaken and is in the act of leaving me alone, so much so that I myself tremble together with them, and, frightened, immediately, without hesitating, I do what I must do - how could he do that? Did he not feel this tearing, so harrowing and cruel?’

And Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, Adam felt this tearing so harrowing, but in spite of this he fell into the maze of his will, which gave him no more peace, either to him or to his posterity. All Creation withdrew from him as though in one single breath, and happiness, peace, strength, sovereignty - everything withdrew. He remained alone with himself. Poor Adam, how much it cost him to withdraw from my Will. Just by feeling isolated, no longer surrounded by the cortege of the whole Creation, he felt such fright and horror, that he became the fearful man. He was afraid of everything – even of my very works; and with reason, because it is said: ‘One who is not with Me is against Me’. Since he was no longer linked with them, by justice they were to put themselves against him. Poor Adam, there is much reason to have compassion for him. He had no example of anyone else who had fallen, and of the great evil that had occurred to him, so that he might be watchful in order not to fall. He had no idea of evil. In fact, my daughter, the evil, the sin, the fall of someone else has two effects: for one who is evil and wants to fall, it serves as example, as a spur, as an incentive to fall into the abyss of evil; for one who is good and does not want to fall, it serves as antidote, as deterrent, as help and defense so as not to fall. In fact, seeing the great evil, the misfortune of someone else, serves as an example in order not to fall and not to follow that same path, so as not to find oneself in that same misfortune. So, the evil of someone else causes one to be watchful and on guard. Therefore, the fall of Adam is for you a great help, a lesson and a call, while he had no lesson from evil, because, then, evil did not exist.”

How, by not following the Divine Will in the Creation, the soul would lack the reflection of Its works. How great graces are needed for the Sanctity of living in the Holy Volition.

I was doing my usual acts in the Divine Volition, and I thought to myself: ‘If I spent one day without doing these acts, what would be the good I would lose and the evil I would do?’ And my always lovable Jesus told me: “My daughter, do you know what you would do? By not doing your acts in my Will, you would lack the reflection of all Creation; and because you would lack Its reflection, on that day the heavens would not extend within you, the sun would not rise, the sea would not flow within you, your earth would not let the new flowering bloom, nor would the joy, the music, the singing of the inhabitants of the air, the sweet symphony of the spheres, be heard in you. My Will would not find Its echo in you, therefore It would feel the sorrow that, on that day, the little daughter of Its Volition has not given It the requital of a heaven for love of It, because she lacked the reflection of Its heaven; she has not made the sun rise in return for Its eternal light; she has not let It hear the sea flowing, nor its sweet murmuring, nor the darting of the mute inhabitants of the waves. My Will would feel all of Its acts, the reflection of Its works, missing in you, nor could It form Its echo in you. And in Its sorrow, It would say: 'Ah! today my little daughter has not given me a heaven as I have given to her, nor a sun, a sea, flowers, singing, music and joy, as I have given to her. So, she has gone out of my likeness; her notes have not harmonized with mine. I have loved her with many manifestations and with incessant love – she did not.' See what you would do! My Will would not tolerate in you, Its little daughter, the void of Its works."

On hearing this, I said: 'My Jesus, my Love, may it never be that I give this sorrow to your adorable Will. You will help me - You will give me more grace, and I will be more attentive in order to receive this reflection, this echo, which your Holy Will produces in the whole Creation, so that I may correspond with mine.' And Jesus, resuming His speaking, added: "You must know that great graces are needed in order to form in the soul the sanctity of living in my Will. The other sanctities can be formed with small graces, because it is not an immense and eternal Will that they must embrace and possess, but little particles of It, Its commands, Its shadow. On the other hand, in this sanctity they must possess my Will as their own life, they must form Its cortege and make Its acts their own acts; therefore, seas of graces are needed in order to form this sanctity. My Will must bilocate Itself in order to extend Its sea in the depth of the soul, and then extend another sea of Itself, so as to be able to receive what befits Its sanctity, Its unending light, Its immensity without boundaries. The goodwill of the soul is nothing other than the bottom of the sea which, forming the shore, surrounds the waters in order to form the sea.

My daughter, it takes much to sustain and preserve a Divine Will in the soul; and the Divinity, knowing that the creature does not have equivalent things for a Will so holy, holds nothing back - everything is placed in her, at her disposal, in order to form the sanctity of living in my Will. God Himself acts as prime actor and spectator; my Humanity gives everything – everything It did, suffered and conquered, which are endless seas - as help of this sanctity, fully divine. The Queen Mama Herself places Her seas of grace, of love and of sorrow at her disposal, as help, and feels honored that they serve the Supreme Will in order to accomplish the sanctity of the Eternal Fiat in the creature. Heaven and earth want to give, and they give, because, feeling all invested by this Will, they desire - they yearn to help the fortunate creature to fulfill the purpose of Creation – the origin of the sanctity which the Supreme Volition wanted from the creature. Therefore, nothing will you lack on the part of your Jesus; more so, since this is my desire from of old, wanted, yearned-for and longed-for, for as long as six thousand years: wanting to see Our image reproduced in the creature, Our sanctity impressed, Our Will operating, Our works enclosed in her, and Our Fiat fulfilled. I wanted the enjoyment and to take the pleasure of seeing Our reflector in the creature; otherwise, the Creation would be without delight, without amusement, without harmony for Us. Our echo would not find the way through which to resound; Our sanctity, the place in which to impress itself; Our beauty, the place in which to shine; Our love, the place into which to pour itself; Our wisdom and mastery would find no place in which to operate and unfold. So, all of Our attributes would remain hampered in their work, because they would not find the suitable material with which to form their work, so as to have their reflector. On the other hand, in the soul in whom my Will reigns, my Will disposes her to become suitable material, so that Our attributes may carry out their delightful crafting.”

How each act of the human will is a veil that prevents the soul from knowing the Divine Will. Jealousy of the Divine Will. How It takes on all the offices for the soul. Threat of wars and of chastisements.

My usual state of abandonment in the Supreme Fiat continues, but at the same time I call the One who forms all my happiness, my life, my all. And Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, the more you abandon yourself in the Supreme Volition, the more you advance along Its ways, the more knowledges you acquire, and the more you take possession of the goods which are in the Divine Will; because in It there is always something to know and to take. Being the primary inheritance given by God to the creature and possessing the eternal goods, my Will has the task to always give to one who lives in this inheritance. And only when It finds the creature within the boundaries of Its Volition - then is It content and begins the activity of Its office; and putting Itself in feast, It gives new things to Its heiress. So, the soul who lives in It is the feast of my Will. On the contrary, those who live outside of It are Its sorrow, because they put It in the inability to give, to exercise Its office and to fulfill Its task. More so, since each act of the human will is a veil that the soul puts before her sight, which prevents her from seeing with clarity my Will and the goods contained in It. And since most of the creatures live continuously of their own will, they form so many veils as to become almost blind to knowing and seeing my Will, their choicest inheritance, which was to render them happy in time and Eternity. Oh! if creatures could comprehend the great evil of the human will and the great good of Mine - they would abhor their wills so much, as to lay down their lives in order to do Mine.

The human will renders man a slave; it causes him to be in need of everything. He feels strength and light missing in him continuously; his existence is always in danger, and whatever he obtains is by dint of prayers, and with difficulty. So, the man who lives of his will is the true beggar. On the other hand, one who lives in Mine has no need of anything; he has everything at his disposal. My Will gives him the dominion of himself, and therefore he is the owner of strength, of light – and not of human strength and light, but of divine. His existence is always secure, and since he is the owner, he can take whatever he wants, nor does he need to ask in order to receive. This is so true, that before Adam withdrew from my Will, prayer[1] did not exist. It is need that makes prayer arise; but he did not need anything, he had nothing to ask for or to impetrate. So, he loved, he praised, he adored his Creator; prayer[2] had no place in the terrestrial Eden.

Prayer came, it arose, after sin, as an extreme need of the heart of man. When one prays, it means that he needs something, and because he hopes, he prays in order to obtain. On the other hand, one who lives in my Will lives in the opulence of the goods of her Creator as the owner; and if she feels any need or desire, seeing herself in the midst of so many goods, it is that of wanting to give her happiness and the goods of her great fortune to others. As the true image of her Creator, who has given so much to her with no restriction at all, she would want to imitate Him by giving to others that which she possesses. Oh! how beautiful is the heaven of the soul who lives in my Will. It is a heaven with no storms, with no clouds, with no rain, because the water that quenches her thirst, that fecundates her, that gives her growth and the likeness of the One who created her, is my Will. Its jealousy so that the soul would not take anything if it is not Its own, is so great, that It does all the offices: if she wants to drink, It makes Itself water which, while refreshing her, extinguishes all other thirsts, so that her only thirst may be Its Will; if she is hungry, It makes Itself food which, while satiating her, takes away from her the appetite for all other foods; if she wants to be beautiful, It makes Itself brush, giving her brush strokes of such beauty, that my Will Itself remains enraptured at a beauty so rare, impressed by It Itself in the creature. It must be able to say to the whole of Heaven: 'Look at her – how beautiful she is. It is the flower, it is the fragrance, it is the color of my Volition that made her so beautiful.' In sum, It gives her Its Strength, Its Light, Its Sanctity – and everything so as to be able to say: 'She is a work fully of my Will; therefore I want her to lack nothing, to be like Me and to possess Me.' Look into yourself to see the work of my Will – how your acts, invested by Its light, have changed the earth of your soul. Everything is light, which arises within you and turns to wound the One who invested it. Therefore, the greatest affront I receive from creatures is to not do my Will."

After this, He transported me outside of myself, making me see the great evil of the human generations; and resuming His speaking, He added: "My daughter, look at how much evil the human will has produced. They have so blinded themselves, that they are preparing fierce wars and revolutions. This time it will not be just Europe, but other races will unite together. The circle will be more extensive; other parts of the world will participate. How much evil does the human will - it blinds man, it impoverishes him, and it makes of him the murderer of himself. But I will use this for my highest purposes, and the reunion of so many races will serve to facilitate the communications of the truths, so that they may dispose themselves for the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat. So, the chastisements that have occurred are nothing other than the preludes of those that will come. How many more cities will be destroyed; how many peoples buried under the ruins; how many places buried and plunged into the abyss. The elements will take the part of their Creator. My Justice can bear no more; my Will wants to triumph, and would want to triumph by means of Love in order to establish Its Kingdom. But man does not want to come to meet this Love, therefore it is necessary to use Justice." And while He was saying this, He showed an immense brazier of fire coming out of the earth; and those who were near it were invested by that fire, and disappeared. I was left frightened, and I pray and hope that my beloved Good will placate Himself.

How the Divine Will is agonizing in the midst of creatures, and how It wants to go out of this state.

My always lovable Jesus, drawing me into His adorable Will, made me see and feel the painful conditions in which the ingratitude of creatures put Him; and sighing with sorrow, He said to me: "My daughter, the pains of my Divine Will are unutterable and inconceivable to the human nature. My Will is in all creatures, but It is in the nightmare of a terrible and harrowing agony, because instead of giving It dominion, to let It carry out Its life in them, they keep It repressed, giving It no freedom to act, to breathe, to palpitate. So, the human will acts, it breathes freely, it palpitates as it wants, while Mine is there only to serve it, to contribute to their acts, and to remain within their acts, agonizing, suffocated by the rattle of an agony of long centuries. My Will writhes inside the creatures, in the nightmare of an agony so harrowing; and Its writhings are the remorse of conscience, the disillusion, the setbacks, the crosses, the tiredness of life, and everything that can bother the poor creatures; because it is right that, since they keep a Divine Will crucified and always in the rattle of agony, the Divine Will call them with Its writhing, unable to do otherwise, because It does not have dominion. Who knows whether, entering themselves, in seeing the unhappiness that their bad will brings to them, they might give It a little breath and respite from Its harrowing agony.

This agony of my Will is so painful, that my Humanity, which wanted to suffer it in the Garden of Gethsemani, reached the point of seeking help from my very Apostles - and even that I did not obtain; and the spasm was such that I sweated living blood. And feeling Myself succumbing under the enormous weight of the agony of my Divine Will, so long and terrible, I invoked the help of my Celestial Father, saying to Him: 'Father, if it be possible, let this chalice pass from Me'. In all the other pains of my Passion, as atrocious as they were, I never said: 'If it be possible, let this pain pass'. On the contrary, on the cross I cried out: 'I thirst' - I thirst for pains. But in this pain of the agony of the Supreme Will, I felt all the weight of an agony so long, all the torment of a Divine Will that agonizes - that writhes in the human generations. What sorrow! There is no sorrow that can equal this.

Now the Supreme Fiat wants to get out. It is tired, and at any cost It wants to get out of this agony so prolonged; and if you hear of chastisements, of cities collapsed, of destructions, this is nothing other than the strong writhing of Its agony. Unable to bear it any longer, It wants to make the human family feel Its painful state and how It writhes strongly within them, without anyone who has compassion for It. And making use of violence, with Its writhing, It wants them to feel that It exists in them, but It does not want to be in agony any more - It wants freedom, dominion; It wants to carry out Its life in them. What disorder in society, my daughter, because my Will does not reign! Their souls are like houses without order - everything is upside down; the stench is so horrible - more than that of a putrefied cadaver. And my Will, with Its immensity, such that it is not given to It to withdraw even from one heartbeat of creature, agonizes in the midst of so many evils. And this happens in the general order of all. In the particular order, then, it is even more: in the religious, in the clergy, in those who call themselves Catholics, my Will not only agonizes, but is kept in a state of lethargy, as if It had no life. Oh! how much harder this is. In fact, in the agony, at least I writhe, I have an outlet, I make Myself heard as existing in them, even though agonizing. But in the state of lethargy there is total immobility - it is the continuous state of death. And so, only the appearances - the clothing of religious life can be seen, because they keep my Will in lethargy; and because they keep It in lethargy, their interior is drowsy, as if the light, the good, were not for them. And if they do anything externally, it is empty of Divine Life and it resolves into the smoke of vainglory, of self-esteem, of pleasing other creatures; and I, and my Supreme Volition, while being inside, go out of their works.

My daughter, what affront. How I would want everyone to feel my tremendous agony, the continuous rattle, the lethargy in which they put my Will, because they want to do their own and not Mine, they do not want to let It reign, they do not want to know It. And this is why It wants to burst its banks with Its writhing, so that, if they do not want to know It and receive It by ways of Love, they may know It by way of Justice. Tired of an agony of centuries, my Will wants to get out, and therefore It prepares two ways: the triumphant way, which are Its knowledges, Its prodigies and all the good that the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat will bring; and the way of Justice, for those who do not want to know It as triumphant. It is up to the creatures to choose the way in which they want to receive It.”

November 20, 1926

How all the divine attributes take on the office of forming the new little sea of their qualities in the soul. How everyone has a motion.

I was doing my round in the Creation according to my usual way, in order to follow the acts of the Supreme Will in It. But while I was doing this, my always lovable Jesus, letting me hear His most sweet voice, in each created thing, told me: “Who is calling my love, so that either my love may descend into her, or her own may ascend into mine, so as to fuse themselves together, form one single love, and to give my love the field of action in order to make arise in the soul the new little sea of her love? My love triumphs and celebrates, because it is given its outlet and its field of action.”

As I moved into the sun, into the heavens, into the sea, I kept hearing His voice saying: “Who is calling my eternal light, my infinite sweetness, my incomparable beauty, my unshakeable firmness, my immensity, in order to form their cortege and give them the field of action to make arise in the creature as many seas of light, of sweetness, of beauty, of firmness, and so forth - to give them the contentment of not being kept idle, but of using the littleness of the creature in order to enclose all of their qualities in her? Who is she, then? Ah! It is the little daughter of Our Will.”

Then, after I heard Him say to me, in each created thing, “who is calling Me?”, my sweet Jesus came out from within my interior, and clasping me all to Himself, told me: “My daughter, as you go around in my Will, to follow It in each created thing, all of my attributes hear your call and enter the field in order to form, each one of them, the little sea of their qualities. Oh! how they triumph in seeing themselves active – being able to form each one its own little sea. But their highest pleasure and delight increases in being able to form in the little creature their seas of love, of light, of beauty, of tenderness, of power, and so forth. My wisdom acts as a talented artisan and with marvelous ingenuity, in placing its immense and infinite qualities in the littleness. Oh! how the soul who lives in my Will harmonizes with my attributes. Each one of them takes on its office in order to establish its divine quality. If you knew the great good that comes to you by following my Will in all of Its acts, and the crafting It carries out in you, you too would feel the joy of a continuous feast.”

Then, after this, I continued to follow the Creation, and I could see that eternal motion that never stops, flowing everywhere; and I thought to myself: ‘How can I follow the Supreme Volition in everything, if It runs so rapidly in all things? I do not have Its virtue, nor Its rapidity; therefore I have to remain behind, without being able to follow Its eternal murmuring in everything.’ But while I was thinking of this, my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, all things have a continuous motion, because, having come out of a Supreme Being who contains a motion full of life, as a consequence, all things that came out of God were to contain a vital motion that never ceases. And if it ceases, it means that life ceases. See, you yourself have a murmuring, a continuous motion in your interior. Even more, the Divinity, in creating the creature, gave him the likeness of the Three Divine Persons; It placed in him three motions which were to murmur continuously, to unite themselves to that continuous motion and murmuring of love of their Creator. And these are: the motion of the beating of the heart that never ceases, the blood circulation that always circulates without ever stopping, the breathing of the breath that never stops. This, in the body; in the soul, then, there are three more motions that murmur continuously: the intellect, the memory and the will. Therefore, everything is in keeping your motion bound to the motion of your Creator, in order to murmur together with His eternal motion. In this way, you will follow my Will in Its motion that never stops, in Its acts that never cease, and you will make your motion return into the womb of your Creator, who awaits with so much love the return of His works, of His love, and of His murmuring.

In creating the creatures, the Divinity acts like a father who sends his children, for their good, one to a town, one to a field, one to cross the sea – and some to a place nearby, some far away - giving each one of them a task to fulfill. But, while he sends them, he anxiously awaits their return; he is always on the lookout to see if they are coming back. If he speaks, he speaks about his children; if he loves, his love runs to his children; his thoughts fly to his children. Poor father, he feels crucified because he has sent his children far away from him, and he longs for their return, more than his own life. And if – may this never be – he does not see all of them, or part of them, come back, he is inconsolable; he weeps and utters moans and cries of sorrow, such as to snatch tears even from the hardest. And only when he sees them return into his paternal bosom, to clasp them to his breast that burns with love for his children - then is he content. Oh! how our Celestial Father, more than father, sighs, burns, raves for His children, because He delivered them from His womb, and awaits their return in order to enjoy them in His loving arms. And the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat is precisely this: the return of Our children into Our paternal arms; and this is why We long for It so much.”

Then, after this, I felt all immersed in the adorable Will of God, and I thought to myself of the great good if everyone knew and fulfilled this Fiat so holy, and the great contentment that they would give to our Celestial Father. And my sweet Jesus, resuming His speaking, added: “My daughter, in creating the creature, as We were forming him with Our creative hands, We felt a joy, a contentment come out of Our womb, because he was to serve to maintain Our amusement on the face of the earth, and Our continuous feast. So, as We formed his feet, We thought that they were to serve Our kisses, because they were to enclose Our steps and were to be our means of encounter, to amuse ourselves together. As We formed his hands, We thought that they were to serve Our kisses and embraces, because We were to see in him the repeater of Our works. As We formed his mouth, his heart, which were to serve the echo of Our word and of Our love, and as We infused life in him with Our breath, in seeing that that life had come out of Us – it was a life completely Our own, We clasped him to Our womb and kissed him, as the confirmation of Our work and of Our love. And so that he might maintain himself whole in Our steps, in Our works, in the echo of Our word and love, and of the life of Our image impressed in him, We gave him Our Divine Will as inheritance, that It might preserve him just as We had delivered him, so as to be able to continue Our amusements, Our affectionate kisses, Our sweet conversations with the work of Our hands.

When We see Our Will in the creature, We see in her Our steps, Our works, Our love, Our words, Our memory and intellect, because We know that Our Supreme Will will let nothing enter which is not Our own. Therefore, being Our own, We give her everything – kisses, caresses, favors, love, tenderness more than paternal - nor do We feel like remaining even at one step of distance from her; more so, since even the slightest distances cannot form the continuous amusements, nor exchange kisses, nor share the most intimate and secret joys. On the other hand, in the soul in whom We do not see Our Will, We cannot amuse Ourselves, because We see nothing that is Our own. Such a disharmony, such a dissimilarity of steps, of works, of words, of love can be felt in her, that she herself puts herself at a distance from her Creator; and wherever We see that the powerful magnet of Our Will is not present, which makes Us as though forget about the infinite distance that exists between the Creator and the creature, We disdain to amuse Ourselves with her, and to fill her with Our kisses and favors. So, by withdrawing from Our Will, man interrupted Our amusements and destroyed the designs We had in forming the Creation; and only by the reigning of Our Supreme Fiat, by establishing Its Kingdom, will Our designs be realized and Our amusements resumed on the face of the earth.”

Tenderness of Jesus at the moment of death. How one who lives in the Divine Will has primacy over everything.

I was feeling all afflicted because of the sudden death of one of my sisters. The fear that my lovable Jesus might not have her with Himself tormented my soul; and as my Highest Good, Jesus, came, I told Him of my pain, and He, all goodness, said to me: “My daughter, do not fear, is there perhaps not my Will that makes up for everything, for the very Sacraments and for all the helps that can be given to a poor dying one? Much more so, when there is not the will of the person of not wanting to receive the Sacraments and all the helps of the Church which, like mother, She gives at that extreme moment. You know, in kidnapping her suddenly from the earth, my Will made Me surround her with the tenderness of my Humanity. My Heart, human and divine, placed my most tender fibers into the field of action, in such a way that her defects, her weaknesses, her passions, have been looked upon and weighed with such finesse of tenderness - infinite and divine. And when I place my tenderness into the field, I cannot help having compassion and letting her pass into a safe harbor, as triumph of the tenderness of your Jesus. And besides, don’t you know that where human helps are lacking, divine helps abound? You fear that there was no one around her, and that if she wanted help, she had no one from whom to ask for it. Ah! my daughter, in that moment the human helps cease; they have neither value nor effect, because the dying enter into the sole and prime act with their Creator, and to no one is it given to enter this prime act. And then, for one who is not perverted, a sudden death serves in order to prevent the diabolical action from entering the field - his temptations, and the fears which, with so much art, he strikes into the dying, because he feels them being snatched from him, without being able to tempt them or follow them. Therefore, what by men is believed to be disgrace, many times is more than grace.”

After this, I abandoned all of myself in the Supreme Volition, and my sweet Jesus, resuming His speaking, told me: “My daughter, one who lives in my Will has primacy over everything and over all the acts of creatures; she has her act as first in love before her Creator. So, if the other creatures love, the soul who lives in my Will is first in loving; the others come, some second, some third, some fourth, according to the intensity of their love. If the other creatures adore Me, glorify Me, pray Me, the soul who lives in my Will is first in adoring Me, in glorifying Me, in praying Me. And this is natural, because my Will is life and prime act of all creatures, therefore one who lives in It finds herself in Its prime act and she is first before God, above all creatures, in doing all of their acts and in doing all the acts which they do not do. So, the Sovereign Queen of Heaven, who never gave life to Her own will, but had Her life fully in my Will, holds as though the right of primacy. Therefore, She is first in loving Us, in glorifying Us, in praying Us. If We see that the other creatures love Us, it is behind the love of the Celestial Queen; if they glorify Us and pray Us, it is behind the glory and the prayers of She who holds primacy and therefore empire over everything. How beautiful it is to see that, as creatures love Us, She never gives up Her first place in love. Even more, She places Herself as prime act, She makes Her sea of love flow around the Majesty, in such a way that the other creatures remain behind the sea of love of the Celestial Mama, with their little drops of love; and so with all the other acts. Ah! my daughter, to live in my Will is one word, but it is a word that weighs as much as eternity – it is a word that embraces everything and everyone.”

Threats of chastisements. How the living in the Divine Will forms the true Sun. What this Sun is formed of.

As I was in my usual state, my always lovable Jesus made Himself seen in my interior, His face leaning out from within my breast, His eyes sparkling with light, looking far away. Within that light, I too looked, and I could see rivers overflowing, seas swelling and going out of their shore, ships being swept away, towns submerged by water, storms carrying away everything which they invested, and many other evils which, while they seemed to take respite in one point, regained their fury in other points. Oh! how frightening it was to see the water, the wind, the sea, the earth, armed by Divine Justice to strike the poor creatures. So I prayed my Highest Good that He would placate Himself and withdraw the command to make justice, which He had given to these elements. And my sweet Jesus, throwing His arms around my neck and clasping me tightly to Himself, made me feel His Justice. I felt myself succumbing, and my sweet Jesus, sighing, told me: “My daughter, I can take no more; it is necessary that my Justice follow Its course. You, do not become alarmed at what you see, but rather, occupy yourself with the Kingdom of the Eternal Fiat.”

I remained in suffering and afflicted because of the great evils which will occur, and abandoning myself in the adorable Will of my Jesus, I enclosed in It all thoughts, gazes, words, works, steps and heartbeats, so that all might love and ask together with me that the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat may come and be soon established in the midst of the human generations. And my beloved Good, resuming His speaking, added: “My daughter, the living in my Will forms the true Sun between Heaven and earth. Its rays, extending down below, invest each thought, gaze, word, work and step; and binding them with Its light, It forms with them a crown around Itself, keeping it firm within Itself so that nothing may escape It. Its rays, extending up high, invest the whole of Heaven, all the Blessed; and binding them all within Its light, It lets nothing escape It, so that, triumphant, this Sun may say: ‘I enclose everything, I lack nothing of the works of my Creator and of what belongs to Him. With my wings of light, I extend over everything, I embrace everyone, I triumph over all - even over my Eternal Maker, because in the light of His Volition there is nothing He wants which I do not bring to Him, there is no act I do not do for Him, there is no love I do not give Him. With my wings of light, which my Eternal Fiat administers to me, I am the true king who, investing all, dominates everything.’

Who can ever resist the solar rays or free oneself from them, when one is outside? The power of the light is irresistible; wherever it extends, no one can escape its touch which, lapping against them, gently impresses upon them its kisses of light and of heat and, triumphant, keeps them invested under the impression of its light. There might be some who, ungrateful, do not pay attention to it, nor say a 'thank you', but the light does not mind even this; rather, it minds its office of light, and remains firm in giving the good it possesses. More so, since the Sun of my Will is not like the sun which can be seen in the vault of the heavens, whose sphere of light is limited. If that sphere were so large as to extend so much as to form a second heaven, the earth, in rotating, would keep finding its sun, and therefore darkness and night would not be able to invest the earth; and just as the earth never loses sight of the heavens which extend everywhere, so it would never lose sight of the sun, and it would always be daylight for the earth.

Now, the Sun of my Will, Its sphere, is not limited, and therefore It possesses Its full day; therefore, one who lives in It embraces all times, all generations, and investing the acts of all, she forms one single act, one single love and one single glory for her Creator. But do you know what this Sun of my Supreme Will is formed of? My attributes are the rays of this Sun, which, though different among themselves in their qualities and in the office they hold, are light in their substance; and my Will, the combining light which assumes all these lights together, is the director of all my attributes. And so, when creatures deserve to be struck, I direct the ray of light of my Justice, and, defending my rights, It strikes the creatures."

How one who fulfills a mission can be called mother; and in order to be called daughter, one must be generated in it. How the other sanctities are light, while the Sanctity of the Divine Will is Sun. How the foundation of this Sanctity is the Humanity of Our Lord.

I was all abandoned in the arms of the adorable Will, and I prayed my sweet Jesus to make use of an act of His Power so that the Supreme Volition might invest the human generations, and binding them to Itself, It might form Its first children, so longed for by It. And my Highest Good, moving in my interior, told me: "My daughter, when one has a special mission, this person is called mother, or father. Whoever originates from this fulfilled mission can be called daughter of this mother. True mother means to carry the birth from oneself within one's womb, to form it with one's own blood, to bear pains, sacrifices, and if needed, to expose one's own life in order to give life to the birth from one's womb. And when this birth has matured in one's womb and has come out to the light, then, with justice, by right and with reason, this birth is called son, and she who generated him, mother. Therefore, in order to be mother, it is necessary to first form all the members in one's own interior - to generate them in one's own blood, and the acts of these children must be generated from the very heart of their mother.

Now, my daughter, in order to be daughter of my Will, you have been generated in It; in It you have been formed, and, in forming you, the light, the love of my Will, more than blood, has grafted in you Its ways, Its attitude, Its operating, making you embrace everyone and everything. This is so true that, you being a birth from It, It calls you now 'newborn of my Will', now Its 'little daughter'. Now, only one who has been generated by It can generate the children of my Will; therefore, you will be the mother of the generation of Its children.”

And I: ‘My Jesus, what are You saying? I am not good at being daughter – how can I be mother?’

And Jesus: “Yet, from you must come the generation of these children. What mother has suffered so much? Who has been confined in a bed for forty years and more, for the love of forming a birth from herself, and of giving birth to the generation of her children? No one. What mother, as good as she might be, has sacrificed her whole entire existence to the point of enclosing within herself the thoughts, the heartbeats, the works, so that everything might be reordered in the birth that she carried, wanting to give life to it - not once, but as many times for as many acts as her child does? No one. Do you yourself not feel within yourself the generations of these children, by following their thoughts, words, works, steps, to reorder them all in my Will? Do you not feel yourself wanting to give life to each one, as long as they know my Will and be regenerated in It? Everything that you do in your interior, and that you suffer, is nothing other than the formation and the maturation of this birth, all of Heaven. This is why I have told you many times: your mission is great, there is no one who can equal it, and highest attention is needed.”

Then, I was feeling oppressed because it had been written to me that reverend Father Di Francia was having the memories of my childhood printed, as well as everything that follows; and in my sorrow I was saying to my beloved Jesus: ‘My Love, look a bit at what they are doing to me - from making known what You have told me about the virtues and about your adorable Will, they are now putting what regards myself. At the most, they should be doing this after my death – not now. Only for me there was this confusion and this highest sorrow; for the others - no. Ah! Jesus, give me the strength to do your holy Will also in this.’ And Jesus, clasping me in His arms to give me strength, all goodness, told me: “My daughter, do not afflict yourself so much. You must know that the other sanctities are small lights which are formed in the soul, and these lights are subject to growing, to decreasing, and even to becoming extinguished; therefore, it is not right to put it in print while one is still living in time, before the light is no longer subject to becoming extinguished by passing on to the next life. What impression would one make, if it became known that this light no longer exists? On the other hand, the Sanctity of living in my Will is not light, but Sun; therefore it is not subject either to becoming poor in light, or to becoming extinguished. Who can ever touch the sun? Who can take a single drop of light away from it? No one. Who can extinguish one atom of its heat? Who can make it descend even by one thousandth below its place, from the height at which it reigns and dominates the whole earth? No one. If there were not the Sun of my Supreme Fiat, I would not have allowed them[3] to be printed. But, rather, I hasten, because the good that a sun can do cannot be done by a light. In fact, the good of a light is too limited, and neither is it a great good if it is displayed, nor a great harm if it is not permitted to rise. On the other hand, the good of the sun embraces everything, it does good to all, and not letting it rise as early as possible is a great harm; and it is a great good to let it rise even one day earlier. Who can tell of the good that a sunny day can produce? Much more so with the Sun of my Eternal Will. So, the greater the delay, the more sunny days are taken away from creatures, and the more days are taken away from the Sun, constraining Its rays within Our Celestial Fatherland.”

But in spite of all the saying of Jesus, my oppression continued and my poor mind was made gloomy by the thought that my poor insignificant existence - which deserved to be buried without anyone noticing that I had been on earth - was to be placed under the eyes and in the hands of who knows how many. My God, my God – what sorrow. But while I was thinking of this, my lovable Jesus made Himself seen in my interior, lying flat, as if His holy Humanity were acting as foundation in my poor and little soul. And resuming His speaking, He said to me: “My daughter, do not become distracted. Don’t you see that the foundation of the Kingdom of the Eternal Fiat in you is formed by my steps, by my works, by my heart palpitating with love, for the honor of my Will, by my ardent sighs, and by the burning tears of my eyes? All of my life lies within you to form the foundation; therefore it is not befitting that your little work over this foundation so solid and so holy, be done with distraction, or that your rounds in the Supreme Volition be done as shaded. No, no, my daughter, I do not want this in you. Do not fear, you will remain buried in the Sun of my Will. Who, more than It, will be able to eclipse you, in such a way that no one may notice you? The Sun of the Supreme Fiat will have great care, so that, as the little lamp of your soul is surrounded by Its rays, the Sun may appear in it, while keeping the lamp hidden within Itself. Therefore, remain at peace, if you want to make your Jesus content; abandon everything in Me, and I will take care of everything.”

How the Supreme Will, from Queen, acts as servant of the human will, because they do not let It reign.

As my usual abandonment in the adorable Will continued, all Creation made Itself present, in which the Supreme Will flowed, dominating and triumphant, as light and as primary life, in the great things just as in the smallest ones. What enchantment, what order, what rare beauty, what harmony among them, because one is the Will that dominates them and, flowing in them, binds them in such a way that one cannot be without the other. And my sweet Jesus, interrupting my amazement, told me: “My daughter, my Will remained as operating life in each created thing, that It might dominate freely with Its full triumph. So, It has the operating life of the light and heat of the sun, the operating life of Its immensity and of the multiplicity of Its works in the heavens, the operating life of Its power and of Its justice in the sea. In fact, my Will is not like the will of the creatures who, even if they want, if they do not have hands, they cannot work; if they do not have feet, they cannot walk; if they are mute or blind, they can neither speak nor see. My Will, instead, does all the acts in one single act: while It operates, It walks; while It is all eyes to look, at the same time It is all voice to speak, and with such eloquence, that no one can equal It. It speaks in the roaring of the thunder, in the bolt of lightning, in the whistling of the wind, in the tumultuous waves of the sea, in the little bird that sings. It speaks everywhere, so that everyone may hear Its voice - now strong, now sweet, now thundering. Will of Mine, how admirable You are! Who can say he has loved the creatures as You have? My very Humanity – oh! how It remains behind You. I remain eclipsed in You, and You remain in your operating, which has no beginning, nor does it ever end. You are always at your place, giving life to all created things in order to bring your life to creatures. Oh! if all knew what It does for them, how much It loves all, how Its vital breath gives life to all – oh! how they would love It, and all would remain there, pressed around my Eternal Fiat, to receive the life It wants to give them.

But do you know, my daughter, why my Supreme Volition left Itself in all created things, dominating and as life, and doing Its distinct office in each thing? Because It was to serve Itself – Its own Will, which was to have life and dominion in the creature, for whom It had created all things. It acted like a king who, wanting to form a residence for himself in which to reign and have his dwelling, forms in it many rooms; he puts many lights, so that darkness may not reign in it. He puts little fountains of most fresh waters; for his amusement he puts music; he has his residence surrounded by delightful gardens – in sum, he puts everything that can render him happy, and that is worthy of his royalty. Now, as king, he must have his servants, his ministers, his soldiers. And what happens? These deny the king; and so, instead of the king being the one who dominates, the servants, the ministers, the soldiers dominate. What would not be the sorrow of this king in seeing that his works do not serve him, but, with injustice, they serve his servants, and he himself is forced to act as the servant of his servants, because, when a service, a work, serves oneself, one cannot be called servant.

Now, my Will was to serve Itself in the creatures, and therefore It left Itself as more than noble Queen in all created things, so that nothing might be lacking to Its royalty of Queen in the creature. There could be no one else who would be able to serve my Will worthily, other than my Will Itself; nor would It have adapted Itself to being served by servants, because no one would have had Its noble and divine manners in order to serve It.

Now, listen to the great sorrow of my Supreme Will; it is right that you, who are Its daughter, know the sorrows of your Mother, of your Queen, and of She<sup>[4]</sup> who is your Life. In the Creation It acts as the servant of servants; It serves the human will, because Mine does not reign in the creatures. How hard it is to serve servants - and for many centuries. As the soul withdraws from my Will to do her own, she puts my Will in servitude in the Creation. Therefore, Its sorrow is great – from Queen, acting as servant; nor is there anyone who can soothe a sorrow so bitter. And if It continues to remain in the Creation, serving the servants, it is because It is waiting for Its children; It is waiting for the time when Its works will serve the children of Its Eternal Fiat, who, letting It reign and dominate within their souls, will let It serve Its own nobility. Oh! only these children will soothe a sorrow so long and bitter; they will dry Its tears of so many centuries of servitude; they will return to It the rights of Its royalty. This is why it is so necessary to make my Will known - what It does, what It wants, how It is everything and contains all goods, and Its continuous sorrow because they do not let It reign.”

After this, my mind remained so compenetrated by the sorrow of the Supreme Will that, as the whole Creation kept standing before my mind, to my highest sorrow I could see this noble Queen veiled in each created thing, serving all creatures. It acted as servant in the sun, serving them by giving them light and heat; It acted as servant in the water, by offering it to their lips to quench their thirst; It acted as servant in the sea, to offer them the fish; It acted as servant in the earth, by giving them fruits, food of every kind, flowers and many other things. In sum, I could see It in all things, veiled with sadness, because It was not decorous for It to serve the creatures. On the contrary, it was unbecoming for Its nobility of Queen to act as servant of ungrateful and perverted creatures, who were using Its servitude without even looking at It, without saying a ‘thank You’, or remunerating It with any retribution, as is normally done with servants. Who can say what I comprehended about this sorrow of the Eternal Fiat, so long and intense?

But while I was swimming in this sorrow, my adored Jesus came out from within my interior, and pressing me to Himself, all tenderness, told me: “My daughter, it is very sorrowful and humiliating for my Supreme Volition to act as servant of creatures who do not let It reign within them. But It will feel much more glorified and happy in those who will let It reign. Look at It within yourself – how happy It is to serve you. It reigns in you while you write, and It feels honored and happy to serve you, by guiding your hand as you write, that you may write on paper the words for It to make Itself known. It places Its sanctity at your service within your mind, in order to administer to you the ideas, the terms, the most tender examples that regard my Supreme Will, in order to make Its way into the midst of creatures, so as to form Its Kingdom. It serves your sight in order to let you look at what you write; your mouth, to feed you the words; your heart, to let it palpitate with Its own Volition. What difference! It is happy to serve you, because It serves Itself – It serves to form Its Life; It serves the knowledge of Itself, Its own sanctity; It serves to form Its Kingdom. My Will reigns in you while you pray, and It serves you by making you fly within Itself, to let you do Its acts, and to let you take possession of Its goods. This way of serving of my Will is glorious, is triumphant, is dominant; and It would suffer only if the soul did not let herself be served by It completely and in everything.”

How the Divine Will eclipses the Humanity of Jesus within the soul. How the human will puts distance between God and the soul. How we are rays of light which came out from God. How the imprisonment of Jesus is symbol of the prison of the human will.

Continuing in my usual abandonment in my adorable Supreme Fiat, I anxiously longed for my highest Good, Jesus. In that endless light of the Eternal Volition, whose boundaries cannot be seen - either where they begin, or where they end - I was all eyes to see if I could catch sight of the One whom I so much longed for. And Jesus, to calm my restlessness, came out from within my interior, and, on seeing Him, I said to him: ‘My Love, how You make me struggle and sigh for your return – You are really waiting for the moment when I can take no more. How clearly it shows that You no longer love me as before. Yet, You told me that You would love me more and more, and that You would never be without me; and now You leave me, maybe even for one entire day - prey to pain and under the press of your privation, abandoned and all alone.’

And Jesus, interrupting my speaking, said to me: “My daughter, courage, do not lose heart – I do not leave you. And this is so true, that it is always from within your interior that I come out to spend time with you; and if you do not always see Me, I do this to give you the field in order to follow that single act of my Will, which contains all acts together. Do you not see that the light of my Supreme Volition flows from within your heart, from your mouth, from your eyes, from your hands, from your feet - from all your being? And as It eclipses Me within you, you do not always see Me, because, being endless – which my very Humanity is not – It has the strength to eclipse Me, and I enjoy this eclipse of my Supreme Volition, and from within you, I see your flight, your acts in the Divine Fiat. If I made Myself seen always, in order to spend time with Me and to enjoy my sweet and lovable presence, you would occupy yourself with my Humanity; you would pour out your love with Me, and I with you, and you would not have the heart to leave Me in order to follow the flight of my Will in the Creation and in the very acts which my Humanity did in Redemption. Therefore, in order to make you fulfill the mission entrusted to you, to render you more free, I remain within you, as though hidden, to follow your very acts in the Eternal Fiat.

Do you not remember that this was said to my very Apostles – that it was necessary for them to detach themselves from my Humanity, which they loved very much, and could not be without It? This is so true that, as long as I lived on earth, they did not depart from Me in order to go throughout the whole world to preach the Gospel and make my coming upon earth known. But after my departure for Heaven, invested by the Divine Spirit, they received this strength to leave their region in order to make known the goods of Redemption, and to lay down even their lives for love of Me. So, my Humanity would have been a hindrance to the mission of my Apostles. I am not saying that happens to you, because between you and Me there isn't this hindrance. In fact, a hindrance occurs when two beings are separable; but when two beings have identified themselves with each other so much that one lives within the other, the hindrance ends, because wherever one goes, the other is as well. So, since they are together, no efforts are needed in order to go wherever one wants, because the beloved is within her, to follow her everywhere. I am only saying that often the eclipse occurs, because of the strong light of my Will which, dominating you and my very Humanity in you, eclipses us and makes us follow Its acts. This does not mean that I no longer love you as before, and that I can be without you – not at all. On the contrary, my Will gives you the eternal and complete love of your Jesus, and placing Itself around Me like a wall with Its light, It does not allow that even for one instant I may move away from you.

Do you know what puts distance between God and the soul? The human will! Each act of it is one step of distance between the Creator and the creature. The more the human will operates, the more man moves away from the One who created him; he loses sight of Him; he decays from his origin; he breaks every bond with the Celestial Family. Suppose that a sun's ray could detach itself from the center of its sphere: as it moves away from the sun, it feels itself dispersing light; and if it moves so far away as to completely lose sight of the sun, this ray disperses all of its light and turns into darkness. This ray, converted into darkness, feels a motion, a life within itself, but it is no longer capable of giving light, because it possesses none; therefore its motion, its life, is only capable of spreading thick darkness. Such are the creatures – rays of light which came out from the sphere of the Sun of the Divinity: as they move away from my Will, they empty themselves of light, because it was given to my Will to preserve the light in these rays; and so they turn into darkness. Oh! if all knew what it means not to do my Will – oh! how attentive they would be not to let the poison of the human will, destroyer of every good, enter into them.”

After this, I was following my passionate Jesus in His sorrowful prison. Bound to a column, in the barbarous way in which they had bound Him, He could not stand firm, leaning against the column - but dangled, with His legs bent and bound to it; and so He oscillated now to the right, now to the left. And I, clinging to His knees to make Him stand firm, reordered His hair, all disheveled, which even covered His adorable Face - on which not even the spittle with which they had so dirtied Him, was missing. Oh! how I would have wanted to untie Him, to free Him from that position, so painful and humiliating. And my prisoner Jesus, all afflicted, said to me: “My daughter, do you know why I allowed Myself to be put in prison during the course of my Passion? To free man from the prison of the human will. Look at how horrible is my prison. It was a narrow place, which served to contain the rubbish and the excrements of creatures; so, the stench was unbearable, the darkness was thick – they left Me not even a little lamp. My position was excruciating – dirtied with spit, my hair disheveled, suffering in all of my members, bound not even erect, but bent. I could help Myself in no way, not even to remove the hair from my eyes, which bothered Me.

This prison of mine is the true image of the prison formed by the human will of creatures. The stench that emanates from it is horrible; the darkness is thick; many times, not even the little lamp of reason is left to them. They are always restless, deranged, dirtied with most wretched passions. Oh! how much should this prison of the human will be wept over. How vividly I felt, in this prison, the evil it had done to creatures. My sorrow was so great that I shed bitter tears, and I prayed my Celestial Father to free the creatures from this prison, so ignominious and painful. You too, pray together with Me, that creatures may release themselves from their will.”

Pact between Jesus and the soul. How an act can only be called perfect when the Divine Will reigns in it.

This morning it seemed that my always lovable Jesus did not make me struggle so much for His coming; even more, He even spent a long time with me, which He had not done for so long. In fact, if He comes now, His little visit is always very short, nor does He give me time to tell Him anything. He alone says what He wants to tell me, or He speaks and speaks with the endless light of His Volition; so much so, that Jesus Himself remains eclipsed in this light, and I with Him. And so we both lose sight of each other, because that light is so strong and dazzling, that the littleness and weakness of my sight cannot sustain it; therefore I lose everything – and also Jesus. Now, while He was with me, the fidgets of His love were such and so many, that His Heart was beating very strongly. Leaning His chest upon mine, He made me feel His ardent heartbeats; and drawing His lips close to mine, He poured into me part of that fire which was burning Him. It was a liquid which, while being like liquid fire, was so very sweet, but of a sweetness that cannot be described. However, among those rivulets which poured into my mouth, coming out of His mouth like many little fountains, there were some bitter rivulets, which the human ingratitude was sending deep into the Heart of my sweet Jesus. Jesus had not done all this for a long time, while, before, He used to do it almost every day.

Now, after pouring Himself out with me, after pouring into me what He had in His most holy Heart, He said to me: “My daughter, we must make a pact – that you must do nothing without Me, and I must do nothing without you.”

And I: ‘My Love, it is beautiful, I like this pact – to do nothing without You. And when You do not come, what shall I do? So, I must remain idle and without doing anything; and then You place your Will in me, and I am unable to will anything but what You want. So, You will always win, and will do whatever You want - and without me.’ And Jesus, all goodness, resumed His speaking: “My daughter, when I do not come, you must not remain without doing anything – no, no; you must continue doing what we have done together - what I have told you that I want you to do. This is not doing things without Me, because it has already passed between Me and you, and it remains as if you were always doing it together with Me. And besides, don’t you want Me to always win? The winning of your Jesus is your gain; so, if you win, you lose; if you lose, you win. However, be certain that I will do nothing without you. This is why I placed in you my Will and, with It, my Light, my Sanctity, my Love, my Strength – so that, if you want my Light, my Sanctity, my Love, my Strength, you may dominate in them and take the Light you want, and the Sanctity, the Love, the Strength that you want to possess. How beautiful it is to see you possess my dominions, which make Me reach the extent of doing nothing without you. These pacts I can only make with one in whom my Will dominates and reigns.”

Then, after this, I was doing my usual acts in the Supreme Fiat, and I thought to myself that I wanted to hide my little love, my meager adoration, and everything I could possibly do, within the first acts which Adam did when he possessed the unity of the light of the Divine Will, and within those of the Queen Mama, which were all perfect. And my adored Jesus added: “My daughter, only when an act encloses within itself all other acts together – then can it be called perfect. And my Will alone encloses this perfect act - that while It does one act alone, all possible imaginable acts that exist in Heaven and on earth gush forth from this single act. This single act of my Will is symbolized by a fount: while the fount is one, from it gush seas, rivers, fire, light, heaven, stars, flowers, mountains and earth. Everything comes out of this one fount. Now, Adam in the state of innocence and the Height of the Sovereign Queen, by possessing my Will, if they loved, in that love they enclosed adoration, glory, praise, blessing, prayer. Nothing was missing in their littlest act; in it flowed the multiplicity of the qualities of the single act of my Supreme Volition, which made them embrace everything, and so, in one act, they gave to their Creator whatever befitted Him. So, if they loved, they adored; if they adored, they loved. Isolated acts, which do not embrace all acts together, cannot be called perfect – they are meager acts, which give of human will. And therefore only in the Fiat can the soul find true perfection in her acts, and offer a divine act to her Creator.”

How one who lives in the Divine Will is the echo and the little sun. How these writings come from the Heart of Our Lord. The works of Our Lord are veils which hide the noble Queen of the Divine Will.

I was doing my usual acts in the Eternal Volition, and my always lovable Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, you are Our echo. As you enter into Our Will in order to love, to praise, to ask for the coming of Our Kingdom, We hear in you the echo of Our love, the echo of Our glory, the echo of Our Fiat that wants to come upon earth in order to reign, that wants to be prayed, and prayed again, and pressed to come to reign on earth as It does in Heaven. And as you go around through the whole Creation to follow the acts of the Supreme Will in It, We hear your echo in the sea, in the valleys, on the mountains, in the sun, in the heavens, in the stars – in everything. How beautiful is this echo – it is Our echo which resounds in all Our things. In this echo, We hear the echo of Our voice, the motion of Our works, the treading of Our steps, the motions - the pulsation of Our heartbeat, and We greatly delight in seeing your littleness, as you, while echoing, try to imitate Our voice, to copy the motions of Our works, to make the same sound as Our steps, and to love with Our own heartbeat.”

Then, sighing, He added: “My daughter, if the sun had reason and saw a plant, a being, that wanted to become sun, the sun would increase all of its light, its heat and all of its effects over this being, so as to make it become sun. And even though it would not deny its light and its effects to the other beings - because it is in the nature of light to diffuse and to do good to all, wherever it is – the fortunate being which received, all together, all the reflections and all the goods that the sun contains, would become sun. What glory, what contentment would the sun not receive in being able to form another sun? The entire earth, for many centuries, has never attested to it so much glory, so much love, by receiving its many effects, as this one being which has turned into sun.

By living in Our Fiat, the soul does nothing other than imitate her Creator, and the eternal Sun concentrates all of Its reflections upon her, in such a way that she becomes the little sun, in the likeness of the divine Sun. Was this not precisely Our purpose and Our saying: ‘Let Us make man in Our image and likeness’? To make him without his having to be like Us and carry within himself the image of the One who had created him, would be neither decorous nor worthy of a work of Our hands; nor would it be Power of that regenerative breath which came out of Our womb to generate a being dissimilar from Us. What would be said of a mother who generated, not a child who had eyes, mouth, hands, feet, and would be similar to her in all members - at most, smaller than her in all members, but lacking nothing of all the organs of the mother – but generated a plant, a bird, a stone, things which are dissimilar from her? It would be incredible – things against nature and unworthy of a mother, who was not able to infuse her image and all of her members in her newborn. Now, if all things generate and form things similar to themselves, much more so does God, first Generator, whose honor and glory in forming the creatures was to form them as similar to Himself. Therefore, my daughter, let your flight in my Will be continuous, that It may concentrate Its rays upon you, and darting through you, It may make of you Its little sun.”

After this, I was feeling as though tired and could not make up my mind to write what my adored Jesus had told me. And Jesus, surprising me, to give me will and strength in order to do it, told me: “My daughter, don’t you know that these writings of Ours come from the depth of my Heart, and in them I make flow the tenderness of my Heart, to touch those who will read them, and the firmness of my divine speech, to strengthen them in the truths of my Will? In all the sayings, truths, examples, which I make you write on paper, I make flow the dignity of my celestial wisdom, in such a way that those who read them, or will read them, if they are in grace, will feel within themselves my tenderness, the firmness of my speech and the light of my wisdom, and, as though in between magnets, they will be drawn into the knowledge of my Will. Those who are not in grace, then, will not be able to deny that it is light; and light always does good, it never does harm; it illuminates, it warms, it makes one discover the most hidden things and moves one to love them. Who can say he does not receive good from the sun? No one. More than sun, I am issuing these writings from within my Heart, that they may do good to all. This is why I have so much interest that you write – because of the great good I want to do to the human family; so much so, that I look upon them as my own writings, because it is always I the One who dictates, and you are the little secretary of the long story of my Will.”

Then, I was following, in the Divine Will, everything that my sweet Jesus had done while being on earth in His Humanity, and I asked in each one of His acts that His Fiat be known, and that It come triumphantly to reign in the midst of creatures. And my highest and only Good, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, just as all Creation is veil which hides my Will, in the same way, my Humanity and all of my works, tears and pains are as many veils which hide my Supreme Fiat. It reigned in my acts, triumphant and dominating, and It laid the foundations in order to come to reign in the human acts of creatures. But do you know who tears these veils to let It come out to dominate in her own heart? One who recognizes It in each one of my acts, and invites It to come out. She tears the veil of my works, she enters into them, she recognizes the noble Queen, and she prays It – she presses It to no longer remain hidden; and opening her heart to It, she invites It to enter. She tears the veil of my tears, of my Blood, of my pains, the veil of the Sacraments, the veil of my Humanity, and giving her subjection to It, she implores It to no longer remain veiled, but to make Itself known as Queen – which It is - in order to take Its dominion and form the children of Its Kingdom. From here the necessity that you go around in Our Volition and in all Our works, to find the noble Queen of Our Will hidden in them, so as to pray It to unveil Itself, to come out of Its apartments, so that all may know It and let It reign.”

How the Divine Will is a continuous act which never ceases. How the Virgin let Herself be dominated by this act, and formed Its life within Herself. How, in Heaven, in the Feasts of the Virgin they celebrate the Divine Will.

My poor mind was swimming in the unending sea of the Eternal Volition, and my adorable Jesus showed, as the greatest prodigy, how His Most Holy Will, while being so immense, would restrict Itself within the creature, though remaining immense, in order to dominate her and form Its life in her. The creature who would remain immersed under a continuous act of this Divine Will was the miracle of miracles, and the prodigy never before seen. And lovable Jesus, all goodness, told me: “Dearest daughter of my Will, you must know that only my Volition possesses a continuous act that never ceases. This act is full of life, and therefore it gives life to everything, it preserves everything, and it maintains balance within itself and in all things. It alone can boast about possessing this continuous act of always giving life, of loving always – always, without ceasing for one instant. My Humanity Itself, if It possesses this continuous act, it is because in It flowed this continuous act of the Supreme Fiat. How long did the life of my Humanity last upon earth? It was extremely short. As soon as I fulfilled what was necessary for the Redemption, I departed for my Celestial Fatherland, though my acts remained. But these remained because they were animated by the continuous act of my Will. On the other hand, my Will never departs; It is always at Its place, preexisting, without ever interrupting Its act of life over everything that came out of It. Oh! if my Will departed from earth and from all created things, all things would lose their life and would resolve into nothing. Because my Will created all things from nothing, if It withdrew, they would all lose their existence.

Now, do you want to know who is the One who let Herself be dominated by this continuous act of my Supreme Will, and, never giving life to Her own, received this continuous act of life of Divine Will, in such a way as to form within Herself a life fully divine and in the likeness of Her Creator? It was the Celestial and Sovereign Queen. From the very first instant of Her Immaculate Conception, She received this act of life of Divine Will, to then receive it continuously during all of Her life. This was the greatest prodigy, the miracle never before seen: the life of the Divine Will in the Empress of Heaven. In fact, one single act of life of this Fiat can issue heavens, suns, seas, stars, and everything It wants; so, all the human acts placed before a single act of life of this Will of Mine, are like many drops of water which dissolve within the ocean, like tiny little flames before the sun, like atoms in the great space of the universe. Imagine, yourself, what the height of the Immaculate Queen possesses, with this life of continuous act of Divine Will, formed in Her. This was the true miracle, the prodigy never before seen - that the littleness of the Celestial Sovereign enclosed within Herself a Divine Life, a Will, immense and eternal, which possesses all possible imaginable goods.

Therefore, in all the Feasts with which the Church honors my Mama, all Heaven celebrates, glorifies, praises and thanks the Supreme Will, because they see Its life in Her – the primary cause by which She obtained the longed for Redeemer; and therefore, because this Fiat had life, which dominated and reigned in Her, they find themselves in possession of the Celestial Jerusalem. It was precisely the Divine Will that formed Its life in this Excelling Creature, who opened Heaven, which had been closed by the human will. Therefore, with justice, while they celebrate the Queen, they celebrate the Supreme Fiat which made Her Queen, reigned in Her, formed Its life, and is the primary cause of their eternal happiness. So, a creature who lets my Will dominate and gives It free field in order to form Its life in her, is the greatest of prodigies. She can move Heaven and earth, even God Himself, as if she were doing nothing, while she does everything, and she alone can win the most important things, destroy all obstacles, face anything, because a Divine Will reigns in her. And just as all the Power of the Fiat dwelling in the creature was needed in order to impetrate Redemption, and my Humanity, which possessed that Power, was needed in order to form It, in the same way, in order to impetrate the coming of the Kingdom of my Fiat Itself, another creature is needed, who would let It dwell within herself, and give It free field in order to form Its life, so that my Will Itself, through her, may accomplish the one and most important prodigy – Its coming to reign on earth as It does in Heaven. And because this is the greatest thing, which will place divine balance in the human family, I do great things in you. I centralize in you everything which it is necessary and decorous to know about this Kingdom of Mine: the great good It wants to give, the happiness of those who will live in It, Its long story, Its long sorrow - and of many centuries, because while It wants to come to reign in the midst of creatures to make them happy, they do not open the doors to It, they do not long for It, they do not invite It; and while It is present in their midst, they do not know It. Only a Divine Will could bear with such invincible patience being in their midst, giving them life, and being not even known. My Will is great, endless and infinite, and wherever It reigns, It wants to do things worthy of Its greatness, of Its Sanctity and of the Power It contains. Therefore, be attentive, my daughter – this is not about just any thing, or about forming a sanctity, but it is about forming a Kingdom for my adorable and Divine Will.”

Lament of Jesus in His Passion, in seeing His garments being divided, and lots drawn for His tunic. How Adam, before sinning, was clothed with light, and as he sinned, he felt the need to cover himself.

I was doing my usual acts in the Supreme Fiat, and my adored Jesus came out from within my interior and told me: “My daughter, in my Passion there is a lament of mine which came out with immense sorrow from the depth of my tormented Heart: ‘They divided my garments and drew lots for my tunic.’ How painful it was for Me to see my garments being divided among my very executioners, and my tunic being gambled away. It was the only object I possessed, given to Me, with so much love, by my sorrowful Mama; and now, they not only stripped Me of it, but they made of it a game. But do you know who pierced Me the most? In those garments, Adam became present to Me, clothed with the garment of innocence and covered with the indivisible tunic of my Supreme Will. In creating him, the uncreated Wisdom acted as more than a most loving mother; more than with a tunic, It clothed him with the unending light of my Will – a garment which is not subject to being either disarranged, or divided, or consumed; a garment which was to serve man in order to preserve the image of his Creator and the gifts received from Him, and which was to render him admirable and holy in all his things. Not only this, but It covered him with the overgarment of innocence. And Adam, in Eden, with his passions divided the garments of innocence, and he gambled away the tunic of my Will – a garment which is incomparable and of radiant light.

What Adam did in Eden was repeated under my eyes on Mount Calvary. In seeing my garments being divided and my tunic gambled away – symbol of the royal garment given to man, my sorrow was so intense that I made of it a lament. It became present to Me when creatures, in doing their own will, make a game of Mine, and the so many times in which they divide the garment of innocence with their passions. All goods are enclosed in man by virtue of this royal garment of the Divine Will; once this is gambled away, he remains uncovered, he loses all goods, because he lacks the garment which kept them enclosed within himself. So, among the many evils that creatures do by doing their own will, they add the irreparable evil of gambling away the royal garment of my Will – a garment which cannot be substituted with any other garment.”

After this, my sweet Jesus showed me Himself placing my little soul inside a sun, and with His holy hands He held me still within that light, which was such that, as it covered me completely, inside and out, I could not see, nor was I able to see anything but light. And my adored Good added: “My daughter, in creating man, the Divinity placed him inside the Sun of the Divine Will, and all creatures in him. This Sun served as garment not only for his soul, but its rays were such as to cover also his body, in such a way as to serve as more than a garment for him, rendering him so adorned and beautiful that neither kings nor emperors have ever appeared so adorned as Adam appeared, with this garment of most refulgent light. Those who say that, before sinning, Adam went naked are wrong. False, false. If all things created by Us are all adorned and clothed, he who was Our jewel, the purpose for which all things were created – was he not to have the most beautiful garment and the most beautiful ornament of all? So, to him befitted the beautiful garment of the light of the Sun of Our Will; and since he possessed this garment of light, he had no need of material garments in order to cover himself. As he withdrew from the Divine Fiat, so did light withdraw from his soul and from his body; he lost his beautiful garment, and in seeing himself no longer surrounded with light, he felt naked. Feeling ashamed in seeing that he was the only one to be naked in the midst of all created things, he felt the need to cover himself, and he made use of superfluous things, created things, to cover his nakedness. This is so true, that after my highest sorrow of seeing my garments divided and my tunic gambled away, as my Humanity rose again I took no other garments, but I clothed Myself with the most refulgent garment of the Sun of my Supreme Will. That was the same garment as the one which Adam possessed when he was created, because in order to open Heaven, my Humanity was to wear the garment of the light of the Sun of my Supreme Will – a royal garment; and as it gave Me the insignia of King and dominion into my hands, I opened Heaven to all the redeemed ones; and presenting Myself before my Celestial Father, I offered Him the garments of His Will, whole and beautiful, with which my Humanity was covered, so as to make Him recognize all the redeemed ones as Our children. So, while It is life, at the same time my Will is the true garment of the creation of the creature, and therefore It holds all rights over her. But how much do they not do to escape from within this light? Therefore, be still in this Sun of the Eternal Fiat, and I will help you to maintain yourself in this light.”

On hearing this, I said to Him: ‘My Jesus and my All, how is this? If Adam in the state of innocence had no need of garments because the light of your Will was more than garment, the Sovereign Queen, however, possessed your Will as whole, and You Yourself were your Will Itself; yet, neither the Celestial Mama nor Yourself wore the garments of light, and both of You made use of material garments to cover Yourselves. How is this?’ And Jesus continued, saying: “My daughter, both my Mama and I came to set fraternal bonds with creatures; We came to raise decayed humanity, and therefore to take up the miseries and humiliations into which it had fallen, in order to expiate for them at the cost of Our lives. Had they seen Us clothed with light, who would have dared to approach Us and to deal with Us? And in the course of my Passion, who would have dared to touch Me? The light of the Sun of my Will would have blinded them and crushed them to the ground. Therefore, I had to make a greater miracle, hiding this light within the veil of my Humanity, and appearing as one of them, because It represented, not Adam innocent, but Adam fallen, and so I was to subject Myself to all of his evils, taking them upon Myself as if they were my own, in order to expiate for them before Divine Justice. But when I rose again from death, representing Adam innocent, the new Adam, I ceased the miracle of keeping the garments of the refulgent Sun of my Will hidden within the veil of my Humanity, and I remained clothed with most pure light; and with this royal and dazzling garment I made my entrance into my Fatherland, leaving the doors open which had remained closed up to that point, so as to let all of those who had followed Me enter.

Therefore, by not doing Our Will, there is no good which one does not lose, and there is no evil which one does not acquire.”

The little note of love. How each act of the Will of God done by the creature is one more act of beatitude.

I was continuing my round in the Creation, in order to follow the Supreme Will in all created things; but while I was doing this, I thought in my mind: ‘What good do I do, what glory do I give to this adorable Fiat, by going through all created things, as though in review, to place in them even just one little ‘I love You’ of mine? Who knows whether this might not be a waste of time that I do.’ Now, while I was thinking of this, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior and told me: “My daughter, what are you saying? With my Will one never wastes time; on the contrary, by following It, one gains the eternal time. Now, you must know that each created thing contains a delight, one distinct from the other; and these delights were placed by Us, and were to serve Us to delight Ourselves and the creature. Now, in each created thing runs Our love, and as you go through them, you make the little note of your love run. Don’t you want, then, in the face of so much love of Ours, to place your little notes, your dots, your commas, your little strings which say ‘love’ and, harmonizing with Our love, form the delight wanted by Us for Ourselves and for you? Only when there is company, then is a delight enjoyed more; isolation makes the enjoyment die. So, the company you give Us by going around in the Creation makes Us remember of Our many delights which were placed by Us in each created thing; it makes Us live through Our enjoyments again; and while you delight Us, We delight you. And besides, perhaps you too want to leave Our Will isolated? No, no; it is befitting for the little daughter never to leave her Mother alone, and to remain always on Her knees to follow Her in all Her acts.”

Then, after this, my poor mind was swimming in the immense sea of the Eternal Fiat, and my lovable Jesus added: “My daughter, among the many qualities and properties which my Will contains, It contains an act of beatitude which is never interrupted; and as many acts as the soul does in It, so many distinct acts of beatitude does she take into her soul. So, the more acts she does in this Fiat, the more she becomes the owner and forms a greater capital of these beatitudes within herself, which give her highest peace on earth, and, in Heaven, she will feel all the effects and the enjoyments of these beatitudes, which have formed within her. See, it is as though natural: while you are on earth, my Will in Heaven releases from Itself an act ever new of infinite beatitude. Now, who takes this new act that never ceases? The Saints, the Angels, who live of Divine Will in Heaven. However, it is not fair that one who is in the exile and lives in my Will lose all these acts of beatitude; rather, with justice they are placed as though in reserve within her soul, so that, when she departs for her Celestial Fatherland, she may enjoy them all together, to catch up with others in receiving that new act of beatitude which is never interrupted. Do you see, then, what it means to do one more act, or one act less, in my Will? It is to have as many more acts of beatitude, for as many more times as one has done my Will; and to lose them, for as many times as she has done her own. And she takes not only many acts of beatitude, but many acts of sanctity, of divine science, many distinct acts of beauty, of love, for as many times as she has done my Will. And if she has been always in my Eternal Fiat, she will have within herself the sanctity which resembles her Creator. Oh! how beautiful she will be. In Heaven, the echo of Our beatitudes, the echo of Our Sanctity, the echo of Our Love, will be heard in this fortunate creature. In sum, she has been Our echo on earth, and she will be Our echo in the Celestial Fatherland.”

How, in the Creation, the Divinity bilocated Its Will. The nature of the Divine Will is happiness. How It constituted Itsself act of everything. The possession It wants to give to the creature.

I continue in my state of abandonment in the Supreme Volition, and while I was going around with my mind in the whole Creation, to follow It in all created things and make my will one with Its own, so as to form one single act with Its own, my always lovable Jesus, making me pause, told me: “My daughter, in issuing the Creation, the Divinity bilocated Its Will, and One remained within Us, for Our regime, joy, happiness, contentments and innumerable and infinite beatitudes which We possess; because Our Will has the first place in all Our acts. The Other bilocated Will of Ours came out from Us into Creation, to give Us, also externally, divine honors and glory, and innumerable happinesses and joys. In fact, Our Will possesses joys, happinesses and beatitudes as Its own qualities – this is Its nature; and if It did not release from Itself these innumerable beatitudes and contentments which It possesses, it would be for It something against Its own nature. Now, the Supreme Majesty, by issuing Our bilocated Will into the whole Creation so that It might be constituted life and act of each created thing, issued from Itself innumerable riches, countless beatitudes and joys, which only the Power of the Eternal Fiat could preserve, maintaining their regime, so that they would never lose their integrity and beauty.

Now, while all these properties issued by Us glorified Us, giving Us the glory of as many continuous and divine acts for as many created things as came out to light, they were established as properties of creatures, who, unifying their wills with Ours, were to have their act in each act of Our Will, in such a way that, just as We were to have the divine act of Our Will in each created thing, We were to have the act of the creature, transfused, as if they were one alone. With this, she would come to know Its riches; by knowing them, she would love them, and she would acquire the right to possess them. How many divine acts does my Supreme Will not do in each created thing, and the creature has not even the most remote knowledge of these acts? And if she does not know them, how can she love them and possess them, if they are unknown to her? So, all the riches, the happinesses, the divine acts present in the whole Creation are inactive and lifeless for creatures; and if they receive anything at all, it is not as property, but as the effect of the Supreme Goodness which always gives of Its own. It gives, as alms, also to those who have no right of possession; others, then, take them as usurpations. In fact, in order to possess these goods which the Celestial Father put out in the Creation, the creature must make her way; she must elevate herself to union with that Divine Will, in order to work together with It, do the same acts, know them in order to do them, so as to be able to say: 'What It does, I do'. With this, she acquires the right of possession in all the acts of this Supreme Will; and when two wills form one single will, 'mine' and 'yours' no longer exist; rather, by right, what is mine is yours, and what is yours is mine.

And so, this is the reason why my Supreme Will calls you – awaits you in each created thing, to make known to you the riches which are in It, to make you repeat Its divine acts together with It, and to give you the right of possession. You yourself become Its own property; you remain dissolved within Its immense riches and within Its very acts, and - oh! how the Divine Fiat enjoys making you the owner of Its immense riches. Its desire of constituting Its heiresses is so great, that It feels twice as happy when It sees one who knows Its possessions and makes Its divine act her own; so much so, that even though It saw that man, by withdrawing from Its Will, lost his way to reach the possession of Its dominions, It did not stop, but in the excess of Its Love and of Its long sorrow of seeing Its riches inactive for the good of creatures, as soon as the Eternal Word clothed Himself with human flesh, It constituted Itself life of each of His acts, so as to form more goods for them, powerful aids and effective remedies, more within the reach of decayed humanity, so as to realize the purpose of making them possess what was issued in Creation. There is nothing that comes from Us, which does not have this purpose – that the creature and everything return into Our Will. If it were not so, We would render Ourselves extraneous to Our own works. So, Creation, Redemption, my daughter, have the primary purpose that everything be Our Will, in Heaven and on earth; therefore, It flows everywhere, It is present in every place, to make everything Its own, and to give everything that belongs to It. Therefore, be attentive in following Our works; satisfy this desire, so insistent, of my Supreme Will, which wants those who possess Its goods.”

Signs that one belongs to the Celestial Family. How it is God's usual way to do His works first one on one with one creature. So He did with His Mama. The greater is the work that Jesus does, the more it carries within itself the image of the divine unity.

I was thinking about the Supreme Fiat, and was praying my sweet Jesus to give me the grace, so great, of making me fulfill His Most Holy Will entirely and completely, and of making It known to the whole world, so that He might be reintegrated in the glory which creatures deny Him. Now, while I was thinking of this and other things, sweet Jesus moved in my interior and told me: “My daughter, what is the purpose for which you want my Will to be fulfilled in you and to be known by all?" And I: 'I want it because You want it. I want it, so that the divine order and your Kingdom may be established on earth. I want it, so that the human family may no longer live as estranged from You, but it may be bound once again to the Divine Family, from which it had its origin.' And Jesus, sighing, added: "My daughter, your purpose and mine are one. When a son has the same purpose as his father, he wants what his father wants, he never dwells in somebody else's home, he works in the fields of his father, and if he finds himself with people, he speaks of the goodness, of the ingenuity, of the great purposes of his father. It is said of this son that he loves his father, that he is the perfect copy of him, that it shows clearly from all sides that he belongs to that family, that he is a worthy son who carries within himself, with honor, the generation of his father.

Such are the signs that one belongs to the Celestial Family – to have the same purpose as mine, to want my same Will, to dwell in It as in one's own home, to work in order to make It known. And if one speaks, one can say nothing but what is done and wanted in Our Celestial Family. This creature is recognized in clear notes, and from all sides, and with reason, and with justice and by right, as a daughter who belongs to Us, as one from Our Family, who has not decayed from her origin, who preserves within herself the image, the manners, the bearings, the life of her Father - of the One who created her. So, you are one from my Family; and the more you make my Will known, the more you are distinguished, before Heaven and earth, as a daughter who belongs to Us.

On the other hand, when one does not have Our same purpose, little he dwells, or not at all, in the royal palace of Our Will; he keeps going around, now to some house, now to some vile hovel; he keeps wandering about in the outdoors of passions, doing acts unworthy of his family. If he works, it is in foreign fields; if he speaks, the love, the goodness, the ingenuity, the great purposes of his Father never resound on his lips. So, in all his bearing, he can not be recognized at all as one who belongs to his family. Can this one be called a son of his family? And if he came from it, he is a degenerate son, who has broken all the bonds and relations which bound him to his family. Therefore, only one who does my Will and lives in It can be called my child, a member of my Divine and Celestial Family. All others are degenerate children, and as though foreign to Our Family.

And so, when you occupy yourself with my Divine Fiat, if you speak, if you go around in It, you put Us in feast, because We feel that it is one who belongs to Us – We feel that it is Our daughter that speaks, that goes around, that works in the field of Our Will. And for one's own children, doors are left open - no apartment is closed for them, because what belongs to the Father belongs to the children, and in the children is placed the hope of the long generation of the Father. In the same way, in you I have placed the hope of the long generation of the children of my Eternal Fiat."

My mind continued to think about the Supreme Will, and I said to myself: 'But, how can it possibly be that, by myself alone, this little being so insignificant, as I am good at nothing, I have neither dignity, nor authority, nor superiority with which, maybe, I could impose myself – I may diffuse myself, and speak in order to make this Sun of the Divine Will known, and so be able to form the children of Its generation?' But while I was thinking of this, my sweet Jesus interrupted my thought, and coming out from within my interior, told me: "My daughter, it is my usual way to do my greatest works first one on one with one creature alone. In fact, my Mama was one, and with Her alone I carried out all the work and the great portent of my Incarnation. No one entered our secrets, or penetrated into the sacrum of our apartments to see what was passing between Me and the Celestial Sovereign; nor did She occupy any position of dignity and of authority in the world. In fact, when I choose, I never look at dignities and superiorities, but I look at the little individual within whom I can look at my Will in Its face, which is the greatest dignity and authority. Even though She had neither position, nor dignity, nor superiority in the low world, Heaven and earth hung upon the height of the little young girl of Nazareth, because She possessed my Will. In Her hands was the destiny of mankind, and the destiny of all my glory, which I was to receive from the whole Creation. So, it was enough that the mystery of the Incarnation be formed in my Chosen One, the only One, in order for others to be able to receive the good of It. One was my Humanity, and from It came the generation of the redeemed ones. Therefore, it is enough to form all the good that one wants within one creature, to be able to have the generation of that good come out, just as one seed is enough in order to multiply, by thousands upon thousands, the generation of that seed. So, all the power, the virtue, the ability which is needed for a creative virtue, is in forming the first seed; once the first is formed, it is like yeast, in order to form the generation of it. In the same way, one soul alone is enough for Me, who would give Me absolute freedom to enclose in her the good I want, and to form in her the Sun of the Supreme Fiat, in order for this Sun to beat down Its rays on the surface of the earth, and form the generation of the children of my Will.

Now, you must know that all Our greatest works carry within themselves the image of the divine unity, and the more good they are destined to do, the more good they enclose of this supreme unity. See, also in the Creation there are similes of the divine unity – works which, while being single works, do so much good, that the multiplicity of Our other works, all together, do not do as much. Look under the vault of the heavens – one is the sun, but how many goods does it not contain? How many does it not do to the earth? It can be said that the life of the earth depends on the sun. While the sun is one, with its light it embraces everyone and everything; it carries everything on its lap of light, and it gives a distinct act to each one. According to the variety of things it invests, it communicates fecundity, development, color, sweetness, beauty; yet, the sun is one, while the stars are many, but do not do the great good which the sun does to the earth, though being one. The power of one single act animated by the Creative Power is incomprehensible, and there is no good which cannot come from it. It can change the face of the earth – from arid and deserted into a flowery springtime. The sky is one, and therefore it extends everywhere. Water is one, and even though it seems to be divided in many different points of the earth, forming seas, lakes and rivers, yet, in descending from heaven, it comes down in one form, and there is not one point of the earth in which water does not reside. So, the things created by Us which carry within themselves the image of the divine unity, are those which do more good; they are the most necessary, and the earth could not have life without them.

Therefore, my daughter, do not think that you are alone - it is the unity of a great work that I must carry out within you; or that you have no external dignity and authority – this says nothing. My Will is more than anything; Its light seems to be mute, but in its muteness it invests the intelligences and makes one speak with such eloquence as to stun the most learned, reducing them to silence. The light does not speak, but allows one to see; it makes one know the most hidden things. The light does not speak, but with its meek and sweet warmth, it warms, it softens the hardest things, the most obstinate hearts. The light contains no seed, no matter – everything is pure in it; one can see nothing but a wave of refulgent, silvery light, but it can penetrate so much as to make the most sterile things generate, develop, fecundate. Who can resist the power of the light? No one. Even the blind - if they do not see it, they feel its warmth. The mute, the deaf, feel and receive the good of the light.

Now, who will be able to resist the light of my Eternal Fiat? All of Its knowledges will be more than rays of light of my Volition, which will beat down on the surface of the earth, and penetrating into the hearts, will bring the good that the light of my Will contains and can do. However, these rays must have their sphere from which to start; they must be centered in one single point, from which to arise in order to form the dawn, the day, the afternoon and the sunset within hearts, to then rise again. The sphere, the single point, is you; the rays centered in it are my knowledges which will give fecundity to the generation of the children of the Kingdom of my Will. This is why I always repeat to you, 'be attentive' – so that not one of my knowledges may be lost. You would cause a ray to be lost from within your sphere, and you cannot even comprehend all the good it contains, because each ray contains its own specialty of good, which it must do to the children of my Will. And you would deprive Me of the glory of that good for my children, and would deprive yourself also of the glory of spreading one more ray of light from your sphere."

Laments and sorrows because of the privation of Jesus. Pains of Jesus in the maternal womb. One who lives in the Divine Will is like a member bound to the Creation.

I felt all in restlessness because my sweet Jesus was not coming. But while I was raving, I would speak nonsense, and in the intensity of my sorrow I kept repeating: 'Jesus, how You have changed – I would never have believed that You would reach the point of depriving me of Yourself for so long.' But while I was pouring out my sorrow, sweet Jesus came as a little child, and throwing Himself into my arms, He said to me: "My daughter, tell Me – and you, have you changed? Do you perhaps love someone else? Do you no longer want to do my Will?"

These questions of Jesus cut me to the quick and, sorry, I said: 'Jesus, what do You mean by this? No, no, I have not changed, nor do I love or know any other love. And I would love to die rather than not do your Most Holy Will.' And Jesus, sweetly, added: "So, you have not changed? Well then, my daughter, if you, who have a nature subject to changing, have not changed, could I Myself change, who am unshakeable? Your Jesus does not change – be sure of this; nor can He change."

I remained confused and did not know what to say, and He added, all goodness: "Do you want to see how I was in the womb of my Sovereign Mama, and what I suffered within Her?" Now, while He was saying this, He placed Himself inside of me, in the middle of my breast, lying flat, in a state of perfect immobility. His little feet and hands were so stretched and immobile as to arouse pity. He lacked the space to be able move, to open His eyes, to breathe freely; and what was most harrowing was to see Him in the act of dying continuously. What pain, to see my little Jesus die. I felt myself placed, together with Him, in that same state of immobility. Then, after some time, little baby Jesus, squeezing me to Himself, told me: "My daughter, my state in the maternal womb was so very painful. My little Humanity had perfect use of reason and of infinite wisdom; therefore, from the very first instant of my conception, I comprehended all my sorrowful state, the darkness of the maternal prison – I had not even a glimmer of light! What a long night of nine months! The narrowness of the place, which forced Me into perfect immobility, always in silence; nor was it given to Me to wail or to sob, so as to pour out my pain.... How many tears did I not shed in the sacrarium of the womb of my Mama, without making the slightest movement. And this was nothing. My little Humanity had taken on the commitment to die so many times in order to satisfy Divine Justice, for as many times as creatures had made the Divine Will die within them, committing the great affront of giving life to the human will, making a Divine Will die in them. Oh! how these deaths cost Me. To die and to live, to live and to die – this was the most harrowing and continuous pain for Me; more so since, even though my Divinity was one with Me and inseparable from Me, in receiving these satisfactions from Me It would take the attitude of justice, and although my Humanity was holy and pure, It was the little lamp before the immense Sun of my Divinity, and I felt all the weight of the satisfactions which I was to give to this Divine Sun, and the pain of decayed humanity which was to rise again in Me, at the cost of so many deaths of mine. It was the rejection of the Divine Will by giving life to one's own will, that formed the ruin of decayed humanity; and I was to keep my Humanity and my human will in a continuous state of death, so that the Divine Will might have continuous life in Me in order to extend in Me Its Kingdom. From the moment I was conceived, I thought about and occupied Myself with extending the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat within my Humanity, at the cost of giving no life to my human will, in order to make decayed humanity rise again, so that, once this Kingdom would be founded within Me, I might prepare the graces, the necessary things, the pains, the satisfactions which were needed in order to make It known and to found It in the midst of creatures. Therefore, everything you do, that which I do in you for this Kingdom, is nothing other than the continuation of what I did from the moment I was conceived in the womb of my Mama. So, if you want Me to carry out the Kingdom of the Eternal Fiat within you, let Me be free, and never give life to your will.”

After this, I continued my acts in the Eternal Volition, and sweet Jesus added: “My daughter, my Will is the soul, and all Creation is the body for It. And just as the soul is one in the body - one is its will - while the body has many different senses, and like many different keys, each one of them performs its own little sonata, and each member exercises its distinct office; however, there is such order and harmony among them, that when one member exercises its office, all the other members are all intent on the operating member; and they suffer together, if that member suffers, and they enjoy, if it enjoys, because one is the will that moves them, one is the strength that they possess; such is the whole Creation: It is like a body animated by my Will, and even though each created thing does its distinct office, they are so united among themselves as to be more than members to the body. Since it is my Will alone that animates them and dominates them, one is the strength that they possess. Now, one who does my Will and lives in It, is a member which belongs to the body of Creation, and therefore she possesses the universal strength of all created things, excluding not even that of her Creator, because my Will circulates in the veins of all Creation as more than blood within the body – a blood which is pure, holy, vivified with light, and which reaches the point of spiritualizing the body itself. The soul is all intent on all Creation, to do what It does, to be in communication with all of Its acts; and all Creation is intent on her, to receive her acts, because the office, the little sonata, of this member in the midst of It is so beautiful, that all are intent on listening to her. Therefore, the living in my Will is the most happy and indescribable destiny: her acts, her point of origin, are always toward Heaven; her life is in the midst of the spheres.”

How the little Baby made Himself seen, newly born, by His Mama. The light that the Little Baby sent forth, which gave to everyone the greeting of His coming upon earth. Difference between the grotto and the prison of the Passion.

I was anxiously waiting for little Baby Jesus, and after many sighs, finally He came; and throwing Himself as a little baby into my arms, He said to me: “My daughter, do you want to see how my inseparable Mama saw Me when I came out of Her maternal womb? Look at Me, and see.”

I looked at Him, and I saw Him as a tiny little baby, of a rare and enrapturing beauty. From the whole of His little Humanity, from His eyes, from His mouth, from His hands and feet, came out most refulgent rays of light, which not only enveloped Him, but extended so much as to be able to wound each heart of creature, almost to give them the first greeting of His coming upon earth – the first knock, to knock at the hearts, to have them open and ask for a shelter in them. That knock was sweet but penetrating; however, being a knock of light, it made no clamor, and yet it made itself heard strongly, more than any sound. So, on that night, all felt something unusual in their hearts, but very few were those who opened their hearts to give Him a little accommodation. And the tender Infant, in feeling Himself unrequited in His greeting, and that no one was opening at His repeated knocking, began His crying with His lips livid and shivering with cold; He sobbed, wailed and sighed. But while the light that came out of Him was doing all this with creatures, receiving the first rejections, with His Celestial Mama, as soon as He came out of Her womb, He threw Himself into Her maternal arms to give Her the first embrace, the first kiss. And since His little arms could not reach to embrace Her completely, the light which came out of His little hands surrounded all of Her, in such a way that Mother and Son remained invested with the same light. Oh! how the Queen Mama requited Her Son with Her embrace and kiss; in such a way that they remained so clasped to each other as to seem fused, one within the other. With Her love, She compensated for the first rejection which Jesus received from the hearts of creatures, and the dear and charming little Baby placed His first act of being born, His graces, His first sorrow, in the Heart of His Mama, so that what was seen in the Son could be seen in His Mama.

Then, after this, the gracious little Baby came into my arms, and as He squeezed me so very tightly, I felt Him entering into me, and I into Him. And then He said to me: “My daughter, I wanted to embrace you as I embraced my dear Mama as newly born, so that you too may receive my first act of being born and my first sorrow, my tears, my tender wailings, that you may be moved to compassion for my sorrowful state at my birth. Had I not had my Mama in whom I could place all the good of my birth and fix in Her the light of my Divinity which I, Word of the Father, contained, I would have found no one in whom either to place the infinite treasure of my birth, or to fix the light of my Divinity which shone forth from my little Humanity. Therefore, see how necessary it is that, when the Supreme Majesty decides for a great good to be done for creatures, which can serve as universal good, We choose one to whom to give so much grace that she may be able to receive within herself all the good that all others must receive. In fact, if others do not receive all of it or part of it, Our work does not remain suspended and without its fruit, but the chosen soul receives all of that good within herself, and Our work receives the return of its fruit.

So, my Mama was the depository, not only of my life, but of all my acts. Therefore, in all my acts, first I looked to see whether I could deposit them in Her, and then I did them. In Her I deposited my tears, my wailings, the cold and the pains that I suffered; and She echoed all of my acts, and with incessant thanksgivings She received everything. There was a contest between Mother and Son – I in giving, She in receiving. As this little Humanity of Mine made Its first entrance upon earth, my Divinity wanted to shine forth from It, in order to go around everywhere and make the first sensible visit to all Creation. Heaven and earth – all received this visit of their Creator, except for man. They had never received so much honor and glory as when they saw their King, their Maker, within their midst; all felt honored, for they were to serve the One from whom they had received their existence, therefore all made feast. So, my birth was of great joy and glory for Me on the part of my Mama and of all Creation; but it was for Me of great sorrow on the part of creatures. This is why I have come to you – to feel the joys of my Mama being repeated in Me, and to place in you the fruit of my birth.”

Then, after this, I was thinking about how unhappy was that grotto in which little Baby Jesus was born; how exposed it was to all winds and to cold, to the point of making one numb with icy cold. Instead of men, there were animals to keep Him company. So I thought: ‘Which prison was more unhappy and sorrowful – the prison of the night of His Passion, or the grotto of Bethlehem?’ And my sweet Baby added: “My daughter, the unhappiness of the prison of my Passion cannot be compared with the grotto of Bethlehem. In the grotto I had my Mama near Me, soul and body. She was with Me, therefore I had all the joys of my dear Mama, and She had all the joys of Myself, Her Son, which formed our Paradise. The joys of a mother who possesses her child are great; the joys of possessing a mother are even greater. I found everything in Her, and She found everything in Me. Then there was my dear father Saint Joseph who acted as father to Me, and I felt all of his joys which he felt because of Me. On the other hand, in my Passion, our joys were all interrupted, because we were to give place to sorrow, and between Mother and Son, We felt the great sorrow of the nearing separation, sensible at least, which was to occur with my death. In the grotto, animals recognized Me, and honoring Me, they tried to warm Me with their breath. In the prison, not even men recognized Me, and in order to insult Me, they covered Me with spit and opprobrium. So, there is no comparison between the two of them.”

How one who does not do the Divine Will would want to cut through the light and form darkness for himself. How true good must have its origin in God. How the soul who lives in the Supreme Will receives Its balance within herself, and is present in the whole Creation, living life together with It.

While my mind was swimming in the Sun of the Eternal Volition, my beloved Jesus told me: “My daughter, the affront that a creature commits by not doing my Will is great. My Will is more than solar light, It invades everyone and everything, nor can anyone escape from It - from Its endless light! Now, by doing her will, the creature wants to cut through this light, and she forms darkness in it; but my Will rises and follows Its course of light, leaving the creature in the darkness of her will. If someone cut through the light of the sun and formed a long night for himself, would he not be called insane and doer of great evil? Poor one, he would die of cold, no longer receiving the heat of the light of the sun; he would die of boredom, no longer being able to operate, because he would lack the good of the light. He would die of hunger, having neither light nor heat in order to make his little field, covered by the darkness of his will, vegetate and fecundate. It would be said of him: ‘It would be better if a being so unhappy had never been born!’

All this happens to the soul who does her will. Therefore, the most deplorable evil is to not do my Will, because once my Will is removed, she dies of coldness for all the celestial goods; she dies of boredom, of tiredness, of weakness, because my Will is missing, which makes the joy, the strength and the life of the divine operating arise. She dies of hunger, because Its light is missing, which makes the little field of the soul vegetate and fecundate, in order to form the food on which she must live. Creatures think that not doing my Will is not a great evil, while, instead, it encloses all evils together.”

Then, after this, He added: “My daughter, every good, in order to be a good, must have its origin in God. Therefore, love, the doing good itself, suffering, the heroism of those who rush headlong into achieving an intent, the study of sciences, sacred and profane – in sum, anything, which does not have its origin in God, inflates the creature, it empties her of grace. And all these goods which do not have their origin in God, but start with a human origin, are like works swept away by a mighty wind which, with its power, reduces cities, villas, sumptuous houses, to dust and makes of them a heap. How many times a mighty wind destroys and knocks down the most beautiful works of art and of ingenuity, making fun, with its fury, of those works so praised and admired! How many times the mighty wind of self-esteem, of self-glory, the furious wind of pleasing creatures, knock down the most beautiful works, and I feel the nausea of that very good! Therefore, there is no remedy which is more effective, more appropriate, more healing, and which blocks the fury of these winds within the soul, than the power of the light of my Will, and the eclipse formed by it. Wherever this power, this eclipse formed by divine light, is present, these winds are prevented from blowing, and the creature lives under the vital influence of a Divine Will, in such a way that the seal of the Fiat can be seen in all of her acts, both small and great. So, her motto is: ‘God wants it, I want it. If He does not want it, neither do I want it.’ In addition to this, my Will maintains perfect balance in the whole Creation. It maintains the balance of Love, of Goodness, of Mercy, of Fortitude, of Power and even of Justice. Therefore, when you hear of chastisements and of troubles, it is nothing other than the effect of my balanced Will which, as much as It loves the creature, is not subject to becoming unbalanced; otherwise It would be defective and weak, if It lost Its balance. Indeed, all the order and the sanctity of It is here: in Its perfect balance – always the same, without ever changing.

Now, my daughter, firstborn of my Will, listen to something beautiful about my Supreme Fiat. With the soul who lives in It and allows It to reign in order to let It form Its Kingdom, my Will, bilocating Itself, transfers Its perfect balance into her. So, the soul feels balanced in love, in goodness, in mercy, in fortitude, power and justice. And since Creation is extremely vast, in which my Volition exercises Its distinct act of balance in each thing, as soul possesses this balance, my Will elevates her and expands her so much, as to make her find in all of her acts the balance of both one and the other, unifying them, and rendering them inseparable. So, the creature finds herself in the sun, to do the balanced acts which my Will does in it; she finds herself in the sea, in the heavens, in the little flower that blooms, to give off its fragrance together with it; in the little bird that sings, to cheer the whole Creation with the balance of joy. She finds herself in the fury of the wind, of the water, of the storms, for the balance of justice. In sum, my Will cannot be without this creature; they are inseparable, and they live life together. And do you think it is trivial that the soul can say: ‘I am stretched within the heavens, to preserve them for the good of my brothers. I am present in the sun, to germinate, to fecundate, to give light, and to prepare the food for all mankind’; and so with all the rest? Who can ever say: ‘I love my God as He loves Himself, and I love everyone, and I do all the good that my Creator does to the whole human family'? Only one who receives this balance of the Divine Fiat and allows It to reign within herself."

How the new creation of the Kingdom of the Supreme Will was formed in the Humanity of Our Lord.

My sweet Jesus, on coming, made Himself seen carrying a Sun in the center of His breast, holding it very tightly in His arms. Drawing near me, He took that Sun from the center of His breast with His hands, and placed it in the center of mine; then He took my hands in His, and crossed them very tightly over that Sun, saying to me: "This Sun is my Will – hold It tightly, never let It escape you, for It has the power to convert you and all your acts – everything, into light, in such a way as to incorporate you completely into It, forming one single Sun."

Then, afterwards, I was thinking about everything that my sweet Jesus had done in His coming upon earth for the Redemption, so as to unite myself to His acts and ask Him, for love of His own acts, to make His Will known in order to let It reign. And my adored Jesus added: "My daughter, as my Humanity was conceived, so I began a new creation, in order to lay the Kingdom of my Will over all the acts that my Humanity did. All the acts I did, both inside and outside of my Humanity, were animated by a Divine Will which contained the Creative Power; therefore my acts underwent the new creation and converted into acts of Divine Will, and I extended Its Kingdom in my interior and in all of my external acts. In fact, who destroyed and rejected this Kingdom of my Will in man? His human will, which, rejecting Mine from itself, did not let itself be dominated and animated by It, but let itself be dominated and animated by its own, and so it formed in it the kingdom of miseries, of passions and of ruins. Now, before anything, my Humanity was to redo and to call back this Kingdom of the Supreme Will within Myself, within my human nature, that I might be all set to form the Redemption, and therefore able to give mankind the remedies in order to be saved. Had I not placed this Kingdom in safety within Me, had I not given to It Its rights of dominion, I could not have formed the good of Redemption. My Divine Will would have been inexorable in not conceding Its goods to Me, had I not had the prime right to form Its Kingdom in Me; only then, as second act, It would grant to Me the remedies to save creatures. So, my Supreme Will lined Itself up within all of my acts; It dominated, and, triumphant, It invested my tears, my baby moans, my sighs, heartbeats, steps, works, words, pains – in sum, everything, with Its Creative Power. And as It invested them, It pearled them with Its endless light, and formed the new creation of Its Kingdom in all my acts. Therefore, in every additional thing I did, the Divine Fiat expanded the boundaries of Its Kingdom within my Humanity.

Now, if the Creation was called from nothing, and was formed on the foundation of my creative word, which spoke and created, it commanded, and all things took their place of order and harmony, in the creation of the Kingdom of the Supreme Will, instead, It was not content with forming It from nothing, but It wanted, as guarantee of safety, the basis, the foundations, the walls and all the acts and pains of my Most Holy Humanity, in order to form the creation of Its Kingdom. See then, how much this Kingdom of my Will cost; with how much love I developed It within Me. Therefore, this Kingdom exists – there is nothing left but to make It known, so as to let all the goods It contains go out into the field. So, what I want from you is that, just as my Humanity left my Will free to form

Its Kingdom, you may leave Me free, without opposing in anything, so that, finding no opposition in you, my acts may flow in you, and taking their place of honor, they may line up, all in order, to continue in you the life of the Kingdom of my Will.”

After this, my sweet Jesus escaped me like a flash, and I wanted to follow Him, but, to my highest bitterness, in that flash I saw that contagious diseases were to come, which will spread almost in all nations, not excluding our Italy. It seemed that many were dying of it, to the extent of depopulating homes. In several nations the scourge would rage more strongly, but almost all of them will be touched. It seems that they hold hands in offending the Lord, and Our Lord touches everyone with the same scourges. But I hope that He may want to placate Himself, so the peoples will suffer less.

The will of the soul as present for Baby Jesus. How His whole life was the symbol and the calling of the Divine Will. How the knowledges are the means in order to hasten the coming of the Kingdom of His Will.

(I was meditating on the old year which was setting, and the new one which was rising.)

My state continues in the flight of the light of the Divine Will, and I was praying the pretty little Baby that, just as the old year was dying never to be born again, so He would make my will die and live no more; and as present for the new year, He would give me His Will, just as I gave Him the gift of mine, so as to place it as footstool at His tender little feet, that it might have no other life but His Will alone. Now, while I was saying this and other things, my sweet Jesus came out from within my interior, and told me: “Daughter of my Will, how I love, want - yearn that your will may end in you. Oh, how I accept your present! How pleasing it will be for Me to keep it as soft footstool at my feet. In fact, as long as it remains in the creature, outside of its center which is God, the human will is hard; but when it enters again into the center from which it came, serving as footstool at the feet of your little Baby Jesus, it becomes soft, and I use it to amuse Myself. Is it not right that, little as I am, I have an amusement? And that in the midst of so many sorrows, privations and tears, I have your will to make Me smile?

Now, you must know that one who puts an end to her will, returns into the origin from which she came, and the new life, the life of light, the perennial life of my Will, begins in her. See, when I came upon earth, I wanted to give many examples and similes of how I wanted the human will to end. I wanted to be born at midnight, so as to break the night of the human will with the refulgent day of Mine. And even though at midnight the night continues, it does not finish, it is yet the beginning of a new day; and my Angels, to give honor to my birth and to point out to everyone the day of my Will, from midnight on, gladdened the vault of the heavens with new stars and new suns, such as to turn the night into more than daylight. This was the homage that the Angels gave to my little Humanity, in which resided the full day of the Sun of my Divine Will, and the calling of the creature into the full day of It. Still little, I submitted Myself to the so very cruel cut of circumcision, which made Me shed bitter tears for the pain – and not only Me, but with Me cried my Mama and dear St. Joseph. It was the cut of the human will that I wanted to make, so that creatures might let the Divine Will flow within that cut, and so that a broken will might have life no more - but only Mine, which had run within that cut in order to begin Its life again.

Still little, I wanted to flee to Egypt. A tyrannical and iniquitous will wanted to kill Me – symbol of the human will which wants to kill Mine; and I fled, in order to say to all: ‘Flee the human will, if you do not want Mine to be killed.’ My whole life was nothing other than the calling of the Divine Will into the human. In Egypt I lived like a stranger in the midst of that people – symbol of my Will, which they keep as though estranged within their midst; and symbolizing that whoever wants to live in peace and united with my Will, must live as though estranged from the human will. Otherwise, there will always be war between the two of them - they are two irreconcilable wills.

After my exile, I returned to my fatherland – symbol of my Will which, after Its long exile of centuries upon centuries, will return to Its dear fatherland, into the midst of Its children in order to reign. And as I went through these stages in my life, I kept forming Its Kingdom in Me, and I called It with incessant prayers, with pains and with tears, to come to reign in the midst of creatures. I returned to my fatherland and I lived hidden and unknown. Oh! how this symbolizes the sorrow of my Will which, while living in the midst of the peoples, lives unknown and hidden. And with my hiddenness, I impetrated that the Supreme Will be known, that It might receive the homage and the glory which are due to It. There was nothing I did which did not symbolize a sorrow of my Will, the condition in which creatures put It, and a call I made in order to return Its Kingdom to It. And this is what I want your life to be: the continuous calling of the Kingdom of my Will into the midst of creatures.”

Then, after this, I was going around through the whole Creation in order to bring the heavens, the stars, the sun, the moon, the sea – in sum, everything, to the feet of little Baby Jesus together with me, so as to ask Him, all together, that the coming of this Kingdom of His Will upon earth might come soon. And in my desire, I was saying to Him: ‘See, I am not the only one who is praying You, but the heavens are praying with the voices of all the stars; the sun, with the voice of its light and of its heat; the sea, with its murmuring – they are all praying You that your Will may come to reign upon earth. How can You resist listening to so many voices that pray You? It is innocent voices – voices animated by your very Will, that are praying You.’

Now, while I was saying this, my little Jesus came out from within my interior to receive the homage of all Creation, and to listen to their mute language; and squeezing me to Himself, He told me: “My daughter, the easiest means in order to hasten the coming of my Will upon earth are the knowledges about It. The knowledges bring light and heat, and form within themselves the prime act of God, in which the creature finds the first act on which to model her own. If she does not find the first act, the creature does not have the virtue of forming the prime act; therefore the acts, the things which are most necessary in order to form this Kingdom, would be missing. See then, what one additional knowledge about my Will means. By carrying the prime act of God within themselves, they will bring with them a magnetic force, a powerful magnet, in order to draw creatures to repeat the prime act of God. With their light, they will bring the disillusionment of the human will; with their heat, they will soften the hardest hearts to bend before this divine act; and creatures will feel captivated to wanting to model themselves on this act. Therefore, the more knowledges I manifest about my Will, the more quickly is the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat drawn upon earth.”

How each new act of Divine Will brings a new Divine Life. How one who wants to hear the truth, but does not want to execute it remains burned. Hardship of the Divine Will within souls.

My poor heart was now moaning, now agonizing because of the pain of the privation of my dear and beloved Jesus. Hours seem centuries to me, and nights interminable without Him. Sleep escapes from my eyes. Could I at least sleep – my intense sorrow would fall asleep; maybe this would bring me a little relief. But – no; instead of sleeping, I become all eyes – and open eyes, not closed. Eyes my thoughts, which want to penetrate to see where is the One whom I look for and do not find; eyes my hearing, to hear - who knows - the soft treading of His steps, the sweet and gentle echo of His voice. My eyes look – who knows, they might see at least the flash of His fleeting coming. Oh! how His privation costs me. Oh! how I long for His return.

Now, while I was amid the yearnings of wanting Him, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior, and made Himself seen inside of me, sitting at a little table of light, all occupied and intent on looking at the whole order of what He had manifested about His Most Holy Will – whether everything was marked, whether anything was missing, and the point He was to reach in order to complete everything that regards His Most Holy Will. Everything which regarded His Volition, the words, the knowledges, assumed the image of a ray of light in the hand of Jesus, which He was ordering on that desk of light; and He was so engrossed and occupied, that as much as I spoke and called Him, He would not pay attention to me. So I kept silent, contenting myself with being near Him and with looking at Him. Then, after a long silence, He said to me: “My daughter, when it comes to things which regard my Will, Heaven and earth remain silent and reverent, to be spectators of a new act of this Supreme Will. Each new act of It brings to all one more Divine Life, one strength, one happiness, one enrapturing beauty. Therefore, the Divine Will operating, which issues an act from Itself, is the greatest thing that can exist in Heaven and on earth. New heavens, more beautiful suns, can come out of one more act of my Will. Therefore, when it comes to It, you and I must put everything aside and occupy ourselves only with the Eternal Fiat. This is not about reordering a human will in you, or just any virtue, but it is about reordering a Divine and operating Will. Therefore, it takes very much, and this is why, being occupied with things which regard Me more and which will bring the great good of a new act of this Supreme Will, I do not pay attention to your calls, because when it comes to doing the greatest, minor things are put aside.”

After this, I was following my passionate Jesus in the Passion, and as I arrived at the point when Herod stormed Him with questions and He remained silent, I thought to myself: ‘If Jesus had spoken, maybe he would have converted.’ And Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, Herod did not question Me in order to know the truth, but out of curiosity and to make a fool of Me; and if I had answered, I would have made a fool of him, because when the will to know the truth and to execute it is missing, the humor in order to receive the heat which the light of my truths brings with itself, is missing in the soul. Not finding the humidity in order to make the truths germinate and fecundate, this heat burns even more, and makes the good it can produce wither. It happens as to the sun: when it does not find humidity on the plants, its heat serves to wither and burn the life of the plants; but if it finds humidity, it makes prodigies. So, the truth is beautiful, it is lovable, it is the reviver and the fecundator of souls; with its light and heat it forms prodigies of development, of graces and of sanctity – but for those who love to know it in order to execute it. On the other hand, with those who do not love to execute it, it is the truth that mocks them, rather than remaining mocked itself.”

In addition to this, while I was writing, I felt such exhaustion of strength, that I did it with difficulty; nor did I feel I was being fed the words by Jesus to make it easier for me, or the fullness of the mental light that, like sea, forms in my mind, such that I have to content myself with taking a few drops of light to write them on paper, otherwise, if I wanted to put everything, I would act like a person who goes into the sea and would want to hold all the water of the sea in his hand – as much as he takes, it all escapes him; but if he takes a few drops, he can manage to carry them with himself. So, everything was hardship in me, in the soul, in the body – in everything. Feeling so ill, I thought to myself: ‘Maybe it is no longer Will of God for me to write, otherwise He would have helped me like the other times. Instead, the hardship, the effort I have to make is so great, that I cannot go on. Therefore, if Jesus does not want it, neither do I want it.’

But while I was thinking this, my sweet Jesus came out from within my interior and told me: “My daughter, one who must possess the Kingdom of my Will, must not only do It and live in It, but must feel and suffer what my Will feels and suffers within souls. What you feel is nothing other than the condition in which It finds Itself in creatures. With what difficulty It flows; what efforts does It not have to make in order to subdue creatures, to make them do Its Will. How repressed they keep It within their own will - they take away from It the best of Its life within them, which is Its energy, Its joy, Its strength; and It is forced to act under the pressure of a human will, melancholic, weak and inconstant. Oh! in what a heavy, bitter, crushing nightmare creatures keep my Will. Do you not want, then, to take part in Its pains? My daughter, you must be a key, and whatever sound my Will wants to produce, you must lend yourself to form the sound It wants to make. And when It has formed in you all the sounds It possesses – sounds of joy, of strength, of goodness, of sorrow, etc. – Its victory will be complete, having formed Its Kingdom in you. Therefore, think, rather, that this is a different and distinct sonata which It wants to play in you – it is one more key that It wants to add in your soul, because in the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat It wants to find all the notes of the musical concert of the Celestial Fatherland, so that not even music may be missing in Its Kingdom.”

The soul who lives in the Divine Will is always equal to herself. The order of Providence in the Incarnation and in the manifestations of the Holy Magi.

I was doing my usual acts in the Supreme Volition, and my sweet Jesus came out from within my interior; and stretching out His arms to me, He embraced me, but He clasped me so tightly to Himself, that I remained completely covered with Jesus. And He said to me: “My daughter, I am not content if I do not see you completely covered with Me, and so dissolved in Me, as to no longer be able to recognize yourself in you, but only Me in you.”

Then He added: “My daughter, one who lives in the Divine Will is always equal to herself. Her acts are symbolized by light, which diffuses equally to the back and to the front, to the right and to the left. At the most, if it contains greater intensity of light, it expands more; but it diffuses always equally in expanding the circumference of light around itself. Now, as for the acts done in my Will, symbolized by light, as the act of the creature enters into my Will, it embraces past, present and future; and not lacking the fullness of light, it expands everywhere and, as though in one blow, it takes everyone within the circumference of its endless light. Therefore, no one, as much good as he might do, can say to one who lives in the Divine Fiat: 'I am similar to you'; but she alone can say: 'I am similar to the One who created me – whatever He does, I do. One is the light that invests us, one is the strength, one is the Will'."

Then, after this, I was thinking about the Holy Magi, when they visited the little Baby Jesus in the grotto of Bethlehem; and my always lovable Jesus told me: "My daughter, see the order of my Divine Providence: for the great portent of my Incarnation, I chose and made use of a Virgin, humble and poor; and, as my custodian, who acted as father to Me, the virgin Saint Joseph, who was so poor that he needed to work in order to support our lives. See how, in the greatest works – and the mystery of the Incarnation could not be greater – We make use of people whose outward appearance attracts no one's attention, because dignities, scepters, riches, are always fumes which blind the soul and prevent her from penetrating into the celestial mysteries in order to receive a great act of God, and God Himself. But in order to manifest to the peoples the coming of Myself, Word of the Father, upon earth, I wanted and made use of royal authority, of learned and erudite men, so that, by their authority, they might diffuse the knowledges of the God now born and, eventually, also impose themselves on the peoples. But, in spite of this, the star was seen by everyone, yet only three of them move, pay attention and follow it. This says that, among all, these alone possessed a certain dominion of themselves, such that, as it formed a little empty space within their interior, beyond the appearance of the star, they felt my call echoing in their interior. And heedless of sacrifices, of gossip, of mockeries – because they were leaving for an unknown place and they had to hear much talking – disregarding everything and dominating themselves, they followed the star that was united to my call which, more than speaking star, resounded in their interior, enlightened them, attracted them, and spoke many things about the One whom they were to visit; and, drunk with joy, they followed the star.

See then, how in order to give the great gift of the Incarnation, a Virgin was needed who would have no human will, who would be more of Heaven than of the earth, as well as a continuous miracle which would dispose Her to this great portent. So, We had no need of external things and of human appearances, which might draw the attention of the peoples. However, in spite of this, also to manifest Myself, I wanted men who would have dominion of themselves, which would form a little empty space within their interior, to let the echo of my call resound in it. But what was not their surprise in seeing the star stop, not above a royal palace, but above a vile hovel? They did not know what to think, and were persuaded that there was a mystery – not human, but Divine. When they animated themselves with faith, and entered the grotto and, kneeling, adored Me, as they bent their knees, I revealed Myself, and I let my Divinity shine forth from my little Humanity, and they recognized Me as the King of kings – the One who was coming to save them; and, promptly, they offered themselves to serve Me and to lay down their lives for love of Me. But my Will made Itself known, and sent them again into their region, to let them be, in the midst of those peoples, the criers of my coming upon earth. See then, how necessary are the dominion of oneself and the empty space in one's heart, in order to let my call resound, and to be fit for knowing the truth and for manifesting it to others."

How one who does the Will of God possesses the balance of It, and *possesses an act of light for everything. How a note of sorrow was placed, and this is why the Divine Will and the human will scowl at each other. How the first fruits are the things which are liked the most.

I was going around everywhere according to my usual way, to follow the Divine Will in all Creation; and my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, how amazing is the operating of the soul in my Will. Just as the Fiat maintains the balance in the whole Creation, by echoing my balance, she forms the balance in all creatures and lays within them the Kingdom of my Will. She is like light which descends from above, and fixing herself in everyone, lays within everyone the Kingdom of the love of my Will, of the adoration, of the glory, and of everything It possesses. But while descending like light to let nothing escape her, like light she ascends and brings the balance of all the acts of the Creation, of all times and of all hearts, to her Creator. With the balance of all the human acts in which the soul has let the act of the Divine Will enter, on her part she empties all the human acts, and lets the Divine Will flow as prime act. And the Divine Will lays Its Kingdom within them, because there is a soul who has taken to heart that there be no human act in which she does not want to fix her light, so that what is human may be knocked down, and the Divine Will alone may reappear in all things. This is why, my daughter, I almost make you touch everything with your own hand - I want you to extend yourself to everyone and in everything, to make you extend the Kingdom of my Will. This is what I want – that my Will flow in everything, which is such that, while It invests everything like light, It remains above all, and everything becomes my Will.

However, it may be that someone escapes from this light, just as someone escapes from the light of the sun; but this says nothing for the sun, because by possessing the balance of the light, it contains its act of light for everyone and for everything. So, while giving light to all, the sun maintains the balance of the glory of all the acts of light for its Creator; therefore it remains in the perfect order, while those who escape the light go out of the order. In the same way, the soul, by possessing the unity of the light of the Supreme Fiat, possesses all the acts of light of It, therefore she can give her act of light of Divine Will to the human acts, so that, on her part, she may extend Its Divine Kingdom everywhere. If creatures escape, this says nothing; the light of my Will diffuses anyway, and I see, in my chosen one, that my Kingdom follows Its way, It extends, It is established. Therefore, I want to see your acts in my Will over each thought of creatures, in each word, heartbeat, step and work – in everything. For now, let us think about forming our Kingdom; once It is formed, we will think about those who escape and those who remain in the net of the light of my Will.”

After this, I felt so very exhausted, because I had had a fever for many days and I had just barely written that little which is written above. So, not feeling the strength to continue writing, I stopped, and I began to pray. And my sweet Jesus, coming out from within my interior, clasped me all to Himself, and He compassionated me, saying to me: “My daughter is sick, my daughter is sick.... You must know that, on the part of creatures, a note of sorrow was placed in the Kingdom of my Will – a note which no one, for many centuries, has ever thought of healing; a note too sorrowful for the Supreme Fiat, and the cause for which the Divine Will and the human will scowl at each other. Now, the firstborn daughter of my Will must balance all parties before she comes to Our Fatherland; she must fill all the voids in order to establish my Kingdom in the midst of creatures. Now, being sick, my daughter will form the Kingdom of divine pain within It, which, flowing like a wave of light and of heat, will serve to sweeten this sorrowful note. Don't you know that light and heat have the power to convert the most bitter things into most sweet nectar? It is given to you, my daughter, who live in Our Volition, to let your sorrows, your fever, your intimate pains of my privation which make you die without dying, flow within Our endless boundaries, in order to invest this note, so sorrowful, of the Divine Fiat, and form in this note a most sweet and harmonious sound, in such a way that the two wills will no longer scowl at each other, but will be reconciled."

Then He added: "My daughter, you cannot comprehend what I feel for you – the joys, the happiness I feel because I find in you the first fruits of the Kingdom of my Will. I find the delights of the early fruits, the first fruits of the music which only the creature who lives in It can produce, because she takes all of Our notes which are in Our Will, makes them her own, and forms her beautiful music in my Kingdom. And I – oh! how I delight in listening to her. I find the first fruits of order, the first fruits of true love, which my Will has conceded to her; I find the first fruits of beauty, which enraptures Me so much that I cannot detach my gaze. So, I find all of your acts as first acts, which no one before you has given to Me. The first fruits are always the things which are liked the most, which attract, and which are enjoyed the most. And if other similar things come after the first fruits, it is by virtue of the prime act that other similar acts could be formed; so, all the glory is of the prime act. Therefore, you will always have the first fruits in the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat; there will be nothing done in It which will not start from your prime act. So, all will be turned toward you – to you the beginning of the glory. Therefore, I want everything to begin from you, in order to form my Supreme Kingdom."

Jesus prays her to write. How His word is happiness. How one who lives in the Divine Will is looked upon as one from the Celestial Fatherland. She prays together with the whole Creation; how Jesus promises her that everything will be granted to her.

Continuing with a fever, I could manage to write with such difficulty, that I had decided to write no more until I would find myself in the condition of being able to do it with less difficulty, also to be able to write more extensively what blessed Jesus manifests to His little daughter. In fact, because of the difficulty, I try to condense as much as I can. Now, while I was not thinking at all that I would have to write, given my decision, my always lovable Jesus moved in my interior, and as though praying me, told me: "My daughter, write a little bit; I am content with little rather than nothing. When you can, then you will write more. And in the little you will write, I will help you - I will not leave you alone; and when I see that you cannot go on, I Myself will say 'enough', because I love you very much – and also your nature, for it also is mine, and I do not want you to tire yourself out beyond your strengths. But do not take away from Me this pleasure of maintaining the ever new correspondence of writing what I want to tell you. You know that in the whole world there is not one point for Me in which I can share my happinesses and receive return for them. So, the point of my happiness in the world is you, and this happiness of mine is formed by my speaking. When I can speak with a creature, make Myself understood, it is happiness for Me, and full and superabundant happiness for the one who listens to Me; more so, since in speaking with you, you being in my Will, I speak to you within my Will Itself, not outside of It, and I am sure of being understood; more so, since in speaking to you about my Volition, I feel in you the happiness of my Kingdom, the echo of the happiness of the Celestial Fatherland.

Do you know, my daughter, what would happen? Since I keep you in the Supreme Fiat, I look upon you as one from my Celestial Fatherland. What would you say if someone who already lives in Heaven did not want to receive my new joys, which I naturally release from my womb to make all the Blessed happy? In fact, it is my nature to give ever new beatitudes. This someone would be a hindrance to my happiness; she would close inside my womb the joys that I want to issue. So it would happen with you - you would be a hindrance to my happiness, to the ever new joys which my Will possesses. More so, since I feel happier when I render the little daughter of my Will happier, who finds herself in the low exile only because of Us - for nothing else, to give Us the field in order to form Our Kingdom in the midst of creatures, and to restore for Us the rights and the glory of the work of the whole Creation. Do you think that my Heart can tolerate not making my little daughter happy? No, no - it would be the greatest pain for Me. Is my word perhaps not the greatest happiness for you?"

And I: 'Certainly O Jesus; and if You knew how You render me unhappy when You deprive me of it - how I feel the void of a happiness without end, which nothing else, as beautiful and good as it might be, will be able to make up for.'

And Jesus: "Therefore, my daughter, while my word makes you happy, I do not want my happiness to remain in the void of yourself alone, but I want it to serve to establish my Kingdom; and therefore, as confirmation of my word and of my happiness which comes from Me, I want it to be written on paper, also as confirmation of our correspondence."

Then, after this, I began to pray, bringing all Creation together with me before the Supreme Majesty - that is, the heavens, the stars, the sun, the sea - in sum, everything, so that my prayer might be animated by all the acts which the Supreme Fiat exercises in the whole Creation. My sweet Jesus placed Himself near me, leaning His head against mine, extending His arm around my neck, almost to sustain me. And I said to Him: 'My Love, Jesus, I am not the only one praying You, but together with me there is your Will operating in all Creation, praying that your Kingdom come. It Itself wants Its rights, all whole and complete, over everyone and everything; and only with the coming of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat upon earth will all of Its rights be given back to It. Listen, oh Jesus, how touching is the voice of your Fiat in the whole azure of the heavens; how eloquent it is in the sun; how attractive and strong it is in the sea. Everywhere can your Fiat be heard resounding, wanting the rights of Its Kingdom. O please! listen to your own Fiat; listen to your little daughter who, making all of Its acts her own, prays You, supplicates You, that your Kingdom come. And even though I am just newly born, I too want my rights; and do You know, O Jesus, what they are? That I give back to your Will all the glory and the honor as if no one had offended It, as if all had fulfilled It, adored It and loved It. If I am Its daughter, I want that Its rights be given back to It, and I want also that my first father Adam be given back the honor as if he had never withdrawn from your Will.'

And my most sweet Jesus, all moved, said to me: "To my little daughter who takes to heart so much the rights of my Divine Fiat, and who makes use of Its very power in order to breach her way over my Heart, everything will be granted. How not to content you, my daughter? To you everything will be given; even more, we will adjust together what regards my Will and what regards the creatures. Aren't you happy? Look, my daughter – from the moment my Will went out into the field in Creation, It has always been firm and unshakeable in doing good, in spite of the many volubilities of creatures and the offenses. Triumphant of everything, It has followed Its course of always, always doing good. See, in order to make the creature ascend again into the firmness, into the perennial good, into the unshakeability of my Will, I want to establish my Kingdom in their midst. See then, in what point I have placed you – in the firmness and unshakeability of the Fiat, so as to allow you to lay this Kingdom of Mine within It. And just as my Will triumphs of everything with Its firmness, so will you triumph of everything with Its firmness and in the unshakeability of Its acts, and you will reorder the divine order between the two wills - the Divine Will will be reintegrated in Its glory, and the human will will place itself again in the order established by God.”

After I wrote this, I was thinking to myself that what is written above was not necessary; more so since, continuing to be feverish, I write with difficulty, and I write just a little to make Jesus content. And my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, in order to live in my Will, the soul must ascend; and in order to ascend in It, she must leave that which does not belong to my Will. She must leave her miserable rags, her vulgar habits, her vile foods, her miseries. Everything she must leave, to make use of royal garments, of divine habits, of precious and nourishing foods, of infinite riches – in sum, of everything that belongs to my Will. What you have written serves you for now - it serves the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat; then it will be the rule for those who must live in It – how they must make use of all the operating acts of my Will in order to maintain themselves within the boundaries of my Kingdom. Therefore, that which to you does not seem to be necessary, is necessary for the formation of my Supreme Kingdom.”

How in the Kingdom of the Fiat all things are complete, up to the shades of all colors. One who lives in It takes everything as though in one blow.

I continue to plunge myself into the Supreme Volition, and my sweet Jesus made Himself seen leaning His head upon mine; and since I was suffering, I said to Him: ‘My Love, see, I am in your lovable Will, and since I want to come to Heaven with You, it is your very Will – not I, that asks You to take me with You. Therefore, make your own Will content, which, being everywhere, prays You everywhere – in the heavens, in the sun, in the sea, that You no longer keep Its little daughter in the exile, far away from You, but that after so many hardships and privations of You, You let her land in your Celestial Fatherland. O please! have compassion on me and on your Will that prays You.’

And Jesus, all compassionating me, told me: “Poor daughter, you are right – I know how much your exile costs you; and to persuade Me, you make Me be prayed by my own Will. More powerful device you could not find. But know, daughter, that the Supreme Fiat wants something else from you - It wants that, on your part, all the beauties, all the varieties of multicolored colors, all of their shades, be formed in Its Kingdom. The beauties are there, the colors in all their varieties are there in order, but all the shades are missing, and I want nothing to be missing on your part, for the decorum and the beauty of my Kingdom. If you knew how one more shade stands out more - how embellishing it is.... And do you know how these shades can be formed? One additional saying of mine can be one more shade in the varieties of colors; one little round of yours in my Will, one little pain of yours, one offering, one prayer in the Fiat, are as many other shades which you will add, and which my Volition will delight in administering to you. In It, things are all complete, nor would It tolerate that Its first daughter would not take all of Its complete acts, as much as it is possible for creature, in order to form Its Divine Kingdom.”

After this, I continued my flight in the Supreme Volition, and my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, one who lives in the Divine Will takes everything together, as though in one blow. In fact, since my Will is everywhere, there is nothing that can escape It, Its life is eternal, Its immensity knows no limits, nor circumferences, therefore the soul who lives in It takes the Eternal God, all the heavens, the sun, everything that exists, the Virgin, the Angels, the Saints – in sum, everything. And as she prays, palpitates, breathes, loves, her act becomes common to all; so, all palpitate from her heartbeat, all breathe with her breath, all love with her love, because wherever my Will extends, It moves all to do the act of one who lives in It. From this, it happens that since the Sovereign Queen has the first place in the Divine Fiat, She feels the little daughter who lives in It close to Herself; and associating Herself with her, She repeats what she does together with her, and places Her seas of grace, of light, of love, in common, because one is the Will of the Mama and of the little daughter. Even more, the height of the Sovereign of Heaven feels honored in her, with acts of a Divine Will; She feels that this little daughter enters into Her seas, and stirring them with her acts, she makes them swell, to double them and expand them. But to do what? To let her Creator receive doubled divine glory, and love from Her very seas of love; and to place the seas of her Celestial Mama as though in a bank, so that She may receive doubled glory.

Therefore, though little, this creature moves everything, she imposes herself on everything; all let her do; all feel the power of the good that she wants to give to all. So, she is little and strong; she is little and she is present everywhere; she is little and her prerogative is littleness, therefore she possesses nothing – not even her will, because, voluntarily, she has given it to the One who had right over it. And the Divine Will gives her everything – there is nothing which It does not entrust to her. Therefore, the prodigies of the living in my Will are indescribable and innumerable. Oh! if all knew what it means to live in my Will, and the good they receive – even more, there is no good which they do not take, there is no good which they cannot do – they would all compete and yearn to live in my holy and adorable Volition.”

How the communion of the Divine Will is not subject to being consumed; its veils are intangible. She longs for Heaven, and therefore she is melancholic, and puts all Creation in melancholy.

Having received Communion, I remained afflicted and distressed, because the fits of coughing were such and so many that I felt I was suffocating, and I could neither think, nor be with Jesus according to my usual way. Then, after one hour and more of intense coughing, I calmed down and I thought to myself: ‘It has already been an hour and more since I received Jesus, and I have not been able to recollect myself to be all alone with Him. The accidents of the Host are now consumed, Jesus has left, and I do not know where else to find Him again. So, today for me it has been as if I had not received Holy Communion. But, after all, also in this, I kiss, I adore and I bless the Supreme Fiat.’

Now, while I was thinking of this, my sweet Jesus came out from within my interior, leaned His head upon my shoulder, and sustained me with His arms to give me strength, for I was so exhausted that I felt myself dying. And, all goodness, He said to me: “My daughter, do you not know that there is a communion which is eternal, so great, and not subject to either diminishing or being consumed? Its veils, which hide it in the midst of creatures, are not subject to perishing like the veils of the Sacramental Host. It gives itself in every instant, at each breath, at each heartbeat and in all circumstances. Even more, one must be always with one’s mouth open to be able to receive them all – that is, with the will of always wanting to receive this communion so great and continuous which, as much as it gives itself, it is not subject to either diminishing or being consumed. Otherwise, many times they remain outside of the soul, without entering into her.

You have already understood what this communion so great and continuous is: It is my Divine Fiat, which flows as life within your soul; as heat to fecundate you and to make you grow; as food to nourish you. It flows in the blood of your veins, in the beating of your heart – in everything; It is always in the act of giving Itself to you, if you just want to receive It. It would drown you with communions, so many It wants to give you. With reason, with justice and by right, the communion of my Will was to be without limits and not subject to being consumed, because It is origin, means and end of the creature, and therefore she was to be able to receive It, in such a way that It could never – never be lacking to her. In fact, something that is origin, means and end must be in continuous act of giving itself, and of being received. If it were not so, her origin of living and the means to sustain herself would be lacking for the poor creature; and she would lose the end that she must reach. Therefore, my infinite Wisdom could never allow that the communion of my Will be limited for them.

On the other hand, the Sacramental Communion was not given as origin of creatures, nor as end, but it was given as means, help, refreshment and medicine; and the means, the helps, etc., are given in a limited way – they are not perennial. This is why the veils of the sacramental accidents are subject to being consumed; more so, since if creatures love to receive Me continuously, there is the great communion of the Eternal Fiat, which is in act of giving Itself continuously to them. Yet, you were afflicting and almost troubling yourself, as you were thinking that the sacramental species were consumed. You had no reason to afflict yourself, because inside and outside of you there is the communion of my Will, which is not subject to undergoing any consummation. Its Life is always in Its fullness, nor could my Love tolerate that the little daughter of Our Will be unable to receive Our Divine Life, always new and continuous.”

Then, after this, I continued to feel sick, and while doing the round in the Creation to follow the acts of the Supreme Will, I felt a note of sadness within me, because obedience had imposed on me to obey in letting my sickness be taken away, while I was longing for Heaven. I would have wanted to make a jump from the middle of Creation in order to reach my yearned for Fatherland, praying the heavens, the stars, the sun and all created things to accompany me. In fact, since one was the Fiat that gave us life, I had my rights that they should not leave me alone, but should all follow me up to the eternal gates, waiting for that very Will which had possessed me on earth to receive me in Heaven first; and then, after my entrance into the beatific Celestial Will, they could withdraw, each one to its place. But, since I could not do this, I felt melancholic, and so I was going around throughout the whole Creation. Now, while I was doing this, a loud, harmonious and silvery voice made itself heard from the center of Creation, saying: “Your sad note has communicated itself to all created things; so, today you have put us all in melancholy. Be sure that we will all accompany you to Heaven – it is right that one who has been in our midst, who has kept us company, may not enter Heaven without our company. But all Creation will remain without the one who puts gaiety in It, who keeps It in feast. Your echo will no longer resound in our midst, by which, rendering us as though speaking, we magnify, love and praise that Divine Will which created us and preserves us. We will lose the one who visits us and keeps us company.” The voice kept silent, and I myself felt I was breathing a melancholic air. So I thought I had committed sin for having put the whole Creation in melancholy with my sadness. And so I yearned for my sweet Jesus to tell him of the evil I had done; to tell Him that the reason He had made me write so many things regarding the Divine Will was so that these might reach into the midst of creatures, in such a way that, by living of this Divine Fiat, they might possess a Kingdom so holy. Then, while I was thinking of this and other things, my beloved Jesus moved in my interior and told me: “My daughter, you are right in wanting to come, but before all the knowledges of my Will come out and do their course, it will take time. And this is why the Creation is right in saying that It will be left in Its silence once again. However, I do not want you to oppress yourself - abandon yourself in Me and let your Jesus do everything.”

And I: ‘My Love, when You take me to Heaven, I pray that You take me quickly quickly, so that they may not have the time to give me this obedience.’ But while I was saying this, I seemed to see the heavens, the sun and all Creation bowing around me to pay homage; and Jesus added: “My daughter, when you die, the whole Creation will invest you, and you will pass into Heaven in a flash. Aren’t you happy?”

How the Divine Fiat is powerful magnet which draws God to the creature. How the human will is more than earthquake, and how it is exposed to all thieves.

As I continued to be more sick than usual, my sweet Jesus made Himself seen – not Himself alone, but together with the Three Divine Persons. They all surrounded me, and I remained in Their midst, nor could I see anything but Their Supreme Height and the immense light which surrounded Them. And all Three of Them said to me: “We have come to make a visit to our daughter who is sick. Our Will, more than powerful magnet, drew Us and called Us from Heaven to make Us come to you; nor could We do without coming to cheer the one who is firstborn daughter of Our Will, and to keep her a little company in her sufferings. The strength of Our Fiat is irresistible for Us, and surrendering to Its strength is happiness to Us.”

Now, who can say what I felt and comprehended while being in Their midst? I do not have the words to express myself. Then, since obedience had told me that I should have something to eat, while I was unable to take anything, in order to obey, before Jesus came, I had taken a few spoonfuls of broth, and I felt it inside my throat, unable to go down into my stomach. I told Jesus to let me obey, and Jesus, all goodness, passed His holy hand from my throat to my stomach, making it go down to my stomach so that I could digest it; in such a way that I did not bring it up, as I usually do every day

- that whatever I take, I bring up. Infinite goodness of Jesus for me, who am the littlest and poorest creature. Then, after this, I remained afflicted, because I thought that They would take me with Them; and since They didn't, I felt sad. And Jesus, to cheer me, placed Himself with His face in front of my chest, and as He breathed over me, a light came out of His breath, which served not only for my soul, but also to recompose my whole body. As the breath would cease, my body would fall apart; and Jesus, to cheer me, said to me: "My daughter, courage, don't you see that the mere breath and light of my Will recomposes also your body? So, if I stop my breath, your body will fall apart and you will immediately take the way to Our Celestial Fatherland."

And I: 'My Love, I am useless and I am good at nothing – would it not be better for You to get rid of Me by sending me to the Celestial Jerusalem?' And Jesus, all goodness, added: "My daughter, everything is useful to Me, even the little stones, the rubble, in order to build. The same for you: everything that forms your body is like rubble; but, vivified by the vital fluid of the Eternal Fiat, everything becomes precious and of incalculable value, in such a way that I can build the strongest and most impregnable cities over that precious rubble. You must know that as man withdrew from the Divine Will by doing his own, it happened as when a strong earthquake strikes a city. The strong tremor makes chasms open in the earth, and in some places it swallows the houses, someplace else it tears them down to pieces. The power of the tremor opens the coffers most securely locked, and puts out diamonds, coins, precious things, in such a way that thieves can enter and steal whatever they want. So, the poor city is reduced to a heap of stones, ruins, rubble and wreckage. Now, if a king wants to build that city again, he uses those very heaps of stones, wreckage and rubble; and since he makes it all new, he forms it in modern style, giving it such sumptuousness of art and beauty that there may be no other city equal to it. And so he makes it the capital of the kingdom.

My daughter, the human will was more than earthquake for man, and this earthquake is still lasting – sometimes stronger, sometimes a little less so, in such a way that it puts out of him the most precious things that God placed in the depth of man. So, this earthquake of his own will renders him all messed up. The key of the Supreme Fiat which kept everything in custody and secured no longer exists for them. Therefore, since they have no more doors nor keys, but collapsing walls, the thieves of their passions go looting, and they remain exposed to all evils and, many times, shattered into wreckage and rubble, such that one can hardly recognize them as the cities once built by their Creator. Now, since I want to build again the Kingdom of my Will in the midst of creatures, I want to use your wreckage and rubble; and by investing them with the vital fluid of my creative Will, I will form the capital of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat. This is how you are useful to Me - aren't you happy?"

Jesus pushes her to write. One who lives in the Divine Will breathes the All. The soul who lives in It copies God within herself, and she remains copied in God.

Feeling in suffering, I felt I was incapable of writing what blessed Jesus manifested to His little daughter; so I remained quite a few days without writing. In my interior, Jesus incited me to do it, but I would refuse to do it because of the great weakness I felt. Finally, this morning, coming out from my interior, He said to me: "Tonight my daughter must write, because even if she were dying,

I want her to give the last flashes of light, strong and dazzling, of the knowledges about the Supreme Fiat, so that all may know that my Will has kept her always occupied for Itself and for Its Kingdom, and her last breath will be nothing other than a strong flash of light, which will remain as the last attestation of love and of manifestation for the Kingdom of my Will. Therefore, while you write, I will help you, and the little daughter of my Will will refuse nothing to her Jesus and to that Fiat which, with so much love, keeps you on Its lap to entrust to you Its secrets.”

So, after this, I made up my mind to write, even just a little, because my sweet Jesus is content with anything. Then, my sweet Jesus said to me: “My daughter, one who lives in my Divine Will breathes the All; and just as the breath is taken and is given, and one receives it to then give it back with no time in between, one who breathes the All, which is God, in emitting her breath, gives the All which she has breathed. So, she takes All, and she gives All. She gives the All to God, giving God to God, and she gives the All to creatures, to then breathe God again and everything that God does. It is natural that one who takes All, can give All. Only in the Divine Will is the Life of the Supreme Being bilocated continuously on the part of creatures.”

And I: ‘My Jesus, I feel I am doing nothing, and You tell me that in your Fiat I take All and I give All?’ And Jesus added: “My daughter, when the All operates, the nothing remains in its place – it only makes itself available to receive the All. And besides, do you not feel within yourself the strength of this All which, making you embrace and invade everything – heavens, stars, sun, seas and earth - and embrace all the acts which my Fiat exercises in the whole Creation, makes you bring them to your Creator, as though in one breath, to give everyone and everything back to Him? Has there been anyone until now who has given and has been able to say: ‘I give everything to God, even God Himself, because since I live in His Will, God is mine, the heavens are mine, the sun and everything that this Supreme Fiat has done is mine. So, since everything is mine, I can give everything and I can take everything’? Now, it happens as a consequence that one who lives in my Will has the possession of the All, and this forms and draws the Kingdom of the Divine Will upon earth; because in order to form a kingdom, it takes the strength of the Power of the All.”

After this, He made Himself seen as a little child, staring at me so much, as to remain as though impressed within me; and He wanted me to look at Him, but so much, as to remain, myself, impressed in Him. Then, all love and tenderness, He told me: “My daughter, this is the true image of the living in my Eternal Volition: the soul copies the Divine Will within herself, and the Supreme Will copies the soul, in such a way that your Creator keeps the copy of your image impressed within His womb. He holds her so dear, because He sees her exactly as He issued her from her origin; she has lost nothing of her freshness and beauty. His paternal features are impressed in this copy; and this copy, in the paternal womb of God, sings for Him the praises of all Creation with all His works, and whispers continuously to His ear: ‘You made everything for me. You loved me and love me so very much, and I want to convert everything – everything into love for You.’ This copy is the portent of God in His womb; she is the memory of all His works. This is the copy of the soul in God, and the copy of God in the soul, and the carrying out of the Divine Life in the creature. How beautiful is the Kingdom of my Will – the nothing dissolved in the All, the All fused in the nothing; the lowliness of the creature rising up into the Divine height, the Divine height descending into the depth of the creature. They are two beings clasped together, inseparable, transfused, identified, such that it can barely be recognized that they are two lives palpitating together. All the magnificence, the sanctity, the sublimeness, the prodigies of the Kingdom of my Will, will be precisely this: the faithful copy of the soul in God, and the copy of God, whole and beautiful, in the soul. Therefore, the children of the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat will be as many images of little gods in my Kingdom.”

How Our Lord will have three Kingdoms. The Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat will be the echo of Creation. How poverty and unhappiness will be banished. How in Our Lord and in the Virgin there was voluntary poverty, not forced. How the Divine Will is jealous of taking care of Its daughter.

I was all abandoned in the Supreme Fiat, following Its acts in the Creation, and my sweet Jesus came out from within my interior and told me: “My daughter, look at how beautiful is the order of the heavens. In the same way, when the Kingdom of the Divine Will will have Its dominion on earth in the midst of creatures, also on earth there will be perfect and beautiful order. Then I will have three Kingdoms – one in the Celestial Fatherland, another in the Creation, and the third among creatures – and each one will be the echo of the other, each one the reflection of the other. All created things have their place of honor, and while they are all ordered and in harmony among themselves, one has no need of the other, because each one of them not only abounds, but overabounds in the goods with which God endowed it in creating it. In fact, having been created by a Being who is happy and immensely rich, and whose riches never decrease by giving them, all created things carry the mark of happiness and the abundance of goods of their Creator. Just as all created things, so will all the children of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat have their place of honor, of decorum and of dominion; and while possessing the order of heaven and, more than celestial spheres, being in perfect harmony among themselves, the abundance of goods which each one will possess will be such and so great, that one will never have need of the other – each one will have within himself the source of the goods of his Creator and of His perennial happiness. Therefore, poverty, unhappiness, needs and evils will be banished from the children of my Will. It would not be decorous for my Will, so immensely rich and happy, to have children who would lack something, and would not enjoy all the opulence of Its goods which arise continuously.

What would you say if you saw the sun poor in light, barely sending a few glimmers to the earth? And if you saw a hem of heaven at one point, with just a few stars, and all the rest without the enchantment of the azure heavens? Would you not say: ‘The One who created the sun does not possess the immensity of the light that arises, and therefore He has the earth lighted by just a few glimmers. He does not possess the power to extend a heaven everywhere, and therefore He has laid just a hem of it above our heads’? So, you would make for yourself the idea that God is poor in light, and that He does not have the power to extend everywhere the works of His creative hands. But, instead, by seeing that the sun abounds so much with light, and that the heavens extend everywhere, you are persuaded that God is rich and possesses the source of light, and therefore He has lost none of His light by endowing the sun with so much light, nor has His Power decreased by extending the heavens everywhere.

In the same way, if the children of my Will will not abound with everything, one could say that my Will is poor and does not have the Power to make the children of Its Kingdom happy – which will never be. On the contrary, because It will be the image of the Kingdom which my Will has in the Creation, just as the heavens extend everywhere and abound with stars, and the sun abounds with light, the air with birds, the sea with fish, the earth with plants and flowers, in the same way, since the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat echoes the Creation, the children of my Kingdom will be happy and will abound with everything. Therefore, each one will possess the fullness of goods and full happiness in the place in which the Supreme Will has placed him; whatever the condition and the office they will occupy, all will be happy of their destiny. And since the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat will be the perfect echo of the Kingdom which my Will possesses in the Creation, one sun will be seen up high, and another sun down below in the midst of the creatures who will possess this Kingdom. The echo of the heavens will be seen in these fortunate children, which they will populate with stars with their acts. Even more, each one of them will be a heaven and a distinct sun, because wherever my Will is present, It cannot be without heaven and without sun; rather, as It takes possession of each of Its children, It will form Its heaven and Its sun, because it is Its nature that wherever It has Its stable possession, Its sanctity, Its endless light, it is like heaven and sun that It forms and multiplies everywhere.

But this is not yet all. The Creation, echo of the Celestial Fatherland, contains music, the royal march, the spheres, the heavens, the sun, the sea, and all possess order and perfect harmony among themselves, and they go around continuously. This order, this harmony and this going around, without ever stopping, form such admirable symphony and music, that it could be said to be like the breath of the Supreme Fiat blowing into all created things like many musical instruments, and forming the most beautiful of all melodies, such that, if creatures could hear it, they would remain ecstatic. Now, the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat will have the echo of the music of the Celestial Fatherland and the echo of the music of Creation. The order, the harmony and their continuous going around their Creator will be such and so great, that each one of their acts, words and steps will be a distinct melody, like many different musical instruments which will receive the breath of the Divine Volition, in such a way that everything they do will be as many distinct musical concerts which will form the joy and the continuous feast of the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat. For your Jesus there will no longer be difference between remaining in the Celestial Fatherland and descending to stay in the midst of creatures in the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat upon earth. Then Our work of Creation will sing victory and full triumph, and We will have three Kingdoms in one – symbol of the Sacrosanct Trinity, because all Our works carry the mark of the One who created them.”

After this, I was thinking to myself: ‘Though the true children of the Supreme Fiat will be happy and will abound with everything, yet, my Queen Mama and Jesus Himself, who was the very Divine Will, were poor on this low earth; they suffered the pains and the hardships of poverty.’ And my sweet Jesus added: “My daughter, true poverty is when a creature is in need – one wants to take, but has nothing to take, and is forced to ask others for a bare means of living. This poverty is of necessity, and almost forced; instead, both in Me and in the Celestial Mama, in whom there was all the fullness of the Eternal Fiat, it was not poverty of necessity, and even less forced, but it was voluntary poverty, spontaneous poverty, squeezed by the press of Divine Love. Everything was our own; at one wish of ours, sumptuous palaces would have been raised, and banquets prepared with foods never before seen and tasted. And in fact, when it was needed, at a little wish of ours, even the birds served Us, bringing Us fruits, fish and other things in their beaks, making feast because they were serving their Creator and their Queen. With their trilling, singing and warbling, they played for Us the most beautiful melodies; so much so, that in order not to attract the attention of creatures with our uniqueness, We had to command them to depart, to continue their flight under the vault of the heavens where our Will was waiting for them; and, obedient, they would withdraw. Therefore, our poverty was of love – it was poverty of example, to teach creatures detachment from the low things of the earth. It was not poverty of necessity, nor could it be so, in an absolute way, because wherever the fullness, the life of my Will reigns, all evils end as though under one single blow, and they lose life.”

Then, since most reverend Father Di Francia had heard that I was with a fever, he let me know that, if I were in need, I could take whatever I needed from the money he had left with me for one of his works. And my lovable Jesus, on coming, almost smiling, said to me: “My daughter, let father know, in my name, that I thank him and I will reward the goodness of his heart for the care he has for you. However, let him know that the daughter of my Will has no need of anything, for my Will makes her abound with everything; even more, It is jealous that others might offer something to her, because It alone wants to give everything to Its daughter. In fact, wherever my Divine Will reigns, there is no fear that natural means and abundance of goods might do harm; on the contrary, the more means she has and the more abundance she enjoys, the more she looks at the Power, the Goodness, the richness of the Supreme Fiat in them, and she converts everything into most pure gold of Divine Will. So, the more my Will gives to her, the more It feels glorified in carrying out Its life in the creature, in offering Its own things to the one who lets It dominate and reign. It would be absurd if a very rich father had poor children - such a father would deserve to be condemned. And besides, what would be the purpose of his riches if the birth that came from his own body – his very children - conducted a life of hardships and miseries? Would it not be a dishonor for this father, and an unbearable bitterness for these children, to know that, while the father is extremely rich, they lack everything and can hardly satisfy their hunger?

If this would be absurd and a dishonor for a father in the natural order, much more so in the supernatural order of the Supreme Fiat. The Supreme Fiat is more than father, for It contains the fount of all goods, and therefore, wherever It is present, happiness reigns and It makes one abound with everything. More so since, with the soul who has the possession of the Divine Will, It administers, to soul and body, a sharp and penetrating sight, in such a way that she penetrates into the natural things, which hide It as a veil; and tearing these veils, in the natural things she finds the noble queen of the Divine Will reigning and dominating within her. So, natural things disappear for her, and in all things she finds that adorable Will which she possesses; she kisses It, she adores It, and everything becomes Divine Will for the soul. Therefore, each additional natural thing is one new act of Divine Will for her, which she possesses. So, natural things are means for one who is child of my Will, in order to make known more what my Will does, can do, and possesses, and to what excessive point It loves the creature. Do you want to know, then, why creatures lack natural means, and many times these are snatched away from them, and they reduce themselves to the most squalid misery? First, because they do not possess the fullness of the Supreme Fiat; second, because they confuse natural things, and put nature in the place of God; nor do they look at the Supreme Will in the natural things, but, greedy, they become attached to them to form a vain glory for themselves, an esteem that blinds them, an idol for their hearts. Given this, it is necessary that natural means be lacking in order to put their souls in safety. But for one who is child of my Will all these dangers do not exist, and therefore I want them to abound with everything, and to lack nothing.”

Why Jesus did not write. How in these manifestations there are neither threats nor frights, but the echo of the Celestial Fatherland. When this Kingdom will come. How the pains of the Most Holy Virgin and those of Our Lord were pains of office, and how They possessed true happiness. Power of voluntary pains; happiness of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat.

I was thinking to myself: ‘My sweet Jesus told me many times that I was to imitate Him in everything; yet, He never wrote. Only once it is said in the Gospel that He wrote, and not even with a pen, but with His finger; as for me, instead, He wants me to write. So, He wants to make me go out of His imitation – He did not write at all, and I must write so much.’ Now, while I was thinking of this, He came as a gracious little child; and placing Himself in my arms, drawing His face close to mine, He told me: “My daughter, give Me your kisses, and I will give you mine.”

Then, after I kissed Him various times, He incited me to kiss Him again, and then He said to me: “My daughter, do you want to know why I did not write? Because I was to write through you. It is I who animate your intelligence, who feed you the words, who give motion to your hand with mine, to make you hold the pen and write the words on paper. So, it is I who write, not you. You do nothing but pay attention to what I want to write. Therefore, all your work is attention – the rest, I do all by Myself. Do you yourself not see how, many times, you do not have the strength to write and you decide not to do it, and in order to make you touch with your own hand that it is I who write, I invest you, and animating you with my own life, I Myself write what I want? How many times have you not experienced this? Now, since an age was to pass before making known the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat, to allow some time in order to first make known the Kingdom of Redemption and then the other one, of the Divine Fiat, I decreed not to write at that time, but to write together with you, through you, when this Kingdom would be nearer, also to give a new surprise to creatures of the excess of love of this Will of Mine – what It has done, what It has suffered, and what It wants to do for love of them.

Many times, my daughter, novelties bring new life, new goods, and creatures are very much drawn to novelties, and let themselves be as though carried by the novelty. More so, since the novelties of the new manifestations about my Divine Will, which have a divine strength and a sweet enchantment, and which will rain down like celestial dew upon souls burnt by the human will, will be bearers of happiness, of light and of infinite goods. There are no threats in these manifestations, nor any fright; and if there is anything about fear, it is for those who want to remain in the maze of the human will. But then, in all the rest, one can see nothing but the echo, the language of the Celestial Fatherland, the balm from on high which sanctifies, divinizes and makes the down payment of the happiness which reigns only in the Blessed Fatherland. This is why I delight so much in writing what regards the Divine Fiat – because I write things which belong to my Fatherland. Too perfidious and ungrateful will be those who will not recognize in these manifestations of mine the echo of Heaven, the long chain of love of the Supreme Will, the communion of goods of our Celestial Father, which He wants to give to creatures; and as though wanting to put aside everything that has passed in the history of the world, He wants to begin a new era, a new creation, as if the new history of Creation were just now beginning. Therefore, let Me do, because whatever I do is of highest importance.”

After this, I said to Him: ‘My Love, it seems that, more than anything, You love this Kingdom of the Eternal Fiat very much; in It You concentrate all your love, all your works, and You almost boast that they will serve this Kingdom. If You love It so much, when will It come? Why don’t You hasten in making It come?’ And Jesus added: “My daughter, when the knowledges about my Divine Will have done their course, in view of the great good which they contain - goods which no creature has thought about until now, that the Kingdom of my Will will be the outpouring of Heaven, the echo of the celestial happiness, the fullness of terrestrial goods - so, in view of this great good, unanimously, they will yearn, they will ask that my Kingdom come soon. And so does the whole Creation in Its mute language - mute only in appearance, because inside of It there is my Will, asking for Its rights with loud and eloquent voice, to be known, to dominate and to reign over all. Therefore, one will be the echo from one end of the earth to another, one the sigh, one the prayer which will be unleashed from all beings: ‘May the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat come’. Then, triumphantly, It will come into the midst of creatures. From here the necessity of the knowledges: these will be incitements, and will whet the appetite of creatures for tasting a food so delicious; and they will feel all the will, the yearning, to live in a Kingdom so happy, so as to free themselves from the tyranny and the slavery in which their own wills have kept them. And as they advance in the knowledge of all the manifestations, of the goods contained in the Supreme Fiat, they will find your norms – how you have turned Heaven and earth upside down, going around everywhere and asking that this Kingdom might soon become known. They will find what you have suffered to obtain for them such a great good, how they must conduct themselves, and what they must do in order to have free access to live in It. Therefore, it is necessary to make everything known, so that my Kingdom may be all complete, and nothing may be lacking to It, either the greatest or the smallest things. So, certain things which to you seem to be small, may be a divine rock transformed into most pure gold, which will form part of the foundations of the Kingdom of my Supreme Will.”

After this, I was thinking to myself: ‘My sweet Jesus sings so much the praises of the happiness of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat; yet, He Himself who is the very Divine Will, and my Celestial Mama who possessed It as whole, were not happy on earth; rather, they were the ones who suffered the most on earth. And even myself – He says that I am the firstborn daughter of His Will, yet He has kept me forty-three years and more confined in a bed, and Jesus alone knows what I have suffered. It is true that I have also been a happy prisoner and I would not exchange my happy destiny even if they offered me scepters and crowns, because what Jesus has given me has rendered me more than happy; yet, apparently, to the human eye, this happiness disappears. Therefore, it seems that this happiness spoken by Jesus clashes if one thinks of His pains, of those of the Sovereign Queen, and of my own state, the least of His creatures.’ But while I was thinking about this, my sweet Jesus, surprising me, told me: “My daughter, there is an immense difference between one who must form a good, a kingdom, and one who must receive it in order to enjoy it. I came upon earth to expiate, to redeem, to save man; and in order to do this I had to receive the pains of creatures, and take them upon Myself as if they were my own. My Divine Mama, who was to be co-redemptrix, was not to be dissimilar from Me; rather, the five drops of blood which She gave Me from Her most pure Heart in order to form my little Humanity, came out of Her crucified Heart. For Us the pains were offices which We came to fulfill, therefore they were all voluntary pains, not impositions of a fragile nature.

However, you must know that in spite of so many pains of ours, which We had in order to carry out our office, highest happiness, unending and ever new joys, continuous Paradise, were inseparable from Me and from my Queen Mother. It was easier for Us to separate from our pains - because they were not things intrinsic to Us, things of nature, but things of office – than to separate from the sea of the immense happinesses and joys that the nature of our Divine Will, which We possessed, produced in Us as things which were our own and intrinsic to Us. Just as the nature of the sun is to give light, and that of water to quench one's thirst, that of fire to warm and to turn everything into fire – and if they did not do so, they would lose their nature – so it is the nature of my Will to make happiness, joy and Paradise arise, wherever It reigns. Will of God and unhappiness does not exist, nor can exist; or, Its complete fullness does not exist, and this is why the rivulets of the human will form bitternesses for the poor creature. For Us, because the human will had no access into Us, happiness was always at its peak, the seas of joys were inseparable from Us. Even when I was on the Cross, and my Mama was crucified at my divine feet, perfect happiness never disassociated from Us; and if this could happen, I would have had to go out of the Divine Will, disassociate Myself from the divine nature, and act only with the human will and nature. Therefore, our pains were all voluntary, chosen by our very selves as the office which We came to fulfill – they were not fruits of the human nature, of fragility, or of the imposition of a degraded nature. And besides, don't you remember that your pains too are pains of office - voluntary pains? In fact, when I called you to the state of victim, I asked you if, voluntarily, you would accept; and you, with full will, accepted, and pronounced the Fiat. Some time passed, and I repeated to you my refrain – if you would accept to live in and with my Divine Will; and you repeated the Fiat which, regenerating you to new life, made you Its daughter, to give you the office and the pains which befit It for the fulfillment of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat.

My daughter, voluntary pains have such power over the Divinity, as to have the strength, the empire, to tear the womb of the Celestial Father, and from this tearing which they form in God, make seas of graces overflow, forming the triumph of the Supreme Majesty and the triumph of the creature who possesses this empire of her voluntary pains. Therefore, both for the great portent of Redemption and for the great prodigy of the Kingdom of my Fiat, voluntary pains were needed - pains of office, which were to be animated by a Divine Will; and holding empire over God and over creatures, they were to give the great good which their office enclosed. Therefore, my praised happiness of the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat does not clash, as you say, just because I was the Divine Will Itself and I did suffer, and just because I have kept you in bed for so long. One who must form a good, a kingdom, must do one thing – suffer, prepare the necessary things, and conquer God in order to obtain it; those who must receive it must do something else - that is, receive it, appreciate it, and be grateful to the one who has battled and suffered and, after winning, gives them his conquests to make them happy. Therefore, the Kingdom of my Will in the midst of creatures will bring the echo of the happiness of Heaven, because one will be the Will that must reign and dominate in both one and the other. And just as my Humanity was formed from the most pure blood of the crucified Heart of the Sovereign Queen, and Redemption was formed from my continuous crucifixion, and on Calvary I placed the seal of the cross on the kingdom of the redeemed ones; in the same way, the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat will come out of a crucified heart, as my Will, crucifying yours, will issue Its Kingdom, and happiness for the children of Its Kingdom. This is why, from the time I called you to the state of victim, I always spoke to you about crucifixion; and you thought it was the crucifixion of hands and feet, and I let you run in this crucifixion. But it was not this one; it would not have been enough to make my Kingdom come out. The complete and continuous crucifixion of my Will in your whole being was needed; and this was precisely what I intended to speak to you about – that your will would undergo the continuous crucifixion of Mine, in order to issue the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat.”

How, in the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat, one will be the Will. How one saying about the Divine Will can be a key, a door, a path. How the Supreme Will forms many breasts in all created things, from which to let Its children suckle Its knowledges.

My always lovable Jesus, drawing me all to Himself, told me: “My daughter, the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat will have one single Will as Its center – the Divine; therefore, one will be the Will of all which, diffusing to all and embracing everything, will give happiness, order, harmony, strength and beauty to all. So, It will be the Kingdom of one single Will – one Will for all, and all for one Will. What renders the Celestial Fatherland happy, if not the Will of God, and Will of all? Oh! if another will which were not that of God could enter into Heaven - which cannot be - the Saints would lose their perennial peace and would feel the disorder of a will which is not Divine, which does not contain all goods, and which is not holy and bearer of happiness and of peace; and so, all unanimous, they would cast it out. Therefore, the Kingdom of the Fiat will have only my Will, and It alone, as law, as regime, as dominion; and by virtue of It, all will be happy, of one single happiness; there will never be contentions, but perennial peace.”

After this, in feeling the great effort I was making in writing, and the hardship I experienced, I felt undecided whether I should continue writing or not. And my beloved Jesus, inciting me, told me: “My daughter, each additional word about my Will can be one more key in order to open the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat. Each knowledge about It can be a new door that is formed to give more ease - more entrances, to let the children of Its Kingdom enter. Each simile about my Will is one more path that is formed in order to facilitate the communications of this Kingdom. The littlest thing that regards my Fiat is a heartbeat of It, which It wants to form in the midst of the children of Its Kingdom; and to suffocate this heartbeat, my daughter, is not appropriate. This heartbeat will bring a new and divine life, bilocated from this heartbeat, to be enjoyed by those who will have the fortune of possessing this Kingdom. Don’t you know that in order to be able to say that a kingdom exists, first it is necessary to form it, and then say it exists? Therefore, it is necessary to form the paths, the security doors, the keys of gold, not forged with some other metal, in order to make the entrance into the Kingdom of my Will easy. One path less, one key that is missing, one door that is locked, can render the entrance into It more difficult and less smooth. Therefore, everything I say to you serves not only to form this Kingdom, but also to make it easier for those who will want to possess It. So, the firstborn daughter of my Will must have the care of rendering what regards the Kingdom of the Eternal Fiat easier.”

Then, I was continuing my acts in the Supreme Volition, and finding myself outside of myself, I was going around the whole Creation to follow the Divine Will in each created thing. But while I was doing this, the veil of each created thing was torn and I could see the Holy Will dwelling in them, doing each act which each created thing contains – always operating, without ever stopping. And my sweet Jesus, coming out from within my interior, told me: “My daughter, look at the exuberant love of my Will – always stable, always operating, always in the act of giving, without ever drawing back from what It established to do when the Supreme Fiat echoed in the Creation. My Will took on the commitment to perform all arts, to carry out all offices, to execute all servitudes, to take on any shape in order to render man happy. Even more, It acted as more than a most tender mother, disposing all created things almost like many breasts within which It hid, to let Itself be suckled by man. So, It made Itself sun, to let him suckle Its light; It made Itself heaven, to let him suckle the vital love of immutability; It made Itself stars, to let him suckle the variety of goods which Its works contain; It made Itself water, plants and flowers, to let him suckle the water of grace, quenching his thirst, and to let him suckle Its sweetness and Its chaste fragrances. My Will took on all shapes – of bird, of lamb, of dove - in sum, of everything, in order to reach the mouth of man and let Itself be suckled by him, to give him the good which each created thing contained.

Only a Divine Will, which created everything in an outpouring of Its love, could take on so many shapes, perform so many offices, be so persistent, without ever ceasing to do Its acts. Yet, who tries to penetrate into each created thing, to see who is She[5] who offers Her breast to him, in order to give Her milk, to breast-feed the creatures, to amuse them and to make them happy? Almost no one. My Will pours Her very self out continuously, She gives Her life in each created thing in order to give life, and they do not deign even to look at Her, to see who is the One who loves them so much, and is life of their life! So, the sorrow of my Will is great because of so many denials from creatures. Therefore, with divine and invincible patience, She is waiting for Her children who, by knowing Her, may tear the veil from created things which hide Her, may recognize the breast of their Mama and, grateful, may suckle from those divine breasts as Her true children. And so, the glory of all Creation, of all Redemption, of your Jesus and of the Eternal Fiat will then be complete, when the children of Her Kingdom will attach themselves to Her breast, to suckle from Her breasts. Recognizing Her, they will not detach from Her breast, and She will give them all goods, and will have the glory, the contentment, to see all of Her children happy; and these children will have the honor, the glory, to copy within themselves the Mother who, with so much love, keeps them on Her lap to nourish them with Her divine milk.

Now my Will finds Itself in the conditions of the sun when the clouds prevent the fullness of its light from investing the earth with all its vividness. So, because of the clouds, the sun cannot display all the light it contains, as if the clouds were hindering the glory of the sun of giving course to its light – always the same, always fixed, as indeed it gives it. In the same way, the clouds of the human will hinder all the course which the Sun of my Will would want to do toward them; and because It cannot communicate all the goods It contains, either through Creation or directly, Its glory is intercepted by the clouds of the human will. But when they will know the Supreme Fiat and will give themselves as Its children, these clouds will be removed, and my Will will be able to give the goods It possesses. Then will Our glory be complete in the midst of creatures.”

Wherever the Divine Will is present, there is everything; nothing can escape It. How one who possesses It lives in the communion of goods of her Creator; love and happiness she receives, love and happiness she gives.

I was all immersed in the Supreme Volition, following Its acts in order to constitute myself act of each creature; and my sweet Jesus came out from within my interior, and stretching out His arms to me, He embraced me tightly, clasping me all to Himself. Now, while Jesus was embracing me, all created things – the heavens, the sun, the sea – all of them, even the tiny little bird, placing themselves around Jesus, they all embraced me, wanting to repeat His act. They were as though competing among themselves – none of them wanted to be left behind. I remained confused in seeing that the whole Creation was running toward me to embrace me; and Jesus told me: “My daughter, when the soul lives in my Will and I do one act toward her – even a simple kiss, one little word – all Creation, beginning with the Sovereign Queen, even to the least of the littlest being, they all put themselves in motion to repeat my act. In fact, since one is the Will – of the soul, Mine, and their own - all have the right to associate themselves with Me, to do the same thing I do. Therefore, it was not Me alone, but all beings in which my Will exists as whole, were together with Me in embracing you. So, whenever I do one more act with one who lives in my Will, I give a new feast to the whole Creation; and whenever there is a new feast, all move and stand at attention, when I am about to give you a gift or tell you a word, so as to concur together with Me, repeat my act, receive the new feast, and make for you the feast of their acts. Was it not a feast for you to feel the embrace of the Celestial Mama, the embrace of the light of the sun, of the waves of the sea, and even of the tiny little bird that stretched out its wings to embrace you? My daughter, wherever my Will is present, there is everything – not one thing can escape It.”

Then, I continued to follow Its acts in the Supreme Volition, and my sweet Jesus added: “My daughter, for one who possesses my Will, it is as if she had the sun centered within herself – but not the sun that can be seen up there in the heavens; rather, the Divine Sun, that very Sun which is centered in God. Extending Its rays, It centers Itself in the soul, and so she is the owner of the light, because she possesses within herself the life of the light, and all the goods and effects which it contains. Therefore, she enjoys the communion of goods of her Creator. Everything is in common with one who possesses my Will: common is the love, common is the sanctity, common is the light – everything is in common with her. Even more, since her Creator looks at her as a birth from His Divine Will, she is already His daughter, so He enjoys, loves and wants that His goods be in common with her. And if this could not be, He would suffer as a father would suffer who, being immensely rich, finds himself in the impossibility of giving His goods to his true and faithful children; and so, unable to give what he possesses, he is forced to see them poor. This father, in the midst of the opulence of his riches, would die of sorrow, poisoned in his own bitternesses, because the joy of a father is to give and to make his children happy of his own happiness. If a terrestrial father who were unable to place his goods in common with his children can suffer so much, to the point of dying of sorrow, much more would the Eternal Creator suffer, more than most tender Father, if He could not place His goods in common with one who possesses the Divine Fiat, who, being his daughter, has her rights to possess the communion of goods of her Father. And if it were not so, it would clash with that love which knows no limits, and with that goodness, more than paternal, which is the continuous triumph of all Our works.

Therefore, as the soul comes to possess the Supreme Fiat, the first act of God is to place His goods in common with her; and centering His Sun in her, through the current of Its light, He makes His goods descend into the depth of the soul. And she takes whatever she wants, and through that same current of the light which she possesses, she makes them ascend again to her Creator, as the greatest homage of love and of gratitude; and that same current makes them descend into her once again. So, these goods ascend and descend continuously, as the certainty and the seal of the communion that exists between Creator and creature.

Such was the state of Adam when he was created, until he sinned – what was Ours was his; the fullness of light, centered in him, because his will was one with Ours, brought him the communion of Our goods. How We felt Our happiness redoubled on the part of Creation – for nothing else but because We saw Adam, Our son, happy of Our own happiness. In fact, since his will was one with Ours, Our Will could pour Our goods and Our happiness in torrents upon him; so much so that, unable to contain it all, because he did not have the capacity of his Creator, while being filled to the brim to the point of overflowing, he would make all the rest ascend again to the One from whom he had received it. And what did he make ascend? His perfect love, which he had received from God; his sanctity, his glory, which he possessed in common with Us, to give Us as though tit for tat - of happiness, of love, of glory. Happiness We gave – happiness he gave to Us; love, sanctity and glory We gave him – love, sanctity and glory he gave to Us. My daughter, to possess a Divine Will is something astounding; the human nature cannot comprehend everything – it feels, it possesses, and knows not how to express.”

Incapacity of writing. Just as the sun always gives light, so the Supreme Volition wants to always give the light of Its manifestations. When one neglects to write what Jesus says.

I felt like I did not want to write because I felt incapable. Not only this, but the prostration of my strengths was such and so great that I felt I could not do it; and I thought to myself: ‘Maybe it is no longer Will of God that I write, otherwise He would give me more help and more strength. And besides, if Jesus wants, He can write by Himself – without me.’ And my always lovable Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, the sun always gives light, nor does it ever tire of following its course and of investing the surface of the earth; and its triumph is when it finds the seed in order to make it germinate, and to develop it in order to multiply it; the flower, to give it color and fragrance; the fruit, to give it sweetness and taste. By communicating its effects, the sun shows, with facts, that it is the true king of the earth, therefore it triumphs when it finds one to whom it can communicate its effects, exercising its royal office over the whole nature. On the other hand, in certain lands, where it finds neither seeds, nor flowers, nor plants, nor fruits, it cannot communicate its effects; it keeps them all within itself, and therefore it feels without triumph. It is like a king without subjects, who cannot exercise his office; and so, as though indignant because it cannot communicate its effects, it burns that land so much, as to render it sterile and incapable of producing a single blade of grass.

Now, my daughter, the sun is the symbol of my Will, and, by Its own nature, my Will wants to follow Its course of light in the soul in whom It reigns. And since Its light possesses innumerable effects, It never tires, nor does It exhaust Itself, therefore It wants to communicate Its effects, and Its triumph is when It finds the dispositions in you. Then, more than to a seed, a flower or a fruit, It can communicate Its effects - the fragrance, the color, Its sweetness which, converting into knowledges belonging to It, form the enchantment of Its garden. And my Divine Fiat, more than sun, feels like the king who is able to exercise his royal office; It feels It has not only Its subjects, but also Its daughter, to whom, as It communicates Its effects, Its manifestations, so It communicates the likeness of queen. And this is all Its triumph – to transform the soul into queen, and to clothe her with royal garments. And since all of my manifestations about the Supreme Fiat will form the new garden of the children of my Kingdom, It wants to always place Its effects in you with Its light, so as to make it rich and luxuriant with all species of celestial flowers, fruits and plants, in such a way that, attracted by the variety of so many beauties, all will feel as though enraptured and will strive to live in my Kingdom.

Now, if you lacked the dispositions to receive the communications of the effects of the Sun of my Will and to put them out in order to write them, so as to make known the good It contains and Its unheard-of prodigies, my Will would act like the sun – It would burn you, in such a way that you would become like sterile and infertile land. And besides, how can I write alone - without you? My manifestations must be tangible, not invisible; they must fall before the senses of creatures. The human eye does not have the virtue of seeing invisible things; it would be as if I said to you: ‘Write without ink, without pen and without paper’. Would it not be absurd and unreasonable? So, since my manifestations must serve for the use of creatures, formed of soul and body, I too need matter in order to write - and it is you who must lend it to Me. So, you will serve as ink, as pen and as paper for Me, and with this I form in you my characters; and you, feeling them within yourself, put them out and render them tangible by writing them on paper. Therefore, you cannot write without Me, for you would lack the topic, the subject, the dictation from which to copy, and therefore would not be able to say anything; and I cannot write without you, for I would lack the main things to be able to write: the paper of your soul, the ink of your love, the pen of your will. Therefore, this is a work that we must do together, and in mutual agreement.”

Then, while I was writing, I was thinking to myself: ‘Before I write certain little things that Jesus tells me, it seems to me that they are of very little importance, and therefore it seems that it is not necessary to put them on paper. But as I am in the act of writing them, the way in which Jesus orders them in my interior changes the scene, and though small in their appearance, they seem to be of great importance in their substance. Given all this, what an account will those who have had, and those who have authority over me, have to give God, when they have not imposed themselves through obedience in order to make me write? How many things have I neglected, when I received no command?’ And Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “Daughter, indeed they will have to give Me an account. If they believe it is I, the account will be very strict, because believing that it is I and not taking into account even one word, is as if they wanted to suffocate a sea of good for the benefit of creatures, because my word always starts from the strength of the Creative Power. In fact, I pronounced one Fiat in Creation, and I extended a heaven studded with innumerable millions of stars; another Fiat, and I formed the sun. I did not say twenty words to form so many things in Creation, but one Fiat was enough for Me. Now, my word still contains Its Creative Power, and you or others cannot know if my word is directed to forming a heaven, a star, a sea, a sun for souls. Therefore, by not taking it into account, and by not putting it in display for creatures, they come to reject this heaven, this sun, stars and sea, back into Myself, while they could do so much good to creatures. And the harm that would follow would be ascribed to the one who, not taking it into consideration, has suffocated it within Me. If, on the other hand, they do not believe, it is even worse, because they are so blind as to not have the eyes to see the Sun of my word; and incredulity leads to obstinacy and to hardness of heart, while belief softens the heart and disposes it to let itself be subdued by grace, and to receive the sight in order to comprehend my truths.”

Wherever the Divine Will reigns, Jesus places the strings of His attributes in order. How He must be able to say: “Here is my Heaven.” How the children of the Fiat will be kings and queens, and only one who possesses the Divine Fiat has the right to ask for Its Kingdom.

As I was in my usual state, my adorable Jesus made me see many strings in my interior - one close to the other, starting from a sphere, which was in the middle of these strings. Under this sphere it was empty, and in that empty space there was my sweet Jesus who, very often, touched those strings and played, but in such a harmonious and beautiful way, that it cannot be described. Then, after He played His little sonata, He said: “My daughter, these strings are symbol of the soul in whom my Will reigns. I Myself delight in forming them and arranging them all in order. Look at them - how beautiful they are; each string has its distinct color, invested with light, in such a way that, all together, they form the most beautiful rainbow, all radiant with light. But do you want to know why each string has its distinct color? Because each one of them symbolizes one of my divine qualities – that is, my attributes. So, I placed everything in order – the string of Love, the string of Goodness, the string of Power, of Mercy, of Strength, of Wisdom, of Purity - in sum, everything; I have not excluded even the string of Justice. So, when I want to love and be loved, I touch the string of Love. Oh! how sweet is its sound – soft, penetrating, delightful, such as to shake Heaven and earth, investing the inmost fibers of all the beings in which my Will reigns. And I love, and am loved, because its sound draws and enraptures everyone to love Me; and I Myself, enraptured by my own Love, love and put out oceans of love. This sound is so melodious as to make Me tolerate everything, and bear the great evils of the poor world.

This sound makes Me move on to touch the string of Goodness; and this sound calls the attention of all to receive the goods that my Goodness wants to put out and give to creatures. Speaking voices can be heard in this sound; it makes all stand at attention – sounds of surprise, of admiration, in hearing, in this sound of voices, the goods which I want to give. This sound, while making Me put out my goods, disposes the creatures to receive them. Therefore, every time I want to place one of my attributes in office, I touch the string that belongs to it, and I place it in attitude. But do you know why I have disposed all these strings in you? Because wherever my Divine Will reigns, I want to find all of Myself and all the things that belong to Me; in such a way that, whatever I do in Heaven, I must be able to do in the soul in whom my Supreme Fiat dominates and reigns. I must have my throne, my melodies, so as to be able to vibrate the sound of Mercy to convert souls, the sound of Wisdom to make Myself known, the sound of my Power and Justice to make Myself feared. I must be able to say: ‘Here is my Heaven’.”

After this, I was doing my round in the Creation, and while impressing my ‘I love You’ on each created thing, I asked that, by virtue of that Divine Will which preserves them beautiful and whole, the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat might come upon earth. But while I was doing this, I thought to myself: ‘Created things are inanimate, therefore they do not have the virtue of asking for a Kingdom so holy.’ But while I was thinking of this, my beloved Jesus came out from within my interior and told me: “My daughter, it is true that created things are without soul; however, inside each one of them runs the life of my Will, and only by virtue of It do they maintain themselves beautiful, just as they were created. Now, created things are all noble and queens - all belonging to my royal family; and by virtue of my Will which animates them, and of the acts which my Will exercises in them, they have the right to ask for the coming of my Kingdom, because It is also their Kingdom. In order to ask, with right, for the coming of the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat, it is necessary to be one from Our family, in whom Our Will has Its first place, Its throne, Its life. This is why first I made you be born in It, so that It might have Its rights of paternity over you, and you might have the rights of daughter, in order to have the rights to ask for Its Kingdom; and not you alone, but also by virtue of all created things - that is, of all those innumerable acts which Our Will exercises in all Creation – to ask that Our Kingdom and yours may come.

My daughter, who can aspire to have the right to be king, if not a son of king? Even more, everyone sees in him the right that the kingdom will be his. But if they see a servant, a peasant, aspiring to it, who does not belong to the royal family and says that he has the right to be king and that the kingdom will be his, this one is considered insane and he deserves all mockeries. In the same way, one who wanted to ask for my Kingdom, but my Holy Will did not reign in him, being in the condition of a servant, does not have the right to ask for my Kingdom. And if he asks for It, it is without right, and a simple way of speaking. Now, suppose that a king had, as his children, hundreds – thousands of children, all belonging, legitimately, to his royal family. Do all of them not have the right to occupy noble positions - not unseemly to their status; and to say: ‘The kingdom of our father is our kingdom, because we carry his royal blood in our veins’? Now, in all Creation, in the children who will belong to the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat, will flow, more than blood, the life of It, which will give them the right to belong to the royal and celestial family, in such a way that all will be kings and queens – all will occupy noble positions, worthy of the family to which they belong.

Therefore, created things have more right that the Kingdom of my Will come - because they are all daughters of Heaven, and are the acts of my very Will which asks for It in them – than creatures themselves who, by doing their will, have reduced themselves to the condition of servants. Therefore, when you, in the name of the heavens, of the sun, of the sea and of all other created things, ask for the coming of the Kingdom of my Eternal Fiat, you force my Will Itself to ask for the coming of Its Kingdom. And do you think it is nothing that a Divine Will prays in each created thing, as you impetrate Its Kingdom? Therefore, continue and never draw back. Even more, you must know that it is my Will Itself that puts you on the way in all Creation, to have Its daughter together with It in all of Its acts - to make you do what It does and wants from you.”

February 13, 1927

Until the Divine Will is known and has Its Kingdom, the glory of God in the Creation will be incomplete. Example of a king.

I was following the Divine Will in Its acts in the Creation, and a doubt arose in my mind: ‘How can it be that Jesus says that until the Kingdom of His Will comes upon earth, the glory of Creation and Redemption will be incomplete? How can this be? Does this Supreme Will perhaps not have the virtue of glorifying Itself by Itself? Indeed It possesses this virtue, and it is more than enough for Its glory. Yet, He says that if His Will does not extend Its Kingdom in the midst of creatures, Its glory on the part of Creation will be incomplete.’ Now, while I was thinking of this, my adorable Jesus, surprising me with a most brilliant light that came out of Him, told me: “My daughter, the thing in itself is most clear: until my Will is known and has Its first place of honor and of dominion in each being that has come out of Our creative hands, Its glory will always be incomplete. The reason is most clear. In fact, Our prime purpose in Creation was that, as We released from Us this Supreme Will which, being bilocated in all Creation, extended everywhere – in the heavens, in the sun, in the sea, in the flower, in the plants, even in the earth, and in each being come out of Our creative hands – constituting Its life of everything in order to form Its life in each being, and bilocating Itself in each creature, It might have as many of Its lives and kingdoms to dominate, for as many creatures as would come out to the light.

Now, my Will has not withdrawn – there is not one point to which Its Divine Life does not extend; there is not one creature which is not invested by this Supreme Will. But while It extends everywhere and invests everything and everyone, It cannot form Its Life. How many Divine Lives are suffocated in creatures; how many deny to It the first place in their acts; how many place It after unworthy and vile acts, denying Its dominion to It. And do you think that the destruction of so many Divine Lives of this Will of Mine in creatures is something trivial? ...of so many of Its acts, noble and sublime, which It feels as being destroyed, while they use It to form human lives, deplorable lives, monsters that will serve for hell? And do you think this is trivial, my daughter? The detriment that Our glory receives on the part of Creation is great and incalculable, such that not even all the good of Redemption could repay Us, because even with Redemption man has not come back into the unity of Our Will, nor does It reign fully in the creatures. How many lives, which are said to be good, holy, are halved between Divine Will and human will. Therefore, Our glory in the Creation is not complete; and only when the things created by Us will serve Our own Will as well as those who will give It the first place of honor, will recognize It in all things, and letting It reign in all their acts, will constitute It absolute Queen and dominating King - then will it be complete.

Don’t you think it is just, and a right, that since everything belongs to my Will and since my Will is everywhere and is, for all, primary life of everything, all would recognize It and all would become Divine Will, since they all belong to It? Imagine a king who had his kingdom; all lands, villas and cities are his exclusive property. There is nothing which does not belong to him – not only by the right that the kingdom is his, but also by the right of property that they belong to him. Now, because of his goodness of heart, this king wants to see his people happy, and so he distributes his farms, his villas, his lands to his people for free, giving them even housing in his cities, in such a way that all can be rich, with abundance, each one in his own condition. And he does all this great good to his people for the sole purpose that they would recognize him as their king, giving him absolute dominion, and recognizing that the lands occupied by them have been given to them for free by the king, that he might be glorified, recognized and loved for the good he has done to them. Now, this people, ungrateful, does not recognize him as its king, and it claims the right of property over the lands which it possesses, denying that they were gifts given by the king. Would this king, then, not be defrauded in the glory of the good he has done to his people? And if you add that they use his lands without benefit for themselves – some do not work them, some remove from them the most beautiful plantations, some render the most pleasant gardens squalid, in such a way as to procure for themselves their own unhappiness and misery – all this would add dishonor and a sorrow that no one could soothe, to the detriment of the glory of the king.

This is nothing but the mere shadow of what my Supreme Will has done, and still does. No one has given Us a cent for receiving the good of the sun, of the sea, of the earth; rather, We gave them everything for free, and only to make them happy, and so that they would recognize my Supreme Fiat, which loved them so much and wants nothing but love and dominion. Now, who could repay that king for the detriment of the glory which his people have not given him, and soothe his intense sorrow? Suppose, again, that someone from that same people, investing himself with the just sorrow of his king and wanting to repay him of his glory, begins, at first, to renovate the land he occupies, in such a way as to make of it the most beautiful and pleasant garden of the kingdom. Then he says to everyone that his garden is a gift that the king has given him because he loves him; and then he calls the king into his garden and says to him: 'These are your dominions – it is right that they be all at your disposal.' The king is pleased with this loyalty, and says: 'I want that you be king together with me, and that we reign together.' Oh! how he feels his glory being restored, and his sorrow soothed by this one member of his people. But this man does not stop; he covers all the paths of the kingdom, and stirring everyone with his speaking, he calls a good handful of people to imitate him, and forms the loyal people which give the right of dominion to their king. And the king feels restored in his glory and, as reward, he gives them the title of children of his, and says to them: 'My kingdom is yours – reign, children of mine.'

This is my purpose – that in my Kingdom there be no servants, but my children, and kings like Me. This will happen with my Divine Will. Oh! how It awaits to be given back Its complete glory in the Creation; and that it be recognized that everything belongs to It, so as to be able to say: 'Everything is yours – let us reign together.' How It awaits for Its knowledges on the Supreme Fiat to cover the paths in order to stir, to call - to press creatures to come into my Kingdom, so as to form my true children, to whom I can give the title of kings. This is why I have so much interest that these manifestations on my Divine Will be known – because this is about my greatest act, which is the fulfillment of my glory and the complete good of creatures."

How the Fiat places everything in communication, wherever It reigns. Example of the spouses. The operating of the Divine Will is the fullness of the acts, and the triumph of the divine act in the human.

I was going around in the whole Creation, to bring all created things together with me before the Supreme Majesty, as homages, praises, adorations, because they are the works of His creative hands, worthy of He alone who had created them, for they are animated by His Divine Will. But while I was doing this, I thought to myself: 'Created things do not move, they stay at their place – they do not come with me; so, it is useless to say that I bring them together with me, because they do not come.' But while I was thinking of this, my sweet Jesus came out from within my interior, and at the same time He showed me my little soul, having many rays centralized within itself, which maintained the communication with each created thing, in such a way that they were in communication with me, and I with them. But the principal point of origin from which these rays started, was God, who maintained the communications with everyone and with everything. And my lovable Jesus told me: "My daughter, wherever my Will reigns with Its light, which no one can resist because it is immense and penetrating, It places everything in communication. Each ray starts from the divine center, in which my Will has Its principal dwelling. The rays are nothing other than the acts which the Divine Fiat issues from Itself, by which, investing each created thing, It forms Its life and as many secondary dwellings in each one of them. Now, it is a natural thing that, for the soul in whom my Will reigns, as she forms her acts in my Volition, all created things receive the communication of that act by virtue of the light that unites them, and along the flight of that same light, they unite together in order to follow the act that soul in whom my Will reigns does. In fact, one is the Will that they possess - one is the strength, therefore one is the act they want to do. It is my Will Itself that moves everything, and makes the act of one, act of all. Therefore, be certain that, even though created things remain at their place, they all follow you. My Will Itself puts them on the way to you, so that you may not be alone, but all of them may accompany you.

It happens as in a wedding: the bride and the groom walk in the front by themselves, but behind them comes their retinue in great number, of those who are invited. You are the bride with whom my Will wanted to form Its royal wedding; It wanted to knock down the division, the obstacles which existed between you and Itself, in order to form the happiest couple which has ever existed. So, these are days of celebration for you and for It; your acts animated by the Divine Fiat are continuous invitations that you make to all the things come out of Our creative hands. Therefore, your invitation is extremely vast, nor is there anyone who can do without accepting, because it is a Divine Will that calls all of Its works to Its banquet, excluding not even my Celestial Mama; and all feel honored and triumphant to attend the wedding and to participate in the nuptial banquet of this Supreme Will of Mine. Therefore, they anxiously await your acts, your invitations, your calls, so as to come and sit at the banquet and celebrate the two spouses. Therefore, you - go in the front together with my Will before the Supreme Majesty; my works follow you behind. And this happens with justice, because in creating all things, it is to the creature that We gave supremacy over all Our works - that is, to the creature in whom Our Divine Fiat was to reign fully, not to the creature degraded by her will. This one is the last of all, and has no right, nor communication; while the creature in whom my Will reigns, has the right to be the first one to call everyone, and to be followed by everyone.

Therefore, the operating in my Will is the greatest miracle, and the fullness of all acts united together, and the triumph of the divine act in the human act, because my Will was as though sterile in the midst of creatures, and is now made happy by Its first daughter, in whom It sees the many births from Itself which will come to light. So, It will live no more as a sterile mother in the midst of the people, but as a mother fecund with many children. It once was a widow, because in creating the first man It espoused the human nature, dowering it with the immense riches of Its Will, as the seal of the marriage It formed with man. As he withdrew from It, It remained a widow for many centuries; but now It has removed the mourning of Its widowhood and, marrying again, has taken on Its garments of bride again, and has put out, once again, Its dowries into the field; and the seal of the dowries are the knowledges about It, through which It gives the gift of the riches It possesses. Therefore, my daughter, be attentive in preserving your garments of bride, and in enjoying the dominions that my Will has given you as dowry."

Jesus invites her to fight. How Jesus fights through His knowledges, through the examples, through the teachings, while the soul fights by receiving them, and by following the acts of His

Will in Creation and Redemption.

I was continuing my flight in the Divine Fiat, and my sweet Jesus made Himself seen coming out from within my interior and braiding His hands with mine, inviting me to fight with Him. I was so very little, and I did not feel capable and strong to fight with Him; more so, since a voice came out from within a light, which said: “She is too little – how can she win this fight?” And Jesus answered: “On the contrary, it is because she is little that she can win, because all the strength is in littleness.”

I was disheartened, nor did I dare to fight with Jesus; and He, inciting me to the fight, told me: “My daughter, courage - try; if you win, you will win the Kingdom of my Will. Nor should you stop because you are little, because I have placed at your disposal all the strength of created things. So, together with you fights all the strength contained in the heavens, in the sun, in the water, in the wind, in the sea; they all wage battle on Me. They do it with Me to make Me surrender the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat; they do it with creatures with the weapons which each created thing has in its power, to make them surrender to recognizing my Will, so that creatures may let It reign as they themselves let It reign. And wanting to win, they all have placed themselves as though in order for battle; and seeing that creatures resist, wanting to win by all means, because they have with them the strength of that Will which animates them and dominates them, with the weapons they possess they knock down people and cities, with such empire that no one can resist them. You cannot comprehend all the strength and power that all the elements contain; it is such that, if my Will did not keep them as though restrained, the battle would be so fierce that they would make a heap of the earth.

Now, their strength is also yours; therefore, you - go around in their midst to put them in order for battle; let your acts, your continuous asking for the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat, call all Creation to stand at attention. And my Will, moving within It, places all of Its acts in royal office in order to give and to win Its Kingdom in the midst of creatures. Therefore, it is my Volition Itself that fights - that wages battle with my very Will for the triumph of Its Kingdom. So, your fight is animated by It, which has sufficient and irresistible strength in order to win. Therefore, go ahead and fight, for you will win; and besides, to fight in order to win the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat is the holiest fight that can exist; it is the most just and most rightful battle that can be fought. This is so true, that my Will Itself began this battle and this fight as It formed the Creation; and only when It wins completely - then will It surrender.

But do you want to know when you fight with Me and I with you? I fight when I manifest to you the knowledges about my Eternal Fiat. So, each saying, each knowledge, each simile about It is one fight and one battle that I make with you in order to win your will, put it in its place, created by Us, and call it, almost by dint of fighting, into the order of the Kingdom of my Divine Volition; and as I do it with you in order to subdue your will, I start it in the midst of creatures. I fight with you when I teach you the way which you must follow, what you must do in order to live in my Kingdom, and the happiness, the joys, which you will possess. In sum, I fight by dint of light, which my knowledges contain; I fight by dint of love and by the most touching examples, in such a way that you cannot resist my fight; I fight by means of promises of happiness and joy without end. My fight is persistent, nor do I ever become tired – but to win what? Your will, and in yours, those who will recognize Mine in order to live in my Kingdom. And you fight with Me when you receive my knowledges, and placing them in order in your soul, you form the Kingdom of my Supreme Fiat within you; and fighting with Me, you try to win my Kingdom. Each one of your acts done in my Will is a fight that you make with Me. In each round you do through all created things, to unite yourself to all the acts that my Will does in all Creation, you call all Creation to wage battle in order to win my Kingdom, moving my very Will dominating in all created things, so as to wage battle on my Will Itself in order to establish Its Kingdom. This is why, in these times, the wind, the water, the sea, the earth, the heavens, are all in motion more than ever, waging battle against creatures as new phenomena occur - and how many more will occur - destroying people and cities: because in battles it is necessary to dispose oneself to suffer losses, and many times also on the part of the winner. There have never been conquests of kingdoms without battle, and if there have been, they have not been lasting ones. You fight with Me when, investing everything I did and suffered in my Humanity – that is, my tears, my most intimate pains, my prayers, my steps, my words, and even the drops of my Blood – you impress in them your ‘I love You’, and for each one of my acts you ask for the coming of the Kingdom of my Supreme Fiat. Who can tell you the fight you make with Me? You move my very acts to wage battle on Me, that I may surrender and grant you my Kingdom.

Therefore, I fight with you, and you fight with Me. This fight is necessary – to you, in order to win my Kingdom; and to Me, in order to win your will and to begin the battle in the midst of creatures, so as to establish the Kingdom of my Supreme Will. I have my own Will, and all of Its very Power, Strength and Immensity in order to win; you have my Will Itself at your disposal, all Creation and all the good I did in Redemption, in order to launch a formidable army to wage battle and win the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat. See, each word you write is also a fight that you make with Me - one more soldier that joins the army, which must win the Kingdom of my Will. Therefore, be attentive, my daughter, for these are times of fight, and it is necessary to use all means in order to win.”

The reason for the great interest of Jesus in wanting to make the Divine Will known.

My poor mind was wandering within the many knowledges about the Supreme Volition, and I thought to myself: ‘Why does Jesus have so much interest that this Divine Will be known and that It reign in the midst of creatures?’ Now, while I was thinking of this, my always lovable Jesus came out from within my interior and told me: “My daughter, do you want to know why I have so much interest in making my Will known, and that It reign in the midst of creatures? Because It alone is the means to be able to redo the creature, and It places Me and her in the condition of being able – I, to give, and she, to receive. Until my Will returns triumphant and dominating into the midst of creatures, I will not be able to give what I want, and they will lack the capacity, the space to be able to receive that which I can and want to give. In fact, my Will alone has this virtue, this power – that, establishing order and balance between Creator and creature, It opens all the ways of communication between them: God has His royal path in order to be able to send His gifts with no danger, descend whenever He wants, and bring, personally, His greatest goods to her; and the creature, possessing the same path, can receive Him, or ascend in order to go, herself, to take that which her Lord wants to give her.

As rich and powerful as a king might be, if he finds no one to whom to give, he will never have the contentment, the satisfaction of being able to give; his riches will remain idle, isolated, abandoned.

Perhaps he will live drowned within his own riches, but he will never have the contentment, the happiness to give and to let others enjoy his goods, because he finds no one to whom to give them. This king will be a king isolated, abandoned, without cortege; he will have no one who smiles at him, who says to him a 'thank you'; it will never be feast for him, because the feast is formed by giving and by receiving. So, with all his riches, this king will have a nail in his heart, abandonment, monotony; he will be rich, but without glory, without heroism, without name. What sorrow for this king, with all his riches!

Now, my daughter, the reason for which We issued the Creation and created man was to give Our riches, so that the external glory of Our works may unite to the internal glory and the immense happiness which We possess. So, since the creature is not in Our Will, We feel her far away from Us; there is no one who surrounds Us with her 'thank You', nor anyone who smiles at Us with delight for Our works. Everything is isolation; We are surrounded by immense riches, but because Our creatures are far away from Us, We have no one to whom to give them; We have no one who admires Our works in order to enjoy them. We are happy, but because of Ourselves, nor is there anyone who could slightly disturb Our happiness; but We are forced to see the unhappiness of creatures, because, being disunited from Us, they cannot take and We cannot give. The human will has formed the fences, and has locked the doors of communication. To give is liberality, heroism, love - to receive is grace; and the creature, by doing her own will, hinders Our liberality, Our heroism, Our Love. And if something is given, it is always restricted, and given by dint of strains, of intrigues, because since the order between them and Us is missing, things do not run freely. We are not capable of sorrow – Our Being is untouchable by all evils; but if We were capable of sorrow, the creature would poison Our existence. This is, then, the reason for all Our interest in wanting to make Our Will known, and that It reign in the midst of creatures: We want to give, We want to see them happy of Our own happiness; and Our Will alone can do all this – realizing the purpose of Creation and allowing Us to place Our goods in common.”

Oh Will of God, how admirable, powerful and desirable You are. O please! with your empire, conquer all, make Yourself known, and make us all surrender to You.

Deo Gratias.

How living in the Divine Volition is to form a surprise visit to Jesus.

My poor heart felt as if it was in the strongest vise due to being deprived of my sweet Jesus. Oh, how it groaned and agonized, and, as I was making my usual round - following the acts of His Will in creation - I reached the sea. I called Him in this way and I said to Him: "Come, my Jesus, come back; your little daughter calls You in the sea. I call You together with the vastness of these waters in their waves, I call you in the darting of the fish, I call you with the same power of Your own Will extended in this sea. If You do not want to listen to my voice that calls You, listen to the many innocent voices which spring up from this sea, calling to You. For pity's sake, don't force me to continue, because I cannot go on."

But with all the voices of the sea, Jesus did not come, so I had to pass on to the sun and I called Him in the sun; I called Him with the immensity of it's light. Everywhere I went I called for Him in the name of each created thing and [I called Him] with His same Will which reigned in it. When I reached to look up at the blue vault of the skies, I said to Him: "Listen, oh Jesus, I bring You all Your works. Don't You hear the voice of all the heavens, the innumerable voices of the stars, which call You? They all want to surround You and make You a visit as their Creator, and as their Father You wish to make them all go back?"

Now as I said this, my sweet Jesus came out of me, and, taking His place in the midst of all His works, He said to me:

"My daughter, what a beautiful surprise you have given Me today. You presented Me with a visit from all My works, and I feel My glory and My happiness doubled in seeing Myself surrounded by all My works which I recognize as My many children. Today you have done as a daughter who loves her father greatly. Knowing how he enjoys seeing himself surrounded and visited by all his children, this daughter calls all her brothers and sisters together, loves them one by one, and then goes to give a surprise to her father, who recognizes all the members of his family.

"Oh how he feels glorified by all his children, his happiness is filled to the brim. Therefore, to complete his joy, he spreads a sumptuous banquet, and the father and children celebrate. In the fullness of his happiness he recognizes the daughter who brought together all his family - [which] gave such a surprise to their father, who enjoyed himself very much. This daughter will be loved more because she was the cause of his great happiness.

"Now, My little daughter, while you called Me in the sea, with all its voices I heard you, and I said: 'Let her continue making her round in all created things so that she may gather them together to present them to Me, that I may receive a visit from all of My works which, as so many children, give Me much happiness, and I make them happy.'

“Therefore, living in My Will contains indescribable surprises; I can say that where It reigns My happiness, My joy, and My glories become the soul’s, and I spread the banquet of Its knowledges, and as we rejoice together, we extend the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat so that It may become known, loved, and glorified. Therefore I await these surprises from My daughter who brings Me the visit of the whole family that belongs to Me.

“Besides that, all Our Divine qualities are spread out in creation, and each created thing occupies an office of Our Attributes. One is a child of Our Power, another of Justice, another of Light, another of Peace, another of Goodness - each created thing is a child of one of Our Attributes. So when you bring Me all of creation, you are the bearer of My happiness which is scattered in it, and I recognize My child of the light, of the sun, and my child of justice. In the sea I recognize the child of the surging wind, and the child of peace in the flowering earth. In other words I recognize each part of My Attributes in all created things, and I rejoice in recognizing My children which the little daughter of My Volition brings to Me. I do just as that father who has many children and each one of them occupies an office of love - one is prince, one is judge, one is a representative, one is a senator, one is a governor. The father feels happier as he recognizes each of these offices in the very fruit of his loins, and the honored nobility of his own children.

“All things were created to flow before and delight the children of the Supreme Fiat, and as I see you bring back to Us Our works We recognize in you Our design; and oh, how We rejoice seeing you make your rounds to gather together all Our works to again give Us Our joy which is dispersed in all of creation. So let your flight in My Will be continuous.”

After this, and after having received holy Communion, I was saying to my beloved Jesus: “My Love and my Life, Your Will has the virtue of multiplying Your Life for as many creatures which exist and will exist upon the earth, and in Your Will I want to form as many Jesuses so that I may give You entirely to each soul in Purgatory, to each blessed in Heaven, to each living soul on earth.”

While I was saying this my Celestial Jesus said to me:

“My daughter, whoever - lives in My Will does exactly this: by virtue of My Will he multiplies the acts of his soul for as many created creatures that exist. The soul receives the Divine disposition, so his act becomes the act of all. Precisely this is Divine behavior: an act which multiplies itself [and] can be done by everyone, just as if that act had been done for each individual. In reality it was a single act, but in the soul where It reigns My Volition takes upon Itself the condition of God Himself, be it of glory as well as of sorrow, depending upon if the creature receives or rejects the act. The glory that the act can give - the goods and the life of Jesus - is great, exuberant, and infinite; the sorrow of not having all creatures accept that good, and My own Life remaining suspended without giving the benefit of My Divine Life, is the suffering which surpasses all suffering.”

Where [God’s] Will reigns three cords of purest gold are formed. How the Divine will works in all of creation.

How difficult my Jesus makes my awaiting His return. Oh how my little soul yearns for it. Without Him it is reduced as an earth without water and without sun. While it bums from thirst the darkness is so great that I know not what step to take next to find He who alone can give me satisfying water and who can make the sun rise to light my steps to find He who has gone away from me. Oh Jesus! Jesus! Come back! Don't you feel my heartbeat in Yours calling to You? My own heart has no more life; with difficulty it beats, and has no more strength to call upon You.

But as I was saying these and other things, my Highest Good Jesus moved within me. He made me see three small cords which were all three tied together, and tied to the bottom of my soul. These cords also extended up into Heaven where they were tied to three large bells. Jesus was a small baby who hurriedly, yet with an unspeakable grace, took the cords into His tiny hands and pulled on them so firmly that it seemed that in Heaven those bells formed a long, loud ringing; so powerful were they that all of Heaven came out to see who it was who had called so hurriedly and imposingly to have stirred the attention of all Heaven. I, too, remained amazed, and my sweet Jesus said to me:

“My daughter, the soul in whom My Volition reigns has the cords of purest gold which descend from the Power of the Father, the Wisdom of Me, the Son, and the Love of the Holy Spirit. As the soul works, loves, prays, and suffers, so I take the cords in My hands and put into action Our Power, Wisdom, and Love for the good and to the glory of all the Blessed and all creatures. The ringing of these bells is so strong and harmonious that, as they ring out, they invite everyone to celebrate. So everyone has come out to enjoy the festivities of your act.

“As you can see, the acts done in the soul where My Volition reigns are formed in Heaven, within the womb of her Creator, then they descend to earth by means of the three cords of Our Power, Wisdom, and Love. They then return to their source to bring back glory to Our Divinity, and I greatly enjoy pulling the ropes so that all may hear the ringing of these mysterious bells.”

After that I heard that the Holy Sacrament had been exposed in Church, and I thought to myself: “For me there are neither expositions nor [liturgical] functions.”

And my sweet Jesus, not allowing me to have another thought, came out from inside me and said:

“My daughter, for you there is no need to expose [the Blessed Sacrament], because for whoever does My Will, It has the greatest and most continuous exposition in all of creation. Actually, every created thing, because it is animated by It, forms as many expositions for as many things as exist. What forms My Divine Life in the Eucharist? My Will. If the Sacramental Host were not animated by My Supreme Will, Divine Life would not exist within it; it would be a simple white host not meriting the adoration of the faithful.

“Now, My daughter, My Will has Its exposition in the sun, and just as My Will is veiled in the Hosts, hiding My Life, so It has the veils of light in the sun which hide My Life. Yet who is it that genuflects, who sends an act of adoration, who says a ‘Thank You’ to My Will exposed in the sun? No one - what ingratitude! But even with all that It is not inhibited, It is always stable in doing good within Its veils of light. It follows man's steps, empowering his actions; whichever way he takes It's light is to be found in front of and behind him, carrying him in triumph, carrying him in Its womb of light to do him good It is disposed to do him good and to give him light, even when he does not want it.

“Oh Will of Mine, how invincible, lovable, admirable, and unchanging in good, untiring without ever retreating [You are]! Do you see the great difference between the exposition of the Eucharist and the continuous act of exposition which My Will has in all created things? In the exposition of the Eucharist man must be bothered - he must go, draw near, dispose himself to receive the good; otherwise he receives nothing. On the other hand in the exposition of My Will in created things It goes Itself to man to eliminate his bother, and in spite of the fact that he is not even disposed, My Will is very free and drowns man with Its goods. But there is no one who adores My Eternal Will and all Its expositions.

“The sun, symbol of the Eucharist, gives its light, its heat, its innumerable goods, but always in silence, it never says a word, never chastises, in spite of the many horrendous evils it sees. In the sea, however, under the veils of the water, It gives Its exposition in a different way. It speaks as It forms Its whisperings in the veils of the water, It strikes fear in the tumultuous breakers and in [the sea’s] rumbling waves. If It overwhelms boats and people, It can bury them in the depths of the sea without anyone being able to resist. My Will in the sea makes an exposition of Its Power and speaks in the whisperings, speaks in the breakers, speaks in the highest waves, calling man to love It and fear It, and seeing Itself not listened to makes an exposition of the Divine Justice, changing those veils into storms which unfurl unavoidably against man.

“Oh! If the creatures paid attention to all the expositions which My Will makes in all of creation, they would need to stay always in an act of adoration to adore My Will exposed in the flowered fields with its radiant scents, in the loaded fruit trees with their variety of sweet flavors. There is no created thing which does not have its special Divine exposition, and because the creatures do not bestow the honors upon [My Will in creation] as they should, it’s up to you to maintain perpetual adoration in the exposition that the Supreme Fiat has in all of creation. My daughter, let it be you who offers herself as a perpetual adorer of this Will, for now It is absent of adorers and receives no exchange of love on the part of the creature.

The soul where the Divine Will reigns calls God to work together with her. Offering one’s own actions to God purifies and satisfies the soul.

I was offering my little acts as an act of homage, adoration, and love to the Supreme Volition, and was thinking to myself: “But is it really true that whatever the soul does in the Divine Will, God Himself does the same thing?”

And my sweet Jesus, moving in my soul, said to me:

“My daughter, don’t you feel Me within you following your acts? Where My Will reigns, all things, even the smallest and most natural acts, are converted into delight for both Me and the creature because they are the effect of a Divine Will reigning in him, [a Will] which doesn’t know how to put forth from Itself even the smallest shadow of unhappiness. In fact, you must know that in creation Our Supreme Fiat established all the human acts, investing them with delight, joys, and happiness, in such a way that even labor was not to be of any weight whatsoever to man; neither was he to suffer from the slightest fatigue, because possessing My Volition he possessed the strength to never tire or become faint.

“Even in created things this is symbolized: does the sun perhaps tire and grow faint in giving its light? Of course not. Does the sea tire in its continuous song, forming its waves, nourishing and increasing its fish? Of course not. Does the sky tire in its extension, or the earth in flourishing? Certainly not, but none of these tire because within them is the Power of the Divine Fiat which has the strength to never exhaust Itself. Likewise, all human acts [done in the Divine Will] enter into the order of all created things, and all receive the seal of happiness - food, work, sleep, the voice, each glance and step - everything.

“Now as long as man maintained himself in Our Volition he remained holy and healthy, full of vitality and untiring energy, able to enjoy the happiness of his acts as well as give joy to He who had given him such happiness. As he withdrew, he fell ill and lost his happiness, his inexhaustible strength, and the pleasure of enjoying the happiness of his acts, which had been invested by the Divine Volition. This occurs also between who is healthy and who is ill: the healthy person enjoys his food, works with greater energy, finds pleasure in his diversions as he strolls, even as he chats with others. On the contrary, the ill person often loathes his food, doesn't have the strength to work, is bored in his unoccupied moments, gets upset in his conversations everything seems to go bad for him. His illness has changed his nature and his acts into sorrows.

“Now imagine that the ill person returned to the vitality of his health and regained all his strength and enjoyment in all that he does. You can see that the cause of his illness has been the withdrawing from My Will; returning [to It] and allowing It to reign were the cause of the return of the order and the happiness in human acts. [Returning to It] means placing Its disposition within the acts of the creature. And as he offers his activity, the food he receives, and all that which he does, from within those human acts, there springs forth the happiness which My Volition has placed within those acts, rising up to his Creator to give Him the glory of his happiness. That is why wherever My Will reigns not only am I called to work together with the soul, but the soul gives Me the honor and the glory of that happiness with which We invested human acts. Even if the creature did not possess all the fullness of the unity of the light of My Will, if he would only offer all his acts to his Creator in homage and adoration - because it is the creature who is sick, and not God - so God receives the glory of happiness from the creature's human acts.

“Suppose that there is an ill person who is working, or just nourishing his body. A person who is well and enjoys the fullness of health would not particularly notice the fatigue of that work, as the ill person would; nor would he not relish the food, as would the sick person had he eaten it. On the contrary the healthy person enjoys the fullness of his health, of the good, the glory, the happiness which that work will bring him, just as he will savor the food which is offered to him. Similarly, the offering of one's actions purifies and disinfects the human actions and God receives the glory which is due Him, and in exchange showers glory upon the soul who offers to Him her acts.”

How firmness in doing good only is of God who, having once done an act, [that act] never ceases. The effects of firmness. How the Humanity of Our Lord was the bond of the times, the remedy and model. How [God] wants the rights of the Divine Will [to be] secure.

I felt at the peak of affliction for the privation of my sweet Jesus, and I said to myself: “My Love and my Life, how is it that You left me without even saying good-bye, without teaching me either how to move my steps, or the way I must take to find You. It actually seems that You Yourself have blazed the path to let Yourself be found, yet for however much I make my rounds and call You, You do not listen to me, the doors are closed; and drained from the fatigue I am constrained to stop and mourn He who, at whatever cost, I would like to find, but cannot. Oh! Jesus! Jesus! Come back! Return to the one who can no longer live without You!”

But as I was venting my sorrow He moved slightly within me, and as I felt Him move I said to Him: “My Jesus, my Life, how You make me wait, to the point of not being able to go on, and if You let Yourself be seen it is only in flashes, and without saying a word the obscurity is greater than before, and leaving me in such confusions, delirious with sorrow, I search for You, I call You, but in vain I wait for You.”

And Jesus, having compassion on me, said to me:

“My daughter, fear not, I am here with you. What I desire is that you never go out of My Will, that you always continue your acts, without ever moving from the confines of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat; this will give you the firmness which will make you into the likeness of your Creator. Each act has the virtue of continuing without ever ceasing; an always continuous act is only of God, who doesn’t suffer interruption in His acts. So Our firmness is unshakable, extends itself everywhere with Our immensity, renders Our acts [uninterrupted], and everywhere We turn We find Our firmness which sustains everything.

“My daughter, firmness is of the Divine Nature and a Divine gift, and it is right that We give this participation and give of [Our] Divine Nature to who is to be the daughter of Our Divine Fiat, and [who] lives in Our Kingdom. Thus continuing your acts in It without ever interrupting them lets you know that you are already in possession of the gift of Our firmness. How many things does firmness say: it says that the soul moves only for God; it says that she moves with reason and with pure love, not with passion and personal interest; she is aware and knows the good she does. So always be firm in your acts, and you will always have Our Divine firmness in your working.”

After that I was following my acts in the Supreme Volition, and I reached the point of following the acts of Jesus from His conception in the womb of the Immaculate Queen up to the moment He died upon the cross, and my adorable Jesus, letting Himself be heard again from my interior, said to me:

“My daughter, My Humanity came to earth in time to reunite the past. When the fullness of My Will reigned upon the earth in man, everything was his; [man] had Its Kingdom with him everywhere, as well as Its Divinely operating life. I enclosed this fullness of My Divine Volition within Me, and tying it to the present times I made Myself the first model to form the remedies, the aides, and the teachings that were needed to heal creatures. Then I tied together the descendants [of Adam] to the fullness of that Divine Will which reigned in the first moments of creation.

“Thus My coming to earth was the binding agent to reunite the ages, was the remedy from which this tie could be formed, making it possible for the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat to again reign in the midst of the creatures; it was the model which I left so that everyone, modeling themselves after it, could remain in the ties which I created them. Now you understand the reason why I spoke to you first about My coming upon the earth, of that which I did and suffered to give you the remedies and the model of My very own Life, and then I spoke to you of My Will. They were bonds which I formed in you, and in this bond I formed the Kingdom of My Will, a sign of that is the many [knowledges] which I manifested to you about It, and Its sorrow that it doesn’t reign with all Its fullness among creatures, along with the good which It promised to the children of Its reign.”

So I continued to pray and I felt a bit drowsy when, all of a sudden I heard a loud voice inside of me. Paying attention I saw my loving Jesus with His arms held high as if He were embracing me, and He said with a strong voice:

“My daughter, I ask nothing else from you except that you be the daughter, mother, and sister of My Will; that you place into safety Its rights, Its honor, and Its glory.”

He said this with a loud and strong voice, and then, lowering His voice and embracing me, He added:

“The reason, My daughter, why I want to place into safety My Eternal Fiat is because I want to enclose in your soul the Most Holy Trinity, and only My Divine Will can provide the place and glory worthy of Us. Then, by means of It, We can have the freedom to work and extend in you all the good of creation, We conform things which are still more beautiful because with Our Will in the soul We can do everything, without It We would lack the place where We could reside, and from which We could extend Our works, [because We would] not have the freedom that We do when We are in Our Heavenly mansions.

“The same thing occurs with a king who, loving his servant with excessive love, wants to lower himself to live in his servant’s little hut - but wants to be free, wants to place his royal things in the little hut; he wants to command, he wants his servant to eat his excellent and delicate foods with him. In a word, he wants to live his royal life. But his servant doesn’t want the king to put his royal things [in the servant’s hut], he doesn’t want the king to command, and he doesn’t want to adapt himself to the king’s food. Thus the king doesn’t feel free, and out of his love of freedom he returns again to his court. Where My Will doesn’t reign, I am not free; the human will is in constant opposition to Mine. Not having Our rights secured We cannot reign, so We remain in Our own court.”

How in creation God gave the rights to possess the Kingdom of the Divine Will.

I was, as usual, following the acts of the Supreme Volition in creation, and reaching the moment when God put forth the creation of man, I united myself with the first perfect acts which Adam did when he was created, to begin with him and follow him to when he finished loving Him and adoring Him, to when he sinned, [to do my acts] with that perfection with which he began with when he was in that unity of the Supreme Fiat. But while I was doing this I thought to myself: “But do we have the right to this Kingdom of the Divine Volition?”

And my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, said to me:

“My daughter, you must know that before he sinned Adam did his acts in the Divine Fiat. This means that the Trinity had given him the possession of this Kingdom, because to be able to possess a kingdom there must be one who forms it, one who gives it, and one who receives it. The Divinity formed It and gave It to man, and he received It. Adam, in the first period of creation, possessed this Kingdom together with the Supreme Fiat, and because he was the head of all human generations, all creatures received this right of possession. And Adam, withdrawing from Our Will, lost the possession of this Kingdom, because by doing his own will he placed himself in a state of war with the Eternal Fiat.

“Poor thing, not having enough strength to do combat, and not having an army capable enough to battle with such a Holy Will - a Will which has invincible strength and a formidable army - he lost the battle and the Kingdom which We had given him. What a great loss, because the strength which he possessed before [the fall] was Our own, and with [this] strength he also had our own army at his disposition. As he sinned [that] strength returned to Us, its source, and the army retired from him, placing itself at Our disposition. All of that did not take away the rights of his descendants to possibly once again take over the Kingdom of My Will.

“It is similar to that which happens to a king who, because of war, lost his kingdom - but is there not the possibility that one of his children could win back with another war, his father’s kingdom which is already his? It is [even] more likely [for the Kingdom of My Will] because I, as the Divine Winner, came to earth to recover man’s losses; and, having found one who would want to receive this Kingdom, I restored these forces to him by once again putting My army at his disposition to maintain the order, the decorum, and the glory of [My Kingdom].

“And. what is this army? It is all of creation, more than a wondrous and formidable army; it is the life of My Will which is bilocated within each created thing, [put] there to maintain the Life of this Kingdom. How could man lose hope of again possessing this Kingdom? If he had seen this invincible army of creation totally disappear, then he could have said that God had withdrawn from the face of the earth His Will which vivifies, beautifies, and enriches this Kingdom, [and] there is no longer any hope that It may return into [man’s] possession. But as long as this [army] exists, We must wait until the times are right to find those who will want to receive It.

“Then again, if there was no longer any hope for the possession of the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat, it would not have been necessary that God manifest to you so many knowledges regarding It, nor how His Volition wishes to reign, nor the extent of His sorrow because It doesn’t reign. When something cannot be done, it is useless to speak about it; in that case I would not have had such interest in relating so many things regarding My Divine Will. The mere fact of [My] having spoken about It is a sign that I want It to be possessed once again.

How the Divine Will excludes no one. How It possesses the regenerating virtue, and has everything in the palm of Its hand.

My poor existence lives under the hard press of the privation of my sweet Jesus. Without Him the hours seem like centuries, and I feel the whole weight of my severe exile. Oh God what pain! To live without He who forms my life, my heartbeat, my breath - Jesus what an arduous struggle. Your privation is for me, everything is blocked and impeded. How can the goodness of Your tender Heart bear seeing me so set back just because of You? How can you leave me like this for so long? Don't my sighs strike You any longer; don't my groanings and my deliriums move You any longer, as they look for He who is my One [and] only, because they want life? It is life and nothing else that I seek, and You would deny me this life? Jesus! Jesus! Who would ever have thought that You would leave me for so long? Oh come back, return to me, for I can no longer go on.

While I was pouring out my sorrow, my dear Jesus, my sweet Life, moved in my interior and said to me:

“My daughter, to you it seems as if I left you, and you no longer felt My Life in you. My Will has never left you; on the contrary It's life in you was at Its fullest, because It never leaves anyone - not even the damned in hell. There It is fulfilling Its unyielding and irreconcilable justice, because in hell there is no reconciliation. There [My Will] forms their torment. It is proper that whoever did not want to receive It so that they could be loved, made happy, and glorified, receive It to be tormented and humiliated Thus My Will leaves no one, neither in Heaven, nor on earth, nor in hell. Everything is enclosed within It, It has everything in the palm of Its hand. Nothing can flee from It, neither man, nor fire, nor water, nor the wind, nor the sun. It has Its sovereignty everywhere, and extends Its life reigning and dominating everything.

“If It doesn't exclude anything, and invests everything, could It ever leave Its firstborn daughter where It has centralized It's Love, It's Life, It's Kingdom? It is true that My Divine Will extends Itself everywhere and has Its dominion over everything, but if the creature loves It, It becomes all love and gives Its love; if the creature wants It as life, It forms Its Divine Life in the creature; if the creature wants to let It reign so as to form Its Kingdom, It unfolds Its acts according to the dispositions of the creature. It has Its regenerating virtue, and regenerates Divine Life, Sanctity, Peace, reconciliation, and happiness. It regenerates Its beauty and Its grace. It knows how to do everything, to give Itself to all, to extend Itself everywhere; Its acts are innumerable, and they multiply themselves to the infinite. A new act is given to each creature, according to their disposition; Its variety is unequalled. Who can ever escape from My Will? No one could ever leave creation, or be a creature not created by Us. That could never be, because the right to create is only of God

“Thus My Will will never leave you either in life or in death, and especially after death, because regenerating you as Its special offspring, both of you desire that It forms Its Kingdom. And where It is I am there in My full triumph. Can there ever be a will without the person who possesses this volition? Of course not, and you should not wonder that interiorly you feel as if My Life is finished; you feel that it is finished, but such is not the case.

“It’s similar to created things which seem to die, but always rise up. It seems as if the sun dies, but it is because the earth, turning away, loses the sun and [the sun] appears to die - but the sun lives and always remains in its place, so much so that revolving again, the earth again finds its sun as if it arose to new life for it. All the earth seems to have died: the plants, the beautiful flowers, the delicious fruits; but later everything rises and acquires life. Even human nature seems to die with its sleep, but from sleep it rises more vigorous and refreshed.

“Of all created things, only the sky is always fixed and never dies, it is symbol of the stable goods of the Celestial Fatherland, and not subject to changes. However all the other things - water, fire, wind - all seem to die, but then they rise up all animated by My Will, which is not subject to death, and which possesses the ability of making all things rise as many times as It wishes. Indeed, while it seems that they die, they actually have perennial life due to the regenerative power of My Will. It happens with you in the same way. It seems to you that My Life dies, but this is not true, because, My Volition being in you, there is in you My regenerative virtue that makes Me rise as many times as it wishes. Where there is My Fiat there can be neither death, nor the end of blessings, rather there is Perennial Life which is not subject to ever ending.

March 16, 1927

As Jesus was conceived, so did He form the rejoining of His Kingdom with creatures. How in the Divine Will there are the universal acts, and it is necessary to beg for It.

I was thinking about the Supreme Fiat, and the manner in which this Kingdom might come to be realized, and my beloved Jesus, moving in my interior, said to Me:

“My daughter, as your Jesus was conceived, so did [I] join once again the Kingdom of My Divine Will with the creature. It was necessary for It to take up absolute dominion in My Humanity, and have Its life of liberty in all My acts, in order to extend Its Kingdom in all My Humanity. In this way, all that I did - works, prayers, breathing, heartbeats, and sufferings - were bonds, reconnections, of the Kingdom of My Fiat with creatures.

“I represented the new Adam who not only must provide the remedies for saving creatures, but must redo and restore what the old Adam lost. Therefore it was necessary for Me to take [on] human nature to be able to enclose within it what the creature had lost and, by My means, give It to him once again. Justice required that My Divine Will should have a human nature at its disposition, and that this human nature should not present any opposition, so that the Kingdom of My Will would be able to extend Its reign in the midst of creatures. There is great reason for this, because a human nature had taken away from creatures the rights of the Divine Will to reign, and so another was necessary to restore Its rights to them. Therefore, My coming upon the earth was not for Redemption alone; rather the primary purpose was to form the Kingdom of My Will in My Humanity in order to re-give It to creatures. If that were not so, My coming upon the earth would have been an incomplete work, not worthy of a God who could do nothing less than restore creation to its original state, and restore the original order of things as they came forth from Our creative hands - namely, that Our Will should reign in everything.

“Now, in order for these re-linkings of My Kingdom with creatures that My Humanity had formed to have a validity, life, and knowledge, it was necessary for Me to chose a creature and give her a special office by which she would make known this Kingdom of My Will. Being bound with these re-linkings of My Kingdom that My Will had formed with My Humanity, she would be given the vigor to transmit them to other creatures. Therefore, I am in the depths of your soul to maintain the Life of the Supreme Fiat in order to bind these re-linkings and to extend Its Kingdom there; and I am speaking to you so much about It - something I have not done with anyone else until now. Therefore, be attentive, because it is a matter of something very grand, which is the restoring of the original order of creation between Creator and creature.

“Not only that, but it was necessary that I would first choose a creature who would live in the Divine Fiat in order to receive universal acts from her, because My Will is universal, It is found everywhere, and there is no creature who does not receive Its Life. Now man, by withdrawing from My Will, rejected a universal good; he took from the universal glory, adoration, and love. Now, to give this Kingdom and these universal goods once again, it is necessary by right that there be a creature, living in this Fiat, to communicate this universal act to other creatures. And, as she loves, adores, glorifies, prays, there is constituted, together with her own volition, universal love for all, adoration and glory for each creature. She diffuses her prayer as if each creature were praying, in a universal manner, that the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat come into the midst of creatures.

“When a good is universal, universal acts are needed to obtain it; and only in My Will are there these acts. As you love in It, you love everywhere It is found; and My Will feels your love everywhere. In every place It feels your love following It. Therefore, It feels in you the prime love as had been established for the creature to love It in the beginning of creation. It feels in your love Its echo, which does not know how to love with little and finite love, but with infinite and universal love. It feels the first love of Adam who, before sinning, did nothing other than repeat the echo of his Creator. And by these universal acts which follow It everywhere, it feels drawn to come and reign once again in the midst of creatures.

“And so, I chose you, My daughter, and from the midst of their own race, not only to manifest to you the knowledge, the goods, and the prodigies of this Fiat, but to insure that you, living in It with your universal acts, might incline My Will to come to reign again in the midst of creatures as in the beginning of creation. Therefore, to you it is given to unite everyone, to embrace everyone, so that finding everyone and everything in you - because everything is found in My Will - you will bring about harmony; they will give one another the kiss of peace, and My Kingdom will be restored to Its original character in the midst of creatures.

“Behold, therefore, the necessity of the knowledge about the marvels of My Supreme Fiat in order to dispose creatures to entice them to desire, to want, and to long for this Kingdom and the goods that there are in It. Behold the necessity that I first choose a creature, who, living in It with her universal acts that My own Volition administers to her - which are Divine acts - begs the Kingdom of my Fiat for creatures. I act as a king whose people has been rebellious to his laws: the king, drawing upon his power, places some of them in prison, some he sends into exile, others he takes away the right of possession. In other words, he gives the sentence to all according to what they justly merit.

“With the passage of time the king has compassion on his people, [and] chooses one of his most confidential ministers. As the king opens his own sorrowful heart, he says to the minister: ‘I want to take you into my trust, so I have decided to give you the mandate that you recall for me all the poor exiles, that you release the prisoners, that you restore to them the right to possess the goods which have been taken away from them. If they will be faithful to me, I will double their goods and their happiness.’ Therefore, if they discuss in depth with this trusted minister, they will understand and become completely changed, especially since this minister has always been close to the king, to praying him on behalf of the people that the king would give to all the grace of pardon and reconciliation.

“Once they have concluded the plans in secret, they call the other ministers and give the orders that the good news be delivered among the people - those imprisoned and those in exile - concerning the king’s desire to make peace with them, how he wants each one to return to his place, and they are informed of the good that he wants to give them. And as this good news is being announced, they desire, long for, and dispose themselves with their acts to receive their freedom and the lost kingdom. Simultaneously with the announcement of the good news, the faithful minister always remains close to the king, urging him with incessant prayers that their people receive the good which has been established between them.

“This is just what I did, because that which one can do face to face in the secret of sorrow and in the love of two beings who truly love each other and who want the same good, cannot be done with many. A secret sorrow and the love of your Jesus, united to the soul which I choose, has such power: I to give, and she to beseech. That which it takes - the secret between Me and you - to bring to maturation the many knowledges which I have given to you about the Kingdom of My Divine Fiat, has made your many acts done in It ascend; the secret between you and Me induced Me to pour out My lengthy sorrow [for] the many centuries in which My Will, while It was in the midst of the creatures and was the Life of their every act, was not known. They held It as if in a state of continuous agony.

“My daughter, My sorrow poured out in the secret of the heart of one who loves Me has the virtue to change justice into mercy, while My bitternesses are change into sweetness. Thus after I had taken you into My confidence, and after we had decided everything together, I called My ministers and gave them the order to make known to the people the good news about My Supreme Fiat, Its many knowledges, how I call everyone to come into My Kingdom - and how by leaving the prisons, from the exiles of their wills, they take possession of the good which they lost. They no longer live unhappily and slaves of the human will, but in the happiness and freedom of My Divine Will. And just as this secret contained the virtue to allow us to speak heart to heart about the many wonders and manifestations about the Eternal Fiat, so the revelation of Our long secret will be like so many pathways for the people who, themselves being surprised, will pray with longings that My Kingdom come to put an end to all their evils.”

How whoever does not finish his mission on earth will complete it in Heaven. How the mission of the Fiat will be very long. The order of Infinite Wisdom.

I was preoccupied about the health of Rev. Father Di Francia, (because) his letters which I received were almost alarming. I thought about the fate of my writings, of which he had held so much interest as to take them all away with him. Where would they end up? If Our Lord decided to call him to his Heavenly rest, then his mission of publishing the knowledge about the Fiat would be without its fruit, because he actually has done nothing yet. At the most one could say that he has begun, that he has the good will to do the publication, but who knows how much time will be needed to complete a work so lengthy? And if Jesus takes him right at the very beginning, how will it be for Father [Di Francia]? It will be a mission without fruit, and it will be the same for me, if I should have the good fortune to flee to my (Heavenly) home.

What will be the fruit of my mission? To have sacrificed myself so much, to have spent entire nights writing; the many interests of Jesus will also be without fruit, because a good which He Himself has given brings forth its fruit when it is known. So if they aren't made known, they will rest without fruit, without anyone receiving the goods which they contain.

Now as I was thinking that, my sweet Jesus moved within my interior, and He said to me:

“My daughter, whoever has been given a mission and has barely had an opportunity to begin, or has not been able to complete the entirety of his missions because at the best moment I call him to Heaven, will continue from up there his mission, so that it may bring into the depths of the soul its deposit of good relating to the knowledges which he has acquired in life. In Heaven he will understand with greater clarity and understanding the great good of the knowledge of the Supreme Fiat. He will pray the Fiat, indeed he will ask all of Heaven to pray, that (the knowledges) be known throughout the earth; he will beseech that clearer light be given to whoever must work in making It known.

“This is especially true because every knowledge concerning My Will will bring them one more glory, [and] a greater happiness, and as they are known throughout the earth, their glory and happiness will be doubled, because this will be the fulfillment of his mission which he had in his will to do. It is just that as his mission is unfolding upon the earth, that [the earth] receive the fruit of his mission; for this reason I told him to make haste, I strongly urged him not to waste time, because I wanted him to not only begin this work, but that he make great progress in the publication of the knowledges of the Eternal Fiat, so that he not have to do it all from Heaven. He, instead, who has completed his mission on earth can say that his mission is finished; but whoever has not completed [theirs], must do so from Heaven.

“As for you, your mission is very long, and you will not be able to complete it on earth. Until all the knowledges [about the Divine Will] are known on earth, and the Kingdom of the Divine Will is known, your mission cannot be said to be completed. In Heaven you will have much to do; My Will, which held you so occupied on earth on behalf of Its Kingdom, will not leave you - you will still work with It in Heaven. It will always keep you in Its company so that you will do nothing other than descend and ascend from Heaven to earth to help establish My Kingdom with decorum, honor, and glory.

“This will be your great contentment, happiness, and highest glory - in seeing your smallness which, united to My Volition, has transported Heaven to the earth, and the earth to Heaven. You could not have any greater gratification than this - seeing the glory of your Creator completed by His creatures, the (natural) order re-established, all of creation with its full splendor, and seeing man, Our dear jewel, in his place of honor. How great will be Our, and your, utmost satisfaction, glory, and unending happiness to see the purpose of creation realized! To you then We will give the name of Co-Redemptrix of Our Will, declaring you mother of all the children of Our Fiat. Will you not then be happy?

After that I was following the acts in the Divine Will, and not finding my sweet Jesus I thought to myself that He didn't love me as before, because it seems that in times past He seemed to not be able to be without me; He did nothing other than come and go. Now He leaves me alone, without being with Him, for whole days. Before, He very often took me to Heaven, only to lead me back here (to my very greatest discontent) to earth; now all is finished.

But as I was thinking this, He moved in my interior and said to me:

“My daughter, you offend Me with thinking that I do not love you as much as before; this is just the order of My Infinite Wisdom. You must know that even My inseparable Mother, in Her tenderest of years, was more in Heaven than on earth because She needed to draw from Us seas of grace, love, and light, to form within Her Her Heaven where the Eternal Word could be conceived and make His Home. So when this Heaven was formed in the Sovereign Queen, it was no longer necessary for Her to come so frequently to the Celestial Fatherland because She contained within Herself that which was in Heaven.

“Likewise did I do for you, that which was necessary before is not necessary today. And then which is better: to possess Me entirely within the depths of your soul, under the beautiful Heaven of My Will formed with you, or make frequent visits to the Celestial Fatherland? I believe that it is better to possess (It); therefore all that which I did in you before, for so many years, was nothing other than forming My Heaven in you. After having formed it, it is only right that I enjoy it, and you should enjoy the fact that Jesus has His Heaven within your soul.”

How (Luisa) seeks Jesus everywhere. How whoever lives in the Divine Volition lives in the echo of Jesus' voice. Effects of the Sun of the Divine Will rising in the soul.

Continuing in my usual state, I was following the Divine Volition in creation, and following one created thing after another I called upon my sweet life, my dear Jesus, to come join me in following the acts of His Will in all created things; and not seeing Him I felt the nail of His privation which pierced me, and in my suffering I said to Him: “My Jesus, I don't know what to do to find You. I called You by Your Justice in the sea, from Your Power, from Your breaking waves, and You do not listen to me? I called You by the light of the sun, from the intensity of its heat which symbolizes Your Love, and You don't come? I called You from the immensity of all Your works in the vastness of the vault of heaven, and [it seems that You're not there]. At least tell me what I must do to find You again? If I do not find You in the midst of Your works, in Your own Will (for the confines of Your Will are found in Your works), then where can I ever find my Life?"

But as I was pouring out my sorrow, He moved within me, saying:

"How beautiful My daughter is, how beautiful it is to see her littleness dispersed in My Will, to see her looking for Me in the midst of My works, and not find Me."

And I (said): "My Jesus, You are killing me; tell Me, where have You hidden Yourself?" And Jesus replied:

"I am hiding in you, and then if you hear the voice of a person you say that in hearing his voice that he is already next to you. Now My Will is the echo of My voice. If you remain in It, and go about through all the works of My Fiat, you are already within the echo of My voice; and being in It I am close to you, or inside of you. With My Fiat I give you the gift of making the rounds to the point of where My voice reaches - and even to wherever My Fiat extends Itself."

Surprised, I said: "But my Love, Your voice is very wide and very long, because there is no place where Your Will cannot be found." And Jesus added:

"Certainly, My daughter, there is neither will nor voice if there is not the person who emits it; thus, as My Will is found everywhere, there can be no point where My voice, which carries My Fiat to all things, cannot reach. Therefore if you find yourself in My Will in the midst of Its works, you can be more than sure that your Jesus is with you."

After that I was thinking of the great good that the Divine Will brings to us, and while I was immersed in It my sweet Jesus added:

"My daughter, as the sun, when it rises, makes the darkness flee, so it brings with it the dawning of the light which replaces the dampness of the night which has so invested the plants that they have become oppressed, numbed, and dejected. As the sun rises, that dampness changes into pearls making everything glisten: plants, flowers, and all of nature. Its silvery brilliance restores joy and beauty as it removes the stupor of the night; and with its enchantment of light it seems as if it gives a hand to all of nature to vitalize her, make her beautiful, and give her life. The sea, the streams, and the springs become all armed and enlarge the diversity and vivacity of the colors.

"Similarly, as My Volition rises, all human acts rest enveloped with light, they take their place of honor in My Will, [and] each receives its special tint of beauty and the tone of the Divine colors - in such a way that the soul remains transfigured and covered with an indescribable beauty. As the Sun of My Volition rises It places in flight all the evils of the soul and takes away the numbness produced by the passions. Rather, before the Light of the Divine Fiat the same passions taste that light and seek to convert themselves into virtues so they may give homage to My Eternal Volition. As It rises all becomes joy, [even] the very sufferings [which], like the seas of the night, create fear in the poor creature. Where My Volition rises It puts to flight the night of the human will, and removing every fear It thoroughly forms Its gold in those pains, and with Its Light It invests the bitter waters of suffering and crystallizes them into seas of sweetness so as to form an enchanting and admirable horizon. What can My Volition not do? It can do all, and wants to give all; [and] where It rises, It does things worthy of Our creative hands.”

Whoever possesses the Divine Will is one who recalls all It's acts. For as many times as (the soul) rises to Divine Life, so many acts does she do in the Divine Will. How whoever does not do her acts in the Divine Will is the petty thief of creation.

I was thinking to myself how - when making my rounds in the Supreme Will, following Its acts in creation and in Redemption - it seems as if all things speak, all have something to say about this admirable Volition. On the other hand, when I am occupied in other (meditations), everything is silent; it seems as if they have nothing to say.

But as I was thinking [this] the sun penetrated into my little room and its light beat down upon my bed. I felt myself invested by its light and heat, and at this moment a light came out from my interior and dived into the light of the sun. Both (lights) kissed, and I remained surprised. And my sweet Jesus said to me:

“My daughter, how beautiful is My Divine Will bilocated in you and in the sun. Whenever It resides in the soul and sweetly encounters Its works, It rejoices; and as It enters into the power which It exercises over each of her acts, these kiss each other, one light remains and the other returns triumphantly to its place to exercise its office as My own Will wants.

“Therefore the soul who possesses My Will recalls, all Its acts, and as they come together they immediately recognize each other. This is why whenever you make your rounds in creation and Redemption, all things speak to you; they are the acts of My Will which speak to you in them (creation and Redemption). It is only right that whoever possesses It know about It's Life, and while there may seem to be a division among so many created things, and a distinction in so many different acts, it is one single Act, and for whoever possesses It, it is necessary that she be aware of all Its acts so that she may form one single Act with all the acts of My Will.

Then, following the acts which the Supreme Fiat had done in the Redemption, I came to when my sweet Jesus was in the act of raising the dead, and I said to Him: “My Jesus, as my ‘I love You’ followed You into limbo, and investing all the inhabitants of that place we asked You all together that You hurry (the coming of ) the Kingdom of Your Supreme Fiat on earth, so I want to impress my ‘I love You’ upon the tomb of Your Resurrection. Therefore as Your Divine Will makes Your Most Holy Humanity rise up in fulfillment of the Redemption as a New Covenant in which You restored the Kingdom of Your Will on earth, so (with) my incessant ‘I love You’ following all the acts which You did in the Resurrection I ask You, I pray You, I plead with You, that You make souls rise up in Your Will so that Your Kingdom be established among creatures.” While I was saying this and other things, my loving Jesus moved within me and said:

“My daughter, for every act done in My Will, so many acts rise up to Divine Life. And for as many acts as are done in It, so much does the Divine Life grow - and in that measure is the glory of the Resurrection brought to its completion; it’s foundation, substance, light, beauty, and glory are formed from the acts done in My Will. (My Will) can give as much beauty, and can enlarge the soul, only for however much contact It has had with the soul.

“In fact, whoever has always lived in My Will, which has always had It’s dominion over all the acts of creatures, will possess in herself the same new acts of the beatitudes which, breaking loose from her, will invest all of the Celestial Fatherland. Therefore there will be such harmony between the New Act of God and the new act of who has possessed My Volition as to form the most radiant enchantment of that Celestial stay. The prodigies of My Will are Eternal and always new.

After that I was thinking to myself how was it possible that Adam, being created by God in such an elevated place, fell so low after sin. And my always loving Jesus, moving in my interior, said to me:

“My daughter, in creation there was only one Will which took the initiative in creating all things. And by rights it was to this one Will belonged the dominion, command, and the activation of Its own Life in each thing and creature which came into existence. Now man, by withdrawing himself from Our Will, made it such that no longer was Our one Will reigning upon the earth, but two, and because the human was inferior to the Divine, the human will emptied itself of all the goods of the Supreme Fiat, and, taking control of it(self), took away the place of the Divine Will, and this was the greatest of sorrows. Much more so because this human will came into being and had been created by the Divine Will so that the human will could belong to and be dominated by the Divine Will. Man, withdrawing from Our Will, made himself guilty of stealing the Divine rights, and by claiming [his own will], all the things created by this Fiat no longer belonged to him.

“Thus he sought to find a place where Our creative work was not, but that was also impossible; this place doesn’t exist. And so, since he was not with Our Will, he drew upon the things of creation in order to live. He served himself in the sun, in the water, in the fruits of the earth, in everything - and these were all robberies that he committed. In this way man, by not doing Our Will, became the petty thief of all Our goods. How sorrowful it was to see that creation should serve so many deserters - for so many who did not belong to the Divine Fiat. And for as many creatures who should have existed so as to live in Our Kingdom and let themselves be dominated by Our Will, so many places [Our Will] lost upon the earth.

“Similarly it occurs in a family where instead of the father commanding and dominating, all the children command and dominate - and they do not get along with each other either, some command one thing and some another. What is the sorrow of this poor father in seeing his dominion taken away by his children, with the resulting confusion and disorder in this family? So much more was it sorrowful for My Supreme Fiat when the dominion over the works of Its own hands was taken away (by the creature), and doing his own will he placed himself against Mine, taking away Its right to reign. My daughter, not doing My Will is the evil that encloses all evil, and is the downfall of all goods; it is the destruction of happiness, order, and peace; it is the great loss of My Divine Kingdom.

How the soul who lives in the Divine Will is Its triumph. Threats of war (between) men of all races.

I felt all immersed and abandoned in the Divine Volition and while I was following my acts done in It my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, said to me:

“My daughter, the soul who lives in My Divine Will is Its triumph. As the soul does her acts in It, Its bilocating virtue is released and, hovering over all creation, she extends Its Divine Life. Thus the soul who lives in My Will gives Me the opportunity to bilocate My Life for as many acts done in It. Therefore, it is not only the triumph of My Will, but My Will receives more honor from the soul who moves within It than from all of creation. In each created thing It placed (something of) God who had created it: in some places the shadow of His Light, elsewhere the notes of His Love, in some other things the image of His Power, in still others the flowering of His Beauty, so that each created thing has something that belongs to its Creator.

“Instead, in the soul who lives in the Divine Fiat, It places all of Itself, It centers all of Its Being, and bilocating Itself (in the soul), fills all of creation with the acts the soul does in [God’s] Will so as to receive from her love, glory, and adoration for each created thing which sprang forth from Our creative hands. Thus whoever lives in It puts herself in relation with all created things, and taking to heart the honor of her Creator, by means of the same relations that she has received, she sends to each thing - from the smallest to the largest thing created - the exchange of her relations with all that her Creator has done. This is why all communications are open between the soul and God. The creature enters into the Divine Order and enjoys perfect harmony with the Supreme Being, and is, for this reason, the true triumph of My Will.

“But whoever does not live in It, lives with the human will, and therefore all communications with the Supreme Being are closed; all is disorder and disharmony. Her relations are with her passions, and in her passions she prepares her acts; she understands nothing of what her Creator is doing. More than a serpent she slides across the earth, and lives in the disorder of human things. Thus the soul who lives with her human will is My dishonor and the defeat of the Divine Fiat in the work of creation. What suffering, My daughter! What sorrow! (Can you imagine) that the human will wants to procure the downfall of its Creator’s Volition - that Will which loves the soul so much and wants her in Its triumph, which is the triumph of the very creature!”

Then I lamented with Jesus about His privation, about how now, maybe more than ever, He is making me suffer longer periods of His absence, yet He still tells me that He loves me; who knows if it won’t end up by His leaving me entirely?

But as I was thinking that my sweet Jesus moved in my interior, surrounding me with light, and made me see within that light wars and savage civil revolutions against Catholics. You could see races fighting (among themselves), and everyone in the act of preparing themselves for other wars. And Jesus, all afflicted, said to me:

“My daughter, you do not know how My impassioned Heart wants to run with love towards creatures, and while it is running they reject it. Instead they run towards Me with the most brutal offenses, and with the most horrible pretensions. Thus, seeing My Love so persecuted, My Justice comes to the forefront and defends My Love; with blows it strikes those who persecute Me, and flows over the pretensions they have created not only with Me, but also those created among the nations, so that entering into My Justice they come to realize that instead of loving each other, they fiercely hate each other.

“This century can be called the century of the greatest falsehood, and this is true between all classes. As a result they are never in agreement between themselves, and while it may appear that they want to be in agreement, in reality they are simply preparing new wars. Falsity has never brought true good, be it in the civil order or religious order. At the most there has been some shadow of fleeing good. Now, however, the proclaimed peace given in words but not in facts is being converted into preparations of war. As you can already see, many different races have united to fight - some for a certain pretext, and others for another pretext. Others will be united together, and I will make use of the union of these races because, for the Kingdom of My Divine Will to come, it is necessary that there be a union of all these races by means of another war which will be spread much more than the last one in which Italy was so financially obligated.

“With the union of these races, the people will know each other; and after the war, the diffusion of the Kingdom of My Will will be easier. Therefore be patient in supporting My absence and the void that My Justice wants to form to defend My persecuted Love. You pray and offer all so that the Kingdom of My Fiat come quickly.”

The effects of a free love that loves, and the effects of a forced love. How in the Divine Will acts are done with fullness, completely and cheerfully.

While I was all afflicted for the privation, and almost petrified from the suffering of seeing myself forgotten by my loving Jesus, He came out from my interior, and, resting his hands on my shoulders, He placed his head on my breast and breathed strongly, saying to me:

“All are waiting on your acts,” and while he breathed, He gathered in Himself all my acts done in his Divine Volition, and continued:

“My daughter, the acts done in my Volition are mine, so I came to take them with my breath. And as I was breathing upon your breast, all of your acts, being mine, are being waited for by all so that I, going to diffuse them into all of creation, will be able to receive from all the universe the honor of the free act of a creature. This will of the creature freely, not under force, comes into my Will and - works, and I receive the honor of a free will, which is the greatest honor for me, and which is suitable for a me as God. A free will that loves me and that voluntarily annihilates itself for Me and operates in [My Will] is the great wonder of creation. All things were created because they should be at the service of this free, unforced will loving Me; and this will, having dominion, over all and enjoying all of creation, should have served as a will for all created things, because created things do not have a will, and the creature was to have served as a will for them. Thus her will and her free love for her Creator would have been in each created thing. It is only in my Will that the human (will) can defend us entirely, in order to give this great love to her Creator.

“My daughter, a will which doesn’t love me freely, but under force, says distance between creature and Creator; it says slavery, and servitude; it says dissimilarity. Instead, a free will which does my Will says union between the soul and God; it says inheritance; it says that that which is of God, is also of the creature; it says similarity in sanctity and love, in such a way that that which one does the other does also, and where one is to be found the other is there also. So I created man with freedom of will so that he could receive this great honor that is fitting for a God. A will that is forced to love me and which sacrifices itself - I do not know what to do with it. On the contrary, I don’t even recognize it, and neither does it merit any reward. So you can understand why my eyes are fixed on the soul who, of spontaneous will, lives in my Will. Forced love belongs to men, not God; they content themselves with appearances and do not descend into the depths of gold found in the will, so that they might have a sincere and loyal love.

“As the king is content with the subjection of the subjects because he holds formed his army, and he doesn’t mind if his soldiers have a distant will from him, if this is distant he will have the army but he won’t be secure, it could be an army that plots his crown and life. A lord may have many slaves, but if they do not serve their master freely, but out of necessity - for gain, for fear, or just to receive their pay - these servants that eat the master’s bread may be his first enemies. But your Jesus, who sees into the depths of the will, is not content with appearances, so if this will spontaneously wants my Will and wants to live in It, my glory and all of creation is placed into safety because they are not servants, but my children who possess It and who love to see the glory of their celestial Father [such] that they would be ready and would feel honored to give their lives for love of Him.”

Afterwards I felt myself all immersed in the Eternal Fiat, and my beloved Jesus added:

“My daughter, in My Will all acts are done in the fullness of light, so they are acts full of all goods; these acts are complete acts, because nothing must lack, and are so cheerful that they open for the good of all. See, as you called My celestial Mother, the Angels, and the Saints, to love Me, so I heard repeated in you the love of my Mamma, the love of the Angels, the love of all of Heaven. As you called the sun, the skies, the stars, the sea, and all created things, around me to give me the love and glory of my works, so I heard repeated in you that which I did in creating the sun, the skies, the stars, the sea, and all the love which I put forth in all of creation. Thus the soul who lives in my Will is the repeater of my acts which, bilocating them, gives me that which I gave them. Oh how your Jesus enjoys seeing Himself receiving, from the smallness of the creature, the honors and the glory of his own full, complete, and exuberant acts.”

How all the figures and symbols of the Old Testament symbolize the children of the Divine Will. How Adam fell from one place to [a] lower place.

I was following the acts that the Divine Volition had accomplished in all of creation, and as I was searching for the acts which It had done in the first father Adam, I was also looking for all those which had been done, in every sense, in the Old Testament - especially when the Supreme Volition had evidenced Its power, strength, and Its vivifying virtue.

And my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, said to me:

“My daughter, while the greatest figures of the Old Testament were figures who foreshadowed the future Messiah, these figures together expressed the gifts and symbolized all the gifts which the children of the Supreme Fiat would possess. At his creation Adam was the true and perfect image of the children of my Kingdom. Abraham was a symbol of the privileges of heroism of the children of my Volition, and as I called Abraham to a promised land flowing with milk and honey, making him lord of that land which was so rich that all the other nations were envious and wanted it, it was all a symbol of that which I would have done for the children of my Will. Jacob was another symbol of the children of My Will; it was from him that the twelve tribes of Israel would come forth, from which would be born for them the future Redeemer who would establish again the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat for My children.

“Joseph was a symbol of the dominion that the children of My Will would have, and as he did not allow such a great number of people to perish from famine - including his ungrateful brothers - so the children of the Divine Fiat will have dominion and not allow the people who will ask for the bread of My Will to perish. Moses was a figure of the power, Samson was a symbol of the strength, of the Children of My Will. David symbolized their reign. All the prophets symbolized the graces, communications, the intimate closeness with God which the children of the Divine Fiat would enjoy in greater abundance than the prophets. Do you not see how these were nothing none other than symbols and images (of the children of My Will)? How will it be when these symbols come to life?

“After all these came the Celestial Lady, the Sovereign Empress, the Immaculate One, the Stainless One, My Mother. That Mother of Mine was not a symbol nor an image, but the reality, the true life, the first privileged daughter of my Will. I saw in the Queen of Heaven the generations of the children of My Kingdom. She was the first incomparable creature to integrally possess the Life of the Supreme Volition; for this reason She merited to conceive the Eternal Word and mature in her Maternal Heart the generations of the children of the Eternal Fiat. Then came My own Life in which the Kingdom that these fortunate children were to possess was established. From all this you can understand how God, in all that He did from the beginning of the world - of all that He does and will do - His first principle has been and is to form the Kingdom of His Will among creatures. This receives all Our attention, this is Our Will, and to these children all Our goods - Our prerogatives and Our likeness - will be given. And if I call you to follow all the acts which My Will has done, as much in the creation of the universe - as in the generations of creatures - excluding neither that which My Celestial Mother did, nor that which I did in My own Life - it is to center within you all It's acts, to make them a gift to you, so that, all together, the gifts which a Divine Will can possess may come forth from you. In this way I will be able to form with decorum, honor, and glory the Kingdom of the Eternal Fiat. So be attentive in following my Will.”

I was thinking to myself: “How is it that Adam, by withdrawing himself from the Divine Will, fell from such heights to such a low place?” And Jesus, moving in my interior, said to me:

“My daughter, as in the natural order, whoever falls from a high place either dies or remains so broken and deformed that it is impossible for him to regain his original state of health, beauty, and position; he will remain a poor cripple, curved and lame. And if this person is a father, he will produce a generation of cripples - blind, deformed, and lame.

“Likewise is it in the supernatural order. Adam fell from a very high place; he had been placed by his Creator at such an elevated point, that it surpassed the limits of the sky, the stars, and the sun. Living in My Will he lived above everything - in God Himself. See from where he fell? Falling from such heights, it is a miracle that he didn't totally perish. But if he didn't die, the blow he received in falling was so strong that it was inevitable that he remain crippled, broken, and deformed in his rare beauty. He was left with all his goods smashed; [he was] left indolent in his actions, dulled in his intellect, suffering from a fever which weakened him, withered in all the virtues, and he no longer felt the strength to dominate himself. Man's most beautiful asset, dominion of self, had vanished, and the passions had taken over to terrorize him, to render him restless and melancholy. Because he was the father and head of the human generations, he produced a family of cripples. Many think that not doing My Will is of little importance; instead it is the total ruin of the creature, and for as many acts (as the creature) commits of his own will, by so many times do his evils increase, along with his ruin, and he only continues to dig an abyss ever deeper for him to fall into.”

So I thought to myself: if Adam, withdrawing just one single time from the Divine Will, made him fall so low and change his fortune into misery, his happiness into bitterness - how will it be for us who so many, many times have withdrawn ourselves from this adorable Will?

But as I was thinking this, my loving and only Good added:

“My daughter, Adam fell so low because he withdrew from an Expressed Will of his Creator, in which was enclosed the test to try his faithfulness towards He who had given him life and all the goods he possessed. More so, because that which God had asked of him was that before so many goods that He had freely given Adam, of the so many (varieties of) fruit that He had given him, that he deprive himself of one single fruit out of love for He who had given him everything. And in this small sacrifice that God wanted from him, He let Adam know that it was only because He wanted to be sure of his love and his fidelity. Adam should have felt honored that his Creator wanted to be sure of the love of His creature. Who would ever have believed that the one who brought him down and persuaded him to fall was not a being superior to him, but a vile serpent - his capital enemy. His fall brought graver consequences; because he was the head of all the generations, so all the members would naturally eventually feel the effects of the evil of their head. See, therefore, how when my Will is expressed, wanted, and commanded, the sin is greater and the consequences are irremediable. Only My same Divine Will can make reparation to such a great evil as that which befell Adam.

“On the other hand, when It is not expressed, the creature still has the obligation to pray that I make known My Will in his actions, if inside his acts there is an interest for good and My pure glory. But if this is not expressed the evil is not as grave, and it is easier to find a remedy. I do this to each creature to test their faithfulness, and also to be assured of the love they say they have for Me. Who is there who does not want to be sure of the authority that they have, such that they arrive at making a contract? Who is there who doesn't want to be sure of the faithfulness of a friend, or of the true loyalty of a servant? So to be sure, I make known that I want small sacrifices which will bring all goods, along with holiness, and We will realize the purpose for which they were created. Instead, if they are reluctant, everything will be upset in them, and all evils will fall upon them. But not doing My Will is always an evil more or less evil according to the gratitude, for It that [they] possess.”

How the Divine Will is balanced. How in creation God placed all the relationships between man and created things. Example of a city; the illuminated cloud.

My poor condition becomes only more painful because of the painful privations of my sweet Jesus. What a hard martyrdom and death it is to be without the sweet and dear hope of finding, once again (my) life. The suffering of having lost Him dazes and petrifies me, and extends over my poor soul an evil dew which, even when exposed to the rays of such acute sorrow, instead of vitalizing only locks me up; it takes away my vital fluids, just as freezing takes away the vital fluids from plants. If it doesn't make me die, it withers me and removes the most beautiful of lives. Oh how much better would death be - it would be the most beautiful of celebrations because I would find He whom I love and who would heal all of my wounds. Oh, the deprivation of my Highest Good! Jesus, how sorrowful and cruel You are, so I call all to cry my hard fate: I call Heaven with its immensity to cry for He whom I long for. I call the stars with their sparkling twinkle to cry with me, so that their cry will move Jesus' feet in my direction so that I no longer suffer. I call the sun, so that its light be converted into tears and its heat into inflamed darts to assault Jesus and tell Him: 'Hurry, can't you see that she cannot go on, and can't you see that we are all pouring out our tears for she who loves you so much; and since her will is one with ours, we are compelled to all cry together with her?'

I call all creation to feel the sorrow and to cry together with me at such an enormous pain as (suffering Your absence), which is incalculable and without measure; who would not think of crying? Oh, how I would like to convert all evil whisperings into pleading voices to call you, the darting of fish to deafen you. I would like to change the singing of the birds into sighs to soften you, Jesus. Oh Jesus, how much you make me suffer; how much Your love costs me!

But as I was unbosoming my sorrow my sweet Life moved within me and said to me:

“My daughter, I am here, do not fear. If you [only] knew how much I suffer in seeing you hurting for My sake. I feel more pain for your suffering than I feel for [those of] all the other creatures united together, because your pains are the pains of Our daughter, member of Our celestial family, and I feel them much more than if they were Mine. When Our Will is within the creature, everything is rendered common and inseparable from Us.”

And I, hearing that and suffering as I was, said that that was true in words, but it did not seem true with the facts. How is it that You make me go into spasms to make You return and the longer You have been away the longer it takes for You to return? You make it so impossible to find You, that I no longer know either what to do, or to who else I may turn. Not even in Your Will am I able to trace You, because It is immense and You hide Yourself in Its immensity; I lose track of your steps and lose you. So it is one thing to say this, but where are the facts? If You have suffered so much for my pains, You would prove [this] with facts by being kind enough to come to she who knows no other love, or life, if not Yours.

And Jesus, pulling me close to Himself and very moved, added:

“Poor daughter, have courage. You do not yet entirely know what it means to live in My Will. It possesses the perfect balance, and all the attributes are in highest concordance - one is never inferior to another. And when it is necessary to punish the people for their many sins, My Justice demands these voids when you are deprived of Me, so that It may balance Itself by sending the chastisements which the people merit. Thus (My Justice) sets you aside in My Life, and in My Will it runs its course. How many times did My groaning Humanity not find itself facing these impediments from My Justice, and yet I had to concede out of love for the balance of My Will? Would you want My Will to have you within It just to place in imbalance the order of my attributes? No, no My daughter, let My Justice make Its way, and your Jesus will be as before with you. Didn’t you know that in My Will you must undergo that which My Humanity did, which was so demanding and unyielding with Me because of the Redemption? So for you It has become demanding and unyielding because of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat. That is the reason why My Humanity hides itself, because My Justice wants to make its way and maintain its balance.”

Blessed Jesus became silent, and then He added:

“My daughter, in putting forth creation, My Will placed all creatures in bonds of union in such a way that everything was in relation among them. Each thing possessed its electric line of communication, one thing linked to another. Man created as many electric lines for as many created things as existed, because, being king of all, it was right and necessary that he be in communication with all of creation, so that he might possess the dominion of it. Now as he withdrew from the Divine Will, not even the first line of communication was left. Like a city, if the primary line which communicates the electric light is broken, it remains dark. Even if other electric lines exist, they no longer have the virtue of giving light to all the city because the source from which the light came has become dark; the source can no longer provide light, and the electric lines can no longer receive it. So (Adam) remained as a darkened city; his relations, his electric lines of communication no longer functioned. The source of light had retreated from him, because he himself had broken off communications, and was left as a rejected king, dethroned and without dominion. Every light of his city was turned off, and he was wrapped in the darkness of his own will.

“My Will possessed by the soul symbolizes a city full of light, which has means of communication for all the parts of the world. Its communications extend even to the sea, the sun, the stars, and the sky. Provisions of all kinds from all parts (of the world) reach this city, such that it is the most provided of all, and by means of the communications it is the most known, both by Heaven and by earth; all things tend toward it, and it is the most loved. It is just the opposite for whoever does not possess my Will; he lives with great effort, [and] suffers so much hunger that only crumbs are given to him out of pity. Often he is overrun by enemies, he suffers obscurity, and lives in the most squalid misery.”

After that, feeling oppressed for the privation of my sweet Jesus - together with my other pains - I was offering it all in His adorable Volition to obtain the triumph of His Kingdom. As I was doing this, I looked at the sky full of white and luminous clouds, and my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, said:

“My daughter, look at them, see how beautiful those clouds are, how they cover the skies and form such a beautiful adornment in the blue vaults. Who is it that has changed the dimness and driven away the darkness and black shadows from within those clouds, and transformed them into white and radiant clouds? The sun, investing them with its light, made them lose their dimness and has transformed them into clouds of light. Yes, they are clouds, but, not clouds that give darkness and obscure the earth, but clouds that give light. Before the - sun invested them it seemed that they made fun of the skies with their obscurity by taking away the beauty from the blue, but now they are their honor and form a beautiful adornment.

“Now, my daughter, the pains, the mortifications, my privations, the sorrowful inconstancies, are like clouds that to the soul give darkness. But if the soul lets all flow in My Will, more than sun It invests and converts them into clouds of resplendent light, in such a way as to form the most beautiful ornament for the heaven of the soul. In My Will everything loses the obscure part which oppresses and which seems to make fun of the poor creature; everything serves to give light and adorn her with beautiful brightness. I then go about repeating to all of Heaven: ‘Look at her and see how beautiful is the daughter of My Will, adorned with these white and shining clouds. She is nourished by light, and My Volition - investing her with My light - converts her into the most resplendent light.’”

How our Lord came to earth to suffer upon the earth all the evils that the human will had done.
How Jesus’ word is life.

I was thinking about the Divine Will and the evils of the human volition, and my beloved Jesus, all afflicted, said to me:

“My daughter, all that which I suffered in my Humanity was nothing other than all the evil that the human will had produced for the poor creature. It formed the prison [and] took away his freedom to be able to move about in his God, in the heavens, wherever he wanted; it incapacitated him in doing good; it took away his light; and it encircled him with dense darkness. And I came to earth and enclosed myself in the prison of the womb of my dear Mamma, and even though she was holy, it cannot be denied that that prison was the most restrictive prison that could exist in the world. I could neither reach out with my hand, nor move a foot; I could not take a step. There was not even enough space to open my eyes.

“The human will had done all that to the creature, and I, from the beginning of my conception, came to suffer the pain which (the human will) had given, to break down the prison of the human will, and to restore to man that which he had lost. I wanted to be born in a stall and suffer the most extreme poverty, (because) the human volition had formed more than a stall for the poor creature, while the passions had formed manure in their souls. (The human will), blowing, had left them - more than the wind - immobilized by an internal cold which influenced even their nature, taking away not only their earthly happiness, but making them experience hunger and poverty - not only in the soul, but also in their body. And I wanted to suffer the freezing cold, extreme poverty, the smell of manure which was in the stall. Seeing the two animals close by gave Me the sorrow that the human will had almost converted into beasts Our most beautiful work, Our dear gem, Our dear image, which was poor man. There was no pain which I suffered that did not have the human will as its beginning, and I subjected Myself to everything so as to rehabilitate it again in the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat.

In My Passion I wanted to suffer being stripped in the flagellation and placed nude on the cross, being torn apart in such a horrible way that My bones could even be counted -[I wanted to suffer] all amid the confusion, abandonment, and unspeakable bitternesses. All of that was nothing other than the fruit of the human volition which had stripped (the creature) of all goods, and with its poisonous breath had covered him with confusion and humiliations to the point of transforming him in a horrible way and making him the object of scorn for all his enemies. Daughter, if you want to know all the evils that the human will has done, study well My own Life. Count one by one all My pains, and you will read the black characters of all the evils, you will read the evil history of the human will, you will experience such horrors in reading it, that you would prefer to die rather than allow even one syllable of it to enter into you.”

After that Jesus became silent, and He was very meditative, full of thought and affliction. He looked about Him and then He looked off, as if He wanted to surmise the dispositions of creatures. Not seeing them disposed He continued His profound silence.

Therefore I had to pass several days of privation as if He no longer lived in me. Then, as a rising sun, I began to feel that He was moving in my interior, and He said to me:

“My daughter, whenever I speak I put forth a life, which is the greatest of gifts, and I must see if there is the disposition on the part of the creature to receive this Life of Mine; and if I don’t see it, I am constrained to keep silent, because there is no place to put this great gift. That is why many times I do not speak, because that which regards My Divine Fiat is not only for you, but will serve other creatures. At the most It will form Its capital in you, so that It may be transmitted for the good of others. Thus while I am silent you pray that the Kingdom of My Will be known, and you suffer because you see yourself deprived of Me, your Life. To live without Life is the greatest martyrdom; these pains and these prayers mature the gift, and as they make Me open My mouth to put forth new life regarding My Divine Will, they dispose the creature to receive It. These pains are more than rays of sun that mature the fields, the fruit, the flowers; therefore all is necessary - silence, pain, prayer for the decorum of the manifestations of My Will.”

How Our Lord made the deposit of His Sacramental Life in the Heart of the Most Holy Virgin. The great good that a life animated by the Divine Will can do. How the Most Holy Virgin found in Her sorrows the strength of the Divine Will.

I was doing the hour (in my rounds) when Jesus instituted the Most Holy Eucharist and Jesus, moving in my interior, said to me:

“My daughter, when I do an act, I first look to see if there is at least one creature where I can place the deposit of My act - someone who will take the good that I do to keep it as a treasure and well guarded.

“Now, when I instituted the Most Holy Sacrament, I searched for this creature - and my Queen Mother offered Herself to be the recipient of My act and the deposit of this great gift, saying: ‘My Son, if I offered You My Womb and all My being in Your Conception to keep You guarded and defended, now I offer My Maternal Heart to receive this great deposit. I place around Your Sacramental Life My affections, My heartbeats, My love, My thoughts, all that I am, to keep You defended, accompanied, loved, [and] to make reparation. I take the responsibility to recompense You with the gift which You [give]. Trust Your Mother, and I will take care of defending Your Sacramental Life, because You have made Me Queen of all creation, I have the right to gather around You all the light of the sun as homage and adoration. The stars, the sky, the sea, all the inhabitants of the air, I place them all around You to give You love and glory.’

“Having been assured of where I could put this great deposit of My Sacramental Life, and placing My trust in My Mother who had given Me complete proof of Her fidelity, I instituted the Most Holy Sacrament. She was the only worthy creature who could oversee, defend, and make reparation to My act. Do you see, therefore, that when creatures receive Me, I come into them together with the acts of My inseparable Mother, and only because of this am I able to endure My Sacramental Life. Thus it is necessary that I first choose a creature when I want to do a great work worthy of Myself - first, so as to have a place where to put My gift; and secondly, so that I may be reciprocated in it.

“Even in the natural order it is done in this manner. If a farmer wants to plant seed, he doesn’t throw it in the middle of the street, but seeks some small piece of earth, works it, forms the furrow, and then plants the seed. And to be sure of his success, he covers the seed with earth, waiting anxiously for the harvest - that which he receives from his work and from the seed which he entrusted to the earth.

“Another person who wants to make a beautiful object first prepares the prime materials, [and] the place where [he will] put it, and then he forms it. So I have done with you: I chose you, I prepared you, and then I entrusted to you the great gift of the manifestations of My Will. And as I entrusted to My beloved Mother the lot of My Sacramental Life, so I wanted to have faith in you, entrusting to you the destiny of the Kingdom of My Will.”

I continued to think about all that which my loving Good had done and suffered in the course of His Life, and He continued:

“My daughter, My Life was very brief here on earth, and the major part of it I lived unnoticed. But despite the fact that it was brief, how much good did I not do because My Humanity was animated by a Divine Will? All the Church depends upon My Life, and drinks until it is satiated upon My doctrine; each of My words is a fountain which speaks to each Christian; each of My examples is more than sun which heats, gives fruitfulness, and matures the greatest sanctities. If one desired to compare all the saints, all the good souls, all their pains and heroic acts, and place them in front of My very brief Life, it would always result in small flames before the great sun. And because the Divine Will reigned in Me, all the pains, humiliations, contrasting confusions, and accusations which

My enemies directed to Me in the course of My Life and of My Passion, all served for their contempt and greater confusion. Because there was a Divine Will in Me, it happened as it does with the sun: it seems that the clouds, as they reach down low in the air - and in spite of the sun - want to obscure the surface of the earth by momentarily taking away the brightness of the solar light. But the sun laughs at the clouds, because they cannot have perennial life in the air, and their life is, fleeting; it only takes a small wind to make them dissipate. The sun is always triumphant in its totality of light which dominates and fills all the earth.

“So it was with Me: all that which My enemies did to Me, and even My very death, were as so many clouds which covered My Humanity. But the sun of My Divinity they were not allowed to touch, and at the slightest movement of the wind of the power of My Divine Will, the clouds dispersed, and before [this] glorious and triumphantly resurrected sun, My enemies remained more disdained than before.

“My daughter, in the soul where My Will reigns with all its fullness, the minutes of life are centuries and centuries of fullness of all goods; and where It doesn’t reign, the soul contains barely minutes of good. And if the soul where My Volition reigns ever suffers humiliations, contrasts, and pains, these are like clouds which the wind of the Divine Fiat has discharged over those people with their humiliation that they have dared to touch the carrier of my Eternal Volition.

After that I was thinking about the sorrow of my Mamma when, suffering and pierced to the Heart, She separated from Jesus, leaving Him dead in the sepulcher. I thought to myself: “How can it be possible that she had such strength to leave Him? It is true that he was dead, but it was still the body of Jesus. How is it that her Maternal love did not consume Her rather than allow her to take [a] step alone away from that extinguished body? What heroism, what strength!”

But as I was thinking this, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior and said to me:

“My daughter, do you want to know how My Mamma had the strength to leave Me? All the secret of Her strength lies in My Will reigning in Her. She lived of Divine, and not human will, so She contained an immeasurable strength. Actually, you must know that when My pierced Mamma left Me in the sepulcher, My Will kept her immersed in two immense seas: one of sorrow, and the other a sea of the vastest joys and heavenly bliss. While the sea of sorrow gave Her all martyrdoms, the sea of joy gave Her all contentments; and this single, beautiful soul followed Me into Abraham’s bosom (limbo) to be present at the celebration which had been prepared for Me by the Patriarchs, the Prophets, Her father and mother, [and] Our dear St. Joseph. Limbo became Paradise with My presence, and I could not resist allowing She who had been inseparable in My pains to participate in this first celebration of creatures. Her joy was so great that She had the strength to separate Herself from My body, retiring and waiting for My Resurrection as the completion of the Redemption. Joy sustained Her in Her sorrow, and the sorrow sustained Her in Her joy. Whoever possesses My Volition can lack neither strength, nor power, nor joy, but has everything at his disposition. Have you not experienced, when you are deprived of My presence and feel yourself consumed (in sorrow), how the light of the Divine Fiat forms Its sea of happiness and gives you life?”

The Redemption of Our Lord gave the right of resurrection to creatures. The difference that passes between who operates in the Divine Volition and who operates outside of It.

I was following the Holy Divine Volition in the act of raising our glorious and triumphant Lord from the sepulcher, and my lovable Jesus, coming out from inside of me, said:

“My daughter, in being raised up My Humanity gave the right to all creatures to be raised up into glory and into Eternal bliss not only in their souls, but also in their bodies. Sin had taken away the rights of the creatures to be raised up, but My Humanity, with its resurrection, restored this right to them, (My Humanity) enclosed within itself the seed of the resurrection of everyone, and in virtue of this seed being in Me, It gave to all the good of being able to rise up from the dead. Whoever does the first act must keep within himself this virtue of enclosing in himself all the other acts which the other creatures must do so that, in virtue of that first act, the others may imitate him and do the same act. How much good did the resurrection of my Humanity not bring, giving to all the right to rise up! For man - because he had withdrawn from My Will - glory, happiness, and honors - everything had failed for him. He had broken the binding link which joined him with God, which gave him all the rights of his Creator. And My Humanity, by rising up, brought together these links of union, restoring to man his lost rights, and giving him the virtue to rise up.

“All glory and all honor is of My Will. If I had not risen up, no one would be able to rise up. With the prime act comes the succession of acts which are similar to the first. See what is the power of a prime act: My Queen Mother made the prime act in conceiving Me. To be able to conceive Me, the Eternal Word, She enclosed within Herself all the acts of creatures, and offered them back up to Her Creator in such a way that She could say to Him: ‘It is I who love You, adore You, satisfy You for everyone.’ Thus by finding everyone in My Mamma, and notwithstanding My conception was only once, I could give Myself to everyone as life of each creature.

“So, daughter, by you doing your prime acts in My Will, other creatures receive the right to enter into It and to repeat your acts so that they may receive the same effects. How necessary it is that just one alone do the prime act, because this serves to open the door and to prepare the prime material to form the model which gives life to that act. When the prime act has been done it makes it much easier for the others to imitate it.

“This also happens in the lowly world. Whoever is the first to form an object must work more, must sacrifice himself more to prepare all the materials that are needed. He must undergo many tests, and when the first is done, not only do the others acquire the right to imitate it, but it is much easier to repeat it. Yet all the glory belongs to whoever did the first, because if it had not been for the first act, the others would never come into existence. Therefore, be attentive in forming your prime acts if you want the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat to come and reign upon the earth.”

After that I was fusing myself in the Holy Divine Will, recalling all the acts of creatures to raise them up in It, and my sweet Jesus said to me:

“My daughter, what [a] great difference there is between an act done in My Will and an act - even a good one - done outside of It. In the first act there is a Divine Life flowing through it, and this life fills Heaven and earth, and that act receives the value of a Divine Life. In the second there runs the act of a human life, and this is limited, restricted, and many times its value finishes when the act is finished. If there is value in this act, it is human value, subject to perishing.”

How in creation there are ornaments of Divine Works; the incapacity to comprehend it. The great pleasure in the creation of man.

Continuing my usual state, my sweet Jesus made Himself be seen as a Baby all afflicted, and his despondency was such that it seemed as in he felt Himself dying. I embraced Him close to my heart, I kissed Him several times; who knows what I would not have done to uplift Him? And sighing, Jesus said to me:

“My daughter, see how beautiful all of creation is: what fascination of light, what enchantment of varieties, what rare beauty! Yet these are none other than the ornaments of our Divine Being. If such are our adornments, our Being surpasses in an unfathomable way our own ornaments, [and] the creature is incapable of understanding the incomprehensibility of our own Being.

“The eye is incapable of enclosing within itself all the vastness of the light of the sun, but [the sun] pours its light into the eye for as much as it can contain. However, to enclose within [the eye] the measure of the length and breadth of wherever the light extends itself is impossible. The sun is [similar] to Our Being, [and the eye] to human capacity; it is always Our adornments that the creature sees and experiences: he sees the sun, its light touches him and makes its warmth felt; he sees the immensity of the waters of the sea; he sees the blue expanse of the sky with many stars. But who can say of what the light is formed? How much light do (the Heavens) contain? How much water does the sea contain? How many stars are there, and of what is the blue vault of Heaven made? Man doesn’t know how to respond in the least, he just sees and enjoys all those things; he is the first among the ignorant ones in arithmetic, weights, and measures.

“If it is that way with our ornaments, much more is it with our Divine Being. But you must know that all of creation, and each created thing, gives a lesson to man. They all narrate Our Divine qualities, and each thing gives a lesson about the quality that it contains: the sun gives a lesson in light, and teaches that to be light it is necessary to be pure, stripped of every material thing. Light always contains heat united to it - you cannot detach the light from the heat - so if you want to be light you must love only your Creator, and this will bring to you, like the sun, the fecundity of good. The sky gives you a lesson about My Celestial Fatherland, it calls you continuously to your Creator, it gives you a lesson of detaching yourself from that which is of the earth, [and gives you a lesson] on the heights of holiness which you must reach. (It teaches you that) you must adorn yourself, with all the Divine virtues more than the stars. Each thing gives a lesson and calls man to reflect himself in them, to copy and imitate them. I did not create My ornaments just to make them be seen, but so that by imitating them man could be adorned. Yet who pays attention and listens to so many lessons? Almost no one!”

And all afflicted, he became silent.

Then I followed the Supreme Volition in the act of the Divine Being creating man, so that I too could, together with my first father Adam, love Him with that love with which he loved Him in the first instant of his creation. I wanted to receive that Divine Breath, that outpouring of love, to give it again to My Creator.

But as I was thinking that, my sweet Jesus, all full of pleasure, said to me:

“My daughter, for whoever lives in My Will there are no acts of Our’s that cannot be present. There are no acts of Our’s which we have put forth that cannot be received; so now (I give) to you My Breath, and Our outpouring of love. How great was Our pleasure in this first act of man’s creation. We had created Heaven and earth, but We felt nothing new in Ourselves. Yet in creating man, it was much different. One was the will which was created - this free will and in it we enclosed Our own (Will), placing It as in a bank to earn interest in the love, glory, and adoration that was due to us. Oh how love overflowed in us, how we trembled with joy in putting, forth this free will so that we could hear it said to us: ‘I love you.’ And when man, full of that which was Ours, let burst forth from his breast his first word ‘I love you,’ Our pleasure was immense, because it was as if he returned to Us the interest of all the goods that we had placed in him. This free will which We created was where We deposited the capital of a Divine Will, and We were satisfied if We could - receive a small interest, without ever again claiming the capital. So the fall of man was a great sorrow for Us, because he refused Our capital so [that] he would not have to pay the small interest. His bank was left empty, and since his enemy had made a deal with him, he filled man with passions and miseries - and the poor thing was left a failure.

“Now, My daughter, the act of man’s creation was a solemn act and gave Us the greatest satisfaction, and so We call and want you in this act to repeat the solemnity of [this] act, putting in your will the great capital which is Ours, and as We do this Our love overflows and trembles with joy to Our greatest pleasure, because We see Our intention realized. You certainly will not deny giving the small interest, you will not reject Our capital - tell Us you won’t. Every day We will take reckoning: I will call you to be present in that prime act when We created this free will so that you can give Me the interest, and I will see if I can add something else to My capital.”

My mind lost itself in the Divine Fiat, and I thought to myself: “Oh, how I would like to live in that prime act of creation, in that Divine outpouring of intense love that was poured upon the first creature when he was created. How I would like to receive that Omnipotent Breath to be able to re-give to my Creator all that love and all that glory that He had established that the creature should receive.”

But as I was thinking that my sweet Jesus, pulling me close to Himself, said:

“My daughter, this is precisely the reason why I often come to you, even to the point that it might appear strange to some and out of My usual way of dealing with a soul - because there is hardly another to whom I have come to so very often. All [this] is to reorder My first act, of the way that I created the creature. So I return to you and I tarry, more than a most loving father would with his daughter. How many times have I filled you with My Breath to the point of [your] not being able to any longer contain My Omnipotent Exhalation? I poured forth in you My repressed love, even to the point of filling your soul to the very brim. All this was nothing other than the renewal of the solemn act of creation. I wanted to feel that great satisfaction as when I created man, and so I come to you not only to renew it, but to reorder the order, harmony, and love between Creator and creature, just in the way as he was created. In the beginning of man's creation there was no distance between him and Me, there was only familiarity; and he had only to call Me and I was there. I loved him as a son, and as a son I felt myself so inclined toward him that I could not help but go and remain with him very often. With you I am renewing the beginning of creation, so be attentive to receive such a great good."

General upheaval in reordering the Kingdom of the Fiat. The state of Divine Love and how creation still lasts. How all of creation was centered on the soul.

I felt embittered for the privation of my sweet Jesus and while I longed for his return He came out from my interior, but so afflicted that he looked pitiful, and I said to Him: "But tell me, what is wrong with You that You are so afflicted?"

And Jesus responded:

"Ah! My daughter, grave things must come down so that a Kingdom, a house, may be reordered. First there is a general upheaval, and many things perish; some lose, others gain, things become unsettled, the fatigue is increased, and many things suffer so that things might be reordered and renewed to give the new form to the kingdom or to the house. One suffers more and works more if things must be destroyed before they can be built - much more so than if things must only be built. So it will happen in the re-edification of the Kingdom of My Will. How much renovation is required - it is necessary to overturn everything, to bring down and destroy human beings, unsettle the earth, the sea, the air, the wind, the water, the fire, so that all things go to work to renew the face of the earth, to bring the order of the new Kingdom of My Divine Will among creatures. So many grave things will happen, and as I see this I look at the upheaval and I feel afflicted. If I look beyond and see the order and My new Kingdom re-edified, I pass from a profound sadness to a joy so great that you cannot understand. This is the reason why you see Me now sad and now with the joy of My Celestial Fatherland."

I felt depressed because of this upheaval that Jesus had spoken to me about, the weighty things were terrifying, hearing about turmoil, revolutions and wars in various parts of the world. Oh how my poor heart moaned, and to lift my spirits, Jesus took me in His arms, He held me very tightly to His Most Holy Heart, and said to me:

"My daughter, let's look beyond (these things) so that we may be consoled. I want things to return as they were in the beginning of creation, which was none other than an outpouring of love. This overflowing of love still lasts, because that which We do once We do forever - it never is subject to interruption. In Us there is never the fatigue of repeating an act; that which We do one time We enjoy doing always.

“This is the way God works: to do an act which lasts for centuries and centuries, and even for all eternity, because Our outpouring of love, [and] Our breath springs forth continuously from Our Divine Womb, and flows to give the breath of life to the generation of creatures. Thus Our outpouring of love, hovering in all of creation, invests heaven and earth, sun and sea, wind and water, and runs towards the creature. If it were not that way, the heavens would draw up, the stars would be lost, the sun would lack light, water would be lacking, and the earth would produce neither plants nor fruit because they would lack the life of Our love which hovers in all things; they would withdraw from Our source from which they come. And if the generations ever came to lack Our Breath they would be finished, because creatures are nothing other than a spark which Our Breath sends to make the growing generations fruitful.

“Now creatures take [what] material from created things, and leave the life of love, which hovers suspended in everything, unable to give of itself. It happens as when one goes onto a flowered yard, or into a park where there are trees laden with precious fruit. If one only looks at the flower and doesn’t gather it, he doesn’t receive the pleasure and the life of the flower’s perfume; if he looks at the fruit and doesn’t take it from the tree to eat it, he will neither enjoy nor receive the life of the fruit.

“So it is with all of creation. Man looks at it, but doesn’t receive the life of love which God placed in all created things - because man doesn’t use his will, nor opens his heart, to receive this outpouring of the continuous love of his Creator. But in spite of that, Our outpouring of love is not arrested, Our Regenerating Breath is always in act and in motion, and We expect the Kingdom of Our Divine Fiat so that Our hovering love can come down among the creatures. As they receive Our Divine Life, the creatures will be formed; and their outpouring of love will be given to He from whom they receive it.

“Therefore, My daughter, all of creation is centered in you. I look at you from the starried heavens, and I send you this outpouring of love; I look at you from the sun, and breathing upon you I send you My Divine Life; I look at you from the sea and in its foaming and impetuous waves I send you My Love which, because it is contained, I let fall impetuously like a sea upon you; I look at you from the wind and I pour upon you My commanding, purifying, and warming love. There is no place or created thing from which I do not look at you to pour upon you My Love, because as My Will is in you, you draw Me from all directions to look at you, and It enlarges your capacity to receive My continuous outpouring of love. Wherever My Divine Will reigns I can give everything, centralize everything - and then comes the competition between Creator and creature: I in giving and she in receiving. I give to whoever gives to Me, and she to whom I give, gives it back to Me in the most surprising ways. Therefore I want you always in my Volition so that I can always be in a contest - you with Me, and I with you.”

The glories of the unity of the Divine Will, and how working in It is always the Divine way. Work and sacrifices that Jesus does in the soul to form the Kingdom of the Fiat.

I was making my rounds in creation to follow the acts of the Divine Will in all created things, and my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, said to me:

“My daughter, one was My Will which came forth in creation, but It diffused and multiplied Itself in each created thing, and the soul who makes her rounds in creation to follow Its acts and embrace them all together, gathers the Divine Will diffused in all things and makes it one, and she gives Me the glory of Its unity, multiplied and bilocated in so many things. It is (a great thing), My daughter, that the smallness of the creature reunites all together My Will bilocated and multiplied in so many things so as to tell Me: ‘One is the glory, honor, and love that I want to give You, because my act contains all, it is perfect and worthy only of You. One was the Will that came forth from You, and One I want to give You.’ And then, making use of Its loving strategies, you prod It again and you give Me the glory of the Supreme Fiat multiplied and bilocated in all things. As I let her (the soul) do all these things, I delight and take My enjoyment from her loving strategies, because, being in My Will she is My house and can do nothing other than that which belongs to the Celestial family. Her doing is always the Divine way of doing; only now she can give Me pleasure, love, and perfect glory.”

After that I felt oppressed, for Jesus’ privations have become longer. I felt all the weight of my long exile, and the sorrow of my homeland so far away. A profound sadness invaded my poor soul, and my loving Jesus, moving in my interior, said to me:

“My daughter, we must both have patience and think of the work of forming the Kingdom of the Divine Will, because no one knows that which we are doing - the sacrifices that are required, the continuous acts, the prayers that are necessary to form and obtain such a good. No one takes part in our sacrifices, no one helps us to form this Kingdom that will bring them so much good. And while they pay no attention to us they are concerned only about enjoying their miserable life, without even disposing themselves to receive the good that we are preparing. Oh, if creatures could see that which passes in the secret of our hearts, how they would remain surprised with wonder! This is how it was when my Mamma and I were on earth, between Her and I we were preparing the Kingdom of the Redemption, all the remedies that were necessary so that everyone could find salvation. We were spared neither in sacrifices, nor work, nor life, nor prayer, and while We were concerned with thinking about everybody, of giving life to all, no one thought about us, no one knew what we were doing. My Celestial Mamma was the Deposit of the Kingdom of the Redemption, and so She took part in all the sacrifices, in all Our sorrows. Oh how it pained the heart to see that while Mother and Son consumed themselves in pain and love for everyone, to form all possible and imaginable remedies so that they might be healed and brought to salvation, they not only did not think about Us, but they offended Us, despised Us, and others even plotted against My life from the moment of My birth.

“This is what I am repeating with you, My daughter, to form the Kingdom of My Divine Fiat. The world takes from us, despite the fact that it doesn’t know us, and only My assisting Minister knows what we are doing, but [man] doesn’t take part either in our sacrifices or in our work. We are alone, so have patience in this long work; the more we work the more we will enjoy the fruit of this Celestial Kingdom.”

How the soul who does the Divine Will is always Heaven, and how she is never exhausted.

The privations of my sweet Jesus torment me, weaken me, and my poor soul feels as if it has been exposed to a burning sun, which is the Divine Volition; how it makes me feel blurry and throws me into misery, but even if I felt [myself being baked], I am constrained by a supreme force to remain fixed in these rays of the Sun of the Divine Fiat, without being able to move, without He who, sprinkling water upon me, (would) render these rays less burning and make some leaf of grass peek through within my bludgeoned heart. How bad I feel [without] Jesus; everything has changed in me. Only the Divine Volition is left as my only inheritance, because It can not be taken away from me by anyone, not even Jesus; It alone is my life, my existence, my everything. Everything else is finished, everyone has left me and I have no one to turn to - neither in Heaven, nor on earth.

But while I was venting my sorrow, my loving Good - He who gives me death and gives me life, who makes my poor existence so unhappy, and He who makes me happy - moved in my interior, saying to me:

“My daughter the sky is always the sky, it never changes and never moves, and even with the countless times the clouds overshadow it by extending themselves and covering the beautiful blue of the sky, they cannot touch it. They are so low in the air that there remains a great distance between the heavens and the cloud, so the sky never loses its beauty, the adornment of the stars, and its blue color on account of the clouds; it is untouchable by all. If some change occurs, it is upon the low earth; it is the human eye that, instead of seeing the heavens, sees the clouds and the gray sky.

“Such is the soul who lives in My Will; she is more than sky. My Will extends Itself within the soul more than the blue heavens full of stars, and firm and irremovable It remains in Its reigning place and dominates everything with such majesty [as] to render even the smallest acts of the creature, by virtue of Its light, more than the stars and brilliant sun. So the pains and My privations are as the clouds formed in the lowness of the human nature, and while it seems that they are overshadowing, the Heaven of My Will remains untouchable, and Its Sun that radiates in the soul throws forth with greater force Its burning rays, such that you feel yourself as overshadowed. But it is all superficial, and in the lowliness of your human nature; in your soul the Heavens of the Divine Fiat undergo no change. Who could ever touch My Will? No one. It is immovable, not subject to disintegration, and where It reigns It forms Its sojourn of light, peace, and immutability. So do not be afraid, it only takes a small wind to disperse the clouds that invest your human nature and remove the shadows that apparently occupy your soul.”

And I replied: “My Jesus, how You have changed! It seems that You no longer want to speak to me about your Divine Volition.”

“My daughter, My Will never exhausts Itself If I do not speak to you about It, all of creation will speak to you. Even the stones will change into voices to speak to you; the heavens, the sun, the sea, all creation has much to say about My Eternal Volition, because being full of Its Life, all things have a great deal to say about the Life of My Will, which they possess. So you must pay attention, because if you look at or touch something, you will hear new lessons about My Will.”

How the Divine Will is immense, and everything It does carries the seal of the Divine Will.

Even though I feel hard martyrdom in the privations of my sweet Jesus, I abandon myself in the arms of the Supreme Volition as Its little daughter that grows while seated upon Its knee and attached to Its breast, to live from Its life and [be formed] into Its likeness.

My sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, said to me:

“My daughter, My Will is immense, and all that which can come forth from It carries the seal of Its immensity. From one single word came forth the immensity of the heavens with all its stars; from one single word came forth the sun with the immensity of its light, and so it was with many other things. Now to bring forth this immensity of light and the expanse of heavens, I had to first create the place where I could put these immensities of light and heavens. Now when My Will wants to speak, It first sees if there is the space where It can place the great gift of Its word, which might be another - and even greater - heaven, sun, or sea. Now you understand why many times My Will is silent, because It lacks the space in the creature where It can deposit the great gift of the immensity of Its word. And to be able to speak, It first bilocates Its Will, and then speaks; My Will Itself deposits Its immense gifts within (the space in the creature). This was the reason why, in creating man, We gave our greatest gift, the richest and most precious inheritance: My Will as depository in him, enabling Us to tell him the surprises of Our immense gifts (that are contained) in Our Fiat. As Our bilocated Will was rejected, We no longer found the space to be able to deposit in him the great gift of Our creative word, and so he remained poor and with all the miseries of the human will.

“You can see that, of all that which occurred within My Humanity the greatest miracle was containing the whole immensity of My Divine Will within it (My Humanity). The miracles which I did may be called nothing in front of this one, and even more so since it was natural in Me to be able to give life so that they (creatures) could be resurrected - to give sight to the blind, speech to those who could not speak, and all the rest of the miraculous works I accomplished -because it was in My nature to give as many goods as I wanted. It was certainly a miracle for those who received these goods, but for Me the greatest miracle was to constrain in Myself My Divinity, the immensity of My Will, Its interminable light, Its beauty and unreachable sanctity. This was the prodigy of prodigies that only a God could do. Therefore, no matter how much I can give to a creature, it will always be giving little as compared to My giving the great gift of My Will, because in It there will be seen new heavens, more resplendent suns, unheard - of things, and surprises never before seen. Heavens and earth tremble and kneel before a soul who possesses the great gift of my Will, and with reason, because they see come forth from the soul the virtue and the vivifying and creative force which conserves them in the new life created by God. Oh Power of My Will, if they knew You how ambitious they would be for your great Gift. How they would give their life to have You!”

After that I was following my acts in the Divine Will, and my sweet Jesus added:

“My daughter, whoever lives in My Will has within herself this same Divine Will dominating and reigning, [and] the soul is in possession (of It), has It within her power; and while she possesses the Divine Volition, she has in her power Its strength, sanctity, light, and Its goods. The Divine Volition possesses the soul, and keeping her within Its Power, the human weaknesses, passions, miseries, and the human will are under the immovable and holy Power of the Supreme Will; and before this Power these things feel the loss of their life. Thus weakness feels won over by the irresistible force of the Divine Fiat, darkness feels itself won over by the light, miseries by Its infinite riches, the passions by Its virtues, the human will by the Divine. What difference (there is) between who lives in My Will and who only does My Will! The first possesses It, and has It as her disposition; the second is beneath It and receives It according to the dispositions of the soul - and from possessing It to merely receiving It, there is the same distance as between Heaven and earth. The distance is similar to someone who possesses great riches versus someone who receives that which is of absolute necessity day by day. Therefore whoever does My Will and does not live in It is constrained to feel the weaknesses, the passions, and all the rags and miseries that are part and parcel of the human will.

“Such was Adam’s condition before he withdrew from the Divine Will. It (the Divine Will) was given to him by his Creator as the greatest of gifts because It contains all goods together. Adam possessed It, dominated over It, and made himself the supporter of this Divine Will, because God Himself had given him the right to rule over It. Thus he was lord of the power, light, sanctity, and happiness of this Eternal Fiat. But when he withdrew from the Divine Will, Adam lost the possession and dominion - and was reduced to not possessing as his own, but only receiving the effects of My Will according to his dispositions. And whoever finds himself in the condition of only receiving is always poor, never rich, because the rich possess and are not forced to receive, and are in a position to be able to give some of their own goods to others.”

As our Lord did with forming the Redemption that he might have freed us from all the chastisements thus is (it for) who must form the kingdom of the Divine Fiat. How a power impedes (her) dying. How he calls souls to form the laws to govern the world.

I felt oppressed not only for the privation of my sweet Jesus, but for the continued threats of serious chastisements, of nearing wars and revolutions, with infernal ways that would stir horror in the soul. Oh God what pain. To be constrained by a Supreme Power to see these evils - the blindness of the heads of nations that want the destruction of peoples - and to see my impotence to confront Divine Justice with my sufferings to be able to save the peoples from so many evils. Thus I was feeling the weight of living, and ardently longed for the Celestial Fatherland, seeing that I could no longer stop the course of so many evils with my sufferings.

And my loving Jesus, moving in my interior, said to me:

“My daughter, which do you think would have been giving the people more: to have liberated them from the chastisements that they merited by so much sin, or to have given them the Redemption? The chastisements were temporary pains, while the Redemption is an Eternal Good that never finishes. If I had freed them from the chastisements, I would not have opened Heaven, nor given to them the right to glory. Instead, by forming the Redemption I opened Heaven for them, and I placed them on the road for the Celestial Fatherland, giving them their lost glory. When you would do a greater good, you must content yourself to set aside the lesser good, especially if the lesser would serve to balance (Divine) Justice - and My Humanity neither could, nor wanted, to oppose Itself to this Divine equilibrium.

“More than that, the chastisements were to serve as a recall to the creature, to be a speaking voice, sentinels that would have shaken them from the sleep of sin, and urge them to get on the right path; they were to be light to lead them. Thus they were also means to help them receive the goods of the Redemption, and I did not want to destroy these aids. Therefore by My coming to earth, people were not entirely exempt from the chastisements that they merited.

“Now, my daughter, you think that I would have done more if I had freed the people from the chastisements that are so necessary in these times, and seeing that this request is not conceded you, you become bored with life and would like to come to Heaven. Poor daughter, how childish you are in the knowledge of the goods which are great, incalculable, and never - ending, and so different from those that are small and finite. Is it not greater to form the Kingdom of my Divine Will so that It be made known, to prepare the way for creatures to enter into It, to form the light of Its knowledges, to lead them, to give once again the happiness, the original state of creation, to enrich them with all the goods that a Divine Will contains, compared to the goods they would have gained by your freeing all the people from chastisements? This would be nothing compared to the first, before the great good that comes from the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat; so if you find yourself in My same position, of having to content yourself to form the Kingdom of the Divine Volition - which is far greater - or send chastisements, you must be content that [the chastisements] at least partially run their course. This is especially true because I am keeping you on earth for the Kingdom of my Will: this is your special mission.”

But the terror that I felt in myself for Jesus' having made me see some of the serious evils was so much, that I no longer wanted to be upon this earth, and I thought to myself: “It seems that a great and hostile power keeps death away from me, and forces me to pass through this sea of exile. Many times I feel as if I must die. Not many months ago I felt as if I was about to arrive at my Celestial home, but it all went up in smoke. This hostile power resists me, and I remain in the miserable prison of my poor humanity. Who is this power that does me such harm? Who is it that contests my happiness? Who is it that impedes my passing, who is blocking the path of my flight, and with such harsh and cruel methods casts me off?”

But as I was thinking this, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior, saying to me:

“My daughter do not afflict yourself so much, you only harm yourself, and it sorrows me to see your suffering. Do you want to know who is this hostile power? It is all of heaven that is blocking your passing and impeding your flight that you want to take towards your so longed - for Heaven. But do you know why? Because they want to see the Kingdom of My Will completed in you, they themselves - all the Celestial inhabitants - want to be renewed in the honors and glory that are lacking in them because My Will was not completed in them while they were on earth. Thus they want to see in you, completed in you, this my Will so that they may receive, by means of you, their complete glory. Therefore, when they see that you are about to take flight for Heaven, all the powers of Heaven oppose you, and they oppose energetically. But know that this power of Heaven is not hostile but friendly; it loves you dearly, and opposes you for your own good. Know, My daughter, that she who will form the Kingdom of My Will on earth will form the complete crown of [the Saints] glory in Heaven. And it seems nothing to you that they expect from one of their sisters this complete glory of the Supreme Fiat? So together with Me say: ‘Fiat! Fiat!’”

I remained afflicted but all immersed in the Divine Volition, and my sweet Jesus added:

“My daughter, whenever I call souls in a special and extraordinary manner I do as a king when he elects his ministers, and together with them he creates the laws, rules, and maintains the kingdom. I operate in this way: I call these souls to become part of My Kingdom, of My dominion. We form the laws that uphold all the world, and because I called you in a special way to make you live in the court of My Will, My own Volition brings to you My most intimate secrets, and makes you see the serious evils, the wars and the infernal preparations that will destroy many cities. And your smallness, not being able to support the sight of these evils, rightly wants to bring you to Heaven. But know that many times the ministers prevent the king from forming punishing laws, and even if they don’t obtain everything they always obtain something.

“So it will be for you. If you don’t obtain everything in Heaven, you will obtain something. Therefore have courage, and let your flight in My Will be continuous.”

The value of the acts done in the Divine Volition. How whoever lives in It possesses the source of all goods. How God does not know how to do things halfway. The victory of both sides.

I was following the Divine Will, making my rounds through all of creation, and as I was doing my acts, my sweet Jesus made Himself seen in my interior gathering up these acts, which were all of light, into my lap. One was more refulgent than the next, one more beautiful than the other, and He called the Angels and let them know part of these acts. As He did so they competed with each other to receive them, and in triumph they carried them to heaven.

And Jesus, all goodness, said to me:

“My daughter, the value of the acts done in My Will is so great, that the Angels esteem themselves fortunate to receive them. They see in them the Creative Virtue. They feel in these acts the echo of the Divine Fiat, and while they are light they are divine voices; and while they are voices, they are music, beauty, bliss, holiness, [and] Divine science, and since My Will is (the value of heaven), the Angels strive to bring the acts done in It into their Celestial residence. All that which is done in My Supreme Volition cannot rest on earth; what’s more they do them on [earth], but My own Volition, as a magnet, brings them back into their Source, and gives birth to them in Heaven.”

Then my poor mind felt as if it were absorbed in the Eternal Fiat and I thought to myself: “How is it possible that such power and so many acts in one come about with operating in the Divine Will?” And my lovable Jesus continued:

“My daughter, why does the sun give light to all the earth? Because it is larger than the earth, because it possesses a single strength, and is complete in light; because it possesses the source of colors and fecundity; and because it possesses the variety of sweetness - these are reasons why the sun, being larger than the earth, can give light to all the earth. It can give the variety of colors to the flowers, it can give different sweetnesses to the plants and fruit. The sun in its greatness and magnificence is one in the act that it performs, but in its single act it does many (acts) which keep the earth captivated by it, giving to each thing its distinct act. More than sun is My Will; because It is infinite, from Its one single act comes forth the fecundity of all the other acts together, and the soul that lives in It possesses the source of all Its acts and Its fecundity.

“This is why there is no changing of conduct or ways of operating in the soul where My Volition reigns and dominates. As the soul operates in It, her acts come forth with the multiplicity and fecundity of Its Divine acts. All the acts of God are one, which embrace all and do all acts together. See how in the creation of man one was Our act, but in this one single act came forth from Us - all together - holiness, power, wisdom, love, beauty, and goodness. In a word there was nothing which came forth from us that was not infused in man. We made him part of everything, because when We work We do not know how to do things partially; and when We give, We give all. Much more so because My Will is infinite light, and it is the virtue of light to descend into the deepest abyss; it elevates itself to the greatest heights, it diffuses itself - there is no place where it cannot reach, but neither what’s material, nor things extraneous to its light, may enter into it. It is intangible, its office is to give, and to always give without ever stopping.

“So it is for the soul who lives in my Divine Will. She becomes light with the Light of My Divine Will, and as light she descends into the lowest depths of hearts to bring the good of her light, she diffuses herself everywhere, as following, with her light, everyone and everything to bring to each one her [light’s] effect - the multiplicity and variety of goods that her light contains. She would feel cheated if she could not extend herself to everyone and everywhere, so much so that she raises herself high, penetrates beyond the blue vault, and echoes My own Will, which rules in Heaven. (My Will), and My own Will reigning in the soul, descends together, and extending themselves over all the Blessed, form Its rain which showers new joys, happiness, and blessings upon them all.

“Living in My Will is praiseworthy, and a continuous prodigy; it is the bearer of all goods, the seed which multiplies itself to the infinite - and its fecundity is unreachable. Therefore it is longed for by earth and by all of Heaven. It is the victory of God over the creature, it is the soul winning over her Creator. How beautiful it is to see the greatness of the Supreme Being, the Eternal Majesty, and the smallness of the creature singing victory; and in virtue of this Divine Will they compete - the Great and the small, the Strong and the weak, the Rich and the poor - and both come forth victorious.

“Thus I greatly long for my Divine Will to be known, that Its Kingdom come, so the creature can win and put herself on equal footing with Me. Without My Will reigning in the creature, that cannot happen, and there will always be (a certain) distance between Me and the creature. She will be the loser, and will never be able to rejoice and sing victory. The work of our hands will not have our likeness.”

How the number of all things, even of human acts, was established in creation. How Jesus enclosed everything in Himself.

I was fusing myself together with my sweet Jesus in His Divine Volition to multiply my thoughts with His and align myself with each thought of the creature. In this way I too would be able to give to my Creator so many acts of homage, glory, and love for all the thoughts of every creature. But as I was doing this, I thought to myself: “How was it that my beloved Jesus did so many acts, thoughts, and steps for all those that the creature should have done?”

And Jesus, moving in my interior, said to me:

“My daughter, because in the creation My Divine Will established the number of all created things, everything was numbered - the stars, plants, species, even the drops of water. None of these things may be lost or increased, according to the order established by the Supreme Fiat. So my Will established all the acts of all creatures; but in virtue of their free will which was given to them, they were able to do the same acts either for good or for evil. But to do more or less acts was not given to them; all was established by the Divine Volition.

“Now in the Redemption, the Eternal Fiat reigning in My Humanity knew all the acts that all the creatures should do; all the thoughts, words, steps - nothing escaped It. Thus it is no wonder that I multiplied My acts for each act of the creature so that the glory of My Heavenly Father would be completed by Me and [completed by Me] in the name of each creature and of each of their acts, and thus the good that I beseeched for them would be with all fullness. In this way not one of their acts, thoughts, words, and steps would lack My Act to assist their act; each one of My thoughts [was] to assist theirs, and to be the light of each of their thoughts, and so on in the rest of the creature. I enclosed everything within Me, I formed in Myself the New Creation of all the acts of creatures so that I could re-give them to the creatures. Nothing escaped Me, otherwise it would not have been a work worthy of your Jesus. If even a thought had escaped Me, the creature would have found a void in My thought, and even though she wanted that thought, she would not have found the help, strength and light of that thought.

“Now, My daughter, together with Me the Divine Will formed this New Creation of all the human acts of creatures so as to be able to beg the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat from My Celestial Father. Creatures will find this threefold assistance of strength and light in all their acts so that the Kingdom of My Will will return - these three universal helps are: the workings of the Sovereign Queen, those of your Jesus, and those of the little daughter of the Divine Volition.”

After this I was thinking to myself, and asked what this Divine Will could be, and Jesus continued:

“My daughter, Divine Will means giving God to God. It is a Divine outpouring which transforms human nature into Divine. It is the communication of the Creative Virtue, it embraces the Infinite, (it is the soul) lifting herself up into the Eternal to have Eternity in the palm of her hand to tell God: ‘From all Eternity I have loved you. Your Will has no beginning, It is Eternal with You, and I, in It, loved You with love that has no beginning and no end.’ What is My Will? It is everything.”

The offering to work in the Divine Volition. Whoever lives in It forms many acts of Divine Life, and possesses the virtue of bilocation.

I was offering some of my work saying: “Jesus, my love, I want your tiny hands in mine so that I can give to our Celestial Father that love and glory which you individually gave Him with your works while you were on earth. Not only this, but I want to unite myself with You when You, the Word of the Father, from all Eternity work together with Him. With His own works you loved each other with mutual love and in perfect equality, and I want to glorify you in that same glory with which you glorified Yourselves among the Divine Persons.

“But I am not yet satisfied. I want to put my hands in yours so that they may flow together with yours, in your own Will, in the sun, to give You the glory of the light and heat, [and] in the fecundity which the sun gives; in the sea to give You the glory of its waves, of its continuous roar; in the air to give You the glory of the singing of the birds; in the blue skies to give You the glory of its immensity; and in the stars with their sparkling and twinkling I make my voice flow which says: ‘I love You’ to You. I want to flow in the flowered yards to give You the glory and adoration of their perfumes. There is no place where I do not want to go, so that everywhere you will hear your little daughter who adores You, loves You, and glorifies You.

While I was thinking this and other things my sweet Jesus moved in my interior and said to me:

“My daughter, I hear within you My glory, My love, My life, My works, My Will - everything is centered in you. And even more, as you work My Volition carries you into the sun, and you work together with Its light; your movements flow into the solar rays, and as the light diffuses itself, you besiege your Creator with glory and love. How beautiful it is to find My daughter in all of My works, working to give Me the love and glory which each of My works contains. Because My Will possesses the bilocating virtue, you are also bilocated so that you may be found in the sea, in the air, in the stars – everywhere - to love Me and to be loved and glorified.”

After that I found myself as if absorbed in the Supreme Fiat, and was thinking of the great things that the Supreme Will can do in our souls, and my always lovable Jesus added:

“My daughter, each act which the Divine Will does in union with the soul forms a Divine Life, because, being Divine It cannot help but form a Divine Life in Its acts. In this way, in the soul where My Will reigns, and as the soul works, speaks, thinks, throbs, etc., My Divine Volition Works, Its Words, Its Thoughts, and Its Heartbeats flow into those of the creature to first form Its Act, Its Word, and then to give [a] place to Its Divine Life.

“Thus in everything that the soul does, so many Divine Lives spring forth from her in such a way as to fill Heaven and earth with many images of Divine Lives. The soul becomes the duplicator, the bilocator, of the Divine Life. My Will is no less powerful in the soul where It reigns with the power of its sovereignty, than It is in the bosom of the three Divine Persons. Therefore, possessing the bilocating virtue not only forms in the soul as many Divine Lives as she wants, but it forms her heaven, sun, seas of love, flowered yards, and makes the soul say to her God: ‘You have given me heaven, and I give it to you in return; You have given me the sun, and I give it to You also; seas and flowered yards You have given me, and seas and flowered yards I give to you. All that you have done for me in the creation and Redemption, Your Will repeats in me in such a way that I can give to You all that which You have given to me.’

“Oh Power of My Will - what can It not do in the soul where It reigns? Where It reigns It delights in placing the soul on par with Us, because It knows that it is Our Will to want the creature similar to Our image, and as Our faithful executioner, (the creature) carries [Our Will] out, and We call this creature where Our Supreme Fiat reigns: ‘Our glory, Our love, [and] Our virtue’. And only with Our Volition can the soul become as such; without It there is a great distance between the Creator and the creature.

“Thus I love it greatly when the Divine Volition reigns in the soul, making way for the field of action where Our Will can bilocate Our works, Our lives, and elevate the creature to the purpose for which she was created. The creature came forth from Our Volition, so it is only right that she walk in the steps of Our Will and that she return to her Creator by that same path from which she came forth, all beautiful and enriched by the prodigies of Our Eternal Fiat.”

How in the creation God created many rooms to live in so that He could always be found by man and give him His qualities. Doubts, which Jesus disperses. How that which seems difficult for the soul is easy for God. The laments of the soul; Jesus reassures her.

My state of abandonment in the Divine Fiat continues, and, after having followed It in Its acts of creation, I was thinking how to again re-order before the Supreme Majesty all the relations between Creator and creature, for all the ingratitude caused by man’s breaking these relations. And my adored Jesus, coming forth from my interior, said to me:

“My daughter, look at the creation: the sky, the countless stars, the sun, the wind, the sea, the flowered fields, the peaks and the valleys - they are all rooms which I formed, and in each room I formed My court so that I could live there. This I did so as to give man the easy possibility of wherever he wanted to come he could find his God. I made it easy to find [God] immediately, and everywhere. And God placed Himself in each room in an act of waiting for him, [and] left all the rooms open so man wouldn’t have to bother with knocking, but thus could enter freely as often as he wanted; God was ready to receive him.

“The Creator of heaven and earth didn’t place Himself in one single place, but everywhere, so that man could find Him everywhere. He placed these rooms very close together to form many shortcuts, because there must not be any distance between Creator and creature, but closeness and communion. So all these rooms were and are relations, ties, and ways between God and man.

“But who was to have maintained these relations active, who was to have consolidated these ties, ordered the ways, and opened the doors? Our Will reigning in the soul was to have had this responsibility so important in maintaining the order of creation just as we put it forth. When man withdrew from the Divine Fiat, the relations were no longer active, the ties were undone, the paths barricaded, and the doors closed. [Man] lost his dear inheritance, remaining stripped of all goods, and each step was a loose shoestring between his feet which made him fall. Not doing Our Will he lost everything, and there was no good which remained. By doing It he acquires everything; there is no good that is not restored to him.

“What did the Paternal goodness of the Creator not do in creation for love of man? Not only did He form many rooms but they were different one from another so that He could be found in many different ways, by [man] whom He loved. In the sun He let Himself be found invested in light, all majesty, burning with love, waiting for man to give him His light, to make Himself understood, [and] to give him His love so that man, entering into this room to find his God, would himself become light and love. In the sea He let Himself be found as the strong God to give man strength. In the wind He let Himself be found ruling and dominating so as to give man rule and dominion. In other words, in each created thing God was waiting for man so that He could make him participate in all of His qualities.”

After that I was thinking to myself how Jesus loves His Will so much and so greatly longs for It to be known so that It dominate and reign, yet it seems difficult for It be become known because there is no one who occupies himself with It, no one who has any interest; it is Jesus who has all the interest, but in the creature [this interest] doesn't exist. Thus if there are no creatures giving this wondrous glory to God, which means not offering the fullness of goods to other creatures, how can the Kingdom of the Eternal Fiat ever be known?

Now as I was thinking this my sweet Jesus moved in my interior and said to me:

“My daughter, that which seems difficult to you is not difficult for God. Just as in the Redemption there were no difficulties, neither could all the human treachery impede the course of Our Love, much less the fulfillment of Our Will which was the decision to come and Redeem the human race. When the Divinity establishes an act to do, a work to perform - whatever the reasons, the circumstances, or the obstacles - It triumphs over everything, wins over everything, and does that which It has established. The culminating and most important point for God is in establishing that which He wishes to do; having done this He has done everything. Therefore, it is established in Us that Our Will must be known and that Its Kingdom will come upon the earth, it is as if it is already done. As the Redemption came about because it was established by Us, so will it be with Our Will. This is especially so because in creation the Divinity put forth this Kingdom, all in order, ruling and dominating. In the fall of man this Kingdom wasn't destroyed but remained intact - and it still exists; It has just been suspended, as far as man is concerned. In the Redemption I smoothed everything out, and as I did everything so that man could be Redeemed, so I also provided everything for this suspension to be taken away so that the creature could enter into the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat, first by paying attention to the Redemption, and then, with the passing of time, to My Will. It is difficult to build a Kingdom, a work, but once it is done it becomes easy to make it known. Especially because your Jesus lacks nothing in power. To want to do a work and not do it is possible for me, but to lack the capacity - never. I will dispose the things, circumstances, creatures, and events in such a way that it will become simple to make my Will known.”

I felt myself completely afflicted, and I thought to myself how difficult my state is. I feel like I cannot go on. The Divine Volition is unrelenting, unchanging, and you don't joke when dealing with the “Fiat”. You feel all the weight of Its constancy, while remaining constant toward all with Its constancy. It puts you in the conditions of wanting what It wants, even the chastisements and the very privations of Jesus, which cost me so much. Everything It wants, It must obtain; but of all that which the soul wants, she must obtain nothing, not even the slightest thing.

But as I was thinking that my sweet Jesus moved in my interior and said to me:

“My daughter, My Will wants to be free in the soul, and thus It doesn’t want to see either one period, or one command, of that which she wants, even regarding holy things. It doesn’t want to find limits in the soul. It wants to extend her dominion in everything [so that] she wants and does that which My Will wants. Thus the soul feels all the weight of Its constancy so that she might be made constant so that she is no longer subject to changing. To see creatures suffer, or to see them temporarily deprived of a good, or to want to give them assistance, this would be to step out of her constancy. This is human sanctity.

“If My Divine Will was subject to this, Our Justice would remain without life in Our Supreme Being, which cannot be. If you knew in what condition Our Justice finds itself in these times, and if it wanted to unload itself upon you, you would remain crushed - and My Will doesn’t want to crush you. It wants the creatures to participate partially in these sufferings to make them open their eyes so they may understand the great blindness into which they have fallen.

“All the great nations live shouldering great debts; if they had no debts they could not live. And in spite of all this they still make merry, they don’t economize in anything - they are forming plans for war and taking on enormous expenses. Can’t you see yourself the great blindness and folly into which they have fallen? And you, little child, would like My Justice to not strike them - and that they prosper in temporal goods means you would like for them to increase in their blindness and folly. And seeing yourself not concede to all Its requests, you lament, and feeling that your will has taken post in all your soul without leaving you free in anything you feel the force of the sanctity and immutability of my Divine Will. And then I have told you many times that my privations are nothing other than the voids My Justice is preparing to strike people. So don’t worry so much, My daughter, you do not know how much I love you and how many treasures I have put in you. I cannot leave you, because I must look after all the gifts I have placed in you. You must know that each of My words is a Divine gift, and how many have I not given you? Whenever I give a gift I never take back; and to be sure that My gifts are secure, I become the guardian of My gifts, and of the soul who possesses them. So leave Me alone, and let My Will reign freely in you.

How Jesus knows how to make all miracles except for that of separating from His own Will. Sorrow because of the death of Father Di Francia. The good of one who puts the truths he has known into practice. Jesus allows her to see that blessed soul, and speaks to her about him.

The privations of my sweet Jesus are becoming longer; I feel I cannot go on any more. Oh! if it were conceded to me to take flight toward my Celestial Fatherland, in which there are no more separations from Jesus, how happy I would be to get out of the hard and dark prison of my body. Jesus! Jesus! How can You not want to have pity on me - on this poor prisoner? How can it be? You left me without even coming to visit me often in the dark prison I find myself in? Oh! Jesus, without You, how much more painful, more gloomy, more terrible my imprisonment becomes, in which You put me, telling that I should remain in it for love of You and to do your Will, but that You would not leave me alone - You would keep me company. And now? And now everything is over! I do not have your smile that cheers me, I do not have your word that breaks my long silence, nor your company that interrupts my loneliness. I am alone, imprisoned and bound by You in this prison; and then, as the fulfillment You have left me. Jesus! Jesus! I did not expect this from you.

But while I was pouring out my intense sorrow, He came out from within my interior, and embracing me in order to sustain me, for I had no more strength, He told me: "My daughter, courage, I do not leave you. On the contrary, you must know that your Jesus knows how to make, and can make all miracles, except for the miracle of separating from my own Will. If my Divine Will is in you, how can I leave You? And if I did so, I would be Jesus without life. Rather, it is the endlessness of my Fiat that hides Me; and while you feel Its Life, you do not see your Jesus who is inside of It."

Then, I was feeling very afflicted, not only because of the privations of my sweet Jesus, but also because I had received the unexpected news of the death of Reverend Father Di Francia. He was the only one left to me, to whom I could open my poor soul. How well he could understand me - it was to a saint that I would entrust myself, who had very much comprehended all the value of what Jesus had told me about the Divine Will. He had so much interest in it that, with insistence, he had taken all the writings with himself in order to publish them. So, I was thinking to myself: 'After Jesus allowed that he would take the writings with himself, to my great sacrifice, because I did not want it, and only because he was a saint I had to surrender... And now, Jesus has taken him to Heaven.' I felt I myself being tortured because of the pain, but - Fiat! Fiat! Fiat! everything ends down here. I poured out in tears, commending to Jesus that blessed soul, who had so much suffered and worked for Him; and while I was doing this, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior, and told me:

"My daughter, courage, you must know that everything which that soul, so dear to Me, has done, all the knowledges he has known about my Will, have caused him to enclose as much light within his soul. So, each additional knowledge is a greater light that he possesses, and each knowledge places a distinct light in the soul, one more beautiful than the other, together with the seed of the distinct happiness which each light contains. In fact, in anything good that the soul can know, with her will of putting it into practice within herself, she remains in possession of the good she knows. But if she does not have the will to put the knowledges she acquires into practice, it happens as when someone touches a flower or washes himself once with very fresh water: in that act, he will feel the fragrance of the flower, or the refreshment of the fresh water, but since he does not possess the flower nor the fount of fresh water, little by little the fragrance will vanish, as well as the good of the freshness of that water, and he will find himself empty of that fragrance, and without the freshness he had enjoyed. Such are the knowledges when one has the good of knowing them but does not put them into practice. Now, that soul had all the will to practice them; so much so, that in seeing the great good he felt, he wanted to make them known to others by publishing them. So, as long as he remained on earth, his body, more than wall, walled up that light; but as soon as his soul went out of the prison of his body, he found himself invested with the light he possessed. And as the many seeds of happiness he possessed developed, which are the effects of the knowledges about my Divine Will, he began to feel the beginning of the life of true beatitudes. And diving into the eternal light of his Creator, he found himself in the Celestial Fatherland, in which he will continue his mission about my Will, assisting everything himself, from Heaven.

“If you knew the great difference in glory, in beauty, in happiness, which exists between one who, upon dying, brings light from the earth, together with the seeds of many happinesses, and one who only receives it from his Creator... There is such distance as to surpass the distance between Heaven and earth. Oh! if mortals knew the great good they acquire by knowing a true good, a truth, and by making it their own blood in order to absorb it in their own lives, they would compete among themselves, they would forget about everything in order to know one truth - and would lay down their lives to put it into practice.”

While Jesus was saying this, I saw the blessed soul of father before me, near my bed, invested with light, suspended from the earth, fixing on me, but without telling me one word. I too felt mute before him, and Jesus added:

“Look at him, how transformed he is. My Will is light, and has transformed that soul into light; It is beautiful, and has given him all the shades of perfect beauty; It is holy, and he has been sanctified. My Will possesses all sciences, and his soul has been invested by divine science. There is nothing which my Will has not given to him. Oh! if all understood what Divine Will means, they would put everything aside, they would care about doing nothing else, and their whole commitment would be to do my Will alone.”

After this, I was thinking to myself: ‘But why did blessed Jesus not concur in making a miracle for Father Di Francia?’ And Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, in Redemption the Queen of Heaven did not make any miracle, because Her conditions did not permit that She would give life to the dead, or health to the sick. In fact, since Her Will was that of God Himself, whatever Her God wanted and did, She wanted and did as well. Nor did She possess another Will to ask God for miracles and healings, because She never gave life to Her human will, and in order to ask for miracles from this Divine Will She should have used her own - which She did not want to do, because it would have meant descending into the human order. But the Sovereign Queen never wanted to take one step outside of the divine order, and one who is in it must want and do what his Creator does. More so since, with the life and light of this Divine Will, She could see that whatever Her Creator wanted and did was the best, the most perfect thing, the holiest, also for creatures. So, how could She descend from the height of the divine order? This is why She only made the great miracle which enclosed all miracles - Redemption - wanted by the same Will by which She was animated, which brought universal good, and to whomever wants it. While in life She made no visible miracle, either of healings or of raising the dead, the great Celestial Mother made, and does make, miracles at each moment, at every hour and every day, because as souls dispose themselves and repent, giving, Herself, the disposition for repentance, She bilocates Her Jesus, the fruit of Her womb, and gives Him as whole to each one, as confirmation of Her great miracle, which God wanted this Celestial Creature to make. The miracles which God Himself wants to be made, without mixing of human will, are perennial miracles, because they start from the divine fount which is never exhausted, and it is enough to want them in order to receive them.

“Now, your conditions hold hands with those of the incomparable Queen of Heaven. Having to form the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat, you must want but what my Divine Will wants and does, and your will must have no life, even if it seems to you that you might be doing some good to creatures. And just as my Mama did not want to make any other miracle but the one of giving Her Jesus to creatures, the same for you: the miracle which the Divine Will wants you to make is that of giving my Will to creatures, and of making It known in order to let It reign. With this miracle you will do more than anything; you will place the salvation, the sanctity, the nobility of creatures in safety, and will also banish their corporal maladies, caused by the fact that my Divine Will does not reign. Not only this, but you will place a Divine Will in safety in the midst of creatures, and will give back to It all the glory and the honor which human ingratitude has taken away from It. This is why I did not allow that you would make the miracle of healing him; but you made for him the great miracle of letting him know my Will, and he left the earth with the possession of It. And now he enjoys, in the sea of light of the Divine Will - and this is more than anything.”

For one who does the Divine Will all times and places are her own. How she takes eternity in her power. How God loses nothing, because He is perfect in loving.

I was following the Divine Will in Its acts, in everything It had done in the order of the whole Creation, from the beginning of the world up to the present. But while I was doing this, I thought to myself: ‘What is passed is not in my power, therefore it seems a waste of time to me to go on tracing what is passed.’ At that moment, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior, telling me:

“My daughter, for one who does my Will and lives in It, all times and all places are hers. My Supreme Will loses nothing of what It does, and with Its own unique power, It does the act and It preserves it within Itself, intact and beautiful, just as It did it. So, one who lives in my Supreme Will finds in It the order of all Its acts, as if It were doing them at that very instant; and the soul, uniting herself with It, does what my Volition is doing.

“This is all the delight, the satisfaction, the glory of my Will - that while Its acts are eternal, the littleness of the creature who lives in It takes eternity in her power, and finding the acts of her Creator as though in act she repeats them along, she loves, she glorifies the endlessness of the acts of the One who created her, and so a contest of works, a contest of love and of glory is formed between them. Therefore, the times of Creation are at her disposal, as well as the place of the terrestrial Eden; she has the times of my Incarnation, of my Passion, and Bethlehem, Nazareth and Calvary are not far from her. Past, distance, do not exist for her, but everything is present and near. Even more, you must know that my Will gives the unity of everything to the soul, and just as my Will, while being one, does everything, in the same way, the soul who possesses the divine unity encloses within herself the thoughts of all, the words, works, steps and heartbeats of all, as if they were one, in such a way that my Will finds in her all generations and the single acts of each one, just as It finds them within Itself. Oh! how the steps of this chosen creature can be recognized - how sweet is her treading. She goes before her God, but she never goes alone - she carries the treading of the steps of all within her steps. Her voice contains the notes of all human voices, and - oh! what a beautiful harmony she forms in Our Will. Her heartbeat unleashes little flames for as many creatures as have come out to the existence of life. Oh! how she delights Us - we amuse ourselves together, she is Our dear jewel, the reflection of Our works, the image of Our life. This is why I want my Will to reign in the creature to fill her with all of Its acts. In fact, when It does not reign, the void of Its acts is formed in her, and - oh! how terrible is the void of a Divine Will in the creature. It is like a dry land, full of rocks, without sun and without water, which is terrifying to look at. And how many there are of these voids in the creature; and when I find one who lives in my Will, I make feast, for I can fill her with all the acts of my Will.”

Then, I was thinking about what is written above, and my Jesus added: “My daughter, Our love is perfect in all Our works, and since it is perfect, We lose nothing of what We do, and therefore Our works serve as triumph, glory and everlasting crown of Our Divine Being, and whatever is done in the perfection of Our perfect love is not subject either to being lost, or to losing its wholeness and beauty. How different is the work of the creature because she lacks the perfect love of Our works. She operates and puts her works out - she has neither the virtue nor the space in order to preserve them within herself, and this is why she loses many of her works; and since they lack the life and the love of the one who has formed them, the human works do not have the virtue of remaining beautiful, intact and ever new, just as they were made.

“Therefore, with the soul who lives in Our Divine Will, We delight in showing her all Our acts, which appear as though being all present and in the act of being done. And We say to the soul: ‘Repeat Our act, so that what We do, you may do as well, so as to place the act of the Creator in common with the creature.’ It happens as to someone who possesses many beautiful things, but keeps them under lock and key in separate rooms - no one knows that he has so many things of varied beauty. Now, a second person wins the favor of the first one, he proves to be faithful to him, nor is he capable of moving one comma of his will. He captures the heart of the first one, who feels his heart crack, because his love toward that person leads him with an irresistible force to show him the goods he possesses, and the variety and rarity of so many precious things. Therefore he opens the secret rooms and says to him: ‘I feel divided in love if I do not make you aware of my secrets, if I do not let you see what I possess, so that we may enjoy and possess together.’ Those things seem all new to the second one, because he had never seen things of that kind, but for the first those were ancient things. The same happens for one who comes to live in Our Will: the doors are opened, Our secrets are revealed, she is made aware of all Our most beautiful works. To keep secrets with her, to hide Our acts, would be a weight upon Our Heart, it would be as though keeping her like a stranger. Oh, how this would afflict Us! In fact, true and perfect love admits neither secrets nor separation of works and of goods; on the contrary, what is mine is yours, what I know, you know as well. Even more, you must know that my Will forms the echo of Its works, of Its love, of Its word, in the soul in whom It reigns, in such a way that, on hearing Its echo, the soul repeats the work, the love and the word of the Divine Fiat.”

Relations that exist between Creator and creature, between Redeemer and redeemed ones, between Sanctifier and sanctified ones. Who it is that will be able to read the divine characters.

I was following the acts of the Divine Fiat according to my usual way, in order to repair and bind all the relations between Creator and creature, between Redeemer and redeemed ones, between Sanctifier and sanctified ones, broken by the human will; and my beloved Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, one who wants to know all the relations existing between Creator and creature, and to keep their bonds in force, must let my Divine Will reign within herself with absolute dominion. In fact, since the life of my Will is present in all Creation, she will form one single life for all created things, and since the life is one, she will understand their language and the relations existing with her Creator. Each created thing speaks of its Creator, and possesses the legible characters of my Divine Fiat. But do you know who it is that is capable of hearing their voice, of understanding their celestial speaking, and of reading the divine characters which each created thing has imprinted within itself? One who possesses my Will. She has the hearing to be able to listen to their voice, the intelligence to comprehend them, the eyes to read the divine characters which, with so much love, her Creator impressed within each created thing. On the other hand, one who does not let my Will reign, finds herself in the condition of one who is deaf and cannot listen, of one who is cretinous and cannot comprehend, of one who has not studied the variety of languages, and as much as one may speak, he understands nothing.

“In the same way, in order to maintain the relations existing between Redeemer and redeemed ones, and to know them, one must study my life. Each of my words, works, steps, heartbeats and pains were all bonds with which I came to bind all the redeemed ones. But who is bound? One who studies my life and tries to imitate Me. As she imitates Me, she remains bound to my words, works, steps, etc., receives their life, and will have the hearing to be able to listen to all my teachings, the mind to comprehend them, and the eyes to read all the characters impressed within Me in coming to redeem the humankind. And if the creature does not do this, the characters of Redemption will be illegible for her; it will be a foreign language for her, and the relations and bonds of Redemption will not be in force. The creature will always be the born blind to all Our goods with which We wanted to enrich her. And one who wants to know and receive all the relations and bonds of sanctity, must love the Sanctifier. The Holy Spirit puts His flames on the way toward one who truly loves, and binds her with the relations of His sanctity. Without love there is no sanctity, because the bonds of true sanctity are already broken.”

My Jesus kept silent, and I remained all immersed in the Supreme Fiat. Then my beloved Good added: "My daughter, one who lives in my Will drinks light, and just as light is such that, while one sees it and enjoys it, others too can see it and enjoy it, the same for my Will: in giving Itself to the soul as light and investing her completely, It bilocates her whole interior and gives light to each thought of creature; It bilocates her word and gives light to the words of others; It bilocates her works, her steps, and gives light to those of others. Light possesses the true and perfect bilocation, and while it is one, it has the virtue of bilocating for each one who wants to enjoy it and see it. Is the sun not one? And yet, how many see it and enjoy it? Much more so for the Sun of my Will, which the soul drinks, filling herself completely with Its light: though It is one, It has the virtue of bilocating for each act word, step, etc., and forms the enchantment of Its divine light."

How the Will of God is everything. She sees Father Annibale again, who tells her of his surprises.

I feel my poor mind as though fixed in the center of the Supreme Fiat, and going about around this center, I diffused myself in all of Its acts, embracing everyone and everything in the endlessness of Its light. But while doing this, I thought to myself: 'Why am I to embrace everyone and everything while being in the Divine Will?' And my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

"My daughter, my Will is everything, there is nothing which does not receive life from It, there is not one point at which It is not present, there is not one good effect which does not arise from It everything is Its own, everything is dependent on It. Therefore, in the soul in whom It reigns, It wants to find everyone and everything that belongs to It, and if It did not find everyone and everything, It would feel divided in Its empire, separated from Its acts - which cannot be. This is why, in feeling the life of the Divine Fiat within yourself, together with It you feel everything and everyone; you feel the life of the sun which gives light, which warms and fecundates, as well as the earth which, in breathing this light vegetates, clothes itself with plants and flowers, and, holding hands, earth and sun sustain and delight all generations. It is my Will that gives life to the sun, that makes the earth breathe to cheer the whole Creation, making the birds sing, the lambs jump and bleat, and everything that happens in the universe. Do you not want perhaps to feel all that my Will does? Enclosing everything in you, as though in one single center, my Will makes you feel the human heart palpitating, the mind thinking, the hands operating; but while It gives life to all this, since creatures are not all for It, It does not find the return of Its divine acts in the acts of the creature, and It wants from you what they do not do. It wants all of Its acts to be filled by you with the acts of Its very Divine Will. Therefore, your task is great, and it takes highest attention."

After this, I found myself outside of myself, and while looking for my sweet Jesus I encountered Father Di Francia. He was all cheerful, and he told me:

"Do you know how many beautiful surprises I found? I did not think it would be so when I was on earth, though I thought I had done good by publishing the Hours of the Passion. But the surprises I found are marvelous, enchanting, of a rarity never before seen: all the words regarding the Passion of Our Lord changed into light, one more beautiful than the other - all braided together; and these lights grow more and more as creatures do the Hours of the Passion, so more lights add to the first. But what surprised me the most were the few sayings published by me about the Divine Will: each saying changed into a sun, and these suns, investing all the lights with their rays, form such a surprise of beauty that one remains enraptured, enchanted. You cannot imagine how surprised I was at seeing myself in the midst of these lights and these suns - how content I was; and I thanked our Highest Good, Jesus, who had given me the occasion and the grace to do it. You too, thank Him on my behalf."

I remained amazed on hearing this, and was doing my prayers in the Divine Fiat, wanting the very Blessed also to take part in them; and my lovable Jesus told me: "My daughter, even if the soul does not place this intention, everyone takes part in whatever is done in my Divine Will - and much more do the Blessed, who live in the unity of It. My Will has Its current everywhere, and with Its unifying strength, It brings to all, as Its own act, whatever the creature does in It. Only, there is this difference: that if the soul who operates in the Divine Will on earth places the intention of giving special glory to those who live in the Celestial Fatherland, the Blessed hear themselves being called from Heaven, in the unity of my Will, by the one who wants to delight them and glorify them more. They look at her with so much love and pleasure, as to extend their protection, all special, upon her. On the other hand, one who does not operate in the unity of my Fiat remains down below, because the strength to ascend up high again is missing; her works possess neither the communicative nor the ascending strength; the currents are closed and are emptied of light. If you knew the difference between one who operates in the unity of my Will and one who operates outside of It, even doing good, you would not do the slightest thing outside of my Will, at the cost of your life." Then, looking at me with love, into my inmost interior, He added: "My daughter, I have come to see and visit the properties of my love which I deposited in your soul, to see whether everything is in order and intact, just as it was placed by Me." Then, after He looked at me all over, He disappeared.

How God, in creating man, had given him a fertile and beautiful land. The reason why He keeps Luisa alive. How everything that is done in the Divine Will has continuous life.

I was feeling oppressed and all annihilated within myself - good at nothing. So very often the privations of my beloved Jesus render me incapable of anything, and while on one hand I feel them vividly, lacerating my poor soul, on the other hand they render me dazed, petrified, as if I had no more life, or I do feel life only to feel myself dying. Oh, God, what pains - they are without mercy and without pity! To live in the nightmare of a pain that brings me an infinite, immense eternal weight - I have no place to go, nor anything to do so as not to feel the enormous weight of this tremendous pain.

So I thought to myself: 'I am no longer good at anything but to feel all the weight of my great misfortune of being without the One whom it seems to me that everyone else possesses. Only for me was this pain, so harrowing, reserved, of not possessing my Life, my All, my Jesus. Ah! Jesus, come back to the one whom You wounded and left prey to the pain of the wound which You Yourself gave her. And besides, why keep me alive when I am no longer good at doing anything?' But while I was pouring out my sorrow, my highest Good, Jesus, moved in my interior, and clasping me all to Himself, told me:

“My daughter, the earth, created by God as fertile and beautiful, with a most refulgent sun that illuminated it and delighted it, became full of thorns and all stony because of sin; the human will put to flight the Sun of Mine, and thick darkness covered it. And I keep you alive because you must remove all the stones from the earth and render it fertile again. Each act of the human will has been a stone that covered the beautiful earth created by Me; each venial sin has been a thorn, each grave sin has been a poison, and each good done outside of my Will has been like sand scattered over the land which, invading it completely, prevented the vegetation of even the smallest plant or some blade of grass which might sprout from underneath the stones. Now, my daughter, each act of yours done in my Will must remove one stone - and how many acts it takes to remove them all! And by never giving life to your will, you will call back the refulgent rays of the Sun of the Supreme Fiat to shine over these tenebrous lands, and these rays will call the mighty wind of grace which, with empire, will stir all that sand - that is, all that good done neither to do my Will, nor in It, nor out of love for Me, but good done to earn human esteem, glory and interest. Oh! how heavy this apparent good is - more than sand which prevents the vegetation of souls and renders them so sterile as to arouse pity. Then, the Sun of my Will, with Its fecundity, will change the thorns into flowers and fruits, and the wind of my grace will be the counter poison and will pour life into souls.

“So, you must be convinced that I keep you still alive in order to reorder the work of Creation, and just as one human will, by placing itself outside of Mine puts everything in disorder to the point of changing the face of the earth, in the same way, another human will which enters into Mine, and with repeated and incessant acts, must reorder everything and return to Me the sweet enchantment the harmony, the beauty of the first times of Creation. Don't you feel within yourself how large your field is? And as though going back to the terrestrial Eden, in which my Divine Will celebrated with the first acts of man and they enjoyed together the fertile and beautiful land It had given him, I call you to bind those first acts and to make you follow all the lands invaded by the human will, so that, embracing all times together, you may help to remove the stones, the thorns, the sand, with which the human will has reduced [those lands to such a state] as to arouse pity.”

So, my poor mind went back to Eden in the Divine Will, to enter into the unity of that one act which can only be found in It, and to descend to the very last times so that my love, my adoration, etc., might extend to all times and places, for all and for each one. But while I was thinking and doing this, I said to myself: ‘How much nonsense I am speaking - in the last times I hope, by the Lord's grace, to be up there in the Celestial Fatherland; how will I be able to love in time while I am in Eternity?’ And my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, everything that is done in my Will has continuous life, because everything that is done in It has the love of its Creator as origin, which is not subject to ending - it loved, loves and will love always, nor can anyone interrupt this love. So, one who loves, who adores in my Will, does nothing but follow that eternal love, that perfect adoration of the Divine Persons, which have no beginning and no end. As the soul enters into my Will, she enters into the midst of Our acts and continues to love with Our love and to adore with Our adoration; and she remains bound to Our reciprocal love, to Our Will, which has the virtue of being unceasing in Its acts, and everything that others may do, is nothing other than the continuation of the act done in Our Divine Will. The acts done in It have perennial and continual life. Therefore, your love in the last times will be in nothing dissimilar to that of today; and if others love, they will love in and with your love, because it will be first act, having its origin in God. Therefore, from the Celestial Fatherland you will love in time and in eternity; my Will will keep your love jealously just as It keeps Its own, and wherever It extends and has Its life, It will make you love and adore everywhere. For one who lives in my Will, all of her acts have all the divine acts, Our very way of operating, as their beginning and end. So, the soul does nothing but follow what God does. The Sovereign Queen, who lived perfect life in the Royal Palace of Our Will, had no other love, no other adoration but Our own. All of her acts can be seen as so fused in Ours, that what in Our acts is nature, in Her is grace; and since Her acts did not have their origin in Her will, but in Ours, by right She has primacy over all the acts of creatures. Therefore, if you love, the Celestial Queen has primacy over your love, and you follow Her love just as you follow Ours, and We and the Great Lady continue to love in your love; and so with anything that you may do in Our Will. So, when you come to the Celestial Fatherland, your love will not depart from the earth, but will continue to love in each creature. Therefore, even from now, my Divine Fiat makes you extend your love to the past, to the present and to the future, to give you the right that your love may extend everywhere and to all times, and it may never cease to love. Here is the great difference between one who lives in my Will and one who lives outside of It.”

How all the things of God have equal weight. How everything that God did in Creation is beaded with His love, and this is felt by one who lives in the Divine Will.

I was doing the usual round in the Divine Fiat, and while going around throughout the whole Creation, I thought to myself: ‘How much light and heat must my Creator have, if He released so much of them in creating the sun? Oh! how He must feel Himself burn with His own heat as He contains so much of it.’ But while I was thinking of this, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior and told me:

“My daughter, in Our things there is perfect and equal measure of everything. So, as much as is the love, the heat, the light so much is the freshness, the beauty, the power, the sweetness, etc. One is the weight of everything, and therefore heat is nourished by freshness, and freshness by heat; light is nourished by beauty, and beauty nourishes light, in such a way that one tempers the other. Strength nourishes sweetness, and sweetness strength, and so with all the rest of Our divine things, in such a way that each of them makes Us happy. By themselves, Our qualities would oppress Us, but, together, being in perfect equality, they serve Us as happiness, as joys and as contentments, and they all compete to make Us happy. Heat brings Us the happiness of love, and freshness brings Us the joys of what is beautiful, of what is fresh. Light brings Us the joy of light, and beauty, tempering the vividness of light, brings Us the happiness of what is beautiful, good, holy, immense; it braids all of Our qualities and renders them all beautiful, lovable and admirable for Us. Strength brings Us the happiness of the strong, and sweetness, invading it completely, brings Us the joys mixed with sweetness and strength. And everything that can be seen in Creation is nothing other than outpourings of the abundance of light of heat, of freshness, beauty and strength which We possess within Ourselves; and these outpourings were released by Us in order to nourish and delight the creatures with Our own outpourings, in such a way as to render them happy; and by dint of nourishing themselves with Our qualities, creatures would become similar to Us, and would be bearers of happiness and of joys to their Creator. How beautiful it was to be, to see them luminous like sun; beautiful, more than flowery field and starry sky; strong like mighty wind; beaded with divine freshness in such a way as to remain always new and fresh, without changing. Our Will would bring them all Our outpourings united together, which are such that one delights the other. But because man withdrew from the Supreme Fiat, he receives Our outpourings as separate from one another, and this is why the heat burns him, the light eclipses him, the cold makes him numb, the wind harms him, and many times it knocks him down and hurls him away. Not seeing in man the facsimile of their Creator nor the bond of union with the Divine Fiat, Our qualities act as separate over him, and he does not receive the happiness which they contain as united. Therefore, with my Will, the creature would have been the happiest being, while, without It, she is the unhappiest.”

Then I continued my flight in the Divine Volition, and hovering over each thought and act of creature, over each plant and flower, and over everything, I impressed my ‘I love you’ and I asked for the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat. But while doing this, I thought to myself: ‘What a long story in my poor mind, nor does it seem that I can get out of it - I must keep tracing all times, all places, all human acts, and even plants, flowers and everything, to impress an ‘I love you’, an ‘I adore you’, an ‘I bless you’, a ‘thank you’, and to ask Him for His Kingdom.’ But while I was thinking of this, my sweet Jesus, moving again in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, do you think you are the one who does this? No, no - it is my Will that keeps tracing all of Its acts which It issued in Creation, beading each of Its acts, thoughts, words, steps, with Its ‘I love you’; and this ‘I love you’ runs through each act and thought toward each creature. One who is in my Will feels this love of God spread everywhere. His love is hidden even in the plants, in the flowers, and even under the earth, in the roots; and unable to contain it, He rips the earth open, and beads plants and flowers with His ‘I love you’, to manifest His ardent love toward the creature. And when my Will reigns in the soul, It wants to continue Its ‘I love you’ of Creation, and therefore It calls you to follow Its eternal love; and calling each thought and act, as well as all created elements, Its says and makes you say ‘I love you’, and with Its very Will It makes you ask for Its Kingdom, so as to bind It once again in the midst of creatures. What enchantment, my daughter, to see your ‘I love you’ united to that of my Will, flowing in each thought and act of creature and asking for my Kingdom; [to see] this ‘I love you’ flowing in the might of the wind, extending in the rays of the sun, murmuring in the murmuring of the sea and in the roaring of the waves, impressing itself on each plant, and rising with the most beautiful adoration in the fragrances of the flowers; and, more than trembling voice, saying ‘I love you’ in the sweet twinkling and sparkling of the stars - in sum, everywhere. One who does not live in my Divine Will does not hear this language of my eternal love in all of Its acts and in each created thing; but one who lives in It feels herself being called to love so many times for as many times as her Creator has loved her. All things speak with holy eloquence about my love. How ungrateful she would be, if she did not follow the speaking love of my eternal Fiat.”

How God keeps His gaze fixed on our interior. For one who lives in the Divine Will everything becomes Will of God.

I was thinking of how I do nothing great to glorify my beloved Jesus, and He, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, I do not look at what you do externally, but I look at whether the fount of your interior is full of my love alone - and so much as to overflow outside in your external acts, in such a way that your external acts too remain all beaded, as though by celestial dew, by the fount of my love which you contain inside. So, my gaze is always fixed on your interior, and if my love, united with my Divine Will, murmurs always within you, you are always beautiful in my eyes beautiful if you pray, beautiful if you work and suffer, beautiful if you take food, if you speak, if you sleep; you are always beautiful to Me. In each act of yours, whatever it may be, you receive a new shade of beauty from my Will, such as to make you appear more beautiful in my eyes, and my love grows in the fount of your soul, in such a way that your external acts breathe my love, more than air, and emit exhalations so very pleasing to Me, which bring Me so much pleasure as to make Me delight in you.”

Then I continued to think about the Divine Will, and to abandon all of myself in It. And my sweet Jesus added:

“My daughter, for one who lives in my Divine Will all things become my Will; in everything she does, touches and sees, she touches, sees and does my Will. If she thinks and lives in my Will, she will feel the sanctity of the intelligence of the Divine Life invest her and flow within her mind. If she speaks, she will feel the sanctity of the Fiat within her word - that Fiat which, if It speaks, creates. If she operates and walks, she will feel the sanctity of the divine works and the steps of the Eternal Fiat flow within her works and steps. If she sleeps also, she will feel within herself the eternal rest of her Creator, and all will compete to bring her my Will: the sun with its light, the wind with its freshness, the fire with its heat, the water with its refreshments, the flower with its fragrance, the bird with its singing and warbling, the food with its flavors, the fruit with its sweetness; in sum, one thing will not wait for another, bringing all the acts that my Will does in each created thing, in such a way that the soul will be like a queen, receiving all the innumerable acts that the Divine Will does in all Creation. That Divine Will which lives and reigns in her will draw all of Its acts, which It exercises in all things; a sweet enchantment will form in the pupil of her eye, in such a way as to discover in all things that Divine Will which runs in so many different ways toward her, to make her become all Will of God.”

After this, I was thinking to myself: ‘How is it that while I am doing or completing my round in the whole Creation to follow the acts of the Supreme Will, I feel a light come out of me, and even if I do not see my beloved Jesus, it always tells me some truths regarding the Divine Fiat.’ And my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, it happens within you as when a container is full of water or of another liquid: if one puts a piece of bread into it, the water overflows outside and wets the place that surrounds it. Or, it happens as to the sea: the wind makes the waters rise and forms the waves, as if it wanted to make everyone see the waters of the sea. The same happens to you: your entering into the acts of my Will, your going around in It, is more than bread plunged into the contained full of water, and more than wind that makes the light of my Will rise, which, in rising, overflows outside of you, and in speaking to you with its language of light, it speaks to you of that very light with which you are filled, wanting to make itself known with its waves of light - who it is, what it can do, and what it wants to do. As you place the wind of your acts into my Will, Its light moves, forms its waves of light to the point of overflowing outside of you, to make known, not only to you, but also to others, its waves of light - that is, its truths.

“Everything I have manifested to you about my Will was also told to the Sovereign Queen of Heaven, because She would do nothing but make It rise continuously in order to draw Its manifestations, to know them, love them and possess them as more than Her own life. But they would not overflow outside of Her - they would remain inside of Her, because She did not have the mandate to make my Divine Will known; it was not Her mission, and so She kept them in Her Heart even the littlest truths, just as the greatest - as precious relics, as sacred deposits, waiting for you who were to have a mission all special, so as to administer to you Her wind also, that you might make the waves of the light of the Divine Will rise, so that, as they would overflow outside of you, She might have Her part in making my Will known.”

How in order to do a great work, great sacrifices are needed.

My adorable Jesus hides more and more, and even when I am writing, I no longer feel His light as I used to do almost until to now, whispering to me the necessary words about what He wanted me to write. For one word alone that He had spoken to me in the little visit He would make to my soul, then, in the act of writing, He would whisper to me so many of them in my interior - to the point of making His most sweet voice resound on my lips -that I could not manage to write them all. And now, everything is struggle, everything is strain, everything is poverty - poverty of light of words, of the necessary terms. My poor eyes become filled with sleep, and I have to make incredible efforts to be able to write a few lines; and these efforts wear me out, they debilitate me so much, that I cannot go on. Oh, how I miss the One who was for me light word, prompter, dictator, and would give me such vigil, that my eyes would not be able to close for sleep if not when my beloved Jesus would come to take me with Him.

So, given all this, after I had written with incredible struggle, I was thinking to myself that maybe it is no longer Will of God that when blessed Jesus tells me something I should write on paper; and if He does not want it, neither do I want it. But while I was thinking of this, my sweet Jesus came out from within my interior as though to sustain me, for I felt I was dying from the effort I had made in writing a little bit; and He told me:

“My daughter, the greater a work is and the more good it must bring to the human family, the more heroic sacrifices are needed. How many sacrifices, pains, sorrows, and even death, did I not suffer in order to form the work Redeeming of creatures? Because the work was great, everything was to be great: sorrows, unheard-of pains, the most infamous humiliations, invincible love, heroic strength and unsurpassed patience. Everything was to be great, because when a work is great, creatures are taken from all sides so that they may receive the good that a great work contains within itself, except for some obstinate and perfidious one who wants to escape by force. On the other hand, when a work is small, great sacrifices are not required, and therefore, with a small work, not all creatures can receive the good of it; in fact, since what is great is missing, some will not find the way, some will lack the ground under their feet, some the light, and some will lack the enrapturing force of a sacrificed and sorrowful love. In sum, few will be those who will be able to receive the good of a small work, because it lacks the life and the substance to be able to give itself to whomever wants to receive it.

“Now, my daughter, the work of the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat is the greatest work, and while it holds hands with the work of Redemption, because of the divine glory and the good and sanctity it will bring to creatures it surpasses the very Redemption. This is why great sacrifices, innumerable pains and sorrows, incessant prayers are needed. Therefore, I had to choose a creature who, voluntarily, would accept the long sacrifice of many years, of many different pains; and I will make known to the children of my Kingdom how much this Kingdom of my Will cost you and Me, to make it so that all might enter into It, giving them open ways from all points and in all manners, so as to win them to come: ways of light, ways of pains, ways of all the manifestations and truths I have given; and I will show the incredible effort you made in writing, so that nothing might be missing in order to let them find solid ground and safe ways to draw them with invincible force, and to let them take possession of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat.

“When the human generations have known all the knowledges about the Divine Will, the great good of my Kingdom, and how the one who impetrated It suffered so long sacrifices, my knowledges and your sacrifices, united together, will be powerful magnets, irresistible spurs, incessant calls, penetrating light, deafening voices which, as they make them deaf to all other things, they will be left with the hearing to listen to the sweet teachings of the Divine Fiat, and to accept a Kingdom which was impetrated for them with so many sacrifices. Therefore, in order to form a great work there is much to do and to suffer - everything is necessary; and what to you seems a pain of no significance, for others it may be a pitiful voice, such that, moved by it, they will recognize themselves as too ungrateful not to accept a good so great which cost us so much because of them. Therefore, let Me do, and leave Me free to do what I want.”

Offering of Communion. How our wills are the accidents in which Jesus is multiplied. How the soul who lives in the Divine Will contains the source of all the Sacraments.

I was doing my thanksgiving for I had received Holy Communion, and I was thinking to myself that I wanted to offer It to all and to each inhabitant of Heaven, to each soul in Purgatory, to all the living who are and will be. And not only to them, but I would like to give my Sacramental Jesus to the starry heavens, to the flowery fields - in sum, to each created thing, in order to give Him the glory and the triumph of all His works. But while I was saying this, I thought to myself: ‘This is my usual nonsense - how can I form so many Jesuses? This is impossible.’ And my beloved Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, just as in the sacramental host there are the little accidents of the bread, and your Jesus hides inside of them, alive and real - and as many Jesuses for as many as are the hosts - in the same way, in the soul there are the accidents of the human will, not subject to being consumed like the accidents of my Sacramental Life, and therefore more fortunate and more solid. And just as the Eucharistic Life multiplies in the hosts, so does my Divine Will multiply my Life in each act of the human will, which, more than accident, lends itself to the multiplication of my Life. As you were making your will flow within Mine and wanted to give Me to each one, so was my Will forming my Life in yours, and from Its light It released my Life, giving Me to each one, and oh! how happy I felt that the little daughter of my Will was forming so many of my Lives in the accidents of her will, to give Me not only to animate creatures, but to all things created by Me. So, as I was multiplying my Life, I felt I was constituting Myself the King of all: King of the sun, of the sea, King of the flowers, of the stars, of the heavens - in sum, of everything. My daughter, one who lives in my Will possesses within herself the fount of the source of the Sacraments, and can multiply Me as much as she wants and in whatever way she wants.”

Afterwards, I remained doubtful about the last sentence written here above, and my beloved Jesus added:

“My daughter, the Sacraments came out of my Will like many little fountains; I issued them from It, keeping in It the source from which each of these fountains continuously receives the goods and the fruits which each of them contains. But they act according to the dispositions of those who receive them; so, because of lack of dispositions on the part of creatures, the fountains of the Sacraments do not produce the great goods they contain. Many times they pour waters, but the creatures are not washed; other times they consecrate them, impressing a divine and indelible character, but in spite of this they do not appear to be sanctified. Another fountain gives birth to the Life of your Jesus continuously; they receive this Life, but neither the effects of it nor the Life of your Jesus can be seen in them. So, each Sacrament has Its sorrow, because they do not see their fruits and the goods they contain in all creatures.

“Now, for one who lives in my Will, letting reign as in Its own Kingdom, since my Divine Will possesses the source of the Sacrament, what is the wonder if one who lives in It possesses the source of all the Sacraments and feels within herself the nature of the Sacraments with all the effects and goods they contain? And as she receives them from the Church, she will feel that it is food which she possesses, but which she takes in order to give complete glory to those Sacraments, whose source she possesses, and to glorify that very Divine Will that instituted them, because in It alone there will be perfect glory for all Our works. This is why I so much long for the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat because It alone will give balance to everything; It will give to creatures all the goods It wants, and will receive the glory which they owe It.”

Privation of Jesus. How one who lives in the Divine Will is the triumph of God and of the soul.

I was doing the round in the Divine Will, and while my poor mind was going around through all created things impressing my ‘I love you’ even on the highest mountains and in the deepest valleys, in the darkest abysses of the earth and in the deepest ocean of the sea - in sum, everywhere; while I was doing this, my poor mind was tortured by the privation of my sweet Jesus, and my poor heart was tormented, because as much as I called Him with my love, I could find Him no more. Oh, God! What pain! I thought to myself. ‘How is it possible that Jesus no longer listens to me? And while

I fill Heaven and earth with my 'I love you's', none of my 'I love you's' aims at Him to wound Him, and as it would make Him feel my wound, my torture, my torment, in feeling my very pains, so as not to feel them He would make up His mind to let Himself be found by the one who so much longs for Him?' Ah! Jesus, how much it costs me to have known You and not to possess You, to love You and not to be loved back. These are pains that cannot be described - there are no words to express them. At that moment, my dear Jesus moved in my interior, and bursting into tears, sobbing - and His sob was so strong as to resound so penetrating to the ear of my body, that I too cried together with Him - told me:

"My daughter, how can you believe that I am far away? How can you think that you are not loved back by your Jesus? Each 'I love you' of yours was one more wound to my Heart, which made Me say: 'My daughter, you make your 'I love you' resound everywhere for Me from the mountains, from the valleys, from the sea, from the flowery fields, from the sun - from everywhere.' And though hidden in you, I repeated: 'I love you, my daughter'. But I felt Myself cut to the quick when you thought that I did not love you back. This cannot be, my daughter; not to love in return is not the nature of your Jesus, nor am I able to do so; and if I am hidden in you without revealing Myself, it is my justice that hides Me and wants to punish the peoples with strong scourges. Oh! how many of them will pour upon the earth - and of all kinds, because they are irritating my justice very much. I hide from you so that it may follow its course."

Having said this, He kept silent and disappeared, and I was left so bad that I could not stop crying. Than, later on, He came back and told me:

"My daughter, the triumph of God is the human will operating in His own. This is His victory - to have that which came out of Him, come back into Himself, into His Will. As the soul operates in It, she extends within the divine boundaries, and her acts take their place in everything that is eternal. It is true that my Will is everywhere - there is not one point that can escape It, but where does It carry out Its power, Its divine operating? In the soul who lives in It. The soul who lives in It gives It the occasion for new works; she allows It to put out the beauty and the sanctity It possesses inside. It happens that which happened in Creation: Our Being existed ab eterno, but nothing could be seen outside of Ourselves before Creation, because all Our operating, Our portents and beatitudes were carried out within Ourselves; but when Our Divine Being wanted to operate outside of Ourselves, Our Will had the occasion to operate, and It issued the whole universe, with such sumptuousness, order and harmony, as to form the amazement of all generations and the triumph and victory of Our Supreme Being. The same with the soul who lives in Our Will: as she operates, she gives It the occasion to form more works worthy of It. Therefore, she is Our continuous triumph and the carrying out of Our works; she keeps the divine attitude up. So, while forming Our triumph and Our victory, at the same time the soul triumphs and conquers the Divine Will. Therefore, both one and the other are seen as victorious: God and the littleness of the creature. Do you think it is trivial that the littleness of the creature sings victory, moves a Divine Will to operate, and conquers It?"

After this, my poor mind continued to go around in the Creation, to bring before the Supreme Majesty all the acts that the Divine Will does in each created thing, and all those which It has done in the Sovereign Queen and in the Most Holy Humanity of Our Lord. Reuniting everything together, I carried them as many newborn of the Divine Will, all worthy of a God Trice Holy. It seems to me that only the works of the Divine Will can give the most beautiful homages, and worthy of a God. At that moment, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior and told me: "My daughter, how admirable, harmonious, all ordered among themselves, and of rare beauty, are the acts done by my Will. They are Our divine army which, lined up around the Supreme Being, forms Our glory, Our defense, Our happiness without end. What comes out of the Divine Fiat carries the divine seal, and as they come out, more than legitimate children of Ours, they never lose life. If you never give life to your will, you too can be called an act of the Divine Will; and as act of It, you will come to acquire the right over all of Its acts. You will take your place in Our army, you will be Our legitimate daughter and as though a sister to all the acts of Our Will, and therefore, you will have the power to unite them all together, to bring Us the glory, the happiness of all the acts of the Eternal Fiat. What a difference between one who is an act of the Divine Will and one who is not. An act of It can be a sun, a heaven, a sea of eternal love, a beatitude and happiness that never ends. What can one act of my Will not do? My Will is eternal and makes Its acts eternal, It is immense light and all of Its acts have the fullness of light; there is nothing of It which does not invest Its acts. On the other hand, one who is not act of the Divine Will - oh, how dissimilar he is! He cannot take place in the divine army, he will not be able to give joys and happinesses, his light will be so poor that he will hardly be able to look at himself, his acts, however good, because they are produced by the human will, will be like smoke that the wind disperses, or like flower that withers and dies. What a difference, my daughter, between the two."

How one who lives in the Divine Will possesses perfect balance. How the prayer done in It possesses divine power and universal strength.

I continue to live all abandoned in the Divine Fiat, following Its innumerable acts, and my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

"My daughter, one who lives in my Will has the wideness, the capacity, to be able to enclose all the acts of God within herself, therefore becoming the depository of the Divine Will. And because if this, God finds in that soul the whole of Himself with all His acts. Therefore, everything - everything is sacred in her, everything is holy, everything is light and beauty; she possesses perfect balance, divine order, and I find in her the glory of my sanctity, of my light, of my rare beauty. I look at her and I find my reflections, my dearest image created by Me, as wanted by Me; and in the excess of my love I keep repeating: "How beautiful you are - my Will has enclosed everything in you. The Creation is a pale image of you; you are more refulgent than the sun, you are more adorned than the heavens, you are lovelier than the flowery fields. You are all beautiful because the power of my Divine Volition invests you, nourishes you - is your life."

Then, pausing, He added:

"My daughter, when the soul prays in my Will, all things and all created beings stand at attention, suspend all things, make everything silent, and while they are all intent on admiring the act done in the Divine Will, all together, they follow the prayer. The power of it calls and imposes itself on everything, in such a way that all do the same thing. If all other prayers were united together in order to compare them with a simple prayer done in my Will, this one surpasses them all, because it possesses a Divine Will, an immense power, an incalculable value. I Myself feel invested by such a prayer, and as I see that it is my Will that prays, I feel Its power which identifies Me with that very prayer. So, if graces are not obtained by means of the prayer done in my Will, which is universal and divine prayer, if divine justice is not placated and scourges continue to pour upon the earth, it means that that is the Will of God, and that instead of letting those graces descend, It makes the effects of the prayer descend into souls; and if one does not obtain much with it, much less will be obtained with other prayers not done in my Will, which contain neither divine power nor universal strength.”

Then, after this, my lovable Jesus came out of my interior, and investing the whole of me, He filled me all with Himself, in such a way that I felt I was all surrounded by Jesus, and inside of Him. Then, in withdrawing, He threw Himself into my arms, leaning His head upon my breast to take rest, and as He was doing this, all created things - the sun, the heavens, the stars, the wind, the sea, the earth - in sum, everything, lined up around Jesus, and laying themselves like a bed under the members of Jesus, they all offered themselves to give Him rest. And my sweet Jesus told me:

“My daughter, if you knew all my crafting which I am doing in the interior of your soul, how I watch over each heartbeat of yours, all your affections, your words, your thoughts -in sum, everything, so as to let my Divine Will flow within the whole of you, that It may dominate and form Its Kingdom.... So much so, that after the work I do, very often I take rest in order to enjoy in you the fruit of the rest which only my Will can give Me. How beautiful is the rest It gives Me - all Our works, the things created by Us, compete among themselves to give Me rest, and I feel in you the happiness of my eternal rest, and the joy and happiness of Our works. So, my work in the Kingdom of my Will is safe, my rest is not disturbed by the noise of the human will. Behold then, the living in my Will is the true transmission of the Divine Life to the creature.”

Difference between the love of Heaven and that of the earth. How oppression weighs the soul down while the Divine Will empties her.

I continue my living in the Divine Volition, and since my sweet Jesus often deprives me of His lovable presence, I call the Sovereign Mama to my help, the Angels, the Saints, to help me and lend me their love, their adorations, that I may do from the earth what they do in Heaven, so that, drawn by the very love of Heaven, my Jesus may come to His little exiled one, to the one who so much longs for Him. But, heedless of my hard martyrdom and as though despising my sighs, my yearnings, instead of having pity on me He escapes me, perhaps contenting Himself to look from afar at my terrible state. Ah! maybe if He feels the love of Heaven in me, which He likes so much, He will come and will no longer leave me alone and abandoned for so long. But while I was speaking nonsense in my interior, my sweet Jesus, my dear Life, came out from within me, and clasping me in His arms, told me:

“My daughter, I do like the love of Heaven, but that of the earth I like more. That of the earth is always new for Me, it is new gains that I make, new glory. On the other hand, that of Heaven I already possess, no one can take it away from Me - it is all my own thing. But that of the earth I am in the act of acquiring, and many times I lose the new gains I should make, because souls not always give Me the love and the glory they should give Me.

“Now, you must know that when souls die in my grace they are confirmed in the nature of love, in the nature of glory and in the life of the Divine Will. So, in Heaven everything is nature in all the Blessed, therefore they give Me nothing more; rather, I give to them, constantly, that continuous act of joys, of happiness, of beatitudes ever new and without end. This is why I am all eyes over the earth, as though putting all Heaven aside - because Heaven is mine; and I fix on and become all attention for the soul who lives in the exile, who, even though she does not possess the nature of Heaven, wants to give Me the new gains of love, of glory and of adoration. If you knew how your love hovers around within my Will, how it rises between Heaven and earth, investing all created things, and breaching even into Heaven, up to wherever my Divine Will extends, it gives Me the new possession of the love of the creature who has let herself been invested by the power of my Supreme Fiat; and while the possession of love reaches Me, a new one she prepares - that of glory. And as you return to repeat your acts, your acts are always new for Me because, indeed, you did not have them before. Therefore, you are always new in the love, in the glory, in the adoration you give Me, because, echoing in you, my Will communicates to you that new act which It possesses by Its own nature. So, what I do in Heaven, giving to all the Blessed that new act, never interrupted, of joys and of unspeakable contentments, you are destined to give to Me from the earth, in the light and power of my Will. Therefore, be attentive on following Its rapid flight.”

As my beloved Jesus continued to deprive me of Himself, I felt so very oppressed, and I thought to myself how everything was over, and many other things which it seems useless to me to say on paper. And my lovable Jesus, placing His holy hands under my shoulders to as though take me in His arms, told me:

“My daughter, how heavy you have become - don’t you know that oppression weighs the soul down, and if I want to take you in my arms I have to make an effort to lift you? On the other hand, my Will empties the weight of nature, and Its light, removing the gloom of what is human, renders her light - light and capable of any sacrifice; and giving her the wings of love, it gives to the soul the first qualities of the Celestial Fatherland, which knows neither oppression nor darkness, but daylight without sunset and joy that never ends. And besides, what would you say if you heard the sun say: ‘Every-thing is over - I am no longer sun, because my Creator does not constantly add more light for me.’ You, I believe, would answer the sun: ‘I see you always sun, because your Maker has taken nothing away from you of the light He gave you. At the most, if He kept adding light you would have been stronger and more refulgent in your light.’ So do I answer you: ‘You are always sun, because the Sun of my Will and of the knowledges about It reigns in you as more than light.’ Neither I nor anyone else can snatch from you a single one of the many knowledges which you possess about my Eternal Fiat. And only because I do not constantly add more about It, as if what I have told you were nothing, you say: ‘Everything is over’, as if this Sun were extinguished in you? It takes too much, my daughter, to extinguish this Sun of my Will, nor will you yourself be able to escape Its eternal rays which, invading your soul, eclipse from you everything that does not belong to this Sun. Therefore, follow Its light and wait with patience for new light to come and be added, so as to render the Sun of my Will more refulgent in you.”

How the Divine Will has two characters.- incessant act and unshakeable firmness. How the human actions serve as straw for the wheat.

I was lamenting because of the privation of my sweet Jesus, and pouring out my intense sorrow, I said to myself: 'How hard His abandonment is - I feel as though I am under a press, squeezed drop by drop. Oh, Jesus! where are your promises? Where is your love? Where is the triumph of your Divine Will in my poor soul? I feel as though betrayed by You. How bitter my end is. It is not the beginning that one must look at - it is the end that says everything!' But while I was pouring myself out, my beloved Good, moving in my interior, told me:

"My daughter, my Divine Will has Its triumph in you, and this is why It squeezes you, drop by drop, under Its divine press, so that not even a drop of your will may be left in you. Poor daughter, it is a Divine and unshakeable Will that works you in order to lay Its Kingdom in you, even in your littlest acts. Therefore, patience, do not lose heart. My Divine Will has two characters: unshakeable firmness and incessant act. This is why, when the soul has given herself to It, Its work is incessant. Don't you feel Its continuous motion within yourself? And when I manifest to you one truth about It, with a mastery which is all Its own and divine, It places Its incessant motion in attitude, and It repeats it continuously within you; and while repeating it, It triumphs, because It does in you what It does within Itself of Its own nature. Is this not, then, the triumph of my Will?"

Then, afterwards, He added:

"My daughter, all human actions - working, taking food, sleeping, the pains, the encounters, now of sorrow, now of joy - are nothing other than straw. Now, wheat cannot be formed without the straw; on the contrary, the straw defends the wheat from frost, from the burning rays of the sun, from the waters, from all the intemperances of the air. Like a garment, it covers the wheat and grows with it, and only when it has formed the wheat and given life to it - then does it detach from it; and the poor straw performs and receives this detachment by dint of threshing, after it has served the wheat and given life to it. Such are the human actions: from the littlest to the greatest, they are all straws, and if one lets the wheat of my Will flow within them, they serve in an admirable way to hide and preserve the wheat of my Divine Volition; and the more the straw, the more wheat can one hope to possess. It is an enchantment, my daughter, to see a human action enclosing within itself the most pure wheat and the refulgent gold of my Divine Will. Like straws, it seems that they have primacy over the wheat, and they can boast, saying: 'It is true that we are straws, but we hide within ourselves a Divine Will which is more than wheat. We remain at Its service and give It the field, that It may be formed in our action.' On the other hand, if my Will does not flow within them, the human actions remain as straws, worthy of being burned, because they have not formed within them the pure wheat that serves the Celestial Fatherland. Now, just as the straw is detached from the wheat by dint of threshing, in the same way, the human actions are detached from the pure wheat of my Divine Will by means of death which, knocking down what is human, crushes the garment which kept the gold wheat of my Will clothed, and letting it out, it manifests whether it was wheat or straw that the soul possessed. Therefore, it is not the human actions that indicate the value of them, but the will by which they are animated. How many actions, apparently beautiful and holy, will be found as full of mud, if done for the purpose of interest; full of wind, if done for the purpose of esteem and personal glory; full of rot, if done to please creatures; full of smoke, if done out of attachment to what is human. How many things do the straws of the human actions hide; but on the last day of life, when the threshing comes and crushes the straws, it will make known everything they kept hidden inside.”

Afterwards, I continued my abandonment in the Divine Fiat, and my always lovable Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, the human will rendered man like a cracked and collapsing factory, which man had no virtue of being able to repair by himself. The Divine Maker was needed, who had built it with so much love, and who, knowing the secrets of His art, could repair it and make the vital fluid of His divine repairing strength flow into the cracks, so as to render it solid again, just as He had built it. But it is necessary that man draw near the Divine Repairer in order to receive the benefit of His art; that he let himself be handled by Him, and that he no longer let the human will act, the primary cause for his becoming a collapsing factory. Otherwise, in spite of the coming of the Celestial Constructor, man will always be cracked and collapsing factory.”

How life is in the incessant motion, how this motion produces the spring. The value of the interior acts.

I was following the Holy Divine Volition, but always with the hard nail of being without my Highest Good, Jesus; and I thought to myself: ‘What good comes to me by following the acts of the Supreme Fiat when I am without the One who issued the whole Creation with a supreme accent of His Volition? To follow His Will and not to see Him, to see His works that speak of Him and not to be clasped in His arms, is an indescribable pain, it is a wound that bleeds continuously.’ But while I was thinking of this, my beloved Jesus moved in my interior and told me:

“My daughter, life is in the continuous motion. Everything that comes from God must possess a motion; so, there is not one thing created by Us which does not move. Heavens and earth, sun and sea, they all move with such order and continuous velocity as to never stop. If they did stop, life would cease, and the good they do would also cease. At the most, they would remain like painted pictures, which are unable to do good to anyone. A good, an act, can only be called true good when it has its incessant motion. This is why Our Divine Being is perfect in all Our acts - because It has Its continuous motion, It never ceases to do and to give good; and if It did cease, which cannot be, the life of good would cease.

“Now, Our Will, life and perfect echo of Our Divine Being, is incessant motion, and therefore It is perfect good, and a good which can give itself to all. When a good is incessant, all can take it, its continuous motion makes it possess the spring of inexhaustibility. Therefore, one who must live in my Divine Will must possess the echo of my Will and, with incessant motion, follow Its acts and the good that comes to you, which places you in the order of the divine motion, moves you with enchanting rapidity, and goes around together with all created things. Your acts are inexhaustible, and all can take the good of them, because they come from the spring of the eternal Fiat. And do you think it is trivial to do a good that always springs? And this is the cause for which in creatures one cannot see true and perfect goods - because their virtues are interrupted, and as they lose the incessant motion of a virtue, the life of the good of it already ceases. They lose the taste, the pace, the strength, because they do not possess the incessant motion, and so the life of the virtue is not formed in them, nor that act which always springs, but rather, something superficial and passing. So, how can they give the good of those virtues to all, if they do not possess their life and spring themselves, which are such that, while they give to others, they are never exhausted and lose nothing? Does the sun perhaps lose anything by giving its light to all? Certainly not, because it possesses the spring of light and its motion of giving light is incessant. Therefore, my daughter, in my Divine Will your acts, your prayers, your asking for Its Kingdom, must have the incessant motion to be able to impetrate for all that the Divine Fiat be known and loved by all.”

Then, after this, I was following the Most Holy and adorable Divine Will in my interior, and my sweet Jesus added:

“My daughter, the interior acts of a soul who does the Will of God are free from any evil and shadow of defect. God alone is witness of an interior act and while no one points at her, no one looks at her, no one speaks of her, God, as witness of the work of the creature, there where no one is given to penetrate, in the interior of the creature, points at her, looks at her, and speaks to the whole of Heaven, and many times also to the earth, of the great portents of the interior work of this creature. To be pointed at, to be looked at by God, to make Him speak of a creature, is the greatest act and honor that she can receive, and cannot be excluded from the great works which God will accomplish through her. The interior acts are wounds, darts, arrows to the divine bosom, they are celestial messengers which are released from the creature and fly to her Creator, bringing the mark of glory, of love and of pleasing only the One who has created her. In fact, who sees, who listens to, who appreciates all the things you do in your interior? No one. I alone am witness of them, listen to them, appreciate them. This is why in Our greatest works We choose souls who show nothing great and marvelous on the outside, but interior souls, who are unblemished either by human views, or by the clamorous noise, the glory, the self-esteem which the external works bring. In fact, in Redemption We choose a simple Virgin, without external splendors, but She had Her interior speaking, and was able to say so much, one on one with Her Creator, as to conquer Him and obtain Redemption. Now, We have done the same for the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat: We have chosen another one, all interior, who will say much, and will pray God to concede the longed for Kingdom. The external acts, also good and holy, cannot please Me like the interior acts, because the external ones are almost always impregnated with the air of self-glory, with human esteem, and sometimes times also with blame. And a poor heart feels within itself the effects of the praises or of the blame, after it has made sacrifices, and what is human enters the field and invests the acts of the creature with its tenebrous air, and therefore they do reach Me as pure as they should be. On the other hand, an interior act is neither blamed nor praised by anyone, and what is human has no way in. Since she does not feel watched by anyone, to the soul herself it seems that she does nothing great, and therefore her acts are all impregnated with celestial air. Therefore, be attentive, and let your interior always go around in my Will.”

There is no greater happiness than a king who serves his queen, and a queen who serves her king. When the Divine Will reigns, It is like the beating of the heart. Example of father and son.

I was feeling highly afflicted because of the usual privations of my beloved Jesus; but as usual as this pain is, it becomes more intense and ever more harsh, to the point of rendering me petrified. Now, while I was as though immersed in the sea of this pain, I was given a refreshment, and in that ice-cold water I looked at the Will of the One who kept me tortured, and yet loved me, as He had prepared that refreshment. And as I was bringing it to my lips, Jesus moved in my interior in the act of stretching out His hand in order to sustain the glass, to help me drink Himself, saying: "I am serving my queen - she serves Me, who am her King, and I serve her, who is my queen. In fact, one does my Will and lives in It is always ready to do what I want, therefore she serves her King faithfully and in an admirable way; and since my Will is in her, I serve my own Will which rendered her queen." On hearing this, I burst into tears of unspeakable tenderness, and I thought to myself: 'Queen! queen! And He leaves me so alone and abandoned to the point of letting me reach the extremes? And then He comes up with something new to leave me for even longer. Ah! Jesus! Jesus! Do You want to make fun of me?'

But while I was pouring out my sorrow, He moved again in my interior, and added:

"My daughter, I am not making fun of you. On the contrary, I tell you that there is no greater happiness than when the king serves the queen, and the queen the king. And if the queen were to be infirm, if she saw herself being served by the king, sustained in his arms, being fed the food by his hands - for there is nothing that the king does not do for her, allowing no servant to come close and serve his queen - the infirmity would change into happiness for the infirm queen; and in seeing herself being touched, served, sustained, watched over by the king, she feels as though his love were giving life back to her. If this happens in the natural order - that a king is happier to be served by the queen, a father by his daughter, while the daughter was served by her father or by her mama; and this, because the king, the father, the daughter, have love as the first act in the service they offer, and would want to give their lives with their services; and this is why they are made happy in their pains, which does not happen with servants, and this is why the service of servants is always harsh - much more so in the supernatural order: one who lives in my Will is my queen, and her first act is love, and in all the acts she does, she gives Me her life. Oh! how happy I feel in her acts - because those are the acts of my very Will that serve Me. And in seeing you infirm because of Me, I feel happy to serve you in the very things created by Me, wanting to give you my very life in each one of them; and in giving it to you, I feel my happiness being doubled, because I feel my life in the one who possesses my Will, which made her a queen to Me. Not so when the things created by Me serve one who does not do my Will: these are servants, because they do not possess a royal Will, and - oh! how hard it is for Me to serve servants. If a king serves his queen, he does not degrade himself, on the contrary, he acquires glory and heroism; but having to serve servants - what sorrow and humiliation!"

After this, I was following the acts in the Divine Volition, and I thought to myself: 'What an impression have the privations of my sweet Jesus caused on my poor soul - I no longer feel those fervors so ardent of before, but everything is coldness. Oh, God! what a double-edged knife is your privation. On one hand it cuts, on the other it kills, and with its cuts it removes and destroys everything, and leaves such nakedness, even of the holiest things, that one can just barely live, and only to fulfill the Supreme Volition.’ But while I was thinking this, my beloved Jesus moved in my interior, telling me:

“My daughter, yet, everything you used to feel before in your interior entered into the order of ordinary grace. Fervors, sensibilities, are ordinary grace, which I give to all according to their dispositions, and which are subject to interruptions - to now rising and now dying, and therefore they constitute neither life nor solidity of sanctity. On the other hand, in my Will I have invested you with extraordinary grace, which is firmness in good and incessant act - virtues which are exclusively divine. Do you think that your continuous round in the works of your Creator is something trivial or ordinary?; as well as the firmness of your will in Mine, only to follow the acts of my Eternal Will? In the face of my Will, fervors, sensibilities, have nothing to do with It; they are like little lights before the great sun, which have no reason to exist; and if they do exist, it is for doing nothing. My Will absorbs everything and makes the soul become all of God, who wants to make of her another Sun. One who is Sun wants everyone to become sun. It would not be something worthy of it to form little lights - It would go out of Its nature. And you are there crying over the little lights and do not think that a Sun invests you, giving you firmness and unshakeability. More so, since when my Will reigns in the soul, It is like the beating of the heart, which has the primary act of life in all the members; It is like life, motion, strength, heat - everything comes from the heartbeat. If the heartbeat ceases, life, motion and everything else cease.

“Now, as my Will beats in the soul, It beats and gives Divine Life, It beats and gives Its incessant motion, Its strength which is never exhausted; It beats and gives Its inextinguishable light. How beautiful it is to see the continuous beating of my Will in the creature. It is the greatest miracle that exists between Heaven and earth, it is the perfect order between Creator and creature. With the soul in whom the heartbeat of my Will reigns, I act like a Father who keeps his son always with himself, he communicates his ways to him, he feeds him his words, he would want to palpitate in his son in order to give him his intelligence, his life; and when he is sure that his son is another him and can do what he knows how to do, he says to him: ‘My son, go out into the field of life and do what your father has done until now. Work, take care of our businesses, take upon yourself the whole commitment of the family. You will be the repetition of my life and I will rest; I will accompany with my heartbeat that you may feel within yourself the life of your father and may carry it out faithfully, as I wait for you in my rest, to enjoy together the fruits of your toils.’

“More than as Father do I act with the soul in whom my Will reigns. Rather, a father cannot give his heartbeat to his son, while I give it to her - I keep her always together with Me, I teach her my divine ways, I communicate to her my secrets, my strength; and when I am sure, I fling her into the field of the life of my Will, that she may take on the whole commitment of the human family, and I say to her: ‘My daughter, let Me rest, I entrust everything to you; but in my rest I will wait for you often, to enjoy the fruit of the work you do in the Kingdom of my Will.’ Don’t you want, then, that your Father, your Jesus, may rest while you work in my place, but always with my heartbeat?” And I: ‘My Jesus, but You almost no longer tell me anything, and not only it seems to me that I have to work alone without You, but I miss your word that lays for me the way which I must cover in the Kingdom of your Will.’ And Jesus added: “My daughter, my word is life, and when I speak I must see whether this life can have life in the creatures. If it is not so, I do not expose a Divine Life of Mine if there is no one to receive it; and it is enough for Me to see even one single creature disposed, to release this Divine Life from Myself, within my word. This is why many times I do not speak because I do not see anyone disposed to live the life of my word; more so, since with you I have no need of words to make Myself understood - it is enough to look at each other in order to understand each other; isn't it true? You understand Me and I understand you."

How Creation and Redemption are divine territories given to creatures. The love of Jesus in making her sleep. How light and heat are inseparable from each other.

I was following the Divine Will in Its acts, and my beloved Jesus followed me with His gaze to see whether I would visit all of His works; and He told me:

"My daughter, I am watching to see whether you visit all my territories. You must know that Creation is a territory of mine; Redemption is added territories; even more, my childhood, my tears and baby wailings, my prayers, my works, my steps, my hidden and public life, are as many apartments of mine which I formed within my territories. There is not one thing I did and pain I suffered, which I did not use to expand the boundaries of the divine territories in order to give them to creatures. Now, every day I look at whether at least the little daughter of my Will visits all my territories and enters each of my apartments; and when I see you begin Your round to visit the sun, the stars, the heavens, the sea and all created things, I feel that my territories, which with so much love I formed and gave to creatures, are not abandoned -there is at least one who visits them; and if she visits them, it means that she loves them and has accepted the gift. And I anxiously wait for you to continue your visits in Bethlehem, the place in which I was born, and visit my tears, my pains, my steps, my works, the miracles I performed, the Sacraments I instituted, my Passion, my Cross - in sum, everything. And I make you aware if anything escapes you, that you make your little visit, be it even in passing; and oh! how content I am that my apartments are all being visited. My daughter, what a sorrow it is to give and not to be recognized, to give and have no one who takes the good one wants to give. And do you know what I do? When I see you, all by yourself, going around throughout all my territories and visiting my apartments, I give you all the goods which are in them, in such a way that, what I should give to others, I centralize in you. So, I give you everything and you give Me everything. In fact, in order to be able to give everything to the soul, I must find everything in her, and in order for her to be able to give Me everything, she must possess everything. One who has everything, has the capacity of being able to give Me everything and to receive everything."

Afterwards, I was feeling such profound sleepiness as to be unable even to write, and I thought to myself: 'Why this sleepiness, when vigil has almost always been nature in me?' And my beloved Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

"My daughter, just as a doctor makes the poor patient who has to undergo surgery fall asleep, so as not to let him feel all the harshness of the pain of the cuts he has to make on the poor infirm one, in the same way, I, Celestial Doctor, who loves you so much, in order not to let you feel the continuous press of my privation, its repeated blows, the harshness of its painful cuts, make you fall asleep, so that, in breaking your martyrdom, sleep may give you a little bit of respite from a pain so intense. But while you sleep, your Jesus sustains you in His arms, and I continue my work in your soul. And not only this, but I make you sleep because my justice, too irritated by the offenses of creatures, may do its course in striking the creatures, and, by sleeping, you may not only leave it free in its course, but may be spared the sorrow of seeing its just blows over the ungrateful world. Oh! if you could see how your Jesus embraces you delicately so as not to let you feel the touch of my embraces; how I kiss you so very softly, that you may not feel the touch of my lips; how I keep repeating, so very quietly: 'My poor daughter, my poor daughter, what a hard martyrdom you are in', so that the sound of my voice may not wake you up; and how, without clamor of voices and motions, I continue the work of the Kingdom of my Divine Fiat in your soul - you would not say any more that I no longer love you as before; on the contrary, you would say to Me: 'Oh! how so very much does Jesus love Me. And if He makes me fall asleep, it is so that I may not suffer more'."

After this, I was following the Divine Volition, and my sweet Jesus added:

"My daughter, in order to form a greater light it takes more heat. Light and heat are inseparable from each other. If there is light, there must be heat, because the nature of light is heat, and the nature of heat is light. However, if one wants great light, it takes much heat; they are both equal forces, and together they form their life. Now, one who does my Will and lives in It receives the life of light and of heat from her Creator; and as the soul thinks about my Divine Will, she forms the heat; as she speaks about It, she adds more heat; as she operates in order to fulfill It, she doubles the heat -, as she walks on Its ways, she multiplies the heat - and the light becomes brighter, stronger, and extends and expands more. So, there is not one part of her being which does not spread rays of vivifying light; more so, since she possesses the source of the life of light which is my Supreme Fiat. From this you will be able to comprehend how creatures possess as much light and heat for as much contact as they have with my Will and for as much as they try to fulfill It in their actions. And if it is not so, even if one sees them doing good, it is a good without life, without light and without heat; it is superficial virtues which form a painted light and heat, and which, when touched, are found cold and without the good of a vivifying light that gives life. And many times the works without my Divine Will, on the occasions, reveal how they were nourished by passions and vices which were colored by that apparent good."

Then He kept silent, and I tried to abandon all of myself in His Will in order to follow It; and my Highest Good, Jesus, continued saying:

"My daughter, in creating man, Our Divinity bound him completely to Us. So, his memory, intellect and will were bonds of union; his eyes, mouth, hearing, heart, hands and feet, were bonds; and if the creature lives in my Will, as she places each of these bonds in attitude, she receives the attitude of the Divine Life. So, she is formed and develops like a little plant which, while possessing the fecundity of its earth, full of vital humors, watered with pure and abundant water, is all exposed to the beneficial rays of the sun, receiving its continuous life. Oh! how well it grows, how enjoyable are its fruits, how sought for, loved and appreciated. In the same way, the soul, by receiving the continuous Life of God by means of all these bonds which, more than solar rays, communicate themselves over each part of her being, is preserved as fecund earth, full of vital and divine humors which, more than blood, flow within her. How well she grows - she is the beloved, the one who is sought for by Heaven and earth. Her life, her works, her words, more than fruits, are enjoyable for all. God Himself takes pleasure in enjoying fruits so precious. Therefore, how can you fear that I may leave you if you are bound to Me with so many bonds, from which you receive continuous life?"

How incessant prayer conquers God. Uproaring of nature. The three little fountains. Preparations for world wars.

I felt myself in the terrible nightmare of His privation. I was oppressed, I agonized, I felt so ill that I could take no more. And my adorable Jesus, after having pressed me well under a press so painful, having compassion for my extreme affliction, clasped me tightly in His arms, telling me:

“Poor daughter, how you suffer. Courage, I do not want you to reduce yourself to these extremes you oppress yourself too much. Yet, you should be consoled, your interior is a continuous speaking before the Divine Majesty, and a continuous act. And a speaking ever unceasing before God, wanting the Kingdom of my Divine Fiat, brings with itself the certainty of victory. So, either you have won or you are about to win. A continuous doing and speaking acquires the nature of a winning power before God, and it is as if God would lose the resisting strength, while the soul acquires the winning strength. An exchange takes place: God is disarmed and the soul is armed with divine weapons, but the Supreme Being is not given to being able to resist. Does that asking Me continuously for the Kingdom of my Eternal Will seem trivial to you? - going around through the whole Creation, and, over and over again, in all the acts I did in Redemption, as well as in the seas of the acts of love and of sorrow of the Sovereign Queen of Heaven, to ask for my Kingdom? You seek nothing for yourself, and you go round and round, asking over and over again that my Divine Will be known, and that It dominate and reign. Not a shadow of what is human enters into this, nor any personal interest; it is the holiest and most divine prayer and act; it is prayer of Heaven, not of the earth, and therefore the purest, the most beautiful, the invincible one, which encloses only the interest of the divine glory. Until now no one has prayed Me with such insistence. My Mama did pray Me with such insistence for the sake of Redemption, and She was victorious; but for the Kingdom of my Will - no one until now with such insistence as to conquer a God. Therefore, your insistence says much, the very uproaring of all nature says much. In these times, all the elements, uproaring, are bearers of goods, and this is necessary to reorder my Kingdom. It is the greatest thing, and it takes the uproaring in order to purify the earth. Therefore, I do not want you to oppress yourself too much, but rather keep on with your continuous flight, with your insistence, so as to acquire the complete strength to win the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat.”

So I continued praying, and I felt a hand being placed on my head, and from this hand three little fountains came out; one of them emitted water, another fire, and the other one blood, which inundated the earth, and people, cities and kingdoms were swept away. It was horrifying to see the evils that will come, and I prayed my beloved Jesus to placate Himself, asking Him for some sufferings so that the peoples might be spared. And Jesus told me:

“My daughter, water, fire and blood will unite together and will make justice. All the nations are taking up arms to make war, and this irritates divine justice more, and disposes the elements to take revenge against them. Therefore, the earth will pour out fire, the air will send fountains of waters, and the wars will form fountains of human blood, in which many will disappear, and cities and regions will be destroyed. What wickedness - after so many evils of a war they have gone through, they are preparing another one, more terrible, and they are trying to move almost the entire world, as if it were one single man. Does this not say that sin has entered deep into their bones, to the point of transforming their very nature into sin?"

Oh! how ill I felt in hearing this, and I prayed Jesus to put justice aside, letting mercy enter the field; and if He wanted a victim, I was ready, as long as the people would be spared. '...And if You do not want to concede this to me, take me away from the earth, for I can no longer stay here. Your privations give me continuous death, the scourges torture me; and then, how can I live when I cannot spare our brothers the pains through my pains? Jesus! Jesus! Pity on me, pity on all - placate Yourself and make your little daughter content.' At that moment, I don't know how, I felt myself being invested by pains which I had not felt for some time. I am unable to say what I went through; and this gives me hope that the grave evils may be held back at least in part.

How all created things possess the unity of the Divine Will. Difference between the test of Adam and that of Abraham.

I was going around through the whole Creation according to my usual way, to unite myself to the acts of the Supreme Will, which It exercises in It; and my always lovable Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

"My daughter, all created things possess the unity of my Divine Fiat. While It is divided into many acts, these acts are bound together and inseparable from one another in the unity of the same Divine Will. Look at the sun: its light is an act distinct from the other created things, but its light binds all; it invests the earth and binds it with its light, and the earth binds itself to it, drinks in large gulps from the fount of light, receives its effects, its heat, its ardent kisses, and forms one single act with the sun. The light invests the air and becomes inseparable from it; it invests the water, and the water plunges into the light and they bind themselves to each other in their unity. In sum, since one is the Will that dominates them, all created things are so bound among themselves as to become inseparable, and one could not be without the other. Now, the soul who lives in my Divine Fiat possesses the unity of It, and therefore she is inseparable from all the acts which the unity of my Will issues. The unity of It binds her to God, and she gives Me the glory of the divine works; it binds her to the Angels and to the Saints, and she gives Me the angelic glory and that of the Saints; it binds her to all Creation, and she gives Me the glory of the heavens, of the sun, of the sea - in sum, of everything in which my Will operates; she is inseparable from it and forms her unity with it. Therefore, only one who lives in my Will can give Me the love, the glory of all Creation, and of all Redemption; there is not one act of It from which the soul is separated. The other creatures might say it with words, but only one who lives in my Volition possesses the deeds."

Then I continued my round in the Supreme Volition, and since I had first offered the first acts of Adam when he possessed the unity with the Supreme Will, so that I too might unite myself to those perfect acts which he did at the beginning of Creation, and then I had moved on to unite myself with the heroism of Abraham, I thought to myself. 'What divine wisdom! Of Adam it is only said that he was the first man created by God, that he sinned and cast the human family into the maze of all evils; and then nothing else is said about him in the many years he lived. Could Our Lord not return to make some other test and ask of him some other sacrifice in order to test his faithfulness? And while Adam is put into oblivion, He calls Abraham, and after testing him and finding him faithful, He puts him on display, makes him the head of the generations, and he is spoken about with so much glory and honor.' Now, while I was thinking this, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior and told me:

"My daughter, these are the dispositions of my infinite Wisdom. It is my usual way that when I ask of the creature a small sacrifice for her good and, ungrateful, she denies it to Me, I no longer want to trust her, I dismiss my designs to raise her to great things, and I leave her like a creature put into oblivion, which no one points to because of either great works or heroism, whether for God, for herself or for the peoples. Then, you must distinguish what I wanted from Adam - the little sacrifice of depriving himself of a fruit - and it was not granted to Me. How could I trust him and ask of him a greater sacrifice? On the other hand, I did not ask of Abraham a fruit as sacrifice, but first I asked him to go into a foreign land in which he was not born - and he promptly obeyed Me; and then I wanted to trust him more, I lavished grace upon him, and I asked of him the sacrifice of his only son, whom he loved more than himself - and he promptly sacrificed him to Me. From this I knew he was up to it, and I could trust him - I could entrust everything to him. It can be said that he was the first repairer to whom the scepter of the future Messiah was entrusted, and therefore I raised him to head of the generations, to God's great honor, as well as his own and of the peoples.

"The same happens in all creatures. It is my usual way to ask for small sacrifices - depriving oneself of a pleasure, of a desire, of a small interest, of a vanity, or detaching oneself from something which seems to do one no harm. These small tests serve as little supports on which to place the great capital of my grace in order to dispose them to accept greater sacrifices. And when the soul is faithful to Me in the small tests, then I abound in grace and ask for greater sacrifices, so as to be able to abound yet more in giving, and I make of her a portent of sanctity. How many sanctities begin from a small sacrifice; and how many, after denying Me a small sacrifice, as it seemed to them that it was something of no importance, have remained scrawny in good, cretinous in comprehending it, weak in walking on the way that leads to Heaven. Poor ones, they can be seen crawling and licking the earth in a way that arouses pity. Therefore, my daughter, it takes greater attention to small sacrifices than to great ones, because the small ones are the strength of the great, dispose God to give grace, and the soul to receive it."

Everything which is done in the Divine Will becomes universal property. What it means to go around in the divine works.

My living in the Divine Will is continuous, and while I was following Its innumerable acts, my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

"My daughter, everything which the creature does in my Divine Will is universal property. In fact, since my Will is property of God, everything which is done in the Divine Fiat becomes divine property. And since the Supreme Being, by nature, by right, by creative power, as the Creator of all things, is the only universal Owner of everything, everything that the soul does in my Will acquires universal rights, and everything that is rendered universal becomes property of all. So, everyone can take that which is rendered universal. More so, since in giving themselves to all, the universal properties of God never decrease; they give and they lose nothing. Does the sun perhaps lose anything by giving its light to all? Or, do creatures enjoy its light less because all of them receive it? The sun loses nothing, and creatures enjoy its light just as much, whether there were one creature alone, or it is all of them who receive it. Does God perhaps lose anything because He gives Himself to All? Or, do creatures receive less because He is the God of all? Not at all -neither One nor the other lose anything. Now, what glory, what honor does the soul who lives in my Will and operates in It not give Me, as she lays her acts within the universal properties of God, in such a way that, more than sun, all can take the goods of her acts? And what glory is it not for her, as, more than sun, she invests all, and with her light goes around all to feed them her light her acts, her love?"

At that moment I saw as if beloved Jesus were setting off to leave me, and I cried out loudly: 'Jesus, what are You doing? Do not leave me, for I don't know how to live without You!' And Jesus, turning to me, told me:

"My daughter, can I leave my Divine Will, my acts, my possessions? I cannot. Therefore, do not fear for I do not leave you." And I: 'Yet, my Love, You leave me. How many times I go round and round throughout the whole Creation and I do not find You. Then I continue my round through all your works of Redemption, hoping to find the One whom I love, but in vain. I reach even into the seas of the acts of the Sovereign Queen, thinking that You may be there with our Mama, but - no, my searches end up in the sorrow of not finding You; so much so, that the thought comes to me of not going around in all your works when I do not find the One who gives me life and is everything to me.' And Jesus, interrupting my speaking, added: "My daughter, if you do not do your complete round in all Our works and in those of the Queen of Heaven... do you know what it means to go around in the Creation and in everything that belongs to Us? It means to love, to appreciate, to possess Our works, and I would not feel fully happy if I saw that the little daughter of my Will does not possess what I possess, and is not aware of, nor enjoys all my riches. I would find many voids in you, which are not in Me -voids of complete love, voids of light voids of full knowledges of the works of your Creator. So, your happiness would not be full, and not finding the fullness of everything in you, I would feel your voids and your halved happiness. In the same way, if our Queen Mama saw that you do not possess Her seas of graces, She would feel that Her little daughter is not fully rich, nor happy, My daughter, to have one single Divine Will as life and not to possess the same things cannot be. Wherever It reigns, the Divine Will wants to possess everything that belongs to It - It does not want disparity. Therefore, you must possess within yourself what It possesses in Me and in the Virgin Queen, and your going around in all Its works serves as confirmation of Its reigning in you. And besides, don't you yourself know how many things you learn in going around in all the works of my Supreme Fiat? And as many things as It manifests to you, so many possessions does It give you. If one who lives in Our Will did not possess all Our goods, it would happen as to a father who is rich and happy, while his son does not enjoy all his riches and is not happy like him. Would this father not feel the fullness of his happiness break because of his son? This will be the basis, the substance, the beautiful characteristic of the Kingdom of my Divine Fiat: one the Will, one the love, one the happiness, one the glory between Creator and creature."

How Jesus wants to end it with the world. The power of what is done in the Divine Will in order to placate divine justice.

As I was in my usual state, my adorable Jesus came all in a hurry, and throwing His arms around my neck, He clasped me so very tightly, telling me: "My daughter, I end it with the world - I can take no more. The -offenses, the pains they give Me -are too many, therefore it is necessary that I destroy them." I trembled in hearing this, and I said to Him: 'My Love and my Life, of course You suffer very much and can take no more -because You want to suffer alone. But if You shared your pains with me, You would suffer less and would not reach the point of no longer being able to bear the poor creatures. Therefore, let me take part in your pains, let us share them together, and You will see how You will be able to bear them still. Hurry, do not suffer alone any longer - try, O Jesus. You are right, You suffer very much, and this is why I pray You - let us share them together, and placate Yourself.'

Then, after much insistence, my sweet Jesus let me suffer - but those were the shadows of His pains; and yet, I felt as though being destroyed, crushed. But I am unable to say what I suffered, and besides, about certain things it is better to keep silent. Then, as though tired of His long suffering, Jesus hid within me in order to find some relief, and I felt myself being invested completely by Jesus. I saw the eyes of Jesus everywhere within me, and He told me that those eyes were tired of looking at the earth, and He was looking for shelter. The light of the eyes of Jesus fixed on various points of the earth, and the evils committed in those places were so many that that light incited Him to destroy them. I prayed Him to spare them, placing His blood, His pains, His life, His eternal Will before Him; and Jesus, all goodness, told me:

"My daughter, the power of the prayers, of the acts, of the pains suffered in my Will is unreachable. While you were praying and suffering, my blood, my steps, my works were praying, my pains were being multiplied and repeated. So, all that is done in It gives Me the occasion to repeat again what I did while being on earth. And this is the greatest act in order to placate divine justice."

Then, continuing my round in the Divine Volition, and not finding my sweet Jesus, I was lamenting within myself, and saying to myself: 'How can it be that Jesus no longer comes so often as before, and while He tells the wonders of His Will and where one who lives in It can reach, instead of coming more often, He comes with more delay?' Now, while I was thinking this, my beloved Jesus moved in my interior and told, me:

"My daughter, my Humanity hides within you, and I give place and large field to my Divine Will to let It operate freely, and to let It form its Kingdom. There was once the free time in which my Humanity had Its field of action in you, and therefore It was always with you and by you; and my Divine Will let Me do it, so that I might prepare you to receive the field of action made more extensive by the interminable Fiat. And so I must let It do it; more so, since It does not prevent Me from remaining with you, because we are inseparable; and while being with you, I delight in binding your soul like a tiny little bird with the thread of light of my Will, and I make you fly in the immensity of It, flinging you into Its innumerable acts, keeping in my hands the thread that holds you bound.

And you, wandering away within Its acts, lose sight of Me, while I am waiting for you to follow all the acts of my Divine Will to then pull the thread behind you. Before, you would not follow all of Its acts; you would follow the small circle of the acts of my Humanity, which is small in comparison to the acts of my Divine Volition; and this is why each act and pain of yours would make you encounter your Jesus, and I was all intent on making you copy my Humanity. Therefore, it was necessary that I keep the brush in my hand in order to form my image in you, to dispose the canvas of your soul to receive the vivid colors, dipped in the light of my Divine Fiat. That which was necessary before is not necessary now; however, this does not mean that I am not with you. We live together within the eclipse formed by the light of an eternal Will, and Its light is so great as to eclipse us and make us to lose each other. But if the light is dimmed, I can see you and you can see Me, and we find each other as if we had never been separated.”

Relations between the branches and the vine. The soul, depository of the Divine Will.

While I was praying, I found myself outside of myself, and with my sweet Jesus in my arms. Claspings Him tightly to my heart, I said to Him: ‘Tell me, my Love, what are the relations between You and me?’ And Jesus, all goodness, told me:

“My daughter, do you want to know? The relations that pass between you and Me are like the relations that pass between the branches and the vine. The vine forms the branches, and they receive the vital humor from the vine in order to vegetate, to clothe themselves with leaves and with grapes. So, there is such union between the vine and the branches, that the branches can neither be formed nor have life without the vine, and the vine would make no impression nor display of itself, nor would it give any fruit without the branches. Therefore, there are such relations between the two of them, such bonds of union, that they form the same life and are inseparable from each other. And if they separate, the vine remains sterile, without display and without fruit, and the branches lose their life and wither. Now, the vine is your Jesus and you are the branch. The relations between you and Me are inseparable; one is the blood that circulates in our veins, one the Will, one the heartbeat. I form your life, and you form my glory and my fruit, and I delight in resting in the shade of the thick leaves of your branch, and in picking the grapes of my vine, and in enjoying them as I please.”

And I: ‘But, tell me more, my Life: and your Will. - how is It in me?’ And Jesus added with unspeakable sweetness:

“My daughter, my Will is in you as the depository of all Its acts. In fact, when It does one act my Will does not deposit it outside of Itself, the space, the decency, the sanctity would be lacking, as well as everything that is needed in order to preserve Its acts. This is why It cannot place them anywhere else but within Itself. Who can ever have the space to receive all the heavens with their stars? The sun with the expanse of its light? The sea with the vastness of its waters? The earth with the multiplicity of its plants? No one. Therefore, in order to be able deposit Its own acts, my Divine Will Itself is needed. Now, since my Will is in you, It makes the deposit of all Its acts within you, because within Its Fiat It finds magnitude and sanctity worthy of Itself If you knew what the contentment of my Eternal Fiat is, in finding in the creature the space in which It can deposit Its acts - which is their primary cause, because for the creature were they done! Therefore, all the acts of my Divine Will are in you, and from you they come out, bringing with them the glory which is due to them. Oh! how requited It feels in finding, in all of Its acts, the creature giving glory to Its light, to Its sanctity, to Its immensity; and in finding her kiss, glory, love, It feels so drawn as to form yet more beautiful acts, worthy of my Eternal Fiat, only for love of the one in whom It can make the deposit of them, so as to receive her new kiss, her love, her glory. This is why wherever my Will is, there is everything: there is heavens, sun, sea and everything. Nothing can It lack of all Its works; It contains everything, It preserves everything, It has room for everything, so as to enclose everything within Itself."

Sorrow of the Divine Will in each created thing. The conception of Jesus. The love of the soul.

I was following the acts of the Supreme Volition according to my usual way. But while I was doing this, my sweet Jesus came out from within my interior; He was so very afflicted and weary, and was sighing with intense sorrow. I said to Him: 'What is the matter - what is it, my Love? Why are You so afflicted and sorrowful?' And Jesus:

"My daughter, if you knew how many sorrows my Will receives, you would cry with me. In all Creation my Will has Its motion and Its continuous act; It encompasses everything, and in all created things It holds out Its incessant act to each creature. But not finding Its own Will in them in order to give Its act - on the contrary, It finds human wills as though covered with mud - It is forced to place Its act in order to preserve them. It feels tortured by the sorrow of placing in the mud the nobility, the sanctity, the purity of Its divine acts. It does not find the cortege of Its own Divine Will in Its act which It deposits in the creature, and It suffers intensely; and I feel Its sorrow in each of Its acts, as well as in each act which It allows the creatures themselves to do. If the creature speaks, operates and walks, it is my Divine Will that makes Itsself primary motion of her word, work and step; and yet, It is not looked at, It is put aside as if my Volition were extraneous to her, while It holds the vital and essential part of her act. Oh! how It grieves in each act of creatures, in seeing Itsself neither recognized, nor loved, nor looked at. There is nothing in Creation which my Will does not do: in the sun It does Its act of incessant light in order to give light to creatures, and It looks for Its own Volition in them in order to receive the cortege and the glory for Its light; and not finding it, It grieves, because It does not find in them that which matches Its light - on the contrary, It finds in them darkness and coldness which offend Its light and Its heat. What sorrow! My Volition does Its continuous act in the air, and breathing in It, It forms a vital act in the air, such that, as creatures breathe it, they receive life. But while It gives life, It does not find in them the breath of Its own Divine Volition which, breathing together with the creature, would form Divine Life in her. What sorrow - to give life, and not to be able to form it in them. My Will forms the food, It keeps so many elements in exercise - the earth, the wind, the sun, the air, the water, the seed - in order to form this food and give it to creatures, so as to find Its own Will in them. But - no, it is in vain, and Its sorrow becomes more intense.

"What does my Will not do in the Creation? There is nothing in which It does not hold Its primary act of life; and It runs and runs incessantly toward the creature. It runs in the wind, in the water, in the earth, in the flowery fields, in the waves of the sea, in the outstretched heavens everywhere; and It runs in order to find Its Will in creatures; and not finding It, It feels a sorrow in all things, It feels Its own acts being snatched away from Itself without serving Its own Volition. Oh! if the creature could read the characters of my Divine Fiat - in everything she sees, hears, touches and takes, she would read the incessant sorrow of this Volition of Mine, which runs and will always run only to find my Will in them, the only purpose for which man and all Creation were created. And if It preserves the creature, it is so as to reach Its purpose and give respite to so long a sorrow. This is the reason for all my cares in order to make my Divine Will known, that It may reign and dominate. Everything will be given to Its children, because they alone will remove the characters of sorrow and will place the characters of joy, of glory, of happiness in all created things, because they will receive Divine Will through them, and Divine Will will they let It find within themselves, rendering the just homages and the glory which is due to the acts that my Will exercise in all Creation.”

Then, I continued to follow the acts of the Supreme Volition, and as I arrived at the point at which the Sovereign Queen conceived in Her most pure womb, I said to myself: ‘The Height of my Celestial Mother provided Her blood, Her love and the Divine Will reigning in Her in order to form the conception of the Word within Herself I too want to provide my love, my pains and the Divine Will reigning in me while She conceives in Her womb, so that I too may place of my own in the conception of Jesus, so as to adore the Eternal Fiat in such a great act, and also so that, since I have given of my own, He may be conceived in me.’ But while I was doing this, I thought to myself: ‘These are my usual strange things, but, after all, it is love that I want to give to Jesus, it is His very Divine Will for the honor of His conception.’ And Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, it is I who moves your soul to do what I want, and many times I do not even tell you the reason. You must know that my Divine Will had Its first act in the conception of Me, Eternal Word, and your love and your acts are acts of justice, and are necessary for the conception of the Divine Will in the Humanity of your Jesus, because the first Kingdom It laid was in my Humanity. Now, in order to give you the right that It might reign in you, with justice It demanded your love while It conceived in my Humanity. And since for my Supreme Fiat there is no past nor future, but everything is present, while I conceived in the Sovereign Queen, I conceived in your love, in your pains, in that very Volition which was to reign in you. So, now you do nothing but give It Its rights, providing to It what is needed so as to have It conceive in you, and for you to receive the rights to have It lay Its Kingdom and take in hand the scepter of command with absolute dominion. So, what to you seems nothing and something strange, enters into the first act of the Divine Will, and your Jesus, looking at you and taking you by the hand, takes you into that act in which He conceived in the maternal womb in order to let you place your love, your pains, so that your act may not be missing in an act so great, which gave the beginning to the Kingdom of the Divine Will in the human family. And this is the reason why in all the acts I did while on earth, I call your love to bind itself to those acts, nor do I want you to let even one escape you. These are rights of justice that my Will demands, and are links of connection in order to give you the right that It might reign in you. Therefore, follow your Jesus without any concern.”

Then, returning to think about the sorrow that the Divine Will feels in the Creation, I would have wanted as many lives for as many sorrows as It feels, so as to sweeten a sorrow so long; and I was thinking of how sorrowful is the state in which the Fiat finds Itself in creatures. And my lovable

Jesus, coming out from within my interior, told me:

“My daughter, you must know that my Divine Volition cannot admit the acts of my Will into the creature if It does not find Itself, because creatures lack the capacity, the dignity, the sanctity, the space to be able to contain even a single act of the Supreme Will. And this is another of Its sorrows; but by the nature of Its goodness It communicates Its effects. It happens as to the sun, which communicates its effects to the earth, but does not remain in it, otherwise the earth would become radiant and luminous, while, after the sun has passed by, it remains the dark body it is. However, the effects serve to preserve it and to make it produce plants, flowers and fruits. It also happens as to the water, which communicates its effects to the earth, but not the fount of its life; so much so, that when it does not rain, the earth remains dry and does not have the strength to produce a single blade of grass. This is why the earth, possessing neither the life of the sun nor that of the water, has need for the sun to communicate its daily effects, and for the water to water it very often in order to be preserved and be able to produce. The same happens for the acts of my Divine Will: It wants to give Itself so that the creature may become sun, in order to be able to form Its Life; but not finding Its Will, in Its sorrow, taken by the excesses of Its goodness, It communicates Its effects, which serve to preserve the object of Its sorrows. No one can tell you what value, what power, what sanctity, light and immensity one act of my Divine Fiat contains, except for your Jesus; and only one who possesses a Divine Volition can contain Its acts. Therefore, only the Fiat can raise the creature to the divine sanctity and nobility which gives her the likeness of her Creator; all others, however good and praised because of their ability, ingenuity, doctrine, industriousness, will remain always like earth which, possessing neither the fount of light nor of water, will be given, as poor beggars, the effects of my Supreme Will.”

Until the soul lets the Divine Will reign, she will always be unhappy and restless. Diversity of martyrdom of soul and of body.

I was crossing the sea of light of the Divine Fiat, following Its acts, and - oh! how I comprehended that all good is in It. And my always lovable Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, until the creature comes to letting my Divine Will reign within her, she will be always unhappy, always restless, because as good, holy, learned and rich as she may be, she will feel within herself that she lacks the fullness of happiness and the sea of peace, which are such that from no side may she be disturbed or her happiness broken. So, she can only be happy by half, and her peace will be halved; and because it is not whole, the half that she lacks will keep the way open to bring unhappiness and disturbance.

“See, this happens also in the natural order. Someone is rich, he lacks nothing, he possesses his ten, twenty millions or billions, but knowing that he could acquire more and be even richer, he feels restless, unhappy; and as though putting his riches aside, he is all foot, all works, all words, all eyes for the other riches he would like to acquire. Poor one, how can he be happy, peaceful, if he lacks the source of goods which says to him: ‘Rest, everything is yours, and everything you want is in your power.’ Someone else is king - but how much unhappiness under that crown: fear of losing his kingdom, hopes and yearnings to acquire more kingdoms, to rule over the whole world at the cost of wars. So, possessing a kingdom is nothing other than an open way to render the poor king unhappy and restless. A third one is learned, but not possessing all the sciences, knowing that he could possess more, he does not rest, nor does he feel happy and peaceful. How many times, before someone else who is more learned than he is, he feels humiliated, and feels the unhappiness caused by his lacking the fullness of sciences?

“Now, the same happens in the supernatural order. Someone is good, but he does not feel within himself that he possesses the source of goodness, because he feels that on some occasions his patience is weak, his firmness in good is intermittent, his charity is very often limping, his prayer is inconstant. This renders him unhappy, restless, because he sees that his happiness is not whole - it is as though halved, and the other half which is missing serves to torture him and make him unhappy. Poor one, how clearly it shows that he lacks the Kingdom of my Divine Will; in fact, if It were reigning in him, he would possess the source of goodness, which will say to him: ‘Rest, everything is in your power - source of patience, of firmness, of charity, of prayer.’ And feeling the source within himself, he would feel the sea of happiness and of peace extend inside and outside of himself, and unhappiness and restlessness would no longer find the way to enter into him. Someone else is holy, but on some circumstances he does not feel within himself the source of holiness, the light which makes one know everything, which points everything out to him - the road and the happiness. The knowledge of God is not full, the heroism of the virtues vacillate in him. So, with all his holiness he is not happy, nor peaceful, because since the total dominion of my Divine Fiat is missing, he lacks the source of the light which eclipses the seed of all evils and substitutes it with the source of happiness and of peace. This is why until creatures let my Divine Will reign, in the world there will be not even the idea, nor the true knowledge of what true peace and fullness of happiness mean. All things, however good and holy, will not have their fullness, because since the dominion and the reigning of my Supreme Volition is missing, that which communicates the source of all happinesses is missing; which is a spring, and therefore one can take from it whatever he wants and however he wants it. This is the reason for all my cares that my Will be known and form Its Kingdom in the midst of creatures - because I want to see them happy, and of that happiness with which I issued them in creating them and they were delivered from the womb of their Creator, who possesses all possible imaginable happinesses.”

After this, I was following the Holy Divine Will, and feeling myself without my sweet Jesus, I was raving, for I wanted the One who, making me agonize, was making me experience the hardest martyrdom, such that I could endure no more. And my always lovable Jesus, coming out from within my interior, told me:

“My daughter, the martyrdom of the soul is greater, more noble, and contains a value so great that, compared to that of the body -oh! how this one remains behind. The martyrdom of the body is limited, it is small before that of the soul. The soul is light, while the body is matter, and as the body is martyred, the blood which it sheds does not expand, does not diffuse far away, but wets only that little space of earth on which it finds itself, therefore, its effects are limited and circumscribed to places, to time and to people. On the other hand, that of the soul is light and when this light is filtered, placed under a press, the light diffuses, it rises, it extends more and more. Who can restrict and circumscribe the light of the sun? No one! Who can ever prevent its solar rays from investing the entire earth and make its heat felt by all? No one! There is no power against the light, there are no weapons that can wound it and kill it; all powers together are powerless against the light - whether they want it or not, they are forced to give it its course and let themselves be invested by it. And if anyone, taken by madness, should think of stopping it, with a power that is all its own and natural for it, the light would laugh at him and, winning, would spray him with more light. Now, the soul is more than sun, and when she suffers my privation, as she goes around and is crushed under its press, so many more rays does she acquire, to extend and expand more. And since this is a pain of a Divine Life, by doing the Divine Will, in this martyrdom the soul offers the most beautiful act, and her light extends so much, that no one can reach her, because it is a Divine Will that enters into this martyrdom, caused by the privation of your Jesus. Matter does not enter at all into this martyrdom, but everything is light: light is your Jesus, light is my Will, light is your soul, which form such an enchantment of light that Heaven and earth are invested by it, bringing the benefit of the heat and of the light to all. Therefore, the martyrdom of the body is nothing compared to this.”

How all Creation is invested by the acts done in the Divine Will.

I was following my round throughout the whole Creation, and I had invested heavens, sun, sea - in sum, all created things, with my ‘I love You; I adore You, I bless You’, to sing glory to my Creator in all Creation. Now, while I was doing this, my sweet Jesus moved within me and told me:

“My daughter, listen together with Me to all the harmonies of Creation. Listen: the sea murmurs, but in that murmuring a more beautiful note can be heard the ‘I love You’, the ‘I adore You’, the ‘I bless You’, the glory that the little daughter of my Will murmurs together with the sea; and making the whole sea murmur, she makes the waters speak her loving refrains to her Creator. Oh! how the sea acquires new notes of harmony, of beauty, new sounds more beautiful, because my little daughter emits her voice in my Divine Will, and renders the sea speaking, and gives the glory of the sea to her Creator. Listen: the sun too, in its light that rains down from the heavens and invests the whole earth, pours your loving notes together with it, your welcome refrains - ‘I love You, I glorify You, I bless You, I adore You’. In fact, since the Divine Will which reigns in you is one with that which reign in the sun, oh! how eloquently does the light speak, how the love of her Creator flows in the heat, how many new harmonies and notes, which are not its own, it acquires, because there is the little daughter of the Supreme Will who emits her acts in It, and making her will one with that of all Creation, she administers her voice and her acts to all created things. Listen: the nature of the sea, of the sun, do not have the virtue of speaking, and to find one who lives in my Will and communicates her voice, her acts to them, is the most amazing thing, it is the greater glory that you can give to your Creator. So, there is not one created thing which is not invested by your acts, and I delight in listening to your notes and to your repeated refrains in the heavens, in the air, in the wind, in the water that rains down, in the little bird that sings - in everything; and I want that you too, together with Me, hear your own harmonies which you form in the whole Creation.

“My daughter, the littlest motion, even the littlest breath done in the Divine Will, is all of God; and because it is His own, He finds in it everything that is His. In the act done in my Divine Fiat He finds divine sanctity, He finds His light, He finds His goodness, His love, His power; that act lacks nothing of what belongs to God. Therefore, they can be called divine acts, which are the most beautiful, the holiest and the most welcome; and before these acts, all other acts, as good as they may be, lose their value, their taste, and can never please Me. It happens as to a lord, who is extremely rich; he possesses riches, gardens, farms with the most beautiful fruits, which no one can equal. Now, since this lord knows that no one else has fruits and good things like his own, if his sons or his servants bring him the fruits of his own gardens, he appreciates them, he enjoys them with love, eating of them to his fill; but if they bring him fruits from someone else's farms, he will not enjoy them, because he will immediately notice the difference; he will find them defective, unripe and disgusting, and will lament to his own for they dared to bring him things and fruits which are not his. The same happens to Us: everything that is done in Our Divine Will is Our own - the fruits of Our boundless farms; and because they are Our own things, We find nothing in them which is unworthy of Our Divinity; and therefore We take all delights in receiving them. On the other hand, what is done outside of Our Divine Will is something extraneous to Us, it lacks the divine imprint, it is without the fullness of tastes, of light, of sanctity, of sweetness. Even in the most good things, the human will always puts the unripe part, which ruins the taste of the most beautiful things; and so, seeing that those are not things from Our farms, the fruits of Our Divine Will, We put them aside, and many times We do not even look at them. Therefore, I recommend to you: let nothing escape you which does enter the light of my Supreme Will, so that everything may be Our own and highly pleasing to Us."

How all Creation is fixed in God and is the relater of the Supreme Being. The sorrow suffered in a divine way in Jesus and in Mary. Meaning of the forty days in the desert.

I continue my flight in the Supreme Volition, which keeps all Creation as though in the palm of Its hand, and I am forced to hover from one created thing to another, to trace all that glory which I can give to my Creator through them, and to requite Him with my love for everything He has done for love of me and of all. Now, while I was doing this, my beloved Jesus moved in my interior and told me: "My daughter, when Our Divinity created the whole Creation, It left It all bound within Itself. So, it can be said that the heavens keep their relation with God, are fixed in God, and from within God they spread their immensity. The stars are bound in God, and from within God they adorn with gold the vault of the firmament. In God is the sun bound, and from the divine bosom it spreads its light which invests the whole earth. There is not one created thing which does not have its links in God; and while they come out, they do not separate from God. God is jealous of His acts, and He loves them so much, that He does not permit that they be separated from Him. Therefore, He keeps them all fixed within Himself as perennial glory of His own acts, as relaters of His Being to creatures, which, with mute voice, speak with facts of the One who created them, and tell, with facts, that He is most pure and endless light, love that is never extinguished, eye that sees everything, hears and penetrates everything. The sun says this. Created things also say: 'Look at us, and, with facts, we will tell you. This is why we do not speak -because facts are greater than words. He is power which can do anything, He is immensity which envelops everything, He is wisdom which orders everything, He is beauty which enraptures everything.' The Creation is the continuous narration of the Supreme Being, from whom It receives continuous life. And as you go around from one thing to another, you remain bound through them to your Creator, and receive the relations of light, of love, of power, etc., which each of them possesses."

On hearing this, I said: 'My Love, the created things do not have reason - how can they give me their relations and give You so much glory?' And Jesus added:

"My daughter, created things are in relationship with Me and are bound to Me like the members to the head, and they act like members which receive life from the head. See, you have hands and feet; these do not have reason, nor do they speak, but because they receive life from the head, the hands operate, the feet walk, remaining at the disposal of what the head wants, and forming its greatest glory. Only if hands and feet are severed from the body - then would they have neither works nor steps, because they would lose the life which the head communicated to them. So it is with the whole Creation: even though created things have neither reason nor speech, because they are united with God like the members to the body, they receive life from their Creator, and therefore all created things are operating, their acts are incessant, and are at Our disposal more than are your members at the disposal of your head. And just as your hands have the virtue of communicating your works to other creatures, so do created things have the virtue of communicating the good they possess to creatures, and to one who lives in my Divine Will. Because the Will that animates them is one with that of this soul, they feel that she belongs to the body of the whole Creation, and therefore they communicate to her all the relations which they have with the Head, and with great love they bind her to themselves. Therefore, be constant in living in my Divine Will, if you want to live communal life with your Jesus and with all Creation, and give Me all the glory which all my works give Me incessantly."

After this, I was following the Holy Divine Volition in the act in which my sweet Jesus separated from the Sovereign Queen to go into the desert; and while compassionating both one and the other, I thought to myself: 'How could the Sovereign Queen separate from Her dear Son for as many as forty days? She who loved Him so much - how could She endure being without Him? I, who do not have Her love, suffer so much for a few days that He deprives me of Himself, what must it have been for my Mama?' Now, while I was thinking this, my adored Jesus moved in my interior and told me:

"My daughter, We both suffered in separating from each other, but Our sorrow was suffered in a divine way, not in a human way, and therefore it did not separate either from happiness or from imperturbable peace. Happy, I departed for the desert - happy, the height of my Celestial Mama stayed. In fact, the sorrow suffered in a divine way has no virtue of shading even slightly the divine happiness, which contains endless seas of joys and of peace. Sorrows suffered in a divine way are like little drops of water in the immense sea, the power of whose waves has the virtue of changing them into happiness. The sorrow suffered in a human way has the virtue of breaking true happiness and of disturbing the peace; the divine way - never. More so, since my Queen Mama possessed the Sun of my Will by grace, and I possessed It by nature. So, the Sun remained in Her and remained in Me, but Its rays did not separate, because light is indivisible; therefore, in that same light She remained in Me and followed my acts, and I remained in Her as Her center of life. So, the separation, while true, was apparent; in substance We were fused together and inseparable, because the light of the Divine Will placed Our acts in common as if they were one alone. And besides, I went to the desert to call back that same Divine Will of Mine which, for forty centuries, creatures had deserted from their midst; and I, for forty days, wanted to remain alone, to repair for the forty centuries of human will during which Mine had not possessed Its Kingdom in the midst of the human family; and with my very Divine Will I wanted to call It back again into their midst, so that It might reign. Upon returning from the desert, I deposited It in my Mama, with all those acts of Divine Will which creatures had rejected and had kept as though in a desert, so that She might be the faithful depository, the repairer and the empress of the Kingdom of my Will. Only the Sovereign Lady could possess this deposit so great because She possessed within Herself the very Divine Will which could contain the Will deserted by creatures. How could We occupy Ourselves with Our sorrow of being separated for forty days, when it was about reintegrating - about calling back Our Divine Will to reign in the midst of creatures? In Our sorrow We were more than happy, because We wanted to place the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat in safety, and the Celestial Queen was waiting with yearnings for my return, in order to receive the deposit of the new Sun, so as to requite with Her love all of Its acts, which the human ingratitude had rejected. She acted as true Mama to my Divine Will, acting as true Mother also for creatures, impetrating the life, the happiness, the joy of possessing the Kingdom of the Eternal Fiat for all.

“My daughter, the number forty is symbolic and significant in my life down here. When I was born, for forty days I wanted to remain in the grotto of Bethlehem - symbol of my Divine Will which, while being present in the midst of creatures, was as though hidden and outside of the city of their souls. And I, in order to repair for the forty centuries of human will, wanted to remain outside of the city for forty days, in a miserable hut, crying, moaning and praying, to call back my Divine Will into the city of souls, so as to give It Its dominion. And after forty days I went out to present Myself to the temple, and reveal Myself to the old Simeon. He was the first city I was calling to the knowledge of my Kingdom; and his joy was so great that he closed his eyes to the earth to open them to eternity. Forty days I spent in the desert, and then, immediately, I did my public life, to give them the remedies and the means in order to reach the Kingdom of my Will. For forty days I wanted to remain on earth after my Resurrection, to confirm the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat and Its forty centuries of Kingdom which It was to possess. So, in everything I did down here, the first act was the restoration of the Kingdom; all other things entered into the secondary order, but the first link of connection between Me and creatures was the Kingdom of my Will. Therefore, when it is about my Will, I hold nothing back, neither light nor sacrifices, nor manifestations, nor happiness - it is seas that I release from Myself so as to make It known, to make It reign, and to make It loved.”

How God is jealous of the acts which are done in the Divine Will. Grace is the bilocated life of God. How Our Lord calls the soul to follow His acts.

I was all abandoned in the Divine Fiat, and in It I was doing my acts. An endless sea made itself present before my mind, and I, inside that sea, formed my own tiny little sea with my acts. It was as if the waters would sink deeper, and would expand, rising around me like a circle, to give me the space in which to put my acts in the middle of the sea, so as to let me form my own little sea within that very sea. I remained surprised in seeing that that sea, while it seemed it was made of water, was made of light and its huge waves formed the most beautiful enchantment, the sweetest and most gentle murmuring, more than music. And my sweet Jesus, coming out from within my interior, told me:

“My daughter, the soul who operates in my Divine Will operates in God Himself, and her acts remain in Him. The sea which you see is the Supreme Being who, jealous of anything holy that can be done in my Volition, extends the endless sea of His Being around the soul, in order to receive her acts, and He keeps them within Himself like the soul's tiny little sea of her acts done in His Divine Will. Our satisfaction and love for one who lives in Our Divine Volition is such and so great, that as We see her operate, We lower Ourselves to her, forming a circle around her to let her operate within Ourselves. And she rises up to Us, and her acts take their place together with Our acts, delighting Us and glorifying Us as We delight and glorify Ourselves."

After this, I was following the Divine Will in everything It has done in Creation, to, then follow the acts of Redemption, and my adored Jesus made present to me what He had done in coming upon earth, and I followed Him, step by step. And following His tender age in the act in which He, would cry and suckle milk in the arms of the Sovereign Queen, I said: 'My pretty little one, I want to invest your tears with my 'I love You', to ask You, in each one of your tears, for the Kingdom of your Divine Will; and in each drop of milk that Our Celestial Mama gives You, I want to let flow my 'I love You', so that, while She nourishes You with Her milk I may nourish You with my love, to ask You, in each drop of milk You take, for the Kingdom of your Divine Fiat.' Then I said to my Mama: 'Say together with me: "I want the Kingdom of your Will in each drop of milk I give You, in each tear and wailing of yours, in each one of my kisses which I impress on your beautiful and charming face." When it is said by You, Jesus will give His Kingdom!' And the Sovereign Lady made me content by saying it together with me; and my sweet Jesus told me:

"My daughter, in each act that my Celestial Mama did for Me - and they were continuous - I repaid Her with a degree of graces, because I do not let Myself be beaten nor surpassed by the acts of creatures - I am insuperable. Therefore, if my dear Mama gave Me love, acts, steps, words - I, in each degree of grace, gave Her a divine life, because grace is nothing other than the bilocated life of God which gives itself to creatures. What a great difference between an act which a creature can give and a divine life which God gives at each of their acts. So, the Queen of Heaven was immensely rich, with so many divine lives which She received at each instant; and She used them to form the cortege, to honor, to love, with divine lives, Her Son, Her Jesus, Her All.

"You must know why I now call you, and now make present to you everything I did in my life while being on earth, showing you how now I cry and shiver with cold, now I remain in the arms of my Mama, repeating those baby acts of suckling milk, of wetting Her maternal hands with my tears, of kissing each other, and so forth. It is because I want your acts, your love, together with that of my Mother, and that all my acts be followed by yours, so that I may give to you too, as many degrees of grace for as many acts as you do for Me; and this, for the decorum, honor and cortege of my Will, which wants to form Its Kingdom in you. My Will is not inferior to my Humanity, and therefore It deserves the same honors that my inseparable Mama gave Me; and this is why I want your acts following mine - that I may give you my divine life as many times. Therefore, be attentive, and follow Me faithfully."

May everything be for the glory of God and for the triumph of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat.

Sufferings are like the iron beaten by the hammer that casts sparks. Difference between the cross of the humanity of Our Lord and that of the Divine Will, and how it holds its incessant act.

My Jesus, Life of my poor heart, come to sustain my weakness, I am yet a little baby and I feel the extreme need that you hold me in your arms, that you feed me the words, that you give me your thoughts, your light, your love and your Volition itself, and if you don't do this, I will remain as a most little baby without doing anything. And if you love so much as to make your Most Holy Volition known, the first to the sacrifice will be you, I will enter in (the) secondary order, therefore my Love transform me in you, take away from me the torpor that I feel, that I can endure no more, and I will continue to complete your Eternal Volition even at the cost of my life.

Whence continuing my abandonment in the Divine Will, I felt under the nightmare of the sufferings, and my beloved Jesus squeezing me to himself in order to give me strength said to me:

“My daughter, sufferings are as the iron beaten by the hammer, that makes sparks of light and enflames it so much as to transmute itself into fire, and under the blows that it receives it loses the hardness, to soften itself in a way that one can give it the form that one wants. Such is the soul under the blows of sorrow, she loses the hardness, sparks light, transforms herself into my love and becomes fire and I the Divine Craftsman finding her soft give her the form that I want. Oh! how it delights me to make her beautiful, I am a jealous Craftsman and I want the boast that no one is able and knows how to make my statues, my vases, as much in form as in beauty and much more in the finesse, and in the light that sparks it converts all into truth. So that every blow that I give her I prepare a truth to manifest, because every blow is a spark that the soul puts forth from herself, and I don't lose them as the blacksmith loses them in beating the iron, but I make use of them as to invest those sparks of light with surprising truth, in a way that the soul makes use of them as the most beautiful attire, and they administer to her the food of the Divine Life.”

After this I followed my sweet Jesus, but he was so very afflicted and suffering that it made one pity, and I: tell me my Love, what is it? why do you suffer so much? And Jesus added:

“My daughter, I suffer for the great sorrow of my Will, my Humanity suffered, it had its cross, but its life was brief on earth, instead my Will's life in the midst of creatures is long, it is already six thousand years and will last yet, and do you know who is the continuous cross of Him? The human will its every act opposite to his, and every act of mine that it doesn't receive, it is a cross that forms to my Eternal Volition, hence the crosses of Him are innumerable, if you look at all the Creation you will find it full of crosses formed by the human volition. Look at the Sun, my Divine Volition carries his light to creatures, and they take his light and don't recognize who brings this light to them and my Volition receives in the Sun so many crosses for how many don't recognize it, and while they enjoy it and make use of the light itself to offend that Divine Volition that illuminates them. Oh!, how hard and sorrowful it is to do some good and to not be recognized. The wind is full of crosses, its every billow is a good that it carries to creatures, they take and they enjoy that good, but they don't recognize who is He that in the wind caresses them, refreshes them, purifies the air, and therefore he feels nails of ingratitude and crosses thrust in every wind that he exhales. The water, the sea, and the earth, they are full of crosses, formed by the human volition, who doesn't make use of water, of the sea and of the earth? Everyone, and yet my Volition that conserves everything and is the primary life of all created things, He is not recognized and is only in them in order to receive crosses from human ingratitude, therefore the crosses of my Volition are without number and more sorrowful than that of my Humanity; much more so that to this there didn't lack good souls that have understood his sorrow, his torments, the sufferings that they made me suffer and even death, to sympathize (with) me and to repair that which I suffered in my mortal life. Instead that of my Divine Fiat are crosses that they don't know, and hence they are without pity and without reparation. And therefore so much is the sorrow that my Divine Volition feels in all the Creation that he makes burst now the earth, now the sea, now the wind, and in his sorrow he unloads scourges of destruction. It is the extreme sorrow of Him, that not being able to endure it anymore he strikes those people that don't recognize him. Behold therefore why I call you so very often to turn in all the Creation, in order to make you know that which my Volition does in It, the sorrow and the crosses that he receives from creatures, so that you recognize him in every created thing, love him, adore him, thank him and be his first repairer and consoler of a Volition so Holy. Because only who lives in Him can penetrate into his acts and recognize his sorrows, and with his own Power make herself defender and consoler of my Will, that has lived for so many centuries isolated and crucified in the midst of the human family.”

Now while Jesus said this, I looked at the Creation and saw it all flooded with crosses, that they could not be counted, they were such a great deal, and the Divine Volition as he put forth his acts out of himself in order to give them to creatures, the human volition put forth its cross in order to crucify those divine acts. What sorrow! what suffering! And my beloved Jesus added:

“My daughter, my Eternal Fiat had an incessant act from which he created all the Creation toward creatures, but these acts of his, because (there) lacked in them the ruling Will, they were not received by them, and therefore they remained suspended in all the Creation in my Divine Volition himself. Now in coming upon the earth my first interest was to re-take in myself the incessant act of Him, it remained suspended in himself, because in the creature he had not been able to take his place. And my Humanity united to the Word, first had to give place to this his incessant act, to give satisfaction for it, and this was my unknown and longer and more sorrowful, and then I occupied myself with the Redemption. The first act in the creature is the will, all the other acts be they bad or good enter into the secondary order, and therefore I had to have (the) interest of putting in myself in safety all the acts of my Divine Will, to descend in the base of the human acts, in order to reunite the human and the Other together, so that seeing his acts put in safety, he might be able to reconcile it with creatures. Now today I invite you to take back in yourself these acts rejected by creatures, because my Volition continues his incessant act, and remains with the sorrow of seeing it suspended in himself, because he doesn't find one who receives them, nor one who wants them, nor one who knows them, therefore be attentive to work and to suffer together with me, for the triumph of the kingdom of my Divine Will.”

How the soul that lives in the Divine Volition puts in exercise the acts of Him. How the truth is perennial life and sustained miracle.

I was turning for all the Creation and asked in every created thing the kingdom of the Supreme Fiat, and my adored Jesus moving in my interior said to me:

“My daughter, since all created things are fixed in God, as you in every one of them asks for the kingdom of my Divine Will, thus created things move in God and ask for my kingdom, each of them forms its suppliant wave, the incessant motion in order to ask that which you want. And since created things are none other than acts brought forth from my Divine Will, giving to every single act an office, thus as you ask for my kingdom in every created thing, you put in exercise all the offices of the acts of my Supreme Volition around the Divine Being and you make asked by our goodness, by our power, by our justice and mercy, by our love and wisdom the kingdom of our Will, because every created thing contains each one our qualities, and we feel arrive one next to the other waves of goodness, of power, of justice, of mercy, of love, of wisdom, that with Divine ways they supplicate, pray, implore the kingdom of the Divine Fiat in the midst of creatures and we in seeing ourselves so very prayed to by the same acts of our Divine Volition we ask: who is she that moves a Will so great with all his innumerable acts to ask that we give our kingdom to creatures? and our acts respond to us: it is the little daughter of the eternal Volition, it is and the daughter of us all, that with so much love moves our acts to ask that which everyone wants; and in the excess of our love we say: oh! It is the little daughter of our Volition! Leave her to do it, to her it is given everywhere to penetrate, leave her step free, because she won't do other, nor ask for something if not that which we want.”

After this I was thinking of all that which my adored Jesus had said to me on his Divine Will, and as if I might want other more certain proofs that it was Jesus that spoke to me, and Jesus going out from my interior said to me:

“My daughter, there is no other proof more certain and sure, and that can do more good as much to you as to the others, than to have manifested to you so many truths; the truth is more than miracle. It brings with itself the permanent Divine life, and where it arrives and who listens to it, it bilocates the truth together with its life in order to give itself to whom wants it. Hence, my truths are perennial light not subject to grow faint, and life that never dies. What good can not one truth of mine produce? It can form the saints, it can convert souls, it can disperse the darkness and it holds the virtue to renew all the world. Therefore I do a greater miracle when I manifest one truth of mine, than when I give other proofs that it is I that go forth from the soul, or I might do other miraculous things, because these are shadows of my power, passing light, and since it will pass it doesn't carry to everyone the miraculous virtue, but it reduces itself to the individual that has received the miracle and many times who has received the miracle is not even made holy. Instead the truth contains life, and as life carries its virtue to whoever wants it. Be certain my daughter, that if I in coming upon the earth might not have told so many truths in the Gospel, in spite that I did miracles, the Redemption would have been impeded, without development, because one would not find anything, neither teachings, nor light of truth in order to learn the remedies, in order to find the way that conducts to Heaven. Thus would you be, if I might not have told you so many truths especially on my adorable Will, that has been the greatest miracle that I have done in these times, what good would your mission so great entrusted to you bring, to make the kingdom of the Supreme Fiat known? Instead with having told you so many truths on Him one can know my Divine Will in the world, one can restore the lost order, peace, light, happiness, all these truths will bring man in womb to his Creator in order to give him the first kiss of the Creation and to return the image of He who has created him. If you might know the great good that all the truths will bring that I have told you to creatures, your heart would break for joy, nor can you fear that the infernal enemy might be able to dare to manifest to you a single truth on the Divine Will, because he before the light of Him trembles, flees, and every truth on my Will for him is one hell more, and because he didn't want neither to love it, nor to do it, it changes for him into torments that have no end, he before the one word Will of God feels such burning that he mounts in fury, and hates that Holy Will that torments him more than hell. Therefore be sure that Will of God and the infernal enemy never get along, neither together, nor near, his light eclipses him and he falls into the bedlam of hell. Hence what I recommend to you [is] that not one truth or simple word on my Divine Volition you might lose, because everything must serve to complete the chain of the perennial miracles, to order to make the kingdom of Him known, and restore the happiness lost to creatures.”

Who lives in the Divine Volition doesn't find ways anymore in order to go out from Him. And who live in Him contains all the seeds of the glory that the Creation possesses. How Jesus calls Luisa together to the work of his kingdom.

I felt under the nightmare of the privation of my sweet Jesus and I thought to myself: I don't know how my beloved Jesus leaves me, doesn't He think that I can become more bad without He who is my life, and that only he can infuse in me the life of working good? He doesn't hasten anymore to anything, neither to watch over me, nor to push me, nor to correct me. But while I thought this, my adored Jesus went forth from within my interior and said to me:

“My daughter, because I am sure that you can not go out from within the great sea of my Divine Will, I having put you in Him and you with your adhesion have wanted to enter, hence, there are no ways from where you can go out from him, because of this sea one does not find the confines, for how much you will walk inside, you won't find neither his shore, nor his end. Whence I am sure that my little daughter can not go out from within the sea of my Will, and therefore I dwell in the same sea, and you lose sight of me, but since one is the sea in which we are, all that which you do holds the way to come to me, and I am secure as your acts arrive to me, that you are in my sea, and therefore I don't give it any thought. While before I was not sure of you, therefore I had such haste to watch over you, to push you, and I never left you, because I didn't see you in the depth of the sea of my Divine Will, from which there is no fear of being able to go out from, (and) this is the beauty of living in my Divine Volition, that all the dangers and fears remain scattered in you, instead who lives resigned or does the Divine Will, is always in danger and in fear, and can find so many ways that distance her from the immense sea of the Divine Fiat.”

Whence I all abandoned in that sea and felt happy to not be able to go out from there, and my sweet Jesus added:

“My daughter, my omnipotent Fiat in the Creation created so many things putting in every one of them a good for creatures, in order to receive the exchange of the glory from the part of them, for how many things he put forth to the light of day. But do you know in who this glory becomes deposited that your Creator awaited? You are my daughter, because living in my Volition and possessing him, you possess all the seeds of each glory that every created thing possesses, and therefore as you turn in the Creation you feel in yourself the good that every created thing contains, and you make your office of emitting from yourself that glory that your Creator with so much love awaits. What harmony, what order, what love, what enchantment of beauty passes between the soul that lives in my Will and between all things created by me, they are so very bound between them that they seem inseparable. The soul that lives in my Divine Volition, lives in (the) full day and her acts, her thoughts, her words, are none other than the reflections of Him. The Sun of my Volition reflects more than inside of a crystal in her and she thinks, reflects and speaks, reflects and works, reflects and loves, there is nothing greater nor more beautiful than a soul that lives of the reflections of this Sun, these reflections hold her in community with the acts of her Creator and in possession of his same goods. Other than this, you should know of this that as my Humanity contained all the goods of the Redemption and I put them forth to the good of the redeemed, thus he wanted to contain in himself all the acts and goods of the children of the kingdom of my Divine Fiat, hence as the soul does her acts in Him, I enlarge the capacity in her and I put there my acts, and thus hand (by) hand she enters in my kingdom and goes emitting her acts, thus I go always enlarging her capacity, in order to depose in her all the acts that my Humanity possesses, in order to complete in her the kingdom of my Will.”

“Therefore I call you to work together with me in this kingdom of mine, I work with preparing the earth and (the) necessary purifying of it, it is too filthy, there are certain points that don't merit that they exist anymore, so many are the iniquities, therefore it is necessary that they disappear as much the inhabitants as the filthied earth itself. The kingdom of my Divine Will is the kingdom most holy, most pure, most beautiful and ordered, that must come upon the earth, therefore it is necessary that earth is prepared, purified. Hence while I work to purify it, and if needs be destroy places and unworthy persons for a kingdom so holy, you will work with moving Heaven and earth with your acts done in my Volition, your echo will be incessant that you will make resound in all the Creation that you ask for the kingdom of my Fiat, your continuous acts and if needs be your sufferings and even your life, in order to impetrate a good so great and a kingdom that will bring such happiness. Therefore do not mind to other, but to the work that touches us to do.”

But with all of Jesus' saying I felt a fear that He might leave me or yet distance himself so much in this sea of his blessed Volition, that who knows when he should return to his little tortured one for his love, and Jesus moving in my interior said to me:

“My poor little daughter, I see that you really are (a) little baby, which does none other than afflict herself nor does she care unless she is in (the) arms of the mama, and if it ever be, the mama leaves her for a little, she cries, she is inconsolable and is all eyes in order to see her mama and to throw herself into her arms. Such are you, my poor little one, but you must know that it can be that the mama leaves her baby, but I will not ever leave my tiny little baby, it is to my interest to not leave, I have my Will in you, there are my acts, my proprietorships, hence having of mine in you, I have interest to not leave you, rather my own things call me to you, and I come to enjoy my stuff, my ruling Divine Will in you. Then you could fear that I might leave you when I might say to you, give me of mine, give me my Will, but your Jesus will never say this to you, therefore be in peace.”

How in the Divine Will there can not be imperfections and one must enter in Him naked of everything. How not doing the Divine Will destroys the Divine life in oneself and is a crime that doesn't merit pity. How He alone is rest. Scourges.

I felt all abandoned in the Supreme Fiat, but in the midst of the sanctity of a Volition so holy I felt imperfect, bad, and I thought to myself: how can it be that my beloved Jesus says to me that he makes me live inside of his Divine Volition, and yet I feel so bad? And my adored Jesus, moving in my interior said to me:

“My daughter, in my Divine Will there can not be neither imperfections, nor wickedness. He holds the purifying and destroying virtue of all the evils, his light purifies, his fire destroys even the root of evil, his sanctity, sanctifies her and embellishes her in a way that must serve her to felicitate her and to take for herself all his delights with who lives in Him, nor does he admit to live in my Divine Volition creatures that can bring in them imperfections, bitternesses, they would be things against his nature, and therefore he could never admit them to live in Him. Rather that which you say are impressions of ugliness, of imperfections, of wickedness, and my Will makes use of them (a) footstool or earth that he holds beneath (his) feet, that not even looking at them, he thinks to enjoy his little daughter, and to put his acts, his joys, his riches in womb in order to make her happy, so to be able to enjoy the happiness of her. My Will gives that which he holds and doesn't admit in Him things even minimal that don't pertain to him. Therefore one must enter into Him naked of everything, who wants to live in Him, because the first thing that my Volition does is dress the soul with light, embellishing her with divine attires, he impresses upon (her) forehead the kiss of perennial peace, of happiness and of firmness; human(ness) doesn't have (anything) to do with us in Him, it doesn't hold neither life, nor place, and the soul herself feels such disgust of that which doesn't pertain to my Volition that she would put up (her) life rather than take part in that which doesn't pertain to the sanctity of my Divine Will.”

Whence I followed my abandonment in the Divine Fiat and my sweet Jesus added:

“My daughter, my Divine Will was given since the beginning of the Creation as life of creatures and He takes the pledge to maintain this life of his in them integral, beautiful, in his full vigor, administering to them in every act of the creature a divine act of his, an act of the heights of his sanctity, of his light, of his power and beauty. He put himself in expectation to await their act in order to give his, in a way as to make a portent of divine life, worthy of his power and wisdom. In order to understand (it's) enough only the saying that my Divine Volition should have formed so many lives of himself in every single creature, and therefore put in (the) exercise of work all his ability and infinite qualities that he possessed. How beautiful these divine lives would have been in creatures, we looking at them should have found in them our reflection, our image, the echo of ours happinesses. What joy, what feast would have been the Creation for us and for creatures. Now you should know that who doesn't do my Divine Will and doesn't live in Him, wants to destroy one's own Divine life in themselves, that they should possess. To destroy one's own life, what crime! Who would not condemn one who might want to destroy one's own life of the body, or else who might not want to take food (and) was reduced lean, sick, unable to do anything? Now who doesn't do my Will destroys their own life that the Divine Goodness wants to give her, and who does it, but not always, and doesn't live in Him, since she lacks the continuous and sufficient food, is the poor sick one, without strength, lean, unable to do true good, and if it seems that she does something it is without life, difficult, because my Volition alone can give her life; what crime my daughter, what crime, that doesn't merit any pity."

My amiable Jesus appeared tired and as restless, so much was the sorrow of so many destroyed lives in creatures, I also felt a suffering from it and said to Jesus: My love, tell me what is it? You suffer much, the destruction of these divine lives of your adorable Will is your greatest sorrow, therefore I pray you, make that his kingdom come so that this sorrow of yours is changed into joy, and thus the Creation will not give restlessness and sorrow anymore, but rest and happiness. And seeing that with my saying I didn't arrive to quiet him, I called to my help all the acts of his Will done in the Creation, and emitting mine, I surrounded Jesus with the acts of Him. An immense light made itself around Jesus, that light eclipsing all the evils of creatures and He took rest, and then added:

"My daughter, only my Volition can give me rest. If you want to quiet me when you see me restless, lend yourself to carrying out the life of my Will in you, and making yours his acts, I will find in you his light, his sanctity, his infinite joys that will give me rest, and I will make a little pause in chastising creatures, too deserving, of these divine lives that they destroy in themselves that they merit that I destroy all the natural goods and even their lives itself, don't you see how the sea goes out from its shore and walks in order to snatch these lives into its bosom and to bury them in it? The wind, the earth, almost all the elements walk in order to snatch some creatures and to destroy them! They are the acts of my Will scattered in the Creation for their love, and that not having received them with love they are converted into justice."

I remained frightened in seeing this and I prayed to my Highest Good Jesus that he appease himself and that soon the kingdom of the Divine Fiat might come.

How Adam was the most holy before sinning. Fullness and totality of the goods of the acts done in the Divine Volition; how they extend themselves to everyone. The pupil of the eye invested by the sun. The Divine Will as matter lends himself and hides his Creator. Example of the host.

I was doing my round in the Creation, in order to follow all the acts of the Divine Will that there are in him and arrived in Eden where God created the first man Adam, in order to unite myself with him to that unity of will that he possessed with God, in which he did his first acts in his first epoch of the Creation, I thought to myself: who knows what sanctity my first father Adam possessed, that value his first acts contained done in the kingdom of the Divine Fiat, and how can I impetrate it again upon the earth a kingdom so holy, being I alone am occupied in order to obtain so great a good? But while I thought this, my always amiable Jesus went forth from within my interior that sent rays of light and that light converted itself into words and he said to me:

“My daughter, first-born daughter of my Will, as daughter of Him, I want to reveal the sanctity of He who possessed the kingdom of my Divine Fiat. In the beginning of the Creation this kingdom had his life, his perfect dominion and his complete triumph, so that He is not all extraneous to the human family, and since he is not estranged there is all the hope that he returns again in the midst of them, in order to reign and dominate. Now you must know that Adam possessed such sanctity when he was created by God, and his acts even minimal had such value, that no other saint, neither before, nor after my coming upon the earth can compare to his sanctity, and all the acts of these don't arrive to the value of one single act of Adam, because he possessed in my Divine Will the fullness of the sanctity, the totality of all the divine goods; and do you know what fullness means? it means to be filled even to the brim, even to overflow outside light, sanctity, love, all of the divine qualities, in a way as to be able to fill heaven and earth, by which he held the dominion and extended his kingdom. Therefore his every act done in this fullness of the Divine goods had such value, that no one else for how much one might sacrifice oneself, might suffer and might work good if one doesn't possess the kingdom of my Will and his total dominion, can compare themselves to one single act of these in the kingdom of Him. Hence the glory, the love that Adam gave as long as he lived in the kingdom of my Divine Volition, no one, no one has given it to me, because He in his acts gave me fullness and totality of all goods, and only in my Will are these acts found, outside of Him they don't exist. Therefore Adam held his riches, his acts of infinite value, because he participated (in) my Eternal Volition before the Divinity, because God in creating him had left nothing void in him, but all was divine fullness for how much it was possible for a creature to contain. Whence with falling into sin these acts were not destroyed, these riches of his, this glory and perfect love that he had given to his Creator, rather in virtue of them and of his work done in my Divine Fiat he merited the Redemption. No, he could not remain without the Redemption who had even for a little possessed the kingdom of my Will. Who possesses this kingdom enters into such bonds and rights with God, that God himself feels with him the strength of his own chains, that tying him can not untie himself from him. Our adorable Majesty found himself with Adam in the conditions of a father that, holding a child he is the cause of so many conquests, of great riches, of incalculable glory, there is no thing that the father possesses that doesn't find the acts of his child, everywhere is heard to resound the glory, the love of his child. Now this child through his misfortune falls into poverty, can the father ever not have compassion for his child, if he feels anywhere and everywhere the love, the glory, the riches with which he has surrounded his child? My daughter, Adam with living in the kingdom of our Will, had penetrated into our confines, that are interminable, and everywhere he had put his acts, his glory, his love for his Creator, and as our son with his acts that he emitted he carried our riches, our joys, the glory and our love to us, his echo resounded in all our being, as ours in his, now seeing him fallen into poverty, how can our love support not having compassion on him? if our own Divine Will waged war lovingly and pleaded for he who had lived in Him? You see therefore what it means to live in my Divine Volition, its great importance? In Him there is fullness of all the divine goods and totality of all the possible and imaginable acts, he embraces the whole Divine Being. She finds herself in my Will as the eye finds itself opposite to the Sun, that it remains all filled by its light, and while the Sun is reflected there all entire in the pupil of the eye, its light remains also outside investing the whole person and crossing the earth without departing from within the pupil, and while its light remains in the eye, the pupil would like to carry itself in the Sun in order to have them make the round of the earth together, and having them do that which the light does, and to receive its acts everywhere for testimonial of love and glory. Image of this is the soul that lives in my Will, He fills her with such fullness that he doesn't leave any void in her and since she is not capable of possessing all the Divine immensity, He fills her for how much more (the) creature can contain, and without separating himself remains outside of her, bringing her in the interminability of his light the pupil of the will of the soul, in order to have her do that which my Divine Will does, in order to receive the exchange of her acts and of her love. Oh! power of my Divine Fiat working in the creature, and letting herself be invested by his light, she doesn't refuse him his dominion and his kingdom. And if Adam merited compassion it was because the first of his life was in the kingdom of the Divine Volition.

“If the Celestial Sovereign Lady could obtain, although she was alone, the coming of the Word upon the earth, it was because she gave free field to the kingdom of the Divine Fiat in her. If my own Humanity could form the kingdom of the Redemption it was only because it possessed the whole integrity and immensity of the kingdom of the eternal Volition, because He extends himself everywhere, embraces everything, can do everything, nor is there power against Him that can restrict him. So that one alone that possesses the kingdom of my Will is worth more than everything and everyone, and can merit and impetrate that which all the others together can not neither merit, nor obtain. Because all the others acts together, for however good, but without the life of my Will in them are always the tiny little flames, the seedlings, the little flowers, that at most serves to adorn the earth, subject to grow faint and dry up, and the Divine goodness can not do neither great assignments on them, nor concede portents to do good to the entire world. Instead in who my Will lives she is more than Sun, and as the Sun with the rule of its light invests everything, rules over the plants and gives to each one the life, the color, the perfume, the sweetness, with its tacit empire it imposes itself over everything in order to give its effects and the goods that it possesses, no other planet does so much good to the earth, as much as the Sun does for it. Thus in who my Volition lives I am more than Sun and with the light that they contain they kneel and with rapidity they raise themselves, they penetrate anywhere in God, in his acts, with the Divine Will that they possess they rule over God himself, over creatures they are capable of sweeping away everything, in order to hand to everyone the life of the light that they possess, they are the bearer of their Creator and they make the light walk ahead in order to impetrate and obtain and give that which they want. Oh! if creatures might know such a good, they would be in competition and all the passions would be changed into passions of light to live only and always in that Divine Fiat that sanctifies all, gives all and reigns (over) all.”

My poor mind continued to lose itself in the Divine Volition and it marveled over the sublimity, fullness and totality of the acts done in Him and my beloved Jesus, moving in my interior added:

“My daughter, cease your marveling, living in my Divine Fiat is the work in Him, it is the transfusion of the Creator in the creature, and between the Divine work (and) the work of the creature alone there is an infinite distance, she lends herself to her God as material in order let him work great things, as lends the material of the light to the Divine Fiat in the Creation in order to let him form the Sun, the Sky, the stars, the sea, all matter in which the Supreme Fiat resounded and fabricated all the Creation. Prodigy of him is the Sun, the sky, the sea, the earth, that were revived and animated by the Fiat, perennial and enchanting sight of whom knows how to do and can do my Will. It happens with the soul as with the accidents of the host that lends itself, although material, to let itself become animated by my Sacramental life, provided that it is pronounced by the Priest, those same words said by me in instituting the Most Holy Sacrament they were words animated by my Fiat, that contained the creative power, and therefore the matter of the host undergoes the transubstantiation of Divine life. One can say over the host how many words one wants, but if they are not those few words established by the Fiat, my Life remains in Heaven and the host remains the vile matter that is. Thus it happens with soul, she can do, say, suffer, that which she wants, but if she doesn't race within my Divine Fiat they are always finite and vile things; but in who lives in Him, her words, her works, her sufferings, are as veils that hide the Creator and of these veils it serves He who created the Heaven and the earth to let work worthy work of him, and he puts there his sanctity, his creative power, his infinite love. Therefore no one else can arrive, for how many great things one does, to compare to that creature in which lives, reigns and dominates my Divine Will. Also between creatures it happens that, according to the matter that they have in (their) hands in order to form their works, thus changes the value that they possess and acquire. Suppose that one holds property of iron, how much he must work, sweat, tire, in order to reduce that iron soft, in order to give the form of the receptacle that he wants to make, and the acquisition that he makes is so very little that hardly can life get by. Instead another holds property of gold, of precious stones, this work oh! how much less, but it earns millions. So that it is not the work that carries the greater profit, exuberant riches but the value of the matter that one possesses, one works little and earns much, because the matter that he possesses contains a great value, the other works much but since the matter that he possesses is vile and of the littlest value, he is always the poor ragged one and half starving. Thus it happens for one who possesses my Divine Will, she possesses the Life, the creative virtue, and her littlest acts contain a divine and interminable value, therefore no one is able equal her riches, instead who doesn't possess my Will as their own life is without life, and works together with the matter of her own volition and therefore is always the poor ragged one before God and starving of that food that forms in her the Fiat Voluntas Tua/(Let your Will be done) as in Heaven so in earth."

How who works in the Divine Will works in the divine proprietorships. How she forms the Sun. How he wants to find the soul in all created things.

I was continuing my acts in the Divine Fiat, and my sweet Jesus moving in my interior said to me:

"My daughter, who works in my Will, works in my divine proprietorships, and forms in him my interminable goods of light, of sanctity, of love, of happiness without end, her acts, which transform themselves into so many suns, these suns reproduced from my own qualities that are lent to the act of the soul to the decorum of her, and in order to make that they might be acts worthy of her Creator, and for these acts to remain as perennial acts in God himself, that they glorify him, love him with his same divine acts. Whence Adam before sinning formed so many suns in his Creator for how many acts he did, now who lives and works in my Will finds these suns made by him, hence your appointment (is) following the first acts of the Creation, to take your place of work next to the last sun, or yet (that) act that Adam did when he possessed the unity of will with his Creator, you must make up for that which He didn't continue to do, because he went out from inside my Divine proprietorships, and his acts were Suns no more because he didn't hold in his power anymore my Divine qualities that lent themselves to let him form Suns, at the most his acts were reduced for how much good to tiny little flames, because the human will without mine, doesn't hold the virtue of being able to form Suns, it lacks the prime matter, it would be as if you might want to form a gold object without your having in your power the metal of the gold, for how much good will you might have, it would be impossible to you. Only my Will holds sufficient light in order to make suns formed by the creature, and he gives this light to whom lives in Him, in his proprietorships, not to whom lives outside of Him. Whence you must make up for all the other creatures that have not possessed the unity with my Will, your work is great and long, you have much to do in my interminable confines, therefore be attentive and faithful.”

Hence I continued my acts in his adorable Volition, and turning for all the Creation, my Highest Good Jesus added:

“My daughter, as my Divine Will is scattered in all the Creation, thus you united with Him, I want to find you in all created things as scattered in every one of them, you will be the heart of the earth in order to find your palpitating life in it, that with its continuous beat attests to me the love of all its tenants. You will be the mouth of the sea (so) that you will make me hear your voice in its highest waves and in its continuous murmur, that praise me, adore me, thank me and in the wriggle of the fishes dart me your affectionate and pure kisses, for you and for those that cross the sea. You will be the arms of the Sun that extending and enlarging you in its light, everywhere one feels your arms that embrace me, squeeze me tightly in order to say to me that only me you search for, only me you want and love. You will be the feet of the wind in order to race close by to me and make me hear the sweet stamping of your footsteps, that never cease to race although you don't find me; I am not content if I don't find my little daughter in all the things created by me for her love. To all the Creation I am asking: where is the little daughter of my Will? because I want to enjoy myself with her and detain myself with her; and if I don't find you I lose my enjoyment and my sweet amusement.”

After this I followed my beloved Jesus in the acts that he did in the Redemption, I sought to follow him word for word, work for work, step for step, I would not like that anything might escape me in order to hasten it and to ask him in the name of all his acts, tears, prayers and sufferings, the kingdom of his Divine Will in the midst of creatures and my adored Jesus said to me:

“My daughter, when I was on the earth, my Divine Will that by nature reigned in me and that same Divine Will that existed and reigned in all created things, to every meeting they kissed together, and longing for their meetings they made festive, and created things competed in order to meet with me and to give me the homages that were appropriate to me, the earth as it felt my footsteps in order to give me homage re-greened and flowered under my feet, it wanted to bring forth from its bosom all the beauties that it possessed, the enchantment of the most beautiful flowerings to my passage, so much so that many times I had to command that it might not make me these demonstrations, and it in order to give me homage obeyed, as in order to make for me honor (had) bloomed. The Sun always sought to meet with me in order to give me the homage of its light, emitting all the varieties of the beauties of the colors from its solar bosom before my sight, in order to give me the honors that I merited. Everything and everyone sought to meet me in order to make for me their feast, the wind, water, even the little bird, in order to make for me the honors of its trills, warbles and songs, all created things recognized me and they put themselves in competition for whom might be able to more honor me and make (for) me (a) feast. Who possesses my Divine Will holds the sight of knowing that which pertains to my own Will. Only man didn't know me because he didn't possess even the sight and the sense of smell of Him, I had to tell it to him in order to make myself known, and many with all my sayings would not even believe. Because who doesn't possess my Divine Volition is blind and deaf without sense of smell in order to know that which pertains to him. Not possessing him is the greatest unhappiness of the creature, she is the poor cretin, blind, deaf and mute, that not possessing the light of my Divine Fiat, makes use of the same created things with taking the excrements that they cast, and leaves within them the true good that they contain. What sorrow, to see creatures without the nobility of the life of my Divine Will.”

How the Divine Will is manifold in his acts, while he is one. How he remains conceived in one who lives in Him. How for one who lives in the Divine Will the earth is not exile, but it is exile for who doesn't do the Will of God.

My poor mind continues to follow the acts of Jesus done for our love and returning to his conception I offered all my acts done in his Divine Volition with all my being for (the) honor of his conception, in this while a light went forth from me that went to deposit itself in the bosom of the Immaculate Queen in the act that She conceived, and my always amiable Jesus said to me:

“My daughter, my Divine Will is manifold in his acts, but he does not loose one of them, the unity that he possesses and his incessant act maintains the unity in his acts, as if they might be one alone, while they are innumerable, and he conserves in his acts the act of doing it incessantly, always, always, without ever ceasing to do it in order to conserve it always new, fresh and beautiful, and ready to give it to whom might want it, but while he gives it doesn't detach from my Will, because He is light, it is the virtue of light to give itself, diffuse itself, enlarge itself, one takes how much one wants of it, but it never separates itself, it is inseparable by virtue and by (the) nature that the light possesses. You also see the Sun possesses this virtue; suppose that you might have the room closed by shutters, the light is not there, but if you open the doors the light fills your room, perhaps the light detaches itself from the Sun? No, no, but it dwells and enlarges itself, without detaching a single drop from its source, but in spite that the light does not separate itself, you have possessed the good of the light as if it were yours. More than Sun is my Divine Will He gives himself to everyone but does not lose a comma of his acts. Now my conception, my Fiat holds it always in act, and you have seen how the light of his acts done in you enlarges itself even in the bosom of the Celestial Sovereign Lady, as to make conceived over Her your Highest Good Jesus, it is the unity of his acts that centralizing them all to one point, forms his portents and my Life itself. Behold therefore I remain conceived in the acts of my Divine Volition, in those of the Queen Mama and (in) yours done in Him. Rather I say to you that [I am] conceived continually in all the acts of those who will possess the kingdom of my Will. Because who possesses him receives all the fullness of the goods of my Life, because they alone with the acts done in Him share in my conception and in the course of all my Life. Hence it is just that she receives all the goods that He contains. Instead who doesn't possess my Will, takes hardly the crumbs of the goods that I brought upon the earth with so much love, and therefore creatures become meager in good, slight, inconstant, all eyes and all heart to transient things, because lacking in themselves the source of the light of my eternal Volition, they do not feed themselves with my Life. What marvel that it brings upon their face paleness, that they feel themselves die for true good, and if they do anything, all is with difficulty and without light, and they grow deformed to make one pity.”

After this I felt myself oppressed and felt all the weight of my long and hard exile, and I lamented with my adorable Jesus that to the hard martyrdom of his privations he adds on me the removal of my

Celestial Fatherland and I said to him how (is it) you don't have compassion on me? how do you leave me alone without you in prey only of your amiable Volition? how do you leave me for so long in this earth of exile? But while I vented my sorrow, my Life, my Everything Jesus moved in my interior and said to me:

“My daughter, the earth is exile for who doesn't do and live in my Will, but for who lives in Him it can not be called exile but a step of distance, that when one least believes it, that step done one will be found in the Celestial Country, not like one that comes from the exile, that knows nothing of Him, but like one that already knew that it was hers and knows of the beauty, the sumptuousness, the happiness, of the Eternal City. My Will would not bear to hold in the conditions of exile one who lives in Him, in order to do this he should change nature, regime, between who lives in Him in Heaven and between who lives in earth, that which he can not nor wants to do. Does one say exile perhaps for who goes out from his house in order to distance himself one step, certainly not or yet can one call it exile who goes to a land in his own country? The exile, my daughter, means circumference of space without being able to go out from there, strippings of goods, forced works, without being able to exempt oneself. My Divine Will doesn't know how to do these things and you see, you touch it with (your) hand, as your soul doesn't hold circumference of place, of space, it carries itself everywhere, in the Sun, in the Sky, sometimes you have made your outings even up there in the Celestial regions, and how many times have you not bathed in the same interminable light of your Creator? Where aren't you free to go? in the sea, in the air, wherever. Rather my Will itself enjoys, pushes you, gives you flight to turn everywhere. He would feel unhappy to see one in Him liv(ing) without liberty and as impeded. My Divine Fiat instead of stripping fills the soul even to the brim with his goods, he gives her the dominion of herself, converts the passions into virtue, the weaknesses in divine fortitude. He gives joys and happiness without number, he gives through grace that which He is by nature, firmness, perennial inflexibility. Exile is for who is tyrannized by the passions, without dominion of herself, without being able to space herself in her God, and if she thinks (of) some good, she is mixed, surrounded by darkness. So that the virtues of the poor exiled one are forced, inconstant, she is enslaved by her own miseries, and this renders her unhappy. All to the contrary for the one that lives in my Divine Will, nor would I tolerate it to hold you for so long a time in life if I might know you (were) in the exile, your Jesus loves you too much, how would I have been able to bear to hold you exiled? And if I tolerate it it is because I know that as little daughter of my Volition, He doesn't hold you in the conditions of exile, but in his proprietorship, in his light, free and dominant, with the unique purpose of forming in you his kingdom and of impetrating it for the benefit of the human family. And you should be happy with this, knowing that all the desires, avidity, the longing of your Jesus are for the kingdom of my Will upon the Earth, my complete glory, the aspect from the Fiat your Will as in Heaven so in earth.”

How the Divine Will as water makes his inundations. Who are those people that make themselves inundated. What united means. How the Queen of Heaven cast the foundation of the kingdom of the Divine Will.

After having passed various days of privation of my sweet Jesus, I felt myself embittered even in the marrow of my bones, I could endure no more, and tired and worn-out I wanted to reassure myself in order to take strength. Whence I abandoned myself first in the Supreme Volition and then on myself in order to be able to at least sleep, but while I did this my poor mind was not in myself anymore, but outside of myself, I felt two arms that embraced me that carried me on high, on high, under the vault of the Sky, but I did not see who it might be; I feared and a voice said to me: don't fear, but look on high; I looked and I saw that the Sky opened itself and my longed for Jesus descended toward me, the two of us threw ourselves into each others arms, I embracing Him and He embracing me, and in my sorrow I said to him: Jesus, my Love, how hard you make it for me, you make me arrive to extremes, one sees that the heat of your love toward me is not that which you had before for me. Now while I said this to Jesus he assumed a melancholy, as if he might not want to hear my laments, and at the same time from the heights in which we were, I saw descend a water in torrents, and many places remained inundated, seas and rivers were united together with these waters and they inundated countries and people, burying them in its bosom, what terror! And Jesus all afflicted said to me:

“My daughter, as you see these waters that in torrents descend from Heaven, and inundating forms sepulchers with their force in order to be able to bury entire cities, thus my Divine Will, more than water makes its inundations, not to time or places, but always and to all the earth, and over every single creature he pours his strong and high inundations; but who lets himself be inundated by his inundations of light, of grace, of love, of sanctity and of happiness that he possesses? no one, what ingratitude, to receive in torrents his goods and not take them, to pass over (them), perhaps to bathe only, but to not let oneself be inundated and to make oneself drown by the goods of my Divine Will, what sorrow! and I look at all the earth in order to see who takes the inundations of Him, and I only find the little daughter of my Volition; that receives these inundations, that drowns herself in Him and makes herself transported where she wants, remaining in his bosom in prey of his highest waves. There is no more beautiful show, (or) moving scene than to see the littleness of the creature in the prey of these waves. Now one sees (her) in prey of the waves of light and as buried within, now drowned by the love, now invested and embellished by the sanctity, what pleasure to see her, and therefore I descend from Heaven, in order to enjoy (with) these enrapturing scenes of your littleness, carried by his arms in the inundations of my eternal Volition, and you say that my love is diminished for you? you are wrong. Know that your Jesus is faithful in love, and as he sees you under the waves of my Will he loves you always more.”

He said this and disappeared and I remained abandoned in the waves of the Divine Fiat, and my amiable Jesus returning added:

“My daughter, my Will possess the unity and who lives in Him lives in this unity, and do you know what unity means? it means one, this one that can embrace everything and everyone, he can give all because he contains all. My Divine Will possesses the unity of love, and of all the loves united together. He possesses the unity of sanctity, and contains all the sanctities. He possesses the unity of beauty, and contains in himself all that is beautiful of possible and imaginable. In short he contains (the) unity of light, of power, of goodness, of wisdom; the true and perfect unity while he is one he must possess all and this all, all of an equal strength, all immense and infinite, eternal, without beginning and without end. Hence who lives in Him, lives in the immense and highest waves that he possesses, in a way that the soul feels the empire of the one strength, of light, of sanctity, of love, et cetera; so that in this one strength, everything for her is light, everything is changed into sanctity, into love, into power, and everything brings the knowledge of the wisdom of this unity to her. Therefore living in Him is the greatest miracle and the perfect development of Divine life in the creature. The word unity means all and the soul takes all living in Him.”

After this I followed my round in the acts of the Divine Fiat, and arriving into the seas of my Celestial Mama that she had done in the unity of Him, I thought to myself: my Sovereign Mama didn't have (the) interest to impetrate the kingdom of the Divine Volition because she might have obtained in this (the) unity that She lived, as she obtained the kingdom of the redemption she would have obtained that of the Divine Will. And my sweet Jesus moving in my interior said to me:

“My daughter, our Queen Mama apparently it seems that all her interest was for the kingdom of the Redemption, but that is not true, the external part was that, but the interior was all for the kingdom of my Divine Will, because She knew all the Value and the complete glory to her Creator, and the maximum and complete good to creatures of it, she could do no less than ask the kingdom of the Eternal Fiat, indeed She with obtaining the Redemption cast the foundations of the kingdom of my Will, it can be said that she prepared the materials of Him; it is necessary that the small things are done in order to obtain the greater ones, and therefore she had to give the field first to the Redemption, (so) as to construct the factory of the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat. If a kingdom is not formed, how can one say that a king holds his kingdom and dominion? More so that the Sovereign Lady of Heaven is unique and singular in glory in the Celestial Fatherland, because uniquely and singularly she formed all her Life in my Will, and a Mother loves and wants that her children possess the same glory, and She in Heaven can not communicate all her glory and greatness and Sovereignty that she possesses, because she doesn't find one who has made his same life continuous in the same Divine Will, therefore she longs for the children of Her kingdom, in order to be able to make reflect all her glory in them and to be able to say: I have my children that equal me in my glory, now I am more than happy, because my glory is the same glory of my children. The happiness of a mother is more that of the children than her own, much more so for the Celestial Mother, that in my Divine Volition she conceived more than (a) Mother all the redeemed, and formed the life itself of the children of my Divine Will.”

October 20, 1927

How created powers are not able to neither embrace nor exhaust the uncreated Power, not even the Virgin nor the Humanity of Our Lord itself. How the Divine Will possesses the incessant and always new act and holds the virtue of always making things new. Example. How he waits for his kingdom in order to communicate this new act as completion of his glory.

I follow that which is written above. Whence I thought to myself: my beloved Jesus says that his glory will then be complete on the part of the Creation and the glory of all the blessed, when his Divine Will will be known in earth and the kingdom of Him formed, and the children of this kingdom will take (their) post in the Celestial Country, kept only for them, and I thought: in Heaven there is the Sovereign Queen that had the whole fullness of the life of the Divine Will that no one believes that can be reached, so therefore the glory of God is not complete on the part of Creation, and so many other doubts and thoughts that came to me, that is not necessary to say them on paper, I say only that which Jesus told me:

“My daughter, you are too tiny, and you measure with your littleness the interminable greatness and my inarrivable wisdom. The creature for how ever holy she might be, as was my Dear Mother, that in spite that she possesses the whole fullness and totality of all the goods of her Creator, and the kingdom of my Divine Will had in Her his full dominion, with all this, she could not exhaust the whole immensity of the goods of the Divine Being, he filled her even to the brim, overflowed outside even to form seas around her, but to restrict in herself, to embrace all that which the Supreme Being contains, was impossible for her, not even my Humanity alone by itself could contain the whole immensity of the Creative light, it was all filled inside and outside of me, but oh! how much remained outside of me, that to the circle of my Humanity it didn't hold (the) equivalent greatness of where to contain so interminable a light; this is because created powers, of what ever generation it might be can not exhaust the uncreated power, nor embrace and restrict it in themselves. The heights of the Queen of Heaven and my Humanity itself, found itself with its Creator in the conditions in which you can find yourself exposed to the rays of the Sun, you can find yourself under the empire of its light, to be invested by it, to feel all the intensity of its heat, but to be able to restrict it in yourself and above you all its light and heat will prove impossible to you. But in spite of this you can not say that the life of the light of the Sun and its heat is not in you and outside of you. Now you must know that our Divine Being, our creative Will, possesses its incessant and always new motion, new in joys, in happiness, new in beauty, new in the work that, our Wisdom puts forth in the formation of souls, new in sanctity that engraves, new in the love that infuses. Hence if she possesses this continued new act, she holds the virtue to always make new things, and beautiful, pure and holy was made the Queen Mama, this doesn't exclude that we can make other new and beautiful things, worthy of our works. More so that in the Creation, as our Divine Fiat went out in field in creating all things, also went out in field all the new acts with which he had to form creatures, the rarities of beauty that he had to communicate and the sanctity that he had to engrave in who would have lived in our Divine Volition. And since He didn't have life in creatures, nor his kingdom, he had it only in the Sovereign Lady of Heaven and therefore he made the first prodigy and miracle that stupefied Heaven and earth, whence he awaits the other creatures that must hold his life and form his other kingdoms where to reign, in order to form with our new act other rarities of sanctity, of beauty and of grace. Oh! how my Divine Will awaits with anxiety this field of action of his, to put forth these new acts. He is like a craftsman that knows how to make hundreds and thousands of statues, one different from the other, he knows how to impress in them a fineness and rarity of beauty, of attitudes, of forms, but one can not say it as the other, he doesn't know how to make repetitions, but always new and beautiful statues, but it does not become given to put forth his art, what sorrow wouldn't his inactivity be for a similar craftsman? Such is my Divine Will, and therefore he waits for his kingdom in the midst of creatures in order to form (a) rarity of Divine beauties in them not ever seen, sanctity not ever sensed, novelty not ever touched, it is not enough to his Power that can do everything, to his immensity that can embrace everything, to his love that never exhausts, to have formed with his Divine arts the Great Lady, the Queen of Heaven and of the Earth but the succession of Her, in which one wants only my Fiat to live and to reign in order to form other works worthy of Him. How therefore can our glory be complete on the part of the Creation, and the glory complete in Heaven, the happiness of the human family if our work is not completed in the Creation? There remains to make the most beautiful statues, the most important works; the purpose why the Creation was created is not realized nor finished, and to a work it is enough that there lack one point, one little flower, one leaf, one tone, that it can not have all its value, and receive the complete glory (for) who forms the work. More so that in the work of our Creation [it is] not one point that lacks, but the most important things, our varied Divine images of beauties, of sanctity, of our perfect similarity. And as our Will began the work of the Creation with such sumptuousness of beauties, of order, of harmony, of magnificence, as much in forming the machine of all the universe, as in creating man, thus it is just for decorum, glory and honor of our work, that it be completed with more sumptuousness and diversity of rare beauties, all worthy of the incessant and new act that my Divine Will possesses. Who will live in the kingdom of him, they will be under the force of a new act, of a continued irresistible force, so that they will feel themselves invested with a new act of sanctity, of radiant beauty, of the most refulgent light, and while they will possess this, another new one arrives, and then still another one, without ever ceasing, they themselves surprised will say: how holy, beautiful, rich, strong, happy is our Fiat three times Holy, that ever exhausts itself, he always holds sanctity to give us, beauties forever more to embellish us, new strengths in order to make us more strong, new happiness in a way that that the first is not similar to the second, nor the third, nor all the others that he will give us. Whence these fortunate creatures will be the true triumph of the Divine Fiat, the most beautiful ornament of all the Creation, the most refulgent Suns that with their light they will cover the void of those that have not lived in the kingdom of Him. Now my inseparable Mama that possesses as proper life this continued new act, communicated to her by my Divine Will because he made life for Her, it is the first most refulgent Sun that my Volition formed in Her, that occupies the first place of Queen and cheers all the celestial court making reflect in all the blessed his light, his joys, his beauty; but She knows that it didn't exhaust all the new and incessant acts that my Divine Will has established to give to creatures, because He is inexhaustible, and oh! how much he holds, and awaits that the other suns are formed by this his new act with new beauties and with rare beauty, and as a true Mother she wants to surround herself with all these suns, so that they reflect themselves and felicitate themselves next to each other, and the whole Celestial court not only receives hers but the reflections of all these suns as completion to everyone of the glory of the work of the Creation of her Creator. She as Queen waits with so much love the proprieties of my Will in creatures, that are as hers, that had the principle of forming in Her the kingdom of my Divine Will. Suppose that in the vault of the Heavens instead of one Sun were formed other suns, new in beauty and in light, would it not appear more beautiful, more adorned the vault of the Sky? Certainly yes! And would not the suns as light reflect themselves next to each other, and all the inhabitants of the earth wouldn't they receive the reflections, the goods of all these suns? Thus will it be in Heaven. More so that who has possessed in earth the kingdom of the Supreme Fiat, will have interminable common goods, because one is the Will that has dominated them. Behold therefore that in spite that in Heaven there is the Sovereign Empress, that possesses the fullness of the Life of my Divine Volition, on the part of the Creation our glory [is] not complete, because, first, our Will is not known in the midst of creatures and hence (is) neither loved nor longed for; accordingly, not being known, He can not give that which he has established to give, and hence he can not form the so many rarities of works that he knows how to do and can do, while to completed work he sings victory and glory.”

The little child. How the Divine Will is kingdom of life. Necessity of his knowledges. How Heaven and earth are reverent to listen to the knowledges of the Divine Fiat. Love and tenderness of God in creating man.

I felt my poor mind sunk in the Divine Fiat, and while I continued my acts in Him, I saw before me a little child all timid, pale, as if she feared to walk in the immensity of the light of the Divine Volition and my adored Jesus went forth from within my interior and filling his holy hands with light, he put that light in the mouth of the child wanting to drown her with light. Whence he took light and put it in the eyes, in the ears, in the heart, in the hands and the feet of the little tiny one, and she remained invested by the light, it colored all of her and she remained as hindered and troubled in the same light. Jesus enjoyed himself in drowning her with light and was delighted in seeing her hindered in herself, and turning to me he said to me.

“My little daughter, this child is the image of your soul, timid in receiving the light and the knowledges of my Divine Will, but I will drown you with so much light, so that you lose the residue of the timidness of the human will, because in mine there are not these weakness but Divine courage and strength, insurmountable and invincible. In order to form the kingdom of my Fiat in the soul, I extend in her as foundation, all the knowledges of Him and then I take possession extending there my Life itself in order to have my kingdom. You see what great difference (there is) of the kingdom of the kings of the earth and that of my kingdom, the kings don't put at (the) disposition of every individual their own life, nor do they enclose it in them, nor do they enclose the life of the people in them, and therefore their reign is subject to end, because it is not life that races between the one and the other but laws and impositions, and where there is not life, there is not love, nor true reign. Instead the kingdom of my Divine Will is kingdom of life, the life of the Creator enclosed in the creature and that of the creature transfused and identified/unified with the Creator. Therefore the kingdom of my Divine Will is of a height and inarrivable nobility, the soul becomes constituted queen, and do you know what she becomes queen (of)? queen of sanctity, queen of love, queen of beauty, of light, of goodness, of grace, in short queen of the Divine life and all his qualities; what noble and full reign of life is this kingdom of my Will. You now see therefore the great necessity of the knowledges of Him, they are not only the fundamental part, but the food, the regime, the order, the laws, the beautiful music, the joys, the happiness of my kingdom. Every knowledge possesses one distinct happiness, they are as so many divine keys that will form beautiful harmony in Him. Behold therefore I am so very lavish in telling you so many knowledges on my Divine Fiat, and I require from you the highest attention in manifesting them because they are the base, and as a formidable army that will maintain the defense and will keep sentinel, so that my kingdom is the most beautiful, the most holy and the perfect echo of my Celestial Country.”

Whence Jesus became silent and then added again.

“My daughter, when my Divine Will wants to put forth a knowledge of his or a new act, Heaven and earth reverently honor it and they listen to it, all the Creation feels flow in them a new divine act that as vital humor embellishes them and makes them doubly happy and they feel as honored from their own Creator that with his Omnipotent Fiat he communicates his new knowledges to them, and they await for the aptness of that knowledge in the creature in order to see the new act of the Divine Volition repeated in the creature in order to have the confirmation of that good and the joy and happiness that the new knowledge brings. Then my Will poses to feast, because (there) goes forth from himself a divine life, which while it is directed to one creature, it expands itself and communicates itself then to all creatures.”

After this I was following my round in the Divine Volition and bringing myself in Eden in order to be present when the Divine Majesty, having formed the beautiful statue of man, he was giving him life breathing (in) him with his omnipotent breath/[fiato], in order to be able to glorify my Creator in such a solemn act, to love him and to adore him and to thank him for a love so excessive and overflowing toward man and my divine Jesus moving in my interior said to me:

“My daughter, this act of forming and infusing life in man with our omnipotent breath, was so tender, moving and of joy so great for us, that all our Divine Being overflowed outside with such love, that with enrapturing force it enraptured our divine qualities in order to infuse them in man, in breathing in him we poured everything in him, and in breathing in him we put our Supreme Being in communication with him, in a way as to make him inseparable from us. This breath of ours never stopped, because if in the Creation of all the universe it was our Will that constituted himself life of everything, in man (He) not only gave our Fiat, but together with our breath (He) gave him our identical Life. And this breath of ours doesn't stop yet continuing the generation of the other creatures in order to make them inseparable from us. So much is our love when we do a work, that done one time the attitude remains to do it always. Therefore the ingratitude of the man is great, because he ignores, despises, offends this life of ours identical in himself. And since when he sends forth the breath/[fiato] in order to breathe he sends it forth and withdraws it within in order to be able to breathe again, in breathing in him we give ourselves to him and in withdrawing the breath, we withdraw man into ourselves, and not feeling him come in us because his will is not with us, we feel the whole weight of human ingratitude. Behold therefore we call you to give you our incessant breath so that as we withdraw it in order to send it forth again we feel you come in us in order to receive the completion of our Will in the solemn act of our regenerative breath going forth in order to generate creatures.”

How the Divine love regurgitated in the Creation. Liberality and magnificence in creating the machine of the universe especially in creating his beloved jewel without merit of anyone. Decision of the Divine Will in wanting to come to reign in the midst of creatures. His balsamic air, his enchanting and enrapturing beauty. That which his knowledges will do.

I felt all abandoned in the Divine Fiat and my poor mind I felt it as drenched by the light of his sanctity, beauty and indescribable happiness. To possess the font of all goods, to enjoy the high sea of the infinite seas of all the joys and to possess all the attractions of inexhaustible beauties, of divine beauties, even to fall in love with God himself, and living in the Divine Volition with letting him reign in the soul, is all the same. Will of God how very amiable, adorable, desirable you are, more than my own life. Your reign is reign of light, that holds (the) strength of emptying me (of) that which to his light does not pertain; it is reign of sanctity and doesn't transform me into the sanctity of the saints, but in the sanctity of my Creator it is reign of happiness and joys and it puts in flight in me all bitternesses, troubles, annoyances. But how ever can creatures dispose themselves, to merit receiving a kingdom so holy? Now while I thought this, and my poor mind swam in the high sea of the sea of the Divine Fiat, my amiable Jesus went out from inside my interior, and squeezing me to himself, all tenderness said to me:

“My little daughter, you should know that our love regurgitated in the Creation, and overflowing outside of us, without anyone having merited such a good, not even with a single word, our highest goodness and liberality without limits, I created with such magnificence, order and harmony the whole machine of the universe, for love of whom didn't exist yet. After this our love regurgitated more strongly and we created He for whom all things were created. And since we in the work we always work with unobtainable magnanimity, and while we don't exhaust we give all in a way that nothing should lack to our work of magnificence, of grandness and of all goods. In creating man without which he had not one merit, for dowry, for foundation, for substance of all the goods, joys and happiness we gave him for kingdom our Will, so that he might lack nothing having at his disposition a Divine Will and together with Him our Supreme Being. What honor would it have been for us if the work of the Creation might have been poor, wretched of light, without the multiplicity of so many created things, without order and without harmony, and our dear jewel, our dear child, that is man, without the fullness of the goods of He who had created him? It would not have been honor for who possess all and can do all, to do an incomplete work; more so that our love regurgitating very strongly, more than impetuous waves wanted to give, to show off how much more it could, even to fill up our beloved jewel with all possible and imaginable goods and to form the seas around him that overflowed from him that his Creator had put (in) him. And if man lost this, it was he that rejected it of his own will my kingdom, his dowry and the substance of his happiness. Now as in the Creation, my love regurgitated strongly, and the kingdom of my Will is decided that wants his life in the midst of creatures, and therefore showing off with all magnificence without looking at the merits of them, with insuperable magnanimity he wants to give his kingdom again. Only he wants that creatures know it, know his goods, so that knowing them they long for and want the kingdom of sanctity, of light and of happiness, and as one will rejected it, thus another calls it, longs for it, presses it to come and to reign in the midst of creatures. Behold therefore the necessity of his knowledges, if a good is not known, one neither wants it, nor loves it; therefore they will be the messengers, the forerunners that will announce my kingdom. My knowledges on my Fiat will pose now to be Sun, now to be thunders, now to be bursts of light, now to be impetuous winds, that will call the attention of the scholars and of the ignorant, of the good and also of the bad, that as lightning they will fall in their hearts, and with irresistible strength will knock them down, in order to make them re-arise in the good of the acquired knowledges, they will form the true renewal in the world, they will take all attitudes in order to allure and to conquer creatures, assuming now to (be) peacemakers, that want the kiss of creatures in order to give them theirs, in order to make them forget the whole past and to remember only to love each other together and to felicitate each other side by side; now as warriors, certain of their victory, in order to make certain the conquest that they want to do of whom knows them; now as incessant prayers, that will cease then to supplicate when [creatures] conquered by the knowledges of my Divine Volition will say: you have won, we are already prey of your kingdom; now as dominant king and exhaling love, that they will pray before him in order to make him dominate. What won't my Will do? He will put all his power in aptness in order to come to reign in the midst of creatures. He possesses an enrapturing beauty, that if he makes himself seen only one time with clarity, he enraptures, he embellishes, casting his waves of beauty on the soul, in a way that hardly can they forget a beauty so rare, they will remain as within the labyrinth of his beauty to not be able to go out from there. He possesses an enchanting power, and the soul remains fixed in his sweet enchantment. He possesses a balsamic air, that breathed they will feel enter in them the air of peace, of sanctity, of Divine harmony, of happiness, of the light that purifies all, of the love that burns all, of the power that conquers all, in a way that this air will bring the celestial balm to all the evils products from the bad, morbid and deadly air of the human will. You also see in human life (how) the air acts in an surprising way: if the air is pure, good, healthy, perfumed, the respiration is free, the circulation of blood is regular, they grow strong, fed, colored and healthy; instead if the air is bad, malodorous and infected, the respiration is impeded, the circulation of blood is irregular, and not receiving the life of the pure air they are weak, pale, grown thin and half sick. The air is the life of the creature, and without it they can not live, but there is great difference between the good air and the bad. Thus is the air of the soul; the air of my Will maintains life, pure healthy, holy, beautiful and strong as it went forth from the bosom of its Creator. The deadly air of the human volition deforms the poor creature, makes her descend from her origin and she grows sick, weak, to make (one) pity.”

Then with an emphasis more tender he added: “Oh! my Will, how very amiable, admirable, powerful you are! Your beauty enamors the Heavens and maintains the enrapturing enchantment to the whole Celestial Court, in a way that they are happy that they can not move their look from you, oh! with your enchanting beauty that enraptures everything, enraptures the earth, and with your sweet enchantment you enchantment all creatures so that one is the Will of everyone, one the sanctity, one the life, one your kingdom, one your Fiat as in Heaven so in earth.”

Difference that passes between one who lives in the Divine Volition and works, and between one who does good in the night of the human will.

My flight is continuous in the Divine Volition and my poor intelligence is as fixed in Him, and in his light I understood the great difference between the work in the Supreme Volition and between the human work good in itself but lacking the life of the Divine Fiat in the action of the creature. Whence I said to myself: possible such difference? And my beloved Jesus moving from within my interior said to me:

“My daughter, the human will formed the night to the human family, in their souls, and if they do good works even important ones since good by itself is light, they emit from themselves so many little lights, it can be the light of a match, the light of a little oil lamp, of an electric light bulb, according to the good that is there is inside of the human action and (the) multiplicity of them thus becomes formed little lights and lights a little more great, and for how much they have the good, in virtue of their little lights, of them not remaining and those that surround them in the dark, but they don't have the virtue to change the night into day. So that they can be also like (a) city or residence that possess the good of so many electric lights that are also subject to grow faint; but that they can make the night change into day will be impossible, because it is not (the) nature of the light formed by human industry, as much in the soul as in the body, to be able to form the full day, only the Sun holds this virtue of dispersing the nighttime darkness and forming its full day, that glaring light and heat gladdens the earth with all its inhabitants, and where it shines it produces its vital effects to all nature. Now only living in my Volition and working in Him, it is always day and as the soul works, be her action little, be it great, she acts under the reflection of the eternal and immense Sun of my Fiat, which reflecting in the action of the creature, becomes formed in virtue of Him, the sun in the human action, in which they remain in possession of these suns that makes them enjoy the full continuous day, and since these suns have been formed in virtue of the reflections of the Sun of my Divine Volition that possesses the source of the light, the human action converted into Sun becomes fed by the source of the light and therefore they are not subject neither to grow faint, nor to diminish of light. You see therefore what great difference there is between one who works and lives in my Will and between who works good outside of Him, (there) passes (the) difference between who can form the Sun and so many Suns, and who (can form) light, and one Sun is enough in order to eclipse all the lights and all the lights together don't have virtue, nor force of light to be able to surpass one Sun. And in order to understand with more clarity you can see it in the order of the universe that all the lights of whatever kind formed by human industry are not capable of forming the day. Instead the Sun created by my creative hands, in spite that it is one, forms the day, because it possesses the source of the light put there within by its Creator, and therefore is not subject to diminish in light. Symbol of who lives in my Divine Volition, that in all their acts there flows within an act of Divine life, a creative strength that, holds (the) virtue of forming Suns, neither does he abase himself, nor does he want to form little lights, but Suns that never extinguish. From this you can understand that, the good produced by the human volition, in spite that it can not form the day is always a good for man and they receive the profit of the light in the night of human will, it serves them in order to not die in the dense darkness of sin, those lights although little mark the step, makes him see the perils and attracts my Paternal goodness toward them that sees that, if they make use of the night of their human will, to form at least little lights, in order to mark the step by way of salvation. It was truly this that attracted all our tenderness and our paternal Goodness toward Adam; he had understood what it meant to live in our Divine Volition, and how his little acts, as the greatest, raced within our creative virtue, and were invested by the Sun of the eternal Fiat, that being Sun held (the) virtue of being able to form how many Suns he wanted. Whence in seeing himself emptied from this creative strength to not be able to form suns anymore, hence (a) poor little one, he strove how much more he could to form little lights, and seeing the great difference of his first state and that after the sin, he felt such sorrow that he felt himself die in his every act. The Supreme Being felt moved and admired the industry of poor Adam, that not being able to forms suns anymore, he strove industriously to form with his acts little lights, and in virtue of this he maintained the promise of the future Messiah.”

Who lives in the Divine Will doesn't descend from her origin and is owed the state of queen; instead who lives outside of Him lives in the state of servant. Difference that the kingdom of the Redemption carries to the one and the other. How in every truth races within a Divine life.

I was following the Divine Volition accompanying all the acts that my sweet Jesus had done being on the earth. He made them present to me and I invested them with my I love you and asked him with his own acts (for) the kingdom of the Divine Fiat, and I prayed that he might apply to my soul all that which he had done in the kingdom of the Redemption, in order to give me (the) grace to always live in his Divine Volition and my sweet Jesus moving in my interior said to me:

“My daughter, who lives in my Divine Will doesn't descend from her origin, and since everything was created for who should live in Him, all the goods of the Creation are hers, that are more extensive than the goods of the Redemption. Because who maintains themselves in the original state with living in the Supreme Fiat is owed the state of queen, and as queen it is appropriate that she possesses, more so because (as) queen she lives in the regal palace of our Volition, hence it is appropriate that she possesses kingdoms, Suns, Heavens, seas, and that the King himself has life together with her, felicitating his queen, and she felicitating her King. Behold therefore that the goods of the Creation had to be more extensive, otherwise how could she have been (in the) state of queen, if she didn't have dominion and kingdoms to dominate? Instead with not living in our Divine Volition, the soul descends from her origin, dis-ennobles herself and puts herself in the state of servant, hence kingdoms and empires are not appropriate to her. More so that I in the Redemption came upon the earth in order to resuscitate man from the state of death, in order to heal him, in order to give him all the possible remedies, in order to make him return again into his first state of his origin, knowing that if he returned in our Volition, from whence he went forth from it, it is already prepared in order to maintain him in the regal and dominant state. Rather you must know that who lives or will live in Him, the acts that I did in the Redemption will not serve them for remedies but for happiness, joy and as the most beautiful ornament in the regal palace of my Will because all that which I did, was none other than his birth, their merciful viscera, all the acts that I did upon the earth, were birthed to me in the womb of my Humanity whence it is just that as his stuff serves to ornament himself. Whence in all that which I did being upon the earth, if I prayed, if I spoke, if I suffered, if I blessed the little boys, I went tracing my children, the children of my Divine Will, in order to give them the first act, the stuff that belonged to them, the happiness that they contained, and then I gave them in remedy to the unfortunate children of sin, servants of the human will, for their salvation. Therefore all my acts raced as first act to whom should live in the Supreme Volition, as to their center of life. Whence who lives in Him can say: everything is mine, and I say: everything is yours.”

After this I thought to myself: if the Divine Fiat holds his first act, in a way that no other act can say I am (the) first of Him, how can they find themselves before God as first act those people that will come afterwards to live in Him if already they are the first? And my divine Jesus added:

“My daughter, for who lives or will live in my Volition, all will be as first act before God, because He holds one act alone an incessant act, that always departs from the first act, and in virtue of this single incessant act (that) elevates all the acts done in Him to the his first act, in a way that all those people that will live in my Volition will find themselves in his single act, and everyone as first before the adorable Majesty. Hence in my Divine Will there will not be neither first nor after, but all fused together in one single act, what honor, what glory (for) the creature to be able to hold the post in this act only of the Will of her Creator, from which as (a) spring gushes forth all goods, all happiness possible and imaginable.”

Whence continuing to follow the acts of my beloved Jesus, I stopped when he received the cross, that he embraced it with all the tenderness of his love, put it on his shoulders in order to carry it to Calvary, and Jesus added:

“My daughter, the cross matured the kingdom of the redemption, completed it, and put itself in custody of all the redeemed, in a way that if one makes themselves guarded by the cross, she receives in herself the effects that a matured fruit contains, that contains taste, sweetness and vital humors, and it makes her feel the whole good of the redemption, in a way that she matures together with the fruit of the cross, and is disposed to return in the kingdom of my Will, because the cross also matures the kingdom of my Will. In fact who has disposed you to make you live in Him? Has it not maybe been the cross of so many years that matured you as a beautiful fruit, it took away from you all the sour/unripe tastes that the earth contains, all the attacks of the creatures, converted them in you into divine sweetness, putting itself(,) the cross(,) to watch, so that nothing might enter in you that might not be holy, that might not give of Heaven. The cross has done non other than make flow in you all the vital humors, it formed in you your Jesus, and your Jesus, finding you mature, formed the kingdom of his Divine Will in the depth of your soul. And assuming myself (as) Teacher with all love I spoke to you and I speak to you of Him, I have taught you his ways, the life that you must hold in Him, the prodigies, the power and the beauty of my kingdom. You must know that every time that your Jesus decides to manifest a truth so much is (my) love for it, that I bilocate my own life in every single truth that I manifest, in order to make that every truth holds the power of forming a divine life in creatures. Do you see therefore what it means to manifest to you one truth less or one truth more? to put forth a Divine life in jeopardy, to put it in peril, because if it doesn't become known, loved and appreciated, it is a Divine life that doesn't receive its fruit and that doesn't receive the honors that are appropriate to it. Behold therefore I love so much the truths that I manifest, because there is my life that races within, and I love so much that it be known. How very different is my work from that of creatures, if they speak, teach, work, there doesn't remain their life in the word and in the work, therefore they don't regret it so much if their words and works don't have their fruit. Instead I regret it a great, great deal, because it is life that I make race in that which I manifest.”

The soul alone with Jesus and Jesus alone with her and how He alone enjoys her. Order and harmony of the Creation; how every created thing had to undergo the action of Adam. God first model of the Creation, Adam the second, third who must make the kingdom of the Divine Fiat return.

I felt all abandoned in the eternal Fiat, and all alone, and alone for Jesus, as if no one else might exist for me. Whence I thought to myself: I am alone, inside of me I don't feel flow anything other than the great sea of the Divine Will, all the rest doesn't exist for me. Jesus himself vanishes and hides himself in the interminable light of Him, and if for a few (moments) he makes himself seen, the rays of the sun of the Divine Volition rains on him, and my poor sight being too weak remains eclipsed and disperses (in) it, awaiting that my Jesus, my Life, rids himself from that light, or else he makes it less radiant in order to be able again to find him again, and I lament over the light that eclipses my sight and hides from me He who is life of my poor soul; oh! if this light of the blessed Fiat might be less dazzling, I (would) enjoy my sweet Jesus, because many times I feel his Divine touch, his refrigerant breath, other times his lips that give me his kiss, and with all this I don't see him, everything has caused the blessed light that forms the eclipse. Oh! Holy Will of God, how very strong and powerful you are that arrives to hide from me my beloved Jesus. Whence while I thought this and other, my Highest Good Jesus went forth from within that light so dazzling, thus I could see him and he said to me:

“My daughter, you are alone with me, and I am alone with you, and since you are alone with me, I centralize in you all myself, because being alone with me, I can fill you all with me, there is no point with you where I don't take my place, I transform you in me and as in nature extraordinary grace enters in you. When the soul is alone with me I am free to do that which I want, I enjoy myself (with) her alone and my love makes me do so much with her that I arrive even to folly, and I do so many of those loving stratagems, that if by all creatures they might be able to see or sense it they would say:

only Jesus knows how to love and can love in way so surprising, so clever and so great. I do with one who lives alone with me, as the Sun might do, if it might be able to centralize all his light above a plant, this plant would receive in itself the whole life of the Sun, and it would enjoy of all its effects, while, the other plants receives each one only one effect, that (is) enough to the nature of its plant, instead the first one, since it receives the whole life of the Sun it receives all the effects that together the light contains. Thus do I, I centralize in her all my Life and there is nothing of me that I don't have her enjoy. Instead who is not alone with me, since I can not centralize my Life, she is without light, she feels in herself the weight of the darkness, her being is divided in so many parts to how many things she holds there. So that if she loves the earth she feels divided with the earth, if she loves creatures, pleasures, wealths, she feels herself as shredded(,) divided in a way that, some tear her on one side and some from the other, the poor heart lives between anxieties and fears and bitter disillusion. All to the contrary who lives alone/only with me.”

After this I was following my round in the Divine Volition and arrived in Eden, I was glorifying my Creator in the act that with his omnipotent breath he infused life in the body of my first Father Adam and my always amiable Jesus, moving in my interior said to me:

“Daughter, with what order and harmony man was created; Adam was created by us king of all the Creation, and as king he held supremacy over all created things, and if he had not rejected our Fiat, possessing the unity of Him, in all his life he would have filled with his acts all created things; as king and proprietor he held the right that every created thing had to undergo his action, it had to be invested by his light, because every action of his was a sun one more beautiful than the other. So that he had to form the crown to all the Creation, he would not have been true king if he might not had known all his dominions, and he might not had had the right to put there his acts in all things created by us. It happened when one such is proprietor of a ground, which as proprietor holds the right to stroll within, to plant flowers, plants, trees, in short all that which he wants. Such was Adam, with the power of our Divine Fiat, he did that which he wanted, he bilocated himself in all created things, and if he spoke, if he loved, if he adored and worked, his voice resounded in all the Creation and was invested with the love, with the adoration and work of him. Hence the Divinity felt the love, the adoration, the work of his first child in all his works. Now all the work of Adam would have remained in all the Creation, as the first model to all his descendants, which would have modeled all their acts to the reflections of light of his acts, that as first Father he would have given in inheritance to all his descendents, that not only would have held their model, but the possession of his same acts. What would have been our glory and his, to see the work of our dear child, of our precious treasure, given birth by our love, fused with our works, what happiness for him and for us? Now if this was our purpose why the whole Creation was created and our dear jewel that is man, is it not just that in spite that Adam started and didn't finish, rather he finished in sorrow and in confusion, because he rejected our Divine Volition that served him as first act and made him work in the works of his Creator, that we effect this purpose of ours in his descendents? Behold therefore I call you in the midst of my works, in all the Creation, in order to form the model in which the other creatures must model themselves, in order to return in my Fiat. If I might know what joy I feel when I see that you, making yours my Divine Volition you want to animate the light of the Sun to tell me that you love me and to ask my kingdom of me: the rapidity of the wind, the murmur of the sea; the flower, the extended sky even the song of the little birdie, you want to give your voice to everyone, to animate everyone to tell me that you love me, you adore me and you want the kingdom of the Supreme Fiat,

I feel such contentment, that I feel repeated the first joys, the first love of my dear jewel, and I feel inclined to put everything aside, to forget everything, in order to make return everything as it was established by us. Therefore be attentive my daughter, it deals with too much. You must know that the first model in the Creation was the Supreme Being, in which man had to model all his acts with his Creator, the second had to be Adam, in which all his descendants had to model themselves, but since he withdrew himself from my Will, lacking Him, his unity in Him, he lacked the (paint) brushes, the colors and the first matter in order to be able to make the models to (the) likeness of his Creator, poor little one, how could he form the models with the same Divine form if he was in possession of that Will no more that administered (the) ability and all the material that he needed in order to be able to form the same models of God? Rejecting my Divine Fiat he rejected the power that can do all and knows how to do all. It happened with Adam as it would happen with you if you might not have neither paper, nor pens, nor ink in order to write, if you might lack this you would not be capable of writing a single word, thus He was not capable anymore of forming the models upon the Divine stamp. The third model you must do it who must make the kingdom of my Will return; Therefore your duties are great, to your models you/they will be modeled all those of the others, and therefore in all your acts that flows the life of my Divine Volition, so that he administers to you all the material that is needed and thus everything will go well, and your Jesus will remain together with you, in order to make you execute well his Divine models.”

How the Word remained in the center of (his) Humanity and how he worked. How there is (a) great difference between the reigning of the Divine Will and between the sanctity of the Saints although there might be miracles.

I was following my round in the Divine Volition and arrived to the acts that He did in the humanity of Our Lord, my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior said to me:

“My daughter, the Divine Word in my Humanity was as center of Life in It, they were inseparable the one from the other, but since my Humanity had its limits and the Word was without limits, immense and infinite, it could not restrict inside of It the whole interminable light of the Word, this light overflowed outside, in a way that its rays overflowing outside of the center of my Humanity, went out from my hands, from my feet, from the mouth, from the heart, from the eyes, from all the parts of my Humanity, in a way that all my work flowed in this light, that more than solar rays invested everything and retraced all the acts of creatures, in order to give his, so that the acts of them invested by his light, they might take the form of his and fused together they might acquire the value, the beauty of his acts; but what was not the sorrow of my Humanity, in seeing itself(,) his acts(,) rejected by creatures in the same light of the Eternal Word, and to impede the transformation that he wanted to do in creatures? His every act rejected was a sorrow, and every act of creatures converted itself for my Humanity into bitterness and offense. How hard it is to want to do some good, to do it and not to find one who receives this good. This sorrow lasts yet, because all that which my Humanity did in the light of the eternal Word, exists, and will exist always, and is always in (the) act of doing that which it has done one time, and it is as trapped awaiting that the creature receives the transmission of his acts, so that one might be the act, one the value, one the will, one the love, on both parts, and only with my Fiat reigning can the work that I did in the Redemption have its total completion, because with the light of Him, creatures will take away the blindfold and will let flow in them all the good that the Eternal Word came to do in my Humanity for love of creatures.”

Whence while he said this, I saw my sweet Jesus, from within his interior went forth so much light that it invested everything and everyone.

Whence I followed the my round in the Divine Fiat, and accompanying with my I love you all the prodigies that He had done in the saints, Patriarchs and prophets of the old testament, as those after his coming upon the earth, in order to ask in virtue of all these acts of his, his Divine kingdom in the midst of creatures, I thought to myself: if this Holy Volition has done so many prodigies in all these saints, is not this therefore, his reign at least in these saints so prodigious? But while I thought this, my beloved Jesus moving in my interior said to me:

“My daughter, there is no good that from my Divine Will has not gone forth, but (there) passes a great difference between the reigning of Him in creatures and between the issuing forth (of) an act from inside of Him and communicating it to creatures, as to Abraham issued forth an act of heroism and he was the heroic man in the sacrifice, to Moses an act of power, and he was the prodigious man; to Samson an act of fortitude and he was the strong man, to the prophets he revealed that which regarded the future Redeemer, and they were men (of) prophesy, and thus with all the rest that are distinct as prodigious with virtue non common, according to the act that my Divine Volition issued forth, if they lent their adhesion and they corresponded, thus they received the good of the act of Him. This is not to reign my daughter, nor does it form the kingdom of my Volition, in order to form it there is not needed one act alone, but the continued act He possesses, it is this that he wants to give to creatures in order to form his kingdom: his continued act of power, of happiness, of light, of sanctity, of inarrivable beauty; that which my Fiat is by nature, he wants to make creatures in virtue of his continuous act, that contains all possible and imaginable goods. Would you say that a king reigns only because he has made a law, has given a good to his people? Certainly not! the true reigning is to form the life of people with all the laws, giving the decorous, convenient, upright and just regime to the life of them, giving all the means necessary to them so that nothing might lack for their good. The king in order to reign should have his life in the midst of the people and make one his will and his goods with them, in a way that the king should form the life of the people and they the life of the king; otherwise it is not true reign. This is the reign of my Will, to render himself inseparable from the children of his kingdom, giving all that which he possesses even to overflowing outside, in order to have happy and holy children with his same happiness and sanctity. Now from here one sees that in spite of the so many prodigies and miracles that the saints, the prophets, the patriarchs, have done, they have not formed my kingdom in the midst of creatures, nor have they made known his value, nor the great good that my Will possesses, nor that which he can do and wants to give, and the purpose of his kingdom, because (there) lacked his continued act, his permanent life in them, and therefore not knowing him after all, they occupied themselves with other than what regarded my glory and their good, and they put aside my Will, waiting for another more propitious time, when the Paternal goodness might be delighted to make known first, and then to give a good so great and a kingdom so holy that they didn't even dream of. Therefore be attentive and follow your flight in the Divine Fiat.”

How God when he manifests a new truth to the creature it is a new feast for God and for her. As the soul decides to do her act in the Divine Volition thus she calls the Divine Fiat to reflect with his light in her act, the Which holds the virtue of emptying it of all that which is not light.

I felt myself afflicted for the usual privations of my sweet Jesus, but all abandoned in his amiable Volition. Hence I thought to myself: in these days my Highest Good Jesus said nothing to me, everything is (a) state (of) profound silence, no sooner than some motion in my interior made me feel Him, but without one word of his. Whence while I thought this he moved in my interior saying to me:

“My daughter, when God doesn't manifest other truths, the Divine Will is as suspended, he doesn't add on other goods towards creatures, hence for God and for the creature there is not the feast that the truth brings with it.”

And I in sensing this said: for you it is always feast, because you have with you all the truths, rather for the poor creature the feast is interrupted, because she doesn't possess the source of all the truths, hence when her Creator doesn't communicate other truths to her, the new feasts remain interrupted for her, at most she enjoys those feasts from you already communicated, but the surprises of the new feasts are not in her power, that which is not for you. And Jesus added:

“My daughter, certainly for us it is always (a) feast, of it no one can overshadow in the least the high sea of our new joys and happiness without end that our Divine Being contains in itself, but there is a feast that becomes formed in the act when our Divine Being regurgitating with love toward the creature manifests his truths, to see the creature doubly happy, so many times more for how many more truths we manifest to them, it is for us a new feast. To put forth our truths that go out from the source of our joys, preparing the table of our happiness to the creature that contains the truth, to see her celebrate together with us, to sit at our same table, in order to eat of our same food, it is for us a new feast. The feasts, the joys, they become formed in the communications, the isolated good doesn't bring (a) feast, joy alone does not smile, happiness alone by itself doesn't banquet, it is not put in vivacity, and with whom should he celebrate, smile, banquet, if he doesn't find one with whom to make this feast, to smile together, to inebriate themselves side by side? Therefore the union forms the feast rendering another creature content forms the contentment itself. Behold therefore, if we have ours new feasts, that we don't ever lack, we lack the new feast (in) that we don't give to the creature. If you might know our joy and happiness (in) seeing your littleness take a seat at our table to feed itself of the truths of our Supreme Volition, to smile in front of his light, to take our joys, in order to make you the deposit in yourself of our riches, to embellish you with our beauty, and as inebriated with so much happiness to feel you repeat, ‘I want the kingdom of your Fiat’, you would turn Heaven and earth upside-down in order to ask me (for) my Fiat in order to obtain the intent, and in order to do what? in order to make happy with your same happiness the whole human family, it seems that your feast is not full, if it doesn't make happy the others with your same happiness that you contain in virtue of my Will. If you might be able to make known to everyone all that which you know of Him, and make tasted by all the happiness that he possesses, would it not be for you one feast more, and would you not feel doubly happy with the happiness of the others communicated through you?”

And I: certainly my Love that if I might be able to overwhelm everyone in your Holy Volition how more so happy I would be and content.

And Jesus: “Well then such am I, to our happiness that never exhausts and that always holds us in feast, it would add on to our feast the happiness of the creature. Therefore when I see you long for my truths in order to know them, I feel drawn to manifest them and I say: I want to enjoy my new feast with my little daughter, I want to smile together with her and inebriate her with of my same happiness. So that in these days of silence you have lacked our new feast and for us yours.”

Whence he became silent and then added:

“My daughter, as you decide to re-pour yourself in my Divine Fiat and form in Him your thoughts, words and works, thus you make the call to my Will, and He feeling himself called, responds to the call with reflecting his light in your act and with his light he holds the virtue of emptying that act of all that which can be of human and re-fills it with all that which is divine. Hence my Divine Volition feels called by your thoughts, by your words, by your hands, by your feet and by your heart, and He reflects his light in every one of them, empties there everything and forms there his life of light, and since the light holds all the colors, thus my Divine Volition puts there a divine color to the thoughts, another to the words, another to the hands, and thus with all the rest of your acts, and as you multiply them, thus he multiplies his divine colors invested with his light, and oh! how beautiful it is to see you invested with so many varieties of divine colors and tones, for how many thoughts, acts and steps you do, all these Divine colors and lights gives you such beauty that it is an enchantment to see you and all Heaven would like to enjoy such beauties that my Fiat has invested your soul. Therefore (let) your re-calling to my Divine Will be continuous.”

When the soul does not give the primacy to the Divine Will He remains precarious and as suffocated in the midst of creatures. When the soul prays that the kingdom of the Divine Will comes, all (of) Heaven echoes her prayer.

My abandonment in the Divine Fiat is alone my life, my support, my everything; my sweet Jesus hides himself always more and I remain only with this Volition so Holy, immense, so powerful that to his every motion spouts and issues forth from him seas of light, that form his luminous, interminable waves, my littleness disperses itself, although I understand that I have much to do, in order to follow his innumerable acts in a sea so vast, and dispersing myself in the Divine Fiat I thought to myself: oh if I might have with me my sweet Jesus, that knows all the secrets of his Volition, I would not disperse myself and I would better follow the interminable acts of Him, I feel that truly he doesn't love me anymore as before, although he says to me that is not true, but I see the deeds, and the words before the deeds don't have value. Ah! Jesus! Jesus! I did not expect from You this change that makes me feel a continuous death. Much more so that you know it, that leaving me for a long time without you costs me more than my life itself, but while I thought this and other, my beloved Jesus moved in my interior and said to me:

“My daughter, my little daughter, why do you fear? Why do you doubt my love? And then if you disperse yourself it is always in my Volition that you remain, never out of Him, nor could I tolerate that you might go out one single step from his confines, no, no, the little daughter of my Will will always remain in his arms, and then how can I not love you if I see excel in you, in all your acts my Fiat? I do not see him in peril as in the other creatures and suffocated in all their acts, because not giving him the primacy he is always in peril in the midst of them, some steal his goods, some offend his light, some refuse to acknowledge him and tread on him, not giving him the primacy he is as a king that not giving the due honors, they maltreat him and the subjects want to put him outside of his own kingdom. What sorrow! Instead in my little daughter my Divine Will is secure, he doesn't suffer peril in his looks, because in all the created things she looks at the veils that hide my Will, and she tears the veils and finds him reigning in all the Creation, she kisses him, adores him, loves him and follows his same acts putting herself to his cortege, he doesn't suffer peril in your words, in your works, in everything, giving him the first act in your acts; with giving him the first act she gives him the Divine honors, considers him king of everything, and the soul receives as things that belong to her the goods of her Creator. So that for her my Will doesn't find himself in (a) precarious state, but secure, he doesn't feel the light, the air, the water, the earth stolen, because everything is hers. Instead who doesn't let him reign steals it from all parts and he is in continuous peril.”

After this having followed my round in the Divine Fiat I was gathering all created things where all the acts of the Divine Fiat are dominant, and I gathering Heaven, the Sun, the sea and all the Creation all together, I brought everything together before the Supreme Majesty in order to surround him with all his works and, to make called by his acts of his own Will the kingdom of the Divine Fiat upon the earth, but while I did this my amiable Jesus moved in my interior and said to me:

“My daughter, I feel as all (of) Heaven makes your demand echo and they repeat amongst themselves, the Angels, the Saints, the Sovereign Queen, Fiat! Fiat! Your Will, as in Heaven so in earth, since it is demanded by Heaven, it is the kingdom that interests everyone, everyone feels a duty to ask that which you want, they feel in themselves the same strength of the power of my same Divine Will from which everyone is animated and they repeat: the Will of Heaven is one with the earth. Oh! how beautiful it is, how harmonious it resounds, when an echo of the earth invests all Heaven and forms one echo alone, one Will alone, one demand alone. And all the blessed say between themselves taken with admiration: Who is she who brings the whole cortege of the divine works before the Divinity and with the power of the Divine Fiat that she possesses overwhelms us all and makes us ask for a kingdom so Holy? No one has had this power, no one until now has asked for the kingdom of the Fiat with such power and empire, at the most some have asked for the glory of God, some the salvation of souls, some the reparation of so many offenses, all things that are referred to the external works of God, instead asking for the kingdom of the Divine Volition are his interior works, the most intimate acts of God, it is the destruction of sin, not salvation only but divine sanctity in creatures, it is the liberation from all spiritual and bodily evils, it is transporting the earth in Heaven in order to make descend Heaven in earth. Therefore asking for the kingdom of my Divine Will is the greatest thing, most perfect, most holy, and therefore all reverent they respond to your echo and the beautiful harmony resounds in the Celestial Country, Your Will be Done as in Heaven so in earth.”

Who lets himself be dominated by the Divine Will in virtue, of Him she receives in herself Divine fecundity and can generate in the acts the good that he possesses. That which is necessary in order to obtain the kingdom of the Divine Will: first to move God, second to possess as life the Divine Will.

My abandonment in the Divine Volition is continuous, and although many times he hides me and eclipses my beloved Jesus, my Life, my Everything, He never hides himself, his light is permanent in me and it seems to me that although one might want to hide one can not do it, because finding his light everywhere one doesn't find the point where one might be able to disperse oneself, to restrict oneself, because by its nature he is immense, he invests everything, he excels over everything with such empire, that I feel him in every fiber of my heart, he flows in my breath, in everything, and I thought to myself, that the Divine Volition loves me more than Jesus himself, because He very often leaves me and his adorable Will never leaves me, rather by his nature he finds himself in the condition that he can not leave me and with his rule of light he dominates me, and triumphant he awaits the supremacy of my acts. Oh! Divine Will, how very admirable you are, your light does not let anything escape, and caressing and playing with my littleness, you render yourself conqueror of my little atom and you enjoy losing it in the immensity of your interminable light.

But while I felt all immersed in that light, my beloved Jesus moved in my interior and said to me:

“My daughter, who lets herself be dominated by my Divine Volition, in virtue of Him she receives the virtue of Divine fecundity, and with this fecundity she can generate in the others that which she possesses, with this Divine fecundity the soul forms the most beautiful and long generation, that will bring her the glory, the cortege of having so many births generated in her acts themselves, she will see go forth from within her the generation of the children of the light, of the happiness of the Divine sanctity. Oh! how beautiful, holy, and pure (is) the fecundity of the seed of my Divine Volition, he is light and generates light, he is holy and generates sanctity, he is strong and generates fortitude, he possesses all goods and generates peace, joy and happiness. If you might know what good it will bring to you and then to everyone, the fertile seed of this Volition so Holy that knows, and can generate in every instant all the goods that he possesses? It was thus that the Heights of the Sovereign Queen could generate the Eternal Word without another's work, because not giving life to her human volition, she gave life only to the Divine Volition, and with this she acquired the fullness of the seed of Divine fecundity and she could generate He who Heaven and earth can not contain, not only could she generate in herself, in her maternal bosom, but she could generate in all creatures; how noble and long is the generation of the children of the Celestial Queen, She generated everyone in that Divine Fiat that can do all and contains all. So that my Divine Will raises the creature and makes her participate in the fecundity of the Celestial Paternity; what power, how many sublime mysteries doesn't he possess?”

Whence I continued my acts in the Divine Fiat and I offered everything in order to obtain his kingdom upon the earth, I wanted to invest all the Creation, animate all created things with my voice, so that all might say together with me: Your Will be done as in Heaven so in earth, soon, your kingdom come soon. But while I did this I thought to myself: how can this kingdom so Holy come upon the earth, in creatures there isn't any change, no one occupies themselves, sin, passions abound, how ever therefore could this kingdom come upon the earth? And Jesus moving in my interior said to me:

“My daughter, that which is more so necessary in order to obtain a good so great, that is the kingdom of my Divine Fiat, is to move God to make him decide to give my ruling Divine Will in the midst of creatures; when God moves himself and decides, he overcomes and conquers everything even evils themselves. And the other necessary thing [is] that the creature that seeks it and prays God to give such a good must possess in herself the life of the kingdom that she asks for the other creatures. Who possesses it will know the importance and won't spare any sacrifice in order to impetrate (for) the others the good that she possesses, she will know the secrets, the ways that she must hold, she will render herself importunate in order to conquer God himself. She will be as Sun that holds condensed in herself all the fullness of his light, and not being able to contain it in herself she feels the need to spread it out, in order to give light to everyone and to do good to everyone, in order to make them happy with her same happiness. Who holds a good holds the virtue of asking (for it) and giving it. This happened in the Redemption, sin flooded the earth, the people themselves called people of God were the smallest people, and that if it seemed that they occupied themselves it was in a superficial way, but not that they possessed in themselves the life of that Redeemer that they asked for, one can say that they occupied themselves like the Church today, the sacred and religious persons with reciting the Our Father, but the fullness of the life of my Will that they ask for in the Our Father is not in them, hence it finishes in words, but not in facts. Whence when the Queen of Heaven came who possessed the fullness of the Divine life and all that which she asked for the good of the peoples, moved God, conquered him, made him decide and in spite of the evil that existed the Eternal Word came upon the earth, through means of She who already possessed him and formed all his life; with the fullness of this Divine life she could move God, and the good of the Redemption came. That which all the others could not obtain all together, She obtained it, the Sovereign Queen, that had conquered first in herself her Creator, the fullness of all the goods that she asked for the others, and being conqueror, she held the virtue to be able to impetrate, and to give the good that she possessed. There is (a) great difference my daughter, who asks and possesses, and who asks and doesn't possess the Divine life the first asks with right, the second to the title of alms, and who asks (in) the title of alms is given pennies, liras/(dollars) at most, but not entire reign. Who asks with right possesses, is already mistress Queen and who is Queen can give the kingdom, and being queen she holds her Divine empire beside God in order to impetrate the kingdom for creatures. This will happen for the kingdom of my Will, therefore I recommend so much to you be attentive, let Him form the fullness of his Life in you. This way you can move God, and when God is moved there is none who resists it...”

Fortitude of the Celestial Mama in the privations of Jesus, fortitude that the little daughter of his Will must hold. Power of the acts done in the Divine Will, how they are the outlet of God.

I felt totally deprived of my Highest Good Jesus, and for how much I asked for him it didn't succeed me to find him. Whence I felt tortured and embittered in an inexpressible way, my words don't have the vocabulary in order to manifest my sorrow therefore I go on. Hence after long days of martyrdom and abandonment in that Divine Fiat, my beloved Jesus moved in my interior and said to me:

“My daughter, I want from you the same fortitude of [animo]/mind of the Celestial Sovereign Lady, that came to love the Divine Will more than the Humanity itself of her Son Jesus. How many times the Divine Volition commanded us to separate, and I had to go far away from Her, and She had to remain without me without following me. And she remained with such fortitude and peace to subordinate her own Son to the Divine Fiat, so much so that He enraptured by such fortitude bilocated the Sun of my Divine Will, and while I was with my Mama centralized in Her, I remained, centralized in myself, the Sun bilocated but the light remained one; extending itself, but without ever separating the one from the other center of the bilocated Sun. The Sovereign Queen had received everything from my Will, the fullness of grace, sanctity, the Sovereignty over everything, even the fecundity of being able to give life to her Son, everything had given her and nothing had been denied her, whence when it was needed that I should remove myself, with heroic fortitude she re-gave to the Divine Will that which she had received. The Heavens were stupefied in seeing the fortitude, the heroism of She who they also knew loved me more than life itself. As such I would like to see the little daughter of my Divine Will, strong, pacific, and with heroism re-give to Him your Jesus, when he wants that you remain deprived of me, I would not like to see you dejected, sad, but with the fortitude of the Celestial Mama it is as with the Sovereign Lady of Heaven the separation was external and apparent, but internally my Divine Volition held us fused together and inseparable, thus will it happen for you, my Volition will hold you fused in me and we will do the same acts together without ever separating.”

After this I followed my acts in the Divine Fiat, and feeling myself not do them well, I prayed my Celestial Mama that she might come to my help, so that I might be able to follow that Supreme Will that She had so very loved, and from which one recognized all her glory and height in which she found herself; but while this I thought this my always amiable Jesus moving in my interior said to me:

“My daughter, all the acts of my Queen Mother done in my Will, are all in expectation that they want the succession of the acts of the creature done in Her, so that all that which you do in my Volition, they are these acts that come to you to help, rather they line up around you, in order to administer to you some the light, some the grace, some the sanctity and some the act itself that you do, in order to be able to have the succession of these noble acts, holy and divine these acts are the outlet of God, that taking them, the creature fills itself so much, that not being able to contain them vents them again and gives her divine acts to her Creator, therefore they form the greatest glory that the creature can give to He who has created her, there is no good that doesn't descend through means of these acts done in the Divine Volition, they put everything in motion, Heavens and earth and God himself, they are the divine motion in the creature, and [it was] in virtue of these acts that the Celestial Sovereign Lady made the Word move to descend upon the earth, therefore she awaits the succession of her acts, in order to move God to make our Supreme Will come to reign upon the earth. They are the triumph of God over the creature and the divine weapons with which the creature conquers God. Hence follow your acts in my Will and you will have in your power the divine helps, as also those of the Sovereign Queen.”

State of the soul. How in the Divine Will sorrows and bitternesses don't enter because they are human things. Divine way. How the Divine Will holds its life in the midst of creatures and how they impede it. How every act done in Him is a divine signature that races; example.

I continue my abandonment in the Divine Fiat, and being totally deprived, of my Highest Good Jesus, I felt such bitterness and sorrow as not to know how to express it, but at the same time I felt imperturbable peace and the happiness of the light of the Supreme Volition. Whence I thought to myself: what change in my poor soul, before if blessed Jesus for a few (moments), even for hours deprived me of Him, I was agitated, delirious, I cried, I felt the most unhappy of creatures. Now all to the contrary, I am deprived not for hours, but for days, and although I feel an intense sorrow, penetrating even into the marrow of (my) bones, but without anxiety, without delirium, without being able to cry, as if I might not have tears anymore, all peaceful, fearless and happy. Holy God, what change! to think to be happy without Jesus I feel myself die, but my happiness is not touched, I feel that the happiness leaves the sorrow free, and the sorrow leaves the happiness free, each of them makes their course, their way, they hold their place, but they are not mixed together. Ah! Jesus! Jesus! why don't you help me? don't you have pity on me? why don't you race, why don't you fly to her, to your little daughter that you said to love so much? But while I vented my sorrow, no sooner than he made a motion in my interior and said to me:

“Daughter of my Volition, why do you want to upset your peace, your happiness? Know that where my Will reigns, She, that noble Divine Queen, possesses immense joys and happiness without end; the sorrow, the tears, the bitterness, are born in time all parts of the human will, they are not born in Eternity, nor are they her births, they are limited and finished, therefore, they don't have the power to enter in the slightest into the high sea of the happiness of my Divine Volition. This is the Divine way in this state the Queen of Heaven found my own Humanity, that all our sorrows, that were too many and of all kinds, could not diminish, nor penetrate into the heights of our interminable joys and happiness. So that first, your yearnings, your tears and troubles when for a little you didn't see me they were residual of your human will, mine doesn't concede this weakness, and since She by nature doesn't possess them, where that Queen reigns she dominates sorrow, she makes it run, but she doesn't concede that it enters into her happiness with which she has filled her creature, with reigning in her, sorrow would not find the place where to put itself in the interminable sea of the happiness of my Adorable Will. Don't you perhaps want that She reigns in you, that you get worried over the change that you feel in your soul?

“My Divine Will has his life, and when the soul opens the doors of its will in order to let him enter and dominate, He enters in the soul and unfolds his life in her all Divine, and that Queen that forms in her his life of light, of peace, of sanctity, of happiness, and the creature feels as her properties all his goods, and if she feels sorrows, she feels it in a divine way, that doesn't bring any harm to her of all that which my Divine Will has communicated to her. Instead who doesn't open the doors to him in order to let him enter and dominate, the life of Him remains suspended in the creature, impeded, without carrying it out. It happens for my Divine Fiat as it would happen for a creature that wants to bring all goods to another, and this one with horrendous ingratitude ties her feet, (and) hands not letting her approach, he closes her mouth in order not to let her speak, he blindfolds her eyes in order not to let her look, in such a way reduced, how can she do for him the good that she would to do, if he ties her feet in order not to let her approach, her hands in order not to receive the goods that she brings, her mouth in order not to let her say that which she brings, her eyes in order not to let himself be enticed by her looks to open the doors to her, what sorrow would not be hers of this bearer of so much good? In this state becomes put my Will on the part of creatures, when they don't open their doors, in order to let him unfold his life. What sorrow my daughter, what sorrow!”

After this I continued to think of the Divine Will bearer of so much good, and my sweet Jesus added:

“My daughter, so much is the love toward who lets reign and dominate my Divine Fiat that every act that she does in Him, the Divinity surrenders a divine right to the soul, that is a right of sanctity, of light, of grace, of happiness, and with these rights he binds the soul and renders her possessor of the divine goods. So that every act more done in my Divine Volition is a signature that comes (and is) followed by your Creator, as if he might make for you a written paper that makes you owner of his happiness, of his light, sanctity and his grace. It happens as when a rich one loves a poor one, who never goes out from his house, and if she goes out it is only in order to visit the properties of her proprietor, in order to bring to her proprietor the fruits of his of his poor ones, in order to make him happy with his own goods. The rich one looks at the poor one, he becomes infatuated with her, sees her happy in his house, but in order to be sure of the happiness of her, he makes a public contract of his goods to the poor one that has wounded his heart, that always remains in his house and makes use of his own goods in order to make happy her beloved proprietor. Such is it for one that lives in our Divine Will, she lives in our house, she makes use of our goods in order to glorify us and felicitate us, disparity between her and us would make us suffer, she would weigh on our Paternal Heart, but since in our Divine Volition there can not enter sorrows and unhappiness, we do it as magnanimous, to her every act we put forth (our) signature signing our goods, in order to make her happy and rich with our same happiness. Therefore I repeat to you often, be attentive my daughter, do not let anything escape you, because your every act in Him they are signatures that race, and Divine signatures, with which becomes assured that the Divine Will is yours and you are His, the divine bonds never become less, they are eternal bonds...”

Who lives in the Divine Volition remains regenerated in Him and how she becomes endowed with his goods. The Virgin little light and how she became Sun in virtue of the Divine Volition.

I was doing my round in all the Creation, in order to follow all the acts that the Divine Fiat exercised in it, but while I did this I thought to myself: I feel that I can not do any less than to turn in all the Creation, as if I might not be able to be if I don't do my little visit to the Sky, to the stars, to the Sun, to the sea and to all created things, as if an electric thread pulls me (in the) midst of them, in order to praise the magnificence of so many works, and praise and love that Divine Will that created them and holds them pressed as in his Divine fist in order to conserve them beautiful and fresh, as they went forth to the light of day, and to call that same life and dominion that the Divine Fiat holds in them into the midst of creatures; and why therefore can't I do less? But while I thought this my beloved Jesus moved in my interior and said to me:

“My daughter, you must know that you were born not one time, but two times; one time like the other creatures, the other time you have been regenerated in my Will, and being his birth, all that which belongs to Him is yours. And as the father, the mother endow the daughter with their own goods, thus my Divine Volition as he regenerated you, he endowed you with his Divine properties. Whence, who doesn't love, who doesn't seek to remain in the midst of his properties? Who doesn't often visit them and forms his sojourn in them in order to enjoy them, love them and does not ever finish praising the glory of He who endowed her with so many vast properties, which contain so many varied beauties? You would be too ungrateful to be (a) daughter of my Divine Volition and not make your sojourn in the properties of whom has generated you. It would be not to love who with so much love has given birth to you, and to not recognize the riches of whom has generated [you]. Behold therefore the necessity that you feel in turning in all the Creation, because it is your stuff and who has generated you, with his electric thread of light and of love calls you to enjoy and to love that which is his and yours, and he enjoys to hear repeated your repeated refrains: come the kingdom of your Fiat upon the earth.”

After this following my round in all things created by God, I stopped when the Sovereign Queen was created, all beautiful, pure and without stain, the new and the greatest portent of all the Creation and my Highest Good Jesus added:

“My daughter, the immaculate Mary, little light of the human stock, because the human earth gave origin to her, but she was always daughter of the light because not one stain entered into this light; but do you know where all her greatness is, who gave her Sovereignty, who formed the seas of light, of sanctity, of grace, of love, of beauty, of power, inside and outside of Her? My daughter, man doesn't ever know how to do great things, nor how to give great things, so that the Celestial Queen would have remained the little light, if She might had not put aside her volition, that is the little light, and [if] not making herself invested by my Divine Volition, which lost her little light in Him, which is not (a) little light but interminable Sun, that investing all (of) her, formed seas of light around Her, of grace, of sanctity, he embellished her so much as to render her all beautiful, with all the tints of Divine beauties, as to enamor He who had created her. Her immaculate conception, for however beautiful and pure, it was always (a) little light and would not have held neither power, nor sufficient light in order to be able to form seas of light and of sanctity, if our Divine Volition might not have invested the little light in order to convert it into sun, and the little light, that was the will of the Celestial Sovereign Lady, would not have been content with dispersing herself in the Sun of the Divine Fiat in order to make herself dominated by Him. This was the great portent, the kingdom of my Divine Will in Her, with this all that which she did became light, she fed herself with light, nothing went forth from Her that was not light, because she held in her power the Sun of my Divine Volition, that how much light she wanted to draw so much of it she drew. And since the property of the light is to diffuse itself, to dominate, to fecundate, to illuminate, to warm, behold therefore the heights of the Sovereign Queen with the Sun of my Divine Will that she possessed, she diffused herself in God and dominating him subdued him to make him descend upon the earth, she remained fecundated with the Word Eternal, illuminated and re-warmed mankind. One can say that she did everything in virtue of the kingdom of my Volition that she possessed; all the other prerogatives can be called ornaments of this Queen Mother, but the substance of all her goods, her height, beauty, greatness and Sovereignty was that she possessed the kingdom of my Will. Therefore of Her (they) say the lesser, and of the greater they don't make a word. This means that of my Will they know little or nothing, therefore they are almost all mute for Him.”

How the human will formed the bad seed, the Divine Will reigning in the creature will form the good and holy seed. How God in giving a good to the creature encloses first in one alone the whole value of that good and then gives it to the other creatures.

Continuing my abandonment in the Divine Volition and feeling myself all surrounded by the interminable sea of his light, I prayed my beloved Jesus that he might expedite (things), that he might make his Will known soon, so that knowing it everyone might long for his kingdom in order to make Him dominate, and my amiable Jesus said to me:

“My daughter, the human will formed the bad seed and the worm in the human generations. Now the Sun of the light of my Divine Will must demolish this bad seed so much as to invest it and to destroy it by way of light, of heat and of knowledges, so that every knowledge that I manifest upon my Divine Fiat is a blow that I give to the human volition, in a way that all the knowledges upon Him will form so many blows in order to make it die, and the light and heat of Him will pulverize and will burn the bad seed and will form there the good and holy seed of my Will in the human generations. And as I go manifesting the knowledges of Him, thus I cast in your soul his seed, I prepare the earth and development of the seed, and the light and heat of my Divine Volition extends his wings of light over the seed, more than a mother he hides his birth in (his) own bosom, in order to fecundate it, to multiply it and to make it grow in his bosom of light.

And since a creature with doing her human will produced the bad seed and formed the ruin of the human family, thus another creature with making the human volition die, will produce the seed of the Divine Fiat, giving life and dominion to him in her, it will retribute that which creatures lost and will form their salvation, sanctity and happiness, if one creature could form so many evils with doing her will, why can't another creature form all the goods doing mine, and give liberty to my Volition with forming his life and forming his kingdom?”

Whence I continued to think of the Divine Fiat and said to myself: but how ever can this kingdom of the Divine Volition come in the midst of creatures if sin abounds, no one gives thought to want this kingdom rather it seems that they think of wars, of revolutions, of putting the whole world upside-down, and it seems that they are consumed with anger because they don't entirely arrive to their perverse designs, waiting in ambush for the occasion, doesn't all this remove the grace of a good so great? And my beloved Jesus moving in my interior said to me:

“My daughter, I hold you who is worth more than everything, and putting aside everything I will look at your value, that is the value of my Divine Will in you, and I will dispose my kingdom in the midst of creatures, a person is worth the value according to what becomes entrusted her, if my Will contains an infinite value that exceeds the whole value of all creatures together, who possesses him, before the Divine Majesty holds the value that exceeds everything. Hence for now I hold you, and it is enough for me in order to dispose the kingdom of my Will. Therefore all the evils of these times, and they are very many, they are not equal to the great Value of my Divine Will working in one creature alone, and He will make use of these evils in order to make of it (a) heap and with his power to sell them off from the face of the earth. This happened in the Redemption, were not the evils dispersed through the earth, indeed more than ever they abounded, but since the Sovereign Queen came upon the earth, the creature who possessed a Divine Will in Herself, who enclosed all the value, of the good of the Redemption, not looking at the others, nor their evils, I looked at the value of this Celestial creature, sufficient to impetrate my descent upon the earth, and in view of Her alone, who possessed our prerogatives and the value of a Divine and infinite Will, I gave and formed the kingdom of the Redemption in the midst of creatures. Therefore in disposing the good of the Redemption I wanted to find in my Mama the whole value of it, I wanted to put in security in her Maternal Heart, all the goods that had to be enclosed (in) my coming in the midst of creatures, and then I conceded the good that the Sovereign Lady of Heaven asked me. I did as a prince when he must depart for a destination of other conquests, he chooses the most faithful, he entrusts his secrets, he puts in hand the whole value of the expenses that is needed for the wanted conquests, and entrusting him with this, only that he knows that he possesses the whole value of the desired conquests, he triumphant departs, knowing victory is certain. Thus do I, when I want to give a good to creatures first I entrust myself with one alone, I put in Her the whole value of that good, and then as certain I give the good that she asks me for to the other creatures. Therefore think of enclosing in yourself the whole value that the kingdom of my Will must contain, and I will think of all the rest that is needed for a good so great.”

How the Virgin possessed the kingdom of the Divine Fiat. How the lights plunged themselves together and she could conceive. How Jesus from within the veil of his Humanity as Sun that rises went retracing all creatures. How every Divine manifestation is a promise that God makes to creatures.

I was thinking of the great love when my Highest Good Jesus incarnated himself in the bosom of the heights of the Sovereign Lady, and as a creature, although without the least stain, she could contain a God; and my always amiable Jesus moving in my interior said to me:

“My daughter, my Celestial Mama possessed my Will, she was so very full of it that she gushed out with light, but so much so that her waves of light raised themselves even in the bosom of our Divinity, and making herself conqueror with the power of our Divine Volition that she possessed, she conquered the Celestial Father and in her light she enraptured the light of the Word, and made him descend even in her bosom in the same light that was formed in virtue of my Divine Will; I could never descend from Heaven if I didn't find in Her our same light, our same reigning Will in Her, if this were not so it would be to descend, even from the first moment into (a) strange house instead I had to descend into my house, where I should descend I had to find my light, my Heaven, my joys without number, and the Celestial Sovereign with possessing my Divine Will prepared this sojourn, this Heaven (with) nothing dissimilar from the Celestial Country; is it not perhaps my Will that forms the Paradise of all the blessed? Whence as the light of my Fiat pulled me into her bosom, and the light of the Word descended, the lights plunged together and the pure Virgin, Queen and Mother, formed the veil of my Humanity around the light of the Word with a few drops of blood that she made flow from her ardent Heart, she enclosed it within, but my light was immense, and while my Divine Mama enclosed its sphere inside of the Veil of my Humanity that formed me, she could not contain the rays, they overflowed outside and more than Sun from the heights of its sphere when it rises, it spreads its rays upon the earth in order to trace the plants, the flowers, the sea, all creatures in order to give to everyone the effects that his light contains, and as triumphant from the heights of its sphere it looks at the good that it does and the life that it infuses in every single thing that it invests, thus did I, more than Sun that rises, from within the veil of my Humanity the rays that overflowed outside went tracing all creatures, in order to give to each one my Life and the goods that it had come to bring upon the earth. These rays from within my sphere they knocked at every heart, they knocked strongly in order to say: open to me, take the life that I've come to bring to you. This Sun of mine does not ever set, and continues still to make its way spreading its rays, knocking and re-knocking at the heart, the will, the minds of creatures in order to give my Life but how many close the doors to me and arrive to (even) laugh at my light? But so much is my love that with all this I don't withdraw, I continue my continuous rising, in order to give life to creatures.”

After this I was following my round in the Divine Volition and my beloved Jesus added:

“My daughter, every prophecy that my Prophets made of my coming upon the earth, was as a promise that I made to creatures, of coming in the midst of them, and the Prophets manifesting them disposed the people to desire and want such a good and they in receiving these prophecies they received the deposit of the promise, and accordingly (as) I went manifesting the time and the place of my birth thus I went augmenting the deposit of the promise. Thus am I doing with the kingdom of my Will, every manifestation that I make that regards my Divine Fiat, is a promise that I make, his every knowledge is one more deposit that I add on, and if I make my promises it is sign that as the kingdom of the Redemption came, thus the kingdom of my Will will come. My words are life that I put forth from me, and life must have its sojourn and produce its effects. Do you believe that it is nothing one manifestation more or less? It is a one promise more that a God makes, and our promises can not become lost, and how many more promises we make, so much more is the time near of realizing our promises and of putting them all to security. Therefore I require from you (the) highest attention and that nothing might escape you. Otherwise you would make escape a divine promise, that would bring consequences.”

Sacrifices of writing. How who works only for God encloses in his act a Divine life. How who is elected for a mission encloses all the goods that the others must receive. How all the redeemed turn around the Celestial Mama. The Creation mirror of man.

After having almost remained an entire night with writing, I felt worn-out of strength and I thought to myself: how many sacrifices, how much it costs me this blessed writing; but of what will be the use of it, the good, the glory that I give to my Creator? if with these sacrifices I can make the kingdom of the Divine Fiat known it will be very earned, but if I won't obtain this, my sacrifices of writings will be useless and empty and without effects.

Now while I thought this, my amiable Jesus had gone out from within my interior, and squeezing me to himself in order to give me strength he said to me:

“Dear daughter of my Divine Volition, courage in going ahead, nothing is useless of that which one does for me, because when the soul does an act only for me, it comes to enclose in her act all myself, and enclosing myself her act acquires the value of a Divine life, which is more than Sun, and the Sun by nature excels over all other things in giving light, heat and effects of innumerable goods to all the earth. Whence all that which one does for me, by its nature must carry the effects of the great good that the Divine Life contains. Beyond this you should know, that all the knowledges and manifestations that I make you on my Will and that you write on paper, they don't depart from you, but they remain centered in you, as rays within its sphere, and this sphere is my own Divine Will that reigns in you, which delights himself with so much love as to always add new rays that make her knowledges in this sphere, in order to make that creatures might be able to find sufficient light in order to know him and attracted[,] enraptured to love him. In this sphere they will enclose all the departing rays in order to form the kingdom of the Divine Volition, all the rays departing from within a single sphere, they will have a unique purpose of forming my kingdom, but however every ray will have a distinct office, one will enclose the sanctity of my Divine Fiat and will bring sanctity; another happiness and joy, and will invest those people that will come to live in Him with happiness and joy, another ray will enclose peace and will strengthen everyone in peace; another strength, another light and heat, and the children of my kingdom will be strong, they will have light in order to do good and in order to flee evil, and ardent love in order to love what they possess, and thus with all the other rays that will depart from within this sphere. Now all the children of my Will will be invested by these rays, they will revolve around them, rather every ray will feed their souls and they will suck from them the life of my Fiat. Whence what will be your happiness in seeing descend from within your sphere, in virtue of these rays, all the goods, the happiness, the sanctity, the peace and all the rest in the midst of the children of my kingdom, and to re-arise in the same rays the complete glory that, these creatures will give to their Creator, in order to make known the kingdom of my Will? There will be no good that won't descend through your means, in virtue of the sphere of my Will put in you, nor glory that won't re-arise upon the same way. When I elect a creature to a mission that must bring universal good in the midst of the human family, first I fix and enclose all the goods in the elect, which must contain the whole superabundant good that the others must receive, which will maybe not ever take all that which the elect creature encloses. This happened in the Immaculate Queen, that was elected for Mother of the Eternal Word and hence Mother of all the redeemed, all that which they had to do and all the good that they had to receive was enclosed and fixed as within a sphere of Sun within the Sovereign Lady of Heaven, in a way that all the redeemed revolved around the Sun of the Celestial Mama, in a way that She more than a most tender Mother, won't do other than to feed her rays to her children in order to feed them with her light, with her sanctity, with her maternal love, but how many rays, that spread, have not been taken by creatures, because ungrateful they all do not press themselves around this Celestial Mother? Therefore who is chosen must possess more of that which all the others should possess together. As everyone finds light in the Sun, in a way that all creatures don't take the whole extension of the light and the intensity of the heat, thus it happens with my Mama, they are such and so many the goods that She contains, that more than Sun she spreads the beneficial effects of her vital and vivifying rays. Thus will it be for the who has been elected for the kingdom of my Will. You see therefore you will be recompensed (for) the sacrifice of writing; first that it becomes fixed in you the good of the ray of that knowledge, and then, that you will see descend through your means that good in the midst of creatures, and of the exchange to re-arise the glory in that same light, of the good that they will do. How content you will be in Heaven for it and will thank me for the sacrifices that I have made you do! My daughter, when a work is universal, that encloses many goods that everyone can benefit from, there is needed greater sacrifices, and who is elect as first, must be disposed to give and to sacrifice so many times her life for how many goods (is) enclosed in order to give together with those goods her own life, to the good of her others brothers. Didn't I do as much in the Redemption, wouldn't you like to maybe imitate me?"

After this I followed my round in the Creation in order to follow the acts of the Divine Will that there are in it, and my beloved Jesus added:

"My daughter, before I had created man, I wanted to create first all the Creation, that should serve as man's mirror, in which mirroring himself it should serve him as to copy in himself the works of his Creator, it should be such and so much the copy that he should make in himself of the all the Creation, that one should see in man as mirrored, all the reflections of it, and in the Creation all the reflections of Him, so that the one should be mirrored in the other. God loved man more than all the Creation, therefore he wanted first to form (for) him the mirror of his works, where gazing in it he should copy the order, the harmony, the light, the firmness, of the works of He who had created him. But ungrateful man didn't look in this mirror in order to copy it, and therefore he is disordered, his works are without harmony, out of tune as one that wants to play without learning music, that instead of giving pleasure to whom listens it gives annoyance and discontent, the good that he does is without light and heat and therefore without life, and inconstant to every puff of wind. Behold therefore that for who must live in my Divine Volition I call her to mirror herself in the Creation, so that wandering in it she finds the staircase in order to climb in the order of my Will."

How baby Jesus as soon he was born fixed his look at his Mama and in whom should possess his Will. How God in the Creation put forth his Will as Prime matter.

I felt myself all abandoned in the Supreme Volition, but all torn for the total privation of my sweet Jesus oh! how I felt my poor soul tattered, that tears without mercy and without pity, because He alone can heal tears so cruel and long, and it seems that he does not care for She who for his love is so cruelly torn. But while I swam in my sorrow I was thinking when my sweet Jesus was about to go forth from the bosom of his Dear Mama in order to throw himself into her arms. Oh! how I would also have wanted to squeeze him between my arms in order to form sweet chains in order to make it that he might not depart from me anymore, but while I thought this , I felt my poor mind outside of myself and I saw my Celestial Mother all veiled with light and in her arms the little baby Jesus fused in the same light; but I had been (in this) state no more than a few moments and everything disappeared, and I remained more afflicted than before, but afterwards he returned and squeezing his little hands around my neck said to me:

"My daughter, no sooner than I went forth from the bosom of my Mama (than) I fixed my looks, one, to my dear Mama, nor could I do less than look at her because there was in her the enrapturing force of my Divine will and the sweet enchantment of beauty and (the) most radiant light of my Fiat, that eclipsing the pupil, I remained fixed in She who possessed in virtue of Him my same life, in seeing my life bilocated in Her I was enraptured and could not move my look from the Celestial Queen, because my same Divine force constrained me to fix it on her. The other look I fixed it who should do and possess my Will, they were two rings joined in one; the Redemption and the Kingdom of my Divine Will, inseparable all and both. The Redemption had to prepare, to suffer, to do; the kingdom of the Fiat had to complete and to possess, the one and the other of highest importance, hence to the elect to which became entrusted the one and the other, my looks became fixed because there was my same Will that enraptured my pupil. Why therefore fear if you have the look of your Jesus that always looks at you, defends you, protects you? If you might know what it means to be looked at by me, you would not fear anything more."

Whence after this I followed to think of the Divine Will and my always amiable Jesus added:

“My daughter, when our Divinity formed the Creation, it put as prime matter in all the things the Divine Will, and therefore all things had their form, solidness, order and beauty, and all that which the soul does with this prime matter of my Will, flowing in Him a vital act, it gives to all that which she does, the form of the beautiful works, all ordered and solid, with the imprint in every single work of the life of the Divine Fiat. Instead who does not do my Will and doesn't put it as prime matter in her works, perhaps will do many things, but all disordered, without form, without beauty, all scattered, that she herself won't know how to gather them together. It would happen as if one might want to make bread without water, she would perhaps hold much flour, but the water missing it would lack the life in order to be able to form bread. Another would hold many stones in order to build, but he doesn't hold the mortar that unites and cements the stones together, hence he will hold a disorder of stones but never a residence. Such are the works without the prime matter of my Will, alone they encumber, give trouble, annoyance, and if she does some good it is apparent, if they touch (them) they find them fragile and empty of every good.”

How Jesus makes seen that he sows in the field of the soul little lights. Cause of the silence of Jesus. Immense value of the manifestations on the Divine Will. Divine and human characters.

I was according to my usual (way) all abandoned in the Divine Volition following his acts, but while I did this I thought to myself: my beloved Jesus is almost reduced to silence, even of his amiable Volition he speaks so little, as if he might not want to say anything more, who knows (if) he didn't put a limit and will cease speaking even on that which regards his Fiat? In this while he made himself seen in my interior as (a) little child dressed with light, in the midst of a field, that he took light from within his womb and sowed that field with so many drops of light, all silent and intent to the work, and seeing that I remained amazed he said to me:

“My daughter, all that which you think now you thought it since you were writing the 16th Volume, that I should stop speaking of my Will; but I didn't do other than sow the field of your soul, with so many drops of light, that germinated and fecundated in your field, from little lights they changed into Suns, these Suns are the so many surprising manifestations that since that time until here I have made known to you on my Will. Oh! how beautiful was the field of your soul invested by these Suns one more beautiful than the other, it transformed everything into (a) divine field, all Heaven was infatuated by this field and looking at it felt its happiness duplicate. Now who has sowed it holds the right to gather, and being (a) Divine field I am Proprietor of it not only to gather but to sow again. Hence I am not doing other than to sow again, don't you see how I am all intent to the work of casting seeds of light in this field, so that germinating they bring forth the new Suns of the knowledges on my Will? Whence the work brings the silence, and my silence is heat, maturation and fecundity in order to transform the little seeds of light into Suns more radiant. I always work in you, now with one way and now with another, the work of my Divine Will is long and therefore I am always occupied and I hold you occupied; hence leave me to do it and follow me.”

Whence I felt the whole weight of the silence of Jesus, I felt myself worn-out of strength and coming to less, and I thought to myself: why do these knowledges on the Divine Fiat require so much work of Jesus and so many sacrifices? And Jesus returning squeezed me strongly between his arms in order to fortify me and added:

“My daughter, if I might want to work a whole Eternity in order to manifest one single knowledge on my Divine Will it would not be enough, because the Value is such and so much, of one alone of Him, that if I might want to make a comparison (of) who contains more value [with] the starry Sky, the Sun, the sea, the earth, one single knowledge of mine has more value than all the Creation together, because my knowledge is of immense value, infinite and without limit, and as it goes forth from us, where it arrives it generates and multiplies to the infinite the good and the light that it contains, it is the true regenerator of the Divine life, instead the Creation contains an immense virtue and is limited. Behold therefore I don't spare, neither work, nor sacrifice, because I know the whole value that it contains, and where I deposit it it becomes for me my Divine field, my throne, my altar, and so much is my jealousy of love, that I never leave it free, and I always work in order to hold it all intent to me, that (is) to say then, if instead with a single manifestation on my Divine Will, they are so many as to bombard more than (the) Sky with so many Suns of Her, think (on) it my daughter and appreciate such a good, a seed so fecundate in the field of your soul.”

Whence I continued my acts in the Divine Volition and since it was the rising of the day, I was saying to my amiable Jesus: your Volition involves everything, and oh! how I would like that as the Sun rises and invests with light all the earth, so the Sun of your Will rises in the intelligence, in the words, in the hearts, works and steps of all creatures, so that each one of them feels rise in themselves the Sun of your Fiat, and letting themselves be invested by his light, everyone lets him dominate and reign in their souls. In this while my sweet Jesus moved in my interior and said to me:

“My daughter, in the soul there are two characters, the human and the Divine, the Divine descends from the unity; and the soul in order to receive the Divine character must live in this unity of my Volition, in this unity as she forms her acts, they climb in the unity of her Creator, in that single act of God, that while in God (the) same becomes formed one act alone, the light of this single act descends in the depths, it invests everyone and everything, and embracing all, gives to each one the act that is needed with multiplying to the infinite the multiplicity of all the possible and imaginable acts. Hence as the creature does her acts in this unity they acquire the divine characters, that while it is one act alone, they enclose all the acts together. Oh! how beautiful it is to do with one single act, everything. Only God holds this virtue so powerful that with one single act he does all, embraces all, gives the work to all. What great difference between the Divine character and the human one. The human one does many acts, many works, but the creature remains always encircled with her acts, it seems that they don't have light in order to enlarge and diffuse themselves to everyone, they don't have feet in order to walk, where they are made there they remain. So that for how much a creature should do her acts, they are numbered(,) restricted, and therefore the character of the human work is very dissimilar from the work of the Divine unity, and of whom works in Her, that easily remains canceled and without (the) seed of fecundity. Behold therefore I want that the soul lives in the unity of my Will, in order to have the Divine characters, that are indelible and eternal, and as light diffuse themselves, enlarge themselves, multiply themselves, give themselves to everyone, rather they hold the primacy over the acts of everyone. If you might know how much the Divinity takes pleasure in seeing your littleness climb in the unity of the single Divine act that never ceases, in order to unite your acts, in the our single act, you in order to give us yours and we in order to give you ours, and impressing in you the character of our single act, it puts us in feast and we feel the happiness, the joy in having created the Creation. Whence in order to be more attentive you must be convinced that your living in our Volition is the feast that can bring the creature to her Creator, and how many acts done in Him, so many times you renew our joys and our happiness on your behalf, and bringing us the Creation in womb everything gives us the glory and the exchange of the love, because it was created by us.”

How the Divine Will is immense and in bringing forth creatures to the light he holds them in himself as so many little residences. Ingratitude of whom doesn't let him reign. Harmony between God and man; how he must always receive from God in order to always give to him.

I felt myself all abandoned in the Divine Volition, his light invested me everywhere, and while I made my round in his acts, my adorable Jesus moved in my interior and said to me:

“My daughter, my Will is immense and in bringing forth creatures to the light of day they remained in my same Will, as so many little residences formed in Him, in which my Volition by right should have the regime and the carrying out of his life in each one of these little residences, but while for goodness and his liberality he gave the space and all that which was necessary in order to form these little residences in Him, creatures with horrendous ingratitude don't want to give the right of letting my Divine Volition live in them, and with so many residences that he has formed in Him, how many the creatures are, he holds the sorrow of remaining without residences, because they don't give him entrance to live in them. It happens for my Will as it would happen if one might want to form so many residences in the sea, or else in the light of the Sun, and while the sea or the light of the Sun gives the space in order to form these residences in them, they would not like to make excel neither the water, nor the light of the Sun in these residences, neither to give the field to live (nor) to hold the first place of regime. If the sea and the light might have reason they would feel such sorrow, that the sea with its waves would have invested these residences, and knocking them down would have undone them and buried them in its bosom and the light of the Sun would have incinerated them with its heat, in order to empty itself of these unworthy and ungrateful residences that had denied them entrance. And yet neither the sea, nor the sun has given them life, but only the space; instead my Divine Will has given life and space to these residences of creatures in Him, because there is no point where one doesn't find him, nor life that from Him doesn't go forth, hence the sorrow of my Will for who doesn't let him dominate is immense and incalculable, to feel these lives in himself throbbing, to form the heartbeat itself and to remain outside as estranged, as if they might not pertain to him, and the affront and monstrosity of those people that don't let him reign, it is so very great, that it would merit a life sentence and destruction. My daughter, not doing my Will seems nothing to creatures, instead it is a very great evil and an ingratitude so black, that is there is no other evil that resembles it.”

After this I was following my round in the Divine Fiat, and I arrived to the point when God created man, I thought to myself: why did he rejoice so much in creating him that which he didn't do in all the other things that he created? And my beloved Jesus moving in my interior said to me:

“My daughter, in creating all the Creation with such order and harmony we gave of ours, without that nothing we had to receive from it, instead in creating man, while we gave of ours we gave him capacity of giving us our same gifts as his goods, in a way that we always must give so much, that it should form a competition between him and us, we to give and he to receive, he to give to us and we to super-abound him more in our gifts. This to give and to receive, to receive and to give, opened the feasts, the games, the joys, the conversation between Creator and creature. Whence in seeing the littleness of the creature celebrate with our Supreme Heights, to amuse themselves, to rejoice, to converse with us, we felt such joy, such emphasis of love in creating man that all the other created things seemed nothing to us to the comparison of the creation of man, and if everything seemed beautiful and worthy of our work and our love coursed in all created things, it was because they had to serve for lavishing gifts towards man, and from him we awaited the exchange of the love of all created things. Therefore all our joy and glory is centralized in man, and in creating him we put between him and us harmony of intelligence, harmony of light, harmony of words, harmony of works and steps, and in the heart harmony of love, so that in him passed from us as so many electric threads of harmony in which we descended in him, and he climbs to us. Behold therefore we rejoiced so much in creating man, and the sorrow that he gave us in removing himself from our Will was so very great, because he broke all these harmonies, changed our feast into sorrow for us and for him, he destroyed our highest designs, deformed our image that we had created in him. Because only our Divine Will held (the) virtue to maintain our work beautiful with all the harmonies wanted by us, this taken away, man is the most vile and degrade being in the whole Creation. Therefore my daughter if you want that all your senses harmonize with us, never go out from my Will; if you want to always receive from your Creator and open the feasts with us, (let) Him alone be your life, your everything.”

How God centralized everything in man in creating him and how in the story of the Creation he returns to the assault and centralizes in one of this stock the first act of the creation, in order to form the kingdom of his Will.

I continue my abandonment in the Divine Volition, with the torment almost continuous of the privation of my sweet Jesus. Oh! God, what awful suffering. Oh! how I regret my past(,) his sweet smile, his affectionate kisses, the softness of his voice, his enchanting and enrapturing beauty, his chaste embraces, his tender heartbeats that with so much love he made beat in mine, that divinized me and transformed his life in me, every act of Jesus, every word and every look, they were so many paradises more that he formed in his little daughter, and now remembering them they are wounds, acute darts, fiery arrows of intense sorrow, of martyrdom and of continuous death. But all my sorrow isn't here; maybe sorrow would have been relief for me, because sorrow would have said to me in clear notes that, my love toward He whom I loved, and that so very had loved me formed my torment, but not even this becomes conceded to me, because while the wounds are about to bleed, the darts to dart, the arrows to burn me, the light of the Holy Divine Volition flows in them and eclipsing all the force of my hard martyrdom, makes peace, happiness, the beneficent dew upon my poor soul flow, so that I can not even have the good of aching for a loss so great. Oh! if I might have been able to sorrow as before, I believe that my Highest Good Jesus wouldn't take so long to return, but this is not in my power, I am in the power of the Divine Fiat that doesn't leave any void in me and wants to also govern over my sorrow for the privation of Jesus.

Now while I swam in the two seas, sorrow of being deprived of Jesus and in the sea of the light of the Divine Volition, that seemed that one fused itself into the other, I followed my round in Him, and stopped at the Creation of man and my sweet Jesus, hardly moving in my interior said to me:

“My daughter, our Divinity in creating man centered everything in Him, as if we might had done nothing in all the rest of the Creation, we put everything aside and we occupied ourselves only with Him, our love arrived to excess we looked at him and re-looked in order to see if he would be beautiful if he would transpire our beauty in Him, our Divine Being rained as copious rain on Him, and do you know what rained? sanctity, light, wisdom, grace, love, beauty, fortitude, and while we unloaded ourselves on Him, our looks were fixed over man, in order to see if all our qualities were centered in Him, in a way that he should lack nothing in order to love him and in order to be re-loved, so much so that his beauty enraptured us, his love invested us, all our qualities put in Him made echo in our Divine Being and tied us and carried us to Him. What solemn time, what (an) unforgettable point, what enthusiasm of love was the Creation of man. All our Divine qualities overflowed outside and they celebrated his Creation. And for completion of our feast, joy and happiness shaken by our own love, we looked at the machine of the whole universe and we made him the gift of everything, constituting him king of all created things, in order to be able to say to us and to Him: king and dominant are we, king and dominant is he the work of our hands, the dear child given birth in the outlet of our love, it would have been unsuitable and not decorous for us, to make of our child a servant dissimilar from us in likeness and in dominion. Would it not perhaps be unsuitable and unworthy for a king, to make of his child a vile servant, putting him outside of his palace in a poor hovel? This king would merit the blame of everyone and he would not hold himself as father and king, but as tyrant. More so our birth that went forth from the depth of our Divine love, therefore we wanted the decorum and the imprint of royalty in our work. Now this love of ours was broken by man, and with removing himself from our own Divine Will He himself removed the imprint of royalty and the uniforms of king. But on our part nothing was changed and we persisted in our Will to make the work of our hands the child king, not servant, and therefore in the whole story of the Creation we return to the assault and to the completion of our Volition, and we call one of this stock and putting everything aside as if nothing else might exist, we renew the solemnity of the Creation of the first man. The enthusiasm of our love forms (the) highest waves and makes us see all love and putting her in these waves, in spite of that our omniscience sees everything, we put everything aside, and with this we renew the great prodigy of the first act of the Creation. We did this with the Sovereign Queen, and our love not breaking Her and conserving the life of our Volition, she holds the title and the right of Queen. Oh! how our love rejoices, makes festive, in seeing in Her the first Queen of the works of our creative hands. But our love [was] not content with having one Queen alone, nor was this our Will in the Creation, behold therefore our love regurgitating very strongly, and putting forth his contained waves, he calls Her and centralizes in her the whole work of the Creation rains over her as copious rain overflowing his Divine qualities, in order to have the second daughter Queen, in order to have her form the foundations of the kingdom of our Will, and thus to be able to have the succession of our children all kings and queens. Behold therefore I am putting everything aside in order to work in you the first act of the Creation, my love forms (for) me the enchantment, that while I look (at) the others it makes me hold (my) gaze fixed on you, and it makes me rain all that which is needed in order to make me form the kingdom of my Will in you. I do it as a Father, that having placed other children and having to place another, he doesn't think neither to those of before nor to those that he must place after, but putting all the others aside he thinks only of she who he is about to place, and if the child is good and she that has he has chosen is worthy of him, the father doesn't mind expenses, he endows her with great riches, he prepares her a sumptuous residence, in short he puts forth all his Paternal love. Thus do we when he tries to realize the purpose of the Creation, that is the kingdom of my Will in the midst of creatures, to that I call as before I don't spare anything, I centralize everything in her, knowing that the all will be inherited by those that will follow her."

How the Virgin remains isolated in her glory and she awaits the cortege of the other queens in order to have her succession/train. How the works of God give a hand between themselves. How the manifestations on the Divine Will will be the Gospel of his kingdom. Question on the writings. Necessity of the first Priests of the kingdom of the Fiat.

I was following the acts in the Divine Volition and said to myself: oh! how I would like to enclose myself in the first act of God, in order to do everything with one act alone, in order to be able to give to my Creator all the love, all the glory, his own beatitudes and infinite joys in order to be able to love and glorify as he glorifies and loves himself, what wouldn't I give him if I were in that first act of the Divine Fiat? I would lack nothing in order to felicitate my Creator with his own happiness. And seeing myself impotent, I prayed (to) my Sovereign Mama that she might come to my help and with her own maternal hands, she might enclose me in that first act where she had had her perennial sojourn, because living in the Divine Volition the first act of God was hers, therefore she was able to give him that which she wanted. But while I thought this I said to myself: how many blunders I am saying. But my amiable Jesus moving in my interior said to me:

"My daughter, the Queen of Heaven in her glory and greatness is as isolated, because She alone having lived in the first act of God, that is in the fullness and totality of the Divine Volition, She is (an) isolated Queen, she doesn't have the cortege of the other queens that surround her and equal her in the glory and greatness that she possesses. She finds herself in the conditions of a Queen that although surrounded by damsels, by pages, by faithful friends, that make for her honor and keep her company but not one queen equal to Her makes for her the great honor of surrounding her and keeping her company; what would be more honor to a queen of the earth, to be surrounded by other queens equal to her or else by persons of inferior conditions, of glory, of greatness and of beauty? There passes such distance of honor and glory between who is surrounded by queens and between who only is surrounded by others that not one compares to stand up to the comparison. Now the Celestial Mama wants, desires, awaits the kingdom of the Divine Will upon the earth, in which there will be the souls that living in Him they will form the life in the first act of God, who will acquire the regality and the right of queens, one will see all impressed in them an indelible character that, they are daughters of the Divine king and as daughters they await the title and the right of queens. These souls will hold their abode in the Divine palace, therefore they will acquire (the) nobility of ways, of works, of steps, of words they will possess such science that no one will be able equal them, they will be invested with such light that the light itself will announce to everyone that (she) is queen that has lived in the palace of my Will. Whence the Sovereign Queen will not be alone anymore in her regal throne, she will have the other queens that will surround her, her beauty will reflect in them, her glory and greatness will find one in whom it can pour itself out, oh! how honored, glorified she will be feel therefore she will desire one who wants to live in the Divine Fiat in order to form the queens in the first act of Him, in order to be able to have in the Celestial Fatherland the succession/train of the other queens that will surround her and will give her the honors owed to Her.”

After this I was thinking: what will these writings on the Divine Will serve? And my Highest and only Good Jesus, moving in my interior said to me:

“My daughter, all my works give a hand to each other, and this is the sign that they are my works, that one is not opposed to the other, rather they are so very tied between them that they sustain each other. (This is) So very true that having formed my elect people from which, and in which, had to be born the future Messiah, I formed from that same people the Priesthood, which instructed the people and prepared them for the great good of the Redemption, I gave them laws, manifestations and inspirations, over which the sacred writings were formed, called Bible, and everyone was intent to the study of It. Whence with my Coming upon the earth I didn't destroy the sacred writings, rather I supported them, and my Gospel announced nothing opposed to Them, rather they sustained each other in an marvelous way, and with forming the new dawning Church I formed the new Priesthood, which did not distance themselves neither from the sacred writings, nor from the Gospel, everyone was intent over Them, in order to instruct the people, and whatever one that might not want to draw from this welcome spring, one can say that he doesn't belong to me, because they are the base of my Church and the life itself with which the people become formed. Now that which I manifest on my Divine Will and that you write, one can call the Gospel of the kingdom of the Divine Will, nothing opposes itself neither to the sacred writings nor to the Gospel that I announced being upon the earth, rather one can call one the support of the other. And therefore I permit and call the Priests that come, that read the Gospel all of Heaven of the kingdom of my Divine Fiat, in order to say as I said to the Apostles: preach it throughout the whole world because I make use of my work of the Priesthood as I had the Priesthood before my coming in order to prepare the people, the Priesthood of my Church in order to confirm my coming and all that which I did and said, thus I will have the Priesthood of the kingdom of my Will. Behold what the so many things that I have manifested to you will serve, the so many surprising truths, the promises of the so many goods that I must give to the children of the Fiat Voluntas tua/(Your Will be done), will be the Gospel, the base, the inexhaustible source which everyone will draw celestial life, the terrestrial happiness, and the restoration of their Creation. Oh! how happy they will feel who with anxiety will drink long sips in these sources of my knowledges, because they contain the virtue to bring the life of Heaven and of scattering whatever unhappiness.”

Whence I in hearing this thought to myself of the great question of the writings on the Divine Will that they found in Messina, brought by the blessed memory of the Venerable Padre di Francia, how I, and my other Superiors wanted them absolutely here, and the Superiors in Messina, recommended rigorously by the Venerable Padre before dying, they want to hold them there, for the publication when it will please God, hence it makes none other than letters of fire from one side to the other, those in order to retain them and we in order to get them back, and I felt all worried, annoyed and tired and I said to myself: how has the good Jesus been able to permit all this, who knows that it is not displeasing Him also? And He moving in my interior said to me:

“My daughter, you are worried by it, but me not at all, nor am I displeased, rather I enjoy in seeing the interest that the Priests take with these writings, that will form the kingdom of my Will, this means that they appreciate the great good of them, and each one would like to hold with himself such a great treasure in order to be the first ones in order to communicate it to the others, and while the question endures of whom should win, the one approaches the other in order to consult between themselves over what to do, and I enjoy that my other ministers know that there is this treasure so great to make the kingdom of my Divine Volition known, and I make use of this in order to form the first Priests of my coming kingdom of my Fiat. My daughter, it is a great necessity to form the first Priests, they will serve me as the Apostles served me in order to form my Church; and who will occupy themselves with these writings in order to publish them, putting them out in order to print them in order to make them known, they will be the new evangelists of the kingdom of my Supreme Will. And since the ones that most made themselves (a) name in my Gospel are the four evangelists that wrote it, with their high honor and my glory, so will be those that will occupy themselves to write the knowledges on my Will in order to publish them, as new evangelists of them (they) will make themselves more (of a) name in the kingdom of my Will, with their highest honor and my great glory to see return in my womb the order of the creature, the life of Heaven upon the earth, only purpose of the Creation. Therefore in these circumstances I enlarge the round and as fisherman I fish those that must serve me for a kingdom so holy. Hence leave me to do it and do not give it thought.”

Insistences in asking (for) the kingdom of the Divine Fiat, sign why he wants Him to reign. Martyrdom of the privation of Jesus. The human will, the profaner of the creature.

I was making my round the Divine Fiat and I wanted to sweep everything away, Heaven and earth, so that all might have one will alone, one voice alone, one heartbeat alone, I wanted to animate all with my voice, so that all might say together with me: we want the kingdom of your Volition; and in order to obtain this I want to be sea in order to make the waters speak, Sun in order to give my voice to the light, Sky in order to animate the stars, and make everyone say: come your kingdom, be known your Fiat; I want to penetrate into the celestial regions in order to make said by all the Angels and Saints, by the Celestial Mama herself: Adorable Trinity, do it soon, don't dally anymore, we pray you, we press you, that your Volition descends upon the earth, make him be known and reign as in Heaven so in earth. Now while I did this and other that would be too long in telling it on paper, I thought to myself: and why my so many insistences and sollicitudes that, it seems that I don't know how to do anything, if I don't ask (that) his Fiat dominant upon the earth? And blessed Jesus moving in my interior said to me:

“My daughter, if you might know who it is that pushes you, who makes you insist so much, who would like to move everything in you to ask the life, the kingdom of my Will upon the earth, you would remain amazed by it.”

And I: tell me who it is, my Love. And He all tenderness added:

“You want to know it? It is my own Will that pushes you to this, because She wants to make herself known, wants to reign, but wants the insistence of her little daughter, that pressing her in all ways and moving everything, calls her with everyone, with the most powerful means to come upon the earth;

your insistences are (the) sign and image of her sighs and of her infinite sollicitudes and insistences that she wants to give herself to creatures. And as you want to move everything, thus She would like to move everything, the sea, the Sun, the Sky, the wind, the earth, so that all everything might move creatures to recognize her, and receive her, to love her and She no sooner than she will see herself desired then she will break the veils of all created things and that Queen and Mother that yearns (for) her children, will go forth from the bosom of them, in which she was hidden, and revealing herself she will embrace her children, and will reign in the midst of them giving to them goods, peace, sanctity and happiness.”

After this, I past long days of privation for my sweet Jesus, I felt myself tortured, worn-out of strength, so much so that having tried to write that which he had told me the past days, I felt myself unable to do it, and He seeing that I was not able, and the great efforts that I made in order to write, he went out from the depth of my interior as one that wakes from a long sleep and with a most compassionate accent he said to me:

“Poor daughter, courage, do not batter yourself, it is true that the martyrdom of my privation is terrible and if I hidden might not sustain you, you would not have been able to endure it in life. More so that She who martyrs you is my Divine Will, which being immense and eternal, your littleness feels the whole weight of his immensity and feels itself ground beneath Him. But know my daughter, what his great love is for you, his little daughter, and therefore his light not only wants to renew your soul, but also your body, wants also as to pulverize it, and animating the atoms of your dust with his light, with his heat, he wants to take away whatever seed and humors of the human will, in order to make that as much your soul as your body, everything might be sacred in you, he wants to tolerate nothing, not even an atom of your being that, might not be animated and consecrated by my Will. Hence your hard martyrdom is none other than the consummation of that which doesn't belong to him. Don't you know that the human will is the profaner of the creature? she when she holds her little ways, the littlest opening for entrance in her, profanes the holiest things, the most innocent. And my Volition that made of man his sacred and living temple, where to put his throne, his abode, his regime, his glory, felt that if the creature with the little entrances to the human volition, feels his temple, his throne, his abode, his regime and his own glory profaned. Therefore my Volition wants to touch you (in) everything, even my own presence, to see if his dominion is absolute over you and you are content that He alone dominates and excels in you. Everything must be in (the) Divine Will in order for Him to be able to say: I am secure, she has denied me nothing, not even the sacrifice of the presence of her Jesus, that she loved more than herself, hence my kingdom is secure.”

I in hearing this felt fortified by his presence, and at the same time embittered by his words, and in my sorrow I said to him: My love, so that you must not come anymore to the little and poor exiled one? and I how will I do it, how can I live without you?

And Jesus: “no! no! and then from where should I come if I remain inside of you; remain in peace and when you least think it I will reveal myself, because I don't depart from you but I remain with you.”

How in the Redemption is confined the kingdom of the Divine Fiat. How God in the work chooses where to deposit his work.

I was following my round in the Supreme Volition and arrived to the acts that my beloved Jesus did the Redemption, I tried to follow step by step, all that which he had done with so much love and sorrow, and I thought to myself: Jesus other times said that He loved me so much, that he made me proprietor of his works, of his words, of his Heart, of his steps, of his sufferings, there was no act that he had done that he didn't make a gift of for me, and this only Jesus was able to and wanted to do it, because he loved from God, instead creatures if they give, they give external goods, the riches of the earth, but no one his own life, this signifies what is (the) love of the creature, finite love. So that, I thought to myself: my amiable Jesus, if this is (so), you should call me, as I am about to do his acts, in order to make me the consignment of it. And he moving in my interior said to me:

“My daughter, you should know that in the Redemption the kingdom of my Divine Will was confined, in which there was no act that I did that (there) wasn't confined the one and the other, with this difference alone, that that which pertained to the Redemption I externalized them outside, I made them known and made a gift of them, because they had to serve as preparation to the kingdom of my Divine Will. Instead those that pertained to the kingdom of my Fiat I retained them in myself, as suspended in my own Divine Will. Now you must know that when our Divinity decides to bring forth an act from himself, to do a work, a good, first we choose the creature in which to deposit our work, because we don't want that which we do that it might remain in the void and without effect, and that any creature should be depositary of our goods. Therefore we call one at least, that if the other creatures ungrateful do not want to receive our goods, at least in this one our works become deposited, and when we are sure of this, then we work. Hence in the Redemption the depositary of all my acts was my inseparable Mama one can say that as I breathed, cried, prayed, suffered, and all the rest that I did, first I called Her to receive my breaths, my tears, my sufferings, et cetera, in order to deposit them in her and then I breathed, cried and prayed. It would prove unbearable and sorrowful to me, that would surpass all other sorrows, if I might not have, my Mama in which I could deposit my acts. Now being confined in all these acts of the Redemption those of the kingdom of my Divine Will, even from that time I called you, and as I deposited in the Sovereign of Heaven all that which regarded the kingdom of the Redemption, so I deposited, in you that which regarded the kingdom of the Supreme Fiat. Behold therefore I want that you follow me step by step, and if (as a) little baby I cry, I want you near in order to give you the gift of my tears that I impetrated for you with them the great gift of my Divine kingdom; if I speak I want you near in order to make for you the gift of the word of my Will; if I walk in order to make for you the gift of the steps of Him, if I work in order to endow you with his works, if I pray in order to give the gift of my prayer to you in order to impetrate his kingdom to the human family if I do miracles in order to give the gift of the great miracle of my Will, and therefore if I give sight to the blind I take away the blindness of your human volition in order to give my sight to you; if I give the hearing to the deaf I make for you the gift of acquiring the hearing of my Volition; if I give the language to the mute I untie you from the muteness of mine, if I straighten the lame I straighten you in Him, if I quiet the storm with my rule I command the storm of your human will that dares no more to agitate my pacific sea. In short there is nothing that I do and suffer that I don't make for you a gift of it in order to deposit in you the kingdom of my Volition so very beloved and formed in myself. It would have been for me the greatest of my sorrows that while I formed in myself in my Humanity, with so much love the kingdom of my Divine Volition, (the) first purpose why I came upon the earth and I formed this kingdom of mine in order to restore it in creatures, should it not be secure as it was for the Redemption that, at least one creature might not have received the restoration of the kingdom of the Divine Fiat. And therefore I looked at the centuries as a single point and I found you, the elect, and even from then I directed and deposited my acts in you in order to deposit in you my kingdom, and as with the kingdom of the Redemption I didn't spare anything, neither exertions, nor pains, nor prayers, nor graces, not even death itself, in order to be able to give to everyone graces and sufficient and abundant means so that everyone might be able to be save and sanctify themselves in spite that I put and deposited for security everything in the Celestial Queen. Thus with the kingdom of my Volition in spite that I put everything in security in you, I am giving so much, I don't spare anything, neither teachings, nor light, nor graces, nor enticements, nor promises, in a way that if everyone wants to receive the great good of my Will in order to make her reign in them, everyone will find means and superabundant helps in order to live such a great good. Therefore your coming upon the earth in time was awaited by me with so much love, with such anxiety, that you can not even imagine it, because I wanted to deposit the so many suspended acts done by my Humanity in order to form the kingdom of the Supreme Fiat. If you might know what it means one suspended act done by your Jesus? Oh! how you would hasten to receive all the deposit of my acts in order to give life to these suspended acts, because they contain so many divine lives, and you would hasten to make him known.”

Immense value of the writings on the Divine Will. How they are characters transmitted from the Celestial Country. How they will make the siege on the human volition. Desire of the Heart of Jesus. His acts army that demand the kingdom of the Fiat.

I was reading in volume 20 what regarded the Divine Will and felt such (an) impression as if I might see flow in the written words a divine life alive and palpitating, I felt the strength of the light, the life of the Heart of the Sky, as working virtue of the Divine Fiat in that which I read and I thanked with (my) heart my Jesus that with so much love he had benigned to make me write. But while I did this, my beloved Jesus as not being able to contain (in) Himself the trembling of his Heart, went out from within my interior and throwing his arms around (my) neck squeezed me strongly to his Heart in order to make me feel his ardent heartbeats and he said to me:

“My daughter, you thank me that I have made you write that which regards my Will, doctrine all of Heaven and it holds (the) virtue of communicating the palpitating and all celestial life of Him to who reads these writings. My Will is palpating in the midst of creatures, alive but suffocated by the human volition, these writings will make his heartbeat felt so very strongly that it will suffocate the human volition and will take his first place of life that waits for him, because my Will is the heartbeat and the life of all the Creation. Therefore the value of these writings is immense, they contain the value of a Divine Will; if they might have been written of gold they would exceed with great length to the great value that in themselves they contain, these writings are suns impressed with characters of the most radiant light in the walls of the Celestial Country and they form the most beautiful ornament of those walls of the Eternal City, in which all the blessed remain enraptured and surprised in reading the characters of the Supreme Will. Therefore greater grace I could not do in these times than to transmit the characters of the Celestial Country through your means to creatures, which will bring the life of Heaven in the midst of them. Whence as you thank me, I thank you that you lent yourself to receive my lessons and make the sacrifice of writing under my dictation. It was my Divine Will that made (it) flow while you wrote, the live virtue of his ardent, eternal and vivifying heartbeat that I impressed in your characters. Therefore rereading them you feel the renewal all celestial impressed in them. Oh! how difficult will it be to whom will read these writings not to feel the palpating life of my Volition and not to tremble from the virtue of his vivifying heartbeat from the lethargy in which they find themselves. These writings on my Supreme Fiat, with the force of his light will eclipse the human will, they will be balm to the human wounds, they will be opium to all that which is earth, the passions will feel themselves die and from the death of them will re-arise the life of Heaven in the midst of creatures. They will be the true Celestial army, that while they will put the human will in (the) state of siege and all the evils produced by it, they will make re-arise the peace, the lost happiness, the life of my Will in the midst of creatures. The siege that they will put forth won't do damage to anyone, because my Will is to put in (a) state of siege the human volition, so that it won't tyrannize poor creatures anymore, but leaves them free in the kingdom of my Will. Therefore I have insisted so much and I insist in making you write, I have held you (on the) cross, I have sacrificed you, it was necessary, it concerned the most important thing, it was the echo of Heaven, the life of up there that I want to form upon the earth. Behold the cause of my continuous refrain, be attentive, do not omit anything and your flight in my Will be continuous."

After this I was following my round in the Divine Fiat and I accompanied the sighs, the tears, the steps of Jesus and all the rest done and suffered by Him, saying to him: My love Jesus, I put the army of all your acts around you and investing your words, your heartbeats, your steps, your sufferings and all your acts with my I love you, I ask the kingdom of your Will of you. Listen oh Jesus, if you do not listen through means of the army of your acts, that prays to you, presses you, what else can one do in order to move you to concede to me a kingdom so holy? But while I said this I thought to myself: had my sweet Jesus his desires while he was on this earth or didn't he also have any at all? And He moving in my interior said to me:

"My daughter, as God there didn't exist in me any desire, because the desire is born in one who does not possess everything, but who possesses everything and lacks nothing, the desire does not have reason to exist, however as man I had my desires, because my Heart was united in everything to the other creatures, and making mine the desires of everyone, I desired for everything, with all the ardor, of giving the kingdom of my Divine Fiat to all creatures, so that if I longed, I longed for the kingdom of my Volition, if I prayed and cried and desired it was only for my kingdom that I wanted in the midst of creatures, because He being the holiest thing, my Humanity could do no less (than) to want and to desire the holiest thing in order to sanctify the desires of everyone and give them that which was holy and of the greatest and perfect good for them. Therefore all that which you do is none other than my echo, that replaying in you makes you ask in my every act the kingdom of my Will. Hence therefore I make present to you every act of mine, every suffering that I suffered, every tear that flowed, every step that I did, because I love that you, investing them, repeat afterwards to my every act: Jesus I love you and because I love you give me the kingdom of your Divine Volition. I want that you call me in every thing that I do in order to make me replay the sweet memory that my acts say Fiat Voluntas tua come Cielo così in terra/Be done your Will as in Heaven so in earth, in a way that in seeing your littleness, the little daughter of my Volition that makes her echo to all my acts, putting them as an army around me, I hasten to concede the kingdom of my Will."

Round in the Divine Will. Assault to the Divine Majesty. Attractions of the littleness, the secret of it. How the human will is nauseating. Example.

I was gathering everyone together all the acts of the Divine Will done in the Creation, the seas of the Celestial Queen, those of my beloved Jesus, in short all the acts that the Divine Fiat has brought forth from himself. Hence I was recapitulating everything in order to bring them before the height of the Supreme Majesty, in order to give Him through means of this the ultimate assault and to constrain Him to give me his kingdom upon the earth, but while I did this I thought to myself: I am little, I am no more than an atom, how can I bring the vastness of the Sky, the multiplicity of the stars, the immensity of the light of the Sun, and then all the seas of my Mama and those of Jesus that are interminable? so that doesn't my little atom remain lost in the midst of so many great works? I believe that all (of) Heaven will smile in seeing my littleness that wants to give this assault as (the) ultimate contrivance of its round in the Divine Will, because being little I not only remain lost, but even done in by one single work of the Divine Volition, hence my assault will be without effect and perhaps I will serve to make the whole Celestial Court smile behind my back. But while I thought this, my sweet Jesus went forth from within my interior and all tenderness said to me:

“My little daughter, your littleness has such attraction that it calls the attention of all Heaven in order to see what your littleness wants to do and knows how to do, to see great things done by a great person doesn't receive attention, nor does it brings joy, if one might see the same great thing done by a little child, this awakens such stupor and wonder, that everyone would like to see the great work of the little tiny one, that which doesn't happen if a great person might do the same work. If you might know how the Divine watches and that of the whole Heaven is fixed on you in seeing you as in haste to gather together all the works of the Divine Will in order to bring the assault to the Creator, bringing his own weapons in order to make the holy war (on) him to make you/(him) surrender his kingdom. One can say that your toiling, the gathering (of) everything is the true smile of Heaven, it is the new feast that carries your littleness to the Celestial Country, and everyone awaits the assault of the little tiny one. But do you want to know where the secret of your strength is, in your littleness, that while you remain lost now in the light of the sun, now in the midst of the stars, now in my seas and those of the Celestial Mama, your atom does not stop itself, it releases itself and goes out in field again in order to complete its summation of all the works of the Divine Fiat, the whole secret is confined in He that moves you, invests you, gives the cord in order to make you turn and in order to make you enclose all his acts, in order to make himself by himself, through means of your littleness, give the assault in order to make himself drawn to come to reign upon the earth. What thing can't the atom animated by my Volition (do)? Everything, because she becomes an act in the midst of all his acts of Divine Will and this is enough in order to be able to make of all his acts one act alone, in order to say: everything is mine, and everything must serve me in order to be able to tear (away) the kingdom of the Divine Fiat upon the earth.”

After this I was thinking of how much evil the human will has done to poor creatures, hence I abhor it, I neither want to know it anymore, nor to look at it because it is too nauseating, but while I thought this, my beloved Jesus moved in my interior and said to me:

“My daughter, the human will by itself is nauseating, but united with mine it is the most beautiful thing that I created, more so that the Divinity was never able bring forth a thing created by us that might make nausea, she united with ours would hold the continuous motion of goods, of light, of sanctity, of beauty, and with our continuous motion that never ceases it would have been the greatest prodigy of the Creation, our motion would purify her from every shadow of stain, it would happen as to the sea, that, because it continually murmurs and holds its perennial motion, its waters are pure and crystalline, oh! if the waters of the sea might remain firm, the waters would lose the purity and they would become so very nauseating, that no one would look at it, the waters would be so very filthy and full of dirt that the ships could not cross over the sea, and no one would make his food of those fishes of waters so putrid. So that the sea would be a weight to the earth and would produce the contagion of all the evils to the human generations. Instead only because it murmurs and holds its continuous motion, how much good doesn't it do to creatures, and while in its bosom it hides who knows how many filths, with its murmur it holds the dominion of holding them buried in the depth of it and controls the purity of its waters pure and emptied from whatever filths. Such is the human will more than sea, that if the divine motion murmurs in her she is beautiful and pure, all the evils remain buried and without life, instead if my Will doesn't murmur in her and doesn't hold his first motion, all the evils are reborn and renders her from the most beautiful, the ugliest as to make (one) pity. Another image is the human nature, united with the soul it is beautiful, it sees, feels, walks, works, speaks, it doesn't stink; disunited from the soul it rots, stinks horribly, makes one disgust to see it, one can say that one can not recognize it anymore, who has made a change so different from the live body to the dead body? the lack of the murmur of the soul, of its continuous motion that excelled in the human nature. Such was put my Will to the human volition, as soul from which it had to receive life, his continuous murmur. So that as long as she is united with mine she is a prodigy of life, of beauty. Disunited from mine she loses the legs, the hands, the word, the sight, the heat, the life, she becomes accordingly so very horrid more than (a) dead body, as to merit that one buries her in the most profound abyss, because her stink is intolerable. Therefore one who is not united with my Will loses the life of her soul, therefore she can do nothing of good, and all that which she does is without life.”

How one must make up for who has not worked in the unity of the Divine Fiat. How for who doesn't possess him it is a strange language to her. Reason why until now they have not spoken of Him. How who doesn't live in the unity receives the effects from the Divine Will, not the life of Him. Example of the Sun with the earth.

I was following my round in the Supreme Fiat and arrived in Eden I was saying to myself: my Jesus I make mine the unity of your Volition in order to make up for that unity that my Father Adam lost, when he withdrew from Him, and in order to make up for all those acts that, all his descendants have not done in the unity of Him. But while I said this, I thought to myself: and am I in the unity of the Divine Fiat? If I am not, how can I make up for the others? Hence my saying finishes in words, but not in deeds, and my sweet Jesus moving in my interior said to me:

“My daughter, when Adam sinned, there was the retreat of the unity of my Will from both parts, man retreated from Him, and He retreated from him, and with mine retreating, man lost my unity, all his merits and the rights that God had given him in creating him, because he was the true deserter from the kingdom of my Will, and the deserter loses all the rights and the possession of his own goods. Now as my Will retreated from man, because he was the first one in order to retreat, thus he can again give himself to whom, retreating from the human volition, he reenters into his kingdom as (a) new conqueror of that unity of my Divine Fiat. More so that between you and the Divinity there has been established an agreement together, my Volition to make you the great gift of his Unity, calling you to the first act of the Creation, and you not only to receive it, but to make him the gift of your will. So that from both parts there has been established the exchange (of) it, but not in simple words, but with deeds, so very true that mine is putting you to light (of) that which regards the great gift that he has made you, so that you know that which you possess, enjoy his goods, and appreciating him impetrate him (for) the human family. And you having made the gift of your will don't want to recognize it anymore and you feel terror to only remember it. Now it is just that you should make it your duty and make up for that unity lost by man, from mine that made his retreat, withdrawing into his Celestial regions. Is not my Will master to perhaps give himself again, provided that he finds again one who doesn't want to have of his human will anymore? And then you must know that if there was not my Will in you, you would not have been able to understand his Celestial language, it would have been for you as a strange dialect, as a light without heat, as a food without substance, and it would have been difficult for you to write on paper about him, in order to transmit him to your brothers. All this is (a) sign that my Will mastering you in everything, makes himself thought in your mind, word on your lips, heartbeat in your heart, Teacher that knows that his pupil understands his lessons and loves to listen to him. Therefore it was necessary to make you the gift of my Divine Will in order to give you necessary graces in order to make you know and transcribe all the most beautiful prerogatives of the kingdom of my Divine Fiat. And this is also the reason, why no one until now has spoken at length of my Will, in order to make understood the immense seas of the goods that he contains and that he wants to give and can give to creatures, at most they have gone forth with a few words and with words almost broken in half, as if they might not have something to say of my Fiat so long and extensive, that contains and embraces all eternity, not possessing him as gift and (a) proper thing, for everyone it was as (a) strange language to speak of the importance and of his infinite merits, if they didn't know him at depth how could they speak of a Divine Will that contains so much that all the centuries are not enough to speak of Him? Therefore be attentive my daughter, and while you cross over his sea always take something new again in order to make him known to the human generations."

After this I was thinking on the unity of the Divine Fiat and said to myself: how, all those that have done good, so many great works, how could they do them if they didn't possess his Unity? And Jesus always benign added:

"My daughter, all the good done until now by creatures has been done in virtue of the effects of my Divine Will, because there is no good without Him, but that they might have lived totally and fully in his Unity no one until now, only my Queen Mama, and therefore she attracted the great prodigy of the incarnation of the Word, if this were so, the earth would have returned to the state of the Eden, and then he who would have possessed the Unity of my Volition, would not have been able to neither contain him, nor resist speaking of him, it would have been as if the Sun would have liked to enclose itself inside of a vase of crystal without spreading its rays, would it not have rather with its heat cracked the glass, in order to be free in spreading its rays? To possess the unity of my Fiat and to not speak of him, and not spread his rays, the beauty of his knowledges, it would have been impossible, it would crack the heart if she might not give vent to manifest in part the fullness of his light and of the goods of Him. Hence the good has been done in virtue of the effects of Him. This happens that, the Sun in virtue of the effects that its light contains, makes the plants germinate and makes produce such goods to the earth, it seems that the earth and the effects of the Sun work together in order to produce plants, fruits and flowers to creatures, but the earth doesn't elevate itself in the sphere of the Sun, if it might do this, the Sun would have so much strength as to take away its dark part and all its atoms of dust converting them into light and the earth would become Sun. But since the earth doesn't elevate itself nor the sphere of the Sun descend into the depths, the earth remains earth, and the Sun doesn't transform it in Itself, it seems that the one and the other look at each other from far away, they help themselves and work together through means of the effects of the light that from the heights of its sphere spreads upon the earth and although it receives so many admirable effects, (and) produces the most beautiful flowerings, but there passes (a) great distance between the earth and the Sun, they don't resemble each other, neither the life of the one becomes life of the other, and therefore the earth doesn't know how to speak of the Sun, nor say all the effects that it contains, nor how much heat and light it possesses. (As) such the creature finds herself that she doesn't possess the unity of my Will, she doesn't elevate herself in his most high sphere in order to become Sun, nor (does) my divine Sun descend in order to form the life of Her, but wanting to do good she revolves around his light, and He communicates the effects in order to make germinate the good that they want. Because my Fiat doesn't deny himself to anyone, rather with his light he awakens the human nature in order to make it be green again and to make it produce fruits of good works.”

Promise in Eden of the future Redeemer. Solemn promise in the Our Father of the kingdom of the Divine Will. How God feels himself repeat the joy of the Creation.

My poor mind felt as fixed in the Supreme Fiat, and I feel like a little child, that, since the beautiful lessons of her beloved Teacher please her, she always turns around him asking a thousand questions, in order to have the pleasure to hear him speak and to learn other more beautiful lessons, and while the teacher speaks, she with open mouth listens to him, so many are the beautiful surprises that he makes with his lessons. Such am I, a little child, that I turn around the light of the Divine Will, more than teacher, that I want to draw his life from the beautiful lessons that he makes to my little soul and He, because (I am) little, delights himself with contenting me, giving me such surprises of Divine lessons, not ever thought of by me. Whence while I thought of the kingdom of the Divine Will and it seemed to me as difficult his reign upon the earth, my beloved Jesus going forth from within my interior said to me:

“My daughter, as Adam sinned, God made them (the) promise of the future Redeemer, centuries passed, but the promise didn't become less, and the generations had the good of the Redemption. Now, as I came from Heaven and I formed the kingdom of the Redemption, before departing to Heaven, I made another more solemn promise of the kingdom of my Will, and this was in the Our Father, and in order to give it more value and in order to obtain it more immediately, I made this formal promise in the solemnity of my prayer, praying the Father that he might make his kingdom and the Divine Will come as in Heaven so in earth; I put myself at (the) head of this prayer, knowing that such was his Will and that prayed by me, he would not have denied me anything, more so that with his own Will I prayed and asked a thing of (which) my own Father wanted. And after having formed this prayer before my Celestial Father, sure that he granted me the kingdom of my Divine Will upon the earth, I taught it to my Apostles, so that they might teach it to the whole world, so that one might be the cry of everyone: 'Your Will be done, as in Heaven so in earth.' A more certain and solemn Promise I could not make; the centuries for us are as a single point, but our words are acts and completed deeds. My own prayer to the Celestial Father: 'Come, come your kingdom, be done your Will, as in Heaven so in earth', it meant that with my coming upon the earth the kingdom of my Will had not become established in the midst of creatures, otherwise I would have said: 'My father, our kingdom that I have already established upon the earth is confirmed and our Will dominates and reigns', instead I said: 'Come', this meant that it must come and creatures must wait for it with that certainty that they waited for the future Redeemer, because there is my Divine Will bound and contracted in those words of the Our Father, and when He binds himself, it is more certain than promises. More so that everything was prepared by me, there didn't lack other than the manifestations of my kingdom, and am I doing it, do you believe that the so many truths that I am making (to) you on my Fiat is to give you a simple news? No, no, it is because I want that everyone know that his Kingdom is near, and that they know his beautiful prerogatives, so that everyone loves, longs to enter to live in a kingdom so holy, full of happiness and of all gods. Hence, that which to you seems difficult, to the power of our Fiat is easy, because He knows how to remove all the difficulties and conquer everything as he wants and when he wants."

Whence I was according to my usual (way), doing my round in the eternal Fiat and turning for all the Creation, I brought all the works before the Divinity, in order to give them the most beautiful homage and the great glory of all their works; but while I did this, I thought to myself: but what is the glory that I give to my Creator with bringing him all his works? And Jesus moving in my interior said to me:

"My daughter, with doing this you bring the joy of our completed works to us, because before creating the Creation they remained inside of us, as in deposit in our Will, and we didn't have the glory, the joy of seeing our works outside of us formed and completed outside of us, in a way that our works were formed when the Creation was created, and who turns in (the) midst of them, watches them and wanting to gather them all together around us and say to us: (')how beautiful are your works, perfect and holy, their harmony, the perfect order they say who you are and they narrate your glory('), we feel the joy, the glory repeated, as if we again extended the Sky, forming the Sun and all our works. So that the Creation is always in act and as speaking through means of the little daughter of our Volition. This can also happen to you, if you might have in your will decided to make so many beautiful works, you don't enjoy (it), but your joy commences when you see the completed works and if a person loving you, often brought them around you in order to say to you: (')do you see how beautiful are your works('), wouldn't you feel glorious and repeat the joy when you completed them? Such am I, the repetitions form my most beautiful surprises."

The Sovereign Lady of Heaven Jesus' reflector. Satisfaction of Jesus in asking for his Fiat. How Jesus gathered all the goods and consumed all the evils, how he ignited the fire inside of himself.

Continuing to follow the acts of Jesus, done in his Divine Will when he was upon the earth, I followed Mother and Son when they fled into Egypt and I thought to myself, how beautiful it must have been to see the dear little baby in (the) arms of his Divine Mama, that while so tiny, enclosing in himself the eternal Fiat, he enclosed Heaven and earth, everything went forth from him as Creator, and everything hung from him, and the Sovereign Queen transfused in the little Jesus in virtue of the same Fiat that animated him, formed the reflector of Jesus, his echo, his same life, how many hidden beauties they possessed, how many varieties of Heavens more beautiful than that which one sees in our horizon, how many Suns more radiant they contained, and yet no one saw anything of it, one didn't see other than three poor fugitives. Jesus, my Love, I want to follow step by step the steps of my Celestial Mama and as she walks, I want to animate the blades of grass, the atoms of the earth, and make you feel beneath her feet my I love you, I want to animate all of the light of the Sun and as it shines on you upon (your) face, I want that it brings you my I love you, all the billows of the wind, its caresses, everything says to you I love you, it is I that in your Fiat carries to you the heat of the Sun in order to warm you, the billows of the wind in order to caress you, its hiss in order to speak and say to you: dear child, make your Divine Volition known by everyone, make it go forth from within your little Humanity so that he takes his dominion and forms his kingdom there in the midst of creatures; but while my mind was lost itself in the presence of to Jesus and I would be too long if I might want to say everything, my Highest and only Good Jesus moved in my interior and all goodness said to me:

“My daughter, my Mama and I were as two twins born from the same birth, because we didn't hold but one Will alone that gave us life, the Divine Fiat put our acts in common in a way that the Son reflects in Her and the Mama reflected in the Son. So that the kingdom of the Divine Will held his full vigor, his perfect dominion in us, and while we fled to Egypt we carried the Divine Volition as strolling through those regions and we felt his great sorrow that he didn't reign in creatures, and looking at the centuries we felt the great joy of his kingdom that he had to form in the midst of them and oh! how your repeated refrains in the wind, in the Sun, in the water, under our steps: ‘I love you, I love you, your kingdom come’ arrived to us satisfactions upon the wings of our Fiat. It was our echo that we felt in you, that we didn't want other than that the Divine Will might reign and (that) he might be the conqueror of everyone. Therefore even from then we loved our little tiny one that didn't ask or want if not that which we ourselves wanted.”

Whence I continued to think of all that which my sweet Jesus had done being upon the earth, and He added:

“My daughter, when I came upon the earth I looked at all the centuries past, present and future, in order to gather in my Humanity all that which of well and of good all the generations might be able to do, in order to put the seal and the confirmation of the good, I destroyed nothing of that which was good, rather I wanted to enclose them in myself in order to give them Divine life, and adding the good that lacked and that I did in order to complete all the goods of human creatures, upon the wings of the centuries I carried myself to the human creatures, in order to give to each one my complete work, as I also gathered all the evils in order to consume them, and by force of sorrows and pains that I wanted to suffer, I ignited the fire in my Humanity itself, where to burn all the evils, wanting to feel of it every suffering in order to make reborn all the goods opposite to the evils, in order to make reborn to new life the human generations. And since I in order to form all the possible and imaginable remedies to all the redeemed, in order to then dispose them to receive the great good of my Will reigning in the midst of them, I did everything, suffered everything, and consumed everything, thus you in order to prepare my kingdom to the creatures, must enclose all that which is holy and good, and by way of pains you must consume all the evils in order to make the life of my Divine Will reborn in the midst of creatures. You must be my echo in which I must make the deposit from where must arise the kingdom of my Fiat. Follow me step, by step, to continue the life, the heartbeat, the happiness of this kingdom that I contain in myself, and that wants to go forth in order to reign in the midst of creatures. And so much is my love for Him, that if I permitted that the infernal enemy might penetrate in Eden, I won't permit that he put foot into the Eden of the kingdom of the Fiat, and therefore I permitted that he might approach me in the desert, in order to weaken him and put him (on) the way so that he might not dare to enter there. Don't you yourself feel how your presence terrorizes the enemy and puts him in flight in order not to see you? And the force of my victory that precipitates him and feeling himself confused he flees. Everything is prepared, there doesn't remain other than to make him known."

Laments of the soul. How Jesus enclosed inside of himself all the acts rejected by creatures and formed his kingdom. How who possesses the Divine Fiat possesses the bilocative force and can give to God as hers that which is of God.

My poor mind always goes sweeping in the interminable confines of the Supreme Fiat and my poor heart is under the nightmare of the excruciating sorrow of the privation of my beloved Jesus, the hours are centuries, the nights interminable without Him, and since it is a Divine sorrow that falls on my little soul, its immensity drowns me, crushes me, and I feel the whole weight of an eternal sorrow. Oh! Holy God!, how can you remove from me that life that you yourself want that I possess? How do you put me in the impossibility of living and to live dying, because the font of your life is not there in me? Ah! Jesus return, do not abandon me to myself, I can not live without life, Jesus! Jesus! how much it costs me to have known you, how many tears/rips you have made to my human life in order to give me yours, and I now live suspended, I don't find mine anymore, because with your stratagems you have stolen it from me, hardly I feel yours, but as torn by the strong eclipse of the light of your Will, so that everything for me is finished and I am constrained to resign myself and to feel your life through means of the rays of light, of the reflections that your adorable Will brings me, I can endure no more of it; Jesus, return to she who loves you so much and you say you love me and now you have had the strength to abandon her, return one time forever and decide to leave me no more; but while I vented my sorrow, he moved in my interior and mitigating the light that eclipsed him, he extended his arms squeezing me strongly and said to me:

"My daughter, my poor little one, courage, it is my Will that wants his first place in you, but I should not decide to leave you, my decision was taken when you yourself decided to leave me no more, then there was then a stealing life of each other, I yours and you mine, with this difference, that first you saw me without the eclipse of the light of my Fiat, He remained as confined inside of me, now wanting to take life in you, he has overflowed outside of me and bilocating himself he has confined my Humanity inside of his light, and therefore you feel my life through the reflections of his light. Therefore why do you fear that I leave you? Now you should know that my Humanity re-did in Itself all the acts rejected by creatures, that my Divine Will giving himself to them wanted that they might do, I re-did them all and I deposited them in myself, in order to form his kingdom, awaiting the propitious time in order to bring them forth from me and deposit them in creatures as foundation of this kingdom, if I might not had done this, the kingdom of my Will could not take place in the midst of creatures, because only I as man and God could make up for man and receive inside of myself all the work of a Divine Will that creatures had to receive and to do, and through my means communicate it to them. Because in Eden the two wills, human and divine, they were as in hostility because the human one was opposed to the Divine, all the other offenses were as a consequence, therefore first I had to re-do in myself all the acts opposed to the Divine Fiat, to make his kingdom extend in myself, if it didn't reconcile these two wills in hostility, how could I form the Redemption? Therefore all that which I did upon the earth, the first act was to reestablish the harmony, the order between the two wills in order to form my kingdom, the Redemption was (a) consequence of this. And therefore it was necessary to take away the consequences of the evil that the human volition had produced and hence I gave effective remedies in order to then manifest the great good of the kingdom of my Will. Whence the reflections of the light of Him don't do other than to bring the acts that my Humanity contains in order to make that all might be Divine Will in you. Therefore be attentive to follow him and do not fear."

After this I was following my round in the Creation in order to give to my Creator all the homages of the Divine qualities that every created thing contains, that having all gone forth from the Divine Fiat, accordingly he maintains the life of it, indeed he is the first act of every created thing; but while I did this I thought to myself: created things are not mine, how can I say with right: I offer you the homages of the light of the Sun, the glory of the starry Sky and so on? But while I thought this my always amiable Jesus moving in my interior said to me:

"My daughter, who possesses my Will and lives in Him, can say with right: the Sun is mine, the Sky, the sea, everything is mine, and as mine I bring everything around the Divine Majesty, in order to give him the glory that every created thing contains. In fact is not perhaps all the Creation work of my omnipotent Fiat? Doesn't his throbbing life, his vital heat, his incessant motion that moves everything, orders and harmonizes everything flow, as if the whole Creation might be one act alone? Whence who possesses my Divine Volition as life, Skies, Sun, seas and everything are not stuffs/(things) extraneous to her, but everything is hers, as everything is of my Fiat, because she is none other, with possessing him, than a birth of his, that holds all the rights over all the births of Him, that is all the Creation. Hence with right and with truth she can say to her Creator: I offer you all the homages of the light of the Sun with all its effects, symbol of your eternal light, the glory of the immensity of the Skies and thus with all the rest. Possessing my Will is Divine life that the soul unfolds in her soul, so that all that which goes forth from her, contains power, immensity, light, love, we feel in her our bilocative strength, that bilocating us puts in attitude all our Divine qualities and as hers she offers them as divine homages, worthy of that Divine Fiat that knows and can bilocate himself in order to recall the creature to the first act of the Creation (in) which we make man to our image and likeness."

How who must enclose a good in order to give it to creatures, must enclose in oneself that whole good. This happened to the Virgin and Our Lord. What unity means.

The privations of Jesus make themselves longer and I live only in (the) authority of the Divine Fiat, that having constituted himself life of my little soul, it seems to me that my beloved Jesus, entrusting me to Him, hides behind the curtains of his light, only in order to spy and to be all attentive if I always follow his adorable Will. Oh! God, what suffering to remain in an immensity of light and not know how to find the way and move the steps in order to find He whom I love, because he has formed me, because he has told me so many truths that I feel them in me as so many throbbing divine lives that make me understand who is He whom I want and don't find. Ah! Jesus! Jesus! return, how is it? you made me feel your heartbeat in my heart and you hide yourself; while I vented, I thought to myself: maybe Jesus doesn't find neither in me nor in others, the dispositions in order to receive the life of his other truths and in order not (for) these lives to remain suspended he keeps silent and hides himself; but while I thought this, my Highest Good Jesus moved within my interior in (the) act of taking the steps in order to go forth from me, and he said to me:

“My poor little daughter, you are lost in the light and don't know how to find He who with so much love you search, the light forms the highest waves and forms the bars in order to find me, but you don't know that I am the light, the life, the heartbeat that you feel, how ever could my Will have his life in you if there was not your Jesus in you, that I gave the field to unfold the work of my Volition in your soul? Therefore quiet yourself. Now you must know that who must bear a good, must centralize in herself all the fullness of that good, otherwise the good would not find the way where to go forth. Now having to center in yourself the kingdom of my Will, nothing must be missing of Him, because his light disposes you to receive all the necessary truths in order to form his kingdom, and if the other creatures are indisposed to receive all the lives of the truths of the Fiat, at most I won't give you (the) capacity to manifest them as so many times happens to you, but to you as depositary nothing must be missing. This happened in the Queen of Heaven, that She having to be the depositary of the Word incarnate, that must give me to the human generations, I centralized in Her all the goods of the redeemed, and all that which was appropriate in order to be able to receive the life of a God. Hence the Heights of my Mama possesses the Sovereignty over all creatures and over every single act of theirs and (the) goods that they can do, in a way that if they think piously, She is as (the) channel of the holy thoughts, and hence holds the Sovereignty over them, if they speak, if they work, if they walk piously, the beginning of all this descends from the Virgin, and therefore she holds the right and the Sovereignty over the words, steps, works, there is no good that one does that from Her doesn't descend, because She was (the) primary cause of the incarnation of the Word, it was just that she might be the channel of all the goods and she might hold the rights of Sovereignty over everything.

“This happened also with me, that having to be the Redeemer of everyone, I had to contain in myself all the goods of the Redemption, I am the channel, the font, the sea, where all the goods of the redeemed depart and I possess by nature the right of Sovereign over all the acts and goods that creatures do, our reign is not as the reign of creatures that dominate and reign over the external acts of them, and not even over all the external acts, but of the interior they know nothing, nor do they have the right of Sovereignty, because the life the thought, the word doesn't go forth from them (to) their dependents. Instead from me goes forth all the life of all the interior and exterior work of creatures. Therefore creatures should be acts that over every single act of theirs that of the Celestial Mother and mine hangs on the act that they do and as sovereigns forms it, directs it and gives them the life.”

After this, I continued to follow my round in the Divine Will and uniting myself to the unity that my first Father Adam possessed before sinning, my sweet Jesus added:

“My daughter, you have not understood well what unity means. Unity means centralization and beginning of all the acts of creatures, passed, present and future. So that Adam before sinning when he possessed our unity, enclosed in his thoughts the unity of all the thoughts of creatures, the unity of all the words, works and steps. Hence I found in Him in my unity the beginning, the succession and the end of all the acts of the human generations; He in my unity enclosed everyone and possessed everything. Whence my daughter, you rising to that same unity left by Him, take his place and putting yourself in the beginning of everyone and everything, enclose in yourself the same acts of Adam, with the whole succession of all the acts of creatures. To live in my Will means: I am the beginning of everyone, from me everything descends, as everything descends of the Divine Fiat, so that I am the thought, the word, the work and the step of everyone, I take all and I bring all to my Creator. One understands that Adam had to possess and enclose all if he might not have withdrawn from our Will and might have always lived united in ours, and hence the human generations, if this were so, all would have lived in our Volition, so that one would have been the Will, one the unity, one the echo of everyone, that putting everything in common, everyone would have enclosed everything in themselves.”

How the Divine Volition is as center of life in the midst of creatures. How the heartbeat is the king of nature and the thought is the king of the soul.

My flight in the Divine Fiat is continuous, it seems to me that Jesus, his communications, all is finished, more so that they are not in my power, if good Jesus does not benign to tell me more, I always remain the little ignorant one, because without Him I don't know how to go forward neither am I capable neither of conceiving, nor of saying one single H/(letter) more. So that I must content and accustom myself to live one on one with the Divine Volition because He never leaves me, rather I feel incapable of being able to leave because I find him in me, outside of me, in my every act, with the immensity of his light he lends himself to give life to my act, there is no point where I don't find him, indeed there is no point nor space, neither in Heaven, nor in earth, where his life doesn't excel, his light in (the) act of giving itself to the creature. So that I find that the Divine Will can not leave me and I can not even separate from Him, we are inseparable, he doesn't make with me the little excuses that Jesus makes with me, rather if I don't take him as first act of my acts, He remains sorrowful and complains that in my act his act has not excelled, his light, his life. Oh! Divine will how very adorable, amiable, and insuperable you are, how much more I remain more so I understand you and love you; but while my poor mind was lost in the Fiat, my sweet Jesus moving in my interior said to me:

“My daughter, my Will is found in the midst of creatures as center of life, as the human heart can call itself king of nature, because if the heart beats, the mind thinks, the mouth speaks, the hands work, the feet walk, if the heart doesn't beat, everything in one blow finishes everything, because the poor nature lacks the king, hence it lacks one who governs and gives life to the thought, to the word, and to all that which the creature can do. As king of the soul is the thought, the seat, the throne where the soul unfolds its activity, its life, its regime. Now if the human nature would like to suffocate the heartbeat, to make less of its king, in order to speak, in order to think and other, what would happen? it would give itself death to all its acts, so that it would be suicidal of itself. And if the soul would like to suffocate the thought, it would not find the way where to unfold its activity, hence it would be as a king without kingdom and without people. Now that which is the heart for human life, and the thought for the soul, is my Divine Will in every single creature, He is as center of life and from his incessant and eternal heartbeat, he beats and the creature thinks, he beats and she speaks, walks and works and they not only don't think but they suffocate him, they suffocate his light, his sanctity, his peace, the upright work, the justice and holy speech, and certain they suffocate him so much, that they commit suicide to their souls. And my Will in the base world is as a king without kingdom and without people, and creatures live as if they might not have neither king, nor Divine life, nor regime, because (they) lack the king of their heartbeat to their nature, and the king of the thought to their souls. And since through his immensity he involves everything and everyone, he is constrained to live as suffocated in himself because he lacks one who receives his life, his attitude, his regime. But He wants to form his kingdom upon the earth, he wants to have his elect and faithful people, and therefore in spite that he is in the midst of creatures, he lives unknown and suffocated, but he does not stop, he doesn't depart to his celestial regions, but persists to remain in the midst of them in order to make himself known, he would like to make known to everyone the good that he wants to do, his celestial laws, his insuperable love, his heartbeat that beats light, sanctity, love, gifts, peace, happiness, and (as) such wants the children of his kingdom. Therefore his life in you, his knowledges so that he makes known what the Divine Will means, and I enjoy myself and remain hidden in my own Will in order to give him the whole field and the unfolding of his life in you."

How God holds in Heaven the Hierarchy of the Angels with nine distinct choirs, thus will he hold the Hierarchy of the children of his kingdom with nine other choirs. Conditions of the deceased Confessors and how the memory of Padre di Francia will not be hidden in this work.

I was thinking of the holy Divine Volition and a thousand thoughts crowded in my poor mind, they seemed as so many more strong lights that arose, that then they unified into the same light of the eternal Sun of that Fiat that doesn't know sunset; but who can say what I thought? I thought of the so many knowledges said to me by Jesus on the Divine Will and how every one of them brings a divine life in the soul, with the imprint of a rarity of beauty, of happiness, but distinct the one from the other, that puts in common with whom has the good to know it and to love it. So that I thought to myself, one knowledge more or less there will be great difference between one soul and the other. Whence I felt suffering in remembering my deceased Confessors, that (with) so much interest had had me write that which blessed Jesus said to me on the Divine Will, I felt suffering for the Venerable P. of Francia who's so many sacrifices he had made to come from afar facing expenses for the publication and in the most beautiful (moment) as to go forward, Jesus brought him to Heaven, hence not knowing all this, these, that regard the Fiat they won't possess all the lives and rarity of beauty and happiness that these knowledges contain; but while my mind lost itself in so many thoughts, that wanting to tell them all would be too long, my sweet Jesus extended his arms within my interior, and shedding light said to me:

“My daughter, as I hold the Hierarchy of the Angels, with nine distinct choirs, so I will hold the hierarchy of the children of the kingdom of my Divine Fiat. He will hold his nine choirs and they will be distinct the one from the other by the varieties of beauties, that they will have acquired with knowing some more and some less the knowledges that pertain to my Fiat. Therefore every knowledge more of my Divine Volition is a new creation that forms in creatures, of happiness and of inarrivable beauty, because it is a Divine life that races within, that carries in itself all the shades of beauties of He who manifests them, and all the keys and sounds of the joys and happiness of our Divine Being. Whence if our Paternal goodness exposes his Life, his beauty and happiness even to create it in the midst of creatures, and they are not taken (with) an interest to know it in order to take it, through means of our knowledges already given to them, is it not just that they receive neither the beauty, nor the sounds of our joys as proper dowry, they will have taken that which they will have known, therefore there will be various choirs in the hierarchy of the kingdom of my Divine Will. If you might know what difference will pass between whom carries my knowledges from the earth and between whom will acquire them in Heaven? The first ones will hold it as proper dowry and one will see in them the nature of the Divine beauties, and they will hear the same sounds of the joys and happiness that their Creator makes heard and forms. Instead in the second ones it won't be neither nature in them, nor proper dowries, but they will receive them through effect of communication of the others, almost as the earth receives the effects of the Sun, but it doesn't possess the nature of the Sun. Hence those that will possess all the knowledges will form the highest choir, and so according to what they will know the different choirs will be formed. However all those that will have acquired these knowledges be it in all, be it in part, they will have the noble title of the children of my kingdom, because these knowledges on my Fiat, they have the virtue of ennobling the creature for who has the good of knowing them in order to make of them proper life, and to make flow in the soul the vital humors of the Divine life, and of elevating her to her former origin, and they are as the brushstroke of the Making (of) man to our image and likeness, and they will paint the image of the Creator in the creature. In regards then to whom will know some more and some less, (this) won't destroy their nobility, it will happen as for example a noble family, that holds many children, some of these give themselves to study, others to the beautiful arts, hence these elevate themselves more, they have high and decorous posts, they are more known, beloved and esteemed, because for the sciences that they possess they do more good in the midst of the people, that which the other brothers don't do, but with all that which these with their sacrifices elevate they themselves so much, it doesn't destroy that the other brothers are noble, because they carry in themselves all the noble blood of their Father, hence they dress nobly, they hold noble ways in working and in speaking, in everything. Such will be the children of my Fiat, all noble, they will lose the roughness of the human volition, the miserable rags of the passions, it will put in flight the darkness of doubts, of fears, by the light of my knowledges and will cast all in a sea of peace. Hence your Confessors (that) passed to other life will be as the prelude of the children of my Will, because the first sacrificed himself so much and worked in order to help the little field of your soul, and although then I spoke little to you of my Fiat, because (I) had to dispose you first, He will be as the first forerunner as the dawn that announces the day of the kingdom of my Will; your second and third Confessors, that took such part and knew to a large extent the knowledges of Him, and made so many sacrifices, especially the third, who loved so much that they might be known and who so sacrificed himself in the writing, they will be as Suns that emerge, that putting themselves in course form the day full of light. Those that follow will be as the full noon of the great day of my Will, according to the interest that they have had and will have, they will be put some to the first hour of the day of my Volition, some to the second, some to third, and some to the full noon. And do you believe that the memory of Padre di Francia, the so many of his sacrifices and desires to make my Will known, even to begin the publication, only because I have brought him with me to Heaven, his memory will be extinguished in this great work of my Divine Fiat? No, no, rather He will hold the first place, because He with coming from afar, went as in search of the most precious thing that can exist in Heaven and in earth, of the act that most glorifies me, rather it will give me complete glory on the part of creatures, and they will receive complete goods. He prepared the ground in order to make it that my Divine Will might be known, so very true that he didn't spare anything, neither expense, nor sacrifice, and although he didn't complete the publication, alone with beginning it he prepared the ways, in order to make it that one day it might be known, and (that) the work of my Will (might) have life in the midst of creatures. Who can ever destroy that Padre di Francia has been the first initiator to make the kingdom of my Will known? And only because his life was extinguished, he didn't complete the publication? So that when this great work will be known, his name, his memory, will be full of glory and of splendor and he will hold his act first in a work so great, as much in Heaven as in earth. In fact, why does a battle exist and almost each one hopes for the victory to conquer to retain the writings on my Divine Fiat? Because He brought the writings in order to publish them, if this were not so, who would have spoken of them? No one, and if He might not have understood the importance, the great good of these writings, no one would have been interested. Therefore my daughter, my goodness is such that I award justly and superabundantly the good that the creature does, especially in this work of my Will, that so very interests me, what won't I give to whom occupies and sacrifices themselves in order to put in safety the rights of my eternal Fiat. I will exceed so much in giving, that I will Make Heaven and earth marvel."

Whence I in hearing this thought to myself: if these knowledges contain such good, if blessed Jesus will continue after my death (with) other knowledges of his Fiat to other souls, will he not attribute to that work a work so great? And Jesus moving as in haste in my interior added:

"No, no my daughter, as it will be said of the Padre di Francia that he is the first propagator, your Confessors cooperators, thus will it be said that the little daughter of my Will has been the first and the depositary of such a good, to which (she) became entrusted and selected with (a) special mission. Suppose a certain one had made an important invention, perhaps the others propagate it, diffuse it more, imitate it, magnify it, but no one can say: I am the inventor of this work; one will always say the inventor was the certain one. Thus will it be with you, one will say that the origin of the reign of my Fiat, the depositary has been the Little Daughter of my Will."

How all things Depart from one point. Sublimity of the state of Adam. Why until now Our Lord has not manifested his happy state. How who possesses the unity possesses the source of good.

My poor heart swam in the sorrow of the privation of my sweet Jesus, and was worried over it, (I) felt myself suffocate from the sorrow and at whatever cost I would have liked to find He for whom I am so very tortured, in order to tell my anxieties, but while I thought this, my amiable Jesus moved in my interior and said to me:

"My daughter, do not fear that which you feel in your soul because it is none other than the constant work that my Divine Fiat is doing in you. He is enclosing everything in you, everyone and everything in you, all the centuries, the past and the future, in order to make that all that which the Supreme Volition has done in the Creation, he casts in you his seed in order to receive from you the satisfactions and the exchange to all his acts that creatures owe him, therefore do not worry because in every hour of your life, there are centuries that my Will encloses. Hence it is necessary that who must have his first act in my reigning Will, must have the origin of Him, in order to be able to unfold his Divine life. All things depart from one point and from that point they enlarge themselves and diffuse themselves to everyone; you see the Sun also holds its first point, its center of light, its sphere, and from its center it fills all the earth with light. Therefore follow my Will and do not give (it) thought.”

Whence I followed my round in the Divine Will, and arriving in Eden in order to unite myself to the state of Adam before sinning, when he possessed the unity with his Creator in order to start again my acts together with Him, and in order to make up for and to continue it when he lost it with falling in sin, I thought to myself: why hasn't blessed Jesus manifested to anyone the sublime state, the wonders that passed between innocent Adam and his Creator, the sea of happiness, of beauties that he possessed? Everything was centered in Him, everything departed from Him, oh! if one might know the state of Adam, his great prerogatives, perhaps everyone would long to return to his origin where man went forth, but while I thought this my sweet Jesus moved in my interior and all goodness said to me:

“My daughter, my paternal goodness than manifests a good when it must bring a profit to the creature, if this did not come, to what advantage to manifest it? The story of innocent man is too tender to me, only remembering it (and) my love rises, is brought up and forms its highest waves, in order to flow as it flowed over innocent Adam, and not finding one to flow over again, because it doesn't find another Adam that receives them, capable of re-giving me his ways of love, because my Divine Fiat entire in him maintained the reciprocal life of correspondence between the infinite and the finite, my love suffers from it and returning into me my own waves of love, because it doesn't find one to whom to pour out again, it remains suffocated by my own love. Here (is) why I have not manifested until now the state of innocent Adam, nor He manifested almost nothing of his happy state, because only remembering it he felt himself die of sorrow and I felt suffocated by my love. Now my daughter, wanting to renew the kingdom of my Divine Will, it becomes useful to manifest the state of innocent Adam. And it is this cause why I often speak to you of his sublime state, because I want to repeat that which I did with Him, and in virtue of my Volition I want to raise you to the first state of the Creation of man. What thing can not the creature give me that creature that possesses my Fiat, the unity of Him? She can give me everything and I can give everything. Whence being able to give that which I manifest, my love does not suffer my waves, rather it puts them forth from me and seeing them reproduced in the creature it enjoys it and I feel myself manifest that which one doesn't know for their utility and good. If you might know how much I enjoy in giving, how my love celebrates when the creature becomes disposed that wants to receive my goods, you would be more attentive to make me vent my contained love.”

Say(ing) this, he became silent and I felt as swallowed up in the Divine Volition, his wonders, that which the soul can do with possessing his Will enraptured me, and I tiny child swam in the sea of light of the Fiat and as I moved so rose up the waves of light, these waves invested with tints (of) varied beauties and they went to unload themselves in my Creator's bosom and the Paternal Celestial goodness, seeing himself invested by the waves of his child moved his waves toward me. Oh! Supreme Will, how very admirable you are! amiable, desirable more than life itself. You love me so much that you put me in competition with my Creator, wanting that I might be equal with He who has created me; but while my mind was lost in the Fiat, my sweet Jesus added:

“My daughter, who possesses the unity of my Volition, is mistress to act and to do how much good she wants, because she holds in herself the source of good, she holds it at her disposition, feels in herself the continuous touches of her Creator, the waves of his Paternal love, and she would feel too ungrateful if she might not form her waves, much more so that she feels flow in her soul, his little sea, of the immense sea of He who has created her. Instead who doesn't possess his Unity, doesn't possess (the) source, hence if he wants to do good he has need of the Divine liberality in every good act that he wants to do, almost act for act he must ask for grace in order to be able to complete the good that that he wants. Instead who possesses my Unity, the good converts itself into nature, and only that he wants to work he finds the source of good in himself and works.”

How God created man in order to hold him on his knees and to make him the repeater of His acts. How Jesus made seen that he put all the volumes written on his Volition all ordered in his Heart. Love of Jesus for the writings and the good that they will do. How who decides to live in the Fiat becomes tied with chains of light.

I continued to remain all abandoned in the holy, Divine Volition, following his innumerable acts, as much as I could because, so many are their multiplicity that many times I can not either follow them, nor number them all, and I must content myself to look at them, but not embrace them; his activity exceeds in an incredible way the human attitude, and therefore it is not given to my littleness to do everything, but to do how much more I can and to not ever go out from within the work of the Divine Fiat. Whence while my mind was dispersed in the work of the Divine Volition, my sweet Jesus moving in my interior said to me:

“My daughter, our Paternal Goodness created man in order to hold him on our Paternal knees, in order to enjoy ourselves with him continually and he in order to enjoy himself in a perennial way with his Creator, and in order to make stable his and our enjoyments we held him on our knees; and since our Will had to be also his, He carried the echo of all our acts in the depth of man, that we loved (him) as our child, and our child in feeling our echo, it made (him) the repeater of the acts of his Creator. What contentments didn't they form between him and us, in the resounding in the depth of the heart of our child this our creative echo, that formed in him the order of our acts, the harmony of our joys and happiness, the image of our sanctity. What happy times for him and for us. But do you know who tore from our paternal knees this child so very loved by us? The human volition, it drove him off so much that he lost our creative echo, and he didn't know any more anything that his Creator did, and we lost the happiness of seeing our child happy and of amusing each other on our paternal knees. Because in him substituted the echo of his volition that embittered, tyrannized him, with the most degrading passions, rendering him so very unhappy as to make one pity. And (it's) really this what it means to live in our Volition, to live on our Paternal knees, at our care, at our expense, in the opulence of our riches, joys and happiness. If you might know the contentment that we feel in seeing the creature live on our knees, all attentive to feel the echo of our word, the echo of our works, the echo of our steps, the echo of our love, in order to make him the repeater of it, you would be more attentive in order to have that nothing might escape you of our echo in order to give us the contentment of seeing your littleness do as repeater to the acts of your Creator.”

Whence I in hearing this said to him: My love, if one must live in your Volition, living upon your Paternal knees nothing must be done, neither to work, nor to walk, otherwise how can one remain on your knees? And Jesus:

“No, no, one can do everything, our immensity is such that anywhere he will find our paternal knees always ready to her acts, that they lend themselves to hold her wherever pressed upon the Divine knees, much more so that that which she does, it is none other than the echo of that which we do.”

After this I felt worried over these writings on the Divine Will and my sweet Jesus made himself seen in my interior that he held all the volumes written on Him, and that one by one he took them in his hands, he looked at them with such loving tenderness, as if he might want them to burst the Heart, and as he took them thus he put them all ordered in his Most Holy Heart, I remained amazed in seeing with how much love he loved those writings, and with how much jealousy he enclosed them in his Heart in order to guard them, and Jesus in seeing my amazement said to me:

“My daughter, if you might know how much I love these writings, they cost me more than the Creation and Redemption itself, how much love and work I have put there in these writings, they cost me a very great deal, there is within the whole value of my Will, they are the manifestations of my kingdom and the confirmation that I want the kingdom of my Divine Will in the midst of creatures. The good that they will do will be great, they will be as suns that will rise in the midst of the dense darkness of the human volition, as life that will put death in flight to poor creatures, they will be the triumph of all my works, the most tender narration, most convincing, how I loved and love man. Therefore I love them with such jealousy that I will guard them in my Divine Heart, nor will I permit that even one word becomes lost. What haven't I put in these writings? Everything, superabundant grace, light that illuminates, warms, fecundates, love that wounds, truth that conquers, allurements that enrapture, life that will bring the resurrection of the kingdom of my Will. Therefore you also appreciate them and have that esteem that they merit and enjoy the goods that they will do.”

After this I followed my abandonment in the Fiat, I felt myself all invested by his interminable light and my adorable Jesus added:

“My daughter, as the soul decides to live in my Divine Will, without giving life anymore to hers, I in order to be sure and in order to give security to her, I tie her with chains of light, and I do this not in order to take away the free will, gift I gave to the creature in the Creation, that which I give one time I don't take away, unless the creature herself rejects my gifts, therefore I tie her with light that wanting to she can go out from him when she wants, but in order to go out she must make an incredible effort, because these chains of light will invest her acts, and in her every act she will feel and will see the beauty, the grace, the riches that this light communicates to her acts, it will form the enchantment and the true eclipse to the human volition, in a way that she will feel happy and honored to be tied with chains so noble that carry so much good to her and she will long that the human one won't have life anymore in her acts and she will yearn with ardor that the Divine Volition takes his place. So that she will feel free and bound but not forced, but spontaneous with free will, enticed by the great good that comes (from) them, in a way that she will see her acts surrounded by so many rings of light that forming chains transforms her in the same light. And in every act of the soul will go forth so many harmonious and beautiful voices as silvery sounds that wounding the hearing of all of Heaven, it will make known that my Divine Will, is working in the creature.”

Difference between Jesus and the Virgin how all the hidden life of Jesus in Nazareth was the call of the kingdom of the Divine Will upon the earth. How the human will is the font of good or of evil.

I was thinking what difference passed between the Holy Virgin and my amiable Jesus, being that the Divine Volition held his life, his full dominion, his kingdom in both and my sweet Jesus moving in my interior said to me:

“My daughter, between me and the Celestial Queen, one was the Will that animated us, one the life, however between Her and I passed this difference, between a residence that from all (the) parts the light of the Sun enters, in a way that the light invests it, dominates it, there is no part of this residence that the light doesn't do as queen, hence she is prey of the light, always receives light, and grows under the influence of the light. Instead another residence possess inside of itself the sphere of the Sun, hence the source of the light(,) it doesn't receive it from outside but possess it within, is there not (a) difference between the one and the other? Now this difference passes between me and my Mama, She is the residence invested by the light, it made her prey (of it), and the Sun of my Will gave always, always, he nourished her with light and raised her in the interminable rays of the eternal Sun of my Fiat. Instead my Humanity possessed in itself the sphere of the Divine Sun, its source that always rises without ever diminishing, and the Sovereign Queen drew from me the light that gave the life and the glory of Queen of light, because who possesses a good can be called queen of that good.”

After this I followed my Divine Fiat doing my round in Him and arrived in the house of Nazareth, where my amiable Jesus had made his hidden life in order to follow his acts from it, I was saying to him: My love there is no act that you do that my I love you doesn't follow you, in order to ask you through means of your acts (for) the kingdom of your Will, my I love you follows you everywhere, in the steps that you do, in the words that you say, in the wood that you hammer and while you hammer the wood, you hammer the human volition so that it is undone and your Divine Volition re-arises in the midst of creatures, my I love you flows in the water that you drink, in the food that you take, in the air that you breathe, in the rivers of love that pass between you and your Mama and Saint Joseph, in the prayers that you do, in your ardent heartbeat, in the sleep that you take, oh! how I would like to remain near you in order to whisper to your ear I love you, I love you, ah! make that your kingdom comes. Now while I would have wanted that my I love you might be crown to everything of Jesus, he moved in my interior and said to me:

“My daughter, all my hidden life is so long, it was none other than the re-call of the kingdom of my Divine Will upon the earth, I wanted to re-do in myself all the acts that creatures should do in him, in order to then hand them to them, and I wanted to do it together with my Mama, I wanted her always together in my hidden life in order to form this kingdom. Two people had destroyed this kingdom of my Divine Fiat, Adam and Eve, another two, I and the Height of the Sovereign Queen had to re-do it. So that first I thought of the kingdom of my Divine Will, because the human will had been the first one to offend mine with redrawing from Him, all the other offences came in according degree as consequences of the first act. The human will is the life or the death of creatures, her happiness or her tyranny and misfortune in which she is thrown, her good Angel that leads her to Heaven or transforming herself into (a) demon precipitates her to hell, all the evil is in the will, as also all the good, because it is as font of life, (M)ass in the creature, that can gush forth joys, happiness, sanctity, peace, virtue, or also cast from herself fountains of troubles, of miseries, of sins, of wars, that destroy all goods. Therefore first I thought to the kingdom of my Will, in this hidden life for (a) good thirty years, and then with my little public life hardly three years I thought of the Redemption, and while in forming the kingdom of my Divine Fiat I had always near with me the Celestial Mama, in (my) public life it was less, less corporally of her presence, because it was the kingdom of my Fiat (that) constituted me king and the Virgin Queen, in order to be the foundation of the kingdom destroyed by the human will I first and then She. You see therefore how the kingdom of my Divine Volition by necessity, by reason and by consequence became formed with my coming upon the earth in first order, neither would I have been able to form the Redemption if I had not satisfied my Celestial Father to the first offensive act that the creature had done. Hence the kingdom of my Will is formed, there doesn't remain other than to make him known. And therefore, I don't do other than follow together with you and hand you my acts that I did in order to form him, to accompany your acts, because flows in them the foundation of mine, I am all attentive that your volition doesn't have life, so that mine is free. In short I am doing as with a second Mother of mine, recalling all the acts done together with the Virgin in order to depose them in you. Therefore be attentive to follow in everything my Will.”

Be all to the glory of God and to the completion of his Most Holy Will.

Thanks be to God.

Reluctance in writing. Littleness. The return of the writings. How the Divine Will lives suffocated in the midst of creatures because It is not known. Grave weight over those who should make It known; how they render themselves robbers. Preparation of great events.

My Heart and my Life Jesus, here I am again, at the great sacrifice of beginning to write yet another volume. My heart is bleeding from the effort I am making, especially because of the conditions in which my little and poor soul finds itself. My Love, if You do not help me, if You do not overwhelm me within You and make use of your power and love over me, I can no longer go on, and I will be incapable of writing a single word. Therefore I pray You that your Fiat alone may triumph in me! And if You want me to continue writing, do not abandon me to myself - continue your office of teacher who dictates to my little soul. If then You want me to write no more, I kiss and adore your Divine Will, and I thank You; and I pray that I may profit from the many lessons You have given me, that I may chew them continuously, and that I may model my life according to your teachings. Celestial Mama, Sovereign Queen, extend your blue mantle over me to protect me; guide my hand as I write, that I may fulfill the Divine Will.

So, after I finished writing the twenty-third volume - and Jesus alone knows with what hardship and sacrifice - I was lamenting to blessed Jesus that He had been very sparing with His teachings, and that He had made me toil to write just a few words. So I was thinking to myself: I have nothing else to write, because if Jesus does not speak, I don't know what to say, and it seems that Jesus has nothing more to tell me. It is true that the story of His Fiat is without limits - it never ends, and even eternally, in Heaven, It will always have something to say about the eternal Will; and being eternal, It encloses the infinite, and the infinite has infinite things and knowledges to speak about, in such a way as to never end; It is like the Sun which, as it gives light, has ever more light to give - its light is never exhausted... But, can it not be that for me He may put a limit to His speaking, and that He may make a pause in narrating the long story of His Eternal Will?"

Now, while I was thinking of this, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior in the act of coming out, and told me: "My daughter, how little you are! And it shows how, as you go on, you become more little; and little as you are, you want to measure Our greatness with your littleness, Our eternal speaking with your limits in speaking. And little child as you are, you are content with the fact that your Jesus may have nothing more to tell you; you would like to rest and go back to our early amusements, since you have nothing else to do. Poor little one! Don't you know that these are brief pauses that your Celestial Jesus is allowing for other purposes of His, which are not evident to you, and when you least expect it He will start again His very important speech about the long story of His eternal Will?"

After much struggling and fighting, finally the writings about the Divine Will arrived here from Messina, and I felt a certain contentment in me because, finally, I could have them near me, and I thanked my sweet Jesus from the heart. But Jesus, moving in my interior making Himself seen with an air of sadness, told me: "My daughter, you are content, and I am afflicted. If you knew what an enormous weight loomed over those in Messina... While they had interest in keeping them, they kept them sleeping. They were responsible for a Divine Will; and in seeing the idleness in which they kept them, I allowed that they be sent back. Now this weight looms over those who had them sent back with so much interest: if they do not occupy themselves with them, they too will be responsible for a Divine Will; and if you knew what it means to be responsible for a Will so holy... It means to keep It hampered, while It yearns It longs to have Its shackles removed; and they can be removed by making It known. It is full of life, It flows everywhere, it envelops everything; but this life lives as though suffocated in the midst of creatures because It is not known. And It moans, for It wants the freedom of Its life, and it is forced to keep the rays of Its endless light within Itself, because It is not known.

Now, who is responsible for so many pains of my Divine Will? Those who must interest themselves with making It known, but they do not. Has my purpose perhaps been to give much news about my Fiat without the desired fruit of making It known? No, no, I want the life of what I said, I want to make the new Sun shine, I want the fruit of the many knowledges I have manifested, I want my work to receive its longed for effect. In fact, how much have I not worked to dispose you to receive knowledges so important about my Will? And you yourself - how many sacrifices have you not made, and how many graces have I not given you to have you make them? My work has been long, and when I would see you sacrificed, I would look at the great good that my knowledges about the Fiat would produce in the midst of creatures - the new era that was to arise by virtue of them; and while suffering in sacrificing you, my tender Heart would take immense pleasure in seeing, by virtue of this, the good, the peace, the order, the happiness that my other children were to receive.

When I do great things in a soul, manifesting important truths and renewals that I want to make in the midst of the human family, it is not for that creature alone that I manifest this, but I want to enclose everyone in that good - like Sun, I want my truths to shine over each one, so that, whoever wants, may take their light. Did I not do the same with my Celestial Mama? Now, if She had wanted to keep the incarnation of the Word concealed, what good would my coming upon earth have brought? Nothing - I would have departed for Heaven without giving my life to anyone; and the Sovereign Queen, had She concealed Me, would have been responsible, and robber of all the good and of many divine lives of Mine which creatures were to receive. In the same way, they will be responsible and robbers of all the good that the knowledges about my Divine Fiat will bring, because It will bring many lives of light, of grace, and the immense goods which a Divine Will contains. Therefore, a grave weight looms over those who should occupy themselves with it - if they continue to keep the Suns, so beneficial, of so many truths about my eternal Will, idle. And if you, as first, wanted to oppose making known what regards my Will, you would be the first robber of those many Suns and of the many goods which the creatures are to receive through these knowledges."

Then, with a more tender tone, He added: "My daughter, the world is as though burned - there is no one who pours upon them the pure water that can quench their thirst; and if they drink at all, it is the cloudy water of their will, which burns them even more. Even the good - the children of my Church who try to do good - after doing good do not feel the happiness of that good, but rather, the weight of the good which brings them sadness and tiredness. Do you know why? Because in that very good the life of my Fiat is missing, which contains the divine strength that takes any tiredness away; the light, and the heat of my Will are missing, which have the virtue of emptying any weight and of sweetening all bitternesses; the beneficial dew of my Fiat is missing, which beads the actions of creatures, and makes them appear so beautiful as to bring the life of happiness to them; the ever springing water of my Will is missing, which, while fecundating in a divine manner, gives life and quenches their thirst. This is why they drink, but they bum more. See then, how necessary it is that Its knowledges become known and make their way in the midst of creatures, so as to offer to each one the life of my Will, with the fount of the goods It contains.

All, even those who are said to be more good, feel that something necessary is lacking to them; they feel that their works are not complete, and everyone longs for another good, but they themselves don't know what it is. It is the fullness and the totality of my Divine Fiat that is missing in their acts, and therefore their works are as though halved, because only with my Will and in my Will can one do complete works. Therefore, It yearns to be known in order to bring Its life and fulfillment to the works of its creatures; more so, since I am preparing great events - sorrowful and prosperous; chastisements and graces; unforeseen and unexpected wars - everything in order to dispose them to receive the good of the knowledges of my Fiat. And if they let them sleep without casting them into the midst of creatures, they will render the events which I am preparing fruitless. What an account will they not have to give Me? With these knowledges I am preparing the renewal and the restoration of the human family. Therefore, on your part, don't place any obstacle and continue to pray that the Kingdom of my Divine Will may come soon."

How the knowledges are many steps which the Divine Will has taken in order to return to the midst of creatures. How these steps will bring life, light and sanctity. Sighs of Jesus for them to be made known.

While following the Divine Fiat in order to accompany Its acts, my poor mind was thinking about the many truths which my beloved Jesus had told me concerning the Divine Will, and about the great love and interest with which He had manifested them to me. So I was thinking to myself; 'The first truths He told me seemed flashes of light, which unleashed an endless light from within them. Then, little by little, they were no longer flashes, but fountains of light, and my poor soul would remain under the continuous jet of these fountains of light. Finally, they seemed to be seas of light, of truths, in which I would remain so submerged that my little capacity would not be able to take everything, and would leave many truths in that very sea in which I felt immersed. But it was not given to me to restrict all of that endless light within myself, which, converting into words, manifested to me the harmony, the beauty, the power of the Supreme Will. And now it seems to me that I am in the light, but the light does not speak, and though I drink seas of light, I am unable to say anything.'

Now, while I was thinking of this, my always lovable Jesus moved in my interior and, all love, told me: "My daughter, you must know that as man withdrew from Our Will, Our paternal goodness withdrew Its operating life from the midst of creatures. This is why they have been able to say very little about It - because the sea of the operating light of my Divine Fiat was not flowing in them as life, because ungratefully, they had rejected It. And out of highest goodness, We left them the good of being able to follow the orders of Our Will - not the Life - in which they could hope for the sake of their salvation, because without It there is neither salvation nor sanctity. But Our paternal goodness, Our Will and Our Love desired, longed for - strongly yearned for Its return as operating life into the midst of creatures. We saw that they could not reach the perfect purpose of Creation, nor form the image wanted by Us completely in Our likeness, just as We created them - without the operating life of Our Fiat, because Our Fiat is the prime act of the creature, and if It is missing in her, she remains disordered, adulterated, because she lacks the prime act of her existence.

Now, you must know that, after many centuries of hidden sighs, Our Supreme Being gushed out more intensely with love - more than in the very Creation and Redemption. Since Our Love, in gushing out, overflowed from Us, We felt the need of love to take the first steps toward the creature. So, as I began to manifest to you the first truths about my Divine Will, I pushed It strongly to take the first steps into the midst of creatures; and I centralized these steps in you by means of Its knowledges. And as I saw that you would place your steps in those of the Divine Fiat, I rejoiced, I made feast, and manifesting to you more truths about It, I would push It to take yet more steps. Therefore, as many truths as I told you about my Will, so many are the steps which I made my Fiat take in order to make It return as operating life into the midst of creatures. This is why I have told you so many of them, that one can say that Heaven and earth are filled with the steps of the knowledges about my Will; and uniting together, they form the sea of light in your soul, which wants to overflow from within you to make Its way in the midst of creatures. These steps will be multiplied according to how much the truths about my Will will be recognized, because I never manifest a truth if not when I want to give it as gift, giving the life and the good it contains. Therefore, until my Divine Will is known with all of Its knowledges, Its steps will be hampered, and the good It wants to do to creatures suspended.

If you knew how painful it is being able to do good, placing oneself in the act of doing it, and having to keep it suspended because it is not known, waiting and waiting and longing for one who would make it known to be able to release the weight of the good which one wants to give - oh, how you would hasten to make known all the steps of my Fiat! More so, since they are steps which will bring, not remedies, help or medicines - but fullness of life of light of sanctity and totality of goods and my Love gushing out and flooding the whole world, will restore the order of Creation and the dominion of my Will in the midst of the human family.”

After this, my sweet Jesus made Himself seen with His Divine Heart unleashing many rays of light; each knowledge about the Divine Will was impressed at the point from which the rays started, in such a way as to form the most beautiful crown of light around that Divine Heart. And my beloved Jesus added: “My daughter, look what a beautiful crown of glory and of light my Divine Heart possesses! A more beautiful and refulgent crown It could not possess. These rays are all the knowledges about my Will; however, these rays are hampered - they cannot extend, because their knowledges are not known, this is why they cannot extend and expand so as to fill the whole earth with light. It happens as it would to the Sun if its rays, which start from the center of its sphere, were forced to remain in the air, without being able to extend so as to touch the earth and invest it with light and heat. Unable to extend its rays, the Sun would not be able to give the effects that its light contains, nor could the earth receive them. There would be a certain distance between the earth and the light of the Sun, and this distance would prevent the Sun from doing good to the earth, and the earth would be sterile and infertile. Such are the knowledges about my Fiat: if they are not made known, their rays cannot extend and take souls as though in their hands to warm them, to remove from them the torpor of the human will, to mold them anew, to transform them again in the life which my Fiat wants to infuse into them; because these knowledges are, and contain, the new creation of transforming the creature as he came out of Our creative hands.”

Necessity of the test; what the test will be for the children of the Divine Kingdom. One who lives in the Divine Will offers royal acts to God. The long story of the Divine Will. Example.

My abandonment in the Divine Will is continuous; but while I was all abandoned in It, I was thinking to myself ‘What might be the proof that Jesus will want from those who will live in the Kingdom of the Divine Will? If Jesus wants a proof of loyalty from everyone in order to confirm the state to which He calls them and to be sure of being able to entrust to the creature the goods He wants to give her, much more will He require this proof from the children of His Kingdom, which will be the most sublime state that can exist.’ But while I was thinking of this, my always lovable Jesus moved in my interior and told me: “My daughter, indeed there is no certainty without a test, and when the soul passes the test, she receives the confirmation of my designs and everything that is necessary to her and befits her in order to carry out the state to which she has been called by Me. This is why I wanted to test Adam - to confirm his happy state and his right of kingship over the whole Creation; and since he was not faithful in the test, by justice he could not receive the confirmation of the goods which his Creator wanted to give him. In fact, through the test man acquires the seal of faithfulness, which gives him the right to receive the goods that God had established to give him in the state to which his soul had been called by Him. It can be said that one who is not tested has no value - neither before God nor before men, nor before himself. God cannot trust a man without a test, and man himself does not know what strength he possesses.

If Adam had passed the test, all human generations would have been confirmed in his state of happiness and of royalty. In the same way, I Myself, loving these children of my Divine Will with a love all special, wanted to go through the test for all in my Humanity, reserving for them the one test of never allowing them to do their will, but only and always my Will, so as to reconfirm for them all the goods needed in order to live in the Kingdom of my Divine Fiat. With this, I closed all exit doors for them; I anointed them with an invincible strength, in such a way that nothing else will be able to enter the very high fences of my Kingdom. In fact, when I command that something should not be done, it is a door that I leave, through which the human will can make its exit; it is an opportunity that the creature always has, by which she can go out of my Will. But when I say: ‘from here there is no exit’, all doors remain closed, her weakness is fortified, and the only thing that is left to her is the decision to enter, never to go out again - or not to enter at all. Therefore, in order to live in the Kingdom of my Will there will only be the decision - the decision will carry the accomplished act. Am I not doing the same with you? Do I not cry out constantly from the depth of your heart: ‘nothing dare enter but my Will alone’? As center of life, with Its omnipotent strength, with Its dazzling light, my Will keeps everything outside of you; and eclipsing everything, It makes Its prime motion of life flow in all of your acts, and It dominates and reigns as Queen.”

After this, I was following the acts of the Divine Will in all of Creation to bring them as homage to my Creator. A motion of life was flowing in all created things which reunited them all, and moved everything. I was surprised, and my sweet Jesus added: "My daughter, this motion of life in all Creation is my Will which moves everything and holds all things as though in Its hand of life. How long is Its motion! - and while being multiple, it is one. Therefore, the story of my Will is long, and your work in composing Its story becomes extremely long. And as much as you would like to shorten your speech it is difficult for you to do it, because Its motion, which moves everything continuously, has so much to say about what It has done in Its very long history, that as much as It has already said, It seems It has said nothing. And since all motions, all lives and all fields are Its own, It has many ways to narrate Its long story. You will be the narrator and the bearer of the story of an Eternal Will which, while telling you Its story involves you within it, to give you the life of Its acts and to communicate to you, as much as it is possible for you, Its motion and the goods It contains. Therefore, you must know that one who lives in my Will offers royal acts to the Eternal Majesty - acts which can be found only in the divine royal palace of my Will. When the creature comes before Us with the royal acts that Our Will does in all Creation, only then do We feel really honored by her - these are divine acts, worthy of Our Majesty. On the other hand, one who does not live in Our Will, as much good as he might do, offers Us always human acts, not divine - acts which are inferior to Us because the royal act of Our Divine Fiat does not flow in them.

It happens as to a king who is served by a pageboy of his with all the things which are in His royal palace. Even though they are his own things, the king feels honored because, if he drinks, he drinks of his pure water from golden vases, clear and clean; if he eats, he eats food worthy of himself which is served to him in silver platters; if he clothes himself, he is brought royal garments which befit him as king. The king feels all pleased and satisfied because he is served with the royal things that belong to him. On the other hand, there is another pageboy who serves the king, but when the king wants to drink he goes to his miserable home, takes his turbid water, and brings it in vases of clay, not well cleaned; if the king wants to eat he fetches his crude food, and in disgusting trays; if the king wants to clothe himself, he brings him unadorned garments, unworthy of a king. The king is neither pleased nor honored in being served by this pageboy; rather, he remains with a pain in his heart and says: 'How can this be? I have my own royal things and this one dares to serve me with the miserable things of his own house?' The first pageboy is one who lives in my Will; the second is one who lives in the human will. What a great difference between the two!"

How the word is everything in God. Knowledge is the bearer of the divine act and of the possession of divine goods for creatures. Cure that Jesus prescribed.

I was doing my round in the Divine Fiat, and many things about the Supreme Volition wandered through my mind; so I thought to myself: 'How can it be that if the knowledges about this Divine Will become known, then Its Kingdom can come? If He did so much for the coming of the Kingdom of Redemption - the mere knowledge of it was not enough, but He worked, suffered, died, performed miracles... - will the knowledges alone be enough for the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat which is greater than Redemption?' But while I was thinking of this, my lovable Jesus moved in my interior and told me: "My daughter, in order to form the smallest thing, creatures need works, steps and raw materials; but God, your Jesus, does not need anything to create and form the greatest works and the entire universe. For Us the word is everything. Was the whole universe not created with the word alone? And in order for man to enjoy this whole universe, it was enough to know it. These are the ways of Our Wisdom: in order to give, We make use of the word; and in order to receive, man must have the knowledge of what We have said and done with Our word. In fact, if a people does not know all the varieties of plants which are spread throughout the whole earth, it cannot enjoy, nor can it be the owner of the fruits of those plants, because in Our word there is not only the creative power, but united with it there is also the communicative power - the power of communicating to the creatures what We have said and done. But if they do not know it, nothing is given to them. What did man add in order to enjoy the light of the sun and receive its effects? Nothing; nor did he add anything to the water he drinks, to the fire that warms him and to many other things created by Me. However, he needed to know them, otherwise it would have been for him as if they did not exist.

Knowledge is the bearer of the life of Our act and of the possession of Our goods for creatures. Therefore, the knowledges about my Will have the virtue of forming Its Kingdom in their midst, because this has been Our purpose in manifesting them. And if in Redemption I wanted to descend from Heaven to take on human flesh, it was because I wanted to descend into all human acts to reorder them. More so, since Adam had withdrawn from Our Divine Will to content his humanity, and by doing this he disordered himself completely, he lost his state of origin; and I had to follow the same way: to descend into a Humanity so as to reorder him again; and everything I did in It was to serve as remedy, medicine, example, mirror, light, to be able to put decayed humanity in order. Now, having done all that was necessary, and still more, so much so that I had nothing else to do - I did everything, and I did it as God, with surprising ways and with invincible love in order to reorder this decayed humanity; and man cannot say: 'Jesus has not done this to cure us, reorder us and place us in safety' - everything I did in my Humanity was nothing but the preparation and the cures I prescribed so that the human family might recover, to return once again into the order of my Divine Will.

So, after about two thousand years of cure, it is just and decorous for Us and for man that he no longer be sick, but that he be healthy again so as to enter into the Kingdom of Our Will. This is why the knowledges about It were needed - so that Our creative power which speaks and creates, speaks and communicates, speaks and transforms, speaks and wins, might speak and make new horizons, new suns rise for as many knowledges as It manifests, in such a way as to form so many sweet enchantments that, amazed, the creature will be conquered and invested by the light of my eternal Will. In fact, nothing else is needed for Its Kingdom to come but the two wills kissing each other, one dissolving within the other my Will, giving, and the human will, receiving.

Therefore, just as my word was enough to create the universe, it will be enough to form the Kingdom of my Fiat. But it is necessary that the words I have spoken and the knowledges I have manifested be known, to be able to communicate the good that my creative word contains. This is why I insist so much that the knowledges about my Will and the purpose for which I manifested them be known - to be able to realize the Kingdom which I so yearn to give to creatures. And I will overwhelm Heaven and earth to obtain the intent."

How the soul can place herself in the Divine Unity. Example of the Sun. The repeater of the Creator. How God gives sip by sip. Necessity for the knowledges to make their way.

I was thinking about the Divine Fiat so as to unite myself to Its unity, to be able to make up for that unity of wills which is lacking between Creator and creature. So I thought to myself. 'Can I reach such an extent as to penetrate into the unity of my Creator?' And Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: "My daughter, when the soul places herself in the unity of my Will, it is as if she placed herself in the sphere of the Sun. Look at the Sun: it is one; from the height of its sphere it does one single act, but the light that descends down to the bottom embraces the whole earth, and through the effects of its light it produces multiple and innumerable acts. It invests nearly each thing, each plant; it gives its embrace of light to it, and says: 'What would you like - sweetness? I'll give it to you. And you, what would you like - heat? I'll give it to you. And you - do you want fragrance? I will give- it to you as well.' Its light pours itself out passionately for nearly each thing, and it gives to it that which befits its nature in order to form its life and grow according to the order created by God. Now, why all this? Because that sphere contains so much light and all of the seeds and effects of all things and plants which are spread over the face of the earth.

Now, this symbolizes the soul who wants to live in the unity of Our Will. She rises into the sphere of the Sun of the eternal Fiat which contains so much light that no one can escape it, and possesses all the seeds of the lives of creatures. Its light keeps investing and molding everyone, and prays that each one may receive the life, the beauty, the sanctity wanted by their Creator. And the soul, from that sphere, becomes of all and gives herself to all. She repeats Our act which is one, but that one act has the virtue of doing everything and of giving itself to all, as if each one had it at his disposal and possessed it fully as his own. In fact, unity is nature within Us, and in the soul it can be grace; and We feel bilocated in the creature who lives in Our unity. Oh, how We delight in seeing the littleness of the creature ascending, descending, and expanding within Our unity to be the repeater of her Creator!"

After this, I was thinking about how blessed Jesus would make the Kingdom of His Will come: how could the creature embrace so many knowledges about It all together, and almost all at once, goods so great, divine manners, beauty and sanctity which contain the reflections of the likeness of her Creator? But while I was thinking of this, my beloved Jesus moved in my interior and told me: "My daughter, by her nature the creature cannot receive, all together, a great good, a light which has no boundaries, but she must take it sip by sip, waiting to swallow the first sip to then have another one. And if she wanted to take everything together - poor one, she would be drowned and would be forced to pour out that which she cannot contain, waiting to first digest the little she has taken, so that it may flow like blood within her veins, and its vital humor may spread through all of her person, to then dispose herself to have another sip. Has this not been the order I have had with you, manifesting to you that which regarded my eternal Fiat little by little, starting with the first lessons, then the second, the third, and so on? And when you would chew the first and swallow it, letting it flow like blood within your soul, I would prepare for you the second lesson, and my Will would form the first acts of life in you. And I celebrated Its glory and fulfilled the purpose of Creation, anxiously waiting to be able to give you more sublime lessons, to fill you so much that you yourself would not know where to take from in order to repeat them.

I will do the same to form the Kingdom of my Divine Will. I will start with the first lessons which I have given you, and this is why I want that they begin to be known, that they may make their way, preparing and disposing souls so that, little by little, they may yearn to listen to more lessons, given the great good they have received from the first ones. This is why I have prepared lessons so long about my Will - because It encloses the primary purpose for which man was created, as well as all things and the very life which man must carry out in It. So, without my Will, it is as if man did not have true life, but a life almost foreign to him and therefore full of dangers, of unhappiness and of miseries. Poor man, without the life of my Will - it would have been better for him if he had never been born! But, to his great misfortune, he does not even know his true life, because until now there has been no one who has broken the true bread of Its knowledges, so as to form pure blood and allow Its true life to grow in the creature. They have broken for him a stale, medicated bread which, if it has not made him die, has not let him grow healthy, vigorous and strong of a divine strength, as the bread of my Will makes one grow. My Will is life and has the virtue of giving Its life; It is light and casts darkness away; It is immense and takes man from all sides to give him strength, happiness, sanctity, in such a way that everything is safe around him. Ah! you do not know what treasures of grace these knowledges conceal - what good they will bring to creatures; and this is why you do not have interest that they begin to make their way to give start to the formation of the Kingdom of my Will.”

Analogy between Eden and Calvary. A kingdom cannot be formed with one act alone. Necessity of the Death and Resurrection of Our Lord.

I was doing my round in the Divine Fiat and I accompanied my sweet Jesus in the pains of His Passion, following Him to Calvary. My poor mind paused to think about the harrowing pains of Jesus on the Cross; and He moving in my interior told me: “My daughter Calvary is the new Eden in which mankind was given back that which it lost by withdrawing from my Will. Analogy between Calvary and Eden: in Eden man lost grace, on Calvary he acquires it; in Eden, Heaven was closed to him, he lost his happiness and rendered himself the slave of the infernal enemy; here in the new Eden, Heaven was opened once again to him, he reacquires the lost peace and happiness, the devil is chained, while man is freed from his slavery. In Eden, the Sun of the Divine Fiat darkened and it became always nighttime for man - symbol of the Sun which withdrew from the face of the earth during the three hours of my terrible agony on the Cross. Unable to sustain the torment of His Creator - caused by the human will which, with great perfidy, had reduced my Humanity to that state - horrified, the Sun withdrew, and as I breathed my last, it reappeared once again and continued its course of light. In the same way, the Sun of my Fiat, my pains, my death, called back the Sun of my Will to reign in the midst of creatures.

Therefore, Calvary formed the dawn which called the Sun of my eternal Will to shine once again in the midst of creatures. Dawn means certainty that the Sun will come out; in the same way, the dawn which I formed on Calvary assures, even though some two thousand years have passed, that it will call the Sun of my Will to reign once again in the midst of creatures. In Eden, my Love was defeated by them; here instead, It triumphs and conquers the creature. In the first Eden man receives the condemnation to death of soul and body; while in the second Eden he is released from his condemnation, and the resurrection of the body is reconfirmed through the resurrection of my Humanity. There are many relations between Eden and Calvary - that which man lost there, he reacquires here. In the kingdom of my pains everything is given back, and the honor and the glory of the poor creature is reconfirmed by means of my pains and of my death.

By withdrawing from my Will, man formed the kingdom of his evils, of his weaknesses, passions and miseries; and I wanted to come upon earth, I wanted to suffer greatly, I permitted that my Humanity be lacerated, Its flesh torn to pieces, all full of wounds. And I wanted even to die in order to form, by means of my many pains and of my death, the kingdom opposite to the many evils that the creature had formed for herself. A kingdom cannot be formed with one act alone, but with many upon many acts; and the more the acts, the greater and more glorious the kingdom becomes. Therefore, my death was necessary to my Love; with my death I was to give the kiss of life to creatures, and from my many wounds I was to let all goods out, in order to form the kingdom of goods for creatures. So, my wounds are springs which gush with goods, and my death is spring from which life for all gushes forth.

And just as my death was necessary, so was my Resurrection necessary to my Love, because by doing his will, man lost the life of my Will, and I wanted to rise again to form not only the resurrection of the body, but the resurrection of the life of my Will in it. Had I not risen again, the creature could not have risen once again in my Fiat; she would have lacked the virtue - the bond of her resurrection in Mine, and my Love would have felt incomplete. It would have felt It could do something more but It was not doing it, and so I would have remained with the harsh martyrdom of a love that is not complete. If then ungrateful man does not make use of all I have done, the evil is all his own, but my Love possesses and enjoys Its full triumph.”

The human will is symbolized by a rotten seed. How the Divine Will has the virtue of restoring the original life of that seed. Divine echo in the midst of creatures.

I was thinking about the Holy Divine Will, and a thousand thoughts wandered through my head: how can Its Kingdom come? How will the creatures be able to receive a good so great, and rise so high as to enter into that Fiat from which Creation came out? But while I was thinking of this and other things, my beloved Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, my Will has the virtue of purifying, clearing up, embellishing and changing nature itself. The human will is like a seed which is rotten inside, while on the outside it appears to be good. The clothing that covers the seed seems to be in good condition, but if the clothing is removed, one finds that the seed is, in some, half putrefied, in some, empty. Others, then, while the seed possesses life, do not expose it to the sun or to the wind, and so it will end up rotten. On the other hand, if it is exposed to the sun and to the wind, through their light, heat and wind, they will rip the rotten part off, they will purify it, and give it new life.

Such is the human will - a rotten seed, full of smoke, of rot, and half putrefied. However, not all seeds are completely dead - some have a thread of life; and if these seeds which possess this thread of life are exposed to the Sun of my Divine Will, Its light, Its heat and Its penetrating and ruling wind will invest the seed of the human will, and the light and heat will clear up the seed, removing what is rotten. They will fill it with life, and the ruling wind of my Fiat will play with it, raising it so high as to enclose it in that Fiat from which it came; and with Its virtue, It will change the nature of the seed, giving it its original life. Everything is in exposing oneself to the Sun of my Will and to the burning and refulgent rays of Its knowledges, letting oneself be invested by them, caressed by Its light, warmed by Its heat, carried by the ruling of Its wind, so that the Kingdom of my Will may come upon earth.

See, these prerogatives are also in the natural order. If one feels a heavy and oppressive air, a wind is enough to empty the air of that weight and to allow one to breathe it as pure air. If one feels an excessive heat or a numbing cold, a wind is enough to mitigate that heat, and another wind is enough to mitigate that cold. If thick clouds cover the horizon, the wind and the sun are enough to dispel the clouds and make the blue sky reappear, more beautiful. If a field is about to rot because of continuous waters, a strong wind is enough to dry it, and the light and heat of the sun are enough to revive it once again. If nature can do this, animated by the power of my Will, more so can my Will do it over souls who let themselves be invested by It. With Its heat, my Will will mold them anew, It will destroy what is rotten in them; and breathing over them, with Its light It will empty them of the weight of the human will, giving them their original nature. When Adam sinned, corrupting the seed of his will, if my Will had not withdrawn from him, Its light and heat could have restored him immediately; but justice demanded that he feel the effects of his corrupted seed, and therefore, as my Will withdrew, he felt no more light or heat in his soul so as to be restored and to maintain the seed of his will incorrupt. Isn't this perhaps the Kingdom of my Will - Its yearning to return once again into the midst of creatures and, more than sun, remove the corruption from their seeds, so as to be able to reign and dominate in the midst of the human family?"

After this, I continued to think about the Supreme Fiat, and my lovable Jesus added: "My daughter, as the Divine Will pronounced Its Fiat in Creation, It formed the echo. As it resounded in the empty space of the whole universe, this divine echo drew and carried all of Our qualities with it, and it filled Heaven and earth with Our Love. As it came out from Our Fiat, this echo created the most beautiful things - heavens, suns, winds, seas, and many other things. This echo remained in each created thing, and it maintains the life of the blue heavens with all the stars; the life of the sun, and continuing with its echo of light and heat, it preserves it full of light, whole and beautiful, just as it created it. So, each created thing has the echo of Our Fiat as its beginning and preservation; this is why they preserve the order, the power, the harmony, the magnificence of Our works. Whenever the Divinity wants to operate and reproduce, even Our very Life, Our Fiat forms the echo, and the echo creates and forms whatever We want. See, also in instituting the Sacrament of the Eucharist, Our Fiat formed the echo; the echo invested the bread and wine, and formed in them my Body, Blood, Soul and Divinity. That echo still resounds in each host, and so my Sacramental Life is perpetuated continuously.

Now, this echo resounded in the creation of man, but by withdrawing from Our Will, man lost this echo - he no longer felt, inside and outside of himself, its sweet, powerful, harmonizing sound, which had the virtue of preserving him just as he came out of Our creative hands; so he became weak and disharmonized. Poor man, without the echo of Our Fiat which had given him life - he was no longer able to reorder himself, he no longer felt within himself the echo of the light of his Creator, the echo of Love, the echo of order, of power, of wisdom, of divine sweetness and goodness. Without the echo of Our Fiat, man became like a child who grows without mama, who has no one to feed him the words, to teach him works and steps; or like a student who has no teacher to teach him how to read and write; and if he does anything at all by himself, he will do it disordered. Such is man without the echo of Our Fiat -like a child without mama, like a student without teacher. Now, as the soul keeps calling my Will as the beginning of all of her being, she will feel Its divine echo. This echo will call her back to her beginning, and resounding in her, it will reorder her anew; and just as Our echo retreated from man because he withdrew from Our Divine Will, in the same way, as creatures recognize It, love It and want nothing but Our Divine Fiat, the echo of Our Will will return to the midst of creatures. The Kingdom of Our Fiat is exactly this: the return of Our divine echo - not the far away echo which has often resounded to the hearing of man from the time he withdrew from Our Will; but the continuous echo which will resound in the depth of souls, and transforming them, it will form Divine Life in them, giving back to them the order of man, as he was created.”

When the truths are not taken into consideration, their life is aborted How the love of the Sovereign Queen is spread throughout the whole Creation, because in Its infinite surge, the Fiat diffused it everywhere. Evils of the human will.

I continue with my abandonment in the Divine Will, with the almost continuous torment of the privation of my sweet Jesus. I felt the sea of light of the Fiat flow within my poor mind, which seemed to want to tell some truths that regarded It. But the pain I felt from the privation of Jesus was so great that I would not pay attention to the light that wanted to speak to me. And my beloved Jesus, moving in my interior and clasping me in His arms, told me: “My daughter, when the light of my Fiat wants to manifest itself and the soul does not take it into consideration, the birth which It wants to deliver in order to communicate it to creatures is aborted, and they do not receive the light of this birth of light from Us and if you knew what it means to cause Our light to be aborted...!

You must know that when Our Fiat wants to manifest a truth, It places all of Our Being in activity, and overflowing with love, with light, with power, with wisdom, with beauty and goodness, It forms the birth of the truth It wants to deliver. And since all of Our qualities place themselves in the act of rising, We cannot contain it, and so We release this birth from Us to give it to the creature as gift. And if she does not take it into consideration, she causes Our love and Our light to be aborted; she causes Our power, wisdom, beauty and goodness to be aborted, making them die at birth. She loses this dear birth from Us, and does not receive Our life, which We wanted to give her by means of that truth; and We are left with the sorrow of having aborted, and feel the good which We wanted to give to the creatures enter into Us again. In fact, if the creature aborts, she loses that birth, while We do not lose It; rather, it reenters Us it is for the creature that it is aborted. Therefore, be attentive when you feel that the sea of light of my Fiat forms its waves to overflow outside and deliver the birth of its truths.”

After this, I felt I was good at nothing, and I prayed the Sovereign Queen to come to my help - to lend me Her love, that I might love my sweet Jesus with Her love of Mother. And Jesus added: “My daughter, the love of the Celestial Sovereign is spread throughout the whole Creation, because that Fiat which, at merely being pronounced, had unleashed into the whole universe the great variety of

Our works and had given them life, dwelled within Her. She emitted Her love and all of Her acts in the Divine Fiat which, not knowing how to do small things, but only great and without limits, in Its infinite surge diffused the love and all the acts of the Celestial Mama in the heavens, in the stars, in the sun, in the wind, in the sea - everywhere and in everything. Her love is spread everywhere, Her acts can be found in every place, because my Fiat diffused them everywhere, and animated everything with Her love and acts. I would not be satisfied, nor would I feel loved and honored, if I did not find in all things, even under the earth, the love and the glory that my Mama gave Me. It would be a broken love and a divided glory if I did not find Her in all of Creation; more so, since I had loved Her in all things, and therefore it was right that I find Her love diffused in everything, and always in the act of loving Me and glorifying Me. Nor could a broken love that would not run after Me everywhere, have made its way into Me, and so She would not have been able to draw Me from Heaven onto earth within the narrow prison of Her maternal womb.

Her chains of love were as many as the things I created, in such a Way that I descended from Heaven like a King, all bejeweled and surrounded by the chains of love of the Queen of Heaven. And if Her love reached such extent, She owes it to my Divine Fiat which, reigning in Her as Sovereign, captured Her love within my Will and expanded it everywhere and all of Her acts received the shades of the divine acts. Therefore, if you want the love of the Queen Mama, let my Fiat dominate you, diffuse your love and all of yourself within It so that my Fiat, capturing your little love and everything you do, may expand it, and bringing it wherever It is present - that is, everywhere - It may find your love united to the love of my Mama. In this way you will give Me the contentment that the little daughter of my Will does not give Me a broken and divided love, but love in all things and everywhere.”

Afterwards, I was thinking to myself: ‘But what harm does the creature do when she does her will?’ And Jesus added: “My daughter, the harm is great. My Will is light, while the human will is darkness; my Will is sanctity, while the human is sin; Mine is beauty and contains every good, while the human is ugliness and contains every evil. Therefore, by not doing my Will, the soul makes the light die, and gives death to sanctity, to beauty and to all goods; and by doing her will, she makes darkness rise, and gives life to sin, to ugliness and to all evils. Yet, doing their own will seems nothing to creatures, while they dig themselves an abyss of evils which leads them to the precipice. And then, does it seem trivial to you that while my Will brings them Its light, Its sanctity, Its beauty and all of Its goods, and only because It loves these creatures - It receives the affront of seeing Its light, Its sanctity, Its beauty and all of Its goods die in them? My Humanity felt so much this death which the human will gave to the light and sanctity of Its Will within the creatures, that one can say that this was the true death It felt, because It felt the torment and the weight of a death of an infinite light and sanctity, which creatures had dared to destroy within themselves. And my Humanity moaned and felt crushed by as many deaths for as many times as they had dared to give death to the light and sanctity of my Divine Will within them. What harm would it not be for nature if they made the light of the sun, the wind that purifies, the air that they breathe, die? There would be such disorder that creatures would all die. Yet, the light of my Will is more than sun for souls - more than wind that purifies and air that forms their breathing. So, from the disorder produced if they could make the light of the sun, the wind and the air die, you can comprehend the harm produced by not doing my adorable Will, which is the act of primary life and the center of all creatures.”

What one gives to God with the 'I love You'. The prodigious secret: how it forms many divine births. How nothing of what Our Lord did escaped the Most Holy Virgin. How the Divine Will is the breath of the soul.

I was doing my round in the Divine Fiat, and according to my usual way, I was investing all of Creation with my refrain: 'I love You, I adore You, I bless You...'. And while doing this, I thought to myself: 'What am I giving to my God with this long story of "I love You's"? And my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: "My daughter, a pure, holy and upright love is a divine birth. It comes from God and has the virtue of rising and entering into God so as to multiply these births from Him, and to bring God Himself to each creature who yearns to love Him. Therefore, when the soul is invested by this love and receives this birth, she can form other births for as many times as she says her 'I love You'; in such a way that her 'I love You' flies before God; and the Supreme Being, looking inside the 'I love You' sent by the creature finds all of Itself in that little 'I love You', and feels It is being given all of Itself by her.

That little 'I love You' contains a prodigious secret; in its littleness it contains the infinite, the immense, the power, so much so, that it can say: 'I give God to God'. In that little 'I love You' of the creature, the infinite Being feels all of Its divine qualities being sweetly touched, because since it is a birth from It, It finds all of Itself within it. This is what you give Me with your many 'I love You's': you give Me Myself as many times. There is nothing more beautiful, greater and more pleasing you could give Me than to give Me all of Myself. My Fiat, which forms the life of your 'I love You' for Me in you, delights in forming many births from Us; so It keeps the rhythm of the 'I love You' in you, yearning always to mint the divine coin of your 'I love You' for each created thing. Then It looks to see whether all the things created by Us are beaded with the prodigious secret of your 'I love You'. My daughter, We do not look at whether what the creature does is great or small; rather, We look at whether there is the prodigy of Our secret - whether her tiniest acts, thoughts and sighs are invested with the power of Our Will. This is all, and it is all for Us.

After this, I was continuing my round in the Fiat, to accompany all that Jesus had done in the Redemption; and I thought to myself: 'How I wish I had done all that the Sovereign Mama did when She was with Jesus - certainly She followed all of His acts, and let nothing escape Her.' But as I was thinking of this and other things, my always lovable Jesus added: "My daughter, indeed nothing escaped my Mama, because everything I did and suffered resounded like a deep echo in the depth of Her soul. And She was so attentive in waiting for the echo of my acts that the echo, together with everything I did and suffered, would remain imprinted in Her. And the Sovereign Queen emitted Her echo within Mine, and made it resound in the depth of my interior, in such a way that torrents would run between Me and Her - seas of light and of love which unloaded themselves into each other; and I made the deposit of all my acts in Her maternal Heart. I would not have been content, had I not had Her always with Me - had I not felt Her continuous echo which, resounding in Mine, drew even my heartbeats and breaths to be deposited in Her. Likewise, I would not be content if, from that time, I did not have you, who were to follow all of my acts in my Divine Will. In fact, from that time I made their deposit in you, moving the echo of my Mama into the depth of your soul. And through the length of the centuries I looked at the echo of my Mama in you in order to realize the Kingdom of my Divine Will. This is why you feel as though drawn to follow all of my acts - it is Her maternal echo that resounds in you; and I take the occasion to make its deposit in the depth of your interior, to give you the grace of making my eternal Fiat reign in you.”

Then, I felt my poor mind as though immersed in the sea of the Divine Fiat. Its light invested all of me, and I could see neither the height nor the depth of Its boundaries. I felt It as more than life in me, which flew everywhere within me; and my beloved Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, my Will is life, It is air, It is breath of the creature. It is not like the other virtues which are neither continuous life nor breath of the creature, and therefore they are exercised in time and circumstance. Patience is not always exercised, because many times there is no one who allows it to be exercised, and so the virtue of patience remains idle, without giving its continuous life to the creature. Nor does obedience or charity form their life, because the one who has the continuous act of commanding, or the one for whom charity could be exercised, may not be there. Therefore, the virtues can form the ornament of the soul, but not the life. On the other hand, my Will is the prime act of all the acts of the creature; so, if she thinks, if she speaks, if she breathes, it is my Will that forms the thought and the word; and giving her the breath, It maintains the circulation, the heartbeat, the warmth. And just as no one can live without breathing, so no one can live without my Divine Will. There is always need of It in order to continue living; yet, while all receive Its continuous breath, it is not recognized. My Will is so necessary that one cannot do without It even for one instant, because It is the bearer, not only of all human acts, but also of all created things.

My Fiat is prime act of the Sun, and makes creatures breathe light; It is prime act of the air, of water, of fire, of the wind, and creatures breathe my Divine Will in the air they breathe, in the water they drink, in the fire that warms them, in the wind that purifies them - there is not one thing in which they do not breathe my Will. Therefore, in all things, be they small or great even in the breath the creature can always do my Will; and by not doing It, it is an act of life of Divine Will that she loses - it is her breath that she suffocates continuously. She receives Its life, Its breath - but to convert it into human rather than to be, herself, transformed into my Divine Will.”

How the virtues are seeds, plants, flowers and fruits, while the Divine Will is Life. The wonders of the ‘I love You’; how love is never tired. One who lives in the Divine Will cannot go to Purgatory - the universe would rebel.

My poor mind is always prey to the Supreme Fiat. It seems to me I can think of nothing else, nor do I want to occupy myself with anything else. I feel a current in me which stops me now at one point, now at another point of the Divine Will but I always end up in It without ever taking all of Its endless light, because I am incapable of it. And my lovable Jesus, moving in my interior, making me a surprise, told me: “My daughter, when the soul practices a virtue, the first act she practices forms the seed, and as she practices the second, the third act and so forth, she cultivates the seed, she waters it, and it grows into a plant and produces its fruits. If then she practices it only once, or a few times, the seed is neither watered nor cultivated - it dies, and the soul remains without plant and without fruit, because a virtue is never formed by one single act, but by repeated acts. It happens as to the earth: it is not enough to sow the seed in its womb, but it is wise to cultivate it often and to water it, if one wants the plant and the fruits of that seed; otherwise the earth becomes hard over that seed and buries it without giving it life.

Now, one who wants the virtue of patience, of obedience and the like, must sow the first seed, and then water it and cultivate it with other acts. In this way, she will form many beautiful and varied plants. On the other hand, my Will is not seed like the virtues - but life; and as the soul begins to be resigned, to look at my Will in everything and to live in It, the little divine life is formed in her. And as she advances in the practice of living in my Will this divine life keeps growing and expanding, to the point of filling the soul with all of this life, in such a way that nothing is left of her but a veil that covers it and hides it within itself. And just as with virtues, so with my Will: if the creature does not give the continuous nourishment of her acts to the little divine life within her, this life does not grow, and does not fill her entirely. It happens as to a newborn baby who dies at birth if he is not nourished. In fact, since my Will is life, more than the virtues which are images of the plants, It needs continuous nourishment in order to grow and to become a whole life, as much as a creature is capable of. This is why it is necessary that you always live in it: that you may take Its delicious food from my Will Itself, so as to nourish Its divine life in you. See then, how great is the difference which exists between the virtues and my Will: the first are plants, flowers and fruits which embellish the earth and delight the creatures, while my Fiat is heaven, sun, air, heat, heartbeat - all things which form life, and divine life, in the creature. Therefore, love this life, and give it continuous nourishment, that it may fill you completely and nothing may be left of you,”

After this, I was continuing my round in the Divine Will, and repeating the refrain of the ‘I love You’, I was saying: ‘Jesus, my Love, I want to leave all of my being in your Fiat, so that I may find myself in all created things, to bead them with my ‘I love You’. Even more, I want to place my heart in the center of the earth, and as it beats, I want to embrace all of its inhabitants; and following all of their heartbeats with my ‘I love You’, I want to give You the love of each one of them. And as my heartbeat is repeated from within the center of the earth, I want to place my ‘I love You’ in all the seeds which the earth encloses in its womb; and as the seeds sprout and plants, herbs and flowers are formed, I want to place in them my ‘I love You’, that I may see them enclosed in my ‘I love You’ for Jesus...’ But as I was saying this, my thought interrupted the refrain of my ‘I love You’, telling me: ‘How much nonsense you are speaking. Jesus Himself must be tired of hearing your long singsong, ‘I love You, I love You...’ ‘

And Jesus, moving so very hurriedly in my interior, and looking at all Creation to see whether in all things, small and big, there was the life of my ‘I love You’, told me: “My daughter, what wonder, what enchantment, to see all things beaded with your ‘I love You’. If all creatures could see all the plants, the atoms of the earth, the stones, the drops of water, beaded with your ‘I love You’, and the light of the sun, the air that they breathe, the sky that they see, filled with your ‘I love You’, and the stars, shining with your ‘I love You’ - what amazement would not arise within them; what sweet enchantment would not draw the pupils of their eyes to look at your refrain and the long singsong of your ‘I love You’? They would say: ‘How is it possible that she let nothing escape her? We ourselves feel beaded with her ‘I love You’!’ And they would wander around checking and investigating everything, to see whether, in fact nothing had escaped you, so as to enjoy the enchantment of your ‘I love You’. Now, if this marvelous enchantment remains unobserved by the terrestrial creatures, it is not unobserved in Heaven, and the inhabitants up there enjoy the enchantment and the marvels of seeing the whole Creation filled and beaded with your ‘I love You’.”

They feel their 'I love You' harmonize with yours; they do not feel separated from the earth because love unites them together, forming the same notes and the same harmonies. Moreover, you must know that when all things, small and big, were created, I never tired of beading them with my repeated and incessant 'I love you's' for you; and just as I did not tire of placing them, so I do not tire of hearing them being repeated by you. On the contrary, I enjoy that my 'I love you' does not remain isolated, but has the company of yours; and as yours echoes in Mine, they fuse together and live a common life. Besides, love is never tired; rather, it is bearer of joy and happiness for Me."

Then, I don't know how, a thought came to me: 'If I died and went to Purgatory, what will I do? If while being here imprisoned in my body, caged more than in a narrow prison, my poor soul feels it so much when Jesus deprives me of His adorable presence that I don't know what I would do and suffer to find Him again - what would happen if, when the prison of my body is broken and my soul, free and loose, takes its rapid flight, I did not find my Jesus, the center in which I must take refuge - never to go out again? And instead of finding my life, the center of my rest, I found myself flung into Purgatory? What would be my pain and my torment?'

Now, while I felt oppressed by these thoughts, my beloved Jesus clasped me all to Himself, and added: "My daughter, why do you want to oppress yourself? Don't you know that one who lives in my Will has the bond of union with the heavens, with the sun, with the sea, with the wind, and with all Creation? Her acts are fused in all created things, because my Will has placed everything in common with her as her own things, in such a way that all of Creation feels the life of this creature. And if she could go to Purgatory, they would all feel offended, the entire universe would rebel, and they would not let her go alone to Purgatory. The heavens, the sun, the wind, the sea... - all would follow her, moving from their places and, offended, they would say to their Creator: 'She is Yours and ours - the life that animates all of us animates her. How is this - in Purgatory?!' The heavens would claim her with their love; the sun would speak up with its light, the wind with its lamenting voices, the sea with its tumultuous waves - all would have a word to defend the one who has lived a common life with them. But since one who lives in my Will absolutely cannot go to Purgatory, the universe will remain in its place, and my Will will have the triumph of bringing to Heaven the one who has lived in It on this earth of exile. Therefore, continue to live in my Will, and do not want to darken your mind and oppress yourself with things that do not belong to you."

Turmoil and new ordering. How the Kingdom of the Divine Will is decreed. Redemption is the army; the divine word is the generator.

I was thinking about the Divine Will and - oh, how many thoughts crowded my mind! Having carried me outside of myself, my always lovable Jesus had shown me the many chastisements with which He wants to strike the human generations; and I, shaken, thought to myself: 'How can the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat come if the earth abounds with evil, and divine justice is arming all the elements to destroy man and that which serves man? Besides, did this Kingdom not come when Jesus came upon earth with His visible presence? How can It come now? As things are now, it seems difficult to me.' And my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: "My daughter, everything you saw will serve to purify and prepare the human family. The turmoils will serve to reorder, and the destructions to build more beautiful things. If a collapsing building is not torn down, one cannot form a new and more beautiful one upon those very ruins. I will turn everything for the fulfillment of my Divine Will.

Besides, when I came upon earth, Our Divinity had not decreed the coming of the Kingdom of my Will, but of that of Redemption; and in spite of human ingratitude, It was accomplished. However, It has not yet covered all of Its way; many regions and peoples live as if I had not come, therefore it is necessary that It make Its way and walk everywhere, because Redemption is the preparatory way for the Kingdom of my Will. It is the army that goes forward in order to form the peoples to receive the regime, the life, the king of my Divine Will. And so, that which was not decreed for that time, We decree today, for the fulfillment of the Kingdom of Our Fiat. And when We decree something, all is done; in Us, it is enough to decree in order to accomplish what We want. This is why, that which seems difficult to you will all be made easy by Our Power. It will act like those impetuous winds after long days of thick and rainy clouds: the power of the wind dispels the clouds, takes rain away, and makes the good weather return and the sun embrace the earth. In the same way more than ruling wind Our Power will put to flight the darkness of the human will, and will make the Sun of my eternal Will reappear to embrace the creatures. And all the truths I manifest to you about It are nothing other than the confirmation of that which We have decreed.

Furthermore, if the Kingdom of my Divine Fiat and the time of Its nearing fulfillment had not been decreed before by the Divinity, there would have been no reason, nor necessity, nor purpose for choosing you, for keeping you sacrificed for so many years, and for entrusting to you, as to Its little daughter, the knowledges of It, Its admirable truths and Its secret and hidden sorrows. And not only this, but the Divinity has acted with you in a way which is all paternal and maternal in order to sow in you the seed of divine daughtership, and so that you would take Its interests to heart, more than if they were your own. This signifies the reality of what had been decreed by Us, to the point of choosing the subject, of using the means and of giving the teachings in order to descend down below to the human family, and establish in their midst that which had been decreed in Heaven. If the Kingdom of my Will had not been decreed, I would not have told you so much about It, nor would I have chosen you in a way all special for this purpose. My word would have been without life and without fruit, if it were not so, and without the generative and fecundating virtue - which cannot be. My word possesses the virtue of generating and of forming, through Its fecundity, Its offspring of endless lives. This happened in Redemption, because It had been decreed by Us in Heaven. A Virgin was created who was to be the Mother of the Eternal Word. If It had not been decreed, there would have been no reason, nor necessity to create and choose this Virgin, wholly unique and special; nor to give so many manifestations to the prophets, who detailed the life of the Word in His Humanity, describing His pains so vividly - as if they had Him present with them.

Therefore, when Our divine goodness deigns to choose and to manifests Itself, it is the sure sign and the beginning of the carrying out of Its works, which It keeps as decreed. Therefore, be attentive, and let your Jesus do everything, because neither power nor means are lacking for what I want, and for carrying out that which I have decreed.”

The children of the Divine Will shall not touch the earth. Bitternesses of Jesus. The electric wire.

According to my usual way, I was all immersed in that Divine Fiat which, more than Sun, shines in my poor soul. And my always lovable Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: "My daughter, my love toward the children of my Will will be such and so great, that I will not permit that they touch the earth. I will lay my steps under their feet so that, if they walk, they may touch my steps, not the earth - in such a way as to feel within them the life of my steps, which will communicate the life of the steps of my Divine Will to the steps of the children of my Will. If they work, they will feel the touch of my works which, lining up, will communicate to their works the virtue of my Will. If they speak, if they think, they will feel the life of my words and of my thoughts which, investing them, communicate to their minds and words the virtue of my Fiat. So, I Myself will be the carrier of the children of my Will; I will be very jealous that they may not touch anything, so that they may take part in nothing, and may feel my life flow continuously within them, forming the life of the eternal Will in theirs. Therefore, they will be the most beautiful works of my creative hands. Oh, how the work of Creation will be reflected in them! They will be the triumph of my Redemption - everything shall triumph in them. Then will I be able to say: 'My works are complete', and I will take rest in the midst of the children of my Supreme Fiat."

Then, after I wrote what is written in these past days, my mind was still molested by fears and doubts: ...It was not true that blessed Jesus had told me so many things, but rather, they were the fruit of my imagination. And I said to myself: 'If it was not Jesus that spoke to me, these will be writings without life, because only when Jesus speaks does life run within His word. And as I write, the life of the truths that Jesus has told me remains in them, in such a way that those who will read them will feel the communicative virtue of a life that is being infused in them, and will feel transformed into the very life of the truth which they will read. But if it is not Jesus, these will be writings without life, empty of light and of goods - so, why make the sacrifice of writing?'

Now, while I was thinking of this, my sweet Jesus came out from within my interior, and placing His head close to mine, with an air of sadness, told me: "My daughter, you embitter my feast. In fact, when I manifest a truth, I do it because I want to celebrate with the creature; but if she does not have full trust in Me and begins to doubt, the feast is interrupted and turns into bitterness. I act like one of two intimate friends: loving his friend very much, he wants to pour what his heart contains into the heart of his friend; and as he entrusts to him his secrets and his hidden joys, he makes him aware of everything he possesses. But the friend who is listening shows he does not believe him, and doubts what his friend is telling him. This person embitters his friend and turns his outpouring into bitterness; and so, grieving, he almost regrets his entrustment, and full of bitterness, he withdraws. On the other hand, if his friend believes him, not only does he not embitter him, but he takes part in his goods; together they celebrate the joys which his friend possesses, and their friendship is bound with double bonds of love. So I am - and even more than a friend. Loving so much the one whom I have chosen as my little secretary, I want to pour my Heart out and entrust to her my secrets, my joys, my hidden sorrows, my surprising truths, to celebrate together with her and to communicate to her divine lives for as many truths as I keep manifesting to her. If I see that she believes Me, I celebrate, and put out in feast the joys and the happiness that a divine life can possess, which possesses the infinity of all goods; and the soul is filled and celebrates together with Me. But if I see her hesitant, I remain embittered, and she remains empty of the life which I would like to entrust to her. You often repeat these scenes of distrust to me. So, be attentive, and do not want to turn my joys into bitternesses.”

I remained all confused, and did not know what to answer. After this, I continued my round in the Divine Will, and my sweet Jesus added: “My daughter, as the soul enters into my Will she puts her electric wire in It, which extends to any point at which one wants to form light. In fact, the light is not formed where the wire is put, but where it ends, concentrating the electricity of light into a light bulb. Now, as the human will enters into Mine, at the reflections of the Sun of my Fiat it converts into light, and forms its little light; and the electricity of my Will extends the wire of the human will and, more than light bulb, forms its little light at whatever point the soul would like to reach before God. And God, on seeing the little light of the human will, invests it, and with the electricity of His divine light He converts it into Sun, and forms the most beautiful ornament for His divine throne. It is so beautiful and delightful to see that the soul from earth, on entering my Divine Will, puts her electric wire for Heaven in It. And it extends so much as to reach the center of It, which is God, forming His ornament of light; and these lights convert into Sun.”

One who does the Divine Will enters the divine order. How pains cannot enter the Divinity. Example of the Sun.

I felt I was under the nightmare of an infinite weight. My poor mind moaned with suffocated moans, without the vent of being able to release them because of the privation of my sweet Jesus. And while I felt consumed by the harrowing pain of being deprived of my Life and my All, that very pain, making me intrepid, destroyed in me the life of the pain. So, while I felt immersed in pain, incapable of expressing myself, it was yet pain without pain, sorrow without sorrow; and in my bitterness I thought to myself. ‘Why am I not able to grieve? I feel an infinite pain in me, as infinite as the One who left me; yet, as I try to penetrate into a pain so just and holy - being deprived of my Jesus - so as to water my poor soul, the pain escapes me, and I remain without the life of the pain. My Jesus, have pity on me - do not leave in a state so unhappy.’

But while I was thinking of this, my lovable Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, one who lives in my Will enters the divine order. And since Our Divinity is incapable of suffering, nothing, even the slightest thing, can in the least shade Our perennial and infinite happiness; and as much as creatures offend Us, the pain, the offenses, remain outside of Us - never within Us. And if pain could enter into Us, it would immediately lose the nature of pain and would convert into happiness. In the same way, for one who lives in my Will pain cannot enter her soul; more so since, in feeling the light, the strength, the happiness of the nature of my Divine Will within her, she already feels in possession of that Jesus of whom she seems to be deprived. How can she grieve if she already possesses Him? Therefore, pain remains outside of the soul - that is, in the human nature - and while the soul feels all the spasm of my privation and the weight of an infinite pain, which is the privation of Me, because she is invested by the Divine Fiat she seems incapable of grieving. And so she feels pain without pain, sorrow without sorrow, because pain and sorrows cannot enter the sacrarium of my Will - they are forced to remain outside. The soul feels them, sees them, touches them, but they do not enter into her center. And if they did, my Will would lose Its happy nature in you, which cannot be.

It happens as to the Sun, which is incapable of darkness. All of the human strengths cannot make one atom of darkness enter into its light; however, darkness can extend outside of the light. But the Sun loses nothing, either its heat, or its admirable effects; it is always triumphant in its state of light - darkness can neither make it go down, nor take anything away from its light. However, if the Sun could grieve, It would feel bad at being surrounded by darkness, even though it can cause no harm to Its center, nor to Its happy state. But this is a pain that surpasses all other pains, because it is a pain of divine order. How many times my Humanity felt it! It felt crushed - all pains weighed upon Me, but inside of Me the Divine Will was untouchable by all of my pains, and possessed immense happinesses, beatitudes without end. It can be said that there were two natures in Me - one opposed to the other: one of happiness, the other of pains. Oh, how my human nature felt the pains more vividly than the immense joys of my divine nature!

This is why you are incapable of expressing yourself - because these are pains of divine order; and if before, when I would hide from you, you felt that everything would turn into pain within you, it was because the life of my Will, in Its wholeness, was missing in you. Therefore, those voids were filled with pain, and you would feel sensitivity to the pain which rendered you, not imperturbable and peaceful as today, but agitated, without that firmness which gives of the divine. And I would immediately run to sustain you, because I did not see all of the indelible characters of my Will. In fact, that which my Will places is never erased, and I, feeling confident about It, leave the task to my Divine Fiat.”

One who lives in the Divine Will has everything in her power; she is the new repeater of the acts of the Virgin, of the Saints and of Our Lord.

I was praying, and I felt I didn't know how to pray, to love and to thank Jesus. So I said to myself: 'How I would like to have in my power the love and the prayers of the Sovereign Lady and of all the Saints, to be able to love and pray to Jesus with Her love and with Her prayers, and with those of the whole of Heaven.' And my blessed Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: "My daughter, when the soul lives in my Divine Will, she has everything in her power, because my Will is the depository and the preserver of all that my Mama and all the Saints did. It is enough for her to want it, and to want to take what they did, that love runs to her, the prayers invest her, the virtues place themselves in order, waiting for the ones who have the honor of being called to give them the life of their acts, and to form their beautiful and refulgent crown. So, the Queen of Heaven feels Her love and Her prayers being repeated, the Saints their virtues, by the creature on earth, and - oh, how they enjoy seeing their acts being repeated once again! There is no greater glory that can be given to the celestial inhabitants than to repeat their love, their prayers, their virtues; and I feel once again as if my Mama were there loving Me and praying Me. Their echo resounds in you, and as you repeat it, you make your echo resound in Heaven, and all recognize their acts in your acts. Would you not feel honored if someone else repeated your acts and modeled his works on the model of yours? With what love would you not look at him?

If you knew how much I enjoy it when I hear you say: 'I want to unite myself with the thoughts of Jesus, with His words, with His works and steps, so as to position myself together with His thoughts, words, etc., over each thought, word, work and steps of creatures, in order to repeat along with Him, for all and for each one, that which Jesus did with His thoughts, words... and everything else He did. There is nothing You did which I do not want to do as well, so as to repeat the love and all the good that Jesus did.' I feel Myself upon earth, I feel my acts being repeated by you and I keep waiting for the repetition of my acts with so much love, that I Myself become actor and spectator in you, to enjoy them and take the glory of my own life. Therefore, the creature who lives and operates in my Will is recognized by the whole of Heaven as bearer of divine joys for all of Heaven; and keeping Heaven opened, she makes the celestial dew of graces, of light, of love descend upon earth over all creatures."

Divine messengers. The celestial circular. The acts done in the Divine Will form the ecstasy of the Creator. Necessity of the continuation of acts; how they form many hours to call for the dawn. The Virgin, Dawn of Redemption.

I was concerned because of a circular I received from the house of the Divine Will, so much wanted by venerable Father Di Francia, and so longed for by him, who did not have the consolation of seeing it completed and opened for the purpose wanted by him. And now, finally, according to what the circular said, the day of its completion, probably near, was arising. So I thought to myself: 'Is it really true that it is Will of God for me to go there? And will the members of this house be the true little daughters of the Divine Will? Will they be the beginning of the rising of the divine era of the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat upon earth?' But while I was thinking of these and other things, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior and told me: "My daughter, each saying, work and sacrifice done in my Will is to obtain Its divine Kingdom. They are many messengers sent to the celestial fatherland, which carry the divine circular and make it circulate through all the Saints, the Angels, the Sovereign Queen and the Creator Himself, giving to each one the task to prepare the different things that are needed for a Kingdom so holy, so that everything may be done with decorum, with decency and with divine nobility. So, all the inhabitants of the divine fatherland, with this celestial circular in their hands, all get down to work to fulfill their task, and prepare each thing entrusted to them.

So, the circular from earth echoes the celestial circular, and Heaven and earth move, occupying themselves only with the purpose of the Kingdom of my Divine Will - the earth, with all that is needed in the natural order; the celestial Court, with all that pertains to the supernatural order. It seems that Heaven and earth hold hands and compete with each other, to see who hastens more to prepare a Kingdom so holy. If you knew what value one act done in my Will contains; how it can move Heaven and earth; how it can open its way everywhere... It places itself in communication with everyone, and obtains everything that was not obtained through all other acts together, and for centuries. These acts are not one Sun, but as many Suns for as many acts as are performed, which form the refulgent and radiant day of the Kingdom of my Will upon earth. The acts done in It are spurs to the Supreme Being; they are magnets that attract It; they are sweet chains that bind It; they are raptures in which the creature has the power to form the ecstasy of her Creator who, enraptured as though in a sweet sleep by the ecstasy formed by His beloved creature, concedes that which He wanted to give from many centuries, but He had not found the one who, sending Him into raptures with His own divine power, would be the capturer of the Kingdom of His Divine Will. As the creature moves in my Fiat and forms her act, God feels enraptured; and in His sweet drowsiness, He feels disarmed and conquered, and the creature becomes the winner over her Creator.

With these preparations it happens as to a groom who, having to marry, prepares the house, the bedroom, and all the objects which are needed so that nothing may be lacking to him. Then he goes on with the attire for the wedding, and the invitations are sent out. All this makes the groom decide to carry out what he himself wanted. But if nothing is prepared, the groom takes time and never makes up his mind; and he himself feels embarrassed, and says to himself: 'I must marry, and I don't have a house, I don't have the bed in which to sleep, I don't have the attire to appear as a groom - what impression will I make?' And by necessity he gives up any thought of becoming a spouse. In the same way, these preparations, the acts done in my Will, the circulars are spurs which move my Will to come and reign in the midst of creatures; and my knowledges are like the groom who comes to marry the creatures with new bonds, just as they came out of Our creative hands."

Afterwards, I was feeling tired - exhausted from the privations of my sweet Jesus. I felt that my poor and little soul could take no more without the One in whom I had centered all my hopes and my whole life. Without Him, everything I did, which was taught to me by Jesus, seemed to be a game - prayers from the imagination, not of glory for God; and so I felt such listlessness in doing my round, that I could barely go on. But while, exhausted, I continued my round, I felt Jesus sustaining me and pushing me from behind, telling me: "My daughter, continue on - do not want to stop. You must know that everything has been determined by the Supreme Being - prayers, acts, pains, sighs, which the creature must do in order to obtain that which We Ourselves want to give her, and which she longs to receive. So, if these are not performed, the longed for Sun does not rise from Us in the midst of the long night of the human will, to form the day of the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat. This is why many times it happens that many acts and prayers are done, and nothing is obtained; but then, because of another little sigh and prayer, one obtains what he so much longed for. Was it perhaps the last act to obtain the deed of grace? Ah, no! It was the continuation of all the acts and prayers; and if one sees that he obtains through that last act, it is because that one was needed to complete the number established by Us.

So, if you want to receive the Kingdom of the Divine Will, do not stop, otherwise, since the long chain of acts that reaches the throne of God would be missing, you will not obtain that which you want, and which We want to give. The acts are like the hours that form the day or the night: each hour has its place; some hours form the evening, others the deep night, others the dawn, others the rising of the Sun, others the full day. And if it is the midnight hour, in vain would one expect to see the sunrise. It is necessary that at least the dawn come to court the nearing day, to be able to see the majesty of the Sun which dispels the darkness with its empire of light, and putting an end to the night, beads all of nature and makes it rise again in its light and heat, molding everything with its beneficial effects. Now, is it perhaps the dawn that has all the honor for making the Sun rise? Ah, no! The dawn has been the last hour, but if the other hours had not preceded it, the dawn could never have said: 'I am she who calls for the day'. Such are the acts and prayers to obtain the rising of the day of the Kingdom of my Divine Will. They are like many hours, and each one has its place of honor; and they hold hands in calling the radiant Sun of my Divine Will. The final act can be like the dawn; and if it is not done, the dawn will be missing, and it is useless to hope that its day of light may soon arise upon the earth, which, molding and warming everything, more than Sun, will make its beneficial effects and its divine regime felt - a regime of light of love and of sanctity.

The same happened in Redemption. Redemption did not come for many centuries, because the patriarchs and the prophets found themselves with their acts in the night hours, and longed for the day from afar. As the Queen Virgin came, She formed the dawn, and embracing all the night hours together, She made the day of the Word arise upon earth - and Redemption was accomplished. Therefore, do not stop; the series of acts is so necessary, that there is the risk that, if not all of them are performed, the desired good cannot be obtained."

God is order, and when He wants to give a good He establishes the divine order in the midst of creatures. How Our Lord, in forming the 'Our Father', placed Himself at the head of the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat.

I continue what is written above. As I was concerned about all that regards the Kingdom of the Will of God, my always lovable Jesus added: "My daughter, God is order, and when He wants to give a good to the creatures, He always establishes His divine order, and everything that is done in order to obtain such a great good begins from God, since He places Himself at the head of it to take on the commitment, and then orders the creature for the same purpose. I did this, Myself, to give the Redemption, and so that creatures might receive It; and I am doing this, Myself, to give the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat, and so that creatures may receive It. By forming, Myself, the 'Our Father', I placed Myself at the head of it and took on the commitment to give this Kingdom; and by teaching it to my apostles, I placed order in the creatures, so that they might obtain a good so great. So, the whole Church is praying - there is not one soul who belongs to Her that does not recite the 'Our Father'. And even though many recite it without interest in wanting and asking for a Kingdom so holy - that the Divine Will be done on earth as It is in Heaven - since the interest is in the One who taught it, when they recite it my interest is renewed, and I hear my own prayer asking: 'May your Kingdom come, so that your Will be done on earth as It is in Heaven'. And if the creature, in reciting the 'Our Father', had this interest of wanting and longing for my Kingdom, she would take part in my own interest, and her will would be fused in Mine for the same purpose. However, my Will and interest always run in each 'Our Father'.

See then, the divine order: all asking for one thing. Among these who ask there are some who want to do my Will, others who do It. All this is braided together, and they knock at the doors of my, Divine Will - they repeat the knocking, and some knock strongly, some slowly. However, there is always someone who knocks and asks that the doors be opened, so that my Will may descend to reign upon earth. And since everything is established and ordered by the Divinity, It waits for the one who must give the strongest knock which, forcing the doors with invincible strength - the very strength of my Divine Will will open wide the doors, and with her sweet chains of love, will bind the Eternal Will to make It come and reign in the midst of creatures. She will be like a bride who, bejeweling the groom with her loving chains, will carry him as though in triumph into the midst of creatures. And just as the Holy Virgin put an end to the night hours of the patriarchs and prophets, and formed the dawn to make the Sun of the Eternal Word rise, so will this one form the dawn to make rise the Sun of the Fiat Voluntas Tua on earth as It is in Heaven.

Do you think that my Will, which has made Itself known with so much love and has manifested so much interest in wanting to come and reign upon earth, pouring Its sorrow out with you, has done this without anyone praying to It? Ah, no! no! The knocks of my Church have been continuous, and I Myself was knocking in those knocks, but I used them to knock at the door of the Divine Fiat which, tired of hearing them knock at Its divine doors, has used you to be knocked more strongly; and opening the door to you, It made you share in Its knowledges. For as many truths as It made known to you, so many means has It given you to form the loving chains with which to be bound to come to reign upon earth. And all the times It calls you to live in Its Divine Will, making you know Its qualities, Its power, Its joys, Its immense riches, are as many pledges It gives you, with which It assures you of Its coming upon earth. In fact, there is this prerogative in Us: if We make a good of Ours, a truth, a knowledge that belongs to Us known, it is because We want to give it to the creature as gift. See then, how many gifts my Will has given you; how many knowledges about Itself It has made known to you! They are such and so many, that you yourself cannot count them.”

And I: ‘My beloved Jesus, who knows when this Kingdom will come!’ And He: “My daughter, in order for Redemption to come, it took four thousand years, because the people that prayed and longed for the future Redeemer was smaller, of limited number. But those which belong to my Church are more peoples and - oh, how much greater in number than that one! herefore, the number will shorten the time; more so, since religion is making its way everywhere, and this is nothing but the preparation of the Kingdom of my Divine Will.”

The Creation, divine army; the Fiat, celestial flag. Example of the child and of the rich father. How Jesus wants entire peoples to pray; who these peoples are.

I was doing my round in the Divine Fiat, gathering the whole Creation together, to bring It before the Supreme Majesty as the most beautiful homage, the most profound adoration and the most intense and extensive love for the One who had created It. It seemed to me that there was nothing more beautiful I could bring to my Creator than the magnificence and the continuous prodigy of His own works. Then, while I was doing this, my beloved Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, no homage is more beautiful and worthy of Our adorable Majesty than offering to Us Our own works. As you go around in the Creation, you gather Our divine army to send it to Us as Our glory and as the fierce army which asks with insistence and violence for the Kingdom of the Divine Will. Therefore, as you go around, you place the Divine Fiat in front of each created thing, as a noble and divine flag, and with their tacit speech they ask with divine strength for the Kingdom of my Will upon earth. Oh, how beautiful it is to see the whole Creation bannered all over with the Divine Fiat! From the smallest to the greatest thing, they all possess the flag of the Fiat placed by my little daughter. They really look like a formidable army; and waving their noble flag with authority, they ask with repeated petitions for what they possess - the Kingdom of my Will upon earth.”

Then, I continued my round, and not only in all of Creation, but also in all of the acts done by Adam in his state of innocence, in those done by the Queen Virgin, as well as in those done by Our Lord. I placed my Divine Fiat in them, sending as though an ordered army around the Divinity, which would ask for Its Kingdom; and Jesus added: “My daughter, Heaven and earth are praying. All of my acts, those of the Sovereign Queen as well as those of innocent Adam which were all invested by my Divine Fiat - they all have a voice which, resounding among them as a most sweet and strong echo, asks: 'Your Kingdom come!' My daughter, in creating man, I acted like a most rich father who, after his child is delivered to the light, would want to amuse himself with his little one by giving him all of his riches; and he says to him, continuously: 'Son, take whatever you want and as much as you want.' The little one fills his pockets and his little hands, but so much that, unable to contain them, he drops them to the ground; and the father, inciting him, says: 'Is this all you have taken? Come, take some more - take everything.' The child sees himself hampered; bravely he returns to take, but his capacity can take nothing else, and the father smiles and amuses himself with his little one. So I did with man: I gave him all of my riches as gift and he, like a little child, was incapable of taking them all; and amusing him, I would say to him: 'Take - take, my son. Take much - take everything if you can; the more you take, the more I will enjoy and make feast.'

Am I not doing this with you, to the point of wanting to give you the Kingdom of my Divine Will? This is why I make you go around in the whole Creation, in the works of my Redemption, nor do I deprive you of the dominions of the Sovereign Queen of Heaven. And while you go around through Our works and dominions, I keep whispering to your ear: 'Take whatever you want, my little daughter.' And to give you the right to it, I have you mark all of Our works and Our dominions with your 'I love You'. In this 'I love you' of yours which repeats its refrain, 'give me your Divine Fiat, it seems that 'Fiat' and 'I love you' are braided together, and I know that what you want and ask for is the greatest thing - a Divine Kingdom in which, not only you, but all those who will be in this Kingdom, may all be kings and queens.

If you knew what you are asking Me for...! Heaven and earth are astonished, and all are watching the braveness of your request and my goodness, all paternal, which longs for you and smiles at you with excessive love, to give you more confidence in asking for It with more braveness. In fact, my daughter, since the Kingdom I must give is so great, I want an entire people to ask Me for It, and the first people is the whole Creation; and by going around in the midst of It, you move everyone to ask for the coming of the Kingdom of my Divine Will upon earth. The second people are all of my works and those of my Celestial Mama which were done on earth. These peoples are divine and interminable peoples. Then there is the people of the low earth, which is formed of those who recite the 'Our Father', and of the few who somehow know my Divine Will and ask that It come to reign upon earth. When entire peoples pray Me, having at the head of them the one to whom a mission so great has been entrusted, that which We want to give and which We are asked for with insistence is conceded more easily. Does this not happen in the low world? If a king or the leader of a country must be elected, there are those who incite the people to cry out: 'We want such and such as king, or such as such the leader of our country.' If some want a war, they make the, people cry out: 'We want the war!' There is not one important thing that is done in a kingdom, for which some do not resort to the people, to make it cry out and even raise a tumult, so as to give themselves a reason and say: 'It is the people that wants it.' And many times, while the people says it wants something, it does not know what it wants, nor the good or sad consequences that will come. If they do this in the low world, much more can I do it. When I must give important things, universal goods, I want entire peoples to ask Me for them; and you must form these peoples - first, by making all the knowledges about my Divine Fiat known; second, by going around everywhere, moving Heaven and earth to ask for the Kingdom of my Divine Will."

The truths are stairs through which to ascend to God. Isolation. The Divine Will, revealer of man. Example of the sleeping child.

I continue my abandonment in the Divine Will, and while going around in It my poor mind carried itself into Eden, in the act in which God was forming the nature of man, before infusing the soul in him. I was thinking of the great love with which the Supreme Creator formed the human body; of the fact that before Adam existed, in forming his body, He loved him with the love of a father who loves his newborn; and that, since the life of the soul of Adam did not exist yet, Adam did not requite Him with his love. So, the divine love remained isolated, without the company of the love of Its creature. It was not fair that His love remain without the return of the little love of the one whom He so much loved; so I thought to myself: 'The Divine Will is eternal, and whatever is done in It is always in act, nor does it ever lose the present act. Therefore, in the Fiat I want to anticipate the love of Adam and amuse my Creator with my love. In the act in which He formed the human body I want to echo His love, to say to Him: "In your Will I have loved you always, even before all things existed".'

Then, while I was thinking of these and other things, my always lovable Jesus clasped me tightly in His arms, telling me: "My daughter, how happy I am that I manifested to you so many truths about my Divine Will. All of my truths which I have told you about It are stairs - for you, in order to ascend in the acts of my eternal Will and find Our first act in act, which has the virtue of being always present, and to give Us the joy and the happiness of the return of your love; for Us, in order to descend toward you, to look for the company of the one for whom We operated, and whom We loved so much. How sweet is the company of the loved one - it is full of unforgettable joys. And how bitter is isolation - not enjoying the presence of the one whom one so much longs for, whom one loves, and for whom one operates. While forming the nature of man, before infusing life in him, We acted like a father or a mother when their child is sleeping. Taken by tenderness, by irresistible love, they long for their sleeping child, kiss him and press him to their bosom; and the child, because he is sleeping, knows nothing about it. If you knew, my daughter, how many kisses, how many loving squeezes We gave to the human nature before giving it life... And it was in the ardor of Our love that, breathing over him, We gave him life by giving him the soul, and breath, heartbeat and warmth to his body. So, the breathing you feel is Ours; the heartbeat that beats in your heart is Ours; the warmth that you feel is the touch of Our creative hands which, in touching you, infused warmth in you. And as you breathe, We feel Our breath breathing in you; as your heart palpitates, We feel Our heartbeat of eternal life beating in you, and as you feel the warmth, it is Our love that circulates in you and continues its creative and preserving work, warming you...

You must know, my daughter, that Our Will is the revealer of the work of Creation. It alone can reveal all the secrets of love hidden in Creation. Adam did not know everything - how many stratagems and loving finesses We used in creating him, soul and body... We acted like a father who does not tell everything at once to his little child, but little by little, as the child keeps growing, he wants to give him surprises, telling him how much he loves him, how much he has done for him, how many loving finesses, hidden kisses... when the child, as a little one, was incapable of comprehending what the father gave him and could give him. So, the father gives him now a surprise, now another, and this serves to maintain the life of love between father and son, and to increase their joy and happiness at each surprise. What would the sorrow of this father not be, who, while his child was sleeping, has covered him with kisses, has pressed him to his heart, and his loving tenderness was so intense and so great that he reached the point of wetting the face of his sleeping child with tender tears - if in waking up, the child does not smile at his father, does not throw his arms around his neck to kiss him; and if he looks at him, it is with coldness? What sorrow for this poor father! All the surprises he had prepared to manifest to his child, He closes in his heart, with the sorrow of not being able to share his happiness, his purest joys; to the point of not being able to tell him how much he has loved him and loves him.

This is what happened to Us, my daughter. Our more than paternal goodness prepared many new surprises for Our beloved child, and Our Divine Will took on the commitment to be the revealer of them for him. As he withdrew from It Adam lost the revealer, and this is why it is not known how much We loved him, and all that We did for him in creating him. Therefore, We feel the irresistible yearning that Our Fiat come to reign on earth as It does in Heaven, so that, after so many years of silence and of secrets, It may give vent to Its flames and return to act as the revealer of Creation, because little is known of all that We did in creating man. How many surprises It has to say, how many joys and happinesses to communicate! Don't you yourself hear how many things It tells you about that which regards my Divine Will, as well as about the surprising love of the whole Creation and, in a special way, of the Creation of man? My Will is the book of Creation, therefore Its reigning in the midst of creatures is necessary in order to know how to read it and to be able to read it. The human will keeps poor man as though asleep; he sleeps, and the sleep prevents him from feeling and seeing all the caresses and finesses of love that His Celestial Father gives him, as well as the surprises He wants to make known to him. His sleep prevents him from receiving the joys, the happiness, which His Creator wants to give him, and from comprehending the sublime state of his creation.

Poor man, asleep to true good, and deaf to listening to my Will which is his revealer, his noble history, his origin, his marvelous height and beauty. And if he is awake, he listens either to sin, to his passions, or to things which do not have an eternal origin. He acts just like that sleeping child who, if he wakes up, cries, makes fusses and torments the poor father, who almost regrets having such a nervous child. This is why my Divine Will is revealing so many of Its knowledges - to wake man up from his long sleep, so that, waking up in my Fiat, he may lose the sleep of the human will, he may reacquire what he lost, and may feel the kisses, the love, the loving squeezes to the bosom of His Creator. So, each knowledge that regards my Divine Will is a call, it is a voice that I emit, it is a cry that I send, to wake man up from the sleep of the human will."

How God, in creating man, infused three Suns in him. Ardor of His Love. Example of the Sun.

My flight, in going around in the acts of the Divine Will, continues always; and as I reach Eden it seems to me that Jesus wants to say something. The memory, the place in which He created man, His creating Will, His displaying Love, the prerogatives, the beauty with which He created man, the goods, the grace with which He enriched him... are the sweetest and dearest memories for His paternal Heart, which make Him drown with love. And to give vent to His flames, He wants to speak about what He did in creating him; so much so that, while I am writing, I feel His Heart beating so very strongly. Starting with joy, He throws His arms around my neck, and kissing me with such a great emphasis of affection, He has enclosed Himself in my heart, as though wounded by the ardor of that love which He had in Creation; and assuming an attitude of feast mixed with sorrow, He wants to be the spectator of what I am about to write.

So, Jesus told me: "My daughter, how many prodigies of Ours concurred in creating man! With Our breath, the soul was infused in him, and in the soul Our paternal goodness infused three Suns, by which We formed in it the perennial and refulgent day - not subject to any night. These three Suns were formed by the Power of the Father, by the Wisdom of the Son, by the Love of the Holy Spirit. While being formed in the soul, these three Suns remained in communication with the Three Divine Persons, in such a way that man possessed the way through which to ascend to Us, and We possessed the way through which to descend in him. These three Suns are the three powers: intellect, memory and will. While being distinct among them, they hold hands and arrive at forming one single power, symbol of Our adorable Trinity, since while being three distinct Persons, We form one single Power, one single Intellect, and one single Will. Our Love in creating man was so great that It felt content only when We communicated Our Likeness to him. These three Suns were placed in the depth of the human soul, just like the Sun in the depth of the vault of the heavens, which keeps the earth in feast with its light, and gives life to all plants with its admirable effects, giving to each one the flavor, the sweetness, the color and the substance that befits it. In its tacit silence, the Sun guides the earth, instructs everyone - not with words, but with facts, and with such eloquence that no one else can reach it; and with its penetrating light it becomes life of everything that the earth produces.

Look: there is only one Sun for the entire earth, but for the soul Our Love was not content with one alone. And finding Ourselves in the ardor of Our love for giving and giving..., We formed three Suns, by which all the human acts were to be directed, animated and receive life. What order, what harmony We placed in Our beloved and dear son!

Now, my daughter, these three Suns exist in man, but they find themselves in the same condition of the Sun that shines in the heavens when it is surrounded by thick clouds and cannot fill the earth with the vividness of its light. Even though the communications are neither interrupted nor broken by the clouds, the earth receives its effects with difficulty, and does not enjoy all the good which the Sun could do to it. So, not receiving all the life of the Sun, it is as though ill, its fruits are insipid and unripe, and many plants are without fruits. Therefore the earth is melancholic, without feast, because the clouds have prevented it from receiving all the fullness of the light of the Sun, so as to be crowned with glory and honor. Such is the condition of man: all things are in place, between Us and him nothing is broken or interrupted, but the human will has formed thick clouds, and therefore one sees man without the glory, the order and the harmony of his creation. His works are without fruits, rotten and without beauty; his steps are unsteady. One can say that he is the poor ill one, because he does not let himself be directed by the three Suns which he possesses within his soul. Therefore, in coming to reign, the first thing that my Will will knock down will be the human volition. Blowing, It will dispel the clouds, and man will let himself be directed by the three Suns he has in the depth of his soul, and which possess Our communication; and immediately He will rise to Our origin, and everything will be feast and glory for Us and for him."

How God feels the joys of the first times of Creation being renewed. The enchantment that the Divine Will will produce for the human will, example of the Sun. When and where the marriage with humanity was done, and when it will be renewed again.

I continue my round in the acts which the Divine Fiat did in Creation, and which It preserves in Its hand up to now, with such power and wisdom as if in each act It repeated the act already done, while it is nothing other than the continuation of one single act. Now, while my mind was carrying itself into Eden, my sweet Jesus told me: "My daughter, when you do your round in my Will in order to trace all of Its acts, to court them, love them and make them one with yours, and you arrive at Eden, I feel the joys, the feasts, the happiness that Our Divinity felt in Creation being repeated. Oh, how seeing you flow in the Sun, in the wind, in the sea, in the heavens, reminds Us vividly of the rapid flights of the first creature that came out of Our creative hands! In fact, since he was in the unity of Our Will, of all Our acts done in Creation for love of him he would make one single act, and in his single act he would bring Us all of Our acts as though in triumph. So, Adam would bring to Us all the joys of all the things which We had as though scattered, ordered and harmonized in the whole universe. Oh, how happy We would feel in seeing him so rich, strong, powerful, of enchanting beauty, coming before Us, endowed with all of Our works, and bringing them to Us to make Us happy and to glorify Us, and to be happy together with Us! So, in seeing you continue his flights and go around everywhere, We see how beautiful is the life of the creature in Our Will. It seems she wants to enter all of Our acts; she wants to take everything - but to do what? To give Us everything and to make Us happy, and We give her everything in return, saying to her: 'These are your things - for you We have created them and released them from Ourselves.' In seeing this, We feel the desire to restore the creation of man and to give the Kingdom of Our Will."

Then, with a more tender emphasis, He added: "My daughter, Power I do not lack - neither do I lack Will; therefore it is I who must lift again decayed man and restore him, because the human will rendered the work of Our creative hands a wreck."

Then, moved to tears and sorrowful for poor man, He kept silent; and I thought to myself: 'How can we return to the original state of Creation since the human will has made man fall into an abyss of miseries, almost deforming him from the way in which he was created? And my sweet Jesus added: "My daughter, my Will can do anything. Just as It made man from nothing, so It can draw the new man from his miseries - and without changing method from the way in which we created him. Leaving him his free will, We will use another loving device: the light of Our Will will unleash Its most refulgent rays more powerfully; It will draw near him, in such a way as to look at his human will face to face, which will receive the enchantment of a penetrating light that, while dazzling it, draws it sweetly to Itself. And the human will, attracted by a light so radiant and of rare beauty, will have the desire to see what is so beautiful in this light. In looking, it will undergo the enchantment, it will feel happy and will love - not being forced, but spontaneously - to live in Our Will. Does the Sun not have this virtue - that if one wants to stare at it, the pupil of the human eye remains dazzled within its light; and if it tries to look, it will see nothing but light, as the power of the light prevents the pupil from looking at the things around? And if man is forced to lower his eyes to be freed of the light, it is because the excessive light bothers him and he does not feel happy; but if he felt happy, he would not easily withdraw his pupils from within the light of the Sun. On the other hand, the light of my Will will not bother the pupils of the soul; on the contrary, she will have the good of seeing the very human acts converted into light, and will yearn for this light to unleash its rays more powerfully so as to see her acts with the enchantment and the beauty of this divine light. My Will has the power to solve the problem of man, but It must use a more excessive act of greater magnanimity of Our Supreme Fiat; therefore, you, pray and plead for a cause so holy on behalf of poor creatures.”

After this, since it was the Feast of Corpus Domini, I was thinking to myself that this day was the feast of the marriage which blessed Jesus did with souls in the Most Holy Sacrament of love. And my beloved Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, the true marriage with humanity was done in Creation. Nothing was lacking either to the soul or to the body; everything was done with royal sumptuousness. An immense palace was prepared for the human nature, such that no king or emperor can have one similar to it, which is the whole Universe: a starry heaven and its vault, a Sun which would never extinguish its light; flourishing gardens in which the happy couple, God and man, was to stroll, amuse itself and maintain the continuous, uninterrupted feast of our marriage; and garments, woven not with matter, but formed of purest light by Our power, as befitted royal persons... Everything was beauty in man, soul and body, because the One who prepared the marriage and formed it was of unreachable beauty. So, from the external sumptuousness of the so many enchanting beauties present in the whole of Creation, you can imagine the interior seas of sanctity, of beauty, of light, of science, etc., which the interior of man possessed. All the acts of man, interior and external, were as many musical keys which formed the most beautiful melodies, sweet, melodious, harmonious, that maintained the joy of the marriage. And each additional act that he would dispose himself to do, was a new little sonata that he would prepare, to call his spouse to delight with him.

My Divine Will which dominated humanity, brought him the new continuous act and the likeness to the One who had created him and married him. But in such a great feast man broke the strongest bond, in which lay the whole validity of our marriage and through which it had been in force: he withdrew from Our Will. Because of this, the marriage was broken, and since all the rights were lost, only the memory of it was left, but the substance, the life, the effects no longer existed. Now, the Sacrament of the Eucharist in which my Love overabounded in all possible imaginable ways, cannot be called either the first or the true marriage of Creation, for I do nothing but continue what I did when I was on earth. According to the needs of souls, with some I make Myself a compassionate doctor in order to heal them, with some a teacher to instruct them, with some a father to forgive them, with some light to give them sight. I give strength to the weak, courage to the timid, peace to the restless - in sum, I continue my redemptive life and virtue; however, all these miseries exclude the true marriage. No young man marries a young woman who is ill - at most, he waits for her to recover; or a young woman who is weak and who offends him very often. And if the groom is a king and loves her, at most he waits for the bride to get well, to love him, and for her condition to become somehow satisfactory, and not so inferior to his. Now, the condition in which poor humanity finds itself is still that of a poor ill one, and I am waiting for my Will to be known and to reign in the midst of creatures, for It will give them true health, royal garments, and a beauty worthy of Me. Then will I form again the true and original marriage.”

Example of a spouse who separates in court, as God did from the beginning of the fall of man. The new engagement for the marriage was done on the Cross. The fulfillment of the Divine Will.

I was thinking about what is written above, and blessed Jesus continued telling me: “My daughter, it is really true that the Supreme Being established Its marriage with humanity at the beginning of Creation; and it happened as when a groom is induced to separate in court by his wicked bride. But in spite of this, the groom keeps an affection in his heart, and he thinks and yearns that, if his chosen one should change, who knows... he may once again be able to unite and bind himself with her with the bond of marriage. So, he often lets news reach her ear through messengers that he loves her.

So God did: even though the marriage with humanity was unbound in the divine court, He kept an affection for her and, though far away, he longed for the new bond of marriage with humanity; so much so, that He did not destroy the palace which He had formed with so much sumptuousness and magnificence, nor did He take away from her the good of the Sun that formed the day, but He left everything, so that the one who had offended Him might make use of it. Even more, He maintained the correspondence by choosing, from the beginning of the world, now one of the good, now another, who were like messengers. And like many postmen, some brought little letters, some telegrams, some phone calls from Heaven in which it was announced that the far away spouse had not forgotten her, that he loved her and that he wanted the return of the ungrateful spouse.

So, in the Old Testament, the more I multiplied the good, the patriarchs and the prophets, the more pressing were the invitations and the mail that ran between Heaven and earth, with the news sent by God that He desired the new union. This is so true that, unable to contain the ardor of His love any longer, and since decayed humanity was not yet disposed, He made an exception, espousing the Virgin Queen and the humanity of the Word with bond of true marriage, so that, by virtue of them, decayed humanity might be lifted up again and He might form His marriage with the entire humanity. Then, my Humanity formed the new engagement with her on the Cross, and everything I did and suffered, up to dying on the Cross, were all preparations to carry out the desired marriage in the Kingdom of my Divine Will. Now, after the engagement, there are pledges and gifts left to be exchanged, and these are the knowledges about my Divine Fiat. Through them, humanity is given back the great gift which man rejected in Eden the eternal, infinite and interminable gift of my Will. This gift will attract so much decayed humanity, that she will give Us the return of the gift of her poor will, which will be the confirmation and the seal of the union of the spouses, after such a long chain of correspondence, of faithfulness on the part of God, and of inconstancy, ingratitude and coldness on the part of creatures.

My daughter, man degraded himself and lost all goods because he went out of my Divine Will. In order to ennoble himself, to reacquire everything and receive the rehabilitation of the marriage with his Creator, he must enter once again the Divine Fiat from which he came. There are no ways in the middle; not even my Redemption is enough to make man return to the beginning of the happy era of his creation. Redemption is means, way, light, help - but not the end. The end is my Will, because my Will was the beginning, and by justice, one who is the beginning must also be the end. Therefore, humanity must be enclosed in my Divine Will to be given back her noble origin, her happiness, and to put the marriage with her Creator in force once again. This is why the great good that my Redemption did to man is not enough for Our Love, but It yearns for more. True Love is never content; only then is It content, when It can say: 'I have nothing else to give him.' And knowing that man can return to be happy, victorious and glorious in the noble state in which he was created by God - and this, by means of my Will reigning in their midst - this is why all the divine yearnings, the sighs, the manifestations are directed toward making Our Will known to make It reign, so as to be able to say to Our Love: 'Calm Yourself, for Our beloved child has reached his destiny. He is now in possession of Our inheritance that was given to him in Creation, which is Our Fiat! And while he possesses what is Ours we possess him. Therefore the marriage is established once again, the spouses have returned to their place of honor; there is nothing left but to celebrate and enjoy a good so great, after such a long sorrow'."

God is one single act. Example of the Sun. One who lives in the Divine Will lives in that single act and feels all of its effects. Value of that which is done in the Divine Will. How Jesus, who had always been with His Mother, moved away when He carried out His public life. Application to the soul.

My abandonment in the Supreme Fiat and my flight in all of Its acts are continuous. While going around in the Creation, I was thinking of the order and harmony of all created things, and of the multiplicity of the acts of the eternal Volition in the whole universe. But while I was thinking of this, my always lovable Jesus told me: "My daughter, God is one single act, and if many acts can be seen in Creation, they are nothing but the effects of the one act of God. It happens as to the Sun: the Sun is one, Its light is one, but as Its light touches the earth and rapidly extends over it, the effects of It are innumerable. One can say that It produces a distinct effect over each thing that It touches - distinct in the color, in the sweetness and in the substance It infuses in each thing It touches with Its hands of light. It seems that the Sun creates many subsequent acts, one more beautiful than the other, but it is not true they are nothing but the effects of Its one act of light. In fact, the power of one single act has the virtue of producing many effects, as if they were many subsequent and distinct acts, as indeed they are. So, all that you see in the whole universe are nothing but the effects of the one single act of God; and because it is one single act, it possesses the virtue of order and harmony in all of the effects it produces.

The same happens to the soul who lives in my Divine Will. By living in the one act of God, she feels all the effects of that single act of God in all of her acts; she feels within her the order, the harmony, the beauty, the strength of the one divine act which, more than light, produces so many effects that she feels heavens, suns, seas, flowery fields and everything that is good in Heaven and on earth being produced in her acts. What can one who lives in my Will not enclose of great and of good? Everything. She is the true Sun which, in whatever It does or touches, produces different shades of beauty, of sweetness, of goodness and of multiple effects, because all of Its acts hang on the one act of the One who created It."

After this, I was thinking of the great good that what is done in the Divine Will encloses, and my sweet Jesus added: "My daughter, that which is done in my Divine Will encloses an incalculable value. It is as if the soul had two scale pans in her hands, placing in each pan an object of equal weight and of equal value. One is the weight of these objects, one the value, one the price that she can collect. Now, in one pan she places God and His Will; in the others she places the soul and her acts done in It. As the two pans rise, they remain perfectly balanced, and they both elevate to the same level, because, since the Will of God and that of the soul are one, wherever It operates, whether in God or in the creature, one is the value. My Will alone elevates the soul to the likeness of her Creator; her works done in It place her in the order of the divine works.”

After this, I was feeling oppressed and I thought to myself: ‘What a change! Before, my sweet Jesus would always come; it seemed that He could not be without me; and now... days and days, and He does not hasten at all, nor does He run toward me as He used to do before, when He sees that I cannot take any more. It seems that when He comes, it is to say things that regard His Fiat; it seems that this alone interests Him - my extreme need of Him no longer breaks through to Him.’ Now, while I was thinking of this and of other things, He moved in my interior and told me: “My daughter, I am behaving with you as I did with my Mama. During my life We always lived together, except for the three days when I was lost, and besides, wherever the Mother was, there was the Son, and wherever the Son was, there was the Mother - We were inseparable. Then, when the fulfillment of Redemption came and I had to carry out my public life, We separated, even though the one Will that animated Us kept Us always’s identified with each other. However, it is certain that our persons were far from each other - one was in one place, one in another. But since true love does not know how to be separated for too long from the beloved nor can it be, because they feel the irresistible need to rest in each other and to confide to each other their secrets, the outcome of their undertakings and their sorrows, this is why, now I would make my little escapes to see Her again, now the Queen Mother would leave Her nest to see again Her Son who wounded Her from afar; and again, We would separate to give course to the work of Redemption.

So I am doing with you: before, I used to be always with you, as indeed I am still now, but since we must work for the Kingdom of my Divine Will and you must fling yourself into Its acts, the work seems to move us away from each other. And while you work, I work in preparing more work for you to do, by making you know more things about my Fiat and that which you must follow in It. But I come back often to receive and to give you rest. Therefore, do not be surprised; this is required by the great work of the Fiat Voluntas Tua on earth as It is in Heaven. So, trust Me and do not fear.”

Everything that is done in the Fiat acquires the continuous unceasing act. Example of the Sun. The purpose of Jesus going into the desert. The pains of isolation.

I was praying, and feeling my extreme misery I prayed my Celestial Mama to give me Her love to make up for my meager love. But while I was doing this, my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, my Mama did Her first love and Her first act in the Divine Will, and since it was done in It, it possesses continuity as if it were always in act, loving and operating. Her love never ends; Her works are the continuous repeaters, in such a way that whoever wants to take Her love finds it always in act, while it is the effect of the first love that is repeated, and repeated always.

Such is one who operates in my Will. Her acts acquire the continuity - they are always repeated without ever ceasing. They are the true Sun which, from the moment It was created by God, has given Its first act of light - but so great, as to fill Heaven and earth with one single act. And It repeats this act always, without ever ceasing, in such a way that all can take Its act of light, though one was the act that constituted itself act of perennial light for all. If the Sun could repeat Its act of light, one would see as many Suns for as many acts as It could repeat; but since the act of light that It did is one, one sees only one Sun and no more. But what the Sun did not do the Sovereign Queen did, and one who operates in my Will does also: as many Suns for as many acts, and these Suns are fused together, though distinct among them in beauty, in light, in the glory that they give to their Creator, and in the universal good that they make descend upon all creatures. These acts have a divine power; by virtue of these acts the Most Holy Virgin could obtain the coming of the Word upon earth, and by virtue of these acts my Kingdom will come upon earth. One act repeated incessantly in my Fiat has a conquering, enrapturing and enchanting virtue before Our Divinity. That continuous repetition in the Divine Volition is the strength of the soul, the invincible weapon that debilitates her Creator and conquers Him with weapons of love, and He feels honored to let Himself be conquered by the creature.”

After this, I continued my round in the Divine Fiat, and in following my Jesus on the way to the desert, I thought to myself: ‘Why did Jesus take the way of the desert? There were no souls to be converted there, but profound solitude, while it was souls that He was looking for.’ But while I was thinking of this, my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, company breaks the pain and diminishes it, while isolation concentrates it, doubles it and makes it more harsh. I wanted to go into the desert to feel in my Humanity all the harshness of the isolation that my Divine Will had suffered for many centuries on the part of creatures. My Humanity had to rise to the divine order and descend into the human order to be able to enclose the pains of both one and the other, and taking upon Myself entirely the painful part that divided man and God, have men cling once again to the embrace and to the kiss of their Creator. But the purpose of my going into the desert was not only this. You must know that Our adorable Majesty, in forming the Creation, established that every place was to be populated by inhabitants, and that the earth was to be extremely fertile and rich with many plants, in such a way that all would have in abundance. As man sinned, he attracted the indignation of divine justice, and the earth remained deserted, infertile, and in many places depopulated - image of those sterile families in which there is no laughter, no feast, no harmony, because they are without children, and so there is no one who breaks the monotony of the two spouses and the nightmare of isolation weighs on their hearts leading them to sadness. Such was the human family. On the other hand, where there are children, there is always something to do, something to say, and occasions to celebrate. Look at the sky - how populated with stars it is; the earth was to be the echo of the sky, crammed with inhabitants, and it was to produce so much and to render everyone rich and happy.

As man withdrew from my Will, his lot changed; and I wanted to go into the desert in order to call back the blessings of my Celestial Father and, by calling my Will to reign, restore the earth, populate it everywhere and fecundate it, in such a way that the earth will produce more seeds, and more beautiful ones, such as to increase it a hundredfold, rendering it more fecund and of radiant beauty. How many great things will do the Kingdom of my Divine Fiat! So much so, that all the elements are all in waiting the Sun, the wind, the sea, the earth and the whole Creation - to deliver from their womb all the goods and effects which they contain. In fact, since the Divine Will that dominates them does not reign in the midst of creatures, they do not put out all the goods which they enclose within them, giving them only what they have to as alms, and as to servants. So, the earth has not produced all the seeds; the Sun, not finding all the seeds, does not produce all the effects and goods It contains; and so with all the rest. This is why all await the Kingdom of the Fiat - to show creatures how rich they are, and how many admirable things the Creator has placed in them for love of the ones who were to be the children of His Will.”

June 29, 1928

The ‘I love You’ forms the heat, the Divine Will the light, in order to form the Sun. The long progeny formed by one who lives in the Fiat. Its three Kingdoms, three Suns and three crowns. How Faith will no longer be shaded.

I was doing my usual acts in the Divine Fiat, and for each created thing I repeated my long singsong of my ‘I love You’; but while doing this, I thought to myself: ‘I have become so used to it, that it seems I cannot do without saying, “I love You, I love You...”.’ Now, at that moment, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior, telling me: “My daughter, this continuous ‘I love You’ of yours is nothing other than the continuity of the first ‘I love You’ said in my Divine Will which, pronounced one time, has the virtue of repeating, with facts, that which was said once. The ‘I love You’ forms the heat, and my Divine Will forms the light which, invading the ‘I love You’, forms the Sun, one more radiant than the other. How beautiful is the life of the soul in my Divine Will! She acquires a long progeny - almost interminable. In fact, if she thinks, she delivers her thoughts within the divine mind, forming the long generation of her children in the mind of her Celestial Father; if she speaks, she delivers her words within the word of God, forming the long generation of the children of her word; if she operates, if she walks, if she palpitates, she delivers her works within the hands of her Creator, her steps within the divine feet, her heartbeats within the paternal Heart, forming the long generation of the children of her works, of her steps and of her heartbeats. What an endless generation one who lives in my Will forms for her Creator! She is the populator and the fecund mother that keeps the One who created Her always in feast, because each child is a feast that God feels being delivered within His womb by one who lives in His Will.”

And, all moved, He repeated: “How beautiful she is! How beautiful is the newborn of my Will! In her littleness she would want to engage in a competition with her Creator; she would want to give Him the occasion always to smile, and with childlike surprises capture His gaze, always fixed upon her, to show Him the long generation of her children.”

As though fainting with love, He kept silent; but a little later He added: “My daughter, the creature has three kingdoms in her soul, which are her three powers. These can be called the capitals of these three kingdoms, while all the rest of the creature - words, eyes, works, steps... - are cities, villages, rivers, seas and territories that form these kingdoms. The heart itself cannot be called a capital, but the most important city of communication for the others. Now, in a war, if the capital is conquered, the war ends, because all other cities are defeated along with the capital. If my Will arrives at taking over the three capitals of these kingdoms, raising Its throne in them, all of the other cities will be conquered and dominated by the Supreme Fiat. How much glory these kingdoms will acquire! They will be the happiest the richest and most populated ones because the One who rules them and dominates them is the invincible, the strong, the powerful One. No one will dare to molest and disturb their order; everything will be peace, joy and perennial feast. So, those who live in my Divine Fiat will possess three Suns, one more beautiful than the other - three peaceful kingdoms, enriched with all the joys, harmonies and happinesses; and they will be crowned with three crowns. But do you know who will crown the forehead of the children of my Will? The Sacrosanct Trinity. Enraptured by their likeness to Us which We infused in them in creating them, seeing that Our Fiat has raised them and formed them as We wanted, and wounded at the sight of Our own features in them, the ardor of Our love will be so great, that each of the Three Divine Persons will place Its own crown, as the special distinctive sign that they are children of Our Divine Will.”

Then, I was feeling so immersed in the Supreme Fiat, that I felt like a sponge soaked with Its light. It seemed to me that all created things were bringing me the kiss of the Divine Volition, and in that kiss I could feel the lips of my Creator impressing it upon me. It seemed to me that the Fiat was carrying the Three Divine Persons with Itself. Now, while I was feeling my mind dissolved in the light of the Fiat, my sweet Jesus came out from within my interior and told me: “My daughter, when my Will has Its Kingdom upon earth and souls live in It, Faith will have no more shadows, no more enigmas, but everything will be clarity and certainty. The light of my Will will bring in the very created things the clear vision of their Creator; creatures will touch Him with their own hands in everything He has done for love of them. The human will is now a shadow to Faith; passions are clouds that obscure the clear light of it, and it happens as to the Sun, when thick clouds form in the lower air: even though the Sun is there, the clouds advance against the light, and it seems it is dark as if it were nighttime; and if one had never seen the Sun, he would find it hard to believe that the Sun is there. But if an impetuous wind dispelled the clouds, who would dare to say that the Sun does not exist, as they would touch Its radiant light with their own hands? Such is the condition in which Faith finds Itself because my Will does not reign. They are almost like blind people that must rely on others to believe that a God exists. But when my Divine Fiat reigns, Its light will make them touch the existence of their Creator with their own hands; therefore, it will no longer be necessary for others to say it - the shadows and the clouds will exist no more.”

And while He was saying this, Jesus made a wave of joy and of light come out of His Heart, which will give more life to creatures; and with an emphasis of love, He added: “How I long for the Kingdom of my Will! It will put an end to the troubles of creatures and to Our sorrows. Heaven and earth will smile together; Our feasts and theirs will reacquire the order of the beginning of Creation; We will place a veil over everything, so that the feasts may never again be interrupted.”

Necessity of advances in order to purchase the Kingdom of the Divine Will. How the Divine Will renders everything light like a feather, and therefore one can embrace everything.

Continuing my round in the Divine Flat, I was thinking to myself: ‘What is the utility of these continuous repetitions in asking over and over again for the Kingdom of the Divine Will?... And of the repetition of going around in It in order to commit It to grant Its Kingdom, so that It may come to dominate in the midst of creatures?’ At that moment, my beloved Jesus moved in my interior and told me: “My daughter, when one wants to make a purchase he pays advances, and the more advances he gives, the more the purchase is secured, and the less remains to be paid when he comes to the final acts of the definitive purchase. Now, since you want the Kingdom of my Will, it is necessary for you to give advances, and every time you go around in It asking for Its Kingdom over and over again, and emitting your acts on behalf of all for the same purpose, you add one more advance to secure your purchase of the Kingdom of my Divine Fiat. And since it is the purchase of It that you want to make, it is necessary that your acts be done in It, and acquire the value of the currency coined by my Divine Will. Otherwise, it would not be a valid currency that could circulate for the purchase of It - it would be a currency from outside the Kingdom. In fact, one who wants to purchase Divine Will, must give acts of advance done in it, and my Will benignly deigns to coin them with the value of Its Fiat in such a way that the soul can give the necessary advances for the purchase of It.

This is the utility of your little rounds in my Fiat. The acts that you emit in It, your asking and asking for the coming of Its Kingdom, are all necessary things which are needed for the great purchase of It. Did I not do the same in Redemption? I had to pay the advance of my acts before my Celestial Father, and I had to pay for all to obtain the Kingdom of Redemption; and when I made the whole payment, then was it signed by the Divinity that the Kingdom was Mine. Therefore, continue to place your advances, if you want to have it signed that the Kingdom of my Fiat is yours.”

After this, I was saying to my Jesus: “In your Will I take the whole Creation in my arms - the heavens, the Sun, the stars and everything - to bring them before the Supreme Majesty as the most beautiful adoration and prayer to ask for the Kingdom of the Fiat.’ But while I was doing this, I thought to myself. ‘How can I embrace everything if my littleness is such that I could embrace not even one star? What about everything? So, these things are not feasible.’ And my lovable Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, one who possesses my Divine Will can take everything. My Will has the virtue of rendering anything light; It renders heavens, stars, suns, the whole of Creation, Angels, Saints, the Virgin Queen and God Himself light as a feather. In fact, since my Divine Will flows as primary life in everything, one is the life, one is the weight; so, whatever the weight of all things together is, such is the weight of each of them. Therefore, only one who possesses my Fiat can take everything and give Me everything, because having the virtue of extending heavens, of forming stars, etc., wherever It is, she has the virtue of taking everything and of embracing everything. This is indeed the great prodigy of the living in my Will: littleness can carry and embrace immensity, weakness can carry strength, the nothing can possess the All, the creature the Creator. Wherever there is the life of my Divine Will, there are all prodigies united together. The Infinite, the Eternal, lets Himself be carried as though in triumph in the little arms of the one who lives in It, because in her He looks, not at her, but at the Divine Will that has the right over everything, can do anything and embrace everything; and so she can give everything to her Creator as her own. In fact, was it, perhaps, not my Fiat that extended the heavens and populated them with stars? If It had the virtue of making them, It also has the virtue of embracing them, and of letting them be carried in triumph, like a light feather, by the creature who lives in Its Divine Will. Therefore, continue your flight in It, and you will do everything, to give Me everything, and to ask Me for everything.”

Goods produced by the Divine Will; evils produced by the human will. How all evils will cease as if by magic, if the Divine Will reigns. How the Divine Will reigned in the house of Nazareth.

I was following my sweet Jesus in His public life, and while thinking about the so many human illnesses that Jesus healed, I thought to myself: ‘Why did the human nature transform itself so much, that some became mute, some deaf, some blind, some covered with wounds, and so many other evils. If it was the human will that did evil, why did the body also suffer so much?’ And my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, you must know that the body did nothing evil, but all the evil was done by the human will. Before sinning, Adam possessed the complete life of my Divine Will in his soul; one can say that he was filled to the brim with It, to the extent that It overflowed outside. So, by virtue of my Will, the human will transfused light outside, and emitted the fragrances of its Creator -fragrances of beauty, of sanctity and of full health; fragrances of purity, of strength, which came out from within his will like many luminous clouds. And the body was so embellished by these exhalations, that it was delightful to see him beautiful, vigorous, luminous, so very healthy, with an enrapturing grace.

Now, as Adam sinned, his human will remained alone, and he no longer had the one who would diffuse in his will the light, the varieties of so many fragrances which, being transfused outside, preserved the soul and the body as it had been created by God. Instead, thick clouds, putrid air, perfumes of weakness and of miseries began to emanate from within his human will, in such a way that the body also lost its freshness, its beauty. It became debilitated and remained subject to all evils, sharing in all the evils of the human will, just as it had shared in the good. So, if the human will is healed by receiving again the life of my Divine Will, all the evils of the human nature will have life no more, as if by magic.

Does, perhaps, the same not happen when a putrid, bad, stinking air surrounds the creatures? How many more evils does it not increase, as the stink reaches the point of taking one’s breath away, penetrating deep into one’s bowels, to the extent of producing contagious diseases that lead one to the tomb? And if some air from outside can cause so much harm, much greater harm can the foggy and putrid air of the human will cause, which comes from within the creature, from the depth of her whole being. And then, there is the palpable example of the plants. How many times, in a garden or a flowery field for which the farmer was all in feast hoping for an abundant harvest or expecting to pick many beautiful fruits, a fog was enough to strip the trees and make all the fruits fall to the ground, or an air too cold was enough to cast mourning over the flowery field, to blacken it and make it die, putting the poor farmer in mourning.

If the air is good, it communicates the life of good; if it is bad, it communicates the life of evil, and even death. The exhalation of the air, if it is good, can be called life; if it is bad, it can be called death for the poor creatures. If you knew how much I suffered in my public life, when blind, mute people, lepers etc. presented themselves before Me... In them I recognized all the exhalations of the human will, and how man, without my Will, becomes deformed in soul and body. In fact, only my Fiat has the virtue of preserving Our works whole, fresh and beautiful, as they came out of Our creative hands.”

Then, while accompanying my sweet Jesus in the little room of Nazareth in order to follow His acts, I thought to myself: ‘Certainly my beloved Jesus had the Kingdom of His Will during His hidden life. The Sovereign Lady possessed His Fiat, He was the Divine Will Itself, and Saint Joseph, in the middle of these seas of endless light - how could he not let himself be dominated by this Most Holy Will?’

But while I was thinking of this, my Highest Good, Jesus, sighing with sorrow told me in my interior: “My daughter, indeed my Divine Will reigned in this house of Nazareth on earth as It does in Heaven. My Celestial Mama and I knew no other will, and Saint Joseph lived in the reflections of Our Will. But I was like a king without a people, isolated, without cortege, without army, and my Mama was like a queen without children, because She was not surrounded by other children worthy of Her to whom She could entrust Her crown of queen, so as to have the offspring of Her noble children all kings and queens. And I had the sorrow of being a king without a people; and if those who surrounded Me could be called a people, it was a sick people - some were blind, some mute, some deaf, some crippled, some covered with wounds. It was a people that gave Me dishonor - not honor; even more, it did not even know Me, nor did it want to know Me. So, I was king only for Myself, and my Mama was queen without the long generation of Her offspring of royal children.

But in order to be able to say that I had my Kingdom, and to rule, I had to have ministers; and even though I had Saint Joseph as prime minister, one minister only does not constitute a ministry. I had to have a great army, all intent on fighting to defend the rights of the Kingdom of my Divine Will; and a faithful people that would have, as law, only the law of my Will. This was not so, my daughter; therefore I cannot say that on coming upon earth, I had the Kingdom of my Fiat at that time. Our Kingdom was for Us only, because the order of Creation and the royalty of man were not restored. However, by the Celestial Mother and I living wholly of Divine Will, the seed was sown, the yeast was formed, to make Our Kingdom arise and grow upon earth. Therefore, all the preparations were made, all the graces were impetrated, all the pains were suffered, so that the Kingdom of my Fiat might come to reign upon earth. This is why Nazareth can be called the point of recall of the Kingdom of Our Will.”

How the Divine Will wants to extend Its dominion in everything. How the Fiat will place Heaven and earth in common. Unhappiness of the human will.

I was writing, and while writing I felt I was getting sleepy and I was not free to write; so I thought to myself: ‘And why this sleepiness? Up to now, so much vigil, that if I wanted to sleep a little I could not; and now, all the opposite. How many changes one must go through - now one way, now another. It shows how it takes patience also with Jesus. With vigil I could have done more, but after all, with sleep too I must say ‘Fiat!’” At that moment my sweet Jesus moved in my interior and told me: “My daughter, do not be surprised; my Divine Fiat wants to take Its dominion in all of the human acts - It wants everything to be Its property and territory. It is jealous that even one comma may be taken away from It. Therefore, just as It has taken Its dominion in your vigil, working, Itself, together with you in order to place the seal of Its Fiat as Its dominion and property, It wants to place the seal of Its Fiat upon your sleep as property of Its eternal rest. It wants to find all of Its similarities: Its incessant work, and It gave you the vigil; It makes you embrace everything, and it gives you Its immensity; It makes you sleep, and It gives you Its eternal rest. In sum, It must be able to say and do: ‘Whatever I do by Myself in my Will I must be able to do together with my little daughter, because, as she gives Me dominion over everything, everything becomes my Will.’ Therefore I can say: ‘Everything is property of my Fiat in her; she has nothing left that is her own - everything belongs to Me, and in return, I give her that which belongs to my Divine Will’.”

After this, I was following the Divine Volition with my acts, and the heavens, the stars, the Sun seemed so beautiful to me, that from the depths of my heart I kept repeating: 'How beautiful are the works of my Creator, and the order, the harmony that the omnipotent Fiat has in all Creation! Oh, if this order and harmony were present in the midst of creatures, the face of the earth would change!' And my beloved Jesus added: "My daughter, when my Will dominates on earth, then will there be perfect union between Heaven and earth. One will be the order, one the harmony, one the echo, one the life, because one will be the Will. Even more, in Heaven many mirrors will be seen, and the creatures, reflecting themselves in them, will look at what the Blessed in Heaven are doing. They will hear their chants, their celestial melodies, and by them imitating what they do - their chants, their melodies - there will be the life of Heaven in the midst of creatures. My Fiat will place everything in common, and there will be the true life of the Fiat Voluntas Tua on earth as It is in Heaven. Then will my Will sing victory, and the creature will sing the hymn of her triumph."

Then He kept silent, and after a little while He added: "My daughter, the human will has produced so much evil as to form the unhappy state of the poor creature; it changed her lot, her fortune. Since I am happy by nature, everything that came out of Our creative hands in Creation, came out with the fullness of happiness; therefore, everywhere, inside and outside of man, perennial joy and happiness flew. The human will drove this sea of true and perpetual peace out of itself, which, driven out, took refuge in the womb of its Creator, who had delivered it so that all of His works might be happy. And even though We are happy by Our nature, and no one can shade Our happiness, We are forced to see man unhappy, to whom primacy in Creation had been given; and to see Our children unhappy, to see that the sea of Our happiness is not enjoyed by the one who was the owner of it, even though it causes no harm to Us, is always a sorrow.

Now, one who lives in my Divine Will calls this sea of happiness once again into herself, she removes from Us the sight of the unhappiness in the poor creatures, and she makes Us twice as happy, because We see that Our happiness follows its way toward Our children. Therefore my Will will put all things in place and will remove the unhappiness produced by the human will which, with its poisonous slobber, knows how to embitter everything and make everything turbid. How beautiful it is to see everyone happy! What a consolation for a father to have and see the crown of his children - all happy, rich, healthy, beautiful, always smiling, never crying! Oh, how he enjoys, and feels himself swimming in his own happiness and that of children! I am more than a father, and I feel within Me the happiness of my children, because it is my own thing and can enter into Me; while unhappiness is something extraneous to Me, which does not belong to Me and has no way to enter into Me. I feel the sorrow of seeing it, but not of feeling it, and as Father, I love and want everyone to be happy."

How one who lives in the Divine Will forms her little seas within God Himself. How the Divine Will is light and looks for light, and how all evils become lost before Its light. Prodigy of the Fiat.

I felt all immersed in the Divine Fiat, and my adorable Jesus placed before my mind an interminable sea of light, and within this sea one could see many other little seas little rivers formed in the same sea. It was beautiful, delightful, enchanting, to see these little seas formed very often in the Divine Sea -some smaller, some a little larger. It seemed to me as when we are in the sea: as we dive into it, the water divides and forms a circle around us, giving us the place in order to be able to stay in the sea, in such a way that one can see many people inside of it. But they are not seas, because the sea does not have the virtue of converting us into water, while Our God has the virtue of converting us into His own light. And in spite of this, one can see that a human will has gone to dive into the Divine Sea to take its place in It, and according to how much or how little it operates, it forms a smaller or a larger little sea within the Divine Sea.

Now, while I delighted in watching a scene so beautiful and enrapturing, my sweet Jesus told me: “My daughter, these little seas and rivers that you see in the eternal Sea of the Divine Majesty are of those who operate in the Divine Will. The Creator gives and forms the place in His own Sea for those who want to live in the Fiat; He admits them into His house and lets them form their own properties. And while forming their own, they enjoy all the goods of the interminable Sea of the Supreme Being, who gives wide freedom to these children of His to expand their own little seas within His own Sea, as much as they can. In this Sea there are the little seas of my Humanity and those of the Sovereign Queen of Heaven, and there will also be those of the ones who will live in my Will. None of their acts will be done outside of this Divine Sea, and this will be the greatest glory of God and the greatest honor for the children of my Divine Fiat.”

After this, while being immersed more than ever in the Divine Volition, I was offering all of my being and all of my acts in It. Oh, how I wished that not even one thought, one word, one heartbeat would escape from the light of the Fiat! Even more, I wished to surround all the acts of creatures like a crown, lining myself up over each human act to invest everything and everyone with Its light, so that one might be the word, one the heartbeat: “Divine Will”. But while my mind was wandering in It, my sweet Jesus, making Himself seen, clasped me so very tightly in His arms; then He placed His Most Holy Face over my heart and breathed strongly into it. I am unable to say what I felt... And then He told me: “Daughter of my Divine Will, my Fiat is light, nor could even a shadow or atom which is not light enter into It. Darkness does not find the way and becomes lost before Its endless light; and the soul, in order to enter my Divine Will, must place herself in the reflections of Its light - that is to say, as she wants to do her acts in my Will, she places herself in Its reflections, which have the virtue of changing the acts of the soul into light. And my Will performs a prodigy, as each of Its rays invests - some her heartbeats, some her thoughts, some her words... In each of Its rays It contains the crown of all the acts of the creature; and since my Fiat embraces everything and everyone - Heaven and earth - It makes them touch everyone, and gives to all the acts of the creature done in It. If all could see the marvels of living and operating in my Will, they would see the most beautiful, enchanting and enrapturing scene, which does the greatest good and brings the kiss of life, of light, of glory.”

Then, with a tender and moving voice, and a stronger emphasis of love, He added: “Oh! Divine Will, how powerful You are! You alone are the transformer of the creature in God! Oh, my Will, You alone are the consumer of all evils and the producer of all goods! Oh, my Will, You alone possess the enrapturing force, and whoever lets herself be enraptured by You becomes light; whoever lets herself be dominated by You is the most fortunate one in Heaven and on earth! She is the most loved by God; she is the one who receives everything and gives everything.”

How three acts from God concurred in the Creation, and how three wills, sacrificed for the Kingdom of the Divine Will, are needed. One who lives in It is celebrated by all and is the feast of all.

I was doing my usual round in the Divine Volition, and as I arrived at the point when the Celestial Queen was conceived, had the use of reason and made the heroic sacrifice of offering Her will to Her God without ever wanting to know it, to live only of the Will of God - I thought to myself: 'How I wish that my Celestial Mama would take my will, unite it with Her own and give it as gift to the Supreme Majesty so that I too would not even know my will to live only of the Will of God.'

While I was thinking of this, my beloved Jesus moved in my interior and with a light more than lightning, told me: "My daughter, three acts from the Trinity concurred in the Creation, which were Power, Wisdom and Love. All of Our works are always accompanied by these three acts, because since Our working is perfect, they are executed with highest Power, with infinite Wisdom and with perfect Love, communicating three immense goods to the work We are doing, as indeed We gave the great good of the intellect, memory and will to man. Now, in order for the Kingdom of my Divine Will to come, three wills sacrificed as holocaust to the Divinity are needed, which, having no life of their own, would give place to Mine to let It reign and dominate freely, so that It may take Its royal place in all of the human acts, the place that befits It; because so it was established by Us from the beginning of the creation of man who, ungrateful, gave the place to his human will, and this made him lose Mine. There is no greater sacrifice before Us than a human will which, while having life, does not exercise it, to give free life to my Fiat. This, however, to great profit for the soul, because she gives a human will and receives a Divine one; she gives a finite and limited will and receives an infinite and limitless one."

Now, while Jesus was saying this, I thought to myself: 'The first one was certainly the Queen of Heaven, who made the heroic sacrifice of not giving life to Her will; and the other two wills - who are they?' And Jesus added: "My daughter, what about Me - do you want to put Me aside? Don't you know that I had a human will which had not even one breath of life, surrendering the place to my Divine Will in everything? So, I had it to keep it sacrificed, so that the Divine Will might extend the whole expanse of Its Kingdom in my human volition. And have you forgotten that you keep your human will sacrificed so that it may never have life, and that my Divine Will keeps it as a footstool at Its feet, so that I may extend my Kingdom over it? Now, you must know that between the will of the Celestial Mother and yours there is my human will, which is first and sustains both, so that they might be constant in the sacrifice of never giving life to the human volition, and so that the Kingdom of my Divine Will might extend over these three wills to have the triple glory of Our Power, Wisdom and Love, and the triple reparation of the three powers of man, which all concurred in withdrawing from the great good of Our Divine Will. And if the Sovereign Queen of Heaven was engraced by virtue of the merits of the future Redeemer, you were engraced by virtue of the Redeemer already come; and since millennia are like one single point for Me, from that time I thought about everything, and I sustained the three wills over which my eternal Will was to triumph. This is why I always tell you: be attentive and know that you have two wills sustaining yours - that of the Celestial Mama and that of your Jesus, which fortify the weakness of your volition, so that it may endure remaining sacrificed for a cause so holy, and for the triumph of the Kingdom of my Fiat."

Then, while my mind was making itself present at the conception of the Sovereign Lady, I said to myself: 'Immaculate Queen, this little daughter of the Divine Will comes to prostrate herself at your feet, to celebrate your conception and to give You the honors of Queen. And together with me, I call the whole Creation to surround You like a crown - the Angels, the Saints, the heavens, the stars, the Sun and everyone, to recognize You as our Queen, to honor and love your height, and to declare ourselves your subjects. Don't You see, O Celestial Mother and Queen, how all created things run to be around You to say to You: "We hail You, Our Queen! Finally, after so many centuries, we have been given our Empress." The Sun hails You as Queen of light, the heavens as Queen of immensity and of the stars, the wind as Queen of empire, the sea as Queen of purity, strength and justice, the earth hails You as Queen of flowers. All hail You, in chorus: "You are welcome, Our Queen - You will be our smile, our glory, our happiness! From now on we will all hang on your wishes".' But while I was saying this, I was thinking to myself (of course, some of my usual nonsense): 'I am celebrating my Celestial Mama, and She does not give a thought to celebrating the little daughter of the Divine Will? I would like nothing but the feast of Her keeping me on Her lap like a little child, to feed me the air, the breath, the food, the life of the Divine Will.'

But while I was thinking of this and of other things, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior and told me: "Little daughter of my Will, one who lives in my Divine Fiat is celebrated by all and is the feast of all. Do you want to know why you celebrate, from Her very conception, the state of Queen of my Mama? Because She began Her life in the Divine Will, and the Divine Will makes present to you Her glorious state of Queen, and It makes you celebrate Her with all created things, just as She was celebrated at Her conception. The feasts begun in the Fiat are perennial - they never end; and one who lives in It finds them present and celebrates along. And even though the little Queen of Heaven perceived from Her very conception that all revered Her, smiled at Her, longed for Her, and that She was welcome by all, yet, She did not know from the beginning the mystery that She was to become my Mother - the Mother of the One whom She Herself longed for, for She knew it when the Angel announced it to Her - however, She knew that Her royalty, Her empire and the many shows of obsequies came to Her because in Her reigned my Divine Will.

Now, you must know that as you celebrate the Mama and Her Sovereignty, the Mama celebrates the daughter, the newborn of that Fiat which She loved so much as to keep It as Her life; and in you She celebrates that which you yourself do not know for now, but will know later. Don't you know that She longs for the little queens, which are the little daughters of my Will, to make the feast that She receives for them?"

The soul who lives in the Fiat is the luminous point in the world. How everything was created for the soul.

Continuing in my usual abandonment in the Supreme Fiat, I wished to embrace everyone and everything, so that everything would become Divine Will; and my sweet Jesus, coming out from within my interior, told me: "My daughter, the soul who lives in my Will is the luminous point in the world. Just as a Sun appears under the vault of the heavens, which invests the earth with Its rays, and penetrating everywhere, embellishes, colors, fecundates the whole earth with Its life of light, so another Sun, more beautiful and more refulgent, can be seen in that point of the world - that is, in the soul in whom my Divine Will reigns - and her rays extend and expand so much as to embrace everything and everyone. How beautiful it is to see from Heaven these luminous points in the depths of the earth! It no longer seems earth - but Heaven, because the Sun of my Fiat is present. Its rays embellish, fecundate and scatter such variety of divine colors as to communicate the varieties of beauties of the Creator with Its life of light. Wherever these luminous points are present, the current of evil is stopped; my Justice Itself feels disarmed by the strength of this light, and changes the scourges into grace. These points are the smile of the earth; their light is herald and bearer of peace, of beauty, of sanctity, of life that never dies. They can be called the fortunate points of the earth, because in their midst there is the light that never dims, the life that always rises; while where these luminous points are not present, the earth is obscure, and if any good is done, it is like those little lights that have no rays, because the source of the light is missing in that good, and therefore it has no strength nor virtue either to extend or expand. And since the source is missing, they are subject to being extinguished, and the earth remains obscured, as though buried in thick darkness, because the human will is herald and bearer of evils, of disturbances, of disorder and the like.

So, the soul in whom my will does not reign puffs out darkness, shadow and restlessness, and if she does any good, it is a good invested with fog. Her air is always unhealthy, her fruits unripe, her beauty faded. All the opposite for the soul in whom my Will reigns: she is the true queen that dominates everything, she gives peace to all, does good to all and is welcomed by all; and while she does good to all, she needs no one, because the source of my Will which she possesses makes all goods arise within her.”

Then, I was continuing my round in the Divine Volition to bring all created things to my Creator - heavens, Sun and everything - as profound adoration to my God, and to be able to say to Him: ‘You gave me heavens, stars, Sun, sea, and I give You everything back as the return of my love.’ But while I was thinking of this, my sweet Jesus told me: “My daughter, ah yes, I created everything for you and I gave you everything; for each thing I created, first I thought of giving it to you as gift, and then I put it out. I gave you so many of these gifts, that you have no place to keep them; and my love, in order not to keep you hampered, gave you the space in which to keep them, in such a way that, while you enjoy now one thing, now another as you please, you are not cluttered up, because each thing has its place to remain at your disposal. Now if you knew Our contentment when We see Our little daughter take her flight in Our Will to bring to Us heavens, stars, Sun and everything else, to requite Us with the very gifts that We gave to her... We feel Our own glory, Our love, the repetition of Our works; and knowing that if she had the power to make them she would make them for Us, in order always to excel in Our love for one who lives in Our Fiat, We give her the merit as if the creature had made the heavens for love of Us, the Sun, the sea, the wind - in sum, everything. We requite her as if she were maintaining the whole Creation to give Us glory and to tell Us that she loves Us. My Will loves so much one who lives in It, that there is nothing It did or can do in which It does not say to the soul: ‘Let us do it together’; so as to be able to say: ‘That which I have done for love of her, she has done for love of Me’.”

Meaning of the blessing and of the sign of the Cross.

My days become more bitter and long because of the privation of my sweet Jesus. The hours are centuries, the days never end; and while I do my usual rounds in the Creation, I want and invite everyone to cry for the One who, flying away from me, leaves me alone and abandoned in my hard martyrdom of living as if I had no life, because the One who formed my true life is no longer with me. So, in my bitterness, I call the Sun to cry tears of light to move Jesus to compassion, so that He would come back to His little exiled one. I call the wind to make tears of moans and of screams, and to deafen the hearing of Jesus with its mighty empire, so as to bend Him to come. I call the sea to my help, so that it would convert all of its waters into tears, and murmuring tears and tumulting with its waves, it may make a tumult deep within His divine Heart, so that He may quickly resolve to give me back His life, my All. But who can say all of my nonsense?

I sought help from all, so that they would make Jesus come back to me. But He would not come; and I would continue my round in His adorable Will, and following all the acts He did when He was on this earth, I stopped when Jesus was blessing the children, blessing His Celestial Mama, blessing the crowds and other things, and I prayed Jesus to bless this little daughter of His, who so much needed it. And He, moving in my interior and raising His arm in the act of blessing me, told me: "My daughter, I bless you from the Heart in your soul and body - may my blessing be the confirmation of Our likeness in you. My blessing confirms in you what the Divinity did in the creation of man - that is, Our likeness. You must know that during the course of my mortal life, in everything I did, I always blessed. It was the first act of Creation that I called back over the creatures, and in order to confirm it, in blessing I invoked the Father, the Word and the Holy Spirit. The very Sacraments are animated by these blessings and invocations. So, while calling the likeness to the Creator within souls, my blessing calls also the life of My Divine Will, that It may return as in the beginning of Creation to reign in souls, because my Will alone has the virtue of painting in them, vividly, the likeness of the One who created them, of making it known and of preserving it with its divine live colors.

See then, what blessing means: confirmation of Our creative work, because the work We do once is so filled with wisdom, with sublimity and with beauty, that We love to repeat it always. And if Our blessing is nothing other than the sigh of Our Heart to see Our image restored in the creatures, as well as the repetition of Our confirmation of what We want to do, the sign of the Cross that the Church teaches to the faithful is nothing other than impetrating Our likeness on the part of creatures; and so, echoing Our blessing, they repeat: 'In the name of the Father, of the Son and of the Holy Spirit.' Therefore, without knowing it, the Church and all the faithful harmonize with the eternal Creator, and all want the same thing: God, by blessing and pronouncing the words, 'Father, Son and Holy Spirit', wants to give His likeness; the creatures impetrate it by making the sign of the Cross, pronouncing the same words."

How it is absolute Will of God for these writings to come out. The work of Redemption and the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat are linked together. The field of the Divine Will. Explanations.

I was feeling all concerned because of these blessed writings. The thought of their being released is always a torment for me; and then, the so many incidents that happen - now one way, now another...

Many times this makes me think that maybe it is not Will of God that they be published, otherwise so many things would not happen. Who knows whether the Lord wants my sacrifice in words, but with facts He wants to spare me a sorrow so great, that only the thought that I might oppose His Divine Will makes me say: 'Fiat! Fiat!' But while I was thinking of this, my always lovable Jesus moved in my interior and told me: "My daughter, the Will of God that the writings of my Divine Will come to light is absolute, and as many incidents as may occur, It will triumph over all. And even if it should take years and years, It will know how to dispose everything so that Its absolute Will be accomplished. The time in which they will come to light is relative and conditional upon when the creatures dispose themselves to receive a good so great, and upon those who must occupy themselves with being its criers, and make the sacrifice so as to bring the new era of peace, the new Sun which will dispel all the clouds of evils.

If you knew how many graces and lights I keep prepared for those whom I see disposed to occupy themselves with them! They will be the first to feel the balm, the light, the life of my Fiat. Look at how I keep in my hands, prepared, the clothes, the food, the ornaments, the gifts for those who must occupy themselves with them. But I am looking to see who the true disposed ones are, so as to invest them with the prerogatives that are needed for a work so holy, which I so much love and want them to do. However, I must also say to you: 'Woe to those who are opposed or might place obstacles!' You, however, do not move anything - not even one comma of that which is needed to prepare the Kingdom of my Divine Will, so that, by doing what is needed to give this great good to the creatures, nothing may be lacking on my part and on yours, and so that, as soon as the creatures dispose themselves, they may find everything in place and that which is needed. Did I not do the same in the work of Redemption? I prepared everything, I did and suffered everything; and in spite of the so many adverse circumstances that I saw - my very Apostles vacillating, doubtful and timid, to the point of running away from Me when they saw Me in the hands of the enemies; being left alone; not having the good of seeing any fruit while I was on earth... - in spite of all this, I neglected nothing of what was needed for the complete work of Redemption, so that, when they would open their eyes to look at what I had done, they would find all the good in order to be redeemed, and nothing might be lacking to them to be able receive the fruit of my coming upon earth.

My daughter, the Kingdom of my Redemption and that of my Will are so linked together that they hold hands and have almost the same lot because of human ingratitude; but one who must give and form a good so great should not pay attention to this, nor should he stop. It is necessary that we do complete works, so that nothing may be lacking on our part, and so that, as they dispose themselves, they may find everything that is needed to receive the Kingdom of my Will."

After this, I continued my acts in the Divine Will, but I kept feeling oppressed, and my sweet Jesus, making Himself seen again, seemed to hold three or four priests tightly in His arms; and holding them against His breast as if He wanted to infuse in them the life of His divine Heart, He told me: "My daughter, look at how tightly I hold in my arms those who must occupy themselves with the writings about my adorable Will. As soon as I see some little disposition in them to occupy themselves with the writings, I take them in my arms to infuse in them what is needed for a work so holy. Therefore, courage, do not fear."

Then, after this, He made Himself seen in my interior. In the depth of it I saw a most extensive field

- not of earth, but of clearest crystal. Every two or three steps in this field there was a baby Jesus surrounded by a light. Oh, how beautiful this field looked with so many babies! Each of them had His own Sun, radiant and beautiful - all for Himself. I was surprised at seeing so many Jesuses in the depth of my soul, each of them all intent on enjoying His own Sun; and my sweet Jesus, seeing my surprise, told me: "My daughter, do not be surprised. This field that you see is my Divine Will, and the many Jesuses, you see are my truths regarding my Fiat. In each of them there is a life of Mine which, forming its radiant Sun, surrounds itself with light so as to spread its endless rays to make known that I am the springing fount of my truths. See then, how many lives of Mine I put out; as many truths as I have manifested to you, so many are my lives that I put out along with the very source of the Sun - not just a simple light. And I have remained in their midst so that all may feel the strength, the creative virtue of these truths; and I love each of them as much as I love Myself. And whoever would not want to recognize my life, my Sun, my creative virtue in these truths about my Fiat is either blind, or has lost the good of the intellect. Also, it should be a great consolation for you to possess within you as many lives of Mine for as many truths as I have manifested to you. Therefore, recognize this great good - greater treasure I could not entrust to you; and do not be concerned - the Sun will know how to make Its way, and since It is light, no one will be able to prevent Its step."

Then He added with a more tender accent: "My daughter, Our Adorable Majesty loves the creature so much that We put Our Life at Her disposal to make of her one who is similar to Us. We place Our Life as a model before the creature, so that, by modeling herself on Our model, she may copy Our Life and form facsimiles of her Creator. This is why We use many stratagems, finesses of love, and We give surprising graces - to see Ourselves copied in the creature. And only then shall We be content, when - as Our love, united with Our Divine Will, conquers the creature - We will be able to recognize Our image and likeness in her, just as She came out of Our creative hands."

How whatever is done in the Fiat is source of Divine Life. Difference from the human works. How Its light empties the soul of all passions.

I continued my acts in the Divine Fiat, and while doing this, I thought to myself: "What is the difference between doing good in the Divine Will, and doing good in the human will?" And my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: "My daughter, what is the difference?! There is so much distance that you yourself cannot arrive at comprehending all the value contained in operating in my Divine Will. Operating in my Fiat is Life that the soul takes into herself, it is Divine Life - Life with the fullness and the source of all goods. For each act done in my Will, the soul encloses within her a Life which has no beginning and no end; she encloses an act from which everything springs forth - founts that never exhaust. But what is it that springs forth? Continuous sanctity springs forth; happiness, beauty, love, spring forth - all of the divine qualities are in the act of springing and growing continuously. If a soul could possess one act alone done in my Will, and all the good works of all creatures of all centuries could be put together, they could never equal this single act done in my Will, because it is life that reigns in this act, while in the other works done outside of my Will there is no life, but a work without life.

Imagine yourself doing some work: you put your work into it - not your life; therefore, one who could possess or see that work, would possess or see your work, but not your life. Such are the human works: it is works that creatures do - not life that they put in their works; therefore, they are subject to becoming stained, consumed and even lost. On the other hand, the love and the jealousy of my Will for the work of the soul done in It is so great, that It places Its very Divine Life in the middle of that work, as its center. Therefore, the soul who does all of her acts in It possesses as many Divine Lives for as many acts as she performs in my Supreme Fiat. She can be called the bilocator and the populator of the Divine Life within the endless sea of my eternal Volition.

Therefore, as much as other creatures may do or sacrifice themselves, they can never please Me if I do not see the Life of my Will flow within them. In fact, since their works are without life, the love that always loves, the sanctity that always grows, the beauty that is always embellished, the joy that always smiles are not in them. At most, they might be present in the act of their working, but as the work ends, the exercise of their life ends in the work, and not finding the continuation of their life within their work, I find no taste or pleasure, and I long for the soul who lives in my Divine Will in order to find her works full of Divine Lives that always love. These are not mute works, but speaking ones; and since they possess a Divine Will, they know how to speak about their Creator so well, that I take all pleasures in hearing them, and I remain with them with so much love, that It is impossible for Me to separate; more so, since it is my very Life that binds Me to them with indissoluble bonds.

Oh! if you knew how great the good is of having called you to live in my Will, the prodigies, the infinite riches that you can enclose, the love with which your Jesus is drawn to love you, you would be more attentive and grateful, and you would yearn for my Fiat to be known and to form Its Kingdom in the midst of creatures, because It alone will be the sower of Divine Life in Creation.”

Then, I continued my abandonment in the Fiat, and my mind wandered at the sight of Its endlessness, of Its light that invests everything, of Its power that does everything, of Its wisdom that orders and disposes everything. My poor and little mind wanted to take many things from that endless light and sea, but could take nothing but drops; and what is more, with terms that were not human - but divine, which my little capacity is unable to reduce to words. But while I was immersed in that sea of light, my beloved Jesus, making Himself seen within that light, told me: “My daughter, my Will is light, and the prerogative and virtue of Its light is to empty of every passion the soul who lets herself be dominated by It. In fact, Its light places itself within her as center, and with its heat and vivifying light gets rid of any human weight, and vivifies and converts everything into seed of light, forming the new life in the soul, with no seed of evil, wholly pure and holy, as she came out of Our creative hands, in such a way that this fortunate creature cannot fear she may do harm to anyone. In fact, true light does harm to no one; on the contrary, it brings to all the good that my vivifying light contains. Nor can this creature fear she may receive any harm, because true light is untouchable by even the shadow of evil. Therefore, she has nothing to do but enjoy her fortune and spread the light that she possesses to all.”

One who lives in the Divine Fiat rises into the acts of innocent Adam and possesses the universal virtue. How the Fiat is order. How the life of one who lives in It is precious.

I was continuing my round in the Creation, and I paused now at one point, now at another, to be able to follow and look at what God had done in Creation; and arriving at what Adam had done in his state of innocence, I was saying to myself: 'How I wish I could do what our father did in his state of innocence, so that I too might love and glorify my Creator as he did in the original state of his creation.' But while I was thinking of this, my beloved Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: "My daughter, in his state of innocence, possessing the life of my Divine Will, Adam possessed the universal life and virtue. Therefore, I found the love of everything and of everyone centralized in his love and in his acts, and all the acts were unified together - not even my works were excluded from his act. I found everything in the works of Adam; I found all the shades of beauties, fullness of love, unreachable and admirable mastery, and then, everything and everyone.

Now, one who lives in my Will rises into the act of innocent Adam, and making the universal life and virtue her own, she makes his act her own. Not only this, but she rises into the acts of the Queen of Heaven, in those of her very Creator, and flowing in all the acts, she centralizes herself in them and says: 'Everything is mine, and I give everything to my God. Just as His Divine Will is mine, so everything is mine - everything that came out of It. Having nothing of my own, with Its Fiat I have everything, and I can give God to God. Oh, how happy, glorious, victorious I feel in the eternal Volition! I possess everything and I can give everything, without exhausting anything of my immense riches.' So, there is no act, either in Heaven or on earth, in which I do not find one who lives in my Will."

Then, I continued to follow the acts of the Divine Fiat, and my always lovable Jesus added: "My daughter, my Will is order, and It places Its divine order in the soul in whom It reigns; and by virtue of this order, the creature feels order in her thoughts, in her words, in her works and steps - everything is harmony. This Divine Will maintains order in all the works that came out of the Supreme Being, in such a way that they are so linked together as to be inseparable from one another. Even though each work has its distinct office, by virtue of this order, the union among them is such that one could neither live nor act without the other; more so, since one is the Will that moves them and gives them life. In the same way, by virtue of the Fiat, the soul feels within her the order of her Creator, and feels so linked and united to Him, that she feels inseparable from her Creator and transfused in Him. So, she feels herself heavens, and feels the stars that adorn her beautiful heavens flow in the order of her actions words thoughts and steps. She feels herself Sun, and wants to run to give light to all. She feels herself earth, and enjoys the beautiful flowerings and the beautiful scenes of her sea of grace which flows within her soul; and she would want to put out these enchanting scenes and her beautiful flowery fields, so that all may enjoy and receive the great good of the dominion of my Divine Will.

So, the true sign that my Fiat reigns in the creature is that one cannot see clashing or disordered things, but highest harmony and perfect order, because everything she does has its origin in the One who created her, and she does nothing but follow the order and the works of her Creator."

Then, He continued saying: "Therefore, my daughter, the life of one who lets my adorable Will live in her is so precious and striking to Me, and of a beauty so rare, that it is impossible to find one similar to her. I see nothing but Our works come out of her. If it were necessary for Our glory and for Our inextinguishable love, she would form for Us a new heaven and the whole of Creation; and flowing within the works of Redemption and Sanctification, she would give Us new Redemptions and Sanctifications, because that Divine Will that did all this within Ourselves, can do the same in the creature in whom It dominates and reigns. And just as It called all of Our works from nothing, so It can call them from the nothing of this creature, not only by repeating all of Our works, but by adding yet more surprising things. And We - Our Supreme Being - knowing that this creature can give Us anything by virtue of Our Fiat, feel glorified and loved as if indeed she were doing them for Us, because in her We look not only at what she does for Us, but also at what she can do for Us.

See then, how much preciousness she encloses; how striking she is in all of her acts. The shades of her beauty enrapture Us and form the most delightful scenes for Our divine gaze; so much so, that in Our emphasis of love, We are forced to exclaim: 'Oh, Our Will, how prodigious! admirable! lovable! and delightful You are, in the creature in whom You reign! She is your veil in which, hiding Yourself, You prepare the most beautiful and delightful scenes for Us to enjoy.' Therefore, she can be called the most fortunate creature, who arrives at calling the attention of her God to make Him feast and to let Him enjoy His own works; and who can reach the point of saying: 'By virtue of your Will, I possess everything, I bring You everything and I want nothing, because whatever is Yours is mine'."

Living in the Divine Fiat is communism between Creator and creature. The Virgin: Her insuperable glory. The Sanctity of the Divine Will known in Heaven.

My abandonment in the Fiat is continuous. It seems to me that It wants me in all of Its acts, either as actor together with It or at least as spectator of what It does. In fact, since the eternal Volition possesses the incessant act, Its nature is always to act, never ceasing to operate; and since I am a little child, It is content with keeping me either in one way or in the other, as long as I remain with It. So, continuing my round through the whole Creation, I thought to myself: 'Is it necessary - does Jesus really want me to go around everywhere?' And my beloved Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: "My daughter, to live in my Divine Will is to let oneself be found by God in each created thing, so that the Supreme Being may find in all of His works the one whom He loved, whom He called from nothing out of love, and for whom He created so many varieties of beautiful and marvelous works. If He did not find you in each of His works, He would lack the echo of your love, of your gratitude, and would be as though without you in those works in which you would not go around, as if He had not done them for you; while our purpose in calling you to live in Our Divine Will is precisely this: for Us, to find you in Our works, and for you, to find Us in each created thing -you, giving Us your little love; We, giving you the great love We had in creating so many things - and uniting your love and Ours together to form one single love, so as to be able to say: 'How much the little daughter of Our Divine Will loves Us!'

Otherwise, Our love and Our works would remain isolated and without the company of the one for whom We created everything, while to live in the Divine Will is communism between Creator and creature; becoming inseparable, wherever one is, the other is as well, and the creature finds her little place in everything that God does. Don't you want to find your little place in all the works of Creation and Redemption? Therefore, continue your flight, and let yourself be carried in the arms of my Fiat; It will take care of placing the little newborn in each of its works.”

After this, I was thinking about and accompanying the Sovereign Queen when She was assumed into Heaven; and my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, as though singing the praises of His Celestial Mother, told me: “My daughter, the glory of the Mama of Heaven is insuperable. No one else in the celestial regions possesses seas of graces, of light, seas of beauty and of sanctity, seas of power, of science and of love; and what is more, She possesses these seas within the endless sea of Her Creator. The other inhabitants of the blessed fatherland possess, at most, some little rivulets, some little drops, some little fountains. She is the only one, because She alone lived life in the Divine Fiat. The human volition never took place in Her - Her life was all of Divine Will; and by virtue of It, She centralized all creatures within Herself, conceiving them in Her maternal Heart, and bilocating Her Son Jesus as many times, to give Him to each creature whom She had conceived within Her virginal Heart. This is why Her Maternity is extended to all, and all can boast and say: ‘The Mother of Jesus is my Mother, and this Mother so sweet, lovable and loving, gives Her beloved Son to each of us as a pledge of Her maternal love.’ Only my Will could give Her this virtue of conceiving all creatures as Her children, and of multiplying Her Jesus for as many children as She had.

Now, in Heaven, the height of the Sovereign Mother, possessing Her seas, does nothing but raise highest waves of light, of sanctity, of love, etc., unloading them over the throne of the Supreme Being who, so as not to be surpassed by Her love, having His own sea, more extensive and deeper, forms His own waves, higher, from beneath the seas of the Virgin Queen, and pours them over Her. And She prepares more waves, and God prepares yet more, in such a way that the whole of Heaven remains flooded by these waves of light, of beauties, of love and the like - so much so, that all take part in them and enjoy. And the Blessed, in seeing that they cannot form these waves because they possess no seas, comprehend that if their Mother and Queen possesses all of this, it is because She formed Her life and sanctity in the Divine Will. So, through the Virgin, the Saints know what sanctity of Divine Will means in the creature, and therefore they long for more creatures to bring these seas into the celestial fatherland, so as to see more waves being formed - enchanting and of greater enjoyment for them. The earth does not yet know the sanctity in my Will, and this is why I so much yearn to make it known; but it is well known to Heaven because the Sovereign Queen is there, whom, by merely seeing Her, becomes the revealer of the sanctity of my Fiat. So, by virtue of It, She was a portent of graces on earth for Herself and for the whole human family, and She is a portent of glory in the celestial fatherland, nor can any other creature be said to be similar to Her.”

Pains in the Fiat are drops, and one reaches the point of snatching them. Example. How the truths about the Divine Will are Divine Lives, and are all in waiting to perform their office.

I was doing my usual round in the works of Redemption, and pausing now at one pain, now at another, which Jesus and the Celestial Queen had suffered, I thought to myself: ‘Who knows how their Hearts must have been drowned in their pains - and not little pains: the Virgin, reaching the point of sacrificing Her own Son; and the Son, His own life.’ And my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, since the Divine Fiat reigned in Me and in my Mother, We comprehended what doing and suffering an act in It meant, and the great good that We acquired. So, in view of this great gain, the pain seemed small to Us, like a drop of water within the immense sea. And in order to make more gains, We longed for more occasions of works and of pains, because there is no pain, not even the sacrifice of one's own life, that can equal a gain so great through an act done in my Divine Will. We found Ourselves in the condition of a person who is offered the good of a work: even though it is tiring, the profit is so great, that he would lay his life down to have the occasion of other similar works. In fact, in the face of the great gains, the pains are longed for, yearned for - and one reaches the point of snatching them. If with the work of one day one could earn a kingdom, rendering himself and all of his fatherland happy, who would not do that work of one day?

Even though for Me and for the Celestial Lady the fatherland was already Ours - We were more than happy, because one who possesses the Divine Fiat is not subject to any unhappiness; everything was Ours - however, since Our works and pains in Our Divine Volition served for the purchase of the Kingdom for the human family, and each additional pain doubled their rights over a gain so great, out of love for them and to see them happy We felt glorious, victorious, that the day of Our life down here be filled with pains and works for their sake; and not only for this - that is, for the good of creatures - but because operating in the Fiat gives a Divine Volition the field to operate, and by operating in It it is heavens that run in that act, it is Suns that one encloses, it is immense goods that spring forth - in sum, it is that Divine Fiat which can do everything and possesses everything."

Then, I continued my abandonment in the Supreme Volition, and I was thinking about the many truths that my beloved Good, Jesus, has told me about the Fiat; and He, sighing, added: "My daughter, for as many truths as I have manifested to you about my Will, so many Divine Lives of my Will have I put out for the good of creatures. Now, these lives exist, and are so many as to be able to fill the whole world with Life of Divine Will, and to bring the good they contain into the midst of creatures. But since they are not known, they live hidden, inactive, without bringing the good that each truth possesses. They are all in waiting - waiting with divine patience for those who would open the doors to let them out. This will be done by those who will occupy themselves with making known to the world that these lives exist; and by opening the doors to them, they will place them on their way into the midst of creatures, so that each of them may perform its office, and hold out the light and the good it possesses. In fact, now these truths have feet, but cannot walk; hands, but cannot operate; a mouth, but cannot speak. What account will I not ask of those who keep so many lives inactive? Look at them, my daughter - how they are all in the act of wanting to walk, to operate, to speak; but since they do not make them known, it is as if they had no feet, hands and voice."

I looked, and - oh! how touching it was to see the number of these lives, which was so great that I could not count them, all in the act of wanting to move, to speak and to bend down over each creature, so as to hold out their hands to them, let them hear their lesson, and offer to them the kiss and the good of the Divine Fiat."

Certainty of the Kingdom of the Divine Will upon earth. Rights of God and of the creature. The new Gospel: "The truths about the Divine Fiat". Human prudence causes the most beautiful works to fail. Loneliness of Jesus; the ones who kept Him company.

I was thinking to myself: ‘But, is it really true that the Kingdom of the Will of God will come upon earth?’ And my lovable Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, how is this - you doubt? Don’t you know that there are the rights of God to give this Kingdom, and the rights of humanity to receive It? In fact, in creating man, by giving His Will to man as inheritance, God gave these rights that His Divine Will reign upon earth as It reigned in Heaven. This is so true, that the life of the first man began in the Fiat, and by doing his first acts in It, he placed his pledges, his works, in the divine inheritance; so much so, that these pledges and acts still exist in my Will - they are indelible. Though man went out of It, his acts remained, and this constitutes a right for humanity to enter once again into the lost Kingdom. In fact, We do not look at man in himself, but We look at the whole human family as if it were one; and if one leaves and detaches himself, humanity always remains, and can receive that which was lost by the one who left. Therefore, there are rights on both sides. If it were not so, the living of man in Our Kingdom would not have been a reality, but a way of speaking; while, when We give, We give in fact, so much so, that the human life has its origin in the Kingdom of Our Will.

If you knew what it means to do even one act alone in It... Its value is incalculable. And then there are the acts of my Humanity and those of the Queen of Heaven, all done in the Kingdom of Our Divine Will, by which, as the leaders of the human family, We reconfirmed the rights for the creatures to re-enter into Our Kingdom.”

After this, I was concerned about the publication of the writings about the Will of God especially about certain differences; and as I was praying, my sweet Jesus made Himself seen holding His Heart with His hands, so great was the sorrow He felt; and all afflicted, He told me: “My daughter, how sorrowful I feel. They should have considered themselves honored - they should have boasted about and gloried in making themselves known as the ones who had this great honor to publish the truths about my Holy Will. I could not have given them a greater honor and glory than calling them to an office so high but instead, they want to hide. How my Heart aches; I feel so much sorrow that I cannot contain it. The truths about my Fiat are the new Gospel of the Kingdom of my Divine Will, in which they will find the norms, the Sun, the teachings on how to ennoble themselves, to elevate themselves to their origin, and to take the state given to them by God at the beginning of Creation. They will find the Gospel which, taking them by the hand, will lead them into true happiness, into constant peace. The only law will be my Will which, with Its brush of love, soaked with the living colors of Its light, will give back to man the likeness to his Creator. Oh, how they should have yearned to receive and to make known a good so great! But instead... all the opposite. In Redemption, the Evangelists considered themselves honored to make themselves known as the ones who were putting out the Gospel, so that It might be known by the whole world; and they signed their names with glory, so much so, that when the Gospel is preached, first they state the name of the one who wrote It, and then they speak the Gospel. So I want to be done with the truths about my Will, that everyone may know who the ones are that brought so much good into the world.

But what do you think this is? All human prudence. Ah, how many divine works the human prudence has caused to fail in the midst of creatures! Like sluggards, they have reached the point of withdrawing from the holiest works. But my Will will know how to triumph over all and mock them; however, I cannot hide my sorrow for such a great human ingratitude at a good so great.”

Then, I continued my round in the Fiat, and while accompanying my lovable Jesus in His life down here, I felt pity for Him when I reached those points in which He was all alone, not even with His Celestial Mama, like in the desert and in the nights of His public life when, withdrawing from everyone, He would almost always remain outdoors, outside of built-up areas, alone, praying and even crying for our salvation. And I said to myself: 'My Jesus, your little daughter does not have the heart to leave You alone. I want to place myself by You, and if I can do nothing else, I will whisper to your ear: "I love You, I love You..." For the sake of your loneliness, prayers and tears, give me the Kingdom of your Will. Hurry - see how the world is falling; your Will will place it in safety.' But while I was thinking of this, my beloved Jesus came out from within my interior, and throwing Himself into my arms to enjoy my company, He told me: "My daughter, thank you. In each of my acts I await you always, to be able to say: 'The little daughter of my Will has never left Me alone.'

You must know that loneliness weighed heavy on Me, because the One who had come for all and to look for all, was to be asked for by all. For each of them I felt, vividly, the pain of the loneliness in which they left Me; and with my searching gaze, I kept searching to see whether anyone looked for Me and loved my company; and many times I looked for this comfort in vain. However, you must know that in so much loneliness in which the creatures left Me, I never remained alone. I had the company of the Angels and that of my Mama, because, though She was far away, my Divine Will brought Me Her heartbeat and all of Her acts as cortege around Me, to keep Me company. And also, from that time, It brought Me the newborn of my Fiat with all the cohort of the children of my Kingdom for my company, because all times belong to my Divine Will, and It has the virtue of reducing them to a single point, so as to have them in continuous act at all times, without ever ceasing. Furthermore, as the soul remembers what I did, and wants to be around Me, she prepares the void within herself in which to place the fruit of what I did and suffered."

The Divine Will is more than Mother. How It grows together with the soul and forms Its life in her. The lightning of the act done in It. Return of the breath of Jesus to make the Divine Will reign.

My flight in the eternal Fiat is continuous. It seems to me that I cannot be, nor can I stop, anywhere else but in It. More than life, I feel It inside and outside of me, and as much as I run and fly, I find but works - an interminable and boundless property, and Its life palpitating in everything and everywhere; and while being present up high and down below, this Divine Will preserves everything, and It is actor and spectator of everything. Now, my littleness wandered in the Divine Fiat, it went around through the whole Creation; and making my little 'I love You' resound in each created thing, it asked for the Kingdom of the Divine Will upon earth. And my lovable Jesus, making Himself seen while carrying me in His arms to let me follow the acts of His Divine Will, told me: "My daughter, how much my Will loves you! More than a mother, It holds you in Its arms; and while holding you tightly to Its bosom, It is present within you, to grow together with you; It palpitates in your heart, It circulates in your blood, It walks in your feet, It thinks in your mind, It speaks in your voice... Its love, Its jealousy, is so great, that if you are little, It makes Itself little; if you grow, It grows with you; if you operate, it expands you so much, as to extend you in all of its works.

A mother can leave her daughter, she can separate from her, and be far away; but my Will - never, because, making Itself the life of Its daughter, It becomes inseparable from her. So, even if It wanted to leave her, It cannot do it, because it is Its very life that lives in Its daughter, and that It has formed in her. Who could ever have this insuperable power and love of forming and raising her own life with her daughter? No one - only my Will, which, possessing an eternal love and a creative virtue, creates Its life in one who is reborn and wants only to be Its daughter. This is why you go around in the Creation: because this Mother - my Divine Will - wants, in all of Its acts, the life It has formed in you, Its daughter. Therefore, one who lives in my Divine Fiat runs the whirling, orderly and harmonious race of the whole Creation together with It. And since the orderly race of all the spheres forms the most beautiful and harmonious melody, the soul who runs with them forms her note of harmony which, echoing in the celestial fatherland, draws the attention of all the Blessed, who say: 'How beautiful is the sound we hear in the spheres, because the little daughter of the Divine Fiat is going around in them. It is one more note and one distinct sound that we hear; and the Divine Volition brings it to us, into our celestial regions.' Therefore, it is not you who run, but it is my Will that runs, and you run together with It."

Then, I continued thinking about the great prodigies and sublimities, of the Divine Fiat; and while I was feeling dissolved in It, my beloved Jesus added: "My daughter, just as the lightning is unleashed by the clouds and illuminates the earth, and then it withdraws again into the womb of the clouds to light up the earth very often with its light; in the same way, the soul who lives in my Will, as she operates, unleashes her lightnings from the womb of her humanity, and forms more light in the Sun of my Divine Fiat. Not only this, but she lights up the earth from the darkness of the human volition. However, the lightning unleashed by the clouds is limited light, while the lightning produced in my Divine Will is without limits, and within its light it carries the knowledge of It. In fact, operating in my Will contains the universal force, and therefore unique force - new creation, Divine Life; so, as she does her act of lightning, all the doors of my works open to receive the new creation and the lightning of light of the act of the creature done in my Fiat. Therefore, all of my works feel renewed and twice glorified, and so they all celebrate in feeling the new creative force over them."

After this, my always lovable Jesus made Himself seen as a little child in the depth of my little soul. He clasped me, He kissed me, He breathed over me, and I felt new life, new love, being infused in me, and I repeated for Him what He was doing to me. And repeating His kisses, He told me: "Little daughter of my Will, as my breath breathes over you, it renews you, and with its vivifying power it destroys in you the infection of the seed of the human volition and vivifies the seed of my Divine Fiat. This breath is the origin of the human life of the creature. As man withdrew from my Will, he lost my breath; and even though life remained in him, he no longer felt the vivifying force of my breath which, in vivifying him, maintained him beautiful, fresh and similar to his Creator. So, without my breath, man remained like that flower which, having no more rain, wind and Sun, fades, withers and, lowering its head, tends to die. Now, in order to rehabilitate the Kingdom of my Divine Will in the midst of creatures, it is necessary that my continuous breath return to their midst, which, breathing over them, more than wind, may let the Sun of my Will enter into them, so that, with Its heat, It may destroy the bad seed of the human volition and may render man beautiful and fresh again, just as he was created. And so, straightening up its stem under the rain of my grace, the flower raises its head, becomes vivified, acquires color, and tends toward the life of my Will - no longer toward death.

Oh, if the creatures knew the great good I am preparing, the surprises of love, the unheard-of graces - how much more attentive they would be! And those who know the knowledges about my Will oh, how they would put their lives in order to fling them into the midst of the world, so that creatures may dispose themselves to receive such a great good! In fact, these knowledges have the virtue of helping to facilitate the human dispositions for a good so great. But human ingratitude is always the same; instead of preparing themselves, they think of anything else, and they hurl themselves into sin.”

Difference between the Humanity and the Divinity of Jesus. How the Kingdom of the Fiat has all been prepared by Him but what is needed is those who would inhabit It. The language that Jesus used in Redemption, and that which He uses for the Kingdom of the Divine Will - one is different from the other.

My lovable Jesus made Himself seen as a little child who, all clinging to me, made me many loving cuddles. Oh, how beautiful it is to see Him in His baby Humanity, all love, all trust! The soul feels so much trust in being with Jesus, because she sees His Humanity in Him, which is so much like her that they join together like brothers, they identify themselves with each other, and one is transformed into the other. So, the veil of the Humanity of Jesus, in which He encloses His adorable Divinity, serves as a means of trust, by which the poor creature loses all fear, and remains all love with Jesus - more than a son in the arms of his Celestial Father. The love of Jesus is so great, that He says to the creature: ‘Do not fear, I am yours - similar to you, clothed like you; and my love is so great, that I hide the endless light of my majesty within my Humanity so as to have you be with Me like a little child in my arms.’ On the other hand, when my beloved Jesus makes His Divinity shine through Himself, His very Humanity is eclipsed within that endless light, and I feel the great distance between myself and my Creator. His blazing divine majesty annihilates me, I plunge myself into my dust; and not knowing where to go to escape His light, because there is no point at which it is not present, my little atom remains submerged within His very light. It seems to me that I am speaking nonsense, therefore I move on.

So, my highest Good, Jesus, told me: “My daughter, the Kingdom of my Will is all prepared within my Humanity, and I am ready to put It out to give It to the creatures. It can be said that I formed the foundations and raised the factories; the rooms are innumerable and all adorned and illuminated - not with little lights, but with as many Suns for as many truths as I have manifested about the Divine Fiat. Nothing else is needed but those who would inhabit It; there will be a place and room for all, because It is vast, more than the whole world. With the Kingdom of my Will everything will be renewed in Creation; things will return to their original state. This is why many scourges are necessary, and will take place - so that Divine Justice may place Itself in balance with all of my attributes, in such a way that, by balancing Itself, It may leave the Kingdom of my Will in Its peace and happiness. Therefore, do not be surprised if such a great good, which I am preparing and which I want to give, is preceded by many scourges. It is my Justice that claims Its rights, so that, once balanced, It may place Itself in peace with the creatures, bothering them no more; more so, since the children of the Kingdom of my Divine Fiat will no longer offend It, and my Divine Justice will change all of Itself into Love and Mercy for them.

Then, after this, I was following all the acts that Jesus had done in Redemption; and my sweet Jesus added: "My daughter, my language in Redemption was very different from that which I have used for the Kingdom of my Divine Will. In fact, in Redemption, my language was to adapt to people who were incapable, weak, ill, deaf, mute and blind - and many were on the verge of their tomb. Therefore, in order to speak to them, I made use of parables and similes of the low world, which they themselves could touch with their own hands. So, I spoke to them now as doctor, offering them medicines to heal them; now as father, who awaited their return even if they were unruly children; now as shepherd, who went in search of the lost sheep; now as judge who, unable to attract them by means of love, tried to attract them at least by threats and by fear... and many other similes. This language of Mine says that those to whom I was speaking did not know Me, did not love Me, and even less did they do my Will - on the contrary, they were far away from Me; and that I, with my parables, made the searches and laid the net in order to catch them and give to each one the remedy to heal them. But how many escaped Me! And I intensified my searches and teachings to give light to many blind, so that they might get out of their obstinate blindness.

Now, see how different is the language I have used in manifesting the truths about my Divine Will, which must serve the children of Its Kingdom! My language about the Fiat has been like a father in the midst of his dear and loving children, all healthy; and since all of them possess my very life within them, by virtue of my Will they will be capable of understanding my highest lessons. This is why I have moved beyond, placing before them the beautiful similes of the Sun, of the spheres, of the heavens, of the very divine way of operating, which extends to the infinite; because, having my Divine Fiat in them, they will have within them the very One who created heavens, spheres and Sun, who will give them the virtue of copying within themselves everything He created and the very ways He uses in His divine operating. They will be the copiers of their Creator. And this is why I have been so lengthy in manifesting the truths about my Fiat, which I did not do in Redemption; because those were parables which contained human and finite manners, therefore I did not have much material with which to be able to talk at length. On the other hand, the similes which regard my Will are of divine manners, and therefore there is so much material to talk about that they become inexhaustible. Who can measure the vastness of the light of the Sun and the intensity of Its heat? No one. Who can ever put a boundary to the heavens and to the multiplicity of my divine works? Oh! if you knew how much wisdom, love, grace, light I have placed in manifesting my truths about my Divine Fiat, you would be so drowned with joy as to no longer be able to live; and you would yearn for the work of your Jesus to be known, so that a work so exuberant, of incalculable price, may have its glory and may communicate its beneficial effects to the other creatures."

How by virtue of the Divine Fiat, created things are like members to man, and man is given their reason. How by withdrawing from It, man gave a blow and severed all of these members. How the Divine Will forms the mothers for Jesus.

I was doing my round through the whole Creation according to my usual way, in order to follow what the Divine Will had done in it. Oh, how beautiful it seemed to me! How the Divine Fiat enjoyed Its triumph, received Its full glory, had Its total dominion, and extended Its life everywhere and in every place. The Divine Fiat is light, and extends Its life of light; It is power, It is order, It is purity, and extends Its life of power, of order, of purity in all created things; and so with all the rest of Its divine qualities. Therefore, each created thing is sacred, more than a relic, because it encloses within itself the creative power and Will, and the very Life of the One who created it. So, while going around, I felt I wanted to love, adore, embrace and kiss the Sun, the heavens, the stars, the wind, the sea, because they enclosed and veiled the One who had created them, forming as though many residences for Him.

But while my mind was wandering in the Creation, my sweet Jesus told me: “My daughter, look at how beautiful Our works are - pure, holy and all orderly. We made use of Creation in order to form Our veils, Our vast residences; however, We held back from giving reason to them, because they were created for man, not for themselves, and therefore We reserved giving to man the capacity and reason of the whole Creation, so that, possessing Its reason, he would give Us the glory of the light of the Sun, of the heavens, of the wind, and of all the rest. So, We placed the created things as members of man, so that, possessing the reason of these members, he would use them in order to rise into these veils to find the One who resided within them as king, and to bring Him the glory and the love of these members given to him. But in order for man to do this, and to possess the reason which Sun, heavens, wind and the like, would have had, and to keep the created things as his own members, he was to possess the life and the dominion of Our Divine Fiat, which would give him the capacity, and vast and sufficient reason for the whole Creation, and would maintain the communication, the bond and the inseparability with all these members of created things. In fact, only Our Divine Will possesses the full reason of what It has done, and We gave this Will of Ours to man, that It might give him the reason of all of Our works. Everything came out as orderly from Us, and linked together as members to the body of man, because he was Our first love, the purpose of the whole Creation, and therefore in him We centralized all the reason that was needed for It.

Now, my daughter, by withdrawing from Our Divine Will, man gave a blow and severed his dear and holy members. This is why he knows little about the value, the sanctity, the power, the light which, as members of his, already belonged to him; and the Divine Maker remains without the glory, the love, the gratitude of the head of these members. See then, how necessary is the return of my Divine Fiat into the head, which is man, so as to restore the order created by Us, putting the head in its place, and reuniting the members once again for the one who, so barbarously and with harm to himself, keeps them severed. Don't you yourself feel how my Will alone has the virtue of putting you in communication with the whole Creation? Making you fly, It gives you the reason of the light, of the heavens, of the sea, of the wind; and wanting to animate all created things with your voice, from the smallest to the greatest, It repeats your delightful refrain: ‘It is I that love You and glorify You in the heavens, in the Sun, in the sea, in the wind, and also in the little bird that sings, in the little lamb that bleats, in the fragrance of the flower that ascends to You...’; and so on and on. It is the life of my Fiat which, having Its life in the whole Creation, and having Its life in you, makes you love within all things, which are already Its own.”

I remained pensive in hearing that, by virtue of the Fiat, man would possess the reason which the Sun, the sea, the wind... were to possess, and my beloved Jesus added: “My daughter, man too does this: he does not leave his reason inside the works he does; if he builds a house for himself, if he possesses a land and puts different plants in it, if he does one work or another, these are works which possess no reason - he keeps the reason for himself. And if he gives a reason, he gives it to his family, which is not works, but his own children; and he wants them to have the reason of his works, that they may use them according to the will of the father, so that he may receive the glory of his works from them. If man does this, why could I not do the same? Indeed, I do it with more order and with multiple works for the good of man, so as to have him near Me, together with Me, within Me, and so very united to Me -God as the head, and he as the members; and the Creation as his members, and man as the head of It.”

After this, I continued my acts in the Redemption, and I paused when my charming baby Jesus was in Egypt, and my Celestial Mama, while rocking Him in his poor cradle, was occupied with preparing some clothes for the little baby. Placing myself near the Queen Mama, I made my ‘I love You’ flow in the thread that was used for the little garment of Jesus, and I rocked the cradle to make my Celestial Baby sleep, making my lullabies of love for Him, and asking Him for the Divine Fiat. And while it seemed He would close His eyes to sleep, to my surprise, I saw Him raise His little head, and looking at Our Divine Mama and myself, He said in a most tender tone: “My two Mamas, my Mama and the little daughter of my Will... My Divine Will unites them together for Me, and makes them both be my Mama. Why is the Celestial Queen my true Mother? Because She possessed the Life of my Divine Fiat. It alone could administer to Her the seed of divine fecundity, to make Me be conceived in Her womb and make Me Her Son. So, without my Divine Will, in no way could She be my Mama, because no one else, either in Heaven or on earth, possesses this seed of the divine fecundity, which can do no less than make the Creator be conceived in the creature. See then: my Divine Will formed the Mama for Me, and made Me Her Son; now It is forming for Me Its little daughter as my mama, and It makes Me find her near my first Mother so as to let her repeat Her acts, braiding them together, and to make her impetrate Its Kingdom, and therefore let her repeat Its divine seed and the fecundity of the Fiat Voluntas Tua in the creatures. My Will alone can do everything and can give Me everything.”

Then, closing His eyes to sleep, while sleeping, He repeated: “My two Mamas, my two Mamas...” How tender and moving it was to hear Him! How it wounded the heart to see Him interrupt His sleep to say: “My two Mamas...” Oh, Divine Will, how lovable, powerful and admirable You are! O please! Descend into the hearts of all, and place this divine seed of Yours in them, so that your fecund seed may form your Kingdom, and may make You reign on earth as You do in Heaven.

Pains of Jesus and contest of light. The acts done in the Fiat are little rocks and little winds in the sea of the Divine Will.

I felt deprived of my sweet Jesus, and I agonized for His return. But, alas! - while my poor heart was tortured, my beloved Jesus doubled my pains by making Himself seen all wounded, crowned with thorns - and these thorns were so sunk into His flesh, that He could not be looked at. What a pitiable and sorrowful scene! He threw Himself into my arms to be soothed. Oh, how He agonized, moaned and writhed! I clasped Him in my arms; I wanted to take the thorns out of Him, but I found it impossible, so sunken were they. And Jesus, sobbing, told me: “My daughter, how much I suffer! If you knew how much creatures offend Me, and how they themselves arm my Justice, to be struck by It”

And while He was saying this, it seemed that lightnings, flames and ice were coming down from Heaven to strike the creatures. I was frightened, but it was more frightening to me to see Jesus reduced so barbarously. So I continued to pray, and I said to myself: 'Oh, I how I wish to convert everything thoughts, words, works, steps of all creatures -into Will of God, so that sin may exist no more! I wish to eclipse them with the light of the Divine Will, so that, invested with light and enchanted by it, eclipsed by divine light, the creatures may lose the strength, the passions, the will to offend my sweet Jesus.'

But while I was thinking of this, my beloved Jesus told me: "My daughter, as the soul takes on the commitment to wanting to convert all human acts into my Will, she forms her rays which, expanding, take the earth as though in their power. And rising up to Heaven, more than solar rays, they invest the Sun of my Will; and plunging themselves into It, they form one single Sun, as though making a contest of light. Everything - Heaven and earth - is enchanted and eclipsed by the Sun of my Will; and even my Justice is eclipsed by this light, in such a way that many scourges are spared."

Then, after I had written for quite a while, my sweet Jesus came out from within my interior, and taking my face in His hands, told me: "My daughter, I want to pay you for the sacrifice of writing that you made."

And I: 'I have been writing for three nights, and you have not given me anything. It seems to me that You are quite sparing now; you no longer show me that great satisfaction that You used to show me before, when I used to write; nor do You command me to write any more with that loving empire of yours, as You used to do. To me, it seems that You have changed.'

And Jesus: "I cannot change, nor is it of the divine nature to change. The human nature changes, but the divine never does. Therefore, be certain that nothing has changed in Me. But do you know what I want to give you as recompense? My own Life. Each truth I manifest to you is gifts of divine life that I give you; and I give you the freedom not only to keep this great gift for yourself, but to multiply it, in order to give it to whomever you want, and to whomever wanted to receive it.

You must know that each act, word, thought done by the creature in my Divine Will are little rocks that she throws into Its sea which, rippling, overflows outside for the good of all. Other times, they are many little winds, which make the sea of my Fiat swell and form Its waves, more or less high, according to the multiplicity of the little winds that the creature forms in my sea. And as these waves rise, they descend again - part into the sea, and part flooding the earth. Oh, how delightful it is to see the creature - now coming to throw her little rocks into Our sea, now coming to blow, forming her little wind. And the sea smiles at her by rippling, making feast for her by receiving her little wind and forming the waves. So, the soul who lives and operates in my Fiat gives Us the occasion to make Our sea rise, and gives Us the field to flood the earth and Heaven. And since it is Divine Will that flows, It disposes the creature to ask for Its Kingdom, and We feel that the creature who lives in Our Divine Will calls back the feasts, the amusements, the games of the beginning of Creation with her Creator. Everything is licit for one who lives in Our Will, and We let her do everything, because she wants nothing but Our Will and Our echo which resounds in her. Letting herself be carried by Our divine echo, now she throws her little rock, now she forms her little wind which, now forms the waves, now moans, now speaks, now prays that it wants Our Divine Fiat to be known and loved, and to dominate over the earth.”

Interest of God in one who lives in His Divine Will. Example of the Sun. How everything will be known of the sacrifices which Luisa has made to make the Divine Will known.

I felt oppressed because of the privation of my beloved Jesus. Oh! how I would have wanted to take a leap into the Celestial regions never to leave again, and so end it with these blessed privations of Him that make me live dying. Ah! yes, if by His goodness Jesus lets me reach His fatherland, He will no longer be able to hide from me, nor will I ever again be deprived of Him even for one instant. ‘Therefore, hurry, my Love - let us end it once and for all with these privations of You, for I cannot take any more’. And I felt so embittered, that my poor soul was pierced through, more than by a sharp sword.

Now, at that moment, my beloved Jesus came out from within my interior and told me: “My daughter, courage, don’t you know that Our interest in one who does my Will and lives in It is so great, that she is kept by Us as Our own thing, exclusively Ours, inseparable from Us? Our Divine Volition is inseparable from Us, and as much as Its light spreads, the center of It is always within Us - symbolized by the light of the Sun which, while expanding and extending over the whole earth, holding it in Its hand of light, never departs from Its sphere, nor is the light divided or loses even one drop of light. In fact, light is not separable, and if it could be divided, it would no longer be true light. Therefore, the Sun can say: ‘All of the light is mine’. The same for Us: the light of Our Divine Will is interminable and inseparable, and It makes the soul in whom It reigns Our own and inseparable from Us. So, since We keep her as Our own thing, it is Our interest to honor Ourselves, and to invest her so much with all of Our divine qualities, as to be able to say to all: ‘In this creature there is Divine Life, because the light of Our Fiat dominates in her.’ So, it is Our interest that everything be holy, pure and beautiful in her, and that she be invested by Our happiness - everything must give of Divine Will.

When the earth is invested by the light of the Sun, it loses darkness and becomes all light, in such a way that the light acts as queen, and dominating the earth, it becomes the nourisher of it, communicating to it the life and the effects of the light. In the same way, when It reigns in the creature, Our Divine Will dispels the evils, puts to flight darkness, weaknesses, miseries and afflictions, and, as queen, becomes her nourisher with light, with strength, with divine riches and with happiness. Therefore, for one who lives in Our Fiat, bitternesses, oppressions and everything that gives of human will, lose their place, because the light of Our Fiat tolerates nothing but what belongs to It. And just as Our Divine Will takes all interest in the creature, as something that belongs to It, so the creature loses all human interests and acquires all divine interests. From this it can be seen whether my Divine Will reigns in her: if she no longer feels any interest of her own; and if she does, it means that the soul does not possess all the fullness of my Fiat there are still little voids empty of Its light, and therefore the human makes itself felt, and the soul comes to take on human interests. Therefore, let bitternesses and oppressions out of your soul - these are things which no longer belong to you; to you belongs the light and everything that the light of my Will can possess.”

After this, I was thinking to myself: 'How many sacrifices are needed for this Kingdom of the Fiat: sacrifice of writing, sacrifice of rest and of sleep, sufferings, incessant prayers, continuous death to the human volition so that the Divine may have perennial life... and many other things that only Jesus knows. And after all this, maybe nothing good will be seen, no glory to God... Therefore, so many sacrifices without utility and without effects.' But while I was thinking of this, my always lovable Jesus came out from within my interior, and clasping me in His arms, told me: "My daughter, what are you saying? There is no sacrifice you have made which will not have its value and its precious effects, because everything that is done in my Will, and to impetrate that It be known, acquires divine life and communicative virtue by nature, in such a way as to communicate to others the divine life and the virtue it possesses; so much so, that at this moment everything you have done and suffered is present before God in impetorative act to obtain that the creatures dispose themselves, and that God concede a good so great. Then, when my Will becomes known and Its reign is fulfilled, all of the words you have written, the night vigils, your incessant prayers, your going round and round in the work of Creation and Redemption, your many years of bed, your pains and sacrifices, will shine like solar rays, like diamonds and precious stones of infinite value which, little by little, will be recognized by those who will have the great good of knowing my Will, and of living in Its Kingdom. Even more, they will know that the foundations bejeweled and the factories raised are cemented with the many sacrifices of the one to whom the mission of making known the Kingdom of my Will was entrusted. Everything will be known in clear notes, also those who have contributed, who have directed you, who have commanded you to write - and whether they interested themselves with making known, either with words or with writings, that which regards my Divine Fiat. And this is nothing; all the good that those who will possess the Kingdom of my Fiat will do, and the glory that they will give Me, will descend and ascend again into the ones who have been the beginning and the cause of a good so great. And even if you are in Heaven, the communicative virtue of my Will which has lived in you on earth, will place you in communication with them; it will keep all the ways open between you and them. So, your life and everything you have done and suffered will be in their midst; and everything they will do will have its origin in you, because one is the Divine Will of one and of the other. And if you knew the glory, the contentments, the delights that will come to you, you would love to sacrifice yourself more, so that my Will be known and dominate in the midst of creatures."

One who operates in the Divine Will opens as many doors between Heaven and earth, for as many acts as she emits. The glory of Adam in Heaven. How his acts prior to his fall into sin remained intact and beautiful, while he remained wounded. How, in Adam, it is known in Heaven what God did in the Creation.

I was following all that the Divine Will had done in the Creation and Redemption. I wished to leave not even one of Its acts without my little act, as company and perennial homage of glory and of love for a Will so holy. And my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: "My daughter, how content I am that you do not leave my Divine Will isolated in Its so many works, done not for Itself, as It had no need of It, but only out of love for the creature. You must know that as you move from one of Our works to another to recognize Our love in them and to give Us love and glory, We find the return of Our love in the one who recognizes Our works. How bitter and sorrowful it is to do good out of pure love, and not to be recognized; and when We find one who recognizes Our works, We feel as though repaid for what We have done, because We gave love, and love We receive; and to one who lives and operates in Our Divine Will We give freedom to establish many bonds between Heaven and earth, to open many doors of communication, to place many chains so as to make her acts ascend into Heaven, and make many graces descend for the good of all creatures. In fact, these works of Ours - that of Creation and that of Redemption - have been done upon the face of the earth, and have the virtue of opening Heaven, and in order to open It, We make use of one who operates in Our Divine Will.” And while He was saying this, He showed me many open doors in Heaven, through which many gold chains descended, which bound the earth for as many works as my sweet Jesus had done.

Then, I continued my round in the works of the Supreme Majesty, and as I reached the point of the creation of man, I thought to myself: ‘Adam lived the beginning of his life in the Divine Will, therefore his thoughts, words, works and steps were animated by the unity of the Fiat which embraces everything and contains everything - nothing escapes It. So, his acts possessed the totality and fullness of everyone and of all goods; and if one act alone done in this way - in the unity of the Fiat which embraces everything - is such that all of the other acts of creatures put together cannot equal this one act, Adam, who lived a period of his life in this unity of the Fiat - who knows how many he was able to do...! So, his glory in Heaven must be great, and perhaps it surpasses everything, except for the Sovereign Queen who formed Her whole life in the Divine Will. It is true that Adam sinned and went out of this unity of Divine Will, but though he went out, his acts remained, because I believe that no force, either divine or human, can destroy even one act alone done in this unity of the Fiat which embraces everything and possesses everything. God Himself cannot annihilate a similar act; at most, He would have to destroy His own Divine Will, which He cannot do either, because being eternal and infinite, without beginning and without end, It is untouchable by anything, and no one can touch It.’

While my poor and little mind wandered amidst these and other thoughts, and I would have wanted to free myself so as to move on, my beloved Jesus, making Himself seen, told me: “Daughter, of my Supreme Volition, I want to hide nothing from you, because for one who lives in It, my Will Itself becomes the revealer of what It has done for love of the creature, and of that which the creature herself has done in It, because It carries these acts in Its womb, as the triumph of Its works. Now, you must know that, indeed, Adam possesses a glory in Heaven which is given to no one else, as holy as he may be, except for my Celestial Mama, because no one else possesses even one act in the unity of my Divine Will. It was just and decorous for Our Divine Majesty that the first creature that came out of Our creative hands possess more glory than all the others; more so, since the first period of his life was carried out as We wanted. One can say that it was Our life, Our Will and Our works that flew within him. How could We destroy this first period of the life of Adam, since it was more Ours than his? It is useless even to think about it; whatever is done in Our Divine Will remains untouchable - no one can touch It, because these acts enter the divine and infinite order. And even though Adam slipped and fell, his acts done up to that moment remained intact and beautiful, just as he did them. He was the one who remained wounded, ill, Our image disfigured in him, because Our Divine Will, which had taken on the commitment to keep him beautiful, fresh, strong, holy, completely in order with Us, just as We created him, was no longer in him, because Adam himself had rejected It. But his works done up to the moment in which he had the misfortune to fall, and which possessed the unity of Our Fiat, suffered no change, because We too were jealous of these acts which had glorified Us so much. They had put Us in feast, as We saw that man, Our son, elevated himself up to Us in order to absorb within him Our divine manners, Our likeness, and to bring Us joys, happinesses, the return and the smile of all created things in the unity of Our Will. We were enraptured in seeing Our dear son, the work of Our hands, live in Our Will as in Our home; taking from Our own, he was able to bring Us new happinesses and joys without end.

My daughter, the first period of the life of Adam is unforgettable for Us, for him, and for all Heaven. After he fell into sin, he remained like a blind person who, before losing his sight, has done so many beautiful works as to fill Heaven and earth. Who could ever say that those are not works done by him, only because he voluntarily lost his sight? And that since he can no longer repeat them because he is blind, the ones he has done remain without value? Certainly no one. Or, if a person who applies himself to study science, in the middle of his studies no longer wants to continue, can anyone take away or destroy the good of the science he has acquired, only because he does not continue? Certainly not. If this happens in the human order, much more so, and with more validity and certainty, in the divine order.

So, by virtue of the first period of his life, innocent and carried out all in the unity of Our Fiat, Adam possesses such glory and beauty that no one can equal him. At the mere sight of him, all of the Blessed recognize how beautiful and majestic the creation of the first man was, enriched with so much grace. In looking at him, they can see, in him, the incalculable good of the Divine Will in the creature, and the joy and happiness that the creature can possess. In him alone, as though within a mirror, the Blessed can see how man was created, the exuberant love that We had for him, the abundance with which We enriched him. We gave him everything, as much as a creature could contain, to the point of overflowing outside and being able to flood the whole earth. If it were not so - if the whole magnificence of Our creative hands could not be seen in Adam - then the great things We did in the Creation, and that which the creature does and can do in Our Divine Will would not be known even in Heaven. It is Our love that demands this, and also Our justice that wants to keep, in Heaven, the reality of that image, as man was created - and not another man, but the very one who came out of Our creative hands, so that, if the earth does not know him, Heaven may know him. They look at their origin in Adam, and, grateful, they thank Me and pray that my Fiat may come to reign upon earth, and form more images, more beautiful than Adam, because he was not a complete work in my Divine Will, but a period of life. Only the Sovereign Queen possesses complete life and works in my Fiat, therefore there is no one who can equal Her. My Will wants to make more complete lives in It, so as to repeat what It did in the Creation, to make known to the earth the way and the order in which the creature was -created, and the great, beautiful, holy things that my Divine Will can do in her.

Moreover, you must know that, up to now, I have not manifested to anyone either the great qualities of Adam, or his sublimity, greatness and sanctity as he lived his first period of life in the unity of my Will; and by virtue of his acts done in It, the great glory that he enjoys in Heaven. Many, on the contrary, believed that since he slipped into sin, he could at most have a glory common to all the other Blessed, or perhaps even less than the others. But wanting to restore again the Kingdom of my Divine Will, I feel within Me a necessity of love to manifest the first epoch of Creation, and the first period of the life of Adam - all of Divine Will - as well as the glory which he enjoys in Heaven by virtue of It, so that, as the other creatures come to know a good so great, they may dispose themselves and long for the Divine Fiat on earth as It is in Heaven.”

As She was conceived, the Virgin conceived the Kingdom of the Fiat, as She was born, She gave back to us the rights to possess It. Difficulties in writing. Wounds that Jesus receives.

My abandonment in the Fiat is continuous; and while I was following Its acts, my poor mind paused to think about the conception of the Celestial Queen and Her great fortune at being exempted from original sin. And my beloved Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, the seed with which the Celestial Sovereign Queen was conceived was taken from the human stock, because She too had Her human life as all the other creatures, and as I Myself had. However, there is this great difference, not conceded to any other creature: before Her beautiful soul was conceived, my Fiat, with Its omnipotence, concentrated Its rays in this human seed, and with Its light and heat It annihilated the evil that was in it, and made it die, purifying the seed completely, and rendering it pure, holy, and exempt from original sin; and then, the Immaculate Baby was conceived in this seed.

So, the whole portent of the Immaculate Conception was operated by my Divine Will. It did not make another human seed, nor did It destroy it, but It purified it. With Its heat and light It removed all the humors which this seed had contracted from the sin of Adam, and It restored in Her the human seed, just as it had come out of Our creative hands. Therefore, as the little Virgin Queen was conceived, the Kingdom of my Divine Will was conceived in Her and in the human generations, because in forming and giving surprising graces to one creature, in her We look at the whole humanity of the human family, as if it were one alone. See then, as the Virgin was conceived in this seed exempt from every stain - which was all work of the Divine Fiat - Its Divine Kingdom was conceived again within humanity; and as the Immaculate little Virgin was born, the right to possess It was given back to humanity. Now, when I came upon earth to take on human flesh, I made use of the seed of the Sovereign Queen of Heaven, and it can be said that We worked together to form again this Kingdom of Ours in the human generations. There is nothing left but to know It in order to possess It. This is why I am manifesting that which belongs to my Kingdom and to my Divine Will, so that the creature may cover Its ways, follow Our steps, and take possession of It. And my Divine Will, with Its light and heat, will repeat the prodigy of removing the bad humors that the human seed possesses; and to be sure, It will place the seed of Its light and heat, constituting Its life of that seed. In this way, they will exchange possessions: my Divine Will will take possession of the seed to form Its life of light, of heat and sanctity in it; and the creature will return to take new possession of the Kingdom of my Divine Fiat.

See then, my daughter, everything is ready - nothing else is needed but to make It known. And this is why I so much yearn that what regards my Divine Will become known - to cast into creatures the desire to possess a good so great, so that my Will, drawn by their desires, may concentrate Its luminous rays and, with Its heat, perform the prodigy of giving them back the right to possess Its Kingdom of peace, of happiness and of sanctity.”

After this, having to write what Jesus had told me, I found it almost impossible. I tried the first, the second, the third time, and seeing that I could not manage, I thought to myself that blessed Jesus no longer wanted me to write, and therefore I too should not want it. So I gave up the thought of trying harder; but then I wanted to try again, and I seemed to manage, with even greater ease than other times. So I thought to myself: 'And why so many sacrifices, so many difficulties, attempts and new attempts to write, without managing to do it; and then, after so many difficulties, doing it with ease?' And my sweet Jesus, coming out from within my interior, told me: "My daughter, do not be concerned. I wanted to take pleasure from you a little bit, and to enjoy the sweetness squeezed out of your sacrifices. As you tried to write and could not manage, and tried again, I felt wounded by your love in wanting to sacrifice yourself to fulfill my Divine Will for you to write; and I to take pleasure from your wounds, rendered you incapable of keeping your eyes open in order to write. So, don't you want your Jesus to amuse Himself with you, and to take a little pleasure? Moreover, you must know that the sacrifice made to fulfill my Will forms pure, noble and divine blood for the soul, just as food forms blood for the body; and I, dipping my brush of love in this blood, amuse Myself in forming, in her, my image in the creature, more beautiful and more delightful. Therefore, let Me do; and you, think only of doing my Divine Will, and I will do something more beautiful in the little newborn of my adorable Will."

How from the beginning of Creation God has always given to man. The siege of the human will. Value of the acts done in the Divine Volition. Example of the Sun.

I continued my round in the Creation, to keep company with all the works of the Divine Fiat; and being together with It - oh, how rich in light I felt, and possessor of everything! It seemed to me that everything was mine, because the Divine Will gave me everything, and by going around in It, I received everything. And my sweet Jesus, coming out from within my interior, told me: "Oh, how rich and ruling the little daughter of my Divine Will is in the midst of Our works! They are so many, that she cannot embrace them all; and We, delighting in seeing her in the midst of Our works, keep repeating: 'Everything is yours - We have created it for you, to see you rich, beautiful and ruling.' And you, renewing the contest with Us, say to Us: 'How many beautiful works I have, that I can give You - all of your works are mine, and I return them to You, into your arms, as the glory and triumph of your works.' From the moment We created the Creation, We have always - always given to man, without ever ceasing, while he has given nothing to Us; and if he tried to give Us something, they were things extraneous to Us, meager, and unworthy of Us. But when Our Divine Will is recognized and the creature comes to live in It, she will take possession of Our works. Then will We cease to give, because We have given enough so much, that she will not be able to embrace it all. The creature will begin to give to her Creator, and she will give Us, not things extraneous and unworthy of Us, but Our own things - the fruits of Our own works. Oh, how glorified, loved and honored We will feel! So, the knowledge of the Divine Fiat, the return of Its life to the midst of creatures, will open the contest between Creator and creature; she will be able to give to Us, and We will be able to let her possess. This will be the return of Our works into Our womb. Therefore, let your flight in Our Divine Fiat be continuous, that We may give you everything, and you may give Us everything.

Moreover, one who lives in Our Will lives of light and by the power of Its light, Our Will has the virtue of knocking down all evils, of taking life away from passions, of dispelling darkness. So, with Its light, the Divine Will has the virtue of rendering the creature incapable of doing and of receiving any harm. Who could ever wage war against the light? No one. Who could ever say: 'I can prevent the passage of light'? No one. And if anyone tried to do it, the light would laugh at him, and with its triumphing virtue it would invest him, pass him from above, from below and from every place; and making fun of him, while following its course, it would keep him under its power and pressure of light, unless he went to hide himself in some dark abyss. Does the Sun not do this? Much more so does the Sun of my Will, and the soul who lives in this light does nothing but expand the capacity of her intelligence to be able to receive more light. So, each act done in my Divine Fiat forms, with its light, the void in the human mind to be able to communicate more and greater light."

After this, I was thinking of how the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat could come, and my sweet Jesus added: "My daughter, all things in my hands can be means to obtain the intent that my Divine Will be known and reign in the midst of creatures. I will act like a king when he wants a city to surrender to his dominion: he lays siege to it; he makes its people touch with their own hands - if they do not surrender he will make them die of starvation; and when the people see that they lack the means to survive, they surrender. So the king lifts the siege; ruling, he enters the city; he provides all the means of support in a superabundant way; he gives them feasts and amusements, and makes that people happy. So I will do: I will lay siege to the human will; I will embitter and destroy that which serves to nourish it and therefore many chastisements will occur, which will be nothing but the siege I will lay to all that is human, in such a way that, tired and disillusioned, they will feel the need for my Divine Fiat to reign in their midst; and as soon -as It sees that they long for It, It will take dominion, It will provide them with everything in abundance, and will make them happy. Therefore, you, have no concern; I know how to dispose all the events in order to obtain the intent."

Then, I was thinking to myself about the great value of our acts done in the Divine Fiat, which is such, that while the act is one, it can extend to all. And my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: "My daughter, the light of the Sun gives light to the whole creature with one single blow of light, in such a way that, in the same instant and with one single act, it gives light to her gaze, to her mouth, to her hands, to her steps - to everything; nor does it need to repeat its act of light for as many members as the creature has, but one single act of light is enough for everything, so that each member and object may have its light all to itself. The same for the acts done in my Divine Volition: since they are children of the light of my Divine Will, with one single act It can make light for all, It can extend everywhere, because it is a virtue and property that the light of my Divine Fiat possesses within Itself - that is, with one single act It can give light to all. And if there is any difference, it is on the part of those who receive it: one who is disposed takes the good of the light and profits from it; one who is not disposed, even though he feels himself full of light, does not take the good it contains. It happens as to the Sun, which gives light to all, and no one can say: 'It does not give its light to me'. And since all can receive it as they please, it provokes no jealousy. However, there can be great difference: some make use of the light to work, and they earn their profit; some enjoy the light and remain idle, earning nothing; some make use of it to amuse themselves; some to sin. The light does not change - it is always light and performs its office of light; but not all of those who receive it make a profit from it, or use it in the same way. Such is my Divine Will and the acts done in It: they are always light, but those who profit from this light are the ones who are disposed."

How it is Will of God for Him to give His Kingdom but the creature must dispose herself. Example of a father. The only purpose of the whole Creation: that the Fiat reign in the midst of creatures. The way used by Jesus in telling His truths.

I was thinking to myself: 'Jesus desires so much to give us the great gift of the Kingdom of His Fiat; He yearns to -He wants to. Now, why does He want us to pray in order to give It to us?' And my always lovable Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: "My daughter, indeed it is my Will to give you the Kingdom of my Divine Volition, nor can I help wanting and yearning to give the great gift of It. If it were not so - if I did not yearn for the return of man into the royal palace of my Divine Will - I would go against the order of Our creative work which, with highest wisdom, created man so that he might live of Our own, and dwell in the Kingdom of Our Fiat, given to him by Us as his inheritance. By going out of it, man formed disorder in Our creative work; and how can We tolerate letting Our most beautiful work remain disordered? Centuries upon centuries have passed, and more centuries may pass, but We will not change; this will always be Our most important point - Our only purpose and special interest: that Our creative work be restored and reordered as it came out of Our creative hands, and that, it live in the Kingdom of Our Divine Will.

Our Adorable Majesty finds Itself in the condition of a father whose son was once happy, of rare beauty which brought him joy and happiness, and lived as the owner of the inheritance given to him by his father. This son, voluntarily, left the paternal inheritance; he rendered himself unhappy, and broke the beautiful and pure joys between father and son. Now, what would the sorrow of the father not be, and his sighs, his tears and his unshakeable will for his dear son to return to be happy? More so, since the inheritance given to the son still exists - the father himself keeps it in custody, and he longs for his son to take possession of it once again. But in the midst of so much sorrow, and tears and sighs of this father, his will is resolute: he wants his unhappy son to desire - to pray that his paternal inheritance, his lost happiness, be returned to him. This disposes the son to receive and to appreciate his happy state, the return of his inheritance; and the father, drowned with love for his dear son, will say: 'Your prayer has formed a right over my heart that bums for you. Take again what you lost - you have deserved it. I am content as long as I see you happy, and I can say, "my son is no longer unhappy, but happy".'

Now, We are more than a father - even more, his love is a shadow compared to Ours, and Our Divine Will is unshakeable - no one will be able to change It: the unhappiness of man is a disorder for the work of Creation, and We want Our rights over Our work; We want it to return to Us just as it came out. Our love drowns Us, Our justice demands it, Our goodness claims it, Our very happiness longs for it and does not tolerate unhappiness in Our work. Our Divine Will, surrounding Us like a crown, renders Us immutable and wants Its Kingdom to be possessed. But in spite of this, We want the creature to pray to yearn for the good We want to give. This forms a right over Our paternal Heart, and a place within his heart to be able to receive what We want to give, so that We may be able to say in Our emphasis of love: 'My son, you have deserved it, and We have given you what We wanted to give you.' One who prays disposes himself, that which is obtained by praying is appreciated, is kept safe. And since the knowledge of my Divine Will, the possession of Its Kingdom, is not an individual good, but a general one, in order to obtain it, I have you pray for all, in the name of all, and of each thought, word and act of creature, so that you may form the right over Our divine paternity that all may receive the Kingdom of Our Fiat, as well as the dispositions within themselves to be able to possess It. So the Queen of Heaven did, to impetrate the Kingdom of Redemption. She had a prayer, a sigh, an act for all, and for each one - She let no one escape Her; and by this, She gave to each one the right to be able to receive their Redeemer. So I did to redeem them, and so I want you to do for the Kingdom of my Divine Will.”

After this, I continued thinking: ‘And why has the Lord so much interest, and does He love so much that His Holy Will be known and reign in the midst of creatures?’ And my sweet Jesus added: “My daughter, because the first purpose, act and end of Creation was that Our Divine Will alone reign; and in order for It to reign, it is necessary to know It. It was Our Will that entered the field of action in Creation, that imposed Itself on the ‘nothing’ with Its creating Fiat, and created heavens, Suns and many beautiful works - and man too. And in all the works It created It placed the seal of Its omnipotent Fiat as the indelible sign that It would remain inside each of Its works as ruling king inside his kingdom. So, the purpose of Creation was not Our power, Our goodness, Our justice, Our immensity, and the like; and if all of Our attributes concurred in It, it was as consequence, not as purpose. If We do not obtain the purpose, it is as if We had done nothing; and since all created things were made for man, and man for Us, here is why, by necessity of love, by right of justice, for the honor and decorum of Ourselves and of all of Our works, and as the fulfillment of Our purpose, We want Our Divine Will to reign in man as origin, life and end of his whole being. If you knew how much my Fiat suffers in looking at man; It looks at him, and says in Its sorrow: ‘Did I really make him with my creative hands? Is he my work - is he really the one whom I so much delighted in creating? Yet I am not within him as in my kingdom; he broke my seal, and putting Me out, he destroys the purpose for which I gave him life.’ See then, how it is absolute necessity that my Divine Will be known and reign; and until it does, Our most beautiful works cannot produce for man the goods which they contain - the very work of Redemption is without fulfillment.”

Then, I continued thinking: ‘And why does my beloved Jesus not speak about His Fiat as often as before?’ And Jesus added: “My daughter, Our usual -way is to give the truths We want to manifest sip by sip, because the creature is incapable of receiving, all at once, all of Our truths within her soul. At the same time, We do this in order to let the life of the truth We have manifested mature within her. And taking great delight in seeing in the creature, matured, the beautiful works which the life of Our truths produces, We feel drawn by the beauty of Our manifestations to manifest yet more truths; and this is why We give time - to have the time and the occasion to take delight in giving more communications. Did We not do the same in Creation? We could have created everything that exists all at once and with one single Fiat, but We did not do it. When Our Fiat was pronounced and Our works came out, We delighted in looking at the beauty and magnificence of Our works, and these moved Us to pronounce more Fiats, so as to form other beautiful works. So I am doing with you. Don’t you know that that which regards my Divine Will and Its Kingdom is nothing but the continuation of Creation - the narration which was to be made to man, had he not sinned, and had he possessed my Kingdom of the Fiat? But since he rejected my Divine Will, he interrupted the narration of the story of my Will; more so, since my Will no longer had reason to continue it because man no longer possessed Its Kingdom. Now, after so many centuries, my Will has resumed Its narration to make Itself known - a sign that It wants to give Its Kingdom. So, what I manifest to you about my Divine Will is nothing but the continuation -continuing from the beginning of Creation in order to narrate the life of the Divine Will.”

One who lives in the Divine Will can form light. Each truth about It contains a happiness distinct from the others.

My abandonment in the Divine Fiat is continuous. It seems to me that It does not leave me even for one instant; and I feel Its light within me and over me, Its creative force, Its life which, while being in me, always has something to give me... And what does It give me? It gives me ever new light, new creative force, new growth of Its very life; in such a way that I feel like a sponge soaked with Divine Will. And even though my sweet Jesus keeps me almost deprived of His adorable presence, or, at most, with a few fleeting flashes of Him, the light of His Divine Fiat never leaves me. And if my poor heart feels it is about to be drowned because of the pain of being without Him, the light of the Fiat darts through me more strongly and eclipses my pain; and as I feel inseparable from It, It makes me follow Its divine acts.

So, while I was following the acts of the Divine Volition, my beloved and highest Good, Jesus, coming out from within the light of His Fiat, told me: "My daughter, as the soul places herself in the act of doing her act in my Divine Will, she places herself within the source of Its light, and forms her own light. If you knew what it means to be able to form light... What glory, what honor for the creature to acquire the virtue of being able to form light! To no one is it given to be able to form light - only to one who lives in my Divine Will. In fact, my Will nourishes the soul with light, and she, feeding on light, acquires the gift and the natural property of forming light. Oh! how delightful it is for Us to see that the creature, within the source of Our light, forms her own, to give it to Us and say: 'Adorable Majesty, eternal light You are, and light You give me; and I bring You my little light as the greatest homage, the most intense love, which, squeezing the sponge of my little being soaked with your light, forms my light for You, to give it to You.' So, many beautiful scenes of light form between the soul and God, with the harmony of all the colors that light possesses. What does light not possess? It possesses colors, sweetnesses, fragrances, flavors of all kinds... And so the scenes alternate - one more beautiful than the other. Here is how the living in my Divine Fiat calls again within itself the beginning of Creation, and repeats for Us the joys and the feasts of the beginning of It: the creature enters Our order - into Our acts, and gives Us joys and happinesses; and We keep impressing Our likeness upon her forehead."

After this, I was continuing my acts in the Divine Volition, and my sweet Jesus added: "My daughter, great graces have I given to you and, through you, to the whole world by manifesting to you so many truths about my Divine Will. In fact not only are my truths divine lives which my highest Goodness puts out, bilocating Its life for as many truths as It manifests, but each of these lives -contains a happiness distinct from the others, to be communicated to creatures, and a glory, different from the others, which the creatures can give to the One who has manifested it. However, these happinesses will be communicated to the creatures when they come to know these truths. They are like as many queens, each possessing extensive properties, distinct from one another, and they are waiting for the peoples to know that these queens exist, which contain their properties, and yearn and want to enrich and make happy the ones for whom they were delivered from Our divine womb. If you knew how suffocated Our love remains, after having released so many happinesses from Our paternal womb, for as many truths as We have manifested, in seeing that the creatures do not enjoy these feasts, nor give Us the glory which they should give Us, because they ignore such a great good, and only because they do not want to occupy themselves with making known a good, and graces so great. This is a sorrow for Us which you cannot comprehend; therefore, pray - pray incessantly that my Divine Will be known and reign in the midst of creatures, so that, as Father, I may break the bread of happiness for my children.”

Exchange between Jerusalem and Rome. In creating man, God placed as many seeds of happiness in him for as many things as He created.

My poor mind was thinking about many things regarding the Divine Will - especially about how Its Kingdom could come, how It could spread... and many other things which it is not necessary to write on paper. And my beloved Jesus, moving in my interior, told me: “My daughter, if Rome has the primacy of my Church, she owes it to Jerusalem, because the beginning of Redemption was precisely in Jerusalem. In that homeland, from the little town of Nazareth I chose my Virgin Mother; I Myself was born in the little town of Bethlehem, and all of my Apostles were from that homeland. And even though, ungrateful, she did not want to recognize Me and rejected the goods of my Redemption, it cannot be denied that the origin, the beginning, the first people who received the good of It, were from this city. The first criers of the Gospel, those who established Catholicism in Rome, were my Apostles, all from Jerusalem - that is, from this homeland.

Now there will be an exchange: if Jerusalem gave to Rome the life of religion and therefore of Redemption, Rome will give to Jerusalem the Kingdom of the Divine Will. This is so true, that just as I chose a Virgin from the little town of Nazareth for the Redemption, so I have chosen another virgin in a little town of Italy belonging to Rome, to whom the mission of the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat has been entrusted. And since this must be known in Rome just as my coming upon earth was known in Jerusalem, Rome will have the great honor of requiting Jerusalem for the great gift received from her, which is Redemption, by making known to her the Kingdom of my Will. Then will Jerusalem repent of her ingratitude, and will embrace the life of the religion which she gave to Rome; and, grateful, she will receive from Rome the life and the great gift of the Kingdom of my Divine Will. And not only Jerusalem, but all of the other nations will receive from Rome the great -gift of the Kingdom of my Fiat, the first criers of It, Its gospel - all full of peace, of happiness and of restoration of the creation of man. And not only will my manifestations bring sanctity, joys, peace and happiness, but the whole of Creation, competing with them, will unleash from each created thing each of the happinesses It contains, and will pour them upon the creatures. In fact, in creating man, We placed in his being all the seeds of the happinesses which each created thing possessed, disposing the interior of man like a field which contained all the seeds of happinesses; so much so, that he has within himself all the tastes to be able to savor and receive into himself all the happinesses of created things. If man did not possess these seeds, he would lack the senses of taste and of smell to be able to enjoy what God had put out of Himself in the whole Creation.

Now, by sinning, man caused all of these seeds of happiness which God had infused in him in creating him to fall ill, and therefore he lost the taste to be able to enjoy all the happinesses contained in Creation. It happened as to a poor ill one, who cannot enjoy all the flavors contained in foods; on the contrary, he feels heaviness; food itself converts into pain; everything gives him nausea; and if he takes it, it is not because he enjoys it, but in order not to die. On the other hand, one who is healthy feels flavor, strength, warmth, because his stomach has the strength to assimilate the goods contained in foods, and he enjoys them. The same happened in man: by sinning, he caused the seeds and the very strength to be able to enjoy all the happinesses contained in Creation to fall ill; and many times they convert into pain. Now, with the return of man into my Divine Fiat, the seeds will acquire health, and he will acquire the strength to assimilate and to enjoy all the happinesses present in the order of Creation. So, a contest of happiness will start for him; everything will smile at him, and man will return to be happy, as God had created him.”

In Voluntate Dei. Deo Gratias.

The opening of the House of the Divine Will in Corato. Simile of the birth of Jesus in Bethlehem. My entrance into it. The eucharistic lamp and the living lamp of one who does the Divine Will. The prisoner near the Prisoner. Jesus' delight at this company.

My Jesus, Life of my poor heart, You who know in what bitternesses I find myself, come to my help! Overwhelm the little newborn of your Divine Volition into your flames, that You may give me, again, the strength to be able to begin another volume, and your Divine Fiat may eclipse my miserable will, that it may have life no more, and your Divine Will may take over, and It Itself may write, with the characters of Its light, that which You, my Love, want me to write. And so that I may make no mistake, act as my prompter; and only if You commit Yourself to accepting to be my word, thought and heartbeat, and to lead my hand with yours, can I make the sacrifice of returning to write what You want. My Jesus, I am here, near the Tabernacle of love. From that adored little door which I have the honor to gaze at, I feel your divine fibers, your Heart palpitating, emitting flames and rays of endless light at each heartbeat; and in those flames I hear your moans, your sighs, your incessant supplications and your repeated sobs, for You want to make your Will known, to give Its life to all; and I feel myself being consumed with You and repeating what You do. Therefore I pray You, while You gaze at me from within the Tabernacle, and I gaze at You from within my bed, to strengthen my weakness, that I may make the sacrifice of continuing to write.

Now, in order to be able to say what Jesus told me, I have to make a brief mention, that here in Corato a House has been founded, which was wanted and started by the venerable memory of father canonical Annibale Maria di Francia, and which his children, faithful to the will of their founder, have executed and given the name of House of the Divine Will, as the venerable father wanted. And he wanted me to enter this House; and on the first day of its opening, by their goodness, his sons and daughters, the reverend mothers, came to take me and brought me into a room which is such that, as the door of this room is opened, I can see the Tabernacle, I can listen to Holy Mass, I am just under the gazes of my Jesus in the Sacrament. Oh! how happy I feel, that from now on, if Jesus wants me to continue to write, I will write always keeping one eye on the Tabernacle and the other on the paper I write on. Therefore, I pray You, my Love, to assist me and to give me the strength to make the sacrifice that You Yourself want.

So, as this House was about to be opened, one could see people, nuns, little girls - people coming and going, all in motion. I felt all impressed, and my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, this group of people whom you see all in motion for the opening of the House of my Divine Will is symbolic of that group of people when I wanted to be born in Bethlehem, and the shepherds were coming and going, to visit Me, a little Baby. This pointed out to all the certainty of my birth. In the same way, this group of people, all in motion, points out the rebirth of the Kingdom of my Divine Will. Look at how all of Heaven echoes my birth, when the Angels, celebrating it, announced Me to the shepherds, and putting them in motion, made them keep coming to Me, and I recognized in them the first fruits of the Kingdom of my Redemption. So now, in this group of people, of little girls and nuns, I recognize the beginning of the Kingdom of my Divine Will. Oh! How my Heart exults and rejoices, and all of Heaven makes feast. Just as the Angels celebrated my birth, so do they celebrate the beginning of the rebirth of my Fiat in the midst of creatures. But, look at how my birth was more neglected, more poor - I had not even one priest near Me, but only poor shepherds. On the other hand, at the beginning of my Volition, there is not only a group of nuns and little girls from out of town, and a people rushing up to celebrate the opening, but there is an archbishop and priests representing my Church. This is symbol and announcement to all, that the Kingdom of my Divine Volition will be formed with more magnificence, with greater pomp and splendor than the very Kingdom of my Redemption; and everyone, kings and princes, bishops and priests and peoples, will know the Kingdom of my Fiat and will possess It. Therefore, you too, celebrate this day in which my sighs and sacrifices, and yours, to make my Divine Will known see the first dawn and hope for the Sun of my Divine Fiat to soon rise.”

Then, the evening came of this day consecrated to the Queen of the Rosary, Queen of victories and of triumphs. And this is another beautiful sign that, just as, the Sovereign Lady conquered Her Creator, and bejeweling Him with Her chains of love, She drew Him from Heaven to earth, to make Him form the Kingdom of Redemption, so will the sweet and powerful beads of Her Rosary make Her victorious and triumphant again before the Divinity, conquering the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat, to make It come into the midst of creatures.

I had not at all thought that, on that very evening, I would move to the House of Divine Will, near my Prisoner Jesus; only, I prayed Him not to let me know when this would be, so as not to profane such an act with my human will, so that I might put nothing of my own, but do the Divine Will in everything. It was eight o'clock in the evening when, out of the ordinary, the confessor came, who, prayed by the reverend mothers superior, imposed out of obedience that I should surrender and make the superior content. I resisted quite a bit, because I thought that if the Lord wanted so, it would be in the month of April, a warmer season, and so we would think about it then. But the confessor insisted so much that I had to surrender. So, around nine thirty in the evening, I was brought to this House, near my Prisoner Jesus. And this is the little story of why I find myself in the House of the Divine Will.

Now I resume my speaking. At night, I remained alone with my Jesus in the Sacrament; my eyes were fixed on the little door of the Tabernacle. It seemed to me that the lamp, with its continuous flickering, was about to go out, but then it would revive again; and my heart gave a jump, fearing that Jesus might remain in the dark. And my always lovable Jesus, moving in my interior, clasped me in His arms and told me:

“My daughter, do not fear, for the lamp will not go out; and if it did go out, I have you, living lamp - a lamp which, with your flickering, more than with the flickering of the eucharistic lamp, tells Me: ‘I love You, I love You, I love You...’ Oh! how beautiful is the flickering of your ‘I love You’; your flickering says love to Me, and uniting with my Will, from two wills we form one alone. Oh! how beautiful is your lamp and the flickering of your ‘I love You’. It cannot be compared to the lamp that burns before my Tabernacle of love. More so since, my Divine Will being in you, you form the flickering of your 'I love You' in the center of the Sun of my Fiat, and I see and hear, not a lamp, but a sun burning before Me. My prisoner be welcomed. You have come to keep company with your Prisoner; we are both in prison - you, in bed, and I, in the Tabernacle. It is right that we be close to each other; more so, since one is the purpose that keeps us in prison – the Divine Will, love, souls. How pleasing will the company of my prisoner be to Me; we will feel it together, to prepare the Kingdom of the Supreme Fiat. But, know, my daughter, that my love has anticipated you; I was first in putting Myself, prisoner, in this cell, to wait for my prisoner and your sweet company. See, then, how my love was first in running toward you; how I have loved you, and I love you, for in so many centuries of imprisonment in this Tabernacle I never had a prisoner who would keep Me company, who would remain so very close to Me; I have always been alone, or, at the most, in the company of souls who were not prisoners, in whom I did not see my same chains. Now, finally, the time has come for Me to have a prisoner, to keep her constantly near Me, under my sacramental gazes - one whom the chains of my Divine Will alone keep imprisoned. A sweeter and more pleasing company could not come to Me. And so, while we are together in prison, we will occupy ourselves with the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat, and will work together, and will sacrifice ourselves together, to make It known to creatures.”

Forty years and more of exile, virtue and strength of a prolonged sacrifice. Gathering of the materials, to then order them. Happiness of Jesus in blessing His little prisoner daughter. Kisses in the Divine Will. Decision from priests to prepare the writings for printing. Surprising graces that Jesus will give to priests.

My life is carried out before my Jesus in the Sacrament, and - oh! how many thoughts crowd my mind. I was thinking to myself: 'After forty years, and months, that I had not seen the Tabernacle, that I had not been given to be before His adorable sacramental presence - forty years, not only of prison, but of exile - finally, and after so long an exile, I have come back as though to my fatherland, though a prisoner, but no longer exiled, near my Jesus in the Sacrament; and not once a day, as I used to do before Jesus made me a prisoner, but always - always. My poor heart, if I have it at all in my chest, feels consumed at so much love of Jesus.' But while I was thinking of this and other things, my Highest Good, Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, do you think that my keeping you imprisoned for forty years and more has been by chance, without a great design of mine? No! no! The number forty has always been significant and preparatory to great works. For forty years the Jews walked in the desert without being able to reach the promised land, their fatherland; but after forty years of sacrifices they had the good of taking possession of it. But, how many miracles, how many graces, to the point of nourishing them with the celestial manna during that time. A prolonged sacrifice has the virtue and strength to obtain great things from God. I Myself, during my life down here, wanted to remain in the desert for forty days, away from all, even from my Mama, to then go out in public to announce the Gospel which was to form the life of my Church that is, the Kingdom of Redemption. For forty days I wanted to remain as risen, to confirm my Resurrection and to place the seal upon all the goods of Redemption. So I wanted for you, my daughter: in order to manifest the Kingdom of my Divine Will, I wanted forty years of sacrifices. But, how many graces have I not given you! How many manifestations! I can say that in this great length of time I placed in you all the capital of the Kingdom of my Will, and everything that is necessary in order to make creatures comprehend it. So, your long imprisonment has been the continual weapon, always in the act of fighting with your very Creator, to have you manifest my Kingdom.

“Now, you must know that everything I have manifested to your soul, the graces I have given you, the many truths you have written on my Divine Will, your pains, and everything you have done, has been nothing but a gathering of the materials in order to build; and now it is necessary to order them and to get everything settled. And just as I did not leave you alone in gathering the necessary things which must serve my Kingdom, but I have been always with you, so will I not leave you alone in putting them in order and in showing the great building which I have been preparing together with you for many years. Therefore, our sacrifice and work is not finished. We must go forward until the work is accomplished.”

Then, as I am near my Jesus in the Sacrament, every morning there is benediction with the Most Holy One, and while I was praying my sweet Jesus to bless me, moving in my interior, He told me:

“My daughter, I bless you with my whole Heart; even more, I bless my very Will in you, I bless your thoughts, breaths and heartbeats, that you may think always about my Will, may breath It continuously, and my Will alone may be your heartbeat. And for love of you I bless all human wills, that they may dispose themselves to receive the Life of my Eternal Volition. Dearest daughter of mine, if you knew how sweet it is, how happy I feel in blessing the little daughter of my Will.... My Heart rejoices in blessing she who possesses the origin, the Life of Our Fiat, which will bring about the beginning, the origin of the Kingdom of my Divine Will. And while I bless you, I pour in you the beneficial dew of the light of my Divine Volition which, making you all shining, will make you appear more beautiful to my sacramental gazes; and I will feel happier in this cell, gazing at my little prisoner daughter, invested and bound by the sweet chains of my Will. And every time I bless you, I will make the Life of my Divine Volition grow in you. How beautiful is the company of one who does my Divine Will. My Will brings into the depth of the soul the echo of everything I do in this Holy Host, and I do not feel alone in my acts - I feel that she is praying together with Me; and as our supplications, our sighs, unite together, we ask for one same thing - that the Divine Will be known and that Its Kingdom come soon.”

So, as my life is carried out near my Prisoner Jesus, every time the door of the chapel is opened, which happens often, I send three kisses, or five, to my Jesus in the Sacrament, or a short little visit, and He, moving in my interior, tells me:

“My daughter, how pleasing to Me are your kisses. I feel I am being kissed by you with the kisses of my very Volition; I feel my very divine kisses being impressed on my lips, on my face, in my hands and Heart. Everything is divine in the soul in whom my Divine Will reigns; and I feel, in your acts, my love that refreshes Me, the freshness, the gentleness of my very Divine Will that embraces Me, kisses Me and loves Me. Oh! how pleasing to Me is my Divine Will operating in the creature, I feel that, bilocating Me in her, It gives Me back and unfolds before Me all the beauty and sanctity of my very acts. This is why I so much yearn that my Will be known - to be able to find in creatures all of my acts, divine and worthy of Me.”

Now I move on to say that my sweet Jesus seemed to be waiting for me here, in this House, near His Tabernacle of love, to give start to priests coming to a decision to prepare the writings for publication. And while they were consulting with one another on how to do it, they were reading the nine excesses of Jesus, which He had in the Incarnation, which are narrated in the first little volume of my writings. Now, while they were reading, Jesus, in my interior, pricked up His ears to listen, and it seemed to me that Jesus in the Tabernacle would do the same. At each word He would hear, His Heart beat more strongly; and at each excess of His love, He gave a start, even stronger, as if the strength of His love would make Him repeat all those excesses which He had in the Incarnation. And as though unable to contain His flames, He told me:

“My daughter, everything I have told you, both about my Incarnation and about my Divine Will, and on other things, has been nothing but outpourings of my contained love. But after pouring itself out with you, my love continued to remain repressed, because it wanted to raise its flames higher in order to invest all hearts and make known what I have done and want to do for creatures; but since everything I have told you lies in hiddenness, I feel a nightmare over my Heart, which compresses Me and prevents my flames from rising and making their way. This is why, as I heard them read and take the decision to occupy themselves with the publication, I felt the nightmare being removed from Me, and the weight that compresses the flames of my Heart being lifted. And so It beat more strongly, and It throbbed, and It made you hear the repetition of all those excesses of love; more so, since what I do once, I repeat always. My constrained love is a pain for Me, of the greatest, which renders Me taciturn and sad, because, since my first flames have no life, I cannot release the others, which devour Me and consume Me. And therefore, to those priests who want to occupy themselves with removing this nightmare from Me by making known my many secrets, by publishing them, I will give so much surprising grace, strength in order to do it, and light in order to know, themselves first, what they will make known to others. I will be in their midst, and will guide everything.”

Now, it seems to me that every time the Reverend priests occupy themselves with reviewing the writings in order to prepare them, my sweet Jesus comes to attention, to see what they do and how they do it. I do nothing but admire the goodness, the love of my beloved Jesus who, while coming to attention in my Heart, echoes in the Tabernacle, and from within it, inside that cell, does what He does inside my heart. I remain all confused in seeing this, and I thank Him with all my heart.

How each truth of the Fiat possesses an enchantment over the human will. The war of the Fiat. Analogy between the Conception of Jesus and the Eucharist, and between the Prisoner and the prisoner.

My poor mind wandered in the Divine Volition; I felt all the truths spoken to me by my Highest Good, Jesus, like many suns that invested my little human will, such that, enraptured by so much variety of light, it no longer felt like acting. And my Highest Good, Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, each truth I have manifested on my Divine Will is not only a Divine Life that I have issued from Myself, but it possesses a sweet enchantment, to enchant the human will which, enchanted by Mine, will feel itself under the enchantment of an inactivity and will give free field of action to my Divine Will. So, each truth on my Divine Will will be a fierce army against the human will. But do you know what it will be fierce with? With light, with strength, with love, with beauty, with sanctity, to wage war on the human will by means of all these weapons. The human will, before all these weapons, will undergo a sweet enchantment and will let itself be conquered by the Divine Fiat. Therefore, each additional knowledge on It is a greater enchantment that the human will will undergo. It can be said that all the truths I have told you about my Divine Will are as many paths in order for It to make Its way into the human will, which will first prepare, and then form my Kingdom in the midst of creatures. Now, just as each truth possesses an enchantment, so each act done by the creature in my Will is an encounter that she has with my Volition, to receive all the strength of this divine enchantment. So, the more acts of my Will she does, the more human ground she loses, acquiring the divine. And if she plunges all of herself into It, the only thing left to her will be to remember that she has a will, but that she keeps it at rest and enchanted by the Divine Will.”

After this, I continued my acts in the Divine Fiat, and following Its acts, I was accompanying the conception of Jesus in the maternal womb. And Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, how much analogy exists between the conception I did in the maternal womb and what I do in each consecrated host. See, from Heaven I descended to conceive in the womb of my Celestial Mama; from Heaven I descend to be consecrated, hidden, within the veils of the species of bread. In the dark, immobile, I remained in the maternal womb; in the dark, immobile, and made even smaller, I remain in each host. Look at Me, I am here, hidden in this tabernacle; I pray, I cry and I make not even my breath heard; within the sacramental veils, my very Divine Will keeps Me as though dead, annihilated, restricted, compressed, while I am alive and give life to all. Oh! abyss of my love, how immeasurable you are. In the maternal womb I was loaded down with the weight of all souls and of all sins; here, in each host, small as it is, I feel the enormous weight of the burden of the sins of each creature. And while I feel crushed under the enormity of so many sins, I do not tire, because true love never tires, and wants to win with the greatest sacrifices; it wants to expose its life for the beloved. This is why I continue my life, from the moment I conceived up to my death, in each sacramental host.

“Now I want to tell you of the pleasure I feel in having you near my tabernacle, under my sacramental gazes, and the analogy that exists between Me and you. See, I am here, hidden under the empire of my Divine Will. Ah! it is my Will Itself, Its power, that contains the prodigy of hiding Me in each host with the consecration. You are in your bed, only by the empire of my Fiat. Ah!, it is not corporal maladies that keep you hampered - no, but it is my Will alone that wants it so; and making a veil of you, It hides Me and forms for Me a living host, a living tabernacle. Here, in this tabernacle, I pray continuously; but do you know what my first prayer is? That my Will be known, that Its rule which keeps Me hidden may rule over all creatures, and may reign and dominate in them. In fact, only when my Will is known and forms in them Its Kingdom - then will my sacramental life have its complete fruit, the fulfillment of the so many sacrifices, the restoration of my life in creatures. And I am here hidden, making many sacrifices to wait for the triumph - the Kingdom of my Divine Will. You too pray, and as you echo my prayer, I hear your continuous speaking by putting all my acts and all created things in motion; and you ask Me, in the name of everyone and everything, that my Will be known and form in them Its Kingdom. Your echo and mine are one, and we ask for one same thing - that everything may return into the Eternal Fiat, that Its just rights be given back to It. See, then, how much analogy there is between you and Me; but the most beautiful one is that what I want you want - we are both sacrificed for a cause so holy. Therefore, your company is sweet to Me, and in the midst of so many pains that I suffer, it renders Me happy.”

The soul who lives in the Fiat makes all the divine works arise and puts them all in the field. Example. The welcomed one of the Celestial Father.

I feel my little and poor mind as though fixed in the Divine Fiat. I feel all the strength of the sweet enchantment of the light of its truths, the enchanting scenes of all the prodigies and varieties of beauties It contains; and even if I wanted to think about something else, I lack the time to do it, because the sea of the Divine Volition murmurs always, and Its murmuring deafens and strikes dumb all other things, and keeps me plunged into Its sea, to murmur together with It. Oh! power! oh! sweet enchantment of the Eternal Volition! How admirable and lovable You are! And so I would want everyone to murmur together with me, and I prayed the Sovereign Queen to give me the murmuring of Her love, of Her kisses, so as to give them back to Jesus, because I had received Communion and felt that, in order to please Jesus, I wanted to give Him the kisses of His Mama.

And my always lovable Jesus, moving and making Himself felt in my interior, told me: “My daughter, everything that the Queen of Heaven did is all in that Divine Fiat which She had the glory, the honor to possess. It can be said that all of Her acts are enveloped within the endless sea of the Divine Volition, and swim in It like the fish swim in the sea; and the soul who lives in It makes arise not only all the acts of the Celestial Mama, but she makes arise again, and puts in the field, all the works of her Creator. Only one who lives in my Will can sit at the divine table, can open all His treasures, can enter into the sacrarium of the most intimate secrets of the divine hiding places, and, as the owner, takes them and gives them back to her Creator. And, oh! how many things she puts in motion. She makes them arise, and places all the divine works in attitude, and now she plays a divine melody, now she performs a scene, of the most beautiful and touching, now she puts all of His love in motion, and making it arise again, she forms an enchanting scene, all of love, for her Creator. So, she is the renewer of all joys and happinesses for her Creator. See, as you wanted to give Me the kisses of the Queen Mama, you put them in motion and they ran to kiss Me. It happens to one who lives in my Divine Will as to someone who entered into a royal palace, and the king who lives in it has music concerts, objects with which to form the most beautiful scenes, and works of art of varied beauty. Now, the person who enters, sits at the music concert and plays. Attracted by that sound, the king runs and goes to listen to the sonata. Then, seeing that the king enjoys it, that person moves on and puts the objects in motion, putting the scene in action. The king remains enraptured, and even though he knows that those are his own things, yet, it was that person who put them in motion in order to give him pleasure.

So it is for one who lives in my Divine Fiat. She enters into the royal palace of her Celestial Father, and finding many varied beauties, she puts them in motion, to gladden, delight and love the One who let her in. And since there is no good which my Eternal Volition does not possess, there is no joy, love, glory which the soul cannot give to her Creator. And, oh! how pleasing she is to Us, as We see this fortunate creature in Our royal palace of Our Divine Volition, who wants to take everything, wants to put everything in motion, wants to touch everything. It seems that she is not content if she does not take everything in order to give Us everything, to make feast for Us and renew for Us Our joys and happinesses. And We, in seeing her, welcome her, and We Ourselves say to her: 'Dearest daughter, hurry, hurry, play for Us a little divine sonata of Ours, repeat for Us a touching scene of love, renew for Us Our happiness.' And she renews for Us now the joys of Creation, now that of the Sovereign Queen, now that of Redemption. And she always ends with her, and Our, pleasing refrain: 'Your Will be known and reign on earth as It does in Heaven.'"

How all that has been done by God has not been taken by the creature. Works of Jesus. The Feast of Christ the King, prelude of the Kingdom of the Divine Will.

I was continuing my round in the Divine Volition, to follow all of Its acts; and my sweet Jesus, making Himself felt in my interior, told me:

"My daughter, all that has been done by Our Divinity, both in Creation and in Redemption, has not all been absorbed by the creature, but is all in my Divine Will, in waiting, to give itself to creatures. If you could see everything in my Divine Fiat, you would find an army of acts of Ours, which came out of Us to be given to creatures; but because Our Will does not reign, they have neither the space in which to put them, nor the capacity to receive them. And this divine militia has been waiting for as long as twenty centuries to place itself in office of exercise, so as to bring to creatures the gifts, the clothings, the joys and the divine weapons which each of Our acts possesses, in order to form together with them one single divine army - a celestial militia. Now, so that the Kingdom of Our Divine Will may reign in the midst of creatures, it is necessary that the creature absorb into herself all of these acts of the Divinity done for love of them and absorb them so much into herself, as to enclose within herself everything that my Fiat possesses, interiorizing them and consummating them within herself. So, my Divine Will, consummated within the creature, will make this whole divine army reenter into her. All of Our acts which came out of Us for love of them, in Creation, Redemption and Sanctification, will reenter into creatures, and my Divine Will, reentered and consummated within them, will feel triumphant and will reign, dominant, together with Our divine army. This is why I do nothing but make you sip, continuously, everything that was done by Us and that is done in Creation, Redemption and Sanctification - so as to be able to say once again, as I did on the Cross: 'I have consummated everything - I have nothing left to do in order to redeem man.' So shall my Will repeat: 'I have consummated it in this creature, in a way that all Our acts have been enclosed in her - I have nothing left to add. I have consummated everything, so that man might be restored and the Kingdom of my Divine Will may have Its life and Its regime on earth as It does in Heaven.'

"Oh! if you knew how many works I am doing in the depth of your soul in order to form this first Kingdom to my Divine Will.... In fact, once I have done the first, from one creature It will pass on to the next, in such a way that my Kingdom will be populated more than all others. Therefore, my love in forming this Kingdom of Mine is so great, that in the soul in whom my Divine Volition must reign, I want to enclose everything that I Myself did in Redemption, that which the Sovereign Queen did, adding what all the Saints have done and do. Nothing must be lacking in her of all Our works; and in order to do this, I put the whole of Our Power, Wisdom and Love in motion.

After this I was thinking about today's Feast - that is, the Feast of Christ the King; and my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, the Church does nothing but intuitively grasp what She must know on my Divine Will and how Its Kingdom must come. Therefore, this Feast is the prelude of the Kingdom of my Divine Fiat. Indeed, the Church is doing nothing other than honoring my Humanity with those titles which, by right, are due to It; and when She has given Me all the honors that befit Me, She will move on to honor and to institute the Feast to the Kingdom of my Divine Will, by which my Humanity was animated. The Church proceeds step by step, and now She institutes the Feast to my Heart, now She consecrates the century, in all solemnity, to Christ the Redeemer, and now She moves on, with greater solemnity, to institute the Feast to Christ the King. Christ the King means that He must have His Kingdom, He must have peoples worthy of such a King. And who will ever be able to form for Me this Kingdom if not my Will? Then, yes, will I be able to say: ‘I have my people - my Fiat has formed it for Me.’ Oh! if the leaders of the Church knew what I have manifested to you about my Divine Will, what I want to do, Its great prodigies, my yearnings, my sorrowful heartbeats, my anguishing sighs, for I want my Will to reign, to make everyone happy, to restore the human family - they would feel that in this Feast of Christ the King is nothing other than the secret echo of my Heart which, echoing in them, without their knowing it, has them institute for Me the Feast of Christ the King in order to call their attention and reflection. ‘Christ the King.... And His true people - where are they?’ And they would say: ‘Let us hasten to make His Divine Will known; let us let It reign, that we may give a people to Christ the King, whom we have called so. Otherwise, we have honored Him with words, but not with facts’.”

The truth is light that starts from God and fixes itself in the creature. The blessing of Jesus.

My poor intelligence feels as though enraptured by the light of the Divine Fiat; but this light brings not only heat and light, but is bearer of life which, centralizing itself in the soul, forms her own light and heat within her, and, from that center, the Divine Life is reborn. How beautiful it is to see that the light of the Eternal Volition has the virtue of making the Life of her Creator be reborn in the heart of the creature - and so many times, for as many times as this Divine Will bends down to make known to the creature more of Its manifestations which pertain to It.

Then, while my mind was wandering in this light, my sweet Jesus, moving in this light, as it seemed He was as though sunken inside of it, told me:

“My daughter, for as many truths as I have manifested to you about my Divine Will, so many lights have unleashed themselves from Our divine womb and have fixed themselves in you, but without detaching from the center of your Creator. In fact, the light is inseparable from God; it communicates itself, it fixes itself in the creature, and it never loses its center, from which it came out. How beautiful it is to see the creature, with all these lights fixed in her, which have the virtue of making the One who created her arise again in the creature - and so many times, for as many truths as are manifested to her. And since what I have manifested to you on my Divine Will are innumerable truths - so many, that you yourself cannot count them all - many lights, that is, many luminous rays, are fixed in you, which descend from God, but without detaching from its divine womb. These lights form the most beautiful ornament in you, and the greatest gift you could receive from God. In fact, since these truths are fixed in you, they give you right over the divine properties - and so many rights, for as many truths as I have manifested to you. You cannot comprehend the great dowry you have been endowed with by God with these truths, which, like many lights, are fixed in your soul. The whole of Heaven is amazed at seeing so many lights in you, all filled with many Divine Lives. And as you communicate them to other creatures, this light winds its way, it fixes itself in other hearts, but without leaving you, and forms the Divine Life wherever it reaches. My daughter, what great treasure has been entrusted to you with so many truths I have told you on my Divine Will; a treasure which has its source in its divine womb, and which will always give light without ever ceasing. My truths are more than sun, which gives light to the earth, invests it, fixes on it; and in fixing on it, it gives birth, on the face of it and for each thing, to the effects and the goods which its light contains. But, jealous, it does not detach its light from its center; and this is so true that, as it moves on to illuminate other regions, the earth remains in the dark. On the other hand, the Sun of my truths, while it does not detach from its center, fixing itself in the soul, forms in her the perennial day....”

After this, benediction was given with the Most Holy Sacrament and I prayed Him from the heart to bless me, and Jesus, moving in my interior, echoing what Jesus in the Sacrament was doing, raised His blessed right hand in the act of blessing me, and told me:

“My daughter, I bless your heart, and I seal my Divine Will in it, so that your heart, united with my Divine Will, may palpitate in all hearts, so that you may call all hearts to love It. I bless your thoughts, and I seal my Divine Will in them, that you may call all intelligences to know It. I bless your mouth, so that my Divine Will may flow in your voice, and you may call all human voices to speak about my Fiat. I bless all of you, my daughter, so that everything may call my Divine Volition in you, and you may run to all in order to make It known. Oh! how much happier I feel in operating, praying, blessing in one in whom my Will reigns. In this soul I find my life, the light, the company; and everything I do arises immediately, and I see the effects of my acts; and I am not alone if I pray, if I operate, but I have company, and one who works together with Me. On the other hand, in this sacramental prison, the accidents of the host are mute, they say not a word to Me, I do everything on my own, I feel not a sigh which would unite to mine, nor a heartbeat which would love Me. On the contrary, there is the cold of a sepulcher for Me, which not only keeps Me in prison, but buries Me, and I have no one to whom to say a word, nor anyone with whom to pour Myself out; because the host does not speak, I am always in silence, and with divine patience I wait for hearts that receive Me, so as to break my silence and enjoy a little bit of company. And in the soul in whom I find my Divine Will I feel Myself repatriated in the Celestial Fatherland....”

November 10, 1928

One who lives in the Divine Will has her own sea, and enclosing everything, as she prays, it murmurs heavens, sun and stars. The blessing of Jesus; contest and feast of all in blessing the little daughter of the Divine Will.

After I had gone through several days of privation of my sweet Jesus, my poor heart could take no more. I felt it undone, and I remembered vividly His many visits. His lovable presence, His enrapturing beauty, the gentleness of His voice, His many beautiful lessons, were many memories that wounded me, undid me, and made me long for my Celestial Fatherland, like a poor pilgrim, tired of my long journey. And I was saying to myself: ‘Everything is ended, I hear nothing but a profound silence, an immense sea which I must cross without ever stopping, to ask, everywhere and in every place, for the Kingdom of the Divine Will.’ And, tired, I began to do my usual round, to follow Its acts; and my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, clasped me in His arms to give me strength, and told me:

“My daughter, just as the sea murmurs continuously, so do I hear in you the sea of my Divine Fiat; and you, with your prayer, form your continuous murmuring in the sea of It; and while it murmurs, now you enclose the sun, and it murmurs light; now you enclose the heavens, and as it murmurs, you enclose the stars; now you enclose the wind, and it murmurs moans and shouts of love; now you enclose the earth, and it murmurs flowers. So, in your murmuring, you make flow now light, now heavens, now stars, now wind - and flow laments of love, unutterable moans of a wounded heart, and shouts of delirium of an unrequited love; and now flow all the flowerings created by Me.

“Oh! how beautiful is my sea and yours. Oh! how the sea of the earth remains behind, because - it murmurs, but does not enclose heavens, sun, wind and everything in its murmuring, but only fish; while the sea of my Volition, and the murmuring of your prayer in It, encloses all of my works, because my Divine Will keeps heavens, sun, stars, sea and so on, all within Itself, as though in its own power, and as you murmur in It with your prayer, you find them all. And just as the sea, on top of its continuous murmuring, forms its gigantic waves, so you, in the sea of my Divine Volition, on top of the continuous murmuring of your prayer, when you concentrate more your yearnings, your sighs, for you want the Kingdom of my Divine Will, form gigantic waves of light, of stars, of moans and of flowers. How beautiful are these waves. And I, from this Tabernacle, hear your murmuring, the roaring of your waves, which come to unload themselves into my sea. And since, here in the Tabernacle, I have my own sea in which I murmur continuously with my prayers, as I hear your waves coming, I unite your sea with mine, which are already one, and I come to murmur together with you. And I no longer feel alone in this Tabernacle, I have my pleasant company, and we murmur together; and in our murmuring one can hear: ‘Fiat! Fiat! Fiat! Be It known, and Its Kingdom on earth restored.’ My daughter, living in my Will, praying in It, is to transport Heaven to the earth, and the earth to Heaven; therefore, it is Our true and total triumph, Our victory, Our divine conquests. So, be faithful and attentive to Me.”

After this, benediction with the Most Holy Sacrament was being given, which I have the good to receive every day in these last periods of my life down here, as I hope to complete this long exile of mine as soon as possible. And my lovable Jesus, at the moment they were giving benediction, moved in my interior and told me:

“My daughter, I bless you, but I would not be content if I alone blessed you - I call everyone together with Me: the Father and the Holy Spirit, the whole Celestial Court, that all may bless with Me the little daughter of my Divine Will. Wherever my Will reigns, everyone, Heaven and earth, feel a powerful force to unite themselves with Me and to do what I do, so as to centralize upon her all the goods which my Divine Will contains. Therefore, as they see Me blessing you, all get down to the work of blessing you. So, a contest, a sort of feast, arises in Heaven, to bless the one in whom my Will reigns; and in order to make it more solemn, I call all created things, so that no one may put himself aside, but all may bless my daughter. So I call the sun to bless you, so that the light it gives you, it may give to you while blessing you. I call the water to bless you, so that, as you drink it, it may bless you. I call the wind, so that, as it blows, it may blow blessing you. In sum, I call everyone, and while they bless you, finding my Divine Will in you, they feel themselves being blessed in return from within you by the Will of their Creator. The strength of my Divine Will calls everyone, unites the whole celestial family, and gives the feast to all when It must operate over a soul in whom It dwells and dominates. Therefore, in this sacramental prison of mine, having my prisoner near Me, I feel, coming to Me, the joys which my Divine Will can give Me in the heart of Our little daughter. So, my many sorrows are interrupted when I must bless you, when I descend sacramentally into your heart, when I feel Myself gazed at from this Tabernacle; and I requite you with my gazes. Thinking that I must do or give something to Our little newborn of Our Will, I put everything aside, even my very sorrows, and I make feast, because my Divine Will possesses innumerable joys and perennial feast. Therefore, I want that you too rejoice together with Me; and echoing my blessing - bless Me in the sun, in the water, in the wind, in the air you breathe, in the heartbeat that beats in your heart, and I will feel you blessing Me in all created things."

How the creature possesses the human unity, and one who lives in the Divine Will possesses the divine unity. One who does the Divine Will becomes mother.

I feel all abandoned in the Holy Divine Volition, and in spite of the privations of Jesus, my poor mind is taken by an irresistible force to follow Its acts. I believe that it is the Divine Will Itself that, having subdued mine, does Its course calling all of Its acts, as if It were doing them in act. And I, following It in Its acts, was thinking about the first times of Creation, when everything was happiness in man, and being in the Will of his Creator, he lived in His unity, in which he could receive everything and could give everything to the Supreme Being. Unity means everything. But while I was thinking about this, my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

"My daughter, We created man with Our likeness, therefore he too possesses his human unity. So, if he speaks, if he works, if he walks and so on, these can be called the effects of his unity, because one is his will, one his head on which all of his acts depend. Therefore, it can be said that it is the strength of the unity of his will that speaks, that works, that walks, as the effects of it. If man did not have this unity, all of his acts would be in contradiction with one another.

"It happens as to the sun: from the height of its sphere, one is its act of light, and since it possesses the unity of light given to it by its Creator, while it is one single act, its effects of light are innumerable. Now, for one who does and lives in my Divine Will, the human volition ceases, its life ends, nor has any reason to exist any longer, because the life of the unity of my Will begins. And since Mine is one single act, and everything It created, or can do, can be called the effects of this single act, the soul, living in this unity of my Divine Volition as in her own center, is present in all the effects of the single act of It, and - oh! how beautiful it is to see this happy creature in all the effects which Our Will knows how to, and can produce. She runs in the light of the sun as the effect of Our Will; in the heavens, in the sea, in the wind - in everything. She runs as the human will runs in all the human acts, and as the light of the sun runs in all of its effects. In the same way, the soul runs in the Fiat, in all the effects which It possesses and produces. This is why the living in Our Will is the greatest prodigy, and if Our Divinity wanted to make a greater one, It could not; nor could It find anything greater, more prodigious, more powerful, more beautiful, more happy than Our Will to give to the creature, because by giving Our Divine Will We give everything. Its power forms Our echo in the depth of the soul, and forms Our most beautiful images; and the echo of the human littleness becomes one with Ours, in such a way that, uniting to Our prime act, she runs and diffuses herself in all the effects which the single act of God produces.”

After this, my lovable Jesus made Himself seen as a tiny little child, who, throwing His arms around my neck, told me:

“My mama, my mama.... One who does my Divine Will becomes mother, my Divine Fiat embellishes her for Me, transforms her, and renders her fecund, in such a way as to give her all the qualities in order to be a true mother. And I keep forming this mother with the reflections of the Sun of my Divine Volition, and I glory and take so much pleasure in calling her my mama, my mama.... And not only do I choose her as my mother, but I call many more tiny little ones and give to them my mother as their mother.”

And while He was saying this, He showed me many little boys and girls around me; and the child Jesus said to them:

“This is my mother and your mama.” The little ones made feast and drew all around me together with Jesus; and Jesus added: “These little ones you see are no other than the first cohort of the children of my Divine Volition. In it, all will be little, because my Divine Will has the virtue of preserving them fresh and beautiful, just as they came out of Our creative hands. And since It called your littleness to live in It, it is right that, as the first one, you be the tiny little mama of the tiny little children.”

How one who lives in the Divine Will is in Possession of the perennial day, knows no night, and becomes the owner of God Himself.

I was feeling all sunken in the Supreme Fiat, and my poor mind was wandering in so many surprising truths for my little capacity. All the manifestations which my sweet Jesus had told me on His Holy Will were lining up within my soul like many suns of enchanting beauty, one distinct from the other, with the fullness of each joy and happiness which each truth possessed; and while these suns seemed to be distinct, they formed a single one. What enchantment, what enrapturing beauty. These suns were besieging my little intelligence, and I was swimming in this endless light, and, as though surprised, I was thinking about many things concerning the Divine Will. And my always lovable Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, dearest daughter of my Will, one who is daughter of It is in possession of the perennial day which knows no night. Everything is light for one who lives in my Will; her properties are light, beauty, joy and happiness. And this is nothing, in fact, by giving Our Will to the creature, We render her the owner of Our very Selves, and We place Ourselves at her disposal. We let her do and win whatever she wants, because it is not a human volition that dominates Us - no, but Our own Volition, which has bilocated Itself in the creature, and therefore her doing, speaking and winning is not looked upon by Us as something extraneous to Us, but as Our own thing; and We enjoy in letting her speak, do and win, more so, since she wins Us and We win her. Therefore, by giving Our Will to the creature, and by her receiving It as her own life, We open a contest between her and Us; she enters into Our divine field and, as the owner, she dominates; and We enjoy so much in seeing her littleness that contains Our Eternal Volition, being dominator of Our goods and of Our very Selves. What can We deny to Our Will? Nothing. On the contrary, We delight in putting out Our most intimate joys, Our secrets, Our eternal beatitudes, so as to make the littleness of the creature in whom It reigns delight; and rendering her the dominator of them, We amuse Ourselves and open the game between her and Us.

Therefore, greater thing than Our Will I could not give to man in creating him, because only with It could he reach wherever he wanted and do whatever he wanted, to the point of becoming the dominator of what belongs to Us, We did not do this in creating the other things - they are dominated by Us, nor can they do what they want; their rights are limited. Indeed, in creating man, there was a more intense ardor of love, and in this ardor of love, the All fused Himself in the nothing, and the nothing received his life again in the All. And in order to keep him more safely, We gave him Our Divine Will as his inheritance, so that one might be the will, common the goods, as much as a creature is capable of, and the love of one might be as great as the love of the other, to the point of letting themselves be dominated by each other. Therefore, the most beautiful thing for Us, which enraptures Us and glorifies Us the most, is the soul in whom Our Divine Will reigns, because she alone does not make Our love say, ‘enough of giving’, but We have always something to give, always something to say; and in order to enjoy more, We render her the winner of Our very Selves. Therefore, be attentive, my daughter, if you want everything, let Our Will reign in you.

The Eucharistic Tabernacle and the Tabernacle of the Divine Will.

The privations of Jesus become longer, and as I see myself without Him, I do nothing but long for Heaven. Oh! Heaven, when will You open your doors to me? When will You have pity on me? When will you retrieve the little exiled one into her Fatherland? Ah! yes! only there I will no longer miss my Jesus! Here, if He makes Himself seen, while one thinks one possesses Him, He escapes like lightning, and one has to go a long way without Him; and without Jesus all things convert into sorrow - even the very holy things, the prayers, the Sacraments, are martyrdoms without Him. So I thought to myself: ‘What is the use of Jesus’ permitting my coming near His tabernacle of love, for us to remain in mute silence? Rather, it seems to me that He has hidden more, that He no longer gives me His lessons on the Divine Fiat. It seemed to me that He had His pulpit in the depth of my interior, and had always something to say. And now, I hear nothing but a profound silence; only, I hear within me the continuous murmuring of the sea of light of the Eternal Volition which always murmurs love, adoration, glory, and embraces everything and everyone.

But while I was thinking of this, my sweet Jesus made Himself seen in my interior for just a little, and told me:

“My daughter, courage, it is I in the depth of your soul who move the waves of the sea of light of my Divine Will, and I always - always murmur, to snatch from my Celestial Father the Kingdom of my Will upon earth; and you do nothing other than follow Me; and if you did not follow Me, I would do it on my own. But you will not do this - leaving me alone, because my Fiat Itself keeps you sunken within It.

“Ah! don’t you know that you are the tabernacle of my Divine Will? How many works have I not done in you; how many graces have I not poured into you in order to form this tabernacle for Myself? A tabernacle - I could call it - unique in the world. In fact, as for eucharistic tabernacles, I have a good number of them, but in this tabernacle of my Divine Fiat I do not feel like a prisoner, I possess the endless expanses of my Will, I do not feel alone, I have one who keeps Me perennial company, and now I act as a teacher and I give you my celestial lessons; now I do my outpourings of love and of sorrow; now I celebrate, to the point of amusing Myself with you. So, if I pray, if I suffer, if I cry and if I celebrate, I am never alone, I have the little daughter of my Divine Will together with Me. And then, I have the great honor and the most beautiful conquest, which I like the most, which is a human will all sacrificed for Me, and as the footstool of my Divine Will. I could call it my favorite tabernacle, in which I so much delight, that I would not exchange it for the eucharistic tabernacles; because in them I am alone, nor does the host give Me a Divine Will as I find It in you, such that, as It bilocates Itself, while I have It within Me, I also find It in you. On the other hand, the host is not capable of possessing It, nor does it accompany Me in my acts; I am always alone, everything is cold around Me; the tabernacle, the pyx, the host, are without life, and therefore without company. This is why I felt such delight in keeping, near my eucharistic tabernacle, that of my Divine Will, formed in you, that by merely looking at you I feel my loneliness broken, and I experience the pure joys that the creature who lets my Divine Will reign within herself can give Me.

“And so, this is why all my aims, my cares and my interests are in making my Divine Will known, and in making It reign in the midst of creatures; then will each creature be a living tabernacle of mine - not mute, but speaking; and I will no longer be alone, but I Will have my perennial company. And with my Divine Will bilocated in them, I will have my divine company in the creature. So, I will have my Heaven in each one of them, because the tabernacle of my Divine Will possesses my Heaven on earth.”

For one who does the Divine Will and lives in It, it is as if she made the sun descend upon earth. Difference.

I was feeling all immersed in the Divine Volition. I feel my poor and little mind bound to a point of light extremely high, which has no boundaries, and one can see neither where its height reaches, nor where its depth ends. And while the mind fills itself with light, it is surrounded by light, to the point of seeing nothing but light. It sees that it takes little of this light, because there is so much of it, but its capacity is so small that it seems to it that it takes just a few little drops. Oh! how well one feels in the midst of this light, because it is life, it is word, it is happiness. The soul feels within herself all the reflections of her Creator, and feels the Divine Life being given birth within her bosom. Oh! Divine Will, how admirable You are - You alone are the fecundator, the preserver and the bilocator of the Life of God in the creature.

But while my mind was wandering within the light of the Supreme Fiat, my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, with the soul who lives in my Divine Will, it is more than if I made the sun descend upon earth. What would happen then? The night would be banished from the earth, it would always be full daylight. And by always having contact with the sun, the earth would no longer be a dark body, but a luminous one, and it would not beg for the effects of the sun, but would receive into itself the very substance of the effects of the light, because sun and earth would live communal life and would form one single life. What a difference is there not between the sun in the height of its sphere and the earth in its lowness? The poor earth is subject to the night, to seasons, and to asking the sun to form the beautiful flowerings, the colors, the sweetness, the maturity of its fruits. And the sun is not free to display all of its effects over the earth, if the earth does not lend itself to receive them; so much so, that certain points of the earth the sun does not always reach, and other points are dry and without plants.

“This is nothing other than a simile of one who does my Divine Will and lives in It and one who lives in the earth of her human volition. The first makes descend, not only the Sun of my Divine Will into her soul, but the whole of Heaven. Therefore, with this Sun, she possesses the perennial day, a day that never sets, because the light has the virtue of putting darkness to flight. So, the night of passions, the night of weaknesses, of miseries, of coldnesses, of temptations, cannot be there with this Sun; and if they wanted to draw near to form the seasons in the soul, this Sun beats down Its rays and puts all nights to rushed flight, saying: ‘I am here, and that’s enough - my seasons are seasons of light, of peace, of happiness and of perennial flowering.’ This soul is the bearer of Heaven upon earth. On the other hand, for one who does not do my Divine Will and does not live in It, it is more nighttime than daytime in her soul; she is subject to seasons and to long rainy times, which render her always disturbed and labored; or to long droughts, in which she reaches the point of lacking the vital humors in order to love her Creator; and the very Sun of my Divine Will, because It does not live in her, is not free to give her all the good It possesses. Do you see what it means to possess my Divine Volition? It is to possess the source of life, of light and of all goods. On the other hand, one who does not possess It is like the earth, which enjoys the effects of the light, and like certain lands, which are just barely illuminated, but without effects.”

Why all Creation celebrated the conception of the Sovereign Queen. How the Virgin awaits her daughters into Her seas, in order to make of them queens. The Feast of the Immaculate Conception.

I was thinking: ‘Why did all Creation exult with joy and celebrate so much the Immaculate Queen in Her immaculate conception?’ And my always lovable Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, do you want to know why? Because the Divine Will had the beginning of Its Life in the celestial tiny little girl, and therefore the beginning of all goods in all creatures. There is no good which, in my Divine Will, does not begin, descend and ascend into its source. Therefore, since this celestial little girl, from Her very immaculate conception, began Her life in the Divine Fiat, and since She was from the human stock, with my Will She acquired the Divine Life, and with Her humanity She possessed the human origin. So, She had the power to unite the divine and the human, and She gave to God what man had not given Him and had denied to Him, which was his will; and She gave men the right to be able to ascend to the embraces of Her Creator. With the power of Our Fiat which She had in Her power, She bound God and men. So, all Creation - Heaven and earth, and even hell felt in the immaculate conception of this Virgin little girl, just newly born in the womb of Her mama, the strength of the order which She was placing in all Creation. With my Win, She associated Herself with all as their sister, She embraced all, She loved everything and everyone; and all longed for Her, loved Her, and felt honored to adore the Divine Will in this privileged creature.

“How could all Creation not celebrate? In fact, up until then, man had been the disorder among all created things; no one had had the courage, the heroism, to say to his Creator: ‘I do not want to know my will - I give it to You as gift; I want your Divine Will alone as life.’ But this Holy Virgin gave Her will in order to live of the Divine, and therefore all Creation felt the happiness of the order which, through Her, was given back to It; and the heavens, the sun, the sea and everyone, competed among themselves to honor She who, by possessing my Fiat, gave the kiss of the order to all created things. And my Divine Volition placed in Her hand the scepter of Divine Queen, and surrounded Her forehead with the crown of command, constituting Her Empress of the whole universe.”

Then, I was feeling as though annihilated within myself. The long privations of my sweet Jesus render me as though lifeless; they have burned the little atom of my existence, which, being continuously exposed to the burning rays of the Sun of the Divine Fiat, feels all humors being dried up within itself, and while it burns, it neither dies, nor is it consumed. So, I felt not only oppressed, but undone. And my sweet Jesus, as though wanting to cheer me, making Himself felt in my interior, giving me a kiss, told me:

“My daughter, courage, do not lose heart. On the contrary, I want you to enjoy your happy fortune - that my Divine Will, investing you and darting through you, takes away from you all human humors, giving you, in exchange, humors of divine light. Today is the Feast of the Immaculate Conception; seas of love, of beauty, of power and of happiness overflowed from the Divinity over this celestial creature; and what prevents creatures from being able to enter into these seas is the human will. What We do once, We remain in the continuous act of doing always, without ever ceasing. In the Divinity, to give is Its nature, with an act that never ends. Therefore, these seas are still overflowing, and the Queen Mama awaits Her daughters, so as to let them live in these seas, to make of them as many little queens. However, the human will is not allowed to enter, there is no place for it, and only one who lives of Divine Will can have access into them.

“Therefore, my daughter, you can enter into the seas of my Mama whenever you want; my Divine Will is your guarantor, and with It you will have free step and entrance. Even more, She awaits you, She wants you, and you will render Us and Her twice as happy because of your happiness. We feel happier in giving, and when the creature does not take Our goods, she suffocates within Us the happiness that We want to give her. Therefore, I do not want you to be oppressed. Today is the greatest feast, because the Divine Will had life in the Queen of Heaven; it was the feast of all feasts, it was the first kiss, the first divine embrace that the creature gave to her Creator by virtue of Our Fiat, which the Sovereign little girl possessed - the creature sitting at table with her Creator. Therefore, today is also your feast, in a special way because of the mission given to you by my Divine Will. So, come into the seas of the Immaculate Queen to enjoy Her feast and yours.”

I felt myself being carried outside of myself into these endless seas, but I lack the words to express what I experienced, therefore I stop here and I move on.

After this, later in the day, the confessor read in public what is written in the 15th volume about the Immaculate Conception; and my beloved Jesus, in hearing him reading, made feast in my interior, and told me:

“My daughter, how content I am; today it can be said that my Sovereign Mama receives from the Church the divine honors, as She/(the Church) honors in Her, as the first act of Her life, the Life of the Divine Will. These are the greatest honors that can be given - that the human will never had life in Her, but always, always the Divine Will. This was the whole secret of Her sanctity, of Her height, power, beauty, greatness and so on; it was my Fiat that, with Its heat, extinguished the stain of original sin and conceived Her immaculate and pure. And my Church, instead of honoring my Divine Will, primary cause and prime act, honored the effects of It, and proclaimed Her Immaculate, conceived without sin. It can be said that the Church gave Her human honors, not divine honors, which She justly deserves, because a Divine Will had continuous life in Her. And this was a sorrow for Me and for Her, because neither did I receive from my Church the honors of a Divine Will dwelling in the Queen of Heaven, nor did She receive the honors due because She gave within Herself the place in which to form the Life of the Supreme Fiat. Therefore, today, by making known that everything in Her was the prodigy of my Will, and that all of Her other prerogatives and privileges were in the secondary order and as consequence of the effects of that Divine Will which dominated Her, it can be said that, today, it is with decorum, divine glory and magnificence that the Feast of the Immaculate Conception is celebrated; a Feast which, more truly, can be called: ‘The conception of the Divine Will in the Sovereign Queen of Heaven.’ And this conception was the consequence of everything It is and It did, and of the great prodigies of this Celestial Little Girl.”

After this, with a more tender emphasis, He added: “My daughter, how beautiful, delightful, it was to see this celestial tiny little girl, even from Her immaculate conception. One would look, and would see Her little earth, taken from the human stock; and inside this little earth one would see the Sun of Our Eternal Volition, such that, as She was unable to contain It, It overflowed outside of Her and extended, filling Heaven and earth. We made a prodigy of Our Omnipotence so that the little earth of the tiny little Queen might enclose the Sun of Our Divine Volition. So, one would see earth and Sun. Therefore, in everything She did - whether She thought, spoke, worked or walked - Her thoughts were rays of light, Her words converted into light; everything was light that came out of Her, because since Her little earth was smaller than the immense Sun which She enclosed, Her acts would get lost within the light. And since this little earth of the Celestial Sovereign was vivified, animated and preserved continuously by the Sun of my Fiat, it appeared always flowery, but with the most beautiful flowerings, which turned into most sweet fruits, such as to draw Our divine gazes and make Us remain enraptured - but so much, that We could not do without looking at Her, so great was the beauty and the happiness She gave Us. All beautiful was the Immaculate Little Virgin; Her beauty was enchanting and enrapturing. It is enough to say that She was a prodigy of Our Will, to say everything. Oh! if creatures knew what it means to live of Will of God, they would lay down their lives to know It and live in It.”

How all created things possess a dose of happiness. How the privation of Jesus makes life rise again.

I was fusing myself in the Holy Divine Volition, and as I accompanied Its acts done in the Creation, my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, all created things were created by Us with a dose of happiness, one distinct from the other; so, each created thing brings to man the kiss, the air that delights, the life of Our happiness. But do you know who feels all the effects of Our many happinesses which are spread in the Creation descend into her interior, to the point of remaining soaked with them like a sponge? One who lives in Our Divine Will. Our happinesses are not foreign to her, because, since she has her taste purified by Our Fiat and not corrupted by the human will, her taste and all of her senses have the virtue of enjoying all the happinesses which are present in the created things, and We feel so much happiness and joy in seeing one who does Our Will as though sitting at the banquet of Our happinesses and feeding herself with as many different bites for as many as are the happinesses present in the created things. Oh! how beautiful it is to see the creature happy.”

At that moment, Jesus kept silent, and I heard the sound of the harmonium playing in the chapel; and Jesus pricked up His ears to listen, and then He added:

“Oh! how happy I feel because this sound delights the little daughter of my Will. And I, in hearing it, delight together with her. Oh! how beautiful it is to be delighted together. To make one who loves Me happy is the greatest of my happinesses.”

And I: ‘Jesus, my Love, my happiness for me is You alone, all other things hold no attraction over me.’

And Jesus: “Certainly the greatest happiness for you is I, because I contain the source of all joys and happinesses; but I enjoy in giving you the small happinesses, and just as I Myself feel them and enjoy them, I want you to feel them and enjoy them together with Me.”

Then, I was thinking to myself: ‘Jesus delights so much when I delight in the many happinesses which He spread in the Creation; and why, then, does He grieve me so much, and He renders me so unhappy, to the point of feeling as if I had no life without Him? And in feeling myself without life, all happinesses lose life over my poor soul!’ And Jesus added:

“My daughter, if you knew what the utility of my privations is.... You feel yourself lifeless without Me, you feel you are dead; yet, over that pain and that death my new life is formed; and this new life brings you the new manifestations of the life of my Divine Will. In fact, since your pain is a divine pain, which has the virtue of making you feel death, but without dying, it has the virtue of making my very life rise again, with the enchantment of my truths. The pain of my privation prepares the place for my new life, and disposes your soul to listen to and to comprehend the important truths on my Divine Fiat. If I did not deprive you of Me so very often, you would not have had the new surprises of your Jesus, His many teachings. Have you yourself not seen how, after you have been without Me and you thought that everything was over for you, my life would rise again in you and, all love and festive, I would set about giving you my lessons? So, when I deprive you of Me, I remain hidden in you and I prepare the work to give you, and my new life to rise again. I too suffered the pain of death, to make a creature rise again in the pain of my death. Death, suffered in the divine order and in order to fulfill the Divine Will, produces Divine Life, so that all creatures might receive this Divine Life. And, after having suffered so many deaths, I wanted to really die - how many goods did my resurrection not produce? It can be said that with my resurrection all the goods of my Redemption rose again, and, with it, all goods rose again for creatures, as well as their very life. Therefore, be attentive, and let Me do.”

The Tree of the Divine Will. The single act of God. One who lives in the Divine Will forms the echo in all created things.

I was worried about the publication of the writings of the Divine Will, and I felt bothered at the many question they ask me; and I said to myself: ‘Jesus alone knows my martyrdom, and how tortured I felt when authoritative people were talking about wanting to publish them; so much so, that no one could manage to calm my interior martyrdom and make me surrender to say Fiat. Only Jesus, with His seducing persuasion, and by striking in me the fear of the great evil I might do if I went out, even just slightly, from the Divine Will, could induce me to say Fiat. And now, in seeing it go so slowly, I remember my interior struggles, my hard martyrdom because of this publication. What is the utility of so many pains suffered; who knows who will see this publication? Maybe Jesus will make me content by letting me see it from Heaven.’ But while I was thinking of this and other things, I began to pray, and I saw before my mind a tree loaded with fruits, which emitted light; and my sweet Jesus was crucified in the middle of this tree, and the light of these fruits was so great, that Jesus was eclipsed within this light.

I was surprised, and Jesus told me: “My daughter, this tree that you see is the tree of my Divine Will; and since my Will is sun, Its fruits turn into light and form many other suns. The center of its life is I, and this is why I am in the middle of it. Now, these fruits that you see are all my truths which I have manifested on my Divine Fiat. They are all in the act of giving birth to their light in the bosom of the generations; and those who should occupy themselves with them and hasten, but do not do it, prevent the fruits of this tree from forming births of light from themselves, as well as the great good of this light. Therefore, you must be consoled in your tortures and martyrdoms, because between you and I we are in order, nor would I have tolerated even a shadow of opposition to my Will in you. It would have been my greatest sorrow, nor would I have been able to say: 'The little daughter of my Will gave Me her will as gift, and I gave her the gift of Mine', while this exchange of wills is one of my greatest joys, and yours. If there is any fault, it is from those who neglect it. Therefore, do not want to afflict yourself or be bothered at the questions they ask; I Myself will be in you to administer to you the light and the words which are needed. You must know that this is my interest more than your own."

Then, I continued to think about the Divine Fiat, and my sweet Jesus added: "My daughter, within Us, in Our Divinity, one single act is enough to do everything. That act is will, thought, word, work and step. So, a single act of Ours is voice that speaks, it is hand that operates, it is foot that walks, and enveloping everything, if the creature thinks, works, speaks and walks, it is the virtue of Our single act that, echoing in each act of the creature, communicates the good of the thought, of the word and of all the rest. Therefore, it can be said that We are the Bearer(, Singular, referring to the One Triune God,) of all creatures and of all their acts. Oh! how offended We feel when Our act bears voice, thought, work and step, but not only is it not done for Us, but to offend Us. Creatures use Our very acts to form the weapons with which to wound Us! Human ingratitude, how great you are.

"Now, one who does Our Divine Will and lives in It unites herself to Our single act, and forming one single act of the will with Ours, she flows together with Our act, and together with Us, she makes herself thought, voice, work and step of all. And, oh! how We enjoy, because Our virtue, investing the human littleness, makes her the bearer of all the acts of creatures together with Us, and she uses all Our acts - not to form weapons with which to wound Us, but to form weapons with which to defend Us, to love Us and to glorify Us. So, We call her Our warrior, who defends Our rights."

After this, I was following the Divine Fiat in the Creation: I felt I wanted to make everything my own - the sun, to give Him the glory of the light and of the heat; the sea, to give Him the glory of that murmuring that never ceases.... I would like to have everything in my power, to be able to say: 'You have given me everything, and I give You everything.' But while I was thinking of this and other things, my beloved Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

"My daughter, how beautiful is the living in my Will - your echo reaches everywhere. Wherever my Divine Will is present, and It is everywhere, there does your echo reach. So, your echo resounds in the sun, in the sea, in the wind, in the air, and penetrating even into Heaven, it brings to your Creator His very glory, love and adoration. And my Divine Will does not feel alone in all created things; It has the company of the echo of one who lives in my Divine Volition, and It feels all the love and the glory which It spread in the whole Creation being returned to It."

Speaking of the nine excesses of Jesus in the Incarnation. Contentments of Jesus. His word is creation. Jesus sees the scenes of His love being repeated. Preludes of His Kingdom.

I was doing my meditation, and since today it was the beginning of the Novena of Baby Jesus, I was thinking about the nine excesses of His Incarnation, which Jesus had narrated to me with so much tenderness, and which are written in the first volume. I felt great reluctance at reminding the confessor about this, because, in reading them, he had told me that he wanted to read them in public in our chapel.

Now, while I was thinking of this, my little Baby Jesus made Himself seen in my arms, so very little, caressing me with His tiny little hands, and saying to me:

“How beautiful is my little daughter! How beautiful! How I must thank you for having listened to Me.”

And I: ‘My Love, what are You saying It is I who must thank You for having spoken to me, and for having given me, with so much love, acting as my teacher, so many lessons which I did not deserve.’

And Jesus: “Ah, my daughter, to how many do I want to speak, and they do not listen to Me, reducing Me to silence and to suffocating my flames. So, we must thank each other - you thank Me, and I thank you. And then, why do you want to oppose the reading of the nine excesses? Ah! You do not know how much life, how much love and grace they contain. You must know that my word is creation, and in narrating to you the nine excesses of my love in the Incarnation, I not only renewed my love which I had in incarnating Myself, but I created new love in order to invest the creatures and conquer them to give themselves to Me. These nine excesses of my love, manifested with so much love of tenderness and simplicity, formed the prelude of the many lessons I was to give you about my Divine Fiat, in order to form Its Kingdom. And now, by their being read, my love is renewed and redoubled. Don’t you want, then, that my love, being redoubled, overflow outside and invest more hearts, so that, as a prelude, they may dispose themselves for the lessons of my Will, to make It known and reign?”

And I: ‘My dear Baby, I believe that many have spoken about your Incarnation.

And Jesus: “Yes, yes, they have spoken, but those have been words taken from the shore of my love, therefore they are words which possess neither tendernesses, nor fulnesses of life. But those few words which I have spoken to you, I have spoken from within the life of the fount of my love, and they contain life, irresistible strength, and such tendernesses, that only the dead will not feel themselves being moved to pity for Me, tiny little One, who suffered so many pains even from the womb of the Celestial Mama.”

After this, the confessor was reading in the chapel the first excess of the love of Jesus in the Incarnation; and my sweet Jesus, from within my interior, pricked up His ears to listen. And drawing me to Himself, He said to me:

“My daughter, how happy I feel in listening to them. But my happiness increases in keeping you in this house of my Will, as both of us are listeners: I, of what I have told you, and you, of what you have heard from Me. My love swells, boils and overflows. Listen, listen - how beautiful it is! The word contains the breath, and as it is spoken, the word carries the breath which, like air, goes around from mouth to mouth and communicates the strength of my creative word; and the new creation which my word contains descends into the hearts. Listen, my daughter: in Redemption I had the cortege of my Apostles, and I was in their midst, all love, in order to instruct them, I spared no toil in order to form the foundation of my Church. Now, in this house, I feel the cortege of the first children of my Will, and I feel my loving scenes being repeated, in seeing you in their midst, all love, wanting to impart the lessons about my Divine Fiat in order to form the foundations of the Kingdom of my Divine Will. If you knew how happy I feel in seeing you speak about my Divine Volition.... I anxiously await the moment when you begin to speak, in order to listen to you, and to feel the happiness that my Divine Will brings Me.”

Sea of love in the excesses of Jesus. Example of the sea. The Divine Will, solar ray which brings the Life of Heaven. The Divine Will operating. Happiness of Jesus.

The novena of Holy Christmas continues, and continuing to hear the nine excesses of the Incarnation, my beloved Jesus drew me to Himself, and showed me how each excess of His love was a sea without boundaries. And, in this sea, gigantic waves rose, in which one could see all souls flowing, devoured by these flames. Just as the fish flow in the waters of the sea, and the waters of the sea form the life of the fish, the guide, the defense, the food, the bed, the palace of these fish, so much so, that if they get out of the sea, they can say, “Our life is ended, because we have gone out of our inheritance - the fatherland given to us by our Creator”; in the same way, these gigantic waves of flames which rose from these seas of fire, by devouring the creatures, wanted to be the life, the guide, the defense, the food, the bed, the palace, the fatherland of creatures. But as they go out of this sea of love, all of a sudden, they find death. And little Baby Jesus cries, moans, prays, shouts and sighs, for He wants no one to go out of these devouring flames of His, because He does not want to see anyone die. Oh! if the sea had reason, more than tender mother it would sadly cry over its fish which are snatched away from its sea, because it feels a life, which it possesses and preserves with so much love, being snatched away from itself, and with its waves, it would hurl itself at those who dared to snatch away from it so many lives which it possesses, and which form its richness, its glory.

“And if the sea does not cry, I cry” - Jesus says - “in seeing that, while my love has devoured all creatures, ungrateful, they do not want to live life in my sea of love, but wriggling free from my flames, they exile themselves from my Fatherland, losing the palace, the guide, the defense, the food, the bed, and even the life. How can I not cry? They came out of Me - they were created by Me, and were devoured by my flames of love which I had in incarnating Myself for love of all creatures. As I hear the nine excesses being narrated to Me, the sea of my love swells - it boils; and forming huge waves, it roars so much, that it would want to deafen everyone, that they might hear nothing but my moans of love, my cries of sorrow, my repeated sobs, saying: ‘Don’t make Me cry any more, let us exchange the kiss of peace; let us love each other, and we will all be happy - the Creator and the creature’.”

Jesus kept silent, and at that moment I saw the heavens opened and a ray of light descend from above, which, fixing itself upon me, illuminated those who were around me. And my always lovable Jesus resumed His speaking:

“Daughter of my Will, this solar ray that fixed itself upon you is my Divine Will, which brings you the life of Heaven into your soul. How beautiful is this solar ray, which not only illuminates you and brings you its life, but whoever draws near you and remains around feels the life of light, because, like sun, it expands around, and gives to those who surround you the warm kiss of light, of its breath, of its life. And I feel happy within you in seeing that my Divine Will diffuses and begins to beat its way. See, the seas of love that you saw are nothing other than my Will operating. When my Will wants to operate, the seas of my love swell, boil, form their gigantic waves which cry, moan, shout, pray, deafen. On the other hand, when my Fiat does not want to operate, the sea of my love is calm, it only murmurs quietly, its course of joy and of happiness, inseparable from it, is continuous. Therefore, you cannot comprehend the joy I experience, the happiness I feel and the interest I take in illuminating, in offering my very word, my very Heart, to one who occupies himself with making my Divine Will known. My interest is so great, that I envelop him within Myself and, I Myself overflowing outside of him, I take the floor, and I Myself speak about my Will operating in my love. Do you think that it is your confessor that speaks, in these evenings in which he is speaking in public about the nine excesses of my love? It is I who take his heart in my hands and make him speak.”

But while He was saying this, benediction was being given, and Jesus added: “Daughter, I bless you; everything is happiness for Me when it comes to doing an act of mine over one who possesses my Divine Will, because, if I bless you, my blessing finds the space in which to place the goods and the effects which my blessing contains; if I love you, my love finds in my Fiat, within you, the space in which to place itself and carry out its life of love. Therefore, each thing I do over you, in you and with you, is a happiness that I feel, because I know that a Divine Will has the place for everything I want to give you, and the virtue of multiplying the goods I give you, because It is Our all-doer, and It occupies Itself with forming as many lives for as many acts as We do with the creature in whom It reigns.”

After this, I was doing my round in the Divine Fiat and was going again to the first times of Creation, to unite myself to the acts done by our father Adam in the state of innocence, so as to unite myself with him and continue from where he left. And my beloved Jesus, moving my interior, told me:

“My daughter, in creating man I gave a visible universe in which he was to move freely and see the works of his Creator, done with so much order and harmony, done for love of him, and, in this void, to also do his own works. And just as I gave a visible void, so I gave an invisible void, even more beautiful, for his soul, in which man was to form his holy works, his sun, his heavens, his stars; and echoing his Creator, he was to fill this void with all his works. But since man descended from my Divine Will to live in his own, he lost the echo of his Creator and the model with which to be able to copy Our works. Therefore, it can be said that in this void there is nothing other than the first steps of man - all the rest is empty. Yet, it must be filled, and this is why I await with so much love those who live and must live in my Will, who, feeling the power of our echo and having Our models present to them, will hasten to fill this invisible void which I gave with so much love in Creation. But do you know what this void is? It is Our Will. Just as I gave a heaven, a sun, to man’s nature, so I gave the Heaven, the Sun of my Fiat to his soul. And when I see you take your steps after the steps of Adam innocent, I say: ‘Finally, here is the void of my Divine Will that begins to receive the first conquests and the first works of the creature.’ Therefore, be attentive and continue always your flight in my Divine Volition.”

The feast which the little daughter prepares for Baby Jesus, how she renders Him happy. Adam, first sun. Example of the artisan.

I was thinking about the birth of Baby Jesus, and I prayed Him to come to be born in my poor soul. And in order to sing His praises, and form a cortege for Him in the act of His birth, I fused myself in the Holy Divine Volition, and flowing in all created things, I wanted to animate the heavens, the sun, the stars, the sea, the earth and everything with my 'I love You'. I wanted to place all created things as though in waiting, in the act of Jesus' birth, so that all would say to Him 'I love You' and 'we want the Kingdom of your Will upon earth'.

Now, while I was doing this, it seemed to me that all created things would come to attention in the act of Jesus' birth, and as the dear Baby came out of the womb of His Celestial Mama, the heavens, the sun, and even the tiny little bird, as though all in chorus, were saying, 'I love You' and 'we want the Kingdom of your Will upon earth'. My 'I love You' in the Divine Will flowed within all things in which the Divine Will had Its life, and therefore all sang praises to the birth of their Creator; and I saw the newborn Baby who, flinging Himself into my arms, all shivering, told me:

“What a beautiful feast has the little daughter of my Will prepared for Me; how beautiful is the chorus of all created things saying to Me 'I love You', and wanting my Will to reign. One who lives in It can give Me anything, and can use all stratagems in order to render Me happy and make Me smile, even in the midst of tears. Therefore, I was waiting for you, to have a surprise of love of yours by virtue of my Divine Volition. In fact, you must know that my life on earth was nothing but suffering, operating and preparing everything that was to serve the Kingdom of my Divine Will, which must be Kingdom of happiness and of possession; therefore, it is then that my works will have their full fruits and will change for Me and for creatures into sweetnesses, into joys and into possession.”

Now, while He was saying this, He disappeared from me; but after a little while He came back, inside a little cradle of gold, clothed with a tiny little garment of light. And He added:

“My daughter, today is my birthday, and I have come to render you happy with my presence. It would be too hard for Me, on this day, not to render one who lives in my Divine Will happy, not to give you my first kiss and tell you 'I love you' as a requital of yours, and, clasping you tightly to my little Heart, make you feel my heartbeats that unleash fire, and would want to burn everything which does not belong to my Will, while your heartbeat, echoing within mine, repeats for Me your pleasant refrain: 'May your Will reign on earth as It does in Heaven'. Repeat it always, if you want to render Me happy and calm my baby crying. Look - your love has prepared for Me the gold cradle, and the acts in my Divine Will have prepared for Me the little garment of light. Aren't you happy?”

After this, I continued my acts in the Divine Fiat, going back to Eden, into the first acts of the creation of man; and my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, Adam was the first human sun, invested by Our Volition, and his acts were more than sun's rays which, extending and expanding, were to invest the whole human family, in which one would see many in one, as though palpitating in these rays, all centralized in the center of this first human sun. And all were to have the virtue of forming their own suns, without going out of the bond of the first sun. In fact, since the life of each one would have its origin from this sun, each one would be able to be sun of his own. How beautiful was the creation of man. Oh! how it surpassed the whole entire universe. The bond, the union of one in many, was the greatest prodigy of Our Omnipotence, as Our Will, one in Itself, was to maintain the inseparability of all, the communicative and unifying life of all - symbol and image of Our Divinity, as We are inseparable, and even though We are three Divine Persons, We are always one, because one is the Will, one is the sanctity, one is Our power. This is why man is always looked upon by Us as if there were one alone, even though he was to have his very long generation, but always centralized in the one. It was the uncreated love that was created by Us in man, and therefore he was to give of Us and be like Us; and Our Will, the only one acting in Us, was to act as the only one in man, in order to form the unity of all and the bond of inseparability of each one.

“Therefore, by withdrawing from Our Divine Fiat, man became deformed and disordered, and no longer felt the strength of the unity and inseparability, either with his Creator or with all generations. He felt like a divided body, broken in his members, which no longer possesses all the strength of his body as whole. This is why my Divine Will wants to enter again as prime act into the creature - to reunite the broken members and to give him the unity and the inseparability, as he came out of Our creative hands. We find Ourselves in the condition of an artisan who has made his beautiful statue, such as to astonish Heaven and earth. The artisan loves this statue so much that he has placed his very life in it; so, at each act or movement it does, the artisan feels within himself the life, the act, the movement of his beautiful statue. The artisan loves it with love of delirium, nor can he remove his gaze from it; but in so much love, the statue receives an encounter, it bumps, and it remains broken in its members and in Its vital part which kept it bound and united to the artisan. What will his sorrow not be? And what will he not do in order to redo his beautiful statue? More so, since he still loves it, and to the raving love has added the grieving love. Such is the state the Divinity is in with regard to man. He is Our delirium of love and of sorrow, for We want to redo the beautiful statue of man; and since the bump took place in the vital part of Our Will which he possessed, once Our Will is reestablished in him, the beautiful statue will be redone for Us, and Our love will be satisfied. Therefore, I want nothing else from you but my Divine Will to have Its life.”

Then He added with a more tender tone: “My daughter, in the created things the Divinity did not create love, but the flowerings of His light, of His power, of His beauty, etc. So, it can be said that in creating the heavens, the stars, the sun, the wind, the sea, the earth, it was Our works that We issued, and the flowerings of Our beautiful qualities. Only for man was this greatest prodigy of creating the life - and the life of Our love itself, and this is why it is said that he was created in Our image and likeness. And this is why We love him so much - because it is life and work that has come out of Us, and life costs more than anything.”

Mute heavens and suns; speaking heavens and suns. How God resumes His Creation. How Heaven will no longer be foreign to the earth.

I was following the Divine Fiat in the Creation, to accompany Its acts, and my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, look - how beautiful is Creation! What order, what harmony It contains. And as beautiful as It is, the heavens, the stars, the sun, are all mute - they have no virtue to say even one word. On the other hand, the heavens, the stars, the sun, the ruling wind of ray Divine Will are all speaking, and have such eloquence that no one else can equal them; the angel, the saint, the learned one, before the heavens of my speaking Will, remain mute and feel ignorant. But why are these heavens and suns speaking? Because they contain life. But do you know what these speaking heavens and suns are? They are the knowledges which I have manifested to you about my Divine Will. My Will is not only life, but is the fount, the source and the life of all lives, therefore the heavens of its knowledges could not be mute. So, each knowledge about my Divine Fiat is a heaven, a sun, it is a wind, one distinct from the other, which, having the speaking virtue and possessing the Divine Life, have the virtue of producing new heavens and suns more beautiful, and winds more mighty, such as to invests the hearts and make conquests of them by their sweet ruling moaning.

“See then, my daughter, how my love surpassed the love We had in Creation, in manifesting to you the many knowledges about my Divine Will. In fact, in Creation, one single heaven, one sun, etc., were enough for Our love, because We wanted to display more all the ardor of Our love over ‘speaking man’, and for ‘speaking man’ We wanted to create ‘speaking heavens and suns’ in the depth of his soul. But by withdrawing from Our Divine Volition, he put a limit to Our love, and the speaking heavens no longer had life in him. But Our love did not say ‘enough’; at the most, it paused and waited. But unable to contain itself any longer, it resumed its creation of the speaking heavens and suns in the little daughter of my Divine Will. Look at them in the depth of your soul - all of my knowledges about my Fiat, all in order and harmony; and one is heaven, and speaks, and forms another heaven; another is sun, and speaks, and while it makes itself light and it warms, it forms another sun. Another is sea, and forms its speaking waves; and while it speaks, it forms another sea, to invest the whole world with its speaking waves, and to impose itself with its creative word so as to make itself listened to, in order to bring the new sea of peace and of joy of my Will into all. Another is wind, and now it speaks with its empire in order to knock down the hardest hearts, now it speaks with its caresses so as not to strike fears, now it speaks with loving moans so as to make itself loved; and while it speaks, it forms more winds, and its word runs to make known the Life, the Power of my Divine Will.

“In sum, all my knowledges about It are a new creation, more beautiful, more varied than the Creation Itself - and much more beautiful, because it is a speaking one; and its word is the Life of my Divine Will which it brings to the creature. Therefore, I feel happy in your soul because I am in the midst of my speaking heavens, stars and suns; but my happiness is doubled when you make the sacrifice of writing, because I see that these speaking heavens will go out, and their word will form new heavens which will bring the Life of my Divine Fiat into the midst of creatures. Then will Heaven no longer be foreign to the earth, because these speaking heavens will form the new celestial family upon earth, and their word will place Creator and creature in communication. The winds of these knowledges will place the secret joys of the Most Holy Trinity in common; and as the creature becomes the owner of the Divine Sanctity and Happiness, all evils will disappear, and I will have the joy of seeing the creature happy, just as he came out of Our creative hands.”

Pages of her life which will form an epoch. The gift that Jesus wants. The circumcision. Decision on the part of God; He is waiting for the decision of creatures.

I was thinking about what I could offer to little Baby Jesus as gift for the first day of the year. 'Would it not be good to give Him my will again as a little footstool at His little feet, or as an amusement in His tiny little hands? But while I was thinking about this, my little Jesus made Himself seen in my interior, telling me:

"My daughter, your will is already mine, nor are you the master of it any longer, having given it to Me so many times. And I keep it now as footstool, now as amusement in my hands, and now I enclose it in my Heart as the most beautiful conquest and as the secret joy that soothes my many pains. Do you want to know what I would like as gift on this day? All your acts which you have done in my Will during this year. These acts will be as many suns which you will place around Me, and - oh! how I content I will be in seeing that the little daughter of my Divine Volition has given Me the many suns of her acts as gift; and I, in return, will give you the grace to double these suns of your acts done in my Will, to give you the field to be able to offer Me a gift yet more beautiful and rich."

Then He added: "My daughter, each manifestation I have given you about my Divine Will is like a page of your life; and if you knew how many goods these pages enclose.... Each of them is a current between Heaven and earth, it is one more sun that will shine over the heads of all. These pages will be the heralds of the Celestial Fatherland; they are steps which my Divine Volition takes in order to draw near the creatures. Therefore, these manifestations about It, like pages of life, will form an epoch for the future generations, in which they will read the Kingdom of my Fiat, the many steps it took to come into their midst, and the new rights It gave them to make them enter again into Its Kingdom. My manifestations are decrees, and only when I want to give that good which I manifest, then do I move to manifest a knowledge. Therefore, everything I have told you about my Divine Will is divine capitals that I issued; therefore, they will be the most beautiful pages of your life, which will enclose the long history of my Will, and braiding the history of the world, will form the most beautiful epoch of all centuries."

After this, I was thinking about the bitter pain which little Baby Jesus suffered in the circumcision. It is only eight days since He was born, and He submits Himself to a cut so painful. And Jesus, moving in my interior, added:

"My daughter, in the first epoch of his life, by sinning, Adam made a wound to his soul, through which the Divine Will went out and, in Its place, darkness, miseries, weaknesses entered, which formed the wood worm to all the goods of man. So, if he has any good without my Divine Will - if he has any at all, they are worm-eaten, moldy, without substance, therefore without strength and without value. And I, who love him so much, in the first days of my life down here, wanted to submit Myself to the circumcision, suffering a most cruel cut, to the point of snatching my baby tears. And by this wound I opened the door to the human will, to let it enter again into Mine, so that this wound of mine might heal the wound of the human will and might enclose man once again in my Divine Fiat, which would remove from him the wood worm, the miseries, the weaknesses, the darkness; and by virtue of my omnipotent Fiat, all of his goods would be redone and restored. Daughter, from the moment I was conceived and from the very first days of my being born, I occupied Myself with the Kingdom of my Divine Will and with how to place It in safety in the midst of creatures. These were my sighs, my tears, my repeated sobs, my pains, all directed toward reestablishing the Kingdom of my Fiat upon earth. In fact, I knew that no matter how many goods I might give him, man would never be happy, nor would he possess the fullness of goods and of sanctity, or have the insignia of his creation which constitute him king and dominator; he is always the man-servant, weak, miserable. But with my Will, and by making It reign in their midst, I would give him, in one single stroke of fortune, all goods, his royal palace and his lost dominion.

“About twenty centuries have passed and I have not stopped - my sighs last still; and if I have manifested to you so many knowledges about my Divine Will, these are nothing other than my speaking tears and the indelible characters of my pains and sighs, which, transforming into words, manifest themselves to you, to make you write on paper, with the most tender and convincing manners, what regards my Divine Volition and how It wants to reign on earth as It does in Heaven. Therefore, on Our part, the Divinity has decided with indelible and unshakeable decrees that Our Divine Will come to reign upon earth - and no one can move Us; and as the sign of this, We have dispatched from Heaven the army of Its knowledges. If it were not so, it would not be worthwhile to place the so many values of a Divine Will at risk; just as they have remained hidden to man for many centuries, so could they continue. Now We are waiting for the creatures’ part, who are still temporizing from making up their minds, especially those who temporize from occupying themselves with making known the secrets of my Divine Will and the great good of Its knowledges. Human will, how ungrateful you are; I am waiting for your decision so that we may exchange the kiss, and I may give you the Kingdom which I have prepared for you. And you temporize still? My daughter, pray and place no obstacle on your part to a good so great, which will be the greatest display of Our love.”

Crowd of people who did not reach the proper stature, because they went out of the inheritance of the Divine Fiat. Wherever the Divine Fiat is present, there is the communicative strength of the divine goods.

I continue in my usual abandonment in the Divine Fiat; and while I was following Its acts, I saw a crowd of people, all of small stature, malnourished, sickly, scrawny, and some of them wounded. In this crowd there was neither childlike freshness, nor the beauty of the young age, nor the dignity of the mature man; they seemed to be an odd assortment of people without regimen, starving, without sufficient foods; and if they ate, they were never satiated. How much pity aroused this great crowd, which seemed to be almost the whole entire world. I did not know who they were, nor the meaning of their nature - that none of them had reached their proper stature; and my beloved Jesus, sighing, came out from within my interior and told me:

“My daughter, what an unhappy crowd. It is nothing other than the great crowd that went out of the paternal inheritance given to them by their Celestial Father. Poor children, without paternal inheritance. They do not have their lands in which to live safely; they do not have sufficient foods in order to nourish themselves, and are forced to live of thefts and robberies, and of foods without substance. Therefore, it is almost difficult for them to grow to proper stature, because their members do not have sufficient strength to develop; and so they are scrawny, infirm, starving, without ever becoming satiated. Everything they take is not suitable for their growth, because they are not foods suitable and established for them, nor belonging to their inheritance.

“My daughter, the inheritance given by my Celestial Father to this crowd of people was my Divine Will. In It they were to find food in order to grow to proper stature, balsamic air to be rendered healthy and strong, which was to portray on their faces the freshness of a child, the beauty of the young age and the dignity of a mature man. There was no good which this inheritance did not possess, of which man was to be the master, and have at his disposal all the goods he wanted, in the soul and in the body. So, as man went out of the inheritance of my Divine Will, he no longer found things at his disposal, he was no longer master, but servant, and he is forced to live of hardships. How can he grow to proper stature? This is why I await with so much love the crowd of those who must live in Our inheritance of the Divine Fiat. It will form for Us the beautiful crowd with proper stature, beautiful and fresh, which will be fed with nourishing foods that will render them strong and developed; and they will form all the glory of Our creative work. Our sorrow is great in looking at this crowd, unhappy and deformed; and in Our sorrow We repeat: ‘Ah! Our work did not come out of Our creative hands as infirm, without beauty and freshness, but it was a delight to merely look at it; even more, it enraptured Us, so beautiful it was.’ But while We say this, Our love swells and wants to overflow outside; and it wants to put Our Divine Volition on the way, to make It reign in the midst of creatures, so as to restore, beautiful and gracious, Our work, just as it came out of Our creative hands.”

Then, I continued to think about the Supreme Fiat, and - oh! how many things I comprehended about It, I seemed to see It, all majesty, all light, pouring out happiness, strength, sanctity, love; and these outpourings formed endless seas which wanted to pour themselves over creatures. But, alas!, they would not give a thought to receiving them, and these seas would remain suspended above their heads. But while my mind was immersed in the Divine Fiat, my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, wherever the Divine Will is present, there is the communicative strength of all the divine goods, and like mighty waves, Our outpourings of happiness, of light, of strength, etc., flow over the creature who possesses It. And It has the virtue of changing the nature of the hardest, the most painful, the most bitter things. Wherever my Divine Fiat is present, the hardest things become so very soft, pains change into joys, bitternesses into sweetnesses, the earth becomes Heaven, the sacrifices conquests.

“Your example is more than enough to convince you of what I am telling you. See, if my Will, were not present in you, nailed as you are, inside a bed for so many years, without seeing and enjoying either the sun, or the air, or any pleasure of the earth - even more, you can say that you do not know it - you would have been the unhappiest creature. Oh! how hard and bitter would your state have been to you. Yet, my Divine Fiat, possessing the source of happiness, pouring Itself over you and flowing even in the marrow of your bones, communicates to you Its happiness, and with Its strength It puts all evils to sleep for you, and renders you happy. And if you knew how content I am in seeing you happy.... And then, add that it is seeing you happy, not in a state of pleasure, of amusement, but confined in a bed; this enraptures Me, it makes Me go into fidgets of love, it draws Me so much to you; and in my delirium of love, I say: 'Oh! prodigy of my Divine Fiat, that renders my daughter happy in a state which the world would have cried out as unhappiness, misfortune, and maybe never before seen and understood. Yet, with my Divine Will she is the happiest of creatures, the most peaceful, the dominator of herself, because inside of her flows the vein of the happiness of my Fiat, which knows how to convert all things into joys and happinesses without end.' My daughter, to see the creature happy is my only contentment, and since what renders her unhappy is the human volition, once this is removed, all the unhappinesses end, nor do they have any more reason to exist. But what makes all human unhappinesses die is my Will alone. Before It, all evils feel themselves dying; my Will is like the sun that rises in the morning, which has the virtue of dispelling the darkness of the night. Before the light, darkness dies, nor has any right to exist any more. So it is with my Divine Will."

The prophets; how the Kingdom of Redemption and that of the Fiat hold hands. Necessity that what regards the Kingdom of the Divine Will be known.

I was continuing my round in the acts of the Divine Fiat, and as I reached the point in which I would accompany the prophets when the Divine Volition manifested Itself to them - the how and the when of the coming of the future Redeemer - and the prophets longed for Him with tears, prayers, and penances, making everything they did my own, because all this was the fruits of the Eternal Divine Fiat, I offered it in order to impetrate Its Kingdom upon earth. But while I was doing this, my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

"My daughter, when a good is universal and must and can bring good to all, it is necessary that entire peoples - and if not everyone, a great part - know the good which they must receive, and with prayers, sighs, desires and works, they impetrate a good so great, in such a way that first the good they want is conceived in their minds, sighs, desires, works, and even in their hearts, and then is the good which they longed for given to them in reality.

"When a good that must be received is universal, it takes the strength of a people to impetrate it; on the other hand, when it is individual or local, one can be enough to obtain the intent. Therefore, before coming upon earth and being conceived in the womb of the Sovereign Queen of Heaven, I can say that I was conceived in the minds of the prophets, and I confirmed and gave value to this sort of conception in them through my manifestations of the when and the how I was to come upon earth in order to redeem mankind. And the prophets, faithful executors of my manifestations, acted as trumpeters, manifesting to the peoples, with their words, that which I had manifested about my coming upon earth; and conceiving Me in the words, they made the news that the Word wanted to come upon earth fly from mouth to mouth. And by this, not only was I conceived in the word of the prophets, but I remained conceived also in the word of the people, in such a way that all talked about it, and prayed, and longed for the future Redeemer. And when the news of my coming upon earth were diffused among the peoples, and almost an entire people, with the prophets at the head of it, prayed and longed for, with tears and penances - only then, being as though conceived in their wills, I let the Queen come to life, in whom I was to conceive in reality, so as to make my entrance into a people which had been longing for Me and desiring Me for forty centuries. What a crime would the prophets not have committed, had they concealed, hidden within themselves, my manifestations about my coming. They would have prevented my conception in the minds, in the prayers, words and works of the people - a necessary condition for God's being able to concede a universal good, which was my coming upon earth.

“Now, my daughter, the Kingdom of Redemption and the Kingdom of my Divine Fiat hold hands, and since It is also a universal good, such that, if they want so, all can enter into It, it is necessary that many know the news about It, and that It be conceived in the minds, in the words, in the works and hearts of many, so that, through prayers, desires, and a holier life, they may dispose themselves to receive the Kingdom of my Divine Will into their midst. If the news is not divulged, my manifestations will not act as trumpeters, nor will the knowledges about my Divine Fiat fly from mouth to mouth, forming the conception of It in the minds, prayers, sighs and desires of creatures. My Divine Volition will not make Its triumphant entrance, coming to reign upon earth. How necessary it is that the knowledges about my Fiat be known; not only this, but that it be made known that my Divine Will already wants to come to reign on earth as It does in Heaven into the midst of creatures. And it is to the priests, as to new prophets, both through the word and through writing and through works, that the task is given of acting as trumpeters in order to make known what regards my Divine Fiat; nor would their crime be lesser than that of the prophets, had these hidden my Redemption, if they do not occupy themselves as much as they can with what regards my Divine Will. They themselves would be the cause of a good so great being neither known nor received by creatures; and to suffocate the Kingdom of my Divine Will, to keep suspended a good so great, such that there is no other similar to it - is this perhaps not a crime? Therefore, I recommend to you: on your part, do not omit anything, and pray for those who must occupy themselves with making known a good so great.”

Then He added with a more tender and afflicted tone:

“My daughter, this was the purpose for which I permitted the necessity of the coming of the priest - that you might deposit in them, as a sacred deposit, all the truths which I have spoken to you about my Divine Fiat, and that they be attentive and the faithful executors of what I want - that is, that they make the Kingdom of my Divine Will known. Be certain that I would not have permitted their coming if not for the purpose of fulfilling my great designs over the destiny of the human family. And just as in the Kingdom of Redemption I left my Queen Mama in the midst of the Apostles, so that, together with Her, helped and guided by Her, they might give start to the Kingdom of Redemption - because the Sovereign Queen of Heaven knew more than all of the Apostles, She was the most interested; it can be said that She kept It formed within Her maternal Heart, therefore She could very well instruct the Apostles in the doubts, in the way, in the circumstances; She was the true sun in their midst, and one word of Hers was enough for my Apostles to feel strong, illuminated and fortified - in the same way, for the Kingdom of my Divine Fiat, having placed in you the deposit of It, I keep you in the exile still, so that the priests might draw from you, as from a new mother, what can serve as light, as guidance, as help, to give start to making known the Kingdom of my Divine Will. And as I see their little interest if you knew how much I suffer ... Therefore, pray, pray.”

How Creation is a divine army. Wherever the Divine Will is present there is perennial life.

My abandonment in the Divine Fiat continues, and as I was following Its acts which It did in the whole Creation, I wanted to give to my Creator the glory which each created thing contained. In fact, even though each created thing is glorious, noble, holy, of divine origin, because it is formed by the Creating Fiat, however, each thing possesses a property, one distinct from the other, in such a way that each of them gives its own glory to the One who created it.

So, while my little and poor intelligence was wandering within Creation, my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, each created thing has its special office, according to how God created it, and all of them are faithful to Me in the office which each one possesses, giving Me continuous glory, and each distinct from the other. The Creation is my divine army - united and inseparable, though created things are distinct, and all of them run without ever stopping for the sole purpose of glorifying their Creator. It is like an army: some act as general, some as captain, some as officer, and some as little soldier - all intent on serving the king, each one at its place, in perfect order and faithful to the exercise of each office. As each created thing possesses an act of my Divine Will, this is enough for them to maintain themselves in their place in perfect order, always beautiful and ever new, and in the act of glorifying the One who created them. Wherever my Divine Will is present there is perennial life, harmony, order, unshakeable firmness, such that no event can move them from their place, and all are happy in the office which each possesses. Such would man have been if the human will had not snatched him away from my Will - a beautiful army, all ordered, and each one happy in his office, and always in the act of glorifying Me; and while glorifying his Creator, he would remain glorified himself. This is why I want my Divine Fiat to return to reign in the midst of creatures - because I want my army, all ordered, noble, holy, and with the imprint of the glory of their Creator.

To recognize Creation and Redemption is to recognize the divine dominion. Tight bonds which exist between Heaven and one who lives in the Divine Will, and how one who lives in It is all one piece.

My poor and little mind swims in the most bitter pain of the privation of my sweet Jesus, and feeling I am almost without Him, more than ever I feel like longing for my Celestial Fatherland. Oh! how bitter is the earth without Jesus. Together with Him it is more bearable, but without Him one cannot live at all. And if it wasn't for the fact that close to the sea of His privation flows more extensive the sea of the Divine Fiat which, with Its light, eases in part the bitterness and the intensity of the pain of the privation of Jesus, who knows how long ago I would have taken flight to the celestial regions because of the force of the pain. But, Fiat! Fiat!

So, I was continuing my round in the Creation and Redemption, recalling within my mind all the acts done by God in order to follow them, giving, for each act, homages, adoration, love, thanksgiving.

And my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, by recalling the acts of Creation and Redemption in order to follow them and honor them and know them, the creature does nothing but recognize the divine dominion in all things; and my Divine Will feels Itself being given Its honors, the homages due to It, and, drawn, It forms there Its Kingdom in the midst of creatures.”

After this, I felt I could not go on any longer without Jesus - my strengths were failing me; I was so disheartened that if my interior pains could be seen, I would have caused Heaven and earth to cry out of pity. But I believe that just as the Divine Fiat eclipses my sweet Jesus from me with Its light, so does It eclipse my pains, in such a way that no one knows anything about my hard martyrdom - it is a secret that passes only between me, Jesus and the Holy Divine Volition. As for all others, no one knows anything, and in looking at me under the rain of the light of the Fiat, maybe they believe that I am the happiest of creatures. Oh! power of the Divine Will! - You know how to change things, and wherever You are present You make everything appear as beautiful and good. Even more, with your light You bejewel the pains and make them appear as rare and precious pearls which enclose seas of joy and of happiness within themselves. How ingenious You are, oh, Divine Will! Under your empire of light one can do nothing but remain mute, love You and follow You.

But while my little mind was wandering within Its light, and in the terrible nightmare of the privation of Jesus, I just barely felt Him move in my interior, and He told me:

“My daughter, courage, do not lose heart - the whole of Heaven is fixed upon you, and by the irresistible force of my Fiat they feel such identification with you, that they cannot do without looking at you, loving you and concurring in all your acts. You must know that the Angels, the Saints, the Sovereign Queen, are all one piece; their beings are nothing other than one single act of Divine Will. Therefore, nothing but Divine Will appears in each of them; the thought, the gaze, the word, the work, the step - nothing appears but Fiat! Fiat!; and this constitutes all the fullness of the happiness of all Saints. Now, one who does and lives in my Will on earth is similar to the inhabitants of Heaven - that is, she is all one piece, and forms one single piece with them, in such a way that if the pilgrim soul thinks, the Saints think together with her, if she loves, if she operates, they love and operate with her. There are such tight bonds between her and Heaven, that all together form one single act of my Will; so much so, that all the celestial inhabitants are on the lookout to see what the creature on earth does, so that nothing may escape them. Wherever my Divine Will reigns, It has Its Heaven, and has the virtue of kidnapping Heaven onto earth and the earth into Heaven, and of forming one single thing. Therefore, courage, do not lose heart; think that you are dealing with a Divine Will, and this should make you content.”

One who lives in the Divine Will lends to It her nothingness emptied, which the Fiat uses as the space in which to exercise Its Creation.

I was doing my round in the Creation, to follow all the acts that the Divine Fiat has done and is continuing in It. Not only this, but my poor mind kept tracing everything that the Divine Volition had done in Adam and in all generations, before and after the Redemption. It seemed to me that all the acts done by the Divine Will, both in the Creation and in creatures, were more than suns, which I was to follow, embrace and make my own. And even though I was doing that, my poor heart could not help feeling the tortures of the privation of my Highest Good, Jesus. And He, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, courage, in one who lives in my Divine Will and follows Its acts, my Fiat continues Its Creation, and in each of Its acts which she follows, It assumes the attitude of forming Its creations; and only when It sees all of Its acts in the soul who lives in It, all lined up and ordered, like a new Creation, and therefore a new heaven, a new sun, a sea more beautiful, a flowering more surprising - then is my Divine Fiat content. And then, since the act of creating man was the most beautiful, the most tender, done in an ardor of love, the most intense, It wants to repeat over the creature who lives in my Volition the acts which We did in the act of creating man. And, oh! how my Fiat puts Itself in feast in repeating its acts - because only in one who lives in It can It have Its act of always creating, things which It has done as well as new things. In fact, the soul lends to It her nothingness emptied, which my Volition uses as the space in order to create what It wants, almost as It used the void of the universe in order to extend the heavens, to create the sun, to put boundaries to the sea, so that the earth might form its beautiful flowerings. And this is the reason why you go around in the acts of my Fiat and as though many waves of light pass through your mind, in which you follow and feel, impressed into yourself, like many scenes, the Creation, man in the act of being created, the Queen of Heaven in the act of being conceived, the Word descending, and many more acts done by my Will: it is the power of my Creating Fiat that wants to always do, always give, without ever ceasing. Therefore, be attentive, for this is about something too great - no less than your having to remain in the act of undergoing the continuous act of my Creating Will. It will feel It has not completed Its work in you if It does not see all of Its acts enclosed in your soul as the attestation and triumph of Its reigning in you.

“Therefore, all your attention must be in looking at whether all of Its acts have life in you. And do you know how these acts are created in you? As for you, by recalling them, recognizing them and loving them; and my Volition, by pronouncing Its Fiat over your call and over your love, forms the life of Its acts in you. And the continuity of Its work in you is such, that It does not stop even in seeing you tortured by the pain of my privation, because It has much to do, and therefore It moves on. And I let It do so, because you and I must give primacy to our Volition in everything, for the just triumph of Its cause, and to give It the field in order to form Its Kingdom.”

The soul who lives in the Divine Will is inseparable from It. Example of the light.

I was doing my round in the acts of the Divine Fiat, but with an oppression that took life away from me because of the usual privations of my sweet Jesus. Everything was hardship and unspeakable bitterness. It seemed to me that that Divine Will which was giving me life and which possesses immense seas of light, of joy, of happiness without end, was crossed for me by clouds of oppression and of bitteresses because of the privations of the One whose absence now, after I had lived and was raised together with Him for such a long time, forms for me the clouds to embitter for me the light and the happiness of His very Divine Will. Oh! God, what pain!

But while I was following the acts of the Divine Fiat in this state, my beloved Jesus, just barely moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, courage, do not oppress yourself too much. You must know that one who lives in my Divine Will is inseparable from It and from Me. My Will is similar to the light, which contains light, heat and colors, which, though distinct among themselves, are yet inseparable: the light cannot exist nor have life without the heat; the heat cannot have life without the light; and the colors are formed by the strength of the light and of the heat. One cannot be without the other; one is the life, one is the strength. The light, the heat and the colors begin their life together, they continue it without ever separating, and if they have to die, all in one blow, they end their life.

“Such is the inseparability of the soul who lives in my Divine Will; she is inseparable from Me and from all the acts of my Divine Fiat. She enters into the life of the light and of the heat of my Divine Volition, and acquires the life of Its light and of Its heat. And since Its incessant act can be called the multiplicity and infinity of Its acts - the colors which my Divine Will produces - the soul forms one single act with It. You must know that the inseparability of one who lives in my Divine Volition is such and so great, that when the Eternal Wisdom created the heavens, the sun and the whole universe, you were together with Me and were flowing in my Divine Fiat like light, heat and colors. I would have been so very wary of doing even a single act of my Will without my little daughter or one who lives in It. It would be as if I were lacking the strength of the light, of the heat and of the colors. This I cannot lack, and therefore you are inseparable from Me. So, courage, and do not oppress yourself.”

On hearing this, I said to Him: ‘My Love, if it were so - that in all the acts of your Divine Will I was there too in the middle - before sinning, Adam possessed your Fiat, and so, when he sinned, I was there too, and this I would regret.’ And Jesus added:

“My daughter, you must know that in my Divine Will there is the permissive act and the wanted act. In the fall of Adam there was the permissive act, but not wanted by It; and in the permissive act, the light, the heat and the multiplicity of colors of my Divine Will place themselves aside and remain untouchable, without meddling in the human act. On the other hand, in the wanted act, they form one single act and one single thing. Does the light of the sun become stained because it passes over rubbish? Certainly not. Light remains always light, and rubbish remains rubbish. On the contrary, the light triumphs over everything and remains untouchable by anything, regardless of whether they trample upon it, or whether it invests the dirtiest things; because things extraneous to light do not enter into its life of light. My Divine Will is more than light; like light, It flows in all human acts, but It remains untouchable by all the evils of creatures, and only those who want to be light, heat and colors - that is, those who want to live only and always of Its Divine Will - can enter into It; anything else does not belong to It. Therefore, you can be sure that you did not enter into the fall of Adam, because his fall was not an act of light, but of darkness, and one shuns the other.”

How, when she writes, the Divine Will makes Itself actor, dictator and spectator. Ordinary and extraordinary order which the Divinity has in the Creation.

While being in the highest bitterness of the privation of my sweet Jesus, I was writing what is written above, and although I was doing it with incredible effort, given the state I was in, yet I wanted to do it, to give as though the last attestation of homage to that Fiat which, with so much love, had manifested Itself to me. And now, though It is so brief in His speaking, I do not want the tiny little drops of light that It manifests to me to be lost. 'Who knows' - I was thinking to myself - whether this might not be the last little drop of light that I put on paper...'

But while I was thinking this, my beloved Jesus came out from within my interior, and throwing His arms around my neck, He clasped me so very tightly in His arms, and told me:

"My daughter, as soon as you began to write, I felt Myself being drawn so strongly, that I could not resist, in such a way that, as my Fiat overflowed from you, It put Me out in order to direct, while you write, what I have manifested to you about my Divine Volition. This is a commitment, it is a sacred and divine right that It has, to be the actor, the dictator and the spectator while you write, so that everything may be light and surprising truths, in a way that the divine characters of my Will may be known in clear notes. Do you think that you are the one who writes? No, no - you are nothing other than the superficial part. The substance, the primary part, the dictator, is my Divine Will; and if you could see the tenderness, the love, the yearnings with which my Fiat inscribes Its Life on these papers, you would die consumed with love."

Having said this, He withdrew into my interior, and I, as though coming round from the enchantment of Jesus, continued to write; but I felt myself all light, being whispered everything, being fed the words. I am unable to say what I experienced while writing. Then, after I finished writing, I began to pray, but with the nail in my heart of who knows when Jesus would come back again; and I was lamenting: 'Why is He not taking me to Heaven still?' And I remembered of the many times in which He had reduced me to be at death's door, as if I were about to cross the doors of Heaven, but as they were about to open in order to receive me into the blessed dwelling, obedience had imposed itself [(E.g. Volume 4, Sept. 1900 and Sept. 4, 1902)] over my poor existence, and as it would make the doors close to me, I would be forced again to remain in the hard exile of life. Oh! though holy, how cruel and almost tyrannical is obedience in certain circumstances. And, still, I thought to myself: 'I would like to know whether it was of obedience, or the final point of my existence down here had not yet come...'

But while I was thinking about this, and many other things wandered through my mind, with such unspeakable bitterness that it seemed it was intoxicating me, my Highest Good, Jesus, my dear Life, surprised me, and making Himself seen again, told me:

"My daughter, you must know that in Our Divinity there is the ordinary order for the whole Creation, and this is not moved because of any incident: not one point, not one minute earlier, not one minute later; life ends when it is established by Us - We are immutable in this regard. But, in Us, there is also the extraordinary order, and since We are the masters of the laws of the whole Creation, We have the right to change them whenever We want. But if We change them, a great glory of Ours must enter into this, and a great good for the whole Creation; We do not change Our laws because of little things. Now, my daughter, you know that the greatest work is to establish the Kingdom of my Divine Will upon earth, and to make It known; there is no good that the creature can receive if she does not know it. What is your wonder, then, if We have surrendered to obedience so as not to let you die? More so since, because of your connection with my Divine Fiat, you enter into the extraordinary order; and since each knowledge about my Divine Volition is many Divine Lives that have come out of Our womb, the sacrifice of your life was needed in order to receive them, and the very privation of Heaven, from which obedience snatched you.

“In addition to this, since my Divine Will, Its knowledges, Its reigning, are not only the greatest good for the earth, but the complete glory for the whole of Heaven, all of Heaven prayed Me [(E.g. Volume 6, Feb. 12, 1904)] to surrender to the pleas of the one who commanded you; and I, out of regard for my Will, while opening the doors to you, surrendered to their pleas. Do you think that I do not know your great sacrifice, your continuous martyrdom of being away from the Celestial Fatherland, and only to fulfill my Will in the one through whom It was commanded to you? Indeed, this sacrificed snatched from Me the many lives of the knowledges of my Fiat. And then, a soul was needed who would know Heaven and how my Divine Will is done in the celestial dwelling, in order to be able to entrust to her Its secrets, Its story, Its life; and by appreciating them, she would make them her own life and would be ready to lay down her life so that others might know a good so great.”

Jesus kept silent, and I, feeling in suffering, was lamenting and reproaching Jesus for He would not take me to Heaven. And He:

“Courage, my daughter, there is just about a little left for the writings on my Divine Fiat. My very silence says that I am about to complete the great manifestations of the Gospel of the Kingdom of my Divine Will. So I did in the Kingdom of Redemption: during the last days of my life, I did not add anything else; on the contrary, I hid Myself, and if I said anything it was a repetition, in order to confirm what I had already said, because what I had said was sufficient so that all might receive the goods of being redeemed - it was up to them to take advantage of it. So it will be for the Kingdom of my Divine Will: once I have said everything, in such a way that nothing may be lacking in order to be able to receive the good of knowing It, and to be able to possess all of Its goods, then I will have no more interest in keeping you on earth - it will be up to them to take advantage of it.”

How all the Saints are the effects of the Divine Will, while those who live in It will possess Its life.

My abandonment in the Supreme Fiat is continuous; and while I was trying to follow the acts of the Divine Volition as much as I could, embracing everything and everyone, my sweet Jesus came out from within my interior and told me:

“My daughter, the whole Creation, all the Saints, are nothing other than the effects of my Divine Will. If my Will speaks, It creates and forms the most beautiful works. Each little motion of It is fragrances of prodigies that It effuses over creatures; Its littlest breath casts varieties of beauties over the one who receives it. A true image of this is the sun, which, by merely investing the earth, with its touch of light gives the so many varieties of colors, of sweetness, to all plants. No one can deny that, by just letting himself be touched by its light, he has received the good it contains. My Divine Will is more than sun. Even if one only lets oneself be touched by It, Its miraculous touch must produce a good which, perfuming him and warming him with its light, will make him feel Its beneficial effects of sanctity, of light and of love.

“Now, the effects of my Fiat are given to those who do my Divine Will, who adore its dispositions, who bear with patience what It wants. By doing so, the creature recognizes that there is this Supreme Will, and by seeing Itself recognized, It does not deny to her Its admirable effects. On the other hand, one who must live in my Divine Volition must possess within herself the whole life and not only the effects - but the life with all the effects of my Divine Fiat. And since there is no sanctity, past, present and future, of which my Divine Will has not been the primary cause, in forming all the species of sanctity which exist, It therefore holds within Itself all the goods and effects of sanctity which It has issued; and so, the soul who will live in my Will, by possessing Its life with all Its effects, will see within herself, all together, all the sanctities which have been issued. She will be able to say: ‘The others have done one part of sanctity, while I have done everything, I have enclosed everything within myself of all that each Saint has done.’ Therefore, the sanctity of the ancients, that of the prophets, that of the martyrs will be seen in her; the sanctity of the penitents, the great sanctities as well as the small ones will be seen. Not only this, but the whole Creation will be seen portrayed in her. In fact, my Divine Will loses nothing by issuing Its works; on the contrary, while It puts them out, It holds them within Itself as primary fount. Therefore, for one who lives in It, there is nothing that my Divine Volition has done or will do, of which she will not have possession.

“What enchantment and amazement would it not be if a creature could enclose within herself the whole sphere of the sun with all of its light? Who would not say that she contains all the effects, the colors, the sweetness, the light, which the sun has given and will give to all the earth and to all, plants, big and small? If this could be, Heaven and earth would be astonished, and all would recognize that each of their effects which they possess are enclosed in that creature who possesses the sphere of the sun, which is her life with all of its effects. But humanly speaking this could not happen, because the creature would not be able to contain either the power of all the light of the sun, or that of its heat; she would be burned, nor would the sun have the virtue of not burning her. On the other hand, my Will has the virtue of enclosing Itself, of making Itself smaller, of expanding Itself - however it wants to make Itself, so It does. And while It transforms the creature into Itself, It preserves her alive, and giving her all of Its shades of beauty, It renders her the dominator and possessor of Its divine dominions. Therefore, be attentive, my daughter - recognize the great good of the Life of my Fiat in you, which, while It possesses you, wants to render you the possessor of everything that belongs to It.”

After this, He added: “My daughter, one who lives in my Divine Volition never moves from the ways of her Creator and from being Our repeater - that while Our essence is one, one the Will, one the Life, one the Love, one the Power, We are yet three distinct Persons. In the same way, for the soul who lives in It, one is her heartbeat, and in each heartbeat she forms three acts: one embraces God, the second embraces all creatures, the third herself. And so, if she speaks, if she operates, in everything she does, she forms these three acts which, echoing the Power, Wisdom and Love of the One who created her, embrace everything and everyone.”

How the Divine Will is always in the act of renewing what It did in the creation of man. How It contains the charming virtue.

I was continuing my round in the Divine Fiat, and pausing in Eden, I was adoring the Supreme Will in the act of creating man, in order to unite myself to that union of wills which existed between Creator and creature when he was created. And my Highest Good, Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, the creation of man was the most beautiful, the most solemn act of the whole Creation. In the fullness of the ardor Of Our Creating Love, Our Fiat created in Adam all other creatures, and remained always in the act of creating and of renewing over each creature what We did over the first man. In fact, all of his descendants were to have their origin from him. And so, Our Divine Volition took on the commitment, as creatures would come out to the light, to renew Our outpourings of love, to put out all of Our divine qualities, and to make new displays of beauties, of graces, of sanctity, of love over each one of them. So, each creature was to be a new feast for Us - the well-issued one, the welcomed one, and the happy increase in the celestial family.

“Oh! how Our Divine Fiat rejoiced in placing Itself in the act of always having to give to the creature, and of renewing the magnificence, the sublimeness and the insuperable mastery which It was to have over each creature. But because Adam went out of Our Divine Volition, his descendants lost the way in order to come to the first act of the creation of man; and even though Our Divine Volition has not stopped - because when We decide to do an act, no one can move Us, and therefore It remains always in the act of renewing the prodigies of Creation - in spite of this, It does not find anyone over whom to renew them, and It waits with a divine firmness and patience for the creature to return into Its Volition in order to be able to renew Its act, always in act, of being able to repeat what It did in the creation of man. And as much as It awaits everyone, It only finds Its little daughter, the newborn of my Divine Volition, who, each day, enters into the first act of the creation of man, when Our Divine Being made display of all Our divine qualities, to make of man the little king and Our inseparable son, embellishing him with all of Our divine insignia, so that all might recognize him as the greatest portent of Our Love.

“My daughter, if you knew with how much love It awaits you, to make each day your little visit in that Eden in which Our Fiat, taken by impetus of love, took the attitude of feast in order to create man.... Oh! how many acts It keeps repressed within Itself, how many sighs of love suffocated; how many joys contained; how many beauties enclosed within Itself, because there is no one who enters into this, Its creating act, to take the unheard-of goods It wants to give. And in seeing you who, in Its very Divine Volition, have the way in order to reach into the act of the creation of man - oh! how It rejoices and feels drawn as by a powerful magnet to make Itself known to creatures, so that, by making my Divine Will reign in their midst, they may find the way in order to reach the first act of the creation of man, so that It may no longer keep the goods It wants to give to creatures repressed within Itself. Oh! if creatures knew how many new creating acts, one more beautiful than the other, my Divine Fiat is about to create and issue from Itself to pour them upon each one of them - oh! how they would hasten to enter into my Divine Volition in order to begin their lives again in It and receive Its infinite goods.”

Then, I was following the Holy Divine Volition and was thinking to myself: 'Is it really true that I possess this Fiat so holy? It is true that I feel I am unable to want or desire anything else, and It overflows like a sea, inside and outside of me, which envelops me completely in this Divine Fiat, and I feel that all other things do not belong to me; but who knows whether I truly possess It!' But while I was thinking about this, my beloved Jesus added:

"My daughter, the sign that a soul possesses my Will is her feeling herself the dominator of herself, in such a way that her passions do not dare to move before the light of my Fiat; they feel impotent to act, as if they had no life. In fact, the Power and Sanctity of my Will knocks everything down, and over the very miseries of the human will It lays Its Light, Its Sanctity and the most beautiful flowerings, in a way as to admirably convert miseries themselves into fecund and blessed earth, which knows not how to produce thorns any more, but celestial flowers, sweet and mature fruits. And the dominion of this fortunate creature is so great, that she feels the owner of God Himself, of creatures and of all created things. She has a charming virtue, such that whoever has the good of knowing her, feels so bound as to be unable to be away from her. It is the Power of my Fiat that, enclosed within her, charms God, who feels happy to remain enclosed in her; and It charms creatures, because they feel the balsamic fragrance of my Divine Fiat that brings true peace and true good into their hearts. What would some not do in order to have one word from you, which, like life, may descend into their hearts? Therefore, be attentive, and always continue your flight in my Divine Will."

How Creation is the celestial band. How the Fiat possesses the generative virtue.

I continue to go around in the acts of the Divine Fiat, and gathering, all together, the whole Creation, asking in each thing that the Divine Will come to reign upon earth, I was bringing them all together to my Creator, to give Him the glory of all Creation and say to him: 'Adorable Majesty, listen - I pray You - to the heavens, to the stars, to the sun, to the wind, to the sea and to all Creation, asking You that your Fiat come to reign upon earth. Let the will of all be one.' But while I was doing this, my adorable Jesus, coming out from within my interior, told me:

"My daughter, all Creation forms the celestial band, because each created thing contains light, the power of my word Fiat, which produces the most beautiful music. And just as each created thing is not like any of the others, in the same way, my Divine Volition, in creating them with Its creating word, just as It made them one distinct from the other, so It placed in them a distinct sound, like many notes, such as to form the most beautiful concert, which no terrestrial music can imitate. The multiplicity of the sounds with the corresponding notes is so great, for as many as are the created things. So, the heavens contain one sound, each star has its distinct sound, the sun has another, and so with all the rest. These sounds are nothing other than the participation in the harmony which my Divine Will possesses. In fact, as It pronounces Its Fiat, by possessing the generative, communicative and fecundating virtue, wherever It is pronounced It leaves Its beautiful qualities of light, of beauty and of unreachable harmony. Is it perhaps not Its communicative virtue that communicated so much beauty, order and harmony to the whole universe? And is it not by Its breath alone that It nourishes the whole Creation, maintaining It fresh and beautiful, just as It created It?

“Oh! if creatures would let themselves be nourished by the breath of my omnipotent Fiat, all evils would no longer have life in them; Its generative and nourishing virtue would communicate to them light, beauty, order and the most beautiful harmony. What can my Fiat not do and give? Everything. Now, my daughter, as you were gathering all created things in order to bring them to Us as the most beautiful homage, to ask Us for Our Kingdom upon earth, since each thing has the notes and the sound within itself as its own property, immediately they began their music, so beautiful and harmonious, that Our Divinity pricked up Its ear and said: ‘The little daughter of Our Fiat is bringing Us Our celestial band, and in their sound, they say to Us: “May the Kingdom of Our Divine Will come upon earth”. Oh! how pleasing it sounds to Us, how it descends deep into Our inmost divine bosom, and it all moves Us to compassion for so many creatures without the life of Our Fiat. Ah! only one who lives in It can move Heaven and earth, and rise onto Our paternal knees to snatch from Us a good so great, which is the Fiat Voluntas Tua on earth as It is in Heaven’.”

After this, I kept following the Divine Will in so many multiple effects which It produces in the whole Creation, and my always lovable Jesus added:

“My daughter, with one single act my Fiat produces many effects, sustaining the whole Creation. Its act is the life that It gives in order to form each created thing; the effects are the nourishments that It administers like many different foods to each thing, to maintain them beautiful and fresh, just as It created them. So, my Divine Will is the sustainer, the nourisher and the vivifier of all Creation. Now, one who lives in my Divine Volition, together with It, sustains, nourishes and vivifies all created things; she is the inseparable one of my Fiat! As the creature operates in It, she acquires the breath, and breathing together with my Fiat, she maintains what was done once always alive; even more, she has the virtue of vivifying and calling to life the many acts of my Will to which the human will has given death. In fact, my Will has a continuous act to give to creatures, and when they have not done my Will, these acts have died for them; and one who lives in It has the virtue of vivifying them and of keeping them alive.”

How the Divine Love overflowed in Creation. How the Divine Will does not know how to do broken things. How each privation of Jesus is a new pain.

I feel a strength within me, a divine power, which draws me continuously into the Eternal Volition, as if It wanted me in continuous company with Its acts, to give to Its little newborn the life of these acts, and to have the pleasure of hearing them being repeated, or of repeating them together with her. It seems that the Divine Fiat enjoys very much, It celebrates, when It sees the little newborn in Its arms of light, either to tell her something about Its long story, or to let her repeat what It does together with It. The Divine Fiat feels all the joy, the happiness for having issued the Creation. So, Its light transported my little intelligence into Eden, in the act when our Creator, in a surge of love, created the life of love in Adam, in order to love him always, without ever ceasing – as indeed It never ceased - to be loved by him in return with an incessant love. It wanted to love him with a love that never says enough; but It wanted to be loved in return.

While my mind was wandering in the love of the Creator and of the creature, my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, in the first act of the creation of man, Our love overflowed so strongly and raised its flames so high, as to make its arcane voices heard, so strong and penetrating, that the heavens, the stars, the sun, the wind, the sea and everything felt invested by mysterious voices crying out over the head of man: ‘I love you, I love you; I love you.’ These arcane and powerful voices called man; and he, as though stirred from a sweet sleep and feeling enraptured by each ‘I love you’ of the One who had created him, also cried out in his surge of love - in the sun, in the heavens, in the sea and in everything: ‘I love You; I love You, I love You, oh my Creator!’ Our Divine Will which dominated Adam did not let him lose anything, not even one ‘I love you’ of Ours to which he would not respond with his own. It was lovely, a sweet enchantment, to hear him, as the power of Our Divine Fiat would take the ‘I love You’ of Our son, the dear jewel of Our Heart, upon the wings of Its light, and invading the whole Creation, he would make Us hear, in each created thing, his continuous ‘I love You, just like Our own. Our Divine Will does not know how to do broken and interrupted things, but continuous.

“As long as Adam possessed his dear inheritance of Our Fiat, he possessed Its continuous act; it can be said that he competed with Us, for when We do an act, it no longer ceases; therefore, everything was harmony between him and Us - harmony of love, of beauty, of sanctity. Our Fiat let him lack nothing of all Our things. As he withdrew from Our Will, he lost the way in order to reach Our things, and formed many voids between himself and Us - voids of love, voids of beauty and of sanctity, and formed an abyss of distance between God and himself. And this is why Our Fiat wants to return into the creature as fount of life - to fill these voids and make him return, as a little newborn, into Its arms, and to give him Its continuous act, just as It created him.”

After this, I felt myself without my Highest Good, Jesus, and I experienced such pain that I am unable to explain it. Then, after much waiting, my dear Life came back, and I said to Him: ‘Tell me, my beloved Jesus, why is the pain of your privation always new? As You hide, I feel a new pain arise within my soul - a death more cruel, more harrowing, more than those experienced other times, when You eclipse Yourself from me.’ And my always lovable Jesus told me:

“My daughter, you must know that every time I come to you, I communicate to you a new act of my Divinity; I communicate to you now a new knowledge about my Divine Will, now a new beauty of mine, now a new sanctity of mine, and so with all Our divine qualities. This new act that I communicate to you causes that, when you remain without Me, this greater knowledge brings a new pain into the soul, because the more one knows a good, the more one loves it, and the new love brings the new pain when you remain without it. This is why, when you remain without Me, you feel that a new pain invades your soul. But this new pain prepares you to receive, and the void is prepared in you in which to place the new knowledges about the Divine Will. The pain, the new harrowing death that you suffer because of my privation, is the new call which, with arcane and mysterious and enrapturing voice, calls Me; and I come, and, in return, I manifest to you a new truth which brings you the new life of your Jesus. More so, since the knowledges on my Divine Fiat are Divine Lives that come out of the womb of Our Divinity, and therefore the divine pain which you suffer because of my privation has the virtue of calling from Heaven these Divine Lives of the knowledges of my Will to reveal themselves to you, so as to make them reign on the face of the earth.

Oh! if you knew what value one single knowledge on my Divine Will contains, what good it can produce - you would hold it as the most precious relic, and one kept as more than sacrament. Therefore, let Me do, and abandon yourself in my arms, waiting for your Jesus to bring you the Divine Lives of the knowledges of His Fiat!”

What Jesus has manifested about His adorable Will are divine births. His sorrow when He sees that these truths are not well kept.

I was all abandoned in the Divine Fiat; I felt my Poor mind immersed in the sea of Its endless light, and my adorable Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, my Divine Will is in the act of forming continuous births. In these births, It generates and gives birth to light, It generates and gives birth to other lives similar to Itself, It generates and gives birth to sanctity and beauty. The first generation is formed within Our divine womb, and then the innumerable births from Us come out. But do you want to know when We generate and form these births? When We want to put out a truth. First We generate it in Our womb as a dear child of Ours, and then We put it out as a birth from Us, so that it may descend down below, to creatures, and may give to one who receives it the freedom to let her generate, that she may produce more births, and therefore creatures may have Our dear child, generated in Our womb. So, Our truths descend from Heaven in order to generate in the hearts, and to form the long generation of the divine births coming from Me.

“See then, my daughter, each truth I have manifested to you about my Divine Will was a child generated in Our paternal womb, such that, as We put it out, it brought you the child of Our light, the child of Our beauty, of Our sanctity and of Our love. And if the grace was given to you to put them out, it was because they found in you the space and the freedom to be able to generate, in such a way that, unable to contain within yourself the so many births of the children of Our truths, you put them out, in those who had the good of listening to you. Therefore, it can be said that one who does not take these truths into consideration, does not esteem them, appreciate them and love them, is a child of Ours who does not appreciate and love the greatest thing that exists in Heaven and on earth; and by not loving it and esteeming it, they come to suffocate these children of Ours and to prevent their generation. There is no greater evil than this: not to use all the care in keeping a truth of Ours - as the greatest of treasures, because it is Our child, it is the bearer of Our life upon earth. What good can a truth of Ours not do? It contains the Power of Our Fiat - and so very vast, and it has the power to save an entire world. More so, since each truth possesses a distinct good to be given to creatures, as well as a glory for the One who generated it; and to hinder the good and the glory which the dear births from Us should give Us is the greatest of crimes.

“This is why I have given you so much grace, I have administered to you the words, I have directed your hand while you were writing - so that the children of my truths might not be suffocated and as though buried in your soul. And so that you might not omit anything, I placed Myself near you, I held you in my arms, like a tender mother holds her little daughter, and now I attracted you with promises, now I corrected you, now I reproached you severely when I saw you reluctant to write the truths which I had manifested to you; because I had the interest that they were lives and children of mine, and that, if not today, tomorrow they would come out to the light. You cannot comprehend my sorrow in seeing the negligence of the ones who have lost the three volumes of my Divine Will. How many truths were not inside of them? How many lives have they not suffocated, forming the tomb for my children which, with so much love, I issued from my paternal womb? On the part of those who have had no care to the point of causing them to be lost, I feel that they have broken the plan of my Divine Will and Its long story, spoken to you with so much love in order to make it known; because every time I would set Myself to tell you what pertained to my Fiat, the ardor of my love was so great, that I felt I was renewing the act of the whole Creation, especially when, in the ardor of Our love, man was created.”

In hearing this, I felt my soul being pierced through, and as if they were tearing it to pieces; and I said to Him: ‘My Love, if You want, You can make a miracle of your Omnipotence to have them be found, and so You will not have the sorrow of so many truths suffocated and the long story of your Divine Will as though broken. I too feel I suffer very much, and I am not even able to say what this sorrow is like.’ And Jesus added:

“It is my sorrow that echoes in yours; it is the tearing of so many lives of mine which they have suffocated that you feel within you. The truths that have been lost are written in the depth of your soul, because first I would write them in you with my creative hand, and then I would have you write them on paper; and this is why you feel, vividly, the tearing of them - it is my same tearing that you feel in your heart. If you knew how much I suffer! In each truth of these volumes which they have lost with so much negligence, I feel Myself being given death - and as many deaths for as many truths as were inside of them. Not only this, but death to all the good which those truths were to bring, and death to the glory which they were to give Me. But they will pay for this, with so much more fire in Purgatory for as many truths as they have caused to be lost. Know, however, that if they do not use all the means in order to find them because I want their cooperation - I will not make the miracle that some would want, that they may be found; and this, as chastisement of their negligence. These births, these truths, these dear children and lives of Ours which We issued, however, We shall not withdraw, because what comes out of the womb of Our Divinity as relater and bearer of a great good for creatures is not withdrawn by Us because of the ingratitude and negligence of those who have lost so many truths of Ours. Therefore, when the Kingdom of Our Will becomes known upon earth, and will reign on it, then I will make it so as to manifest again what has been lost, because if I did not do so, the nexus and the connection, and the plan, as whole, of the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat, would be missing.”

On hearing this, crying, I said: ‘So, my Love, if it is so, I have to wait. How long will be my exile on earth; yet, I feel so tortured because of your privations, that I cannot be away from the Celestial Fatherland any longer.’ And Jesus:

“Daughter, do not afflict yourself, nor is it necessary that I tell you the way - how and to whom I must manifest, if they do not find what was lost whether to you or to others. What befits you to do, on your part, is to do what you have to do for the Kingdom of my Divine Will. Once you have done the last act that We want from you for the fulfillment of It, your Jesus will not wait a minute to bring you in my arms into the celestial regions. Did I not do the same in the Kingdom of Redemption? I omitted nothing and I did everything, so that nothing might be lacking on my part, so that all might receive the good of Redemption. And when I did everything, I departed for Heaven without waiting for the outcome, leaving the task to the Apostles. So it will be with you. Therefore, be attentive, and pluck up courage.”

In His works, God makes use of human means. How, in Creation, the Divine Will had the field of action, constituting Itself life of everything. How the Divinity acts only as concurrent and spectator.

I feel my poor mind as though fixed in the Divine Volition, and I was thinking to myself: ‘How can His Kingdom ever come upon earth? And besides, how can It come if It is not known?’ But while I was thinking about this, my always lovable Jesus, coming out, of my interior, told me:

“My daughter, in my works, I make use of human means, though I do the first part, the foundation and all the substance of the work that I want to do, and then I make use of creatures so that my work may be known and have life in the midst of creatures.

“So I did in Redemption - I made use of the Apostles in order to make It known, to propagate It and to receive and give the fruits of Redemption. And if the Apostles had not wanted to say anything of what I said and did in coming upon earth, and, closed in their muteness, had taken not one step, nor made one sacrifice, nor laid down their lives in order to make known the great good of my coming upon earth, they would have caused my Redemption to die upon Its rising. And the generations would have remained without the Gospel, the Sacraments and all the goods which my Redemption did and will do. This was my purpose, as in the last years of my life down here I called the Apostles around Me: to make use of them as the proclaimers of what I had done and said. Oh! if the Apostles had remained silent, they would have been responsible for the loss of so many souls if they had not known the good of Redemption - responsible for so much good not done by creatures. But because they did not remain silent and they laid down their lives, they can be called, after Me, authors and cause of so many souls being saved and of all the goods that have been done in my Church, forming, as the first proclaimers, Her unshakeable pillars. It is Our usual divine way that first We do Our first act in Our works, We place everything that is needed, and then We entrust them to creatures, giving them sufficient graces so that they may continue what We have done; and therefore Our works become known according to the interest and the goodwill that creatures have.

“So it will be with the Kingdom of my Divine Will. I called you as a second mother of mine, and, one on one, just as I did with Her in the Kingdom of Redemption, I manifested to you the many secrets of my Divine Fiat, the great good of It, and how It wants to come to reign upon earth. I can say that I have done everything; and if I called my minister so that you might open yourself in order to make It known, my intent was so that he would have interest in making known a good so great. And if this interest were not there on the part of those who should occupy themselves with It, they would put the Kingdom of my Will at risk of dying upon Its rising, becoming, themselves, responsible for all the good that a Kingdom so holy can bring. Or, they would deserve that, putting them aside, I call others as proclaimers and propagators of the knowledges, of my Divine Fiat. Until I find some who have interest and take to heart making known Its knowledges, more than if it were their own lives, the Kingdom of my Will can have neither Its beginning, nor Its life upon earth.”

After this, I continued my abandonment in the Divine Fiat, and my highest Good, Jesus, added:

“My daughter, in Creation it was my Divine Will that had Its field of action; and although, Our Divinity was concurrent - because We are inseparable from It - however, the prime act, the action, was all of Our Will. It spoke and It operated; It spoke and It ordered; We were the spectators of what Our Supreme Volition was doing, with such great mastery, order and harmony, that We felt worthily glorified and made twice as happy by Our very Will. Therefore, since Creation is Its work, the whole strength of Creation and all the goods with which It was enriched are all in my Supreme Will. It is primary life of everything; and this is why It loves Creation so much - because It feels Its very life in all created things, and Its very life flows in them. So much so, that in creating man, wanting to make greater display of Its Power, of Its Love and of Its Mastery, It wanted to enclose in him all the art of the whole Creation. Not only this, but It wanted to surpass It, giving him such brush strokes of divine art as to make him the little god; and laying Itself inside and outside of him, to the right and to the left, above his head and under his feet I carried him within my Divine Will as the outpouring of Our love, and as the triumpher and admirer of Its insuperable mastery.

“Therefore, it was the right of my Divine Fiat that man live only and always of Divine Will. What had It not done for him? It called him from nothing, It formed him, It gave him his being, and It gave him double life - the life of man and that of my Divine Will, in order to carry him always clasped in Its creative arms, so as to preserve him beautiful, fresh, happy, just as It had created him. So, when man sinned, my Fiat felt Itself being snatched of that life which It carried in Its very womb. What was not Its sorrow? It remained with the void in Its womb of this son, for whom, with so much love, so as to keep him safe and happy, It had made room within Its very life. And do you think that in Redemption it was not my very Divine Will that incarnated Itself in order to come to find the lost man? It was precisely It, because Verbum means word, and Our word is the Fiat, which, just as in Creation It spoke and created, in the same way, in Redemption, wanted and incarnated Itself It was Its empty womb that claimed this child who, with so much cruelty, had wriggled away. And what did this Will of Mine not do in Redemption? But It is not yet content with what I did; It wants to fill Its womb, It no longer wants to see man disfigured by sin, by dissimilarity from It, but It wants to see him adorned by the insignia of Creation, adorned with Its Beauty and Sanctity, and taking his place, once again, inside Its divine womb. The Fiat Voluntas Tua on earth as It is in Heaven is precisely this: that man return into my Divine Will; and only when It sees again Its child happy, living in Its house, with the opulence of Its goods - then will It calm Itself. And so It will be able to say: ‘My child has come back he is clothed with his royal garments, he wears the crown of king, he lives together with Me, and I have given back to him the rights which I gave him in creating him. So, the disorder in Creation is ended, because man has come back into my Divine Will’.”

How the Creation runs a vertiginous race toward Its Creator. One who lives in the Divine Will is inseparable from It. Order which Jesus has kept in manifesting the truths about the Divine Will. Renewal of the Creation. Importance of the truths.

My abandonment in the Divine Fiat continues. I felt the littleness of my poor soul in the midst of all created things; and I, as though having my own motion, my continuous race in all Creation, feel inseparable from It; my will and that of Creation are one, which is the sole and only Divine Will. Therefore, since the Will of all is one, we do one same thing, and we all run as though to our first center, to our Creator, to say to Him: ‘Your Love issued us, and your same Love calls us back into Yourself, with a vertiginous race, to say to You: “We love You, we love You”; to sing the praises of your inextinguishable and interminable Love.’ And so, in this way, coming out of His center again to continue our race which has not stops, we do nothing but go in and out of His divine womb in order to form our round of love, our loving race toward our Creator.

So, while I was running with the whole Creation, to form my race of love toward the Divine Majesty, my always lovable Jesus, coming out of my interior, told me:

“My daughter, one who lives in my Volition is bound to all Creation: neither can Creation do without this fortunate creature, nor can the creature unbind herself from the created things, because, the will of one and the other being one, which is my Divine Will, they form one single body with many members inseparable from one another. So, I look at one who lives in my Divine Will, and I see her heavens; I return to look at her and I see her sun; my gazes, enraptured by so much beauty, fix more upon her and find her sea. In sum, I see in her all the varieties of each created thing, and I say: ‘Oh! Power of my Divine Fiat - how beautiful You render for Me she who lives in You. You give her primacy over the whole Creation, You give her the race, so fast, that she runs more than wind; and excelling over everything, she is the first to enter into my Divine Center, to say to Me: ‘I love You, I glorify You, I adore You’; and as she forms her echo in the whole Creation, all repeat after her her pleasant refrains.”

“My daughter, this is why I take so much love in manifesting to you all that regards my Divine Will: everything I have manifested to you about It is nothing other than the whole order of Its Kingdom. And all this was to be manifested from the beginning of Creation if Adam had not sinned, because in each manifestation of mine regarding my Divine Fiat, man was to grow in the sanctity and beauty of His Creator, and therefore I intended to do it little by little, giving him as though many sips of Divine Life, to make him grow according to how my Divine Will wanted. So, by sinning, man interrupted my speaking and reduced Me to silence. After many centuries, wanting man to return into my Fiat, I have resumed my speaking with so much love, more than a tender mother when she loves and yearns to give birth to her child, in order to kiss him, surround him with affections, enjoy him and squeeze him tightly to her maternal breast, and to fill him with all her goods and happinesses. So I did in resuming my speaking and manifesting to you all the order of the Kingdom of my Divine Volition, and the way which the creature must have in my Kingdom.

“Therefore, manifesting to you so many truths about my Fiat has been nothing less than issuing into the field again all the order and love which I would have kept if man had not sinned and my Kingdom had had Its life upon earth. In my speaking, I have kept such order, that one truth is so bound to the other, that if anyone wanted to snatch away or conceal some truths, they would form a void in the Kingdom of my Divine Fiat, and would subtract a strength from creatures to induce them to live in my Kingdom. In fact, each truth that regards my Divine Volition is a place that It takes in order to reign in the midst of creatures, as well as a way and an empty space that they find in order to take possession of them. Therefore, all the truths I have told you have such a connection among themselves, that by removing some, in that point one would see as though a heaven without stars, or a void without sun, or an earth without flowering. In fact, in all these truths that I have told you there is the renewal of the whole Creation, and in each truth, my Fiat, more than sun, wants to come out into the field again, just as It did in Creation, and laying Its veil of light over all, It wants to give them so much grace, as to give them Its creative hand, to make them reenter into the womb of Its Divine Volition.

“Therefore, everything I have told you about my Divine Will has such importance, that it costs Me more than the whole Creation; because it is a renewal of It, and when an act is renewed, it costs double love, and in order to be more sure, We place double grace and double light to be given to creatures, so that We might not have to suffer the second sorrow, maybe more painful than the first, which We had in the beginning of Creation, when man sinned and formed within himself the failure of Our Love, of Our Light and of the precious inheritance of Our Supreme Volition. This is why I am so attentive that you may lose nothing of what I tell you about my Divine Will - because there is such importance in these truths, that in concealing some, it would be as if one wanted to move the sun from its place, or to make the sea come out of its shore. What would happen to the earth? Think about it yourself. And so it would be if any of the truths about my Divine Will, which I have manifested to you with so much order, were missing.”

Absolute rights of the Divine Will. How the human will changed the human destiny and the divine. How, if man had not sinned, Jesus was to come upon earth glorious and with the scepter of command Man was to be the bearer of his Creator.

I feel within me the continuous Power of the Divine Fiat, which envelops me with such empire as to give no time to my dying will to do the slightest act; and It glories in not letting it die completely, because if It did so, It would lose Its prestige of operating over a human will which, while it is alive, voluntarily receives the vital act of the Divine Fiat upon itself. And it is content with living while dying, so as to give life and absolute dominion to the Supreme Volition which, victorious with Its divine rights, extends Its boundaries and sings victory over the dying will of the creature which, though dying, smiles and feels happy and honored that a Divine Will has Its field of action within its soul.

Now, while I was feeling myself under the empire of the Divine Fiat, my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“Little daughter of my Divine Will, you must know that these are absolute rights of my Divine Fiat - to have primacy over each act of the creature - and one who denies Its primacy takes Its divine rights away from It, which are due to It by justice, because It is the Creator of the human will. Who can tell you, my daughter, how much evil a creature can do when she reaches the point of withdrawing from the Will of her Creator? See, one act of the first man withdrawing from Our Divine Will was enough, reaching the point of changing the destiny of the human generations not only this, but the very destiny of Our Divine Will.

“If Adam had not sinned, the Eternal Word, who is the very Will of the Celestial Father, was to come upon earth glorious, triumphant and dominator, accompanied visibly by His angelic army, which all were to see; and with the splendor of His glory, He was to charm everyone and draw everyone to Himself with His beauty; crowned as king and with the scepter of command, so as to be king and head of the human family, in such a way as to give creatures the great honor of being able to say: ‘We have a King who is Man and God.’ More so, since your Jesus was not coming from Heaven to find man infirm, because, had he not withdrawn from my Divine Will, no illnesses, either of soul or of body, were to exist; in fact, it was the human will that almost drowned the poor creature with pains. The Divine Fiat was untouchable by any pain, and so was man to be. Therefore, I was to come to find man happy, holy, and with the fullness of the goods with which I had created him. But, because he wanted to do his will, he changed Our destiny, and since it was decreed that I was to descend upon earth - and when the Divinity decrees, no one can move It - I only changed the manner and the appearance, but I did descend, though under most humble guises: poor, with no apparatus of glory, suffering and crying, and loaded with all the miseries and pains of man. The human will made Me come to find man unhappy, blind, deaf and mute, full of all miseries; and I, in order to heal him, was to take them upon Myself, and so as not to strike fear in them, I was to show Myself as one of them, become their brother and give them the medicines and the remedies which were needed. So, the human will has the power to render man happy or unhappy, a saint or a sinner, healthy or sick.

“See then, if the soul decides always - always to do my Divine Will and to live in It, she will change her destiny, and my Divine Will will fling Itself upon the creature; It will make her Its prey, and giving her the kiss of Creation, It will change appearance and manner. Claspings her to Its bosom, It will say to her: ‘Let us put everything aside, the first times of Creation have come back for you and for Me; everything will be happiness between you and Me, you will live in Our house, as Our daughter, in the abundance of the goods of your Creator.’

“Listen my little newborn of my Divine Will: if man had not sinned, if he had not withdrawn from my Divine Will, I would have come upon earth - but do you know how? Full of majesty, as when I rose again from death. Even though I had my Humanity similar to that of man, united to the Eternal Word, how different was my resurrected Humanity - glorified, clothed with light, not subject to either suffering or dying: I was the true Divine Triumpher. On the other hand, before dying, though voluntarily, my Humanity was subject to all pains; even more, I was the Man of Sorrows. And since man had his eyes still dazzled by the human will, and therefore he was still infirm, few were the ones who saw Me resurrected, and this served to confirm my Resurrection. Then I ascended into Heaven, to give man the time to take the remedies and the medicines, so that he might recover and dispose himself to know my Divine Will, in order to live, not of his will, but of Mine, and so I will be able to show Myself full of majesty and of glory in the midst of the children of my Kingdom. Therefore, the Resurrection is the confirmation of the Fiat Voluntas Tua on earth as It is in Heaven. After such a long sorrow, suffered by my Divine Will for many centuries, of not having Its Kingdom upon earth and Its absolute dominion, it was right that my Humanity place Its divine rights in safety, and realize Its original purpose and Mine, of forming Its Kingdom in the midst of creatures.

“Moreover, in order to further confirm for you how the human will changed its destiny and that of the Divine Will with regard to it, you must know that in the whole history of the world two persons only have lived of Divine Will, without ever doing their own - and these were the Sovereign, Queen and Myself. And the distance, the difference, between Us and the other creatures is infinite; so much so, that not even Our bodies were left on earth. They had served as royal palace for the Divine Fiat, and the Divine Fiat felt inseparable from Our bodies; and therefore It claimed them, and with Its ruling strength, It kidnapped Our bodies together with Our souls into Its Celestial Fatherland. And why all this? The whole reason is that Our human wills never had one act of life, but all the dominion and the field of action was of my Divine Will. Its Power is infinite, Its Love is insuperable.”

After this, He kept silent, and I felt I was swimming in the sea of the Fiat, and - oh! how many things I comprehended. And my sweet Jesus added:

“My daughter, by not doing my Divine Will, the creature casts confusion in the order which my Divine Majesty kept in the Creation; she dishonors herself, she descends down below, she places herself at a distance from her Creator, she loses the origin, the means and the end of that Divine Life which, with so much love, was infused in her in the act of being created. We loved this man so much, that we placed in him Our Divine Will as origin of life; We wanted to feel enraptured by him; We wanted to feel in him Our Strength, Our Power, Our Happiness and Our same continuous echo. And who could ever allow Us to feel and see all this, if not Our Divine Will bilocated in him? We wanted to see in man the bearer of his Creator, who was to make him happy in time and eternity. Therefore, when he did not do Our Divine Will, We felt, vividly, the great sorrow of Our work disordered; Our echo ended, Our enrapturing strength, which was to enrapture Us to give him new surprises of happiness, converted into weakness - in sum, it turned upside down. This is why We cannot tolerate such a disorder in Our work; and if I have spoken so much about my Divine Fiat, the purpose is precisely this: We want to place man in the order, that he may return to the first steps of his creation, and Our Will, flowing within him as vital humor, may form again Our bearer, Our royal palace upon earth, his happiness and Ours.”

How the first who will live in the Divine Fiat will be like the yeast of the Kingdom of the Divine Will.

My abandonment is in the Holy Volition, which, like powerful magnet, draws me to Itself, to administer to me, sip by sip, Its life, Its light, Its prodigious, admirable and adorable knowledges. So, my mind was wandering within It, and my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, the first who will do my Divine Will and will live in It, will be like the yeast of Its Kingdom. The many knowledges which I have manifested to you about my Divine Fiat will be like the flour for the bread, which, in finding the yeast, becomes fermented - as much flour as one puts in. But the flour is not enough - it takes the yeast and the water in order to form the true bread, to nourish the human generations. In the same way, the yeast of the few who live in my Divine Volition is necessary to Me, as well as the multiplicity of the knowledges about It, which will serve as the mass of light that will give all the goods which are needed in order to nourish and make happy all those who want to live in the Kingdom of my Divine Will. Therefore, do not worry if you are alone and few are those who know, in part, what regards my Divine Will; as long as the little portion of the yeast is formed, united to Its knowledges, the rest will come by itself “

After this, I was following the acts of the Divine Fiat in the Creation, and while I was following Its acts in the heavens, in the sun, in the sea, in the wind, my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, look - everything that serves the whole human family in a universal way is always one. On the other hand, the other things, which do not serve in a universal way, are multiple. The sky is one, and it extends above the heads of all; the sun is one, and it serves as light for all; the water is one, and therefore it gives itself to all; and even though it seems divided into many founts, seas, wells, however, from whatever place it descends, it possesses the one single force. The earth is one, and it extends under the feet of all. And just as in the natural order of Creation, so in the supernatural order. God is the universal Being, and He is one; and because one is the God of all, He gives Himself to all, He envelops all, He is everywhere, He does good to all, and is life of all. One is the Virgin, and therefore universal Mother and Queen of all. One is your Jesus, and therefore my Redemption extends everywhere and in a universal way; everything I did and suffered is at the disposal of all and of each one. One is the little newborn of my Divine Will, and therefore the whole entire universe will receive, in a universal way, all the goods of the manifestations and knowledges of my Divine Fiat which, like sacred deposit, I have deposited in you, so that, more than splendid sun, it may shine its innumerable rays to illuminate the whole entire world. Therefore, everything I tell you contains the universal virtue, which will give itself to all and will do good to all. So, be attentive, and always follow my Divine Will.”

May everything be for the glory of God and for the fulfillment of His Fiat!!!

Kisses to the sun. Exit into the garden. Contest between wind and sun. Feast of the whole Creation. Clashing note and note of accord. The new Eve.

My poor mind is always back into the center of the Divine Volition. I feel I cannot do without crossing Its endless sea and diving ever more deeply into It, so as to see, hear and touch nothing but Divine Will. Oh! adorable Will, raise your gigantic waves up into the celestial regions, and transport the little exiled one, your newborn, from your Will on earth up into your Will in Heaven. O please! have pity on my littleness, and fulfill over me your last act on earth, so as to resume your continuous act in Heaven....

So, I write only to obey and to my great repugnance. After forty years and more without going out in the open air, today they wanted to take me out into the garden on a wheelchair. Now, as I went out, I found myself with the sun investing me with its rays, as if it wanted to give me its first greeting and its kiss of light. I wanted to give it tit for tat by giving it my kiss, and I prayed the little girls and the sisters who were accompanying me to all give their kiss to the sun, kissing in it that Divine Will which, like Queen, was veiled with light. All of them kissed it. Now, who can say my emotion after so many years, in finding myself in front of that sun which my lovable Jesus had used in order to give me so many similes and images of His adorable Will? I felt invested not only by its light, but also by its heat, and the wind, wanting to compete with the sun, kissed me with its light breeze, in order to refresh the hot kisses that the sun was giving me. So, I felt like they would never stop kissing me - the sun on one hand, and the wind on the other. Oh! how vividly I could feel the touch, the life, the breath, the air, the love of the Divine Fiat in the sun and in the wind. I could touch with my own hand how created things are veils which hide that Volition which created them.

Now, while I was under the empire of the sun, of the wind, of the vastness of the azure heavens, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior in a sensible way, as if He did not want to be outdone by the sun, by the wind, by the heavens; and He told me:

“Beloved daughter of my Volition, today everyone makes feast because of your exit. The whole celestial court felt the gaiety of the sun, the joy of the wind, the smile of the heavens, and all ran to see what was new; and in seeing you invested by the light of the sun that was kissing you, the wind caressing you, the heavens smiling at you, they all comprehended that the power of my Divine Fiat was moving the elements to celebrate Its little newborn. Therefore, the whole celestial court, uniting with all Creation, not only makes feast, but feels the new joys and happinesses that my Divine Will gives it because of your exit. And I, being spectator of all this, not only make feast within you, but I do not regret having created the heavens, the sun and all Creation; on the contrary, I feel happier, because It is enjoyed by my little daughter. The joys, the contentments, the glory of when everything was created are repeated for Me - when Adam innocent had not yet made the note of sorrow of his rebellious will resound in the whole Creation, which broke the gaiety, the happiness, the sweet smile that my Divine Will had in the sun, in the wind, in the starry heavens, to be given to creatures. In fact, my daughter, by not doing my Divine Will, man put his clashing note in Our work of Creation, therefore he lost the accord with all created things, and We feel the sorrow and the dishonor that there is a string out of tune in Our work, which does not produce a beautiful sound; and this sound out of tune moves away from the earth the kisses, the joys, the smiles which my Divine Will contains in the Creation. Therefore, one who does my Will and lives in It is the note of accord with all; her sound contains a note, not of sorrow, but of joy and of happiness, and is so harmonious that all perceive, even the very elements, that there is the note of my Will in the creature; and as though putting everything aside, they want to enjoy she who possesses that Will by which they all are animated and preserved.”

Jesus kept silent, and I said to Him: “My Love, You have told me many times that one who lives in your Divine Will is a sister to all created things. I want to see whether my sister light recognizes me. And do You know how? If, in looking at it, it does not dazzle my sight.”

And Jesus: “Certainly it will recognize you. Try and you will see.”

I looked straight into the center of the sphere of the sun, and the light seemed to caress my pupil, but without dazzling me, in such a way that I was able to look into its center, at its great sea of light. How clear and beautiful it was. How true it is that it symbolizes the infinite, endless sea of light of the Divine Fiat. I said: “Thank you, oh Jesus, for letting me be recognized by my sister light.” And Jesus resumed His speaking:

“My daughter, even from the breath is one who lives in my Will recognized by all Creation, because each created thing feels in that creature the power of the Fiat, and the supremacy which God gave her over the whole Creation. Look and listen, my daughter: in the beginning, when Adam and Eve were created, Eden was given to them as their dwelling, in which they were happy and holy. This garden is a simile of that Eden, though it is not as beautiful and flowery. Now, know that I have permitted your coming to this house, which is surrounded by a garden, for you to be the new Eve; not Eve the tempter, who deserved to be put out of happy Eden, but Eve the reformer and the restorer, who will call again the Kingdom of my Divine Will upon earth. Ah! yes, you will be the seed, the cement on the wood worm that the human will has; you will be the beginning of a new happy era, and this is why I centralize in you the joy, the goods, the happiness of the beginning of Creation, and I love to repeat the conversations, the lessons, the instructions which I would have given if man had not withdrawn from Our Divine Will. Therefore, be attentive, and let your flight in It be continuous.”

The Creation, act of profound adoration of the Divine Trinity.

I was all abandoned in the Divine Fiat; Its light eclipsed my littleness and transported me up there, even into the womb of the Eternal One, where nothing but Light, Sanctity, Beauty could be seen, which infused in me profound adoration, such that I felt my little existence changed into one single act of adoration for that God who so much loved me and loves me. Then, while my mind was wandering within the light of the Divine Volition, my lovable Jesus moved in my interior and told me:

“My daughter, the Sanctity of Our Divine Being, the one Power of Our Will with which We are invested - in such a way that, even though We are distinct as Persons, yet Our Will which operates in Us, which dominates, which rules, is always one - Our equal, reciprocal and incessant Love, produce in Us the most profound adoration among the Divine Persons. So, everything that comes out of Us is but acts of profound adoration of all Our Divine Being.

“Therefore, when Our Divine Fiat wanted to issue the whole Creation into the field with its creating, operating and vivifying Power, as Our Fiat was being pronounced, We kept issuing from within Ourselves acts of profound adoration. So, the heavens are nothing other than an act of profound adoration of the immensity of Our Divine Being, and therefore everywhere one can see heavens, both at night and at daytime. The immensity of Our Being released from Our womb the immensity of Our adoration, and extended the starry heavens over the universe, to call all those who would inhabit the earth in Our one Will, so as to unify them within the immensity of Our adoration, in such a way that, by virtue of Our Fiat, man was to extend himself within the immensity of his Creator, to form his heaven of profound adoration for the One who had created him. The sun is an act of adoration of Our endless, light, and the ardor of its adoration is such and so great, that it is not content with letting itself be seen up high, under the vault of the heavens, but from the center of its sphere it lowers its rays down to the level of the earth. Molding and touching everything with its hands of light, it invests everything and everyone with its adoration of light, and it calls plants, flowers, trees, birds and creatures to form one single adoration in the Will of the One who created them. The sea, the air, the wind and all created things, are nothing other than acts of profound adoration of Our Divine Being, which, some from afar, some from nearby, call the creature into the unity of Our Fiat, to repeat the profound acts of Our adoration; and as she makes what is Ours her own, she can give Us the sun, the wind, the sea, the flowery earth, as profound adorations which Our one Will knows how to, and can produce in the creature. What can Our Fiat not do? With Its one strength It can do anything, It unites everything, It keeps everything in act, and It unites Heaven and earth, Creator and creature, making them one.”

Having said this, He withdrew into the depth of His light, and He kept silent; and I remained there, continuing my round in the Creation, to follow that profound adoration of my Creator in all created things. Oh! how one could feel the fragrance of the divine adoration in each created thing. One could touch with one's own hand Their adored breath; one could feel in the wind the penetrating, ruling adoration of Our Creator, which, investing the whole earth, now with light blowing, now with mighty waves, now with caressing breaths, invests us so much and calls us to the adoration of its Creator which the wind possesses. Who can tell of the strength of the wind? In a few minutes, it goes around the entire world, and now with empire, now with moans, now with feeble voice, and now screaming, it invests us and calls us to unite ourselves to that divine adoration which it gives to its Creator. Then continuing my round, I could see the sea. In those crystal clear waters, in that continuous murmuring, in its gigantic waves, Jesus was saying that that sea was nothing other than an act of profound adoration of the divine purity, adoration of Their love which murmurs continuously, and, in the waves, adoration of the divine strength which moves everything and everyone like light straw. Oh! if the Divine Fiat were reigning in the creatures, It would let everyone read, in each created thing, the distinct adoration of Our Creator which each thing possesses; and as It would unify us with all Creation, one would be the adoration, one the love, one the glory for the Supreme Being. Oh! Divine Will, come to reign, and make it so that the Will of all be one....

For one who lives in the Fiat, there is an exchange of life between the Fiat and the soul. Doubled Love.

The privations of my sweet Jesus become longer, and I do nothing but long and moan for His return. And as much as I live all abandoned in the Divine Fiat, His privations are wounds so deep and bitter, that, more than a wounded deer, I send my cries of sorrow, such that, if I could, I would deafen Heaven and earth, and would move everything to cry because of a pain so excruciating and a privation so great, which makes me feel the weight of an infinite pain and of a wound always open, except for those few moments in which He speaks to me about His Divine Volition; then it seems to me that it closes, but only to reopen with a pain yet more bitter. And so I am forced, in my writings, to inscribe my sorrowful note of my little soul, which, more than a wounded deer, sends my cries of sorrow, to wound that Jesus who wounds me - who knows, wounded, He might come back and give respite to my sorrowful note.

So, while I was feeling immersed in the pain of His privation, and all abandoned in His Will, He moved in my interior, and told me:

“Courage, O daughter, do not abandon yourself within your sorrow, but ascend higher. You know that you have a task to fulfill, and this task is so great, that not even the pain of my privation must stop you. On the contrary, it must serve you to ascend higher, in the light of my Divine Will. Your encounter with It must be continuous, because it is an exchange of life that you must have: It must give Itself continuously to you, and you to It. And you know that the motion, the heartbeat, the breathing, must be continuous, otherwise life cannot exist, and you would cause your life to be missing in my Fiat, and It would feel the sorrow that Its little daughter, Its dear newborn, would cause her motion, her heartbeat, her breathing to be missing in It; It would feel the tearing of Its newborn, whom It keeps always in the act of being born, without putting her out of Its womb, not even to let her take one step, so as to feel her life as Its own Life. And you would feel the Life of Its continuous motion, of Its heartbeat, of Its breathing, missing in you; you would feel the void of a Divine Will in your soul. No, no, my daughter, I do not want any void of my Will in you. Now, you must know that all the manifestations about my Divine Fiat which I make to you, are like many stairs through which my Will descends into the soul, to take possession of her, to form Its Kingdom; while the soul ascends toward Heaven, to transport my Will from Heaven to earth. Therefore, it is a great task, and it is unbecoming to lose time, whatever the reason, be it even holy. And you see how I Myself eclipse Myself within my Divine Will so as to give the whole place to It; and if I make my little escapes in coming, it is only in order to deal with, to reorder, and to make you know what belongs to my Divine Will. Therefore, be attentive, and let your flight in It be continuous.”

After this, I continued to feel oppressed because of the privations of Jesus, and I was thinking to myself: “How His love for me has died down, compared to the love He had for me before, it seems to me that only the shadows of the Love of Jesus are left to me.” But while I was thinking about this, He moved in my interior, and told me:

“My daughter, each act done in my Divine Will doubles my Love toward you. Therefore, after so many years you have been in It, I can say that my Love has grown so much, that I have to expand your capacity so as to allow you to receive my growing Love which arises in Me in each act you do in my Divine Will. Therefore, my Love is more intense, and increased a hundredfold compared to that of before. So, you can be sure that my Love will never be lacking to you - never.”

April 21, 1929

How the Divine Will is fullness. How Adam; before sinning, possessed the fullness of Sanctity. The Virgin and all created things possess this fullness.

My abandonment in the Divine Fiat continues. I feel I cannot be without remaining in my dear inheritance, which my sweet Jesus, with so much love, gave me, saying to me:

“Daughter, I entrust it to you, that you may never go out of it, and may make your continuous echo resound from one point to another, in such a way that all of Heaven may hear that Our endless inheritance of Our Fiat on earth is not isolated, but is inhabited by the Our little daughter. She will always go around within It, to keep company with all the acts of Our Will, and with all of Its apartments.”

Therefore, it is dear and sweet to me living in my celestial inheritance; I would feel life missing in me without It.

So, while I was going around in It, my always lovable Jesus was going around with me, and, all love, told me:

“My daughter, my Divine Will is all fullness; there is nothing which It does not possess: immensity of light, unreachable Sanctity, endlessness without boundaries, incessant generation; It sees everything, It feels and molds everything. All this is Its nature in my Divine Fiat therefore Its acts possess the fullness of all goods. So, in order to be able to enclose even a single act of It in the depth of the soul, it is necessary that she empty herself of all of herself, and return to the void of her nothingness, as in the act in which she was created, so that my Divine Volition may find the space of the nothingness to be able to deposit an act of fullness of Its own, which is such that, possessing the incessant generative virtue, one act calls for another, in a way that nothing must be lacking - neither fullness of light of Sanctity, of love, of beauty, nor multiplicity of divine acts. Therefore, the Sanctity done in my Divine Will possesses all the fullness - but so much, that if God wanted to give her more, He would not find the space in which to put more light, more beauty. We would say: ‘You are all beautiful, nor can We add for you any more beauty, so beautiful you are. You are the work of Our Volition, and this is enough for you to be a work worthy of Us.’ And the soul will say: ‘I am the triumph of your Divine Fiat, therefore I am all rich and beautiful. I possess the fullness of an act of your Divine Will, which fills me completely; and if You wanted to give me more, I would not know where to put it.’

“Such was the fullness of the Sanctity of Adam before he fell into the maze of his human will, because he possessed the first act of Our Fiat, generator of his creation, and therefore he possessed fullness of light, of beauty, of strength, of grace. All the qualities of Our Fiat were reflected in him and embellished him so much, that We Ourselves felt enraptured in looking at him, in seeing in him, so well sculpted, Our dear image which Our Divine Being formed in him. And this is why, even though he fell, he did not lose the life nor the regenerative hope of Our Fiat, because, having possessed the fullness of Its act in the beginning of his life, he did not want to lose the One who had possessed him. The Divinity felt so bound to Adam, that It did not feel like banishing him forever. It takes too much to lose what once was possessed by Our Fiat; Our Strength would feel weak; Our Love, the fire It possesses, would shrink in order not to do it. It would be the true divine embarrassment to lose the one who has possessed even just one act of the fullness of Our Will.

“Such fullness of Sanctity was possessed by the height of the Sovereign Queen, and therefore there is no void in Her; She filled Herself so much, as to possess seas of light, of graces, of beauty, of power. Her fullness is such and so great, that We have no place in which to put, and She has no place in which to receive, because She is the only celestial creature who lived under the empire of the act of Our Divine Fiat, and who can say: ‘I am an act of Divine Will, and in this is all the secret of my beauty, power, greatness, and even of my Maternity.’ What can one act of Our Fiat not do? It can do anything. Its prerogative is the fullness of everything. An act of It is the sun, and it possesses the fullness of the light; and if one could ask the sun: ‘Would you like to have more light?’, it would answer: ‘I have so much of it that I can give light to all; and while I give it, I do not lose it, because I possess the source of the light of the act of the Divine Fiat.’ The sky is an act of It, therefore it extends everywhere; its fullness is such that it finds no place in which to extend more its azure drapes. The wind is an act of Our Divine Fiat, and therefore it possesses the fullness of the empire, of the strength. Who can resist the strength of the wind? No one. It makes a fool of everything, and with its ruling strength it uproots cities and trees, and it lifts up and knocks down everything as if it were straw. All Creation, each created thing, possesses the fullness of the act of Our Fiat, and therefore not one thing is poor - they are all rich in the fullness wanted by Our Divine Volition; nor is anything in need of anything - they are rich of their own, by nature. The sea possesses the fullness of the waters; the earth, the fullness of the plants, and of many varieties of plants, because all of them are births from the act of Our Divine Volition. Now, my daughter, the living in my Divine Will is precisely this: to possess and enjoy the fullness of the divine goods, in such a way that nothing must be lacking to her - neither Sanctity, nor light, nor beauty. They will be the true births from my adorable Fiat.”

How the Divine Fiat renders the creature inseparable from God Divine overflowing for the creature. Everything is safe in one who lives in the Fiat, while everything is in danger in one who does the human will.

I was doing my round in the Divine Fiat, to follow Its acts in the Creation; and as I reached Eden, my poor mind paused in the act in which It created man, and breathing over him, It infused life in him; and I prayed Jesus to breathe over my poor soul, to infuse in me the first divine breath of Creation, so that, with Their regenerative breath, I might begin my life again, all in the Fiat, according to the purpose for which They had created me. But while I was doing this, my sweet Jesus came out from within my interior as though in the act of wanting to breathe over me, and He told me:

“My daughter, it is Our Will that the creature ascend again into Our womb, in Our creative arms, that We may give her again Our continuous breath, and, in this breath, give her the current that generates all goods, joys and happinesses. But in order for Us to be able to give this breath, man must live in Our Will, because only in It can he receive it, and We, give it.

“Our Fiat has such virtue as to render the creature inseparable from Us, and what We do and are by nature, she can do by grace. In creating man, We did not put him at a distance from Us, rather, in order to have him together with Us, We gave him Our very Divine Will, which would give him the first act, to operate together with his Creator. This was the reason why Our Love, Our Light, Our joys, Our Power and Beauty gushed out all together, and overflowing outside of Our Divine Being, they spread the table before the one whom, with so much love, We had formed with Our creative hands, and generated with Our very breath. We wanted to enjoy Our work, see him happy of Our own happiness, embellished with Our beauty, rich with Our richness; more so, since it was Our Will for Us to remain close to the creature, to operate together and to amuse Ourselves together with her; and games cannot be played from a distance, but in closeness.

“This is why, by necessity of creation and in order to maintain intact Our work and the purpose for which We had created it, the only means was to endow man with Divine Will, which would preserve him just as he came out of Our creative hands; he would enjoy all Our goods, and We were to enjoy because he was happy. Therefore, so that man may return to his place of honor and enter once again to operate together with his Creator, and they may amuse themselves together, there are no means other than his reentering into Our Fiat, that It may bring him to Us triumphantly, into Our arms which are waiting for him to clasp him tightly within Our divine womb, and say to him: ‘Finally, after six thousand years you have come back. You have gone wandering, you have experienced all evils, because there is no good without Our Fiat. You have experienced enough, and have touched with your own hand what it means to go out of It; so, never go out of It again, and come to rest and enjoy what is yours, because in Our Volition everything was given to you.’ Therefore, my daughter, be attentive; We will give you everything if you live always in Our Fiat. Our breath will take delight in breathing over you always, to make Our joys, Our Light, Our Sanctity overflow upon you, and communicate to you the attitude of Our works, that We may keep the little daughter, regenerated by Our Divine Will, always together with Us.”

Having said this, He withdrew within my interior, and I continued to follow the innumerable acts of the Divine Fiat; and blessed Jesus continued, saying:

“My daughter, it is a prerogative of my Divine Volition to place everything It possesses in safety. When It enters into the soul, as the possessor of her, It places all things in safety: It places sanctity, grace, beauty, all virtues, in safety; and so that everything may be safe, It substitutes them in the soul with Its own Divine Sanctity, Its Beauty, Its virtues - all in a divine manner; and placing on her Its seal, which is untouchable by any change, It renders the creature untouchable by any danger. So, for one who lives in my Will there is nothing to fear any more, because It has secured everything with Its divine security. On the other hand, the human will renders everything unsafe, even sanctity itself.

The virtues that are not under the continuous dominion of my Fiat are subject to continuous dangers and continuous oscillations; passions have the ways open to put everything upside down and cast virtues and sanctity to the ground, formed with many sacrifices. If the continuous vivifying and nourishing virtue of my Will is not present, which closes all doors and all ways to all evils, the human will has door and ways to let the enemy, the world, self-esteem, miseries, disturbances, enter, which are the wood worm of virtues and of sanctity; and when there is the wood worm, there is not sufficient strength to remain firm and persevering in good. Therefore, everything is unsafe when my Divine Will does not reign.

“Moreover, the evil that Our Divine Will does not reign in the midst of creatures is so great that all things are in continuous oscillation. Our very Creation, all the goods of Redemption, are intermittent, because, not finding Our Fiat reigning in the human family, they cannot always give the same goods. Even more, many times We have to make use of Creation and Redemption to arm them against man, because the human will puts itself against Ours, and We, by justice, have to strike them in order to make them comprehend that, because Our Will is not reigning, the human rejects Our good and forces Us to punish them. The very glory which the creature gives Us through Creation and Redemption is not fixed, but it changes at each act of the human will. Therefore, the small interest which the creature was to give Us - her love and her glory which she should give to Us because We have given so much to her - is not even a fixed revenue, but everything is intermittent, because Our Will alone has the virtue of rendering unshakeable and continuous Its own acts, and those of the one in whom It reigns. So, until Our Divine Fiat reigns, everything is unsafe; the Creation, the Redemption the Sacraments -they are all in danger, because the human will now abuses, now does not recognize the One who has so much loved it and benefited it, now tramples Our very goods under its feet. Therefore, until Our Will reigns, which will spread the divine order, Its firmness and harmony, and Its perennial day of light and of peace in the midst of creatures, everything will be in danger for him and for Us; Our things themselves will remain in the nightmare of danger, and will not be able to give to creatures the abundant goods which they contain.”

Power, enchantment and empire of a soul who lives in the Divine Will. How everything turns around her and she lords over her very Creator.

My abandonment in the Divine Fiat continues, and my poor mind pauses now in one point of It, now in another; but it is unable to go out from within the immensity of Its endless boundaries; even more, it finds neither ways nor doors to go out of It. And while I move within the Divine Volition, I leave It behind me, and while I leave It behind me, It presents Itself before me with Its majesty, to the right and to the left, and even under my steps; and It says to me: “I am all for you, to give you my Life and to form It in you. So, there is nothing else for you but my Divine and Adorable Will.”

Now, while my poor mind was wandering within It, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior and told me:

“My daughter, one who lives in my Divine Volition feels within herself the continuous and constant act of the divine operating of my Divine Fiat. This continuous act, generated by Its Power in the creature, has such strength, such empire over all, that it captivates all with its sweet enchantment, in such a way that all turn around her - the Angels, the Saints, the Sacrosanct Trinity, the spheres and all Creation. All want to be spectators, to enjoy a scene so sweet, enchanting and beautiful of the continuous act of the creature in the Divine Fiat. She enters into the bank of the Supreme Being, and unifying herself in the continuous act of her Creator, she does nothing but put out, with her continuous act, the innumerable beauties, the sweetest sounds, the insuperable rarities of the qualities of her Creator. And what enraptures the most is to see her littleness that, all daring and courageous, without fearing anything, as if she wanted to lord over her very Creator, to give Him pleasure, to captivate Him to herself, to ask Him for the Kingdom of His Will upon earth, takes and puts out, from within the divine bank, all Our joys and happinesses, as if she wanted to exhaust them. And seeing that she does not exhaust them, she does not tire, she repeats her continuous act, in such a way that all wait for her to finish, and seeing that she does not finish, they press themselves around her, so much so, that she becomes place of center, and all turn around, so as not to lose a scene so consoling and never before seen - that is, the continuous act of the human littleness in the unity of the Supreme Fiat. More so, since the continuous operating is only of God, and as one sees it being repeated by the creature, it causes the greatest surprises and makes Heaven and earth astonished.

“My little daughter, if you knew what a continuous act in my Will means.... This act is incomprehensible to created mind. The creature is the bilocator of Our continuous act, she enters into Our act and makes arise and puts out Our rare Beauty, Our invincible Love, Our Power that can do anything, Our Immensity that embraces everything, and showing them to all, she would like to say to all: ‘Look Who is our Creator.’ And We let her do it, and We enjoy in seeing that the littleness of the creature wants to give Us Our paradise and Our Divine Being, as Ours and as her own. What can one who lives in Our Fiat not do and not give to Us? Anything! More so since, because this happy creature is on earth, by virtue of her free will, she possesses the conquering virtue which not even the Saints in Heaven possess; and with it she can conquer and multiply whatever good she wants. And Our Will, which keeps her within Itself, renders her the conqueror of Our Divine Being.”

How It was necessary that Jesus centralize in Luisa the human sanctity in order to consummate it and give rise to the Sanctity of living in the Divine Will. How voluntary suffering is something great before God.

I had read in the first volume of my writings how Our Lord had told me that He wanted me to accept going into battle against the infernal enemy, in the hard trials to which I submitted myself. So I was thinking to myself: ‘It seems to me that there is contradiction, because Jesus has told me many times that one who lives in His Divine Will is not subject to either temptations or disturbances; nor does the enemy have the power to enter into the Divine Fiat, because It would burn him more than the very fire of hell, and in order not to be burned more, he runs away from the soul who lives in It.’

Now, while I was thinking about this and many other things, my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, you are wrong, nor are there contradictions. You must know that, since I was to call you in a way all special to live in my Divine Will, to make It known to you and, through you, make known to others the Sanctity of living in It, so that It might reign on earth, it was necessary that I centralize in you the whole of the human sanctity, in order to consummate it in you and to give rise to the true Sanctity of the living in my Divine Volition. Sanctity in the human order was to be the footstool, the throne, of the Sanctity in the order of my Divine Will. And this is why, from the very beginning, when I called you to the state of victim and to all that you suffered during that time, first I would tell you, to ask you whether you would accept, and after you had accepted, then I would put you in that state of pain. From you I wanted voluntary suffering, not forced, because it was your will that I wanted to make die and, over your will, almost like a little flame that is extinguished, ignite the great fire of the Sun of my Fiat.

“Voluntary suffering is something great before Our Supreme Majesty, and therefore, over the death of your will, drowned with pains, Our Will could have dominion and could dispose you to receive the greater good of Its knowledges. Was it not my suffering, all voluntary - no one could impose himself on Me - that formed the great good of Redemption? So, everything you suffered at that time was nothing other than the completion of the order of sanctity in the human way; and this is why I told you almost nothing about the Sanctity of living in my Divine Will - I wanted to complete one in order to start the other. And when I saw that you denied Me nothing of what I wanted, even at the cost of your life, and as you would deny Me nothing, your will would lose the way and would find itself in the continuous act of dying, my Will made Its way and reacquired Its Life in you; and as It kept reacquiring Its Life, so It kept revealing Itself, telling you Its long story, Its sorrow, and how It yearns to come to reign in the midst of creatures. My word is life, and as I kept speaking to you about my Fiat, more than tender father, so I kept forming Its Life in you. In fact, you could never have understood what regarded my Will, had you not had Its Life in you, because it is what forms one's life that one has true interest in comprehending and defending; what does not form one's life enters into the secondary order, not the primary, and one does not feel the true love which one can have for one's own life. So, to the very Life of my Fiat, formed in you, I could entrust all of Its knowledges, to be able to form as many other Lives of It in the creatures. And besides, I was to do with you what I did with Myself: when I came upon earth, I observed all laws, I submitted Myself to all sacrifices of the ancient law in a perfect way, as no one else had observed up to that time; and after I completed everything within Me, consummating in my Humanity all the laws and sanctities of the ancient world, I abolished them and gave rise to the new law of grace and to the new sanctity which I brought upon earth. So I have done with you: I centralized in you the pains, the sacrifices, the battles of the present sanctity in order to complete it and therefore be able to start again the new Sanctity of living in my Will - that is, the Fiat Voluntas Tua on earth as It is in Heaven.

“Now, where are the contradictions you are saying? When the soul enters into my Will to live perennial life in It, the enemy cannot get close, his sight is dazzled by the Light of my Fiat, nor is he able to see what the happy creature does in this Divine Light. Light shields itself from everything, it dominates all, it is intangible, it does not let itself be offended, nor does it offend; and if anyone wants to touch it or clasp it in his hands, with enchanting rapidity it escapes, and, almost playfully, it sprays him with light. It touches everything, it embraces all, to do good to all, but does not let itself be touched by anyone. Such is my Divine Will. It encloses the soul within Its Light, and with Its empire It eclipses all evils; and as the soul lives of light, everything converts into light, into sanctity and perennial peace. So, evils get lost and lose their way; disturbances, temptations, passions, sin, remain all with their legs broken and can no longer walk. Therefore, be attentive, and let your living in my Fiat be continuous.”

How one who lives in the Divine Fiat is the narrator of the divine works. The Ascension. The reason why Jesus did not leave the Kingdom of the Divine Will upon earth.

Continuing in my usual abandonment in the Divine Fiat, I was following the acts of It in the Creation. It seemed to me that, by uniting myself to Its acts, I would do now an act of light, now an act of immensity, now an act of power, and so on and so forth. But while I was doing this, my always lovable Jesus, moving, in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, one who lives in my Divine Will and follows Its acts is the narrator of all Our works. So, as you go around in the sun to repeat together with my Will what I did in creating the sun, you act for Us as the narrator of the story of its light; and the Supreme Being, in hearing all the story of the sun - what it encloses, the good it does being repeated to It by you, feels all the glory of its light being given back to It. And as the light shines over all things, invests everything, fills the air, It hears your echo near and far, down below and in the height of the heavens, and whispering to Our ear, you act for Us as the narrator of the light, and glorify Us so much as to give Us a sun of glory.

“Oh! how delighted We are on the part of the creature, because a sphere so beneficial for the whole earth was created by Us. And how not to love one who lives in Our Divine Fiat? She gathers all Our qualities and happinesses spread in the whole Creation, and now she acts for Us as the narrator of the heavens and tells Us the story of their immensity, and gives Us the glory of the entire heavens; now she tells Us the story of the sea, and she murmurs together with the waters: ‘Love and glory of all the sea to my Creator’. Now she narrates to Us the story of the flowery earth, and all the plants and flowers elevate their fragrance, and you give Us the glory of all the earth; and now you act for Us as the narrator of the story of the wind, now of the water, now of the little bird that sings, now of the lamb that bleats. In sum, she always has things to narrate to Us among the many things which We have done in Creation, in order to give Us the love and the glory which We had in creating It. Oh! how sweet and pleasant it is to hear you act as the narrator of Our works. We feel Our love, Our glory, being doubled; more so, since she who does the narration for Us lives in Our Will, which, instructing her, makes her speak the loving secrets which are present in all created things.”

Having said this, He kept silent. Then, as though unable to contain the love of His Divine Heart, He added:

“My beloved daughter, you are my hope - the hope of the Kingdom of my Divine Will upon earth; that hope which does not say ‘doubt’, but ‘certainty’, because its Kingdom is already present in you. Your ways, your prerogatives, your narrations, are all apartments for my Divine Fiat, in you there are Its foundations, Its knowledges, therefore I hope that Its Kingdom will be formed and will spread upon earth.”

After this, I was thinking about when Our Lord ascended into Heaven, glorious and triumphant, with His Humanity no longer humiliated, subject to pains, with the insignia of Adam decayed, but untouchable by any pain, with the insignia of the new innocent Adam, with all the most beautiful prerogatives of Creation, clothed with light and immortal. But while I was thinking about this, my most sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, my Humanity redid within Itself, and over Itself, all the evils of decayed humanity, to the point of dying, in order to give to it the virtue of rising again from the death to which it was subject. This is the reason why I did not leave the Kingdom of my Divine Will upon earth - because the humanity of innocent Adam was missing, glorious and immortal, in order to be able to impetrate It and to receive the great gift of my Fiat. Therefore, it was necessary that my Humanity first redo decayed humanity and give to it all the remedies in order to raise it again, and then die and rise again with the qualities of innocent Adam, so as to be able to give to man what he lost. Not only this, but I wanted to ascend into Heaven with my Humanity as beautiful, clothed with light, just as it came out of Our creative hands, so as to say to the Celestial Father: ‘My Father, look at Me, how my Humanity is redone, how the Kingdom of Our Will is safe in It. I am the Head of all, and the One who prays You has all the rights to ask and to give what I possess.’

“My daughter, an innocent humanity, with all the qualities with which it came out of Our creative hands, was needed in order to impetrate again the Kingdom of Our Will into the midst of creatures. Up to that time it was missing, and I purchased it with my death, and I ascended into Heaven in order to fulfill, with my first task, my second task of impetrating and giving the Kingdom of my Divine Will upon earth. It is about two thousand years that this Humanity of Mine has been praying, and Our Divine Majesty, feeling the love of Creation which We had in creating man overflow from Itself again - or rather, with greater intensity - and feeling Itself being enraptured and charmed by the beauties of my Humanity, has poured Itself out again; and opening the Heavens, It has made the rain of light of the many knowledges about my Fiat rain down in torrents, so that, like rain, It may descend upon souls, and with Its light It may vivify and heal the human will, and transforming it, It may cast the root of my Will into the hearts, and may lay Its Kingdom upon earth. In order for my Kingdom to come upon earth, first I had to make It known, I had to make known that It wants to come to reign. And I, and as an elder brother of the human family, am doing all the paperwork in Heaven before the Divinity, in order to give to it a purchase so great. Therefore, it was necessary that I ascend into Heaven with my Humanity glorified, in order to be able to purchase again the Kingdom of my Fiat for my brothers and children of mine.”

How the knowledges about the Divine Will are the army; the acts done in It, the weapons; Its Light, the Royal Palace; the Ministry, the Sacrosanct Trinity. Divine ardor for establishing Its Kingdom. Divine need; Its silence; the sorrow of Its secrets.

Continuing in my usual abandonment in the Divine Fiat, I was feeling concerned about the privations of my sweet Jesus. Oh! how my poor soul moaned under the infinite weight of a sorrow which makes all created things say: “Where is your Jesus - the One who so much loved you? Ah! you feel that He sustains everything, you touch His beauty which He has strewn over all Creation, you see His immensity which you cannot reach. What you see are nothing other than the marks of His steps which, in passing by, He impressed upon all things created by Him; but He is not here. And you - run, search for Him, and we will accompany you, moaning together with you, to make you find the One whom you want.” And I feel like everyone speaks to me about Jesus with sorrowful notes, and as they echo in my poor heart, it is tortured by a sorrow which I myself cannot express. And the impression was such - as if I wanted to go out of my usual state.

But, meanwhile, my lovable and good Jesus surprised me, and throwing His arms around my neck, told me:

“My daughter, what’s wrong? What’s wrong? Calm yourself, calm yourself. How can this be? Do you perhaps want to go out from within the army of my Divine Will? Look, what an orderly, formidable and large army, such that, as it lines up within your soul, it will not be easy for you to get out. But do you know what this army is? All the knowledges about my Divine Will. In fact, having formed Its Royal Palace in you, It could not, nor was it decorous for It to remain without Its army. This army We have issued from Our divine womb in order for them to form the cortege, to defend and to all stand at attention, so as to make known to all who Our Fiat is -their Divine King and how It wants to descend with Its whole celestial army into the midst of the peoples in order to fight the human will; but not with weapons that kill, because in Heaven they aren’t these deadly weapons, but with weapons of light, which fight in order to form the Life of my Will in the creatures. Now, you must know that the weapons of this army are the acts done in my Divine Will. Look how beautiful it is! The Royal Palace is the Light of my Fiat! The King that dominates is my Will! The Ministry, the Sacrosanct Trinity; the army, the knowledges about It; the weapons, your acts done in It. In fact, as you would have the good of knowing one of the knowledges about It, and would operate by virtue of It, you would form, in my Fiat, the weapons in the hands of each knowledge, so as to give the life of it to other creatures.

“But this is not all yet. Each knowledge possesses a different weapon, one different from the other. So, each knowledge- I have given you about my Divine Will possesses a special and distinct weapon: one possesses the weapon of Light in order to illuminate, warm and fecundate the seed of my Fiat; another possesses the weapon of the conquering Power that dominates and rules; another, the weapon of the Beauty that enraptures and conquers; another, the weapon of the Wisdom that orders and disposes; another, the weapon of the Love that burns, transforms and consumes, another, the weapon of the Strength that knocks down, makes one die and rise again in my Divine Volition. In sum, each knowledge of mine is a divine soldier, which, manifesting itself to your soul has let the weapon of each of the offices they possess be placed by you into its hands. Look at what order they have, how attentive they are to their office, and to handling the weapon which each of them possesses in order to dispose and form the people of the Kingdom of my Divine Fiat. This army and these weapons possess the prodigious virtue of the infinite, which is such that they diffuse everywhere; and wherever there is a light, even small, in the creatures, they fight with weapons of Light against the darkness of the human will, to eclipse it and give it the Life of my Fiat; and wherever there is a seed of power or of strength, there runs the divine little soldier with its weapon of Power and of Strength, to fight the human power and strength, and make the Power and Strength of my Divine Will rise again. For all human acts this army has the opposite weapon with which to fight them, so as to make the act of my Divine Will rise again over the human act.

“Therefore, my daughter, it is necessary that you remain in my Divine Will in order to form sufficient weapons with your acts done in It, for the great army of Its knowledges. If you knew how this army anxiously awaits the weapons of your acts into their hands, in order to wage war on and destroy the poor kingdom of the human will, and to build Our Kingdom of Light, of Sanctity and of happiness! More so, since I am within you, in the great Royal Palace of my Divine Will, in the midst of my army, with the continuous council of the Ministry of the Divine Persons, as the reproducer of Our works; because We are the operating Being, and wherever We are present We want to operate always, without ever ceasing. Therefore, it is a necessity that you remain always in Our Fiat, to unite yourself to Us in Our continuous operating, and to give Us the field to always operate within you. In fact, the sign of the divine operating is precisely this: to operate always - always, without ever ceasing.”

After this, He kept silent. Then, with a more tender emphasis, He added:

“My daughter, if you knew the ardor of my love that I feel, because I want to establish the Kingdom of my Divine Will upon earth, so as to realize the only purpose for which man was created. In fact, in everything that has been done by the Divine Persons, from the time when the world was created, and in what We will do, Our principle will always be that one, nor will We ever cease it: that man return into the inheritance of the Kingdom of Our Fiat, which he rejected from Us. This is so true, that in my very Incarnation, when I descended from Heaven to earth, the first purpose was the Kingdom of my Divine Will; it is into Its Kingdom -that is, in my Immaculate Mother who, possessed It - that I directed my first steps; my first dwelling was within Her most pure womb, in which my Fiat held Its absolute dominion and Its Kingdom, whole and beautiful. And in this Kingdom of my Will which my Celestial Mama possessed, I began and I formed my life down here made of pains, of tears and of expiations. I knew that I was to be the Jesus neglected, unloved, nor sought for, but I wanted to come because I could see through the centuries how my coming upon earth was to serve to form the Kingdom of my Divine Will and, by necessity, I was to redeem them first in order to obtain my first purpose. And so, even from that time, I descended from Heaven in order to come to find, to search for and to clasp to my breast the children of my Kingdom, who would search for Me, love Me, recognize Me, to the point of being unable to be without Me. Therefore, in what I did and suffered, I put a mark and I said: ‘Here I shall wait for the children of my Will; I shall embrace them, we shall love one another with one single love, with one single Will.’ And for love of them, my pains, my tears, my steps, my works, changed for Me into refreshment, into joy for my Heart drowned with love.

“My daughter, don’t you yourself feel how you cannot be without Me? And when, in the world, they will read these papers, they will remain astounded in hearing of the long chain of my graces, my daily comings - and for such a long time, which I have done with no one else; my long conversations which I have had with you, the many teachings I have given you, and everything that was to serve the Kingdom of my Divine Will. I felt the irresistible need to resume and redo with you all the conversations, to give you the graces and the teachings which I would have given to Adam innocent, had he not rejected the precious inheritance of my Fiat. But he broke my speaking and reduced Me to silence; and after six thousand years of silence I felt the extreme need to resume my speaking with the creature. Oh! how painful it was to contain so many secrets within my Heart, which I was to confide her; and it was for her alone that these secrets were kept - not for others; and if you knew how much it cost Me to remain silent for such a long time! My Heart was suffocated and, delirious,

It repeated dolefully: ‘Alas! I created man to have someone with whom to speak, but he was to possess my Divine Will in order to understand Me; and because he has rejected It from Me, he has rendered Me the God taciturn. What sorrow I feel!’ What suffocated love, which made Me faint - and I raved!

“Therefore, unable to endure any longer, I wanted to break my long silence with you - I snapped it; and from here the necessity of the ardor of my speaking - for so long, and so often, and repeatedly. And as I pour Myself out with you in speaking, I feel as if I were just now giving start to Creation; and this is why, in these papers, I am making you write the true reason for Creation, what my Will is, Its infinite value, how one is to live in It, Its Kingdom, and how It wants to reign to render everyone holy and happy. All will remain surprised in reading these papers, and will feel the need for my Fiat to live in their midst. The Divinity feels an irresistible necessity to complete the work of Creation, and It will be completed by the reigning of Our Divine Will in the midst of creatures. What would a creature do, after she has made a work with unheard-of sacrifices and for a long time - a work which costs her her life, a work of incalculable value, and which only lacked one point, one shade, one color - if she cannot complete the work that costs her so much? And as beautiful as her work is, as precious and of incalculable value as it is, such that it would form her fortune, her glory and her complete happiness, she cannot present it to the public, nor can she say that it is a complete work, because one point is missing. For this person life would change into sorrow, and she would feel the weight of her work - beautiful, yes, but incomplete. And therefore she feels unhappy, and instead of glory, she feels humiliation; and how many sacrifices would she not make? She would lay down her life in order to place that point, so as to make her work complete.

Such is the state We are in; nothing is lacking to Our work of Creation - heavens, suns, works and, magnificence of every kind; but one point is missing - yet a point which disfigures a work so beautiful. This point is the most important; it is the most beautiful shade, it is the most vivid color that is missing in the Creation: everyone and everything lives in my Fiat, but one point of It - that is, the human family - is outside of It, outside of my Kingdom, and it lives unhappy. What sorrow! There is room for everyone in my Volition, and yet, there are some who live outside. Oh! how they disfigure It and render It incomplete. And what would We not do to see It complete? Any sacrifice, my daughter; We are willing to do anything. I have already laid down my Life in the Redemption to place this point in the creative work. And when they come to know what Will of God means, the great good It can do, and how the only thing that most interests Us is to place the rights of Our Divine Fiat in safety and to make It reign, so as to see everyone happy in Our Will, of Our own happiness - they will no longer be surprised in reading, in these papers, the great things I have told you and I have done in your soul. On the contrary, they will say: ‘For a Will so holy, which has done everything, it was right that there be such a display of graces and so many sublime teachings in the one in whom It was to make the first deposit of Its Kingdom, so as to make us comprehend It, love It and long for It.’ Therefore, be attentive, because this is about giving a Divine Will Its rights, so as to render the work of Creation complete.”

The Divine Will: light; love: heat. Divine nourishment and outpouring.

I am always back into my dear inheritance of the Divine Volition, and it seems to me that I go around gleaning within It; and Jesus, so very good, does not neglect to give me His beautiful lessons about each of those ears of grain which I keep gathering. But while I was going around, I kept repeating my refrain over each thing: 'I love You - and let my love be the sweet chain which, binding the eternal Fiat, may draw It - do violence on It, to make It come to reign upon earth.' Now, while I was doing this, my adored Jesus told me:

"My daughter, my Divine Will is Light, Love is Heat. Light and heat are inseparable from each other, and form the same life; this is the necessity of the fusion of my Will and of my Love: a will which does not love is not operative, a love which has no will is without life. However, my Will has the first act; it can be said that Its light makes the heat arise. It does the first act and calls the life of love within Its light, forming one single thing. Who can ever separate the heat from the light? No one. However, the bigger the light, the stronger the heat; so, with a small light one can just barely feel the strength of the heat; a big light gives much heat and produces admirable effects. How many and what effects does the sun not produce, because its light is so great as to embrace the whole earth? It can be said that it is the king of the earth; with its light and with its heat it caresses everyone, it embraces everything and does good to all - and without asking anything from anyone. Why? First, because it does not need anything; second, because all would feel impotent to repay the sun for the great good it does to all the earth. So, this is why you feel within yourself two infinite powers, fused into one: my Divine Will and my Love; and the Light of my Volition makes you run to make you place your 'I love You', which It unleashes from Its womb of Light, upon all created things, so as to see the whole Creation bejeweled by Its 'I love you' and yours.

"In addition to this, life needs nourishment; my Divine Will is Life, my Love is food. Each 'I love You' of yours, is a sip of nourishment which you give to my Fiat within you, and, each act of yours done in my Will makes the Life of It grow within you. Oh! how the Life of my Will delights and grows admirably in the creature when It finds much Divine Love. It can be said that my Fiat finds Its food, and my Love finds Its Life."

After this, I continued to think about the adorable Fiat, and my sweet Jesus continued, saying:

"My daughter, one who lives in my Divine Will is under the continuous outpouring of her Creator. Our Love toward her is so great, that We are so enraptured in seeing Our Fiat in the littleness of the creature, that We want to give her always - always, without ever ceasing. Now, this divine outpouring of Ours fills her so much as to leave not one void within her, in such a way that, whatever place she leans on, she always finds the fullness of Our outpouring that sustains her, in such a way that she cannot bend over herself because Our outpouring sustains her and carries her as though in triumph in its arms. But do you know what We pour out? Love, Light, Grace, Sanctity, Power, etc. Now, all these qualities of Ours compete among themselves for carrying this little creature in their arms. It seems that they vie with one another for her, and they take turns, so as to say: 'We all have carried her.' And while each of them carries her in its arms, if it is Love that carries her, It fills her so much with love as to take pleasure in seeing the tiny little one drowned - drowned with Its Love; and only when It sees her overflow with love, then does It content Itself with letting her pass into the arms of Light; because they want to see, being repeated in the tiny little one, what her Creator has done. The Light takes delight in drowning her with light; Grace, in drowning her with grace; Power, in drowning her with power - but so much, as to captivate the Creator Himself. In sum, this little creature lives under the continuous outpouring of God, which fills her so much that she feels drowned and cannot contain it, in such a way that she is forced to pour it outside. So, what you say about my Divine Will is nothing other than the outpouring of what you contain inside.”

Power of one who lives in the Divine Fiat. Virtue of the acts done in It. How all generations hung upon the acts done by Adam.

Continuing in my usual abandonment in the Fiat, I found myself outside of myself, and to my surprise I found the infernal enemy near me, as if he wanted to jump over me. I felt such strength within me as to put myself over him; and as I was putting myself over, he was all shattered and smashed to pieces. I felt concerned, and I thought to myself: ‘It is a long time since I had seen the enemy, even more, if he would see me, he would run away from me. And now, what does he want with his drawing near me?’ And my lovable Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, the soul who possesses my Divine Fiat has such power as to shatter the diabolical power to pieces; and I allowed you to touch with your own hand how, by just placing yourself over him, he was crushed, so that you may not fear him, and he might feel the power of one who possesses my Will, which scatters the diabolical strength like dust in the wind. Therefore, do not be concerned about him, and continue your life in my Fiat. Indeed, you must know that each prayer, each act and motion of one who lives in It, encloses within itself an infinite and indelible strength and weight; and the infinite extends everywhere, it contains the virtue-producer of all goods, it embraces eternity, it encloses God Himself. Therefore, an act done in my Will is an act that never ends, and has such power as to enclose Heaven and earth. And Our Fiat, with Its infinite power, encloses Our Divinity in the act of the creature, forming with Its veils of light the most beautiful and delightful Royal Palace for Our Divine Being.”

Jesus disappeared, and I felt sunken in the abyss of light of the Supreme Fiat.

After this, I was continuing my acts in the Divine Fiat, and as I arrived at Eden, I thought to myself: ‘In this Eden, our first father Adam did the first acts in the Divine Fiat. The whole Creation had Its beginning within an act of Divine Will operating in all created things; and so did the first man. The Divine Will extended the fullness of Its Sanctity, Power, Beauty and Light in each thing, making Itself actor and spectator, enclosing everything in one single act of Its Divine Will. How beautiful was the Creation at Its beginning - one was the Will that operated; and the different acts were nothing other than the effects of It.’ But while I was thinking about this, my lovable Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, all generations hung upon the first acts done by Adam in the fullness of my Divine Will, because, being done in It, they were acts full of life, and could give origin and life to all the other acts of all creatures. And even though creatures do not live of my Will, but of their own, yet, it is always my Will that gives them life; and while It gives them life, they keep It as though suffocated and agonizing in their acts. Therefore, all the acts of Adam done in my Will are there as prime act of all the acts of creatures. Who can destroy an act done in my Divine Will? Who can ever take away from It the Sovereignty, the Power, the Beauty, the Life? No one. There is nothing which does not hang upon the first act; all created things hung upon the first act done by the One who created them. And if I so much love, yearn and want that my Will be known and reign in the midst of creatures, the reason is precisely this - that Its rights, just and holy, be given back to It, and that all Creation, just as It had Its beginning, may, all of It, return into Our Divine Will.”

Every time Jesus has spoken about His Will the Heavens have lowered themselves. The feast of all Heaven. The Divine Will, crown of Creation and Redemption. Sorrow of Jesus because the Divine Fiat is not known.

My little intelligence does nothing but keep crossing the unending sea of the Divine Fiat; and as It forms Its waves of light, so It murmurs Its celestial and divine language, and puts out Its secrets; and with arcane words It manifests Itself to my little soul. And many times my sweet Jesus comes out from within those waves of light, He runs, He embraces me, and placing His hand upon His Heart in order to sustain It, so great is the ardor of His Love which He feels, He speaks about His Most Holy Volition.

So, while I was in this state, my beloved Jesus told me:

“Daughter of my Will, if you knew what love I feel when I decide to speak to you about my Divine Fiat.... Every time I have spoken to you about It, the Heavens have lowered themselves, so great was the esteem and the veneration they felt; and paying homage to what I would be about to say, and lowering themselves, they would overflow from the Celestial Fatherland and would all come to attention to listen to Me; and while I would speak, they would feel within themselves new creations of Divine Lives, new joys, new beauties. In fact, when it comes to speaking to you about more knowledges on my Divine Fiat, the whole of Heaven feels the power of It, and they compete among themselves to listen, and to receive the new effects of those knowledges. So, it has been the feast of all Heaven, every time I have spoken to you about my Most Holy Will, because It has felt Its happiness being doubled, and only Heaven could contain all the admirable effects, the pure joys, of even just one knowledge of my Fiat. Only in this way could I speak to you about It - with the Heavens lowered, so as to receive their reverent acts and the homages due to my Divine Will.

“The love and the desire I feel to make It known is so great, that if it were necessary I would incarnate, Myself again in order to obtain that my Will be known and that It reign upon earth. But this is not necessary because, having incarnated Myself once, my incarnation is always in act, and has the virtue of reproducing the same effects as if I were incarnating Myself again. And it was only for the decorum of my Fiat that I chose you, I purified you of any seed of corruption, I enclosed Myself in your soul - not only in a spiritual way, but also in the natural - so as to make use of you as a veil to cover Myself, almost as I made use of my Humanity, as a veil to hide my Divinity. And in order to have you at my disposal, I segregated you from everything, I confined you inside a bed - and for so many years, to give you the sublime lessons about my eternal Fiat, and to make you drink, sip by sip, Its knowledges and Its Life. Its long story required time, in order to narrate it to you and make you comprehend it. I can say I have done more than in Creation and Redemption, because my Will encloses both one and the other, It is origin and means of them, and It will be end and crown of Creation and Redemption, in such way that, without my Will, unknown and not reigning and dominating upon earth, Our works would be works without crown and incomplete. And so, this is the reason for so much interest in making, It known. Our very works, done with so much love and magnificence, are in the nightmare of an unutterable moan, and almost of a profound humiliation, because the Life, the essential substance which they hide, is not yet known. The veils, the exterior of Creation and Redemption are known, but the Life which they hide is ignored. How can they give the Life they hide and the goods they possess? Therefore, Our works long for - demand their just rights: that my Divine Will be known. Ah! yes, It alone will be the glory, the everlasting crown and the fulfillment of Our works.

“Now, you must know that I am here hidden within you, with sorrow in my Heart, just as I was in my last years, when my Humanity lived down here on earth, and I, Word of the Father, was hidden within It. After so many sacrifices, after so much speaking of mine and so many examples given, I looked at the earth, I looked at the peoples, and also those who surrounded Me - without the effects of my coming upon earth. The fruits, the goods of my coming upon earth were so scarce, that my Heart was tortured in feeling the so many goods which I wanted to give them being rejected from Me, and my sorrow increased in seeing that, having fulfilled within my Humanity what I was to do in order to redeem them, I was about to depart for Heaven. How painful it is wanting to do good, even at the cost of one’s life, and finding no one to whom to give these goods.

“Now, so I am within you; I look at my sacrifices and yours, I look at the order I have kept, at the many lessons I have given you, enough to make my Divine Will known in order to form Its Kingdom; and if I do not stop speaking, it is because Its story is eternal, and what is eternal has its eternal speaking, which never ends - and the speaking about my Fiat will be eternal in Heaven. I look at those who surround you, and who know what regards my Will - without true interest in making known a good so great. I look at your humanity itself, which serves Me as cathedra from which I impart my lessons and you yourself cannot deny that you feel Me within yourself, sensibly, moving, speaking, suffering, and that I am really inside you, to form my Kingdom and make It known. And while I look at you, I see that your humanity also will not remain on earth for much longer; and my Heart feels the grips of the sorrow that the great good which my Divine Will wants to do is not even known, Its knowledges are as though buried, and while they want to give life, happiness, light, they remain as though imprisoned between Me and you, and in the papers which, with so much tenderness of love, I have made you write. Therefore, my daughter, compassionate my sorrow, adore my dispositions in keeping you on earth still. I know that this is very hard for you, and I compassionate you; and while we compassionate each other, let us do what is up to us in order to make my Divine Will known.”

After this, I was doing my usual acts in the Divine Volition, and my sweet Jesus added:

“My daughter, my Fiat has Its prime act in Our Divinity, Its prime act in the Creation and Redemption and in all things, and therefore It has Its just right to dominate everything and to envelop all, and to be the primary wheel which, in moving, moves everything around itself, and all turn around it. So, one who takes my Will as life takes everything; and as the primary wheel moves, all things give themselves to the soul, so much so, that she has no need to ask - as they turn around my Will, they all give themselves to her. Therefore, the most necessary thing is to take my Divine Will; and if she has done this, she has done everything and has taken everything - everything is hers. It happens as to an engine: if the primary wheel in the center of it moves, all the secondary wheels rotate as well; but if the primary wheel does not move, all remain motionless, and there is no power nor artisan who would have the virtue of moving the secondary wheels. But if the first one moves, the others rotate of their own and do their office. Therefore, the attention and the art must be on the primary wheel everything else comes of its own. Such is my Will - one who possesses It has no need of anything.”

How true love needs an outpouring. Creation was an outpouring of love, as well as Redemption and Divine Fiat. What a divine outpouring means.

While writing, I was thinking to myself: ‘How many sacrifices in order to write, how many nights of vigil, how much time employed; only Jesus has, been the witness, who, having compassion for me, would sustain me, help me, feed me the words; and many times He has worked as dictator. But what will be the utility of so many cares of Jesus for making me write? And of so many interior struggles of mine in order to impress on the paper what Jesus would make me feel inside of me? What the utility of so many sacrifices borne? Who will take the trouble to read them, to make them known, so that they may bring the good of so many truths about the Divine Will into the midst of creatures? No one, I believe; and all the sacrifices will remain in the papers. After all, if I wrote, I have done it only for fear of displeasing Jesus, so as not to displease Him, and only and always to obey.

So, with these thoughts I continued to write. Then, after I finished, I began to pray, and my sweet Jesus came out from my interior, and clasping me in His arms, told me:

“My daughter, true love needs an outpouring. I could no longer contain within Myself this intense outpouring of making known my Will, Its knowledges, Its immense value, and how It wants to form Its Kingdom upon earth. My Heart finds Itself amidst the ardor of flames, for I want to give this surprise to the human generations - the Kingdom of my Divine Will on earth, a surprise not expected by them. And my contained Love was moaning, raving, and was devoured by inextinguishable flames, for It wanted to make known that It wanted to give them this great good, a good that surpasses all other goods - which is the Kingdom of my Divine Fiat. This great good I gave at the beginning of Creation, because from Our Divinity never do incomplete goods and works come out. But it was rejected by man, and We had the sorrow of feeling the life, the substance, the goods and the most essential part of Creation being rejected back; and man rendered all Our works incomplete for himself and has never given a thought to reacquiring what he rejected from Us.

“But while he would not think about it, We did think about it, and this formed Our martyrdom of love, a martyrdom which has lasted about six thousand years, a secret martyrdom which increased Our flames. And they devoured Us so much, that unable to contain them any longer, I wanted to come to you in order to break the secret, as I felt the need to make for you an outpouring of love, and say to you: ‘I want to give what man rejected; I want my Will to reign upon earth.’ And in order to make It come to reign, I had to make It known to you; therefore the necessity to manifest to you so many knowledges about It. So, if your sacrifices of writing will bring no good and utility which will not be - they were necessary to my Love, and have served to form my outpouring, and to relieve Me of the flames that devoured Me. So, each knowledge about my Divine Fiat was an outpouring of contained love that I made for you, it was a new creation that I put out; it was like binding the Divine Will to the human, in order to reorder it again according to the order created by Us. It was life that came out of Me, substance and essential part to be able to form the Kingdom of my Divine Will upon earth. If you knew what a divine outpouring means.... Outpouring of love was the Creation, and oh! how many goods came out of this outpouring! Heavens, stars, seas, flowery earth; and then man, formed with such art, that Heaven and earth are astounded at the way man is formed.

“This outpouring would have continued, and yet more beautiful things were to come out of Us; but man, by rejecting Our Divine Will from Us, closed this outlet of Ours, and he blocked Our works, and for as many as four thousand years, Our outpouring had no more way out. But Our Love felt the need to pour out, It wanted Its rights, It wanted to release Its vital flames, and bursting out Its long outpouring, It created the Most Holy Virgin, from whom proceeded the Incarnation of the Word. How many wonders in this second outpouring; what utility, how many goods have creatures not received! But this second outpouring of Ours remained halved, and Our Love had to content Itself and wait two more thousand years to be able to burst Its outpouring again, and put out all Its secrets, the inmost wonders of Our Divinity, the greatest goods that are needed in order to make Our Divine Will reign in the midst of creatures. If you knew what a divine outpouring means.... And just as in Creation Our outpouring made great and magnanimous works, and it is useful and it continues its life; just as the outpouring of Redemption will bring its admirable effects and the redeeming life to the human generations; in the same way, this outpouring of making known that my Divine Fiat wants to form its Kingdom, and everything you have written about its knowledges, will have life in the midst of creatures. Therefore, let Me pour out for now, and I will take care of rendering what I have manifested to you useful.”

As the soul keeps doing the Divine Will, so does It expand in the soul, and the Divine Life grows within her; and the soul grows within the womb of her Celestial Father. How one who lives in It makes the roll call of all Creation. How, if one goes out of the Divine Will, he goes out while his acts remain.

My abandonment in the Fiat continues. I feel within me such a need to live in It, that It has become more necessary to me than my own nature. Even more, I feel my nature changed into Will of God; I feel it dissolved within It, and in all things, instead of finding myself, I find that Fiat which says to me: “I am your life; run - run always within Me, in the sea of my Light, to live, of my acts, of my Sanctity, of my happiness and of all the goods I possess.” But while I was crossing the sea of the Divine Fiat, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior and told me:

“My daughter, as the soul keeps operating in my Divine Volition, so does It expand more within the creature, in such a way that for each additional act done in It, as much more growth does It form within her; and so, the Divine Life can be seen growing in the creature in an admirable way.

“But this is not all; as the Divine Life grows in the creature, the more acts she does in my Divine Fiat, the more the creature grows within the womb of her Celestial Father. The Supreme Being opens His womb and encloses in it this happy creature, to raise her in a divine manner, to clothe her with royal garments, to feed her the food with Their own hands, to embellish her with rare beauty. All of Heaven remains amazed, enraptured, in seeing that their Creator raises a creature within His womb; and they say among themselves: 'He must be doing something great with her, for He loves her so much, and keeps her in such great custody as to raise her within His paternal womb.' And all await the full growth of this creature, to see what will become of her. Therefore, the prodigy of living of my Will is unique; It communicates such power to one who lives in It, that she enters everywhere, and God Himself loves and wants to raise her within His divine womb. Furthermore, the potential and the diffusion of the act done in my Divine Will is such and so great, that she diffuses everywhere: she extends in the heavens, and it is as if she made the roll-call of the stars; she extends in the sun, and she roll-calls the light, she invests the air, the wind, the sea, and she roll-calls the birds, the power of the wind, the waters and the fish; and placing them all in order, she says to all with her act: 'Bow down, and let us adore, with double homage, our Creator. That Fiat which created us is in my act, and with It I want to create new love, new adoration and glory for our Creator.' And she extends not only in all created things, but she extends within the acts of the Virgin, in all the acts which I did upon earth, in the acts of her Creator, in those of all the Saints; and from the first to the last, she calls the roll for all of them, and she makes the new life of love, of adoration, of glory for the One who created her, flow within them.

"It can be said that wherever my Divine Will is present there extends the act of the creature done in my Will. Even in hell they feel the power of a creature operating in my Divine Fiat, because just as all of Heaven feels the new happiness, the glory and the new love of the act of the creature done in my Volition, so does hell feel the new torment of that Divine Will which they rejected, and which, while It is present with them with justice, is there to torment them, and every time the creature operates in It, they feel the weight of justice more heavily upon them, and they feel themselves burning more. Just as nothing escapes my Divine Fiat, so does nothing escape one who operates in It; and as many times as she repeats her acts, so many times does she make the roll-call, to be sure that no one is missing in her act, to give the new glory, adoration and love to that God, trice holy, and to that Divine Will which, with so much love, makes room for her to let her live within Itself, and allows her to extend within Its endlessness."

After this, I was doing my round in the Divine Fiat, and I was gathering all created things, all the acts of creatures, to form one single act in the unity of It. And my lovable Jesus added:

"My daughter, only my Divine Will possesses the one single act, and in Its unity It embraces everything, It does everything, It gives life to everything. But while It does one act alone, this act possesses the fount of all acts together, such that, while they are the effects of the single act, they spread in the whole Creation and descend for the good of creatures as real acts, while in the unity of the single act of the Divine Fiat, it is always one act alone; so much so, that it never detaches a single effect from itself nor can it detach it, because all the effects form the unity of its one single act. It happens as to the sun: one is the light, one is the act of light which it continuously sends to the earth; but as this one light touches the earth, the effects are innumerable and real. And this is so true, that as the light touches the earth, one sees the effects changed into acts, in such a way that one can see the variety of colors for the flowers, the diversity of sweetnesses for the fruits, and many other things.

Has the sun perhaps lost even just one of the many effects which, as real acts, it has communicated to the earth? Ah! no. Jealous, it preserves them within its single act of light; more so, since the strength, the fullness and its one single act of light are formed of all the effects which it possesses. So, the sun, symbol of my Divine Will, possesses innumerable effects; it gives them to the earth as real acts, without losing even one of them, and it does always one single act. If the sun, created by Us, does this, much more so does my Divine Will.

“Now, my daughter, by doing his will, man went out of the unity of Mine, and all his acts lost that strength of the unity and remained scattered, some in one point, some in another, and divided among themselves. These human acts, not having unity, have no founts of effects, nor fullness of light, and therefore they are symbolized by those plants and flowers which grow without sun; and because they are scattered and divided among themselves, they do not have a lasting strength, and they grow as meager and faded. So, by doing his will, man loses the unity with Mine, he loses the fount of life, he loses the fullness of light. Now, one who lives in my Divine Volition keeps gathering all the goods scattered by creatures, and forms one single act; and these acts become the right of one who does and lives in my Divine Fiat. There is no good which one who lives in my Will cannot take. With the bilocating power of It, she calls, gathers and unites all acts together, and ordering them all in my Fiat, she gives Me everything, and I give her everything.”

After this, I was continuing my acts in the Supreme Volition, and a thousand thoughts crowded my mind about Its many wonders, but in order not to make it too long on paper, I will only say what Jesus told me.

“My daughter, what is done in my Divine Will remains dissolved in It, and just as light and heat are inseparable, and if the light is extinguished the heat also is extinguished, and if the light is given life, by its own nature, the light makes the life of the heat arise together with it; in the same way, the acts of the creature done in It are inseparable from my Volition. More so, since It is not subject to becoming extinguished, because It is eternal and immense Light. This is why, though Adam went out of my Will when he sinned, his acts remained in It. He was able to detach himself from his own acts, but his acts done in my Will could neither go out nor detach themselves, because they had already formed their life of light and of heat within It. What enters into my Will loses its own life in It, it forms one same life with It, it loses the rights to go out; and my Will says: ‘These acts have been done in my house, within my Light; the rights are mine, and there is no power, either human or divine, which can make an act done by the creature in my Will to go out of It and separate from It.’ This is why the acts of Adam done in It before he sinned are there present as prime act on which depend the Creation and the acts of the human generations.

“Now, suppose that you went out from within my Will: you go out and remain outside, but your acts do not go out - they neither have the right to go out, nor can they do it; and as long as you remain in my Will, your acts are mine and yours, but if you go out, you lose the rights. And because they were done in the Kingdom of my Divine Will, and not in the human will, they remain as my rights, even though they appear and are known as having been done by you. Now, you must know that everything that you do in my Fiat will serve as prime act for the other creatures in order to live in the Kingdom of It; as order, regime and life of those who will live in the Kingdom of my Fiat. This is why I exhort you so much in your going around in It, I watch over you, I accompany you, and many times I do it together with you - because not only do they serve you, but they must serve as prime acts and as models for those who must live in the Kingdom of my Divine Fiat.”

Inseparability of one who lives in the Divine Will; example of the breath. Example of the sun; how it lords over everything and goes in search of everything; such is the Divine Will. Contest between the two suns.

My abandonment in the Divine Fiat is continuous, and Its Light eclipses my little intelligence so much, that I can do nothing else but think now about one truth, now about another, concerning the Divine Will. And the more I think about It, the more beautiful and majestic It makes Itself before me, and with an unspeakable love, more than a tender mother, It opens Its womb of light and delivers a birth of light, to enclose it in Its little daughter. Now, while I was in this state, my sweet Jesus told me:

“My daughter, each breath is the life of the next one that follows; so much so, that as one is about to release one breath, before it is emitted completely, it calls for another breath. So, it can be said that the breath has its life and gives life to the creature because it is continuous; they are so united and close among themselves as to be inseparable. And so also for the beating of the heart: one heartbeat calls for the life of the next heartbeat, and the continuous beating forms the life; so much so, that if the breathing and the beating cease, life no longer exists. Such is the soul who does and lives in my Divine Will; her identification, her closeness with It, is such and so great - more than are breaths and heartbeats close among themselves. Therefore, the acts done in my Divine Fiat are like many breaths or heartbeats which the creature does in God, in such a way that she becomes the divine breathing, and my Fiat forms her breathing, so, it is life that they mutually exchange, to form one single life. Therefore, the acts done in Our Divine Will are inseparable from Us, and We feel the contentment of breathing Our work, and of feeling, as Our own, the work which has come out of Us, and of letting her live in Our house - and so close to Us as to breathe her very breath.”

Then, I continued doing my acts in the adorable Fiat, and my always lovable Jesus added:

“My daughter, from the height of its sphere, the sun extends its great wheel of light and embraces the earth, giving it the life of its effects of light, so as to make it germinate. It gives the kiss of life of its light to each plant, to each flower, to each tree, so as to impress upon each plant - for some the life of fragrance, for some color, for some sweetness. It wants to give its embrace and kiss of life to all; it denies itself to no one; it does not reject, whatever the thing might be, even the tiniest blade of grass. On the contrary, wanting to act as a queen who wants to pour her own self out, it goes in search of all, it wants to recognize everything, so as to form in all things the life which is needed for each plant. It would not feel itself queen, nor the right to be queen, if its light did not give its life to everything; so much so, that in its great wheel of light it encloses everything, and it seems that all lap up the life, the beauty, the variety of colors, the growth, from the light of the sun. Nor does it skip over the sea, the rivers, the mountains, to form in them its silvery shades, and the horizon of gold and of silver in the background behind them.

“Oh! how the sun lords over everything with its light - but not in order to oppress, or do harm to anyone; rather, to vivify, to embellish and to give itself as life of everything. It seems that, in its mute silence, it says to all: 'How much I love you - my love is as vast as my great wheel of light; my love for the earth is substantial and full of life. Nor do I ever change; from the height of my sphere I am always at my place, to embrace it, love it and give it life.' Therefore, the earth lives within the great wheel of its light, and each thing keeps its mouth open in order to receive the life of the effects of the light of the sun. Oh! if - may this never be - the sun could withdraw from the earth, or the earth could oppose receiving the goods and the life of the light of the sun, there would be no daylight, but perennial nighttime, and the earth would remain without life, without heat, sweetness would not exist - more than squalid misery. What a dismal change - what terror would the earth become.

"Such is my Divine Will - more than sun for creatures. In Its endless great wheel of light, It goes in search of everyone, to make Itself be recognized and to form in each creature the Life of Beauty, of Sanctity, of Light and of infinite sweetness. It wants to destroy all bitternesses, uglinesses, miseries in them, and with Its kiss of life, breathing over them, It wants to transform them into what is good, beautiful and holy. But, alas!, the sun created by my Fiat does so many prodigies for the earth, and with its own unique majesty it lays over it its mantle of light, of beauty; and at each of its touches, it gives the life it possesses to each plant; and my Fiat remains with the sorrow of not being able to communicate the goods It possesses and Its Divine Life to souls, because they oppose receiving It, and do not want to lap up the light of my Volition, and therefore they are like the earth if it could oppose receiving the light of the sun - in full nighttime, squalid, weak; and many of them are terrifying to look at. My Divine Will is brimful of so many Divine Lives, of so many beauties and of so many goods that It wants to give to them; It would want to pour Its own self out in order to enclose the creatures within Its womb of light, and make of each of them a prodigy of sanctity, of beauty, one distinct from the other, to form Its heaven on earth. But the human will opposes itself, and my Fiat feels the intense pain - more than a mother when she cannot deliver her child to the light.

"And so this is why, my daughter, my Divine Will wants to make Itself known, It wants to form Its Kingdom - because these children belonging to it will live voluntarily within and of Its light; they will remain with their mouths open to receive Its kisses, Its embraces and Its affections, in order to form Its Divine Life in them. Then, yes!, will the prodigies that my Volition knows how to do, and can do, be seen. Everything will be transformed, and the earth will become Heaven. And then, the sun which is there under the vault of the heavens and the Sun of my eternal Volition will hold hands; even more, they will engage in a contest, to see which one can make more prodigies the sun for the earth, and my Will for souls. But my Will will make greater display, so much so, as to form a new enchantment of prodigious beauties never before seen, for the whole of Heaven and for all the earth."

Accounts with Jesus. The soul, bank of the Divine Will. Unforgettable memories. Eden.

I was continuing my round in the Supreme Fiat, and my little mind, arriving at Eden, was saying: "Adorable Majesty, I come before You to bring You my small interest of my 'I love You', 'I adore You', 'I glorify You', 'I thank You', 'I bless You', to give You my small interest because You have given me a heaven, a sun, an air, a sea, a flowery earth, and everything that You have created for me. You once told me that each day you want to do the accounts with me and receive this small interest of mine, so that we may always be in agreement; and keep the whole Creation, given to me by You as little daughter of your Will, safe inside the little bank of my soul.” But while I was doing this, a thought told me: “But, how can you satisfy an interest so great? And besides, how great at all is your ‘I love You’, ‘I adore You’, ‘I thank You’?”

But while I was thinking this, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior and told me:

“My daughter, this was an agreement between Me and you - that I would put the whole Creation in the bank of your soul, and you would have to give Me the interest, filling It with your ‘I love You’, ‘I adore You’, ‘I thank You’. And since I saw you hampered because of a capital so great, and fearing that you might want to reject this great gift from Me, in order to encourage you to receive it, I said to you: ‘I am content with a small interest, and we will do the accounts every day here in Eden. In this way we will remain in agreement and always in peace, and you will not be worried that your Jesus has placed in your bank a capital so great.’ And then, don’t you know the value of an ‘I love You’ in my Divine Will? My Will fills the heavens, the sun, the sea, the wind - Its Life extends everywhere; therefore, as you say your ‘I love You’, ‘I adore You’ and everything else you might say, my Fiat extends your ‘I love You’ in the heavens, and your ‘I love You’ becomes more extensive than the heavens; your ‘I adore You’ extends in the sun, and it becomes larger and longer than its light. Your ‘I glorify You’ extends in the wind., and it wanders through the air, throughout the whole earth, and its moans, the blows of the wind, now caressing, now mighty, say: ‘I glorify You.’ Your ‘I thank You’ extends within the sea, and the drops of water and the darting of the fish say: ‘I thank You’. And I see the heavens, the stars, the sun, the sea, the wind, filled with your ‘I love You’ with your adorations, and the like, and I say: ‘How content I am that I placed everything in the bank of the little daughter of my Will - because she pays Me the interest wanted by Me. And since she lives in It, she gives Me a divine and equivalent interest, because my Fiat extends her little acts and renders them more extensive than the whole Creation.’ And when I see you coming into Eden to give Me your small interest, I took at you and I see in you my Divine Will doubled - one in you, and the other in Me, while It is one; and I see Myself being paid the interest by my Will Itself - and I remain satisfied, and, oh! how content I am in seeing that my Fiat has given to the creature the virtue of making Itself be doubled, so as to let her satisfy her Creator.

“My daughter, how many unforgettable things there are in this Eden. Here Our Fiat created man, and made such display of love, that It poured Itself in torrents upon him; so much so, that We still feel the sweet murmuring with which We poured Ourselves over him. Here began the Life of Our Fiat in the creature, and the sweet and dear memory of the acts of the first man done in It. These acts exist still now in Our Volition, and are as though pledges for him to be reborn in order to have the Kingdom of Our Fiat again. In this Eden there is the sorrowful memory of the fall of man, the exit he made from Our Kingdom. We still hear his steps when he went out of Our Divine Fiat; and since this Eden had been given to him so that he would live in It, We were forced to put him out, and We had the sorrow of seeing the work dearest to Us without his Kingdom, wandering and sorrowful. Our only relief were the pledges of his acts, which had remained in Our Will; these called for the rights of humanity to enter again the place from which it had gone out. This is why I await you in Eden to receive your small interest, to renew what We did in the Creation, and to receive the return for a love so great, not understood by creatures, and to find a loving pretext to give the Kingdom of Our Divine Will. Therefore, I want this Eden to be dear to you as well, that you may pray Us and press Us that the beginning of Creation, the Life of Our Fiat, may return into the midst of the human family.”

The Divine Will and the operating Life of It in the creature. Difference between one who lives in the Fiat and one who does not.

My poor mind was wandering in the Divine Fiat; I felt the sweet enchantment of Its enrapturing light, and I thought to myself: ‘But, what is this Divine Will in my poor soul?’ And my beloved Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, what fortune yours is to live under the sweet enchantment of my Divine Volition. Don’t you know that when It takes possession of the creature, It forms in her Its operating Life, in such a way that It operates in the one in whom It reigns just as It operates within Itself? And, more than Queen, It imposes Itself over everything, It extends with Its light in the littleness of the creature, It forms in her Its sweet enchantment for the human will so as to be more free to form Its Life. And since the Divine Life of my Fiat is composed of repeated acts never interrupted, It is not subject to stopping, and this is why you feel within yourself an act that never ends, a light that is never extinguished, a love that always burns. Not so for those who do not live in my Volition. They feel the Divine Life interrupted in their interior, their acts broken; they feel themselves now one way, now another, their will is not invested by a continuous light that sweetly nourishes them and enchants them, such that feeling the sweetness of my Volition, they would give not a thought to entering the field in order to operate in a human way; and if they feel the light, it is at intervals.

“A symbol of one who lives in my Divine Will is one who was able to remain always under the sun. Its light never ends, nor does it need to be fed in order not to become extinguished. So, one who could live under the sun would feel light shining down constantly upon herself, and since the light contains admirable effects, she would nourish herself with sweetnesses, with fragrances, with varieties of colors, with lights, in such a way as to feel the very life of the sun being formed within herself. On the other hand, one who does not live in my Will, be it even one who is not evil, is symbolized by one who lives under the light of the low world, which has neither the virtue nor the power to form a sweet enchantment of light, such as to eclipse her so much that she would not be able to look at anything but light. And it is subject to becoming extinguished very often, because it does not possess by nature the continuous nourishing virtue, and if it is not nourished, her light ends, and since a light formed by the creature possesses neither sweetness, nor colors, nor fragrances, she cannot feel the life of that light being formed within herself. What great difference between one who lives in my Divine Will and one who lives outside of It”

May everything be for the glory of God, and for the good of my poor soul.

Present for Saint Aloysius. How it was necessary that Jesus intertwine Luisa in the manifestations on the Divine Will. Transmission of human and Divine. Divine rights that the creature acquires.

Having received Holy Communion, I was offering It for the glory of Saint Aloysius, and I offered, as a present for him, everything that Our Lord had done in His Divine Will with His mind, with His words, works and steps, for the accidental glory of Saint Aloysius on his feast day. Now, while I was doing this, my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, a more beautiful present you could not give to dear Saint Aloysius on the day of his feast. As you were offering your Communion and all my acts done in my Divine Will, so many suns were formed for as many acts as I did in It while being on earth; and these suns invested Saint Aloysius, in such a way that he received so much accidental glory from the earth, that he could not receive more. Only the offerings of acts done in my Divine Will have the virtue of forming their suns, because, containing the fullness of light, it is no wonder that It converts into suns the human acts done in It.”

After this, I was thinking to myself: ‘How is this? In all the things that blessed Jesus has told me about His Divine Will, my poor person is always intertwined in the middle; only rarely, a few times, has He spoken only about His Supreme Fiat.’ But while I was thinking about this, my sweet Jesus came out from within my interior and told me:

“My daughter, it was necessary that I intertwine your person in the manifestations I have given you about my Divine Fiat: first, because each manifestation I gave you was bonds that I formed between you and my Divine Will; it was gifts and properties that I entrusted to you, such that, as you were endowed with them, the human family was being bound to the new acquisition of the Kingdom of It. If I did not intertwine you in the middle, it would be neither bonds nor gifts that I would give, but simple news; and therefore, in order to give you a manifestation about my Divine Will, I would wait for an act of yours, a little pain of yours, and even just one ‘I love You’ of yours, so as to take the occasion to speak to you. I wanted of your own in order to give you of my own, and be able to give you the great gift of my Divine Volition. And then, all Our external works are a transmission of Divine and human. In the very Creation there is a continuous transmission: Our Fiat created the heavens, It studded them with stars, but It called to life matter in order to do it; It created the sun, but It called to life the light and the heat as the material with which to form it. It created man; first I formed his statue made of earth; I infused the human soul in him, and then I created the life of my love over this soul; and then, my Divine Will transmitted Itself with his, in order to form Its Kingdom in the creature. There is not one thing come out of Us and created by Us in which there isn’t this transmission of human and Divine. In Our most beautiful works - the Creation, the Immaculate Queen, the Word Humanate/(the Incarnate Word) the human and the Divine are so bound together as to be inseparable; and so the heavens are brimful of God, narrating my glory and Our Power and Wisdom; the Immaculate Queen - my bearer; my Humanity - the Incarnate Word. Now, wanting to make my Divine Will known, after the first transmission I made in Eden, which was rejected from Me, in order to be able to put the Kingdom of my Divine Fiat out in the field again, it was necessary for me to form the second transmission. And how could I do it if I did not intertwine another creature, with bonds almost inseparable, in the knowledges, in the light and in the very Life of my Eternal Volition? And if I did not intertwine you in It, transmitting you into It, and It into you, you would not have felt within you either Its life or Its permanent light; nor would you have felt within you the necessity to love It and the yearning to know It more. And so, this is why I put you and Me in the condition, you of giving to Me, and I of giving to you; and in that reciprocal giving I would form the knowledge that I wanted to give you; and the transmission of my Divine Will with yours was realized, rendering you the conqueror of the great good that I was doing to you.”

Then, continuing in my abandonment in the Divine Fiat... which is such that, as much as I hasten to cross all of It, I can never manage; on the contrary, I see that much way is left to me to go within Its sea of light, to the point that I cannot even catch sight of where Its endless boundaries end. So, as much as I hasten, my journey will never end, I will always have something to do and way to go within the sea of the Eternal Volition. Then, my sweet Jesus added:

“My daughter, how great is the sea of my Will. It has no beginning and no end, therefore the littleness of the creature can neither cross it, nor embrace it all. However, one who lives in It finds herself on the way in the center of the sea, as it will never be given to her to go out from within its center, because she will never find either a shore or a boundary of It. On the contrary, in the front and in the back, on the right and on the left, she will find nothing but sea of Divine Will, and for each act that she emits in It, she is given a divine right back. In fact, since her act has been done within and together with my Divine Volition, with Divine Justice, It communicates to the soul the right of the Divine Light, the right of Its Sanctity, the right of Its Beauty, of Its Goodness, of Its Love. She lives in the sea of my Will by right - not as a stranger, but as the owner, because she has her acts changed into divine rights which have rendered her the conqueror of my Divine Will. And if you knew how much We delight, how happy We feel, in seeing the littleness of the creature living in the sea of Our Volition - not as a stranger, but as the owner, not as servant, but as queen; not as poor, but as immensely rich and rich in Our conquests which she has made in Our Fiat. Therefore, one who lives in Our Divine Volition will feel within herself, by right, the dominion of light, the dominion of sanctity, the dominion of beauty, and of making herself as beautiful as she wants. She has goodness at her disposal, love as the substance of her acts, my Divine Will as her own Life - and completely her own; and all this by divine right, given by Our very selves. Therefore, be attentive in multiplying your acts in Our adorable Fiat!”

Flowers which the Divine Will makes bloom. Continuous singing and murmuring of Love; delirious Love and dolorous Love. One who does the Divine Will forms the sea of refreshment for the Divine Love.

My littleness becomes lost and remains suffocated in the sea of sorrow of the privation of my beloved Jesus. Feeling in suffering, more than ever I was yearning for my nature to become undone, so as to get out of my prison and take flight toward my Celestial Fatherland. I would have wanted to go around everywhere in His Most Holy Will, and move Heaven and earth, so that, together with me, all might have a cry, a tear, a sigh, for this poor exiled one, so that all might ask for the end of my exile. But while I was pouring myself out in my bitternesses, my lovable Jesus came out from within my interior, and giving me a kiss and clasping me in His arms, He told me:

“My daughter, calm yourself, I am here within you; but while I am with you, I leave the work field free for my Divine Will. And since It has Its prime act in you, it happens that you perceive what It does within you, Its crafting, while you do not feel that I, who am inside of It, am already with It in Its work. In fact, I am inseparable from my Divine Will, and whatever It does, I do.

“Now, you must know that my Divine Will wants to make Its work, Its field of action and absolute dominion, completely Its own, not only in your soul, but also of your body. Over your sufferings It spreads Its kiss of light and of heat; with Its light It produces the seed; with Its heat It fecundates it and forms the germ; and nourishing this germ with continuous light and heat, It makes flowers of light bloom with such variety of colors, always animated by the light, because It can do nothing, whether big or small, in which It does not make Its light flow. These flowers are not like those of the earth which have no light and are subject to withering; they have perennial life, because they are nourished by the light of my Fiat, and the variety of their beauty is such and so great, that it will form the most beautiful ornament to the earth of your humanity.”

Having said this, He kept silent; and I fell immersed in the sea of the Divine Volition. Then my sweet Jesus continued:

“My daughter, the sea of Our Divinity always murmurs, without ever ceasing. But do you know what it says in its murmuring? ‘Love! Love toward the creature!’ And the ardor of Our Love is so great, that in Our continuous murmuring We overflow with Love, and We form such gigantic waves as to be able to drown Heaven and earth, and all creatures, all with Love. And seeing that they do not let themselves be filled completely with Our Love, with the desire to see creatures overflow with Our Love, the delirious Love forms within Us; and in Our delirium, putting the human ingratitude aside, and murmuring, We repeat more loudly: ‘Love! Always love to the one who denies and does not take Our Love to let herself be loved and give Us love.’

“Now, Our Love, rejected, takes the attitude of dolorous Love! But do you know who comes to give refreshment and calm to Our deliriums of love? Who soothes Our dolorous Love and makes It smile? The soul who lives in Our Divine Will. Our Will forms Its sea within the creature; Our sea and hers plunge together and one flows within the other, and - oh! how sweet is the murmuring of the creature within Our murmuring, repeating continuously: ‘Love! love! always love to my Creator, to my Eternal Life, to the One who loves me so much!’ See then, one who lives in Our Divine Fiat is Our refreshment for Our Love that devours Us, and forms the sweet sea for Our dolorous Love. Oh! prodigy of Our Divine Volition, that making use of Its Power, forms Its sea in the creature; and putting her in a contest with Us, not only makes her murmur continuously, but raises her so high that, plunging her into Our sea, when We feel drowned, devoured by Our Love and, unable to contain It, We feel the necessity of love, it makes Us overflow into the sea which Our Fiat has formed in the creature who lives in It. And she gives respite to Our deliriums of love, and refreshing Us with her love, she soothes Us. How not to love one who lives in Our Will?”

How the Divine Will wants absolute freedom in order to form Its Life. Different ways of acting of Our Lord.

My usual abandonment in the Supreme Fiat continues. I feel that It leaves me not a free minute; It wants everything for Itself, in a way that is ruling, but sweet and strong at the same time. It is so attractive, that the soul would, herself, let It put Its sweet chains on her, so as not to oppose even slightly what the Divine Volition would want to do over her and within her. So, while I was thinking about this, my lovable Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, do not be surprised if my Divine Will does not leave you free in anything - because It does not want to form simple acts and works, but life, and to one who must form a life continuous acts are needed; and if the continuous act ceases, the life cannot grow, nor be formed, nor have its true existence. And so this is why my Divine Will, wanting to form Its Divine Life in you, wants to be free, It wants absolute freedom, and with Its incessant act which It possesses by nature, It pours Itself over the creature, and extending with Its more than maternal wings of light, It invests each fiber of the heart, each heartbeat, breath, thought, word, work and step; It warms it, and with Its kiss of light It impresses Its Life in each act of the creature. And while destroying the human life, It constitutes Its very self as Divine Life within her. And since nothing but tenebrous acts can come out of the human will, my Will does not want to mix with it, and therefore It stands at attention to be able to form Its Life, all of light, in one who, freely, has given It freedom to reign. Therefore, Its attitude is admirable, It is all eyes so that nothing may escape It; and with unspeakable love, in order to see Its Life formed in the creature, It makes Itself heartbeat for each heartbeat, breath for each breath, work for each work, step for each step; even over the little trifles of the creature, It runs, It extends, It places the Power of Its Fiat, and creates Its vital act in them. Therefore, be attentive in receiving Its continuous act, because this is about life, and life has need of breath, of continuous heartbeat and of daily nourishment. Works are done and are put aside, nor do they need to be kept always in hand in order to be works; but life cannot be put aside - if the act ceases, it dies. Therefore, the continuous act of my Will is necessary for you - you, in receiving it, and my Will in giving it to you - so that Its Life in you may live, be formed and grow with Its divine fullness.”

After this, I was feeling oppressed in thinking about my poor existence, especially the state I find myself in. How many changes I had to go through, even on the part of Our Lord. But while I was thinking of this and other things, which it is not necessary to say on paper, my sweet Jesus, making Himself seen in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, my Love for you has been exuberant, and in order to lead you there where my Divine Will wanted you, I had to have different ways of acting in the periods of your life. In the first period, my Love and my acting toward you were so tender, sweet and gentle, and so jealous, that I wanted to do everything by Myself in your soul, and I wanted no one else, or that anyone might know what I was doing in you and saying to you. My jealousy was so great, that I put you in the impotence of opening yourself with anyone, not even with your confessor. I wanted to be alone, free, in my work, and I wanted no one else to meddle in it or be able to scrutinize what I was doing. I cared so much about this first period of your life - about my being with you one on one - that I can say that my Love used all the divine weapons; and waging war on you, I assailed you in every way so that you would not be able to resist. All this was necessary to my Love, because knowing what It wanted to do with you - no less than restoring the Creation, giving my Divine Will the rights to reign, making the new era arise in the midst of the human family - It used all arts and stratagems in order to obtain the intent.

“Now, after I became sure about you and I secured my work, my acting changed - I made you break the silence; and the ardor of my instructions and of my speaking was such and so great, that I can call you the cathedra of my Divine Will, the secretary of Its most intimate secrets, such that, as you were unable to contain them all within yourself, I commanded you to manifest them to my minister. And this acting of mine was necessary; otherwise, how would my Divine Will have become known? Now, my daughter, in this last period of your life, you feel another way of acting of mine. Do not be concerned, let Me do, and I will know how to give my work the last coat. Courage, then, you have the Divine Will in your power - what do you fear? Therefore, always forward in my Will.”

Work of Jesus for the Kingdom of the Divine Will.

While I was in the nightmare of the privation of my lovable Jesus, and most resigned, I wasn't even thinking that He might unveil Himself to my little soul, making His short little visit, to give Me His sip of life, so as not to let me succumb completely. All of a sudden, He moved in my interior, making Himself seen all intent and occupied on His work; and as He raised His eyes, sparkling with light, toward me, His eyes met with mine, and compassionating my affliction, He told me:

“My daughter, I am working in your soul continuously, and while working, I am finalizing, so that nothing may be missing, and solidifying, to give to my work the divine stability and immutability, and waiting with invincible patience for my work to become known, so that all may know my great Love, my great sacrifice and yours, and the great good which, if they want to, all can receive. What this is about is that this work of mine is the renewal of the whole Creation, it is the centralization of all Our works, it is to establish my Divine Will in the midst of creatures, operating and dominating in their midst. Whoever will know this, my work, will be a Kingdom of Mine. Therefore, I will have as many Kingdoms for as many as are the ones who will know what I have done and said in the littleness of your soul; and, fused together, they will form one single Kingdom. So, my silence is centralization of more intense work that I am doing in you. Therefore, if I speak to you, it is new work that I undertake, calling you together with the work, giving you knowledge of what we are doing, so as to place new shades of beauty, of magnificence and of happiness in the Kingdom of my Divine Will which creatures must possess; if I keep silent, I reorder, I harmonize, I confirm what I have done. Therefore, my silence must not be cause of affliction for you, but occasion for more work, in order to carry out the Kingdom of my Divine Will.”

How the Divine Will holds the primary act over all created things. It is like the head over the members.

I was thinking about the Supreme Fiat, and I thought to myself: ‘If the Divine Volition wants to form Its Kingdom in the midst of creatures, in what way, then, was the Divine Will in relationship with creatures before the coming of Our Lord upon earth, when He came, and after His coming?’ And my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, my Will, with Its immensity, has always been present in the midst of creatures, because, by Its own nature, there is not one point in which It is not present, and creatures cannot do without It. It would be like being unable to have or receive life; without my Divine Will all things would resolve into nothing. More so, since the prime act of all created things is my Divine Fiat; It is like the head to the members, and if one wanted to say: ‘I can live without head’, it would be impossible for him - the mere thinking it is the greatest of follies. However, reigning is one thing: it is to be recognized, loved, longed for, and to hang upon it like the members hang upon the head - this is reigning; whereas being in the midst of creatures is not reigning if one does not hang completely upon It.

“Now, before my coming upon earth, even though my Divine Will was present in the midst of creatures with Its immensity, the relationships that existed between It and them, however, were as if It lived in a foreign land, and they received from afar the scarce communications, the brief news, which announced to them my coming upon earth. What sorrow, for It to be in their midst, while they do not recognize It, and they keep It so far away from their wills, as if It were in a foreign land. With my coming, since I possessed It as life and my Humanity recognized It, loved It and let It reign, through Me It drew closer to the creatures, and the relationships It had with them were as if It lived no longer in a foreign land, but in their own lands. But since they did not know It, nor did they give It dominion in order to let It reign, it cannot be said that my Divine Volition formed Its Kingdom. Therefore, my coming upon earth served to draw the two wills, human and Divine, closer to each other, and to place them in intimate relations, and to increase the news in order to make It known; so much so, that I taught the ‘Our Father’, making them say: ‘Your Kingdom come, your Will be done on earth as It is in Heaven.’ If my Will does not live on earth as It does in Heaven, it cannot be said that It has Its Kingdom in the midst of creatures. And therefore, in the time of Its Kingdom, It will be present not only in their midst, but inside each one of them as perennial Life; and in order to come to this, It must be recognized - how It is like head and primary life of each creature; and because this head is not recognized, Its Strength, its Sanctity, Its Beauty, does not flow to the members, nor can it let Its noble and divine blood flow in their veins, and therefore the life of Heaven cannot be seen in creatures. So, this is why I love so much that my Divine Will be known - knowledge will make love arise; and feeling loved and longed for, It will feel drawn to come to reign in the midst of creatures.”

How the Kingdom of the Divine Will and that of Redemption have always proceeded together. How Jesus formed the materials and the buildings, and nothing else is needed but the peoples.

I was doing my round in the Creation, to follow all the acts of the Divine Will, which It had done in It; and as I arrived at the point in which the Supreme Being created the Virgin, I paused to consider the great portent from which Redemption had Its beginning. And my sweet Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, the Redemption and the Kingdom of my Divine Will have always proceeded together. In order for Redemption to come, a creature was needed who would live of Divine Will, as Adam innocent lived in Eden before sinning; and this, with justice, with wisdom, for Our decorum, so that the ransom of fallen man would be based on the principle of how the order of Our wisdom created man. Had there not been a creature in whom my Divine Fiat had Its Kingdom, Redemption could be a dream, not a reality. In fact, had there not been Its total dominion in the Virgin, the Divine Will and the human would have remained as though scowling at each other, and at a distance from humanity, therefore Redemption would have been impossible. But, on the contrary, the Virgin Queen bent Her will under the Divine Will, and She let It reign freely. Because of this, the two wills fused, they reconciled; the human volition underwent the continuous act of the Divine Volition, and it let It act without ever opposing itself. So, Its Kingdom had Its Life, Its vigor and Its full dominion.

“See, then, how the Redemption and the Kingdom of my Fiat started together! Even more, I could say that the Kingdom of my Fiat started before, to then continue together, both one and the other. And just as, because a man and a woman withdrew from my Divine Will, began the kingdom of sin and of all the miseries of the human family, in the same way, because a woman let my Fiat reign, and by virtue of It was made Queen of Heaven and earth, united with the Eternal Word made Man, Redemption began, not excluding even the Kingdom of my Divine Will. Even more, everything that was done by Me and by the height of the Sovereign Queen of Heaven, is nothing but materials and buildings which prepare Its Kingdom. My Gospel can be, called vowels, consonants which, acting as trumpeters, called the attention of the peoples to await some more important lessons which were to bring them a good greater than Redemption Itself. My very pains, my death and my Resurrection, confirmation of Redemption, are preparation for the Kingdom of my Divine Will. They were lessons more sublime, and made everyone stand at attention, awaiting yet higher lessons. And this I have already done, after so many centuries - which are the many manifestations I have made to you about my Divine Will, and that which I have made known to you more: how it wants to come to reign in the midst of creatures, to give back to them the right of Its Kingdom which they had lost, to lavish upon them all the goods and all the happinesses It possesses.

“So, as you see, the materials are already prepared, the buildings exist - the knowledges about my Will which, more than sun, must illuminate Its Kingdom and have vaster buildings be raised from the material formed by Me. So, nothing else is needed but the peoples that must populate this Kingdom of my Fiat; and the peoples will form and will enter as the knowledges about It are published. See then: two creatures which go down from the Divine Will and give the field of action to the human will form the ruin of the human generations; two other creatures - the Queen of Heaven who lives in my Divine Fiat by grace, and my Humanity who lives in It by nature - form the salvation and the restoration, and give back the Kingdom of my Divine Will. And just as it cannot be doubted that Redemption has come, since one is connected with the other, with certainty will then the Kingdom of my Divine Fiat arise; it may be a matter of time at the most.”

On hearing this, I said: ‘My Love, how can this Kingdom of your Will come? One can see no change; it seems that the world does not stop in its vertiginous race of evil.’ And Jesus continued, saying:

“What do you know of what I must do, and of how I can overwhelm everything so that the Kingdom of the Divine Will may have Its Life in the midst of creatures? If everything is decided, why do you doubt about it?”

Difference between one who operates in a saintly way in the human order, and one who operates in the Divine Will. How, without It, one has the strength of a child. How all evil is of the human will.

My poor mind keeps going around and within the Supreme Fiat, and - oh! how many surprises, how many wonders of this Will so Holy. My little intelligence gets lost within Its immensely vast sea, and many things I feel incapable of narrating, nor do I have the terms to do it, and therefore I feel like someone who ate a food or saw something beautiful, and does not know what they are called. If the Divine Volition did not make a prodigy in making me say what It manifests, how many more things would I leave inside Its very sea, unable to say anything. So, while I felt dissolved in the Divine Fiat, my always lovable Jesus, making Himself felt in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, what difference between those who operate the virtues in a saintly way, but in the human order, and one who operates the virtues in the divine order of my Divine Will. As the first ones practice the virtues, these remain separated among themselves, in such a way that the diversity of their acts appears - one virtue appears as patience, another as obedience, a third one as charity; each of them has its distinction, unable to fuse together so as to be able form one single act, which gives of the divine and embraces eternity and infinity. On the other hand, for one who operates in my Divine Will, Its light has the communicative and unifying virtue, such that, fusing together, because they are all done within the source of Its light, they form one single act with innumerable effects, such as to embrace the very Creator with the infinity of its light. Symbol of this is the sun: because it is one, because it possesses the source of light that is never extinguished, it embraces the earth, and with its innumerable effects it gives all colors and communicates the life of its light to everyone and to everything. The unifying strength possesses the communicative virtue, in such a way that, if they want to, all can take a good that is placed at everyone’s disposal. On the other hand, one who operates in the human order is symbolized by the lights of the low world: even though there are many of them, they do not have the virtue of dispelling the darkness of the night and of forming full daylight, or of embracing the whole earth with such great multiplicity of light. Therefore, they can be called personal, local light, and at time and circumstance. Oh! if all knew the great secret of operating in my Divine Volition, they would compete so as not to let anything escape them which would not pass from within Its most pure light.”

I continued to follow the Divine Will, and my sweet Jesus added:

“My daughter, the creature without my Will is like a child who has no strength to be able to sustain a weight, or to do works so useful as to allow him to support, himself, his little existence. And if one wanted to force him to lift a heavy object or to sustain a work, the child, seeing himself impotent and without strength, maybe would try, but in seeing that he cannot even move that object, nor sustain that work, the poor little one would burst into tears and would do nothing about it; and in order to put him in feast it would be enough to give him a candy. On the other hand, one who possesses my Divine Will has the strength of an adult man - or rather, the divine strength; and if he were told to lift the heavy object, without becoming troubled, he takes it as if it were nothing; while the poor little one would remain crushed under it. If one wants him to sustain a work, he will put himself in feast because of the gain and the profit he will be given, and if one wanted to give him a candy, he would despise it and would say: 'Give me the just profit for my work, for I must live from it.' See then, one who has my Divine Will has sufficient strength for anything, so, everything is easy for her, even suffering, as she feels strong, she looks at it as a new gain. Why are many unable to bear anything, and it seems that a child's weakness follows them? It is the strength of my Divine Will that is missing - this is the cause of all evils. Therefore, be attentive, my daughter, never to go out of my Divine Will."

Then, I continued to do my acts in the Divine Fiat, and as I arrived at the point when It called to life, to daylight, the Sovereign Queen of Heaven, I thought to myself: 'In creating the Most Holy Virgin, God not only enriched Her beautiful soul with many privileges, but Her nature also He must have transformed in order to render it as pure and holy as it is.' And my beloved Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

"My daughter, there was nothing to add to Her nature, because it was not the human nature that sinned, but the human will. In fact, the human nature was at its place, just as it came out of Our creative hands, therefore We used that same nature of other creatures in creating the Virgin. What contaminated itself in man was his will; and since this human nature was animated by this rebellious will, which dwelled in the human nature, it participated and remained contaminated. So, once the Divine Will and the human are placed in harmony, giving dominion and regime to the Divine, as it is wanted by Us, the human nature loses the sad effects and remains as beautiful as it came out of Our creative hands. Now, in the Queen of Heaven, all Our work was on Her human will, which received with joy the dominion of Ours; and Our Will, finding no opposition on Her part, operated prodigies of graces, and by virtue of my Divine Volition, She remained sanctified and did not feel the sad effects and the evils which the other creatures feel. Therefore, my daughter, once the cause is removed, the effects end. Oh! if my Divine Will enters into creatures and reigns in them, It will banish all evils in them, and will communicate to them all goods - to soul and body."

When God decides to do works which must serve for all, in His ardor of love He puts everyone aside. How the Supreme Being possesses the inexhaustible vein.

I continue in my usual abandonment in the Divine Fiat; I feel It as though centralized over my little existence; I feel Its Immensity, Its Power, Its creative and enrapturing Strength, which is such that, as It envelops me everywhere, it is not given to me to be able to resist It. But I feel happy with this, my weakness, and voluntarily I want to be weak in order to feel all the Power of the Divine Volition over my littleness. But while I was feeling sunken within It, my sweet Jesus, making Himself felt and seen, told me:

"My daughter, when Our Divinity decides to do universal works, with the soul who is chosen as the first, to whom We entrust a work that must serve for the good of all, the ardor of Our Love is so great, that We put everything and everyone aside, as if no one else existed, and We centralize the whole of Our Divine Being over her, and We give her so much of Our own, to the point of forming seas around her and of drowning her with all Our goods. And We want to give so much, because the ardor of Our Love leads Us to never stop, so as to see in her Our work accomplished, through which everything and everyone can enjoy and take the universal goods which Our work encloses. With this, it is not that We do not see what the other creatures do, because Our All-seeingness and Immensity conceals nothing from Us - We are aware of everything, and from Us come the life and helps for all - but We act in such a way, and behave as if nothing else existed.

“So We acted in Creation. After having formed heavens, suns, earth, ordering everything with such harmony and magnificence as to be stunning, in creating man, We centralized Ourselves over him, and the ardor of Our Love was so great, it overflowed so strongly, that forming a veil around Us, It made everything disappear for Us - while We saw everything - and We occupied Ourselves only with man. What did We not pour into him? Everything. While in the Creation there was the magnificence and beauty of Our works, in man there was not only the centralization of all Our works fused in him, but, what’s more, the settling of Our Life. Our Love overflowed, It gave Itself no rest, It wanted to give always, because It saw in him all the human generations.

“So We acted in the Queen of Heaven. Everything was put aside - all the evil of the other creatures, and We occupied Ourselves only with Her, and We poured so much, that She was the Full of Grace, because She was to be the universal Mother, and cause of the Redemption of all.

“So We are acting with you, for the Kingdom of Our Divine Will - We are behaving as if nothing else existed. If We wanted to look at what the other creatures are doing, the evils they commit, the ingritudes, the Kingdom of Our Will would remain always in Heaven; not only this, but We would not even feel disposed to tell a single truth about Our Supreme Fiat. But Our Love, forming Its veil of love over all the evils of creatures, puts everything aside for Us, and overflowing strongly, not only makes Us speak about It, but, what’s more, makes Us decide to give the great gift of the Kingdom of Our Fiat to creatures. When Our Love is dead set on something, it seems It does not reason, and It wants to win by dint of love, not of reason; therefore, as if It saw and heard nothing, at any cost It wants to give what It has decided. So, this is why It holds nothing back, and It pours the whole of Itself out over the creature who is chosen for the great universal good that must descend for the good of all human generations. And this is the reason for the so much giving and saying to you - these are the ardors of Our Love, which wants to hold nothing back; It wants to give everything as long as the Kingdom of the Divine Will may reign upon earth.”

Then, my mind continued to think about many things regarding the Divine Will; and my sweet Jesus added:

“My daughter, Our Supreme Being is inexhaustible vein - We are never exhausted, nor can We say that We have finished giving, because as much as We give, We have always something to give, and while We give one good, another one arises to put itself on the way in order to give itself to creatures. But as inexhaustible as We are, We do not give Our goods, Our graces, nor do We tell Our truths to one who is not disposed, to one who does not pay attention to listen to Us in order to team Our sublime lessons and model her life according to Our teachings, in such a way that We may see Our teachings written in her, and see her enriched with Our gifts. If We do not see this, Our gifts do not depart from Us, nor does Our voice reach the hearing of the creature; and if she hears anything at all, it is as though of a voice that comes from afar, such that she is unable to comprehend clearly what We want to tell her. Therefore, Our inexhaustible vein is arrested by the lack of dispositions of creatures. But do you know who gives the true dispositions to the soul? Our Divine Will. It empties her of everything, It reorders her, It disposes her in an admirable way - in such a way that Our inexhaustible vein never ceases to give and to let her hear Its sublime lessons. Therefore, let yourself be always dominated by my Divine Fiat, and Our inexhaustible vein will never cease to pour itself over you; and We will have the contentment of making new graces, new gifts, and lessons never before heard, arise from Our Divine Being.”

The principal means in order to make the Divine Will reign: the knowledges. Difference between one who lives in the Divine Will and one who lives in the human will.

I was continuing my acts in the Divine Volition, and I thought to myself: ‘How can the Divine Will come to reign? What will be the means, the helps, the graces in order to dispose the creatures to let themselves be dominated by It? And my always beloved Jesus, moving in my interior, all goodness and tenderness, told me:

“My daughter, the principal means in order to make my Divine Fiat reign upon earth are the knowledges about It. The knowledges will form the ways, will dispose the earth to become Its Kingdom; they will form the cities, will act as telegraphs, as telephone, as postal service, as trumpeters, in order to communicate, city to city, creature to creature, nation to nation, the news, the important knowledges about my Divine Will. And the knowledges about It will cast into the hearts the hope, the desire to receive a good so great. From here one cannot escape: a good cannot be wanted nor received if it is not known, and if it were received without knowing it, it is as if it were not received. Therefore, the foundations, the hope, the certainty of the Kingdom of my Divine Will will be formed by the knowledges about It. This is why I have told so many of them - because they will be the riches, the nourishment, and the new suns, the new heavens, which the peoples of the Kingdom of my Volition will possess.

“Now, when the knowledges about my Fiat will make their way, disposing those who will have the good of knowing them, my more than paternal goodness, in order to show the excess of my Love, will place my very Humanity, all the good I did, in each creature, at her disposal, in a way that they will feel such strength and grace as to let themselves be dominated by my Divine Will. And my Humanity will be in the midst of the children of my Kingdom, like Heart in their midst, for the decorum and the honor of my Fiat, and as antidote, grace and defense from all the evils which the human will has produced. The ardor of my Love that wants It to reign is such and so great, that I will perform such excesses of love as to win the most rebellious wills.”

On hearing this, I remained surprised, and as if I wanted to cast a doubt on what Jesus had told me. And He, resuming His speaking, added:

“My daughter, why do you doubt about it? Am I perhaps not Free to do what I want and to give Myself as I please to give Myself? Is my Humanity perhaps not the first firstborn Brother who possessed the Kingdom of my Divine Will, and, as the first Brother, I have the right to communicate the right to possess It to the other brothers, placing my very self at their disposal in order to give them a good so great? Am I not the Head of the whole human family, who can make the virtue of the Head flow in their members and make the vital act of my Divine Will descend into the members? And besides, is it perhaps not my Humanity that dwells in you continuously, that gives you such strength and grace for wanting to live only of my Will, and makes you feel such peace and happiness, as to eclipse your human will, in a way that it itself feels happy to live as though without life under the empire of my Divine Will? Therefore, what I need is that they know the knowledges about my Fiat - the rest will come by itself.”

After this, I continued in my abandonment in the Divine Fiat. It seemed to me that in it there are no stops, there is always something to do - but a doing that does not tire; on the contrary, it fortifies, it makes one happy and rejoice in one’s long journey. But while I was thinking about this, my Highest Good, Jesus, added:

“My daughter, one who lives in my Divine Volition always walks, because she has the round of eternity at her disposal, which never ends. And by never stopping, she always takes; and if she stopped, one little stop, one step less, would cost her the loss of a divine step and happiness. In fact, my Fiat is an act ever new of happiness, of grace and of indescribable and unreachable beauty, and if the soul walks, she takes, while if she stops, she does not take, because not having followed, step by step, the path of my Divine Volition, she has known nothing of the happiness and beauty which my Will has issued in that step. And who can tell you the great difference between one who lives in my Divine Will and one who lives in the human will? One who lives in the human will stops constantly, her round is so short that if she wants to extend her step, she finds no place on which to put her foot. At each step she takes, she gets now a displeasure, now a disillusion, and she feels one more weakness, which drags her even to sin. Oh! how brief is the circle of the human will - full of miseries, of precipices and of bitternesses. Yet, they love so much to live in its circle! What madness, what foolishness to be deplored!”

Magnificence of the Creation. The black speck of the human will.

I was doing my round in the Divine Volition, and my sweet Jesus, drawing me outside of myself, made me see the whole Creation in the act of coming out of His creative hands. Each thing carried the mark of the creative hand of its Maker, therefore everything was perfect, of an enchanting beauty. Each created thing was animated by vivid light, either as property of nature given to it by God, or indirectly, communicated by one who possessed it. Everything was light and beauty. But amid so much light and enchantment of beauty, one could see a black speck, which appeared so ugly, especially being in the midst of so many works, so beautiful, majestic and refulgent. This black speck aroused terror and compassion, because it seemed that, in its own nature, God had not created it black, but beautiful; even more, it once was a work of the most beautiful created by the Supreme Being.

But while I was seeing this, my always lovable Jesus told me:

“My daughter, everything that was done by Us in Creation remains always in the act of being done, as if We were continuously in the act of doing It. This is Our creative Strength, that when It does a work, It never withdraws - It remains inside of it as perennial act of life; It forms in it Its continuous heartbeat and Its uninterrupted breath, therefore, while it was done once, It remains within it in act of doing it always. This is almost symbolized by the human nature which, while it was formed once, beginning its life with the heartbeat and the breathing, by necessity of living it must breathe and palpitate continuously, otherwise the life ceases. We are inseparable from Our works, and We like them so much that We delight in doing them continuously, and this is why they maintain themselves majestic, beautiful, fresh, as if, there and then, they were receiving the beginning of their life. Look at them - how beautiful they are, they are the narrators of Our Divine Being and Our perennial glory. But amid so much glory of Ours, look - there is the black speck of the human will. Loving man with greater love, We endowed him with a free will, but, abusing, he wanted to breathe and palpitate in his human will, not with Ours, and therefore it changes continuously to the extent of blackening, losing its beauty and freshness, and it reaches the point of losing the Divine Life in its human nature.

“So, who will put to flight the thick darkening of the human will? Who will give back to it the freshness, the, beauty of its creation? The acts done in Our Divine Will. They will be light which will dispel the darkness, and heat which, molding it with its heat, will destroy in it all the bad humors that have rendered it ugly. The acts done in my Will will be the rebound to all the human acts done with the human will. This rebound will restore the freshness, the beauty, the order, as the human will was created. Therefore, many acts are needed, done by the creature in Our Divine Volition, in order to prepare the counter-poison, the beauty, the freshness, the act opposite to everything evil that the human will has done. Then will Our works in Creation appear all beautiful; the black speck will disappear, and it will convert into a point, the most luminous one, in the midst of the magnificence of Our created works, and Our Divine Will will take the dominion of all, and will reign on earth as It does in Heaven. Therefore, be attentive to operate in my Divine Will, because for each human act, the divine act is needed which, with empire, knocks down, purifies and embellishes the evil done by the human will.”“

How Jesus created the seed of the Divine Fiat in forming the ‘Our Father’. The virtue that the light possesses.

I was thinking about the Divine Fiat and how Its Kingdom could ever be realized upon earth. It seemed impossible to me - first, because there is no one who occupies himself with making It known, and if anything is said or planned, it all resolves into words, while facts are - oh! how far away, and who knows which generation will have the good of knowing what regards the knowledges about the Divine Will and Its Kingdom; second, it seems to me that the earth is unprepared, and I believe that in order to have such a great good - that the Kingdom of the Divine Will, Its knowledges, dominate the earth - who knows how many prodigies will precede it! But while I was thinking about this and other things, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior, and told me:

“My daughter, you must know that my coming upon earth and everything I did in Redemption, my very Death and Resurrection, was nothing other than preparatory act for the Kingdom of my Divine

Will; and when I formed the 'Our Father', I formed the seed of the Kingdom of my Divine Fiat in the midst of creatures. And if, when I speak, I create and I make the greatest, most beautiful and marvelous works come out of nothing, much more so when, with the empire of my speaking prayer, I have the virtue of creating what I want. Therefore, the seed of the Kingdom of my Will was created by Me in the act of my praying, as I formed and recited the 'Our Father'. And if I taught it to the Apostles, it was so that the Church, by reciting it, might water and fecundate this seed, and they might dispose themselves to model their lives according to the dispositions of my Divine Fiat.

"My knowledges about It, my many manifestations, have developed this seed; and since they have been accompanied by the acts done by you in my Divine Will, so many little grains have formed as to form a great mass, from which each one can take his part - always if they want to - in order to live of the Life of the Divine Will. Therefore, everything is there, my daughter - the most necessary acts. There is the seed created by Me, because if there is no seed, it is useless to hope for the plant; but if the seed is there, it takes work, the will of wanting the fruit of that seed; and one is sure of having the plant, because, by possessing the seed, one has in his power the life of the plant of that seed. There are those who water this seed in order to make it grow - each 'Our Father' that is recited serves to water it; there are my manifestations in order to make it known. All that is needed are those who would offer themselves to be the criers - and with courage, without fearing anything, facing sacrifices in order to make it known. So, the substantial part is there - the greatest is there; the minor is needed - that is, the superficial part, and your Jesus will know how to make His way in order to find the one who will accomplish the mission of making known my Divine Will in the midst of the peoples. Therefore, on your part, do not place any obstacle - do what you call, and I will do the rest. You do not know how I will overwhelm things and will dispose the circumstances, and this is why you reach the point of doubting that my Fiat will be known and Its Kingdom will have Its Life upon earth."

Then, I abandoned all of myself in the Divine Volition in order to follow Its acts, and my sweet Jesus added:

"My daughter, one who places himself in the unity of my Will, places himself in the light; and just as the light has the virtue of descending down below and of laying itself like a mantle of light over each thing it invests, so it has the virtue of rising up high and of investing with its light that which is up high. In the same way, one who places himself in the Light of my Fiat, in Its unity of Light with his acts descends down below to all generations, and with his acts of light he invests everyone in order to do good to all; and he rises up high and invests the whole of Heaven to glorify all. Therefore, in my Divine Will the soul acquires the right to be able to offer the Light of the Eternal Fiat to all, through the gift of her acts multiplied into as many as are those who want to receive It."

Why does the sun form the day? Because it is an act of Divine Will.

My days are most bitter because of the privation of my highest and only Good, Jesus. I can say that my continuous food is the intense sorrow of being without the One who formed the whole of my life down here. How painful it is to remember that I once would breathe Jesus, the heartbeat of Jesus would palpitate in my heart, Jesus would circulate in my veins, I would feel the nourishment of Jesus feeding my works, my steps. In sum, I felt Jesus in everything; and now everything is over, and has changed for me into nourishment of sorrow. Oh! God, what pain, to breathe and palpitate the intense sorrow of being without the One who was more than my own life, such that only the abandonment in the Fiat gives me the strength to bear a sorrow so great.

But while I was feeling this, my sweet Jesus, coming out of my interior and clasping me in His arms, told me:

“My daughter, courage, do not lose heart too much. Tell Me: who forms the day? The sun, doesn’t it? And why does it form the day? Because it is an act of my Divine Will. Now, as the earth rotates, the side that moves away from the sun remains in the dark and forms the night, and the poor earth remains gloomy, as though under a mantle of sadness, in such a way that all feel the reality of the night, and the great change that the earth undergoes by having lost the beneficial sphere of the light - that is, the act of my Divine Will which created the sun and preserves it with Its continuous act. In the same way, as long as the soul goes around under the continuous act of my Will, it is always full daylight for her - night, darkness, sadness, do not exist. The continuous act of my Fiat, more than sun, smiles at her, it keeps her in feast; but if she wanders about within her human will, more than earth, she remains in the dark, in the nighttime of her human will which, lording over the soul, produces darkness, doubts, sadness, such as to form the true real night for the poor creature. Who can tell you the great good, the most refulgent day, that an act of my Divine Will produces over the creature? With Its continuous act, It produces all goods, and happiness in time and eternity. Therefore, be attentive, enclose all of yourself within a single act of my Divine Will - never go out of It, if you want to live happy and have in your power the Life of the light and the day that never sets. An act of my Divine Will is everything for the creature; with Its continuous act that never ceases and never changes, more than tender mother, It keeps one who abandons herself in Its act of light clasped to Its breast; and nourishing her with light, It raises her as a birth from Itself, noble and holy, and it keeps her sheltered within Its very light.”

The birth of the Virgin was the rebirth of all humanity.

My poor mind was wandering in the immense sea of the Divine Fiat, in which everything is in act, as if there were no past and no future, but everything present and everything in act. So, whatever thing it wants to find of the works of its Creator in the Divine Will, my little soul finds it as if It were just doing it, in act. And since I was thinking about the birth of my Celestial Mama, to give Her my poor homages, and I was calling all Creation together with me to sing the praises of the Sovereign Queen, my sweet Jesus told me:

“My daughter, I too, together with you and with all Creation, want to sing the praises of the birth of the Height of my Mama.

“You must know that this birth enclosed within itself the rebirth of the whole human family, and all Creation felt reborn in the birth of the Queen of Heaven. Everything exulted with gladness they felt happy to have their Queen. Up to that moment, they had felt like a people without its Queen, and in their muteness they were waiting for that happy day in order to break their silence, and say: 'Glory, love, honor to She who comes into our midst as our Queen. We shall no longer be without defense, without anyone who dominates us, without feast, because She has arisen, who forms our everlasting glory.' This Celestial Baby Girl, by keeping Our Divine Will intact within Her soul, without ever doing Her own, reacquired all the rights of Adam innocent before Her Creator, and the sovereignty over all Creation. Therefore, all felt themselves being reborn in Her, and We saw in this Holy Virgin, in Her little Heart, all the seeds of the human generations. So, through Her, humanity reacquired the rights lost, and this is why Her birth was the most beautiful, the most glorious birth. From Her very birth, She enclosed within Her maternal little Heart, as though in-between two wings, all generations, as children reborn in Her virginal Heart, so as to warm them, keep them sheltered, and raise them and nourish them with the blood of Her maternal Heart. This is the reason why this tender Celestial Mother loves creatures so much - because all are reborn in Her, and She feels the life of Her children within Her Heart. What can Our Divine Will not do wherever It reigns and has Its Life? It encloses everything and everyone, and makes one the provider of good to all. So, all feel, under Her blue mantle, the maternal wing of their Celestial Mother, and they find in Her maternal Heart their little place in which to take cover.

"Now, my daughter, one who lives in my Divine Will renews her rebirth and redoubles the rebirths for all human generations. When my Supreme Will lives inside a heart and lays the fullness of Its endless light within it, It centralizes everything and everyone, It does everything, It renews everything, It gives back all that, for centuries upon centuries, It has not been able to give through the other creatures. So, this creature can be called the dawn of the day, the daybreak that calls the sun, the sun that gladdens all the earth, illuminates it, warms it, and with its wings of light more than tender mother, embraces everything, fecundates everything; and with its kiss of light, it gives the most beautiful shades to flowers, the most delicious sweetness to fruits, maturity to all plants. Oh! if my Divine Will reigned in the midst of creatures, how many prodigies would It not operate in their midst? Therefore, be attentive; everything you do in my Divine Fiat is a rebirth that you have in It, and to be reborn in It means to be reborn in the divine order, to be reborn in the light, to be reborn in the sanctity, in the love, in the beauty. And in each act of my Will, the human will undergoes a death, dying to all evils, and it lives again to all goods."

How the sun returns every day to visit the earth; symbol of the Sun of the Divine Will. The germ of the Divine Will in the act of the creature.

I was repeating my acts in the Divine Volition, to follow Its acts in all of Its works; and I thought to myself: 'Why repeat always the same acts? What glory can I give to my Creator?' And my sweet Jesus, coming out from within my interior, clasped me in His arms to strengthen me, and told me:

"My daughter, the repetition of your acts in the Divine Fiat breaks Its isolation and generates company for all the acts that my Divine Will does. So, It no longer feels alone, but has one to whom It can tell Its pains, Its joys, and entrust Its secrets. And besides, an act continuously repeated is divine virtue, and has the virtue of generating goods that do not exist, of reproducing them and communicating them to all. Only a continuous act is capable of forming life and of giving life.

“Look at the sun, symbol of my Divine Will, that never leaves the creature and never tires of doing its continuous act of light. Every day it returns to visit the earth, always giving its goods; it returns to trace the goods already given with its eye of light - and many times it does not find them. It does not find the flower, which it colored with the beauty of its shades, and perfumed by just touching it with its hands of light. It does not find the fruit to which, pouring its own self out, it communicated its sweetness, and which it matured with its heat. How many things the sun does not find, after it has poured its very self out with many acts, more than maternal, in order to form the most beautiful flowerings, and form so many plants, and raise so many fruits with its breath of light and of heat - because man, snatching them from the earth, has used them to nourish his life. Oh! if the sun had capacity of reason and of sorrow, it would turn into tears of light and of burning fire, to cry over each thing it formed and does not find. And, in its sorrow, it would not change its will by ceasing to communicate its goods to the earth in order to form again what was taken away from it, because, no matter how much wrong they might do to it, its nature is to always give its act of light in which all goods are present, without ever ceasing. Such is my Divine Will; more than sun, It pours Its own self out over each creature, to give her continuous life. It can be said that It invests the creatures with Its omnipotent breath of light and of love, It forms them and raises them. And while the sun gives place to the night, my Divine Will never leaves on their own the dear births that came from it molded, vivified, formed, raised with Its breath and burning kiss of light. There is not one instant in which my Divine Will leaves the creature, and pouring Itself over her, does not communicate to her Its various shades of beauty, Its infinite sweetness, Its inextinguishable love. What does my Divine Will not do for her and give to her? Everything. Yet, It is not recognized nor loved; nor do they preserve within themselves the goods It communicates to them. What sorrow! While It pours Its own self out over each creature, It does not find the goods It communicates; and, in Its sorrow, It continues Its act of light over them without ever ceasing. So, this is why one who must live in my Fiat must have her repeated and continuous acts, so as to keep It company and soothe It in Its intense sorrow.”

After this, I continued to cross the endless sea of the Divine Fiat, and as I emitted my little acts in the Eternal Volition, many germs formed in my soul; and the seed of these germs was of light of Divine Will - varied with many colors, but all animated with light. And my sweet Jesus, making Himself seen, was breathing on those germs, one by one; and as He breathed on them., those germs would grow so much as to touch the divine immensity. I remained surprised in seeing the goodness of my Highest Good, Jesus, taking those germs in His most holy hands, with so much love, in order to breathe on them, and then placing them all in order in my soul. And looking at me with love, He told me:

“My daughter, wherever there is the creative force of my Divine Will, my divine breath has the power to render the acts of the creature immense. In fact, as the creature operates in my Fiat, the creative force enters her act, placing in it the fount of the divine immensity; and the little act of the creature converts, one into fount of light, another into fount of love, others into founts of goodness, of beauty, of sanctity. In sum, the more acts she does, the more divine founts she acquires; and they grow so much, as to spread within the immensity of her Creator. It happens as to the yeast, which has the virtue of fermenting the flour, as long as, in forming the bread, one puts in it the little yeast as the germ of fermentation. But if one does not put the yeast, even though the flour is the same, the bread will never come out leavened, but unleavened. Such is my Divine Will - more than yeast that casts the divine fermentation into the human act, and the human act becomes divine act. And when I find the germ of my Divine Will in the act of the creature, I delight in breathing on her act, and I raise it so much as to render it immense; more so, since We can call that act 'Our act' - 'Our Will operating in the creature.'"

How Jesus alone has sufficient words in order to speak about the Divine Will. How the creature can say: "I possess everything." How the Divine Will forms Its Paradise wherever It reigns.

My little intelligence keeps wandering freely within the immense sea of the Divine Volition, and it can just barely retain little drops of the many truths, and innumerable beauties, that belong to It. Oh! unreachable, lovable and adorable Will - who will ever be able to say about You the All that You are, and to narrate your long and eternal story? Neither Angels nor Saints will have sufficient words in order to speak about You; and much less do I, who am the tiny little ignorant one, who can only babble about a Will so Holy.

So, while my mind was wandering in the Divine Fiat, my lovable Jesus, making Himself seen, told me:

"My daughter, only your Jesus can have sufficient words in order to speak to you about my Eternal Volition, because, by divine nature, I am the Will Itself. But I must limit Myself in speaking, because your small capacity cannot embrace and comprehend and enclose all that belongs to It, and I have to content Myself with making known to you little drops of It, because your created mind cannot contain Its immense and uncreated sea; and these little drops I change into words, in order to adapt Myself to your small capacity, and so make you comprehend something about my indescribable and immeasurable Fiat. It is enough to say that my Divine Will is everything, encloses everything, if even just a coma of all that exists were missing in It, It could not be called the All.

"Therefore, in order to enter into my Fiat, the creature must empty herself of everything, reduce herself to that point as when her Creator, calling her from nothing, gave her existence - to the way in which the creative power of my Divine Will created her, beautiful, empty of everything, and filled only with the Life of the One who had created her. In the same way, as the soul lets herself be invested again by the creative power of my Fiat, Its light and Its heat will empty her and will make her again beautiful, just as when she came out of nothing, and will admit her to live in the All of my Will. And, in It, the creature will breathe the All, she will feel herself all sanctity, all love, all beauty, because the All of my Divine Fiat will keep her within Its sea, in which the All will be at her disposal. Nothing will be given to her by half or in small proportions, because One who is the All is able to give all of Himself, not by measure; and only in my Will can the creature say: 'I possess everything even more, the All is mine.' On the other hand, one who does not live in my Divine Will, since her being is not under the empire of a creative power, cannot possess all the fullness of a Divine Life, nor will she feel herself all filled to the brim of her soul with light, with sanctity, with love, to the point of overflowing outside and forming seas around her, to the extent of feeling that everything is hers. At the most, she may feel small divine particles, the impression of grace, of love, of sanctity - but not everything. And so, this is why only one who lives in my Fiat is the only fortunate one to be preserved in the prodigy of her creation and to have the rights to possess and to live in the abundance of the goods of her Creator."

After this, I continued my acts in the Divine Will, and my lovable Jesus added:

“My daughter, one who lives in my Fiat will have the great good of possessing a Divine Will on earth, which will be for her the bearer of imperturbable peace, of immutable firmness. My Fiat will raise her in a divine manner, in each act she does, It will give her a sip of Our Divine Being, so that there might be no quality of Ours which is not centralized in this creature. Not only this, but my Volition will delight in enclosing in her my Divine Will, bearer of happiness, with which It makes all the Blessed happy, so that not even this may be missing in one who lives in It; in such a way that, when she comes into Our Celestial Fatherland, she will bring her paradise of joy and of happiness, all divine, as the triumph of her having lived in Our Fiat. And while she comes to find yet more surprising beatitudes, because my Will is never exhausted and has always something to give, the creature will find her own joys and the happiness which my Will enclosed in her when she was on earth. Therefore, rise ever more in It, expand your boundaries, because the more of Divine Will you take on earth, the more Our Life will grow in you, and the more happiness and joys you will enclose in your soul. And the more of them you will bring, the more you will be given in Heaven, in Our Celestial Fatherland.”

May everything be for the glory of God and the fulfillment of His Most Holy Will.

One who lives in the Divine Will, in her littleness, encloses the All and gives God to God. The divine prodigies.

The Divine Will absorbs me in everything, and as much as I feel reluctance in writing, the Omnipotent Fiat, with Its empire, imposes Itself over me, a little creature, and with Its divine lordship It conquers me, It knocks down my will, and placing it at Its divine feet like a footstool, with Its sweet and strong empire It induces me to write a new volume, while I thought I would take a break. Oh! adorable, ruling and Holy Will, since You want the sacrifice, I do not feel the strength to resist and to fight against You; but rather, I adore your dispositions, and dissolving myself in your Holy Volition, I pray You to help me, to fortify my weakness, and not to permit that I write anything but what You want and the way You want it. O please! may I be your repeater, and may I add nothing of my own. And You, my Love in the Sacrament, from that Holy Cell through which You look at me, and I look at You, do not deny me your help while I write, but come to write together with me. Only in this way will I feel the strength to begin.

I was doing my usual round in the Creation, to follow all the acts that the Supreme Volition had done in all created things; and my sweet Jesus, coming out from my interior, told me:

“My daughter, when the creature goes through the works of her Creator it means that she wants to recognize, appreciate, love, what God has done for love of her; and having nothing to give Him in return, while going through His works she takes the whole Creation as though in the palm of her hand, and she gives It back to God, intact and beautiful, for His glory and honor, saying to Him: ‘I recognize You, I glorify You by means of your own works, which alone are worthy of You.’ Now, Our delight in seeing Ourselves recognized in Our works by the creature is such and so great, that We feel as if the Creation were being repeated again, to give Us double glory; and since this double glory is given to Us because the creature recognizes Our works done for love of them and given to them as gift so that they would love Us, by recognizing Our gift, the creature encloses the All in the heaven of her soul, and We see, within her littleness, Our Divine Being with all Our works. More so since, Our Divine Fiat being present in the littleness of this creature, she has capacity and space to be able to enclose the All, and - oh! prodigy, to see the All enclosed in the human littleness, and to see her, brave, giving the All to the All, only to love Him and glorify Him. That the All of Our Supreme Being be the All - there is nothing to be surprised about, because such is Our Divine Nature - to be All. But the All in the human littleness is the wonder of wonders; these are prodigies of Our Divine Volition, that wherever It reigns It cannot make of Our Divine Being a Being by half, but the whole of It. And since the Creation is nothing other than an outpouring of love of Our creating Fiat, wherever It reigns It encloses all Its works, and therefore the human littleness can say: ‘I give God to God.' This is why, then, when We give Ourselves to the creature, We want everything - even her nothing, so that upon her nothing Our creative word may be repeated, and We may form Our All over the nothing of the creature. If she does not give Us everything - her littleness, her nothing - Our creative word cannot be repeated, nor is it decorous and an honor for Us to repeat it; because when We speak, We want to get rid of anything that does not belong to Us; and when We see that she does not give herself completely, We do not make her Our own, and so she remains the littleness and the nothing that she is, while We remain with the All that We are."

After this, I continued my abandonment in the Supreme Fiat, but I felt sad because of certain things which it is not necessary to say on paper. And my always lovable Jesus, moved to compassion for me, clasped me in His arms and, all love, told me:

"Oh! how dear to Me is the daughter of my Will. Now, you must know that sadness does not enter into my Divine Will. My Will is perennial joy, which renders the dwelling in which It reigns peaceful and happy. Therefore, this sadness, though I know it is because of Me, is old stuff from your human will, and my Divine Will does not receive the old stuff in your soul, because It has so many new things, that the space of your soul is not enough to put them all in. So, out your sadness - out. Oh! if you knew how many rare beauties my Divine Will forms in the soul.... Wherever It reigns It forms Its heaven, Its sun, Its sea and the little wind of Its divine refreshment and freshness. Being the insuperable Artisan, It has within Itself the ability of the art of Creation; and when It enters into the creature to form Its Kingdom, It has such a yearning to repeat Its art, and so It lays the heavens within her, It forms the sun and all the beauties of Creation. In fact, wherever It reigns, It wants Its own things, and It forms them with Its art, and It makes Itself be surrounded by works worthy of my Fiat. Therefore, the beauty of the soul in whom It reigns is indescribable.

"Does this not happen also in the human order? When someone does a work, by doing it, he does not lose his art - the art remains inside the creature as his own property, and he has the virtue of repeating his work as many times as he wants to repeat it; and if the work is beautiful, he yearns to have the occasion to repeat his work. Such is my Divine Will: the work of Creation is beautiful, majestic, sumptuous, full of order and unspeakable harmony, therefore It keeps looking for the occasion to repeat it, and this occasion is given to It by the souls who give It possession to let It dominate and extend Its Kingdom within themselves. Therefore, courage, move away from you anything that does not belong to my Divine Fiat, that It may be left free in Its divine work; otherwise you would form clouds around yourself, which would prevent my Light from expanding and shining in your soul with Its refulgent rays."

The first kiss, outpouring between Mother and Son. How all created things contain each its own outpouring. How for one who lives in the Fiat it is continuous creation. Divine contentment.

I was doing my round in the Creation and Redemption, and my little intelligence paused when my charming little Baby, in the act of coming out of the maternal womb, flung Himself into the arms of the Celestial Mama, and feeling the need to make His first outpouring of love, He surrounded the neck of His Mama with His little arms, and kissed Her. The Divine Queen also felt the need to make

Her first outpouring of love toward the Divine Infant, and She returned to Him the maternal kiss, with such affection as to feel Her Heart come out of Her chest. These were the first outpourings that Mother and Son made. I thought to myself: 'Who knows how many goods They enclosed in this outpouring!' And my sweet Jesus, making Himself seen as a little Baby in the act of kissing His Mama, told me:

"My daughter, how I felt the need to make this outpouring with my Mama. Indeed, everything that has been done by Our Supreme Being was nothing other than outpouring of love; and in the Virgin Queen I centralized all Our outpouring of love which We had in Creation, because, since my Divine Will was in Her, She was capable of receiving, with my kiss, this outpouring of Ours, so great, and of returning it to Me. In fact, only one who lives in my Divine Will centralizes within herself the continuous act of all Creation, and the attitude of pouring It back into God.

"To one who possesses my Divine Will I can give everything, and she can give Me everything; more so since, as We issued the Creation in an outpouring of love in order to give It to the creature, It lasts and will always last, and one who is in my Divine Will is as though present in Our house, receiving the continuity of this outpouring of Ours with the continuous act of all Creation. In fact, in order to preserve It as We made It, it is as if We were always in the act of creating It, and of saying to the creature: 'This outpouring of Ours, of having created so many things, says to you: "I loved you, I love you, and will always love you".' And the soul who lets herself be dominated by Our Divine Volition, upon Its wings, unable to contain this, Our outpouring of love so great, also pours out and says to Us, repeating Our same refrain: 'In your Will I loved You, I love You, and will always love You - always.' In fact, aren't all created things outpourings of love, which Our Fiat, as first actor, attested to the creature? Outpouring of love is the azure sky, and by remaining always stretched out, studded with stars, without ever fading or changing, it gives forth Our continuous outpouring of love toward the creature. Outpouring of love is the sun, and it pours out Our continuous love by filling all the earth with light; and all the effects it produces, which are innumerable, are continuous and repeated outpourings that it attests to the creature. Outpouring of Our love is the sea, and as it murmurs, it repeats its gigantic waves, now placid, now stormy; and as it produces so many fish, these are nothing other than continuous outpourings of Our love. Outpouring of Our love is the earth, and as it rips open to produce flowers, plants, trees and fruits, Our love continues its ardent outpouring. In sum, there is not one thing created by Us in which there isn't the continuous outpouring of Our love.

"But who is aware of so many outpourings of Ours? Who feels herself being invested by Our Creative Strength and touches Our inextinguishable flames with her own hand, to the point of feeling the need to requite Us with her own loving outpourings for her Creator? One who lives in Our Divine Fiat. For her it is continuous creation; she feels the power of Our Creative Strength which, operating in her, makes her touch with her own hand how her Creator is in act of creating continuously for love of her, making her feel His outpourings never interrupted in order to receive her requital. But who can tell you Our contentment when We see that the creature, by possessing Our Divine Fiat, receives and recognizes these outpourings of Ours, and unable to contain the great excess of love of Our divine outpourings, within Our very outpouring of love, forms her own outpouring toward her Creator? Then We feel as though repaid for everything We did in Creation. We feel her, in her delirium of love, saying to Us: 'Adorable Majesty, if it were in my power I too would like to create for you a heaven, a sun, a sea, and everything that You created, to tell You that I love You with your same love and with your own works, because a love that does not operate cannot be called love; but since your Divine Volition gave me everything of all that You created, I give it back to You to tell You that 'I love You - I love You.' And so the harmony, the exchange of gifts, the order, returns between Creator and creature, as it was established by God in Creation.

"Now, you must know that, by doing his will, man lost the order, the harmony, and he lost the rights of the gift of Creation, because only in one in whom my Divine Will reigns, since my Will is the Creator of all Creation, wherever It reigns, since the Creation is Its own, It gives It to the creature by right. But one in whom It does not reign can be called an intruder in Its works, and therefore cannot act as the owner, nor give to God what does not belong to her; nor can she feel all the outpourings of love that exist in the Creation, because she does not have Our Divine Will in her possession, which tells her Our love story. Without Our Divine Volition man is the true little ignorant one of his Creator, and like the little pupil without teacher. Oh! how painful it is to see man without Our Fiat. More so, since Our Creation is Our speaker, It is the bearer of Our loving kisses, of Our affectionate embraces. Oh! how my Humanity felt all this while being on earth. As I would go outside, the sun would give Me the kiss which my own Will had deposited in its light in order to give it to creatures. The wind would give Me the caresses, the embraces, which it contained in deposit from my own Divine Will. All Creation was brimful with divine charismas to give them to creatures; and my Humanity received everything, giving in return, so as to give vent to so many kisses repressed, embraces rejected and love unrecognized for so many centuries. In fact, since my Divine Will was not reigning, man was incapable of receiving the good that my Will Itself had placed in all Creation; and my Humanity, possessing my same Divine Will, gave It the first outlet, and received and gave the requital for everything that my same Divine Will had placed in all Creation. And so this is why, as I would go outside, all created things would make feast and, competing with one another, they would give Me what they possessed. Therefore, be attentive, and take to heart only living in my Divine Will, if you want to feel, vividly, what your Jesus tells you about my Supreme Fiat."

October 2, 1929

Only the Divine Will renders the creature happy; one prey to the other. One who does not have the true will to do a good is a poor cripple, and God does not want to make use of him.

My abandonment and living in the Divine Fiat continues. Oh! how powerful is Its Creative Strength. Oh! how dazzling is Its light which, penetrating into the inmost fibers of the heart, invests them, and caressing them, It makes space for Itself and raises Its throne of dominion and of command - but with such enrapturing sweetness, that the littleness of the creature remains vanished, but happy to remain without life and dissolved in the Divine Fiat. Oh! if all knew You, O adorable Will, oh! How they would love to become lost in You in order to reacquire your Life and be happy of the very divine happiness.

But while my littleness was dissolving in the Divine Fiat, my lovable Jesus moved in my interior, and clasping me very tightly to His Divine Heart, told me:

"My daughter, only my Divine Will can render the creature happy. With Its light, It either eclipses or puts to flight all evils, and says, with Its Divine Power: 'I am perennial happiness. Flee you, all evils; I want to be free, because before my happiness all evils lose life.' With one who lives completely in my Divine Volition, Its love is so great as to transform the actions of the creature, and an exchange of life takes place between God and her; an exchange of actions, of steps, of heartbeats. God remains clasped to the creature, and the creature to God; they become inseparable beings, and in this exchange of action and of life, the game is formed between Creator and creature - one makes oneself prey to the other. And in this becoming prey to each other, they play in a divine manner, they make each other happy, they make feast, and God and the creature sing glory, they feel victorious because no one has lost, but one has conquered the other. In fact, in my Divine Will no one loses - losses do not exist in It. Only of one who lives in my Will can I say that she is my amusement in Creation, and I feel victorious in lowering Myself to let Myself be conquered by the creature, because I know for sure that she will not be opposed to letting herself be conquered by Me. Therefore, the flight in my Will be always continuous."

After this, I was thinking about many things that blessed Jesus had told me about His Divine Will, His many ardent yearnings to make It known, and how in spite of the many yearnings of Jesus, nothing would arise to obtain His intent. And I said to myself: 'What wisdom of God, what profound mysteries - who can ever comprehend them? He wants it, He is sorrowful because there is no one who opens the way for His Will, to make It known; He shows His Heart yearning - longing for His Divine Will to make Its way so as to make Itself known, to form Its Kingdom in the midst of creatures; and then, as if He were an impotent God, the ways are barred, the doors are closed, and Jesus tolerates, and with invincible and unspeakable patience He waits for doors and ways to open, and He knocks at the hearts in order to find those who will be the ones who will occupy themselves with making His Divine Will known.'

But while I was thinking about this, my sweet Jesus, making Himself seen all goodness and tenderness, such as to break the hardest hearts, told me:

"My daughter, if you knew how much I suffer when I want to form my works and make them known to creatures in order to give them the good they contain, and I find no one who has true enthusiasm, genuine desire and the will to make my work his life in order to make it known, so as to give to others the life of the good of my work, which he feels within himself. And when I see these dispositions in one who must occupy himself with it, whom I call and choose, with so much love, for the works that belong to Me, I feel so drawn to him, that so that he may do well what I want, I lower Myself, I descend into him and I give him my mind, my mouth, my hands and even my feet, that he may feel the life of my work in everything, and, as life that is felt, not as something extraneous to him, he may feel the need to give it to others. My daughter, when a good is not felt within oneself as life, everything ends up in words, not in works, and I remain outside of them, not inside; and therefore they remain like poor cripples, without intelligence, blind, mute, without hands and without feet. And I, in my works, do not want to make use of poor cripples - I put them aside and, heedless of time, I continue to go around in order to find those who are disposed, who must serve my work. And just as I did not get tired of going around the centuries and the entire earth in order to find the littlest one, so as to place in her littleness the great deposit of the knowledges about my Divine Will, so will I not get tired of going around the earth, over and over again, to find the true disposed ones, who will appreciate, as life, what I have manifested about the Divine Fiat; and these will make any sacrifice in order to make It known.

“Therefore, I am not the impotent God, but rather, that patient God who wants His works to be done with decorum and by people who are willing, not forced; because the thing I abhor the most in my works is the unwillingness of the creature, as if I did not deserve their little sacrifices. And for the decorum of a work so great, which is that of making my Divine Will known, I do not want to use poor cripples - in fact, when one who does not have the genuine will to do a good, it is always a mutilation that he does to his soul - but I want to use people who, as I provide them with my divine members, would do it with decorum, as a work which must bring so much good to creatures, and great glory to my Majesty, deserves.”

How the Divine Fiat is inseparable from Its works. The terrible moment of the fall of Adam.

I was feeling all immersed in the Divine Fiat; Its Light surrounded me everywhere, inside and out; and my sweet Jesus, making Himself seen, clasped me in His arms, and drawing close to my mouth, sent His breath from His mouth into mine - but so strongly, that I could not contain it. Oh! how gentle, sweet, fortifying, was the breath of Jesus. I felt reborn to new life - and my always lovable Jesus told me:

“My daughter, everything that comes out of Our creative hands contains continuous preservation and creation. If Our creating and preserving act withdrew from the heavens, from the sun and from all the rest of Creation, all would lose life, because, since Creation is ‘the nothing’, they need the work of ‘the All’ in order to be preserved. This is why Our works are inseparable from Us; and what is not subject to separating, is loved always, is kept always under one’s eyes, and the work and the One who created it form one single thing. Our Fiat, which pronounced Itself in the act of creating all things, remained in the act of always speaking Itself, to constitute Itself act and perennial life of all Creation. Our operating is not like that of man, who does not place his breath, his heartbeat, his life, his warmth in his work; therefore his work is separable from him, nor does he love it with invincible and perfect love, because when something is separable, one can arrive at even forgetting about his work. On the other hand, in Our works, it is life that We place, which is loved so much, that in order to preserve it, We make Our Life always run within Our work; and if We see any danger, as it happened with man, We lay down Our Life in order to save the Life that has run within Our work.

“Now, my daughter, your living in my Divine Fiat began with Our asking for your will, which you most willingly gave Me; and when I saw you give Me your will, I felt victorious, and breathing into you, I wanted to pronounce my Omnipotent Fiat in the depth of your soul, to renew the act of Creation. This Fiat I repeat always, in order to give you continuous Life from It; and as It is repeated, It preserves you and maintains Its Life in you. This is why you often feel Me breathe into you, renewing your soul; and the inseparability I feel is my Divine Will that makes Me love, with perennial love, what We have deposited in you. Every time my Fiat is repeated, each of Its truths that It manifests to you, each of Its knowledges or words that It speaks to you, is a love that arises in Us, to love you more and to make itself loved. It is Our creating and preserving Fiat that, loving Its Life and what It has done in you, keeps pronouncing Itself in order to preserve Its Life and the beauty of Its work. Therefore, be attentive to receive continuously the word of my Fiat, for It is bearer of creation, of life and of preservation.”

After this, I was doing my round, to follow the acts of the Divine Fiat in the Creation; and as I arrived at Eden, I paused in the act when man rejected the Divine Will to do his own. Oh! how well I comprehended the great evil of doing the human will. And my beloved Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, terrible indeed was the moment of the fall of Adam. As he rejected Our Divine Will to do his own, Our Fiat was in act of withdrawing from the heavens, from the sun and from all Creation to reduce It to nothing, because the one who had rejected Our Divine Will no longer deserved that Our Fiat maintain the continuous act of creation and preservation in all Creation, made for love of man and given to him as gift from his Creator. If it wasn’t that the Eternal Word offered His foreseen merits of the future Redeemer, as He offered them to preserve the Immaculate Virgin from original sin, everything would have gone to ruin: the heavens, the sun, would have withdrawn into Our source; and as Our Divine Will withdraws, all created things would lose life. But the Word Humanate presented Himself before the Divinity, and making present all of His foreseen merits, all things remained in their place, and my Fiat continued His creating and preserving work, waiting for my Humanity in order to give it as legitimate gift, which I deserved; so much so, that the solemn promise was given to man, after his fall, that the future Redeemer would descend to save him, so that he would pray and dispose himself to receive Him.

“Our Will did everything and, with justice, had right over everything. By doing his will, man took Its divine rights away from It, therefore he no longer deserved that the sun give him light; and as the light invested him, Our Will would feel the rights of Its light being torn away. For each created thing that he would take and enjoy, it was tearings that he made to It. If it wasn’t for my Humanity, everything was lost for man. Therefore, not doing my Divine Will encloses all evils and is to lose all rights, of Heaven and of the earth; while doing It encloses all goods and acquires all rights, human and divine.”

By living in the Divine Will, the human will ascends and the Divine descends. How are the divine prerogatives acquired.

I was doing my usual round in the Divine Fiat, and calling everything It had done in Creation and Redemption, I was offering them to the Divine Majesty to impetrate that the Divine Will be known, so that It might reign and dominate in the midst of creatures. But while I was doing this, I thought to myself: ‘What is the good I do by always repeating these rounds, acts and offerings?’ And my lovable Jesus, moving in my interior, told me:

“My daughter, every time you go around in Our works, and you unite yourself to those same acts which my Fiat did in Creation and Redemption in order to offer them to Us, you take a step toward Heaven and my Divine Will takes a step toward the earth. So, as you ascend, It descends, and while remaining immense, It makes Itself small and encloses Itself in your soul to repeat your acts, your offerings, your prayers, together with you; and We feel Our Divine Volition praying in you. We feel Its breath coming out from you; We feel Its heartbeat that, while palpitating in Us, at the same time palpitates in you; We feel the power of Our creative works which, lining themselves up around Us, pray with Our Divine Power that Our Divine Will may descend to reign upon earth. More so since, in what you do, you are not an intruder or someone who, not occupying any office, does not have any power; but you have been called, and in a special way you have been given the office of making Our Divine Will known and of impetrating that Our Kingdom be constituted in the midst of the human family. So, there is great difference between one who has received an office from Us, and one who has received no task. One who has received an office, whatever she does, does by right, with freedom, because such is Our Divine Will. She represents all those who must receive the good We want to give by means of the office given to her. So, you are not the only one taking a step toward Heaven, but there are all those who will know my Divine Will; and, in descending, It descends through you into all those who will let It reign. Therefore, the only means in order to obtain the Kingdom of the Divine Fiat is to make use of Our works to obtain a good so great.”

Then, I continued following the acts of the Divine Will, and as I arrived at the point when It called the Sovereign Queen out from nothing, I stopped to comprehend Her - all beautiful, majestic. Her rights of Queen extended everywhere; Heaven and earth bent their knees to recognize Her as Empress of everyone and of everything. And I, from the bottom of my heart, venerated and loved the Sovereign Lady, and, as the little one I am, I wanted to make a jump onto Her maternal knees, to say to Her: ‘Holy Mama, all beautiful are You, and You are so because You lived of Divine Will. O please! You who possess It - pray It to descend upon earth and to come to reign in the midst of your children.’ But while I was doing this, my adored Jesus added:

“My daughter, even if my Mother had not been my Mother, only because She did the Divine Will perfectly and knew no other life, and lived in the fullness of It, by virtue of Her continuous living in my Fiat, She would have possessed all the divine prerogatives - She would still be Queen, the most beautiful of all creatures. In fact, wherever my Divine Fiat reigns, It wants to give everything, It holds nothing back; even more, It loves the creature so much that, making use of Its loving stratagems, It hides, It makes Itself small within her, loving to be knocked out by her. Indeed, was is not a knocking out of the Divine Volition that the Sovereign Queen of Heaven did, as She reached the point of making Me be conceived and of hiding Me in Her womb? Oh! if all knew what my Divine Will is able to do and can do, they would make all sacrifices in order to live only of my Will.”

How all are in waiting for the narration of the story of the Divine Will. Void of the acts of the creature in the Divine Will.

I was feeling all immersed in the Divine Fiat; before my poor mind I could see the whole Creation and the great prodigies operated by the Divine Will in It. It seemed that each created thing wanted to narrate what it possessed of the great Divine Fiat in order to make It known, loved and glorified. Then, while my mind wandered in looking at the Creation, my sweet Jesus came out from within my interior, and told me:

“My daughter, all are in waiting for the narration of the great poem of the Divine Will; and since the Creation was the first external act of the operating of my Fiat, It therefore contains the beginning of Its story of how much It has done for love of the creature. This is the reason why, wanting to tell you the whole story of my Divine Volition, I enclosed in it the whole story of Creation, with so many details and simple and special ways, so that you and all might know what my Divine Fiat has done and what It wants to do, and Its just rights in wanting to reign in the midst of the human generations. Everything that was done in Creation is not completely known by creatures - the love We had in creating It, how each created thing carries a note of love, one distinct from the other, enclosing a special good for creatures, so much so, that theirs lives are bound to Creation with indissoluble bonds, and if the creature wanted to withdraw from the goods of the Creation, she could not live. Who would give her the air in order to breathe, the light in order to see, the water to drink, the food to nourish herself, the solid earth to let her walk? And while my Divine Will has Its continuous act, Its Life and Its story to be made known in each created thing, the creature ignores It, and lives from It without knowing It. And so this is why all are in waiting, Creation Itself, wanting to make known a Will so Holy; and by my having spoken to you with so much love about Creation Itself, and of what my Divine Fiat does in It, Creation shows Its great desire of wanting to be known better, more so, since a good that is not known brings no life, nor the good it contains. Therefore, my Will is as though sterile in the midst of creatures, nor can It produce the fullness of Its Life in each one of them, because It is not known.”

After this, I felt an interior force within me that wanted to follow all the acts that the Divine Fiat had done in Creation and Redemption; but while I was doing it, I thought to myself: ‘What is the good I do in wanting to follow the Divine Volition in everything?’

And my beloved Jesus added:

“My daughter, you must know that everything that my Divine Will has done both in Creation and in Redemption, It has done for love of creatures, and so that creatures, by knowing It, would ascend into Its act in order to look at It, love It and unite their act to Its own, so as to keep It company, and place even just one comma, one point, one gaze, one ‘I love You’, on the so many works and divine prodigies that, in the ardor of Its love, my Fiat has done for all. Now, when you follow It in Its acts, It feels, your company, It will not feel alone; It feels your little act, your thought that follows Its act, therefore It feels requited. But if you did not follow It, It would feel the void of you and of your acts in the immensity of my Divine Volition, and with sorrow would cry out: ‘Where is the little daughter of my Will? I do not feel her in my acts, I do not enjoy her gazes that admire what I do, to say to me a “thank you”. I do not hear her voice that says to me: “I love You”. Oh! how loneliness weighs upon Me.’ And It would make you hear Its moans in the depth of your heart, saying to you: ‘Follow Me in my works - do not leave Me alone.’ So, the evil you would do would be to form the void of your acts in my Divine Will; while, if you do it, you would do the good of keeping It company; and if you knew how pleasing is company in operating, you would be more attentive. And just as my Divine Fiat would feel the void of your acts if you did not follow It, so would you feel the void of Its acts in your will, and you would feel alone, without the company of my Divine Will that loves to occupy you so much, as to make you feel no longer that your will lives in you.”

Beauty of the Creation. For one who lives in the Divine Will, God is in the act of always creating. The creature who lives in the Divine Volition doubles her love toward God. The two arms: immutability and firmness.

I felt myself in the immensity of the light of the Divine Fiat, and in this light one could see the whole Creation lined up as a birth from It; and wanting to delight in Its works, it seemed as if It were in the act of creating them and of always making them by preserving them. And my lovable Jesus, coming out from within my interior in the act of looking at the Creation to glorify Himself by means of His works, told me:

“My daughter, how beautiful is Creation - how It glorifies Us, how It magnifies the power of Our Fiat, It is nothing but one single act of Our Divine Volition, and though many things can be seen, one different from the other, they are nothing but the effects of Its single act, which never ceases and contains Its continuous operating act. And since Our act possesses by nature, as Its own exclusive property, light, immensity, empire and multiplicity of innumerable effects, it is no wonder, then, that as Our Fiat formed Its single act, from it came out immensity of heavens, most refulgent sun, vastness of sea, ruling wind, beauty of flowering, species of every kind; and power, such that, as if all Creation were a light breath, a small feather, It keeps It suspended, without any support, enclosed only in Its creative strength. Oh! power of my Fiat - how insuperable and unreachable You are.

“Now, you must know that only in the soul in whom my Divine Will reigns, since It reigns in all Creation, what the soul does unites itself to the single act that my Will does in the Creation, to receive the deposit of all the good that was done in It. In fact, this great machine of the universe was done in order to give It to the creature - but to that creature who would let Our Divine Volition reign. It is right that We do not go out of Our established purpose, and that the creature recognize and receive Our gift. But how to receive it if she is not in Our house - that is, in Our Divine Will? She would lack the capacity to receive it and the space in which to contain it. Therefore, only one who possesses my Divine Will can receive it. My Will delights with Its single act; as if It were in the act of creating for love of her, It makes her feel Its continuous act of creating the heavens, the sun and everything, and says, to her: ‘See how much I love you - only for you I continue to create all things; and to receive the requital from you, I make use of your acts as material in order to extend the heavens, as material of light in order to form the sun; and so with all the rest. The more acts you do in my Fiat, the more material you administer to Me with which to form more beautiful things in you.’ Therefore, let your flight in my Will never stop, and I will take the occasion to always operate in you.”

After this, I continued my acts in the Divine Volition, and making all of Its acts done in Creation and Redemption my own, I offered them to the Divine Majesty as the most beautiful gift I could give It as requital of my love; and I said to myself: ‘Oh! how I would like to have a heaven, a sun, a sea, a flowery earth, and everything that exists - all my own - to be able to give to my Creator my heaven, a sun that would be my own, a sea and a flowering that would all say: “I love You, I love You, I adore You...”. But while I was thinking of this, my beloved Jesus, clasping me in His arms, told me:

“My daughter, for one who lives in Our Will, everything is her own; since her will is one with Ours, what is Ours is hers. Therefore, in all truth you can say to Us: ‘I give You my heaven, my sun and everything.’ The love of the creature rises into Our love and places itself at Our level. In Our Divine Fiat the creature duplicates Our love, Our light, Our power, happiness and beauty, and We feel loved not only with Our own doubled love, but with powerful love, with love that enraptures Us, with love that makes Us happy. And seeing Ourselves being loved with doubled love on the part of the creature who lives in Our Will, for love of her We feel drawn to love all creatures with doubled love. In fact, with the creature in Our Fiat, her act loses life and she acquires Our act as her own; and Our act possesses the fount of light, of power, of love, the fount of happiness and beauty, and the soul can double, triple - multiply Our founts as much as she wants. And since she is in Our Will, We let her do it, We give her all the freedom, because what she does remains all in Our house - nothing goes out of Our divine and endless boundaries, therefore there is no danger that the fount of Our goods might receive the slightest harm. So, if you remain always in Our Divine Will, what is Ours is yours, and you can give Us whatever you want as your own.”

Then, I felt afflicted because of many things which it not necessary to say on paper; and my adorable Jesus added:

“My daughter, courage, I do not want you to afflict yourself I want to see in your soul the peace and the joy of the Celestial Fatherland; I want your very nature to give of fragrance of Divine Will, which is all peace and happiness. It would feel uncomfortable in you, and as though jeopardized in Its light and happiness, if perennial peace and happiness is not in you. And then, don’t you know that one who lives in my Divine Fiat forms two arms for herself? One is immutability, the other arm is firmness in operating continuously. With these two arms she keeps God clasped, in such a way that He cannot free Himself from the creature; not only this, but He enjoys her keeping Him clasped to herself. Therefore, you have no reason to afflict yourself, whatever the circumstances might be, when you have a God who is all your own. So, let your thought be to live in that Fiat that gave you life to form life in you, and I will take care of the rest.”

Parallel between the coming of the Word upon earth and the Divine Will.

I was feeling all concerned about the Divine Fiat; a thousand thoughts crowded my mind with what my sweet Jesus had told me about It, especially on Its reigning. And then I was saying to myself: ‘But, does the Divine Will reign upon earth now? It is true that It is everywhere, there is not one point in which It does not exist; but does It hold Its scepter, Its absolute command in the midst of creatures?’ But while my mind wandered amid many thoughts, my lovable Jesus, coining out from within me, told me:

“My daughter, my Divine Will reigns. It can be paralleled to Me, Eternal Word, who, in descending from Heaven, enclosed Myself in the womb of my Celestial Mother. Who knew anything? No one, not even Saint Joseph knew, at the beginning of my conception, that I was already in their midst. Only my inseparable Mama was aware of everything. So, the great portent of my descent from Heaven upon earth had occurred, and in reality; and while with my immensity I existed everywhere - Heaven and earth were immersed in Me, with my person I was enclosed in the maternal womb of the Immaculate Queen - no one knew Me, I was ignored by all.

“And so, my daughter, here is the first step of the parallel between Me, Divine Word, when I descended from Heaven, and my Divine Will that takes Its first step to come to reign upon earth. Just as I directed my first steps toward the Virgin Mother, so did my Will direct Its first steps in you; and as It asked for your will and you surrendered it, It immediately formed Its first act of conception in your soul; and as It manifested Its knowledges, giving you as though many divine sips, It formed Its Life and gave start to the formation of Its Kingdom. But, for a long time, who knew anything? No one; only you and I were aware of everything; and after some time my representative, the one who directed you, became aware of what was happening in you - symbol of my representative, Saint Joseph, who was to appear as my father before creatures, and who, before I came out of the maternal womb, had the great honor and gift of knowing that I was already in their midst.

“After the first steps I took the second: I went to Bethlehem to be born, and I was recognized and visited by the shepherds of that place. But they were not influential people, they kept for themselves the beautiful news that I had already come upon earth, therefore they did not occupy themselves with making Me known, with spreading Me everywhere, and I continued to remain the Jesus hidden and unknown to all. But, though unknown, I was already in their midst - symbol of my Divine Will: very often other representatives of mine have come to you, from afar and from nearby, who have listened to the beautiful news of the Kingdom of my Divine Will, the knowledges about It, and how It wants to be recognized. But, some for lack of influence, some of will, they did not occupy themselves with spreading It, and It remained unknown and ignored, even though It already exists in their midst; but because It is not known, It does not reign - It reigns only in you, just as I was only with my Celestial Mama and with my foster father Saint Joseph.

“The third step of my coming upon earth is the exile, and I had this because the Holy Magi came to visit Me, who aroused some interest in searching for Me. This search of Me made Herod fearful, and instead of joining with them to come to visit Me, he wanted to plot against my life in order to kill Me, and by necessity I was forced to go into exile. Symbol of my Divine Will: very often it seems that they arouse some interest, that they want to make It known by publishing It. But - nothing! Some are taken by fear, some are afraid to compromise themselves, some do not feel like sacrificing themselves; now with one pretext, now with another, everything ends up in words, and my Divine Will remains exiled from the midst of creatures. And just as I did not depart for Heaven, but in the exile I remained in the midst of creatures, only with my Divine Mother and with Saint Joseph who knew Me very well and I formed their paradise on earth, while for the others it was as if I did not exist; in the same way, having formed Its Life in you with all the cortege of Its knowledges, if It does not receive the effects, the purpose for which It has made Itself known, how can my Fiat depart? In fact, when We decide to do a work, a good, no one can move Us. Therefore, in spite of the exile and of Its hiddenness, just as I did - doing my public life and making Myself known after thirty years of hidden life - so will my Divine Volition not be able to remain always hidden, but will obtain Its intent of making Itself known in order to reign in the midst of creatures. Therefore, be attentive, and know how to appreciate the great gift of my Divine Will in your soul.”

How in the Divine Will the soul has everything in her power, because she finds the fount of the divine works and can repeat them whenever she wants.

I was feeling all abandoned in the Divine Fiat, following and offering all of Its acts, both of Creation and of Redemption, and as I reached the conception of the Word, I said to myself: “How I would like, in the Divine Will, to make the conception of the Word my own, to be able to offer to the Supreme Being the love, the glory, the satisfaction as if the Word were being conceived once again.” But while I was saying this, my sweet Jesus moved in my interior and told me:

“My daughter, in my Divine Will the soul has everything in her power; there is nothing that Our Divinity has done, both in Creation and in Redemption, whose fount Our Divine Fiat does not possess. In fact, It disperses nothing of Our acts, but rather, It is the depositary of everything; and one who possesses Our Divine Volition possesses the fount of my conception, of my birth, of my tears, of my steps, of my works, of everything. Our acts are never exhausted, and as she remembers and wants to offer my conception, my conception is renewed as if I were being conceived again; I rise again to new birth; my tears, my pains, my steps and works rise again to new life and repeat the great good that I did in Redemption.

“So, one who lives in Our Divine Will is the repeater of Our works, because just as nothing in the Creation has been dispersed of what was created, so is everything of Redemption in act of arising continuously. But who gives Us the spur? Who gives Us the occasion to move Our founts in order to renew Our works? One who lives in Our Will. By virtue of It, the creature takes, part in Our creative strength, therefore she can make everything rise again to new life. With her acts, with her offerings, with her supplications, she moves Our founts continuously, which, moved as though by a pleasant breeze, form the waves, and overflowing with Our acts, multiply and grow to infinity. Our founts are symbolized by the sea: if the wind does not agitate it, if the waves are not formed, the waters do not overflow outside and the cities do not get wet. The same with Our founts of Our so many works: if Our Divine Fiat does not want to move them, or if one who lives in It gives no thought to forming any breeze with her acts, even though they are filled to the brim, they do not overflow outside to multiply their goods for the good of creatures.

“In addition to this, with one who lives in Our Divine Fiat, as she keeps forming her acts, these acts ascend to the beginning from which the creature came out; they do not remain down below, but ascend so very high, to look for the bosom of the One from whom the first act of her existence came out. These acts line up around the Beginning, which is God, as divine acts. In seeing the acts of the creature in His Divine Will, God recognizes them as His acts, and feels loved and glorified as He wants, with His very love and with His own glory.”

Why the Kingdom of the Divine Will could not come before the coming of Our Lord upon earth.
The graft of Jesus Christ and the graft of Adam.

I was doing my round in the Creation, and I was following all the acts done by the Divine Fiat, from Eden up to the descent of the Divine Word upon earth. But while I was doing this, I thought to myself. “And why did the Kingdom of the Divine Will not come upon earth before the Son of God came from Heaven to earth?” And my sweet Jesus, taking the occasion from what I was thinking... or rather, it seems to me that when He wants to speak to me, He gives me the reflections, He makes doubts and difficulties arise in me, and the desire to know many things about His Kingdom; while, when He does not want to speak to me, my mind is silent, I am unable to reflect upon anything, and I go through the acts of the Divine Will within Its light. So, my lovable Jesus, coming out from within my interior, told me:

“My daughter, the Kingdom of my Divine Will could not come upon earth before my coming to it, because there was no humanity which possessed, as much as it is possible for a creature, the fullness of my Divine Fiat, and not possessing it, there was no right, either according to the divine order or according to the human order. Heaven was closed; the two wills, human and Divine, were as though scowling at each other; man felt himself in the impossibility of asking for a good so great, so much so, that he would not even think about it. By right of justice, God was in the impossibility of giving it. Before my coming upon earth, God and the creature were with each other like the earth and the sun: the earth does not possess the seed with which, by pulverizing it, it may form the shoot in order to form the plant of that seed; the sun, not finding the shoot, cannot communicate the effects it possesses so as to be able to form, with its vivifying virtue, the development and the formation of that plant. So, earth and sun are as though foreign to each other; it can be said, if they had reason, that they would as though scowl at each other, for the earth cannot produce and receive that good, and the sun cannot give it.

“Such was the state of humanity without the seed of my Fiat, and if there is no seed it is useless to hope for the plant. Now, with my coming upon earth, the Divine Word clothed Himself with human flesh and, by this, He formed the graft with the tree of humanity. My Humanity lent Itself as seed to the Eternal Word, and my Divine Will formed the new graft with my human will. From this, since I was the head of all human generations, began the right on both sides, human and Divine - for them, to be able to receive the Kingdom of my Divine Will; for God, to be able to give It. Now, when a graft is made, it does not immediately assimilate the strength of the new humors, but it keeps assimilating the new humors of that graft little by little; therefore, at the very beginning it gives few fruits, but as it keeps forming, the fruits increase, they are bigger and more tasty, until the whole tree is formed, loaded with branches and fruits. Such is the graft made by Me with the tree of humanity. About two thousand years have passed, and humanity has not received all the humors of my graft; but there is reason to hope, because the seed, the graft, is there, and therefore the creature can ask for it. God finds Himself in the possibility of giving it, because there is my Humanity that, possessing my Divine Will by nature by virtue of the Word made flesh, has given back the rights to man and to God. Therefore, everything I did in Redemption is nothing other than preparation, watering, cultivation, to give development to this celestial graft made by Me between the two wills, the human and the Divine.

“So, how could the Kingdom of my Divine Will come before my coming upon earth if the graft was missing, as well as the principle of Its Life, Its operating in act in the soul, and Its first act in the act of the human work in order to extend Its Kingdom in each of their acts? It is true that my Divine Fiat, with Its power and immensity, extended Its empire everywhere, but in the human will It was not present as principle of life, but only by power and immensity. It was in the condition in which sun and earth find themselves: the sun invests the earth with its light, and it also gives its effects, but the earth does not become sun and the sun does not become earth, because sun and earth do not fuse together, in such a way as to form life one within the other, and therefore they are always foreign
